"In view of the fact . . . that the . . . [carrier] held this out as the proper place for its passengers to come to for the purpose of taking its cars, so that its passengers had a right to regard themselves as having come thither by its invitation," it may be liable, even though it lacks complete control, since "the general principle has been established that one who, though not strictly in control of a defective thing or dangerous place, yet uses it for his own benefit and for his own purposes invites another to enter it, may, if the other elements of liability concur, be held responsible to the latter for an injury caused by the defect or danger."—Kuhlen v. Boston & N. St. Ry. Co., 79 N.E. 815, 817, 193 Mass. 341, 7 L.R.A.,N.S., 729, 118 Am.S.R. 516.

Street railway

The duty applies to a carrier by street railway at inclosed stations which it controls, but does not apply at street corners or crossings where the premises are not under its control.—South Covington & C. St. Ry. v. Vanice, 278 S.W. 116, 211 Ky. 774.

Union depots

Where an intending passenger was injured in a union depot by the rush of the crowd as a result of the shifting of the signal sign from one gate to another by an employee of the company operating the depot, it was held that, since the carrier had no control over the station or the facilities or employees thereof, it was not liable.—Bright v. Penna. R.R. Co., 69 Pa.Super. 188.

98. Pa.—Prettyman v. Trenton Transportation Co., 73 Pa.Super. 353.

99. U.S.—Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co. v. Hines, C.C.A.Md., 269 F. 781.

Ky.—South Covington & C. St. Ry. v. Vanice, 278 S.W. 116, 211 Ky. 774.

Mass.—Sack v. Davis, 139 N.E. 819, 245 Mass. 114—Bryant v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 122 N.E. 744, 232 Mass. 549—Kuhlen v. Boston & N. St. Ry. Co., 79 N.E. 815, 193 Mass. 341, 7 L.R.A.N.S., 729, 118 Am.S.R. 516.

Mo.—Oesch v. St. Louis Public Service Co., 59 S.W.2d 758, 228 Mo.App. 1055—Grubb v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 230 S.W. 675, 207 Mo.App. 16.

N.J.—Sandler v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 151 A. 99, 8 N.J.Misc. 537, affirmed 156 A. 459, 108 N.J.Law 203.

N.Y.—Williams v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 6 N.E.2d 58, 272 N.Y. 366, reversing 288 N.Y.S. 778, 248 App.Div. 765—McGearty v. Manhattan Ry. Co., 43 N.Y.S. 1086, 15 App.Div. 2—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 163 Misc. 815.

Pa.—Coyle v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa. 496—Muhlhause v. Monongahela St. Ry. Co., 50 A. 937, 201 Pa. 237—Prettyman v. Trenton Transportation Co., 73 Pa.Super. 353.

10 C.J. p. 903 notes 55, 56—p. 904 note 57.

Absence of mishaps in past

(1) In a passenger's action for injuries received as a result of being pushed under a moving car by a crowd of intending passengers, the claim that carrier had used the same negligent means to protect passengers in the past with no untoward results cannot be upheld, since a mere negligent method for a long period of time, without injuries, does not establish a correct standard of care and safety.—Grubb v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 230 S.W. 675, 207 Mo. App. 16.

(2) That a passenger who was injured had used railroad platform for five years, and had never before been crowded off during "rush" period, was not measure of railroad's liability or duty.—Sandler v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 151 A. 99, 8 N.J.Misc. 537, affirmed 156 A. 459, 108 N.J.Law 203.

Excursion trains

A carrier, inviting public to use its excursion trains, has notice that large crowds are likely to assemble, and must use proper care to protect them from injury from a sudden rush by the crowd to enter cars immediately on arrival of its trains.—Coyle v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa. 496—10 C.J. p. 921 note 87 [b].

Tendency to push toward cars

"Whenever from past experience it may be reasonably anticipated by the carrier that at a given time in its terminal there will be an unusual crowd, it must take notice of the fact that under such conditions such crowds in attempting to board its cars will indulge the naturally selfish propensity of pushing, shoving, and jostling, even to boisterousness, to the end that they may promptly board the cars, and that in such circumstances its passengers may be injured."—South Covington & C. St. Ry. v. Vanice, 278 S.W. 116, 117, 211 Ky. 774.

1. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So. 920, 200 Ala. 562.

Mass.—Martin v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N.E. 300, 262 Mass. 542—Sack v. Davis, 139 N.E. 819, 245 Mass. 114.

N.J.—Janderup v. Raritan River R. Co., 102 A. 1053, 91 N.J.Law 327—Kalleberg v. Raritan River R. Co., 102 A. 350, 91 N.J.Law 222.

N.Y.—McKinney v. New York Consol. R. Co., 129 N.E. 652, 230 N.Y. 194, reversing 172 N.Y.S. 906, 186 App. Div. 959.

Pa.—Spagnol v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 123 A. 781, 279 Pa. 205, 32 A.L.R. 1313—Prettyman v. Trenton Transportation Co., 73 Pa.Super. 353.

Absence of previous boisterous conduct

Carrier was not liable to entraining passenger whose injury was occasioned by jostling and pushing of crowd on platform, where there was no evidence of boisterous conduct on previous occasions, and the carrier had no notice that there would be such conduct.—Martin v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N.E. 300, 262 Mass. 542.

Acts of carrier causing crowding

(1) Street railway was held not negligent in moving car forward from one berth in the station to another, so that an intending passenger was thrown to platform by crowd, sive crowding,[2] and to control boisterous or unruly crowds by providing proper facilities, such as gates or guard rails, to safeguard passengers,[3] or by providing a sufficient number of employees to police the unruly crowd.[4] Further, this duty may require where unruliness had not occurred in the past—Alward v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 145 N E 332, 250 Mass. 244.

(2) Woman thrown to platform, on which she was waiting to board train at closed front end door of car, when crowd rushed toward rear door immediately after railroad company's employee passed front door without opening it, was held not entitled to recover damages from company for resulting injuries.—Hanshew v. Lehigh Valley R Co, 286 N.Y.S. 589, 247 App.Div. 784.

No indication of crowd

A subway carrier was not bound to anticipate that a large number of people would congregate at a station in one minute's time, where there was nothing to indicate that such a thing might happen—McKinney v. New York Consol. R. Co., 129 N.E. 652, 230 N.Y. 194, reversing 172 N.Y.S. 906, 186 App.Div. 959.

Surge toward cars

(1) "The company is not bound to anticipate the crowd will, in disregard of the rights of others, surge toward the entrances, injuring persons about to board the cars."—Spagnol v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 123 A. 781, 782, 279 Pa. 205, 32 A.L.R. 1313.

(2) Where a passageway provided for passengers' use in boarding trains was ordinarily safe, but because of the crowd a passenger was pushed into the path of a train, the carrier was not liable, since there were no abnormal conditions and the rush of the crowd could not have been anticipated.

Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So. 920, 200 Ala. 562.

Pa.—Prettyman v. Trenton Transportation Co., 73 Pa.Super. 353.

(3) Carrier was not liable for injuries to prospective passenger pushed under train by crowd in absence of likelihood of lawlessness or riotousness—Sack v. Davis, 139 N.E. 819, 245 Mass. 114.

2. Mo.—Grubb v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 230 S.W 675, 207 Mo.App. 16.

N.Y.—McGearty v. Manhattan Ry. Co., 43 N.Y.S. 1086, 1087, 15 App. Div. 2—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 1017, 163 Misc. 815—Dashew v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 175 N.Y.S. 875

Pa.—Muhlhause v. Monongahela St. Ry Co, 50 A. 937, 201 Pa. 237.

10 C.J. p 921 note 87 [d].

"The . . . [carrier] must be assumed to have known the capacity of its platform and when it had admitted passengers to the extent of such capacity. If, when having done this, the passengers were not removed by its trains, it became its duty to permit no more to enter."—McGearty v. Manhattan Ry. Co., supra—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, supra.

Crowd exceeding car's capacity

"To permit . . . 150 or 200 persons anxious to return home to go into the inclosure used as a station platform for entering a car with a seating capacity of 45 people, at 9 o'clock at night . . . would necessarily result in danger;" the carrier should have admitted only a sufficient number of persons to fill the car.—Muhlhause v. Monongahela St Ry. Co., 50 A. 937, 939, 201 Pa. 237.

Room back of platform

Where the platform adjoined a public highway so that there was ample room for the crowd behind the platform, it cannot be said that the platform accommodations were insufficient.—Janderup v. Raritan River R Co, 102 A. 1053, 91 N.J Law 327—Kalleberg v. Raritan River R Co., 102 A. 350, 91 N.J.Law 222.

What constitutes excessive crowding

(1) A crowd on a subway station platform must prevent free action.—Commerford v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 192 N.Y.S. 349, 199 App. Div 852

(2) "Permitting the platform to be crowded to repletion does not of itself constitute negligence."—Bryant v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 122 N. E. 744, 746, 232 Mass 549.

(3) "That a subway station is crowded with people pushing and hurrying to enter cars and similar conditions had obtained at other times is not sufficient to establish negligence."—Martin v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N.E. 300, 301, 262 Mass. 542.

(4) The overcrowding of a station which exposes passengers to danger is sufficient basis for a finding by a jury of the carrier's negligence—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 163 Misc. 815.

3. N.Y.—McGearty v Manhattan Ry Co., 43 N.Y.S. 1086, 15 App.Div. 2—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 163 Misc. 815.

Pa—Muhlhause v. Monongahela St. Ry. Co, 50 A. 937, 201 Pa 237—Prettyman v. Trenton Transportation Co., 73 Pa.Super. 353.

Difficulty of control

"It is no sufficient reason for not using the gate for this purpose [control of large crowds] that . . . it would be difficult to keep the crowd outside, and that there would be serious danger of injury to women and children in doing so"—Muhlhause v Monongahela St. Ry. Co, 50 A. 937, 939, 201 Pa. 237.

Absence of a guard rail has a direct relation to the number of persons who may safely be admitted to the platform.—McGearty v. Manhattan Ry. Co., 43 N.Y.S. 1086, 15 App. Div. 2.

4. U.S—Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co. v. Hines, C C.A.Md., 269 F. 781.

Ky.—South Covington & C. St. Ry v Vance, 278 S.W 116, 211 Ky 774.

Mass.—Bryant v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 122 N.E. 744, 232 Mass 549—Kuhlen v. Boston & N. St Ry. Co, 79 N.E. 815, 193 Mass. 341, 7 L.R.A.,N.S, 729, 118 Am.S.R 516.

Mo.—Grubb v Kansas City Rys. Co, 230 S.W 675, 207 Mo.App. 16.

N.Y—Commerford v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 192 N.Y.S. 349, 199 App Div. 852—Allessi v New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 163 Misc. 815—Farmer v Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 205 N.Y.S. 479, 123 Misc 383

Pa.—Coyle v Philadelphia & R. Ry Co, 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa. 496—Muhlhause v. Monongahela St. Ry Co., 50 A. 937, 201 Pa. 237.

10 C.J. p 904 note 57—p 921 note 87

Disturbance of peace as prerequisite

"It was not necessary before the . . [carrier] could properly act that the crowd should be so violent, riotous and disorderly as to endanger and disturb the public peace"—Bryant v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 122 N.E. 744, 746, 232 Mass. 549.

No guards necessary where no overcrowding

Unless a subway platform is overcrowded, and crowding caused injury to passenger boarding car, there was no duty or need for carrier to have guards there, and absence of guards was not negligence—Commerford v Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 192 N.Y.S. 349, 199 App.Div. 852—Farmer v Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 205 N.Y.S. 479, 123 Misc. 383.

Sufficiency of guards

(1) The carrier is required to furnish a sufficient police force to protect its passengers against assaults or violence and crowds which might reasonably be expected, but not one sufficient to overcome all violence to passengers from strangers when such violence is not to be reasonably the carrier to provide both.[5]

Degree of care required. In the performance of its duty to protect passengers from dangerous crowds, the carrier is commonly required to exercise reasonable or ordinary care,[6] although the highest degree of care has been required by a few authorities.[7]

§ 721. Duty to Keep Station Open, Heated, and Comfortable

a. Duty to keep station open

b. Duty to keep station heated and comfortable

a. Duty to Keep Station Open

It is the carrier's duty to keep its stations or waiting rooms open for a reasonable time, or for such period as a statute or rule of the railroad commission prescribes, before and after the arrival and departure of trains. The prescription of a certain time does not relieve the carrier of the duty to keep stations open for a longer time if circumstances require.

It is not only the duty of a carrier to provide and maintain safe and adequate stational facilities, supra § 717, but it is also its duty to keep its stations or waiting rooms open, for the accommodation of passengers, for a reasonable time,[8] expected.—Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co. v. Hines, C.C.A.Md., 269 F. 781.

(2) Carrier must furnish sufficient guards to control crowd in pushing and jostling in boarding cars, so as to prevent injury to passengers—South Covington & C. St. Ry. v. Vanice, 278 S.W. 116, 211 Ky. 774.

(3) "It would be unreasonable to require . . [the carrier] to maintain a force of men large enough to suppress a riotous demonstration."—Spagnol v. Pennsylvania R Co, 123 A 781, 782, 279 Pa. 205, 32 A.L.R. 1313

Driving from shelter

Where a news stand was six feet from the edge of the platform, and some passengers were gathered at that point for protection from the wind, the carrier's guard had no duty to drive them from this shelter—Williams v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 6 N.E.2d 58, 272 N.Y. 366, reversing 288 N.Y.S 778, 248 App Div. 765.

Duty in absence of adequate facilities

"There is a distinction as to a carrier's duty in handling a crowd at a station like this [having a platform 480 feet by 18 feet] and that where they gather at resorts and popular places of amusement where no adequate station facilities are offered. Coyle v. P. & R. Ry. Co., 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa 496. At the latter places the company must employ assistance to keep the crowd away from the trains as much as possible."—Spagnol v. Pennsylvania R Co., 123 A. 781, 782, 279 Pa. 205.

Restraint by warning and force

Transit corporation has a duty, with respect to the surging forward of passengers at busy subway terminal at time of arrival of train, to "watch the conditions and by warning and by physical opposition if necessary, restrain aggressive persons and make the entrance orderly so far as reasonable use of abilities permits."—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 1015, 163 Misc. 815.

5. N.Y.—McGearty v. Manhattan Ry. Co, 43 N.Y.S 1086, 15 App Div. 2—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 163 Misc. 815.
Pa.—Muhlhause v. Monongahela St. Ry Co, 50 A. 937, 201 Pa. 237

6. Mo.—Oesch v. St Louis Public Service Co., 59 S.W.2d 758, 228 Mo. App. 1055
N.J.—Sandler v Hudson & M. R Co, 151 A. 99, 8 N.J Misc. 537, affirmed 156 A 459, 108 N.J.Law 203
N.Y.—McGearty v Manhattan Ry. Co., 43 N.Y.S. 1086, 15 App.Div. 2—Allessi v New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 163 Misc. 815.
Pa.—Coyle v. Philadelphia & R Ry. Co., 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa. 496—Muhlhause v. Monongahela St. Ry. Co, 50 A. 937, 201 Pa 237—Prettyman v. Trenton Transportation Co., 73 Pa.Super. 353.
10 C.J. p 921 note 87

"The . . . [carrier] is bound to use the skill and care such as would be exercised by a good and diligent businessman in his particular vocation, and such degree of reasonable skill and care should be exercised in handling passengers on platforms and ways to incoming trains."—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 1015, 163 Misc 815

Corpus Juris quoted

Mo.—Oesch v. St. Louis Public Service Co, 59 S.W.2d 758, 760, 228 Mo.App. 1055.

"Such rule is firmly established"

N.J.—Sandler v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 151 A 99, 100, 8 N.J.Misc. 537, affirmed 156 A. 459, 108 N.J.Law 203.

Care required in transportation distinguished

"That . . . [the duty] does not require generally even the highest degree of practicable care, as in the actual transportation of passengers, is evident, as the passenger is not deprived in such case of his power of self-protection, which to a large degree is preserved to him."—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S 1011, 1015, 163 Misc. S15.

Factors affecting care required

"In considering the degree of care required by the carrier . . . consideration must be had of the following elements· (a) Width and length of the station platform; (b) location of the entrances and exits; (c) number of exits and entrances; (d) normal traffic; (e) 'rush hour' traffic; (f) presence and necessity for guard rails; (g) necessity and number of guards; (h) obstruction on platform by pillars, news stands; (i) space between platform and train; (j) whether the station platform is straight or curved and respective distances of train to straight and curved platform; (k) visibility of station platform, entrances to subway cars, (l) warnings of danger by signs or guards, etc."—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 1016, 163 Misc. 815.

7. U.S.—Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co. v. Hines, C.C.A.Md., 269 F. 781
Mass.—Kuhlen v Boston & N. St. Ry. Co., 79 N.E. 815, 193 Mass. 341, 7 L.R.A., N.S., 729, 118 Am.S.R. 516

As to boarding passenger

Carrier held to owe highest degree of care to protect passenger about to board car at terminal station from a boisterous crowd.—South Covington & C St. Ry. v. Vanice, 278 S.W. 116 211 Ky. 774.

Mode of conveyance and operation as factors

"Persons waiting to board a train . . . are entitled to receive from the carrier the highest degree of care for their safety consistent with the mode of conveyance and its practical operation."—Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co v. Hines, C.C.A. Md, 269 F 781, 782.

8. Miss.—Williams v. Southern R. Co., 59 So. 850, 851, 102 Miss. 617.
10 C.J. p 804 note 57, p 921 note 89.

"It is unnecessary to cite authorities for the statement that the com-or for such time as a statute[9] or a rule of the railroad commission[10] may prescribe, before and after the arrival and departure of trains; and the duty to keep waiting rooms open for reasonable periods exists also where a statute provides that waiting rooms shall be kept open at such hours as to accommodate passengers traveling over the carrier's road on any of its trains, and naming no specific time.[11] The fact that a statute or rule prescribes a certain time does not relieve the carrier of the duty of keeping its stations open for a longer time if the circumstances of a particular case require it.[12] The carrier is liable to one suffering injury as a result of its failure to perform this duty.[13]

Statutes as affecting departing passengers. A mon law, in the absence of any statute, requires all common carriers of passengers to keep their waiting rooms open and comfortably heated for a reasonable time before and after the arrival and departure of all trains."—Williams v. Southern R Co., supra.

The rule as stated in Corpus Juris is cited in Hansen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 188 P. 852, 856, 55 Utah 577.

Determination of reasonable time

'For the courts to determine what is a reasonable time, it is important to know all of the facts and circumstances going to make up the case to be decided"—Williams v. Southern R. Co., 59 So. 850, 851, 102 Miss. 617

Gratuitous passenger

One who has a pass from the carrier and who goes to the station to await the train is deemed a passenger, and is entitled to recover for injury from exposure caused by station agent's failure to keep the waiting room open.—Hansen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 188 P. 852, 55 Utah 577.

Station customarily open

A passenger who went to the station two hours before the train was due, and three hours before it actually arrived, and who was refused admission to the locked waiting room which was customarily kept open all night when it was cold, was allowed to recover for injuries caused by exposure.—Hansen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 188 P. 852, 55 Utah 577.

Where no duty to provide station

A railroad company which builds the station house and waiting room at a certain station cannot arbitrarily deny the use thereof to a particular passenger, even though it is not under a duty either at common law or under statute to maintain a waiting room at that particular station—Waldrop v. Nashville, etc, R. Co., 62 So. 769, 183 Ala. 226.

9. Miss.—Adams v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co, 76 So. 733, 115 Miss. 865
Tex.—Gulf, C & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, Com App, 268 S.W. 149, reversing, Civ App., 251 S.W. 553—International, etc., R. Co v. Pevey, 70 S.W 778, 30 Tex.Civ App. 460.
10 C.J. p 921 note 90.

Statute as fixing reasonable time

The time prescribed in the statute during which stations must be kept open is the legislative construction of a reasonable time for that purpose, and, where a railroad in compliance with the statute opened its station one hour before the departure of a train, it was not liable to a prospective passenger for injuries resulting from exposure before the station was opened—Texas Midland R Co. v. Griggs, Tex Civ App., 106 S. W. 411.

Unscheduled stop at passenger's request

Where a train stops, at a passenger's request, at a station at which it was not scheduled to stop, there is no liability on the part of the carrier for failure to have the depot open for the time prescribed in the statute—St. Louis Southwestern R Co. v. Wallace, 74 S.W. 581, 32 Tex. Civ.App. 312.

Flag station

(1) The rule stated in the text has been applied to flag stations.—Adams v Yazoo & M. V R. Co, 76 So 733, 115 Miss. 865—10 C J. p 921 note 89 [a] (2)

(2) However, a statute requiring railroads to keep their ticket offices at regular passenger depots open for at least thirty minutes before the time of departure of trains, and to open waiting rooms for the same time as ticket offices, has been held not to require railroads to keep depots open at flag stations during the nighttime—Sandifer v Louisville, etc., R. Co., 89 S.W. 528, 28 Ky.L. 464.

10. S C.—Neal v. Southern R. Co, 75 S.E. 405, 92 S.C. 197.

11. S.C—Ginn v. U. S. Railroad Administration, 103 S.E. 548, 114 S C 236—Neal v Southern R. Co, 75 S E. 405, 92 S C. 197.

Intending passenger protected

S C.—Ginn v. U. S. Railroad Administration, 103 S.E. 548, 114 S.C. 236.

Passenger changing trains, who had to wait seven hours, and was kept out of the waiting room for two hours, was held entitled to recover for injuries suffered as a result of the exposure.—Neal v. Southern R Co., 75 S E 405, 92 S.C. 197.

Notice of desire for special care

"Reasonable notice should be give to the railroad if special care and attention is desired, otherwise, a sick passenger would bear the same relation to the railroad company as a well passenger, and would have, in the absence of notice, no higher right."—Ginn v. U S. Railroad Administration, 103 S.E. 548, 549, 114 S C. 236.

12. Miss—Williams v. Southern R Co, 59 So. 850, 102 Miss. 617.
10 C.J p 922 note 92.

Commission's rule merely minimum time

Where a statute required waiting rooms to be "kept open at such hours as to accommodate passengers traveling over such road on any of its passenger trains," and a rule of the railroad commission stated that they must be kept open for at least thirty minutes before the scheduled arrival of a train, it was held that the statute established the carrier s duty to keep open for a reasonable time, and that the rule merely established a minimum time—Neal v Southern R. Co, 75 S E. 405, 407, 92 S C. 197.

13. Ala.—Waldrop v. Nashville, etc, R Co, 62 So. 769, 183 Ala. 226
Ark—St Louis, etc., R. Co. v Wilson, 66 S.W. 661, 70 Ark. 136, 91 Am.S R 74.
Kan—Higgins v Southern Kansas Stage Lines Co, 42 P.2d 599, 141 Kan 641.
S C.—Ginn v. U. S Railroad Administration, 103 S E. 548, 114 S C 236—Neal v. Southern R Co., 75 S.E 405, 92 S C. 197.
Utah.—Hansen v. Oregon Short Line R Co, 188 P. 852, 55 Utah 577.

Exclusion from shelter

(1) A carrier is liable to a passenger for sickness resulting from her ejection from the waiting room—Waldrop v. Nashville, etc, R. Co, 62 So. 769, 183 Ala. 226

(2) Where a motor bus carrier was bound to provide station accommodations, a colored woman excluded from the only station on a cold and stormy night can recover from the carrier for injury suffered as a result of the exposure.—Higgins v Southern Kansas Stage Lines Co., 42 P.2d 599, 141 Kan. 641.

statute requiring railroad companies to provide waiting rooms "for passengers waiting for trains" does not absolve such a company from its duty to provide shelter for a departing passenger who needs to remain in order to save himself from grievous bodily harm.[14] Similarly, where a statute requires waiting rooms to be kept open "until the train departs," the carrier is not liable, for failure to keep its waiting room open, to a passenger who reached it after the train had departed.[15]

b. Duty to Keep Station Heated and Comfortable

It is the carrier's duty, under or apart from statutes, to keep its stations and waiting rooms reasonably comfortable and decent, as by heating them when necessary; but mere violation of such statute does not justify recovery by a passenger in the absence of proof of injury. A statutory duty to heat stations when necessary is not absolute, but depends on weather conditions.

Concomitantly with its duty to keep its stations open for a reasonable time before and after the arrival and departure of trains, as considered in subdivision a of this section, it is the duty of the carrier to keep the station or waiting room reasonably comfortable and decent.[16] Thus the carrier must use reasonable care to have its waiting rooms and stations, when necessary, comfortably heated[17] and ventilated.[18]

Where a statute requires waiting rooms and sta-

Passenger locked in

A railroad company is liable for its agent's knowingly permitting its waiting room at a station to be and to remain locked, against the protest of a prospective passenger in the room, when, by the exercise of ordinary care, such agent could have prevented its being locked, or could have opened it.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson, 66 S.W. 661, 70 Ark. 136, 91 Am.S.R. 74.

Entrance to depot obstructed

(1) Where a train blocked the approach to the depot for an unreasonable time, compelling a passenger to remain in the cold, there was held to be negligence, and the carrier was liable for the injury resulting from the exposure.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Daugherty, 108 S.W. 336, 32 Ky.L. 1392, 15 L.R.A., N.S., 740.

(2) Carrier's duty to keep approaches unobstructed see supra § 714 a.

14. Ala.—Waldrop v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 62 So. 769, 771, 183 Ala. 226.

15. Ky.—Ward v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 183 S.W. 211, 168 Ky. 826.

Time to make arrangements

However, a passenger who reaches an open waiting room after the departure of the train cannot be ejected until he has had a reasonable time to make arrangements to continue his journey, or to protect himself against the weather.—Ward v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 183 S.W. 211, 168 Ky. 826.

16. Ark.—Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Cobb, 178 S.W. 383, 118 Ark. 569.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson, 66 S.W. 661, 70 Ark. 136, 91 Am.S.R. 74.
Ga.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Mooneyham, 139 S.E. 589, 37 Ga. App. 236.
N.C.—Hipps v. Southern Ry., 99 S.E. 335, 177 N.C. 472.
10 C.J. p. 922 note 93.

This rule as stated in Corpus Juris is quoted with approval in Hipps v. Southern Ry., 99 S.E. 335, 336, 177 N.C. 472.

Carrier must exercise ordinary diligence toward passenger as respects comfort at station while waiting for train.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Mooneyham, 139 S.E. 589, 37 Ga. App. 236.

Accumulation of smoke

Permitting the accumulation of smoke to the discomfort of a woman passenger is neglect of this duty.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Cornelius, 30 S.W. 720, 10 Tex.Civ.App. 125.

Cancellation of trains without notice

Where an intending passenger suffered injury because the night was cold and the waiting room filthy, unheated, and uncomfortable, the carrier was not relieved of its duty by the fact that it had been compelled, by high water, to withdraw its regular train, where it had failed to notify prospective passengers on a connecting carrier's line of the cancellation.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Stephens, Tenn., 218 F. 535, 134 C.C.A. 263.

Permission to use office

The custom of the agent in charge of a depot to invite passengers, when the weather is disagreeable, to come into the office in the depot, does not relieve the carrier of liability for failure to maintain a proper waiting room.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. McCutcheon, 77 S.W. 232, 33 Tex.Civ.App. 557.

17. U.S.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Stephens, Tenn., 218 F. 535, 134 C.C.A. 263.
Ark.—Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Cobb, 178 S.W. 383, 118 Ark. 569.
Ky.—Davis v. Allen, 251 S.W. 194, 199 Ky. 442.
Minn.—Barnett v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co., 143 N.W. 263, 123 Minn. 153, 48 L.R.A.,N.S., 262.
Miss.—Williams v. Southern R. Co., 59 So. 850, 102 Miss. 617.—Adams v. Yazoo & M. V. R. Co., 76 So. 733, 115 Miss. 865.
Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, Civ.App., 290 S.W. 846.
10 C.J. p. 922 note 94.

Necessity of proper ventilation of public conveyances and stations during the influenza epidemic of 1918 did not lessen the duty of a carrier to keep its waiting rooms comfortably heated for its passengers.—Davis v. Allen, 251 S.W. 194, 199 Ky. 442.

Person waiting between trains

(1) One waiting at a station, after arriving on one train, to make connection with another train, is a passenger and entitled to a comfortable and heated depot.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Stephens, Tenn., 218 F. 535, 134 C.C.A. 263.

(2) However, where a person intending to take an early morning train arrived at the depot on another train at 11:30 P.M. the evening before, defendant carrier was under no obligation to furnish him a warm waiting room before he purchased his ticket the next morning, he being a mere licensee prior thereto.—Barnett v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co., 143 N.W. 263, 123 Minn. 153, 48 L.R.A.,N.S., 262.

Failure of railroad commission to require

However, where a statute confers authority on the railroad commission to require railroads to heat waiting rooms, but the railroad commission has made no such requirement, there is no duty on the carrier to do so.—Page v. Louisville & N.R. Co., 29 So. 676, 129 Ala. 232.

Violation of duty as negligence

A failure to provide warmth in midwinter is "at least prima facie evidence of negligence."—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson, 66 S.W. 661, 662, 70 Ark. 136, 91 Am.S.R. 74.

18. Iowa.—Drummy v. Minneapolis, etc., R. Co., 133 N.W. 655, 153 Iowa 479.

tions to be heated, or open and heated, during certain prescribed times before or after the arrival or departure of trains, the carrier must perform the duty so imposed,[19] and its failure to do so constitutes negligence;[20] but the existence of such a statute does not relieve the carrier of its common-law duty to provide heat.[21] The mere violation of such a statute, in the absence of proof of injury to a passenger entitled to use the station, does not render the carrier liable.[22]

Duty dependent on weather conditions. Where one statutory provision requires that stations be kept open and warmed at certain times, and another provision that stations while in use shall be heated "if necessary," the duty so imposed is not absolute, but depends on the condition of the weather;[23] and, in determining whether artificial heat is necessary, the carrier has been required to use that high degree of care that a very cautious and prudent person would use in similar circumstances.[24]

Carriers using union stations. Carriers using union stations have the joint duty of keeping the station warm for passengers;[25] but the minimum time prescribed in a statute is not applicable to such stations, and carriers must perform the duty as established by the common law, since the time passengers may have to wait varies so widely.[26]

§ 722. To Whom Carrier Liable for Unsafe Premises

The carrier is liable for unsafe premises not only to passengers, but to all on the premises at its express or implied invitation or to transact legitimate business with its agent. Thus the carrier may be liable to prospective or departing passengers and to those accompanying or meeting them; to passengers alighting temporarily at intermediate stations, at its express or implied invitation or for a reasonable and usual purpose; or to persons riding on free passes.

The carrier's duty of using reasonable care to make the premises safe, and the corresponding liability for injuries resulting from negligence in doing so, as considered in §§ 713-721 supra, is not limited to passengers in the act of boarding or alighting from the vehicles, but applies to all persons who are on the premises at the express or implied invitation of the carrier, or for the purpose of attending to legitimate business with its agent.[27] Thus persons awaiting trains which they intend to board may recover from the carrier for injuries caused by the unsafe condition of the premises,[28] simi-

19. N.C.—Hipps v. Southern Ry., 99 S.E. 335, 177 N.C. 472
Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hitt, Civ.App., 60 S.W.2d 864—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner, Civ.App., 194 S.W. 651—Texas Midland R. Co. v. Griggs, Civ.App., 106 S.W. 411—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Lowe, Civ.App., 97 S.W. 1087.
10 C.J. p 922 note 96.

Passenger carried past destination
Where a passenger was carried past her destination, and the station at which she alighted was cold and unheated, she could recover for injury suffered as a result of the carrier's failure to use ordinary care in the performance of its statutory duty.—Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Cobb, 178 S.W. 383, 118 Ark. 569.

Station open at times not prescribed
If waiting rooms are kept open for accommodation of public at times other than as prescribed by statute, the railway company must use care to keep them heated when necessary to prevent injury to those lawfully occupying them—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, Tex.Com.App., 268 S.W. 149, reversing, Civ.App., 251 S.W. 553—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, Tex.Civ.App., 290 S.W. 846.

20. Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hitt, Civ.App., 60 S.W.2d 864—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner, Civ.App., 194 S.W. 651.

Negligence per se
Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hitt, Civ.App., 60 S.W.2d 864—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner, Civ.App., 194 S.W. 651.

21. Miss.—Williams v. Southern R. Co., 59 So. 850, 851, 102 Miss. 617.
N.C.—Hipps v. Southern Ry., 99 S.E. 335, 177 N.C. 472
Tex.—Southern Kansas R. Co. v. Caylor, Civ.App., 135 S.W. 1087
10 C.J. p 922 note 97
"The minimum time fixed in this statute can never be used to bar a recovery in any case . . . where the facts show that the company should have kept the rooms open and comfortable for a longer period of time"—Williams v. Southern R. Co., supra.

Waiting between trains
A passenger who takes passage at a station of a railroad company, destined to a distant point on its line, and who, because of schedule arrangements, occupies a waiting room at an intervening station for several hours, may maintain suit against the company for neglecting its duty to keep its waiting room comfortably heated; and the statutory provision that companies shall open their waiting rooms and keep them heated for one hour before the arrival and departure of trains has no application.—Tully v. Yazoo, etc., R. Co., 4 Tenn.Civ.A. 184.

22. Miss.—Davis v. Day, 89 So. 814, 127 Miss. 140.

23. Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, Com.App., 268 S.W. 149, reversing, Civ.App., 251 S.W. 553.

24. Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, supra.
10 C.J. p 922 note 94 [c].

25. Miss.—Williams v. Southern R. Co., 59 So. 850, 102 Miss. 617.
10 C.J. p 922 note 94 [a].

26. Miss.—Williams v. Southern R. Co., supra.

27. Ark.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Amedon, 256 S.W. 52, 161 Ark. 310.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Minnix, 260 S.W. 15, 202 Ky. 472
Md.—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md. 621.
N.C.—Pineus v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 53 S.E. 297, 140 N.C. 450, 111 Am.S.R. 856
10 C.J. p 923 note 8
Commencement and continuance of relation of passenger and carrier generally see supra §§ 554-566
To whom carrier liable for negligence generally see supra §§ 698-700.
To whom carrier owes duty to light premises, and liability for failure to perform that duty, see supra § 718.

28. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Dixon, 195 S.W. 1099, 176 Ky. 569.

larly, persons leaving the station after alighting from a train are entitled, in regard to the condition of the premises, to the protection of passengers, until they have had a reasonable opportunity to leave the premises;[29] and the same liability exists as to persons on the premises to obtain information about trains[30] or to look after baggage.[31]

The care which the carrier is required to exercise with reference to a person who has ceased to be a passenger is that owed to any other member of the general public;[32] so this liability of the carrier ceases on a passenger's reaching the street on alighting from a street car.[33]

Persons meeting or accompanying passengers. The carrier's liability applies also to persons who are on the premises for the purpose of accompanying passengers to the trains or other conveyances, or meeting them when they arrive,[34] but not if the person met is traveling otherwise than as part of the regular passenger traffic.[35]

Md.—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md. 621.
N.Y.—White v. New York Cent. R. Co., 239 N.Y.S. 90, 228 App.Div. 50.
Ohio.—Majoros v. Cleveland Interurban R. Co., 187 N.E. 857, 127 Ohio St. 255.
Utah.—Hansen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 188 P. 852, 55 Utah 577.
10 C.J. p. 923 note 8.

Person in lee of shelter house

Interurban car company's duty to maintain shelter house in reasonably safe condition inured to prospective passenger's benefit, notwithstanding he sought protection in lee of shelter house.—Majoros v. Cleveland Interurban R. Co., 187 N.E. 857, 127 Ohio St. 255.

Shipper of live stock who accompanies it, and is advised that it will be necessary to pass over railroad yards to board the caboose at the distant point at which it is placed, is not a trespasser in going from the station to board the caboose, and it is the duty of the carrier to use reasonable care to make the premises reasonably safe.—Chorn v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 153 S.W. 1060, 168 Mo.App. 518.

29. U.S.—Young v. Baldwin, C.C.A. Ark., 84 F.2d 841.
Mich.—Sink v. Grand Trunk Western Ry. Co., 198 N.W. 238, 227 Mich. 21.
N.H.—Wessman v. Boston & M. R. R., 152 A. 476.
10 C.J. p. 923 note 1.
Continuance and termination of relation with respect to passenger leaving vehicle see supra §§ 564–566.

Remaining by express permission

Passenger who left one train to continue journey on that of connecting railroad, and who, because of inclement weather, was given express permission to remain in the station where he had alighted by agent in charge thereof until it was time to go to station of connecting railroad to take other train, was, during the three hours he remained on the premises of the first station, at least an invitee of the railroad as to whom the railroad was required to keep the premises in a reasonably safe condition, and was not merely a licensee.—Sink v. Grand Trunk Western Ry. Co., 198 N.W. 238, 227 Mich. 21.

30. Tex.—Baker v. Gohman, Civ.App., 226 S.W. 691, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.
10 C.J. p. 923 note 8 [d].

31. Ind.—Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 99 N.E. 503, 51 Ind.App. 245.
N.J.—Exton v. New Jersey Cent. R. Co., 46 A. 1099, 63 N.J.Law 356, 56 L.R.A. 508, affirming 42 A. 486, 62 N.J.Law 7, 56 L.R.A. 508.

32. Pa.—Fisher v. Paxson, 38 A. 407, 182 Pa. 457.
Wis.—Imhoff v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 22 Wis. 681.

33. Minn.—Lentz v. Minneapolis & St. Paul Suburban R. Co., 160 N.W. 794, 795, 135 Minn. 310.
Pa.—Perret v. George, 133 A. 228, 229, 286 Pa. 221.
10 C.J. p. 923 note 3.
"A passenger having alighted, with no accompanying negligence of the carrier in affording him an opportunity and a place, takes the street as he finds it."—Lentz v. Minneapolis & St. Paul Suburban R. Co., supra.
"The passenger had, in legal contemplation, ceased to be a passenger when she stepped to the street."—Perret v. George, supra.
Duty and liability of carriers by a street car as to safety of place for boarding and alighting see supra § 716.
Termination of relation of passenger and carrier when passenger alights from street car see supra § 565.

34. Ark.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Amedon, 256 S.W. 52, 161 Ark. 310—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Grimsley, 117 S.W. 1064, 90 Ark. 64.
Iowa.—McNaughton v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 113 N.W. 844, 136 Iowa 177.
Md.—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md. 621.
Mo.—Evans v. Chicago, B. & Q. Ry. Co., 109 S.W. 79, 130 Mo.App. 509.
N.Y.—Godfrey v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 56 N.E. 77, 161 N.Y. 565.
10 C.J. p. 924 note 9.

Reason for rule

"The custom of friends and relatives to accompany to the station persons leaving by train, for the purpose of assisting or of comforting them, or merely as a mark of friendly interest and affection, as well as the custom of friends and relations going to the station for like reasons to meet persons coming in, is so uniform, universal, and long-standing, and is so much a part and parcel of the business of carrying passengers, and has been so uniformly acquiesced in for so long by the carrier, that it would be absurd to regard a person coming to a railroad station to meet an incoming friend or relation either as a trespasser or a bare licensee to whom the carrier owes no duty but that of refraining from wanton or willful negligence."—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 131, 137 Md. 621.

Such person not trespasser or bare licensee

Ark.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Amedon, 256 S.W. 52, 161 Ark. 310.
Md.—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md. 621.
N.Y.—Godfrey v. New York Cent. & H. R. Co., 56 N.E. 77, 161 N.Y. 565.

Taking leave of passenger

The carrier's liability has been held to extend to one going upon the platform or depot grounds for the purpose of taking leave of a friend who is a passenger.—Banderob v. Wisconsin Cent. R. Co., 113 N.W. 738, 133 Wis. 249.
Contra Galveston, etc., R. Co. Matzdorf, 112 S.W. 1036, 102 Tex. 42, 132 Am.S.R. 849, 20 L.R.A.,N.S., 833, reversing, Civ.App., 107 S.W. 882.
Status of persons attending passengers generally see supra § 553.

35. Wis.—Dowd v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 54 N.W. 24, 84 Wis. 105, 36 Am.S.R. 917, 20 L.R.A. 527.

Caretaker of live stock on freight train

The duty does not extend to one at the station at an unusual hour for the purpose of bidding farewell to a person who is about to leave on a freight train in charge of live stock, and who is a passenger only in a limited and restricted sense.—Dowd v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 54 N.W. 24,

Passenger alighting at intermediate station. It has been held that the duty of furnishing reasonably safe platforms and the like does not apply to a passenger who leaves the train at an intermediate station;[36] but the rule is otherwise where he does so on the express or implied invitation of the carrier,[37] or where he alights, without its objection, for a reasonable and usual purpose.[38]

Person riding on free pass. A carrier owes to a person riding on a free pass, as to other passengers, the duty to keep the premises safe.[39]

3. Care Required and Liability as to Passengers Boarding or Alighting from Vehicle

§ 723. In General

A carrier is usually required to exercise the highest degree of care to avoid injury to passengers boarding or alighting from the carrier's vehicle.

The carrier is bound to exercise care in securing the safety of the passenger while boarding and alighting from its cars or other conveyances,[40] and the degree of care required in the discharge of this duty is ordinarily held to be the highest care, or the care which a very prudent person would use under the circumstances,[41] that is, that high degree of care which is required with reference to the transportation of passengers.[42] There is, however, authority to the effect that the care owed by a carrier to passengers boarding, or alighting from, its vehicles is reasonable[43] or ordinary[44] care,

84 Wis. 105, 36 Am.S.R. 917, 20 L.R.A. 527

36. N.C.—Goodman v. Queen City Lines, 180 S.E. 661, 208 N.C. 323.
10 C.J. p. 923 note 5
Citing Corpus Juris
N.C.—Goodman v. Queen City Lines, 180 S.E. 661, 208 N.C. 323.
Continuance and termination of relation of passenger and carrier at intermediate stations and transfer points see supra § 566.

37. N.C.—Goodman v. Queen City Lines, supra.
10 C.J. p. 923 note 6.
Citing Corpus Juris
N.C.—Goodman v. Queen City Lines, 180 S.E. 661, 208 N.C. 323.
Stop as invitation
"When a train is stopped in daylight for any reasonable length of time to receive or discharge passengers, an invitation is thereby tacitly extended by the railroad company to the passengers in the coaches to alight for a few minutes' rest and invigoration. . . . This same invitation, it would seem, must also be offered at night where a train is stopped for a reasonable time to receive or discharge passengers at a station, the platform of which is well lighted. . . . When the platform of a depot at which a train stops at night is not illuminated, the darkness is a notice to passengers in the cars who are not obliged to depart at that station to remain in the coaches."—Abbott v. Oregon R. Co., 80 P. 1012, 1019, 46 Or. 549, 114 Am.S.R. 835, 1 L.R.A.,N.S., 851, 7 Ann.Cas. 961.
Stop at meal and rest station
N.C.—Goodman v. Queen City Lines, 180 S.E. 661, 208 N.C. 323.
10 C.J. p. 923 note 7.

38. U.S.—Alabama, etc., Ry. Co. v. Coggins, Tenn., 88 F. 455, 458, 32 C.C.A. 1
"The weight of authority, reason, and custom all require us to hold that where a passenger, without objection by the company or its agents, alights at an intermediate station, which is a station for the discharge and reception of passengers, for any reasonable and usual purpose, like that of refreshment, of the sending or receipt of telegrams, or of exercise by walking up and down the platform, or the like, he does not cease to be a passenger, and is justified in the belief that the company is exercising due care for his safety."—Alabama, etc., Ry. Co. v. Coggins, supra.

39. N.H.—Wessman v. Boston & M. R.R., 152 A. 476
Status of person riding on pass as passenger see supra § 550.
Reasonable opportunity to leave
The carrier is bound to keep the station safe until one riding on such a pass has had a reasonable opportunity to leave the station after alighting.—Wessman v. Boston & M. R.R., N.H., 152 A. 476.

40. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So. 920, 200 Ala. 562—Alabama City G. & A. Ry. Co. v. Bessiere, 72 So. 325, 197 Ala. 5
Miss.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Small, 74 So. 681, 113 Miss. 857.
N.J.—Bradley v. Erie R. Co., 147 A. 572, 106 N.J.Law 51, reversing 143 A. 743, 105 N.J.Law 1—Rhodehouse v. Director General of Railroads, 111 A. 662, 95 N.J.Law 355—McCarron v. Erie R. Co., 159 A. 807, 10 N.J.Misc. 498.
N.Y.—Anderson v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York, 166 N.Y.S. 640, 100 Misc. 411, modified on other grounds 170 N.Y.S. 431, 183 App.Div. 170, which is affirmed 127 N.E. 584, 228 N.Y. 475
Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. McNeill, Civ.App., 270 S.W. 1038
10 C.J. p. 924 note 13.

41. Md.—Grinath v. Baltimore & Belair Electric Ry. Co., 125 A. 604, 145 Md. 290.
N.J.—McCarron v. Erie R. Co., 159 A. 807, 10 N.J.Misc. 498
N.C.—Lane v. Southern Ry. Co., 134 S.E. 855, 192 N.C. 287, 51 A.L.R. 1114.
Pa.—O'Malley v. Laurel Line Bus Co., 166 A. 868, 311 Pa. 251—Hassan v. Reading Co., 89 Pa.Super. 592.
Tex.—Wisdom v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., Com.App., 231 S.W. 344, reversing Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wisdom, Civ.App., 216 S.W. 241—Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Owens, Civ.App., 299 S.W. 933—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 924 note 14
The Corpus Juris text is quoted with approval in Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 869, 212 Ala. 638
Other expressions used in designating the degree of care to be exercised by the carrier are:
(1) "Extraordinary care"—Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Brooks, 119 S.E. 424, 30 Ga.App. 692
(2) "Extraordinary diligence"—Metts v. Louisville & N.R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115.
(3) "Strictest vigilance"—Ensor v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 159 A. 872, 306 Pa. 451.

42. Md.—Grinath v. Baltimore & Belair Electric Ry. Co., 125 A. 604, 145 Md. 290.
Mo.—Payne v. Davis, 252 S.W. 57, 298 Mo. 645.
N.J.—McCarron v. Erie R. Co., 159 A. 807, 10 N.J.Misc. 498.
10 C.J. p. 924 note 15

43. Mass.—Poulos v. Labbe, 195 N.E. 893.
Mich.—Serviss v. Ann Arbor R. Co., 135 N.W. 343, 169 Mich. 564.
Tenn.—Southern R. Co. v. Mitchell, 40 S.W. 72, 98 Tenn. 27.
"Every reasonable precaution"
Cal.—Sellars v. Southern Pac. Co., 166 P. 599, 33 Cal.App. 701.
In setting passengers down at stations reasonable care under the circumstances is required.
Mich.—Serviss v. Ann Arbor R. Co., 135 N.W. 343, 169 Mich. 564
Tenn.—Southern R. Co. v. Mitchell, 40 S.W. 72, 98 Tenn. 27

44. Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B.

that is, such care as an ordinarily prudent and careful person would use under similar circumstances,[45] with reference to existing conditions including the carrier's knowledge, if any it has, of the physical and mental condition of the passenger.[46] In a case laying down the rule that the carrier is bound to use a "high degree of care" with respect to passengers boarding or alighting from its vehicles, the quoted words have been held to denote no more than care commensurate with the risk of danger.[47]

The carrier is not, however, an insurer of the passenger's safety in boarding or alighting,[48] is not bound to anticipate that a passenger alighting in a street will place himself in danger by violating a statute regulating the movement of traffic,[49] and if the carrier, through its agents and employees, uses proper care for the safety and protection of a boarding or an alighting passenger it is not liable for injuries that he may sustain while getting on or leaving the vehicle of the carrier,[50] particularly where he does so by an unusual mode of ingress or egress.[51]

Extent and duration of care. The high degree of care required of carriers with respect to boarding or alighting passengers is not required until such time as they place themselves under the carrier's care as passengers.[52] The carrier's duty of extraordinary care toward an alighting passenger has been held, on the other hand, to continue until he reaches a place where he has some freedom of locomotion and can in a measure look out for his own safety.[53] It has also been held that a railroad company as a carrier owes to an alighting passenger a duty to do what is reasonably necessary to insure his safety in leaving its premises.[54] Of course, the carrier is not absolved from liability nor from a high degree of care merely because the passenger is not injured while in the very act of alighting nor at the very spot where and when he alights,[55] the carrier being charged with knowledge of the conditions at, and immediately adjacent to, the spot where it discharges passengers from its conveyances.[56] A carrier may not ordinarily, however, be liable as for a passenger for injuries received by an alighting passenger after it has performed its duty, and he has safely left the vehicle.[57]

Misleading passenger. A carrier owes to a pas-

& W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343.
Ind.—Stradling v. Hahn, 163 N.E. 527, 88 Ind.App. 117.

45. Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343.

46. Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., supra.

47. N.J.—Rhodehouse v. Director General of Railroads, 111 A. 662, 95 N.J.Law 355.

48. Ark.—Reed v. Baldwin, 92 S.W. 2d 392.
La.—Smith v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 91 So. 514, 150 La. 1070.
Mass.—Carlson v. Boston & M. R. R., 168 N.E. 171, 269 Mass. 60.
Or.—Lewis v. Pacific Greyhound Lines, 34 P.2d 616, 147 Or. 588, 96 A.L.R. 718—Nelson v. United Rys. Co., 166 P. 763, 85 Or. 427.
Pa.—Stuckwish v. Hagan Corporation, 175 A. 381, 316 Pa. 513.
W.Va.—Slaven v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 171 S.E. 818, 114 W.Va. 315.
10 C.J. p. 925 note 17.

49. Cal.—Williams v. East Bay Motor Coach Lines, App., 60 P.2d 320.

Walking on wrong side of street

Where motorbus stopped several feet from curb because of water flowing in gutter, and passengers who alighted were struck by automobile while walking toward destination in street, bus operator was not negligent in failing to anticipate that passengers would violate Vehicle Act by walking on right-hand side of street.—Williams v. East Bay Motor Coach Lines, Cal.App., 60 P.2d 320.

50. La.—Deblanc v. Texas & P. R. Co., 6 La.App. 433.
Or.—Lewis v. Pacific Greyhound Lines, 34 P.2d 616, 147 Or. 588, 96 A.L.R. 718.
Pa.—Seltzer v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 69 Pa.Super. 309.
Va.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99.
10 C.J. p. 925 note 18.

51. Pa.—Seltzer v. Philadelphia & R. Co., 69 Pa.Super. 309.
Va.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99.
10 C.J. p. 925 note 19.

52. Conn.—Vaughn v. Healy, 182 A. 166, 120 Conn. 589.

Signaling the carrier's vehicle to stop may not render one a passenger within the rule stated in the text.
Conn.—Vaughn v. Healy, 182 A. 166, 120 Conn. 589.
Ga.—Atlanta Northern Ry. Co. v. Brown, 125 S.E. 465, 159 Ga. 212, reversing Brown v. Atlanta Northern Ry. Co., 120 S.E. 677, 31 Ga.App. 429, and former judgment vacated Brown v. Atlanta N. Ry. Co., 125 S.E. 795, 33 Ga.App. 194.

At regular stopping place

Steam or interurban railroad must use greater care for safety of intending passengers at regular stopping places than elsewhere.—Aydlott v. Key System Transit Co., 286 P. 456, 104 Cal.App. 621.

53. Ga.—Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Brooks, 119 S.E. 424, 30 Ga.App. 692.

54. W.Va.—Ballard v. Charleston Interurban R. Co., 169 S.E. 524, 113 W.Va. 660.

55. Mo.—Gatt v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 222 S.W. 827.

56. Mo.—Gatt v. Kansas City Rys. Co., supra.

57. U.S.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Burton, C.C.A.W.Va., 50 F.2d 730.
Ala.—Hammett v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 81 So. 22, 202 Ala. 520.
Conn.—Roden v. Connecticut Co., 155 A. 721, 113 Conn. 408.
Or.—Lewis v. Pacific Greyhound Lines, 34 P.2d 616, 147 Or. 588, 96 A.L.R. 718.
Pa.—Tiers v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 141 A. 487, 292 Pa. 522.
Wash.—Welsh v. Spokane & I. E. R. Co., 157 P. 679, 91 Wash. 260, L.R.A.1916F 484.
10 C.J. p. 925 note 20.

Another statement of rule

"When . . . the duty of the carrier to provide a safe place to alight has been fulfilled and the passenger has left the vehicle, it ceases to owe to him any duty other than that which it owes to any person coming within the range of its activities, not to do him injury by failure to exercise reasonable care."—Roden v. Connecticut Co., 155 A. 721, 722, 113 Conn. 408.

senger while reboarding a train, after alighting in reliance on misinformation by a trainman as to the name of the station, the same duty as to other passengers about to board the train;[58] and generally where a carrier misleads a passenger with reference to the time, the place, and the safety of boarding or alighting, it is liable for the injuries sustained.[59]

Duty to select safe place for boarding and alighting. A carrier is required not only to set apart, construct, and maintain, on its own premises, a safe place for boarding or alighting from its vehicles, see supra § 716, but is also under a duty in other respects to see that the place at which passengers are invited to board or alight from vehicles of the carrier is safe for that purpose.[60] For example, as respects passengers boarding or alighting from its vehicles, a carrier has the duty of selecting a safe place to stop its vehicles whether it is the usual place or not, if it is one at which the passenger is expressly or impliedly invited to board or alight.[61] In furtherance of this duty the carrier should stop its vehicles at the station platform,[62] or at another reasonably safe and convenient place.[63] However, where a railroad as carrier has no control over conditions existing at a station where such carrier is required to pick

Intoxicated passenger

Where a passenger in an interurban train was injured after safely leaving train in an intoxicated condition, the carrier's servants having no knowledge of his incapacity, it was held that the carrier was not liable.—Welsh v. Spokane & I. E. R. Co., 157 P. 679, 91 Wash. 260, L.R.A. 1916F 484.

After safely alighting on station platform

Pa.—Tiers v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 141 A 487, 292 Pa. 522.

58. Mich.—Foley v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 146 N.W. 186, 179 Mich. 586.

59. N.J.—McCarron v Erie R. Co., 159 A. 807, 10 N.J.Misc. 498.
10 C.J p 925 note 16.

Place to alight

Misdirections by a railroad's servants in charge of a train as to the proper place for passengers to get off may render the road liable to one who, acting in reasonable reliance on the directions, is injured.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce, Del., 343.

60. Ark.—Davis v. Kelly, 237 S.W. 698, 152 Ark. 151.
Conn.—Roden v. Connecticut Co., 155 A. 721, 113 Conn. 408.
Ga.—Locke v. Ford, App., 187 S.E 715.
La.—Hamilton v. Louisiana Ry & Nav. Co., 85 So 611, 147 La. 616.
Minn.—Lentz v Minneapolis & St. Paul Suburban R. Co., 160 N.W. 794, 135 Minn. 310
Mo.—Gatt v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 222 S.W. 827.
N.J.—Malzer v. Koll Transp. Co., 156 A. 639, 108 N.J.Law 296—Kinder v. Erie R. Co., 137 A. 88, 103 N.J. Law 316—Gore v. Delaware, L & W. R. Co., 98 A. 389, 89 N.J.Law 224—Spofford v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 98 A. 246, 89 N.J.Law 273—Kinder v. Erie R. Co., 146 A 923, 7 N.J.Misc. 637, reversed on other grounds 162 A. 387, 109 N.J. Law 469.
Or.—Lewis v. Pacific Greyhound Lines, 34 P.2d 616, 147 Or. 588, 96 A.L.R. 718.
Pa.—O'Malley v. Laurel Line Bus Co., 166 A. 868, 311 Pa. 251—Chamberlain v. Director General of Railroads, 118 A. 550, 275 Pa. 47.
Tex.—Texas & N. O Ry Co. v. Rooks, Com.App., 292 S.W 536, affirming, Civ.App., 283 S.W. 622, and rehearing denied, Com App., 293 S. W. 554—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Woodall, Com. App., 207 S.W. 84, reversing, Civ. App., 159 S.W 1012—San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wiuvar, Civ. App., 257 S W. 667.
10 C.J. p 914 note 40, p 924 note 15 [a].

"In other words, it must exercise . . . care in ascertaining whether or not the place it discharges its passengers is reasonably safe."—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S W.2d 25, 26, 226 Mo.App. 934.

Matters to be considered

Among the circumstances which may be considered in determining whether a carrier has furnished a reasonably safe place to alight are the age, weight, and condition of the passenger as well as the bundles which he may be carrying.—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U R. Co, 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312.

61. U.S.—Davis v. Olson, C C.A Minn., 298 F. 921.
Ark.—Davis v. Kelly, 237 S.W. 698, 152 Ark. 151.
Ga.—Locke v. Ford, App, 187 S.E 715.
La.—Hamilton v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 85 So. 611, 147 La. 616
Mo.—Gatt v. Kansas City Rys. Co, 222 S W. 827.
N.J.—Malzer v. Koll Transp. Co, 156 A. 639, 108 N.J Law 296.
Okl.—Muskogee Electric Traction Co v. Latty, 187 P. 491, 77 Okl. 156.
Or.—Lewis v. Pacific Greyhound Lines, 34 P.2d 616, 147 Or. 588, 96 A.L R. 718.
Pa.—O'Malley v. Laurel Line Bus Co., 166 A 868, 311 Pa. 251.
10 C.J p 914 notes 41 [a], 44.

Not an absolutely safe place but the safest practicable place under the circumstances must be selected —Davis v. Kelly, 237 S.W. 698, 152 Ark 151.

62. Ark.—Davis v Kelly, supra.
Ga.—Georgia R & Banking Co. v Brooks, 119 S E. 424, 30 Ga App 692.
La.—Hamilton v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 85 So. 611, 147 La. 616.
Mo.—Payne v. Davis, 252 S W. 57, 298 Mo 645
Pa.—Miller v Lehigh Valley R Co, 138 A. 89, 290 Pa 130.
Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry Co of Texas v. Woodall, Com App., 207 S W. 84, reversing, Civ App., 159 S.W. 1012.
10 C J. p 915 note 45.

Lateness of train no excuse

The fact that a train is late affords a carrier no excuse for failing to discharge its duty to stop at a station platform, so that passengers may safely alight.—Davis v. Kelly, 237 S W. 698, 152 Ark. 151.

Part of train nearest station

A carrier may determine the part of the train to be nearest the station at stops, having due regard for the convenience of the traveling public, providing reasonably safe walk ways are provided from the place of egress to the station.—Anderson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 77 S.E 402, 161 N C 462

63. Ark.—Davis v. Kelly, 237 S.W. 698, 152 Ark. 151.
La.—Hamilton v. Louisiana Ry & Nav Co, 85 So. 611, 147 La. 616.
10 C.J. p 915 note 46.

Highway crossing

Where it was the custom of a carrier to stop interurban cars at a highway crossing for the accommodation of passengers, it was required to exercise reasonable care to enable passengers to enter or alight with as little danger as practicable.—Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Latty, 187 P. 491, 77 Okl. 156.

up passengers, it is not liable for injuries resulting to one about to board a train at such station,[64] and the liability of a carrier which has stopped its vehicle at a place which is safe as regards the carrier's right of way does not extend to injuries resulting from conditions in an adjacent area outside the control of the carrier;[65] nor may a failure to stop a train coach opposite a station platform, without more, constitute negligence as regards a passenger who is injured while in the act of alighting from such coach.[66] Where the conditions under which particular classes of carriers must operate their vehicles require that passengers boarding or alighting therefrom be picked up from, or discharged on, the traveled portions of public streets or highways outside the control of such carriers, they are not usually liable for injuries sustained by such passengers by reason of dangerous conditions existing in such areas;[67] nor in such cases is the carrier ordinarily required to exercise the high degree of care which is required of carriers who control the place of boarding or alighting,[68] it being usually sufficient that the carrier use reasonable care to see that the place selected for picking up or discharging passengers is safe for that purpose,[69] and that while the vehicle is stopped the carrier exercise ordinary care or care in proportion to the danger likely to be encountered by the passenger in the particular situation.[70] However, where the passenger is a child of tender years it has been held that the carrier must exercise the highest degree of care for his safety as regards the place selected for his alighting.[71] Of course, a carrier who deposits a passenger in the street at a place which the carrier knows will reasonably expose him to unusual and unnecessary peril may be liable for injuries resulting therefrom.[72] Stopping on a curve may not, without more, constitute negligence as to a passenger injured in boarding, or alighting from, the vehicle of a carrier.[73] The care required of carriers as respects passengers boarding or alighting at places other than regular stopping places is considered infra § 731. The duty of a street railroad as a carrier of passengers to select a safe place for them to board or alight is discussed infra § 733.

Operation of vehicle generally. In addition to the duties of a carrier in starting or stopping its

64. U.S.—Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co. v. Hines, C C A.Md., 269 F. 781.

Control by military authorities

A carrier, which furnished to the United States government under contract a train to transport its workmen to a city from a station on the reservation, which was subject to exclusive control of military authorities and policed by them, is not liable for injuries to a passenger by reason of insufficient policing.—Maryland Dredging & Contracting Co. v. Hines, C.C.A.Md., 269 F. 781.

65. Ind.—Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Co v. Auler, 188 N E 572, 206 Ind. 423.

Toleration not amounting to control

That the carrier tolerated the end of a plank to rest on its property was not sufficient to charge the carrier with liability for injury to a passenger, by reason of defects in the plank, on alighting from a car.—Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Co. v. Auler, 188 N.E. 572, 206 Ind. 423.

66. Mass.—Carlson v. Boston & M. R. R., 168 N E. 171, 269 Mass 60

Reason for rule

"It is common knowledge that all cars in a long train ordinarily cannot be stopped opposite a station platform."—Carlson v. Boston & M. R. R., 168 N E 171, 173, 269 Mass 60.

Several hundred feet

That coach stopped several hundred feet before reaching station platform was held not to show negligence as regards liability for passenger's death.—Carlson v. Boston & M. R R, 168 N.E. 171, 269 Mass. 60

Alighting as train leaves station

A carrier which is not otherwise negligent in starting its train is not liable for injuries sustained by a passenger who alights from the train as it leaves a station notwithstanding the coach on which such passenger was riding had not stopped opposite the station platform.—Carlson v. Boston & M. R. R., 168 N.E 171, 269 Mass. 60.

67. Ind.—Hudnut v. Indiana De Luxe Cab Co., 182 N.E. 711, 98 Ind App 44.
Ky.—Hensley v. Braden, 91 S.W.2d 34, 262 Ky. 672.
N.J.—Garvey v Public Service Coordinated Transport, 179 A. 33, 115 N.J Law 280.

Stop in compliance with ordinance

The rule stated in the text is particularly applicable where the vehicle is stopped at the particular point in compliance with a municipal ordinance rather than by "selection" of the carrier itself.—Garvey v. Public Service Co-ordinated Transport, 179 A. 33, 115 N.J.Law 280.

68. Ind.—Hudnut v. Indiana De Luxe Cab Co., 182 N.E. 711, 98 Ind. App. 44.
Ky.—Hensley v. Braden, 91 S.W.2d 34, 262 Ky. 672.

69. Del.—Cooke v. Elk Coach Line, 180 A. 782.
Ind.—Hudnut v. Indiana De Luxe Cab Co., 182 N.E. 711, 98 Ind App. 44.
Ky.—Hensley v. Braden, 91 S.W.2d 34, 262 Ky. 672.
La.—Durieu v New Orleans Public Service, 7 La App. 276
N.J.—Garvey v. Public Service Coordinated Transport, 179 A. 33, 115 N.J.Law 280—Malzer v. Koll Transp. Co., 156 A. 639, 108 N.J. Law 296.

Uneven and cracked pavement

That surface of pavement is uneven and cracked does not establish carrier's negligence in providing unsafe landing place for passengers.—Durieu v. New Orleans Public Service, 7 La.App. 276.

70. Ind.—Hudnut v. Indiana De Luxe Cab Co., 182 N.E. 711, 98 Ind. App. 44.
Ky.—Hensley v. Braden, 91 S W.2d 34, 262 Ky. 672.

71. Ky.—Taylor v. Patterson's Adm'r, 114 S.W.2d 488, 272 Ky. 415.

Child less than seven years of age

Ky.—Taylor v. Patterson's Adm'r, 114 S W.2d 488, 272 Ky. 415.

72. Conn.—Roden v. Connecticut Co., 155 A. 721, 113 Conn. 408.
Ga.—Locke v. Ford, App., 187 S.E. 715

73. Mass.—Stanley v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 143 N E. 338, 248 Mass. 494.
Minn.—Lentz v. Minneapolis & St. Paul Suburban R. Co., 160 N.W. 794, 135 Minn. 310.

vehicles, in particular situations, as regards passengers who may be boarding or alighting, see infra §§ 729–731; and to avoid injuries to such passengers by the operation of other trains and cars, see infra § 726. A carrier must generally so manage and operate the vehicle which such passengers are boarding or alighting from as to avoid injuring them.[74] For example, a carrier is under a duty to operate its vehicles in such manner as to avoid injury to passengers waiting to board such vehicles at a station.[75] In operating a train as it approaches a station to pick up passengers the carrier may, however, properly assume that passengers about to board the train will remain out of its path,[76] so that the failure to maintain a constant lookout in order to discover whether such persons shall heedlessly walk too close to the approaching train does not constitute negligence;[77] nor is a carrier required to assume that a passenger waiting to board an approaching vehicle will, in signaling it to stop, lean over the track.[78]

A carrier may be liable for injuries sustained by an alighting passenger as a result of the slamming of the door of the vehicle as he alights.[79] On the other hand, in the absence of negligence on the part of a carrier, it is not liable for injuries to a passenger by the closing of a car door as he was alighting.[80]

§ 724. Duty to Warn as to Danger

A carrier may have the duty to warn boarding and alighting passengers of dangers when they are known to the carrier and not to such passengers.

It is the carrier's duty to warn a boarding or an alighting passenger of dangers of which it knows or ought to knew, and of which the passenger is ignorant,[81] especially as to dangers which exist at a place other than a regular stopping place.[82] Accordingly it has been held that the carrier may be required to warn boarding or alighting passengers of the presence of ice on the steps of the vehicle,[83] danger from passing vehicles,[84] the ap-

74. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So 920, 200 Ala. 562.

75. Ala.—Alabama City, G. & A. Ry. Co. v. Bessiere, 72 So. 325, 197 Ala. 5.
Cal.—Wilkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 232 P. 131 195 Cal. 185—Aydlott v. Key System Transit Co., 286 P. 456, 104 Cal. App. 621.
Me.—Verrill v. Androscoggin Electric Co., 102 A. 179, 116 Me. 519.
Tex.—Texas Electric Ry. v. Stewart, Civ.App., 217 S.W. 1081, error refused.

Failure to maintain lookout
Where engineer, proceeding through populous city and approaching populous station, kept no lookout to see whether passengers might be crowded so near tracks as to be injured, negligence may be inferred from such failure.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So 920, 200 Ala. 562.

Approaching station at excessive speed
That engineer approached densely crowded station at speed of from fifteen to twenty miles per hour was held to warrant finding of negligence. —Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So. 920, 200 Ala. 562.

Statute or ordinance regulating speed
Where defendant's employee, having transportation, was killed by one of defendant's interurban cars while crossing the track to board the same, the absence of statute or ordinance regulating the speed of defendant's cars while passing the station was immaterial, the operatives of the car owing the duty of using ordinary care to discover and avoid injuring persons who might be expected to be at the station.—Texas Electric Ry. v. Stewart, Tex.Civ.App., 217 S.W. 1081, error refused.

76. Ala.—Williford v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 113 So. 44, 216 Ala 309.
Kan.—Turner v. Laying, 294 P. 665, 132 Kan. 127

77. Ala.—Williford v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 113 So. 44, 216 Ala. 309.

78. Kan.—Turner v. Laying, 294 P. 665, 132 Kan. 127.

79. N.Y.—Allegeier v. Nerrie, 291 N.Y.S. 195.

80. Mass.—MacGill-Allen v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 118 N.E. 248, 229 Mass 162.

Grade of three per cent does not show negligence with relation to passenger when door closed on hand, nor require brakeman at door of each car where passengers are alighting. —MacGill-Allen v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 118 N.E. 248, 229 Mass. 162.

81. La.—Gates v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 75 So. 1002, 141 La. 946.
Mo.—Payne v. Davis, 252 S.W. 57, 298 Mo. 645
N.J.—Alexander v. Matteucci, 135 A. 820, 5 N.J.Misc. 183.
Ohio.—Cleveland-Akron-Canton Bus Co. v Walker, 165 N.E. 373, 30 Ohio App 411
10 C.J. p 925 note 25.

The Corpus Juris text is quoted with approval in Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 869, 212 Ala. 638.

82. Mich.—Chalker v. Detroit, G. H. & M. Ry Co., 173 N.W. 532, 207 Mich 138
Mo.—Payne v Davis, 252 S.W. 57, 298 Mo 645
10 C.J. p 926 note 26.

Danger by reason of darkness
Where disembarking place during repairs to bridge over railroad cut was made dangerous by darkness, carrier had duty of warning alighting passengers, and in this connection it was immaterial whether passenger, who fell into cut and was killed, was invited to alight in darkness, or whether place was thereafter made dark by turning out lights of street car before passenger had reasonable opportunity to pass beyond zone of danger.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala 638.

Passenger continuing journey
Street railway company allowing passengers, alighting at bridge, to continue passage in cars at opposite end must warn passengers of danger at such stopping place.—McManus v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N.E. 529, 262 Mass. 519.

83. Conn.—Dunne v. Connecticut Co., 195 A. 183
Mich.—Chalker v. Detroit, G. H. & M Ry Co., 173 N.W. 532, 207 Mich 138

84. Miss.—Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co v Raymond, 128 So. 327, 157 Miss. 439.

At unusual place
Miss.—Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co. v. Raymond, 128 So. 327, 157 Miss. 439.

proach of a particular vehicle,[85] the slippery condition of the ground at the point where the passenger is about to alight,[86] and the presence of a dangerous crowd at that place.[87] So, where a street car company stops its car at a place where there are obstructions or defects in the street of which it knows or should know, but of which an alighting passenger is ignorant, it may be its duty to warn him thereof;[88] and there may exist circumstances under which a street railroad company shall be required to warn an alighting passenger of the icy condition of a street.[89] Where a carrier desires passengers to leave a car by a particular door or exit, it should notify them of that fact and warn them against leaving by another door or exit.[90] It is ordinarily the duty of a railroad company to give notice by signal or otherwise that its train, which has been stopped to pick up or discharge passengers, is about to start, particularly where there are special circumstances rendering a signal or warning reasonably necessary,[91] and especially where such warning is required by statute.[92]

On the other hand, where dangers confronting boarding or alighting passengers are as obvious to them as to the carrier, it has no duty to issue a warning as to such dangers.[93] For example, a carrier is not under any duty to warn passengers of the danger involved in attempting to board or alight from a moving train or car.[94] So carriers, such as those operating street cars, buses, or taxicabs, picking up and discharging passengers in public streets and highways, are not ordinarily under any duty to warn boarding or alighting passengers of obvious street dangers,[95] such as those which arise from the operation of other vehicles in the street or highway,[96] or from the ordinary

85. N.J.—Alexander v. Matteucci, 135 A. 820, 5 N.J.Misc. 183
Ohio—Cleveland-Akron-Canton Bus Co. v. Walker, 165 N.E. 373, 30 Ohio App. 411.
Warning by other trains or cars see infra § 726.

86. Mich.—Chalker v. Detroit, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 173 N.W. 532, 207 Mich. 138.
Where step is high
Mich.—Chalker v. Detroit, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 173 N.W. 532, 207 Mich. 138.

87. Ga.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Murphy, 110 S.E. 680, 28 Ga. App. 173.
Turbulent crowd
Ga.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Murphy, 110 S.E. 680, 28 Ga.App. 173.
Care in protection from crowds at stations and the like generally see supra § 720

88. Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 638—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 553.
Ky.—Mayhew v. Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co., 254 S.W. 202, 200 Ky. 105
La.—Gates v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 75 So. 1002, 141 La. 946
Mass.—Williamson v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 156 N.E. 22, 259 Mass. 229.
10 C.J. p 926 note 27.
Iron stake near track
La.—Gates v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 75 So. 1002, 141 La. 946.

Unless glaringly obvious, street railroad company must warn alighting passengers of dangerous defects in the street at the place where the car is stopped.—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S.W.2d 25, 226 Mo.App. 934.

89. N.H.—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry., 149 A. 602, 84 N.H. 285
Where company required to remove ice
Under an ordinance requiring a street railroad company to remove ice and snow from its "tracks," including that part of the street where a passenger would step in alighting from a car, the company may be required to warn an alighting passenger of the existence of icy ruts of which the passenger has no knowledge.—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry., 149 A. 602, 84 N.H. 285.

90. N.C.—Kearney v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 74 S.E. 593, 158 N.C. 521.
10 C.J. p 926 note 28.

91. Tenn.—Louisville & N. R. R. Co. v. Powell, 11 Tenn.App. 253
10 C.J. p 939 note 24.

92. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Norwood, 64 So. 604, 186 Ala. 49.
10 C.J. p 939 note 25.

93. Cal.—Williams v. East Bay Motor Coach Lines, App., 60 P.2d 320—Choquette v. Key System Transit Co., 5 P.2d 921, 118 Cal.App. 643
Ind.—Terre Haute, I. & E. Traction Co. v. Evans, 161 N.E. 671, 87 Ind. App. 324
Ky.—Hensley v. Braden, 91 S.W.2d 34, 262 Ky. 672.
Wash.—Lindgren v. Puget Sound International Ry. & Power Co., 253 P. 791, 142 Wash. 546.
Wis.—Downs v. Northern State Power Co., 228 N.W. 471, 200 Wis. 401.

94. Mass.—Elger v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 115 N.E. 242, 226 Mass. 84
Neb.—McCoy v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 177 N.W. 791, 104 Neb. 468.
N.H.—Wright v. Boston & M. R. R., 139 A. 370, 83 N.H. 136, 56 A.L.R. 975
N.Y.—Mearns v. Central Railroad of New Jersey, 57 N.E. 292, 163 N.Y. 108, reargument denied 58 N.E. 1089, 164 N.Y. 598.
10 C.J. p 927 note 33

Practice of warning passengers seen to undertake to leave moving vehicle does not establish duty to warn.—Wright v. Boston & M. R. R., 139 A. 370, 83 N.H. 136, 56 A.L.R. 975.

95. Minn.—Ruddy v. Ingebret, 204 N.W. 630, 164 Minn. 40, 44 A.L.R. 159.
Tex.—Wittkower v. Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co., Civ.App., 73 S.W.2d 867, error refused.

96. Cal.—Williams v. East Bay Motor Coach Lines, App., 60 P.2d 320.
Conn.—St. John v. Connecticut Co., 131 A. 396, 103 Conn. 641.
Ind.—Terre Haute, I. & E. Traction Co. v. Evans, 161 N.E. 671, 87 Ind. App. 324.
Ky.—Hensley v. Braden, 91 S.W.2d 34, 262 Ky. 672
Minn.—Ruddy v. Ingebret, 204 N.W. 630, 164 Minn. 40, 44 A.L.R. 159
Mo.—Smuzynski v. East St. Louis Ry. Co., App., 93 S.W.2d 1058.
Neb.—Jacobson v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 191 N.W. 327, 109 Neb. 356, 31 A.L.R. 563.
N.J.—Trimboli v. Public Service Coordinated Transport, 168 A. 572, 111 N.J.Law 481.
Ohio—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Karbole, 181 N.E. 889, 125 Ohio St. 467—Reining v. Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co., 140 N.E. 84, 107 Ohio St. 538, affirming Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co. v. Reining, 16 Ohio App. 406.
Tex.—Wittkower v. Dallas Ry. & condition of the street.[97] A carrier may not be required to warn alighting passengers that the vehicle on which they are riding has not yet come to a stop;[98] nor may negligence be predicated on a bus driver's failure to give a passenger warning of ice on the step where the passenger saw the ice before she stepped on it.[99] A street railway company is not under any duty to warn passengers boarding or alighting from its cars of the danger from the overhang swing of the rear of a car as it rounds a curve.[1] Of course, the carrier may not be held liable for failure to warn an alighting passenger of small objects which may temporarily happen to be on the street when the carrier does not know, and has no reason to know, of the presence of such objects.[2] In general there is no duty to instruct or warn passengers of the proper or safe mode of entering or leaving cars, it being the duty of the passenger to comply with the usual reasonable and known regulations of the carrier with reference to safe entrance and exit.[3] Where the construction of a vehicle is such as to indicate to the passenger the particular exit from which he is expected to alight, the carrier is not under a duty to warn him not to use another exit.[4] There is no general rule requiring a warning to be given a passenger before starting a street car,[5] and in the absence of knowledge that passengers are boarding or alighting, if the train has been stopped a sufficient time for them to get aboard or alight, the train may be started without further notice or warning.[6] Where there was no reason to suppose that a passenger would attempt to alight from a vehicle temporarily halted at a place other than a regular stopping place, the carrier was not under a duty to warn such passenger of his danger from the sudden starting of the vehicle.[7]

Sufficiency of warning. Where a warning to

Terminal Co., Civ.App., 73 S.W.2d 867, error refused

Wash.—Lindgren v. Puget Sound International Ry. & Power Co., 253 P. 791, 142 Wash 546.

Wis.—Downs v. Northern States Power Co., 228 N.W. 471, 200 Wis. 401.

10 C.J. p 925 note 23.

Stop other than regular stopping place does not alter the text rule.—Lindgren v. Puget Sound International Ry. & Power Co., 253 P. 791, 142 Wash. 546.

Probability of violation of rules of road

Street car operators owe no duty to notify passengers in alighting that automobile is likely to violate the rules of the road by passing on wrong side of street.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Arrison, 159 N.E. 580, 26 Ohio App. 359.

Reasons for rule

"Such a warning would, in most instances, be utterly superfluous. A rule requiring the company to watch for and warn its passengers as to all such dangers would be impracticable and extremely burdensome. The danger from moving vehicles and from other independent agencies operating upon the street is an ever-present one, intermittent in character, varying in degree with each occasion, and is of such kind that previous warning by the company of each specific danger as it arises would become practically impossible. The danger is not constant, but often arises suddenly, and is only momentary. The person encountering danger, having alone the control over his own movements, must rely upon himself and upon his own precaution and judgment. The responsibility of the company should be coextensive with its practical control. It is impracticable for another to take the responsibility of attempting to control and guard, as to such dangers, the person able to take care of himself. The passenger is in a much better position to guard against those dangers than is the company. The passenger standing upon the step or at the door, in readiness to alight, has a full view of the street in all directions. If there are approaching vehicles, it is solely within his power to fix the exact moment when he shall alight from the car."—Jacobson v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St Ry Co., 191 N.W. 327, 331, 109 Neb. 356.

97. Mass.—Thompson v. Gardner, etc., R. Co., 78 N.E. 854, 193 Mass. 133, 118 Am.S.R. 459.
10 C.J. p 925 note 24.

98. N.Y.—Mearns v. Central Railroad of New Jersey, 57 N.E. 292, 163 N.Y. 108, reargument denied 58 N.E. 1089, 164 N.Y. 598.

"Ordinarily, passengers have no difficulty in determining whether a train has stopped. They are usually as sensitive to a moving car as any guard or conductor could be, and heretofore it has never been understood to be the duty of a railroad company to expressly warn its passengers of the starting or of the stopping of the train"—Mearns v. Central Railroad of New Jersey, 57 N.E. 292, 293, 163 N.Y. 108, reargument denied 58 N.E. 1089, 164 N.Y. 598

99. Conn.—Byrne v Connecticut Co., 195 A. 184, 123 Conn 304.

1. Cal.—Dwyer v. Los Angeles Ry Corporation, 2 P.2d 468, 115 Cal. App. 709.

Mass.—Fairbanks v Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 129 N.E. 367, 237 Mass 127.

Pa.—Duffy v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 140 A. 496, 291 Pa. 564.

Warning by loader unnecessary

Cal.—Dwyer v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 2 P.2d 468, 115 Cal.App 709

2. Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Soper, 286 S.W. 776, 215 Ky. 536.

Small stone or pebble

Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Soper, 286 S.W. 776, 215 Ky. 536.

3. Ind.—Pere Marquette R. Co. v Strange, 84 N.E. 819, 85 N.E 1026, 171 Ind. 160, 20 L.R.A.,N.S., 1041.
10 C.J. p 925 note 22.

4. Va.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D Ry., 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99.

Mail and baggage compartment

Va.—Davidson v. Washington & O D Ry., 105 S.E 669, 129 Va 99.

Unusually high step

Where an electric railway company was not responsible for the use of the motorman's stool by passengers alighting at a door not intended for the use of passengers, it was under no duty to warn a passenger of the unusually long step from the top of the stool to the ground.—Davidson v. Washington & O D. Ry., 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va 99

5. Mass.—Davey v. Greenfield, etc., R. Co., 58 N.E. 172, 177 Mass. 106
10 C.J. p 939 note 27.

6. Mo.—May v. Chicago, R. & Q R. Co., 225 S.W. 660, 284 Mo. 508.
10 C.J. p 939 note 26.

7. Mass.—Bush v. Boston Elevated passengers is necessary, a general warning, such as will be likely to reach all the passengers on their way in or out, is ordinarily regarded as sufficient.[8] Where an opening in a train at a station has been made for the passage of persons, the duty to give warning before closing the space is not, on the other hand, satisfied by merely ringing the engine bell or sounding the whistle.[9] A warning to an alighting passenger of the approach of other vehicles of the carrier coming from a particular direction was no assurance of safety as regards another vehicle coming from another direction.[10]

§ 725. Boarding or Alighting from Moving Train or Car

Generally a carrier is not liable for injuries sustained by persons while attempting to board or alight from a moving train or car in the absence of some direction, invitation, permission, or compulsion by the carrier.

As a general rule a carrier's employees have a right to assume that a passenger will not attempt to board or alight from a moving train or car,[11] and are not negligent in failing to warn him against doing so, see supra § 724, or in failing to use other means to restrain him from doing so,[12] or to stop the vehicle,[13] especially where it does not know, or have reason to know, of his peril or intention to board or alight from the moving train or car,[14] and where the passenger attempts to get off or on at a place other than a regular stopping place,[15] or from the wrong side of the vehicle.[16] The carrier is not liable, even when its employees have knowledge of the injured person's intent, if they use proper care to prevent him from boarding or alighting while the train or car is in motion,[17] or to assist him to escape from a dangerous position in which he has placed himself.[18]

On the other hand, a carrier may be liable for injuries sustained by passengers in boarding or alighting from moving trains or cars, and sometimes, under applicable statute or ordinance, where the carrier's employees know, or have reason to know, of the passenger's intention and that he is ignorant of his peril in attempting to board or alight,[19] and to manage a train or car in such manner as to create an appearance of imminent danger of a collision, thereby inducing passengers to jump from the train or car, may constitute negligence for which the carrier is liable.[20]

Direction, invitation, permission, or compulsion. Generally, in order that a carrier may be liable for injuries sustained by a passenger in attempting to board a moving vehicle, there must be some order, request, or direction by the carrier's employees to board the vehicle.[21] Hence, in the ab-

Ry. Co., 123 N.E. 613, 232 Mass. 593.

8. N.Y.—Wertheimer v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 102 N.Y.S. 706, 52 Misc. 540.
10 C.J. p 926 note 29.

9. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 122 S.W. 806, 135 Ky. 462.

10. Mass.—Mercier v. Union St. Ry. Co., 119 N.E. 764, 230 Mass. 397.

11. U.S.—Palen v. Wheelock, C.C.A. Mo., 13 F.2d 34.
La.—Smith v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 91 So. 514, 150 La. 1070.
Mo.—Gunn v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 193 S.W. 814, 270 Mo. 517, L.R.A.1917D 1131.
N.Y.—Mearns v. Central Railroad of New Jersey, 57 N.E. 292, 163 N.Y. 108, reargument denied 58 N.E. 1089, 164 N.Y. 598.
10 C.J. p 926 note 32.

Trespasser

The only duty which a carrier owes a trespasser attempting to become a passenger by boarding a rapidly moving train is not willfully or wantonly to injure him.—Lee v. Baker, Tex.Civ.App., 251 S.W. 580.

12. Mo.—Kirby v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 242 S.W. 79.
Tex.—Vivian v. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co., Civ.App., 196 S.W. 267, error refused.
10 C.J. p 927 note 34.

Partial blindness of a passenger does not require the carrier to provide special means to keep him from leaving the moving train.—Vivian v. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co., Tex.Civ.App., 196 S.W. 267, error refused.

13. Mo.—Gunn v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 193 S.W. 814, 270 Mo. 517, L.R.A.1917D 1131.
Neb.—O'Connor v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 177 N.W. 838, 104 Neb. 534.

14. U.S.—Palen v. Wheelock, C.C.A. Mo., 13 F.2d 34.
Neb.—O'Connor v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 177 N.W. 838, 104 Neb. 534.
Tex.—Vivian v. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co., Civ.App., 196 S.W. 267, error refused.
10 C.J. p 927 note 35

Duty to discover intent to board

After boarding, and having given ample opportunity for passengers to do so, employees of a carrier are not required to lean forward out of the vestibule door to discover whether anyone is going to undertake to board the vehicle while it is in motion.—Palen v. Wheelock, C.C.A.Mo., 13 F.2d 34.

15. Ind.—Mishler v. Chicago, S. B. & N. I. Ry. Co., 122 N.E. 657, 188 Ind. 189.
10 C.J. p 927 note 36.

16. Pa.—Chitwood v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 109 A. 645, 266 Pa. 435.
Tex.—Armitage v. Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 65 S.W.2d 376, error refused.

Boarding moving train from wrong side

Pa.—Chitwood v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 109 A. 645, 266 Pa. 435.

Lighting yards

Tex.—Armitage v. Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 65 S.W.2d 376, error refused.

17. Mass.—Sullivan v. Boston, El. R. Co., 84 N.E. 844, 199 Mass. 73, 21 L.R.A.,N.S., 36.
10 C.J. p 928 note 39.

18. Mo.—Mathews v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 137 S.W. 1003, 156 Mo. App. 715.
10 C.J. p 928 note 40.

19. Ill.—Little v. Peoria Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 385.
10 C.J. p 927 note 37, p 928 note 38.

20. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Butler, 33 So. 33, 135 Ala. 388.
10 C.J. p 928 note 41.

21. Mo.—Gunn v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 193 S.W. 814, 270 Mo. 517, L.R.A.1917D 1131.

sence of any invitation by a carrier to board its vehicle at a particular place, the carrier has been held not to be liable for injuries, by reason of conditions there existing, to a passenger in attempting to board a moving vehicle at such place.[22] The carrier is, however, liable for the resulting injuries where a passenger attempts to board or alight from a moving train or car, under the direction or invitation of the conductor or other employee in charge thereof,[23] or where he does so under force or apprehension of force,[24] although it is not under all circumstances negligence per se to suggest to a passenger that he alight from the train or car while it is slowly moving,[25] or to permit him to do so.[26] The fact that the next station is announced does not constitute an assurance to passengers that the car has stopped, or an invitation to alight before it has in fact stopped,[27] nor may an open door in a moving vehicle necessarily constitute an invitation to alight while the vehicle is in motion.[28] Whether the opening of a door is an invitation to alight is to be determined by the circumstances of the particular case.[29] That a motorman turns and looks at a passenger who desires to alight from a street car does not constitute an implied invitation to alight while the car is in motion.[30]

§ 726. Operating Other Cars or Trains

In order to avoid injury to passengers boarding or alighting from its trains or cars, a carrier must exercise due care in operating other cars or trains.

Where, on the express or implied invitation of a railroad or street railroad company, passengers go on or near to the tracks in waiting for, getting on, or alighting from, a train or car, it is the duty of the company to operate its trains or cars at such places with such care as not to imperil the safety of such passengers; and if it fails so to do it is liable for injuries caused thereby,[31] and the meas-

Neb.—O'Connor v Omaha & C B. St. Ry Co, 177 N.W. 838, 104 Neb. 534.

22. La.—Smith v. New Orleans Ry & Light Co, 91 So. 514, 150 La 1070

Walk as invitation

A walk adjoining street car tracks on the neutral ground of a street and obviously intended to be used only by employees in opening or closing a switch, was not an invitation to the public to walk there in boarding cars, so as to impose liability on the carrier for injuries sustained by a passenger attempting to board a moving train.—Smith v New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 91 So. 514, 150 La. 1070.

Space in street between ends of ties

An open space between the ends of the crossties of an electric railroad on neutral ground in a street not maintained as a way for pedestrians was held not dangerous or violative of a municipal ordinance requiring the space occupied by the tracks to be kept in repair, so as to impose liability for injury to a boy stepping therein while attempting to board a moving train.—Smith v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co, 91 So. 514, 150 La. 1070.

23. Ill.—Little v. Peoria Ry. Co., 215 Ill App. 385.
Iowa—Bersie v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry Co., 211 N.W. 250, 202 Iowa 1090.
10 C.J. p 928 note 42.

Compulsion, duress, or coercion need not exist in order to impose on the carrier liability for injuries to a passenger resulting from his alighting from a moving vehicle under the counsel or advice of the carrier's employee—Bersie v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co, 211 N.W. 250, 202 Iowa 1090.

Invitation may be tacit as manifested by the conduct of the carrier's employees—Little v. Peoria Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 385.

24. Ind.—Louisville, etc., R Co v Wood, 14 N.E. 572, 16 N E 197, 113 Ind 544.
Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Richerson, 14 Ky.L 925.
10 C.J. p 928 note 43.

25. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Hazzard, 26 Ill 373
Mo.—Wilburn v. St Louis, etc, R. Co, 48 Mo App 224.
Pa.—Rothstein v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 33 A 379, 171 Pa 620
S C—Crosby v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 61 S E. 1064, 81 S C. 24.
10 C J. p 928 note 44

26. La.—Gipson v. Shreveport Traction Co., 77 So 129, 142 La 497, L. R.A.1918B 1130.

27. N.Y.—Mearns v. Central R Co. of New Jersey, 57 N.E. 292, 163 N.Y. 108, reargument denied 58 N. E. 1089, 164 N Y 598.
10 C J. p 928 note 45

"Well, we are here"

Where an infirm aged passenger had disclosed his destination to the trainmen, statement of one of them, "Well, we are here," was not an invitation for the passenger to alight, while the train was moving —Vivian v. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co, Tex.Civ.App, 196 S W. 267, error refused.

28. Iowa—Fitzgerald v. Des Moines City Ry. Co, 207 N.W. 602, 201 Iowa 1302.

Mass.—Elger v Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 115 N E 242, 226 Mass. 84
Mo—Kirby v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 242 S W. 79.

29. Iowa—Fitzgerald v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 207 N.W. 602, 201 Iowa 1302.

30. Ill.—Busack v. Chicago City Ry Co, 118 N.E. 1041, 283 Ill. 117, L R.A 1918D 416.

31. U.S—Southern Ry. Co. v. Hobson, C C A Ga., 43 F.2d 715
Ala—Montgomery Light & Traction Co v. O'Connor, 85 So. 384, 204 Ala 24
Cal—MacGregor v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co, 59 P 2d 123, 6 Cal.2d 596
Ill—Bernier v. Illinois Cent. R Co, 215 Ill.App. 454, affirmed 129 N. E 747, 296 Ill 464 See Cannon v. Chicago Rys. Co., 205 Ill App. 423
Ind—Indiana Union Traction Co. v Hiatt, 114 N E 478, 65 Ind App 233, rehearing denied 115 N E 101, 65 Ind. 233.
La—Willis v. Vicksburg, S & P. R Co, 38 So. 892, 115 La. 53
Mass.—Poppel v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 155 N.E. 267, 258 Mass. 389
Mich—Terrill v. Michigan United Traction Co, 183 N.W. 46, 214 Mich 478—Terrill v. Michigan United Traction Co, 171 N.W 340, 204 Mich 652
N Y—Campbell v. Richmond Light & R Co., 127 N E 271, 228 N Y. 383, reversing 168 N.Y.S. 813, 181 App Div. 320.
Pa—Lasater v. Conestoga Traction Co., 160 A 447, 306 Pa. 500.
10 C J. p 929 note 46.

Care required where headlight out of order

Where headlight of suburban car

ure of care and protection owed to such persons is not affected by the fact that other ways are provided, not requiring the going on or crossing of the track on the company's premises.[32] Thus, where it is necessary or proper for passengers in boarding, or alighting from, a train or car to go on or near to another track on which another train or car is approaching, it is the duty of the carrier's employees to keep a proper lookout,[33] to keep the speed of the approaching train or car under such control as is proper and reasonable under the circumstances and, if necessary, to stop it,[34] and to give such warning by bell, whistle, or otherwise, of its approach, as will reasonably protect the boarding or alighting passengers from injury,[35] particularly where a statute or ordinance requires that such precautions shall be taken.[36] Where a street car is standing discharging passengers, it is the duty of the motorman in charge of an approaching car on a parallel track to have his car under such control that it may be stopped on a moment's notice;[37] and, irrespective of an ordinance requiring such action, the motorman may be required to slacken the speed of his car and give a signal of its approach;[38] but it is not the duty of a carrier to stop its car, or slow up, or give a signal, on every occasion of meeting another car.[39] The duty of servants operating trains or cars to look out for passengers who are boarding, or alighting from, another train or car does not involve absolute liability, as they have the right, in the absence of notice to the contrary, to assume that persons on or near tracks will not be negligent,[40] and if the carrier's servants exercise proper care under the circumstances, the company will not be liable for the resulting injuries;[41] nor does the duty apply after the passenger has left the place of alighting,[42] nor where he is on a part of the premises where he is not authorized to be.[43] An ordinance requiring that street cars approaching cars stopped on another track to pick up or discharge passengers shall stop in order to permit alighting passengers to pass in front of the approaching car does not apply so as to require that it shall be stopped to permit a person to cross in front of it to board a car on the other track.[44] was out of order, it was car employees' duty, in operating car during the night, to exercise great care in approaching station grounds, where persons would likely be for the purpose of becoming passengers.—Willi v. United Rys. Co. of St Louis, 224 S.W 86, 205 Mo App. 272.

32. U.S.—Delaware, etc., R. Co. v. Price, N.J., 221 F. 848, 137 C.C.A. 406, certiorari denied 35 S.Ct. 939, 238 U.S. 636, 59 L.Ed 1500.

33. La.—Willis v Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co., 38 So 892, 115 La. 53.
10 C.J. p 930 note 50.

34. N.C.—Dunn v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 784, 174 N.C. 254.
10 C.J. p 930 note 51.

35. Ark.—St. Louis, etc, R. Co. v. Tomlinson, 64 S.W. 347, 69 Ark. 489.

36. N.C.—Dunn v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 784, 174 N.C. 254.
10 C.J. p 930 note 53.

37. Ohio—Mahoning Valley Ry. Co. v Kazanecka, 7 Ohio App. 289.
10 C.J. p 930 note 54.

38. N.Y.—Wall v. International Ry. Co., 135 N.E. 512, 233 N.Y. 309, reversing 188 N.Y.S. 550, 195 App. Div. 685.

39. La.—Blanco v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 73 So. 774, 140 La. 693.
10 C.J. p 930 note 55.

At other than regular stopping place

Street car passing another in opposite direction is not required to sound gong at a place other than a regular stopping place.—Laws v. Hammond, W. & E. C Ry. Co., 128 N.E. 52, 79 Ind.App 650.

40. Ill.—Foreman Trust & Savings Bank v. Chicago Rapid Transit Co., 252 Ill.App 151.—Bernier v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 213 Ill.App 530. See Loudon v Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 206 Ill.App. 87.
Kan.—Turner v Laying, 294 P. 665, 132 Kan. 127.
La.—Blanco v New Orleans Ry & Light Co., 73 So. 774, 140 La. 693.
Mich.—Brown v Detroit United Ry., 185 N.W. 707, 216 Mich 582.—Van Sickle v. Grand Rapids, G. H. & M Ry Co, 182 N.W. 132, 213 Mich. 261.
Mo.—State ex rel. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Reynolds, 233 S.W. 219, 289 Mo. 479, quashing Martin v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 227 S.W. 129.
10 C.J. p 930 note 56.

Doctrine of last clear chance inapplicable

Where until a moment before he was struck a passenger waiting to board another train was in no danger, the doctrine of last clear chance did not apply so as to require the operator of the train which struck him to slacken its speed or sound a warning.—Foreman Trust & Savings Bank v Chicago Rapid Transit Co., 252 Ill.App. 151.

Train running behind schedule

The engineer of a through train running late on the time of an accommodation train at great speed, when he saw persons at a suburban station attempting to cross the track, could assume that they saw his train and the speed of such train, and that, if waiting passengers, they knew the local train had not arrived on time, and that they would stop and look before entering on the track, which was the real danger zone.—State ex rel. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Reynolds, 233 S.W. 219, 289 Mo 479, quashing Martin v St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 227 S.W. 129.

41. Ill.—Foreman Trust & Savings Bank v. Chicago Rapid Transit Co., 252 Ill.App. 151.
Kan.—Turner v. Laying, 294 P. 665, 132 Kan. 127.
La.—Serio v. New Orleans Ry & Light Co., 91 So. 70, 150 La. 632.—Blanco v. New Orleans Ry & Light Co., 73 So 774, 140 La. 693.
Mich.—Brown v Detroit United Ry., 185 N.W. 707, 216 Mich. 582.—Van Sickle v. Grand Rapids, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 182 N.W. 132, 213 Mich. 261.
10 C.J. p 931 note 57.

42. W.Va.—Ballard v. Charleston Interurban R Co., 169 S.E. 524, 113 W.Va. 660.
10 C.J. p 931 note 58.

43. W.Va.—Ballard v. Charleston Interurban R Co., supra.
10 C.J. p 931 note 59.

44. La.—Blanco v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 73 So. 774, 140 La. 693.

The violation of a statute or ordinance respecting the rate of speed of a car or train may of itself constitute negligence as to a passenger injured while boarding or alighting from a vehicle on another track.[45]

§ 727. Assistance of Passengers

a. In general
b. Duty dependent on circumstances

a. In General

In the absence of any apparent necessity for personal assistance to passengers boarding or alighting, the carrier is not required to furnish it.

In the absence of circumstances showing that a passenger about to board, or alight from, the vehicle of a carrier requires assistance, there is as a general rule no duty personally to assist him,[46] particularly in the absence of any request for assistance;[47] nor is it necessarily incumbent on the carrier's employees to direct a passenger how he shall get on or off,[48] or how he shall go after he has alighted.[49]

Custom or rule of carrier. A custom of assisting passengers is not binding on the carrier unless it has knowledge thereof, or unless the custom is so well known that it may reasonably be presumed to be a part of the contract of carriage.[50] Nonconformity with a rule of the carrier requiring conductors to assist female passengers in alighting will not impose liability on the carrier unless the rule was known to, and relied on by, the passenger.[51]

Third persons. The carrier is not liable for the incompetency or negligence of a third person who is not its employee or authorized to act for it in assisting a passenger;[52] but where the contract of a carrier with a society to run a special train provides for members thereof to assist passengers to alight, it is liable for incompetency or negligence of members in so assisting a passenger.[53]

A voluntary promise by the conductor or other employee to assist a passenger in alighting at a certain station does not impose any liability on the carrier for a failure of the conductor or employee to keep such promise,[54] unless he has notice of the conditions or circumstances of the passenger that will render such assistance necessary.[55]

Assisting from one car to another. It is not negligence for a conductor after inviting and assisting a boarding passenger from one car to another to enable her to get a seat to fail to assist her down the aisle to a seat, where she is not weak or sick or the speed of the train is not excessive or unusual, and a curve in the road which is reached while she is walking is not a sharp one; and in the absence of anything shown as to his manner, the offer of a conductor to assist a passenger from the baggage car to a car in the rear on her hesitating to move while the car is in motion, after he has announced that there are seats there, is not an order for her to go there.[56]

Care and negligence in rendering; extent of assistance. Where a carrier's employees render assistance, even where it is not necessary, it will be liable for any negligence connected with the rendering of such assistance[57] within the scope of the

45. N.C.—Dunn v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 784, 174 N.C. 254.
10 C.J. p. 931 note 60.

46. Ala.—Smith v. Southern Ry. Co., 164 So. 903, 231 Ala. 381—Southern Ry. Co. v. Hayne, 95 So. 879, 209 Ala. 186—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Farmer, 79 So. 35, 201 Ala. 603—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. King, 73 So. 456, 198 Ala. 168.
Ga.—Metts v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115.
Ind.—Hudnut v. Indiana De Luxe Cab Co., 182 N.E. 711, 98 Ind.App. 44.
Md.—Hagerstown & F. Ry. Co. v. Wingert, 105 A. 537, 133 Md. 455.
Mass.—Tefft v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 188 N.E. 507, 285 Mass. 121.
Pa.—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co., 138 A. 852, 290 Pa. 365—Baron v. Wilkes-Barre Ry. Co., 71 Pa.Super. 103.
R.I.—Di Nora v. Rhode Island Co., 109 A. 706, 43 R.I. 7.
Tex.—Lattimer v. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 106 S.W.2d 727—San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wiuvar, Civ.App., 257 S.W. 667—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis, Civ.App., 185 S.W. 969, error refused.
Wis.—Dorcey v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 203 N.W. 327, 186 Wis. 590—Gardner v. Chicago & M. Electric Ry. Co., 159 N.W. 1066, 164 Wis. 541.
10 C.J. p. 931 note 61.

47. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. King, 73 So. 456, 198 Ala. 168.
Mass.—Tefft v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 188 N.E. 507, 285 Mass. 121.
Pa.—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co., 138 A. 852, 290 Pa. 365—Baron v. Wilkes-Barre Ry. Co., 71 Pa.Super. 103.

48. Ky.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cruse, 96 S.W. 821, 123 Ky. 463, 29 Ky.L. 914, 8 L.R.A.,N.S., 299, 13 Ann.Cas. 593.
Mich.—Nichols v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 51 N.W. 364, 90 Mich. 203.
10 C.J. p. 931 note 62.

49. Mass.—Lee v. Boston El. R. Co., 65 N.E. 822, 182 Mass. 454.

50. Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. McCullough, 45 S.W. 324, 18 Tex.Civ.App. 534.

51. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Carlisle, 56 So. 737, 2 Ala.App. 514.

52. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Kemp, Civ.App., 173 S.W. 532.

53. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Kemp, supra.

54. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. King, 73 So. 456, 198 Ala. 168.
10 C.J. p. 931 note 64.

55. Ga.—Southern R. Co. v. Hobbs, 45 S.E. 23, 118 Ga. 227, 63 L.R.A. 68.
10 C.J. p. 932 note 65.

56. Md.—Plummer v. Washington, etc., R. Co., 92 A. 536, 124 Md. 200.

57. Mo.—Lackey v. Missouri & K. I. Ry. Co., 264 S.W. 807, 305 Mo. 260.
Pa.—Hager v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 104 A. 599, 261 Pa. 359.

employee's employment,[58] reasonable care being required in such cases,[59] or a degree of care commensurate with the passenger's condition as it appears to them,[60] although it has been held that the carrier may be liable for injuries sustained by a passenger while being assisted to alight by an employee, notwithstanding he was acting outside the scope of his employment,[61] and that, where assistance is necessary, the same high degree of care is required in such cases as during actual transportation.[62] In the absence of negligence on the part of a carrier's employee who voluntarily undertakes to assist a passenger to board a car, the carrier is not liable for injuries resulting from the withdrawal of such assistance.[63] The extent of assistance to be rendered to a passenger in boarding or alighting is to be determined by the reasonable necessities of the particular case.[64]

The absence of express authority from a carrier to its agent to assist or escort passengers across a highway in order to board the carrier's vehicle, may not relieve the carrier from liability for injuries sustained by a passenger while being so assisted or escorted.[65]

b. Duty Dependent on Circumstances

The circumstances of the particular case determine whether the employees of a carrier are under a duty to assist passengers in boarding or alighting

The duty of rendering personal assistance to a passenger in boarding or alighting depends on the circumstances and conditions surrounding the passenger in the particular case,[66] and it may become the duty of the carrier's employees to assist a passenger in boarding or alighting, where the circumstances are such as to indicate that he requires such assistance,[67] as where there is some unusual danger or difficulty arising from the place or means afforded for alighting,[68] or where the passenger is

Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Preston, Civ.App., 194 S.W. 1128, affirmed, Com.App., 228 S.W. 928.
10 C.J. p. 932 note 67.

58. Ga.—Western, etc., R. Co. v. Voils, 26 S.E. 483, 98 Ga. 446, 35 L.R.A. 655.
10 C.J. p. 932 note 68.

59. Tenn.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Newsome, 206 S.W. 33, 141 Tenn. 8.
10 C.J. p. 932 note 69.

60. Wash.—Fagerdahl v. North Coast Transp. Co., 35 P.2d 46, 178 Wash. 482, modifying 28 P.2d 107, 175 Wash. 600.

Apparently intoxicated person

Duty of conductor assisting apparently intoxicated passenger from interurban car was measured by that owed to intoxicated man, where conductor did not know or have actual notice that passenger had cerebral hemorrhage.—Fagerdahl v. North Coast Transp. Co., 35 P.2d 46, 178 Wash. 482, modifying 28 P.2d 107, 175 Wash. 600.

61. Iowa.—Ray v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 144 N.W. 1018, 163 Iowa 430.

62. Tenn.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Newsome, 206 S.W. 33, 141 Tenn. 8.
Tex.—Southern Traction Co. v. Reagor, Civ.App., 186 S.W. 272, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 932 note 70.

63. N.Y.—Kelly v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 124 N.E. 147, 227 N.Y. 39, reversing 159 N.Y.S. 1121, 173 App.Div. 983.

64. Tex.—St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gore, Civ.App., 69 S.W.2d 186, error dismissed.
10 C.J. p. 932 note 65 [a].

Ascending steps

In the absence of any apparent necessity for so doing, the employee of a carrier is not under any duty to ascend the steps of a train car to assist a passenger to alight.—St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gore, Tex.Civ.App., 69 S.W.2d 186, error dismissed.

65. Cal.—Sanchez v. Pacific Auto Stages, 2 P.2d 845, 116 Cal.App. 392.

66. Ala.—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 553.
Ark.—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S.W. 561, 148 Ark. 456.
Ga.—Metts v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115.
Mich.—Chalker v. Detroit, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 173 N.W. 532, 207 Mich. 138.
Tenn.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Newsome, 206 S.W. 33, 141 Tenn. 8.
Tex.—Wisdom v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., Com.App., 231 S.W. 344, reversing Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wisdom, Civ.App., 216 S.W. 241—Lattimer v. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 106 S.W.2d 727—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Whittington, Civ.App., 292 S.W. 966—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis, Civ.App., 185 S.W. 969, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 932 note 75.

67. Ala.—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 553.
Ga.—Metts v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115.
Iowa.—Vanderbeck v. Chicago, M., St. P. & P. Ry. Co., 230 N.W. 390, 210 Iowa 230.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bowman, 270 S.W. 471, 208 Ky. 39.
Mich.—Chalker v. Detroit, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 173 N.W. 532, 207 Mich. 138.
Tex.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Whittington, Civ.App., 292 S.W. 966.
10 C.J. p. 932 note 76.

68. Ala.—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 553.
Ga.—Metts v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Scarbrough, 270 S.W. 494, 208 Ky. 79.
Mich.—Chalker v. Detroit, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 173 N.W. 532, 207 Mich. 138.
N.J.—Gore v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 98 A. 389, 89 N.J.Law 224.
Or.—Adams v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 171 P. 219, 87 Or. 602, L.R.A.1918D 526.
Tex.—Wisdom v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., Com.App., 231 S.W. 344, reversing Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wisdom, Civ.App., 216 S.W. 241.
10 C.J. p. 933 note 77.

High step

A step two and a half or three feet high may impose a duty to assist a passenger to board a train.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bowman, 270 S.W. 471, 208 Ky. 39.

Ice and snow

(1) Carrier must assist passenger in alighting where accumulations of ice and snow have made coach steps dangerous.—Chalker v. Detroit, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 173 N.W. 532, 207 Mich. 138.

(2) Due care may require that the operator of a one-man street car assist a passenger to alight at a place where there is ice in the street, notwithstanding the carrier had no right to remove such ice.—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry., 149 A. 602, 84 N.H. 285.

to the knowledge of the employees of the carrier so infirm or disabled as to require assistance,[69] particularly where a request for assistance is made[70] That a female passenger has in charge a small child and is encumbered with baggage, may present a situation calling for assistance.[71]

On the other hand, the employees of a carrier are not required to use diligence to discover the feeble condition of a passenger and his inability to help himself;[72] nor are they required to offer personal assistance to apparently normal passengers boarding or alighting from a step which is not unusually high.[73] In the absence of any request, or any apparent need, for assistance, a carrier's servants are not under any duty to assist a passenger to alight merely because he is a cripple.[74] That a female passenger is carrying a small child in her arms as she alights may not impose a duty on the carrier's employees to assist her, in the absence of a custom so requiring or a request for such assistance.[75]

Female passengers accompanied by men. Where a female passenger is attended by a husband or friend, apparently capable of giving any needed assistance in boarding or alighting from a car, the carrier is under no duty to render such assistance.[76] The rule is otherwise, however, as regards a female passenger accompanied by a man, who is not acting as her escort, and to whom she is apparently not looking for protection and assistance.[77] This is particularly true where the man is encumbered with baggage and is apparently looking out for himself alone.[78]

§ 728. Appliances and Means for Boarding or Alighting

A carrier may under appropriate circumstances be required to furnish appliances and means for its passengers to board and alight from its vehicles, and must use due care to see that such appliances and means are safe for that purpose.

A carrier must exercise care in providing safe appliances and means for the assistance and protection of passengers in getting on and off its cars,[79] and in operating the same.[80] In some cases it has been held that the means and appliances furnished must be the safest known and tested;[81] but in other cases it has been held that the carrier is not absolutely liable in this regard, and that this duty is performed if it provides reasonably safe

69. Ala.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Laxson, 114 So. 290, 217 Ala. 1, 55 A.L.R. 385, reversing 114 So. 288, 22 Ala.App. 180—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 553.
Ark.—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S.W. 561, 148 Ark. 456
Or.—Watts v Spokane, P. & S. Ry. Co., 171 P. 901, 88 Or. 192.
10 C.J. p 933 note 78.

Disability from physical or mental infirmity

Passenger's disability imposing on carrier duty to assist in alighting need not arise from physical or mental infirmity alone.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Laxson, 114 So. 290, 217 Ala. 1, 55 A.L.R. 385, reversing 114 So. 288, 22 Ala.App. 180.

Cripple with crutches

Ala.—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 553

70. Mo.—Layne v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 157 S.W. 850, 175 Mo.App. 34

71. Ala.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Laxson, 114 So. 290, 217 Ala. 1, 55 A.L.R. 385, reversing 114 So. 288, 22 Ala.App. 180.
Tex.—International & G. N. Ry Co. v. Williams, Civ.App., 183 S.W. 1185, error refused.

72. Ky.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cruse, 96 S.W. 821, 123 Ky. 463, 29 Ky.L. 914, 8 L.R.A.,N.S., 299, 13 Ann.Cas. 593.
Tex.—Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Garner, 115 S.W. 273, 52 Tex.Civ.App. 387.

73. Ala.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Hayne, 95 So. 879, 209 Ala. 186.
Tex.—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry Co. v. Yantis, Civ.App., 185 S.W. 969, error refused.

Five- or six-inch step

That a car step is five or six inches above the platform from which a passenger boards a train does not, without more, present a situation requiring that he be assisted in boarding.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Hayne, 95 So. 879, 209 Ala. 186.

Eighteen inch step

A step eighteen inches high does not impose any duty on the carrier to assist an apparently normal adult to alight.—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis, Tex.Civ.App., 185 S.W. 969, error refused.

74. N.C.—Graham v. Norfolk-Southern R. Co., 93 S.E. 428, 174 N.C. 1.

75. Mass.—Gatchell v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 130 N.E. 94, 238 Mass. 185.

76. Ala.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Hayne, 95 So. 879, 209 Ala. 186.
R.I.—Di Nora v. Rhode Island Co., 109 A. 706, 43 R.I. 7.
10 C.J. p 931 note 61 [e].

Invalid passenger

Ky.—Arnett v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., 248 S.W. 1040, 198 Ky. 491.
Va.—Walters v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 182, 122 Va. 149.

77. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bowman, 270 S.W. 471, 208 Ky. 39.

78. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bowman, supra.

79. Ala.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Farmer, 79 So. 35, 201 Ala. 603.
Cal.—Sellars v. Southern Pac. Co., 166 P. 599, 33 Cal.App. 701.
Ga.—Metts v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115
Ky.—Chesapeake & O. Ry Co. v. Clarke, 189 S.W. 882, 172 Ky. 811.
10 C.J. p 933 note 82

Station other than destination

Carrier opening doors and providing means for passenger to alight at station other than her destination should exercise due care to provide safe means.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Rooks, Tex.Civ.App., 283 S.W. 622, affirmed, Com.App., 292 S.W. 536, rehearing denied 293 S.W. 554.

Preventing obstruction of car platform

A street car company owes to its passengers the duty to prevent the obstruction of the platforms of the cars by baskets or other objects which would endanger passengers when alighting.—Hopkins v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 90 So. 512, 150 La. 61, 19 A.L.R. 1362.

80. Mass.—Plummer v. Boston El. R. Co., 84 N.E. 349, 198 Mass. 499.
10 C.J. p 933 note 83.

81. Tex.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Wortham, 10 S.W. 741, 73 Tex. 25, 3 L.R.A. 368.
10 C.J. p 934 note 84.

means and appliances.[82] Where the carrier has provided a safe means of exit from its vehicle, it is not liable for injuries resulting to an alighting passenger who uses another means of exit.[83] The mere fact that on former occasions a carrier has provided a particular appliance for boarding or alighting, does not impose any duty to continue to furnish the particular kind of appliance.[84]

Box or footstool. In the absence of circumstances rendering such assistance necessary, a carrier is not required to furnish a boarding or an alighting passenger with a portable box or footstool;[85] but where the car step is unreasonably high, the carrier should furnish a box or footstool to facilitate the boarding or alighting of a passenger,[86] and should exercise due care to see that such box or stool is in a safe condition,[87] and is placed or used by its employees in a safe manner.[88] The carrier is not, however, an insurer of a passenger against injuries sustained by him in using a step box or footstool to board a train.[89]

§ 729. Opportunity and Time for Getting on Board or Alighting

a. Opportunity and time for getting on board

82. Pa.—Keller v. Hestonville, M. & F Pass. R. Co., 1 Pa.Dist. 197, affirmed 24 A. 159, 149 Pa. 65.
Va.—Davidson v Washington & O D. Ry, 105 S E. 669, 129 Va. 99.
10 C J. p 934 note 85.

83. Va.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry, supra.

Assuming passengers would not use wrong exit

Where steps for passengers were provided at the rear of an electric railway car, the front end of which was occupied as a baggage and mail compartment, and there were no steps in front, and a sign warned passengers to stay out of the baggage and mail compartment, the carrier had a right to assume that passengers would not use the door to such compartment as a means of exit.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry, 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99.

Exit from one side of vehicle

(1) Generally, a requirement by a street railway that passengers enter and leave a car from a particular side is reasonable, and the mere fact that in a particular instance the danger from passing vehicles would be less on the opposite side of the car will not in all cases render the railway chargeable with negligence.—Klingensmith v. West Penn Rys. Co., 123 A. 787, 279 Pa. 336.

(2) An occasional alighting and discharge of passengers on the wrong side of a train will not establish a custom, binding on the carrier, of permitting its passengers to so alight, as regards a passenger who is injured while alighting from the wrong side.—Seltzer v. Philadelphia & R Ry Co., 69 Pa.Super. 309.

Duty to provide steps

A railroad company was under no obligation to provide steps for passengers at the door of a baggage compartment, which was plainly not intended for their use.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 105 S.E 669, 129 Va. 99.

Stationing brakeman at door

Where a railroad company has completed the transfer of passengers at a junction and is in the act of making up a train before leaving, it is not required in the shifting, or making up of the train, to keep a brakeman at the door of the train continuously to keep passengers from alighting on the wrong side.—Seltzer v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 69 Pa Super. 309.

Open doors

Negligence on the part of an electric railway company toward an alighting passenger could not be predicated on the fact that a door leading from the passenger section of a combination car to the baggage and mail compartment, which was used by the passenger as an exit, and a door leading from such compartment to the ground were open, where it did not appear that they were opened by any employee, and the conductor and motorman attempted to deter passengers from taking that route in alighting.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 105 S E 669, 129 Va. 99.

Permitting others to use exit

Negligence on the part of an electric railway company toward passenger using the door of a baggage and mail compartment as an exit could not be predicated on the fact that it permitted a large number of passengers to pass out through the baggage and mail compartment, the door of which had no steps, where the conductor warned passengers to keep out of such compartment, and the motorman turned one of them back and closed the door to the passenger section.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry, 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99.

Use of stool as negligence

Negligence could not be predicated on the fact that the motorman's stool was used at the exit of the baggage compartment, where it was not shown that such stool was used by any employee of the company or with the company's authority.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99.

84. Ala.—Atlantic Coast Line R Co. v. Farmer, 79 So. 35, 201 Ala 603.

Movable planks

Ala.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Farmer, 79 So. 35, 201 Ala. 603.

85. Ala.—Roberts v. Kurn, 165 So. 77, 231 Ala. 381—Southern Ry Co. v Hayne, 95 So 879, 209 Ala. 186—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Farmer, 79 So. 35, 201 Ala. 603
Md.—Hagerstown & F Ry. Co v Wingert, 105 A 537, 133 Md. 455
N.Y.—Trudnowski v New York Cent. R. Co., 221 N.Y.S. 686 220 App.Div. 503.
Or.—Nelson v United Rys. Co., 166 P. 763, 85 Or 427
10 C J. p 934 note 86

86. Cal.—Sellars v Southern Pac. Co, 166 P. 599, 33 Cal App 701.
10 C J. p 934 note 87.

87. La.—Scott v. Vicksburg S. & P. Ry. Co., 90 So 840, 150 La. 537, 20 A.L.R. 908.
10 C.J. p 934 note 88.

88. Ark.—Davis v. Kelly, 237 S.W. 698, 152 Ark 151.
La.—Scott v. Vicksburg, S. & P. Ry Co., 90 So. 840, 150 La. 537, 20 A.L R 908.
10 C J. p 934 note 89.

Footstool placed on slanting ground

Where a train was late, and overran the station platform, and a woman passenger of forty-nine, weighing over two hundred pounds, protested against alighting at such place, but the brakeman assured her she could alight safely, and that he would assist her and, relying thereon, she stepped on the footstool, which was placed on slanting ground, and known by the brakeman not to be on a level, and tilted, so as to cause her to fall, the carrier was liable.—Davis v. Kelly, 237 S. W. 698, 152 Ark. 151

89. La.—Scott v. Vicksburg, S. & P. Ry. Co., 90 So. 840, 150 La. 537, 20 A.L.R. 908.
Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Skaggs, 179 So. 274.

b. Opportunity and time for alighting
c. Reasonable time dependent on circumstances

a. Opportunity and Time for Getting on Board

A carrier has the duty to give passengers boarding its vehicles, a sufficient opportunity and time to do so.

A carrier owes a duty to boarding passengers to allow them time to get on board with reasonable care and expedition.[90] Hence, it is held, and sometimes under applicable statutes, that if without allowing such reasonable time the vehicle is started or otherwise moved while a passenger is attempting to board it, whereby he is injured, the carrier is liable.[91]

Holding train for passenger to procure ticket. Where a passenger attempts to board a train without a ticket and is sent back by the conductor to procure one, the train must be held a reasonable time for such passenger, and if it starts off without being so held, and the passenger is injured in attempting to board it, the company is liable.[92]

Starting vehicle before passenger seated. Ordinarily, it is not negligence to start a vehicle after a passenger has got on board the vehicle but before he has reached a seat,[93] unless there is some reason to apprehend danger in so doing, or the movement is made in a negligent manner,[94] or unless it is required by statute that the passenger shall be given a reasonable time to reach a seat.[95] It has been held that the driver of a stagecoach should, before commencing his journey, ascertain that the passengers are seated; but in his journey over ordinary streets and highways, where frequent or occasional necessary stoppages are made because of crowds, parades, or the like, or because of the use of the street or highway by others of the public, he is not bound, before he starts again, to give notice to the passengers that he is about to do so, or to ascertain whether the passengers remained seated as before the stoppage was made.[96]

b. Opportunity and Time for Alighting

A carrier must give passengers alighting from its vehicles an opportunity and time to do so.

A carrier owes a duty to an alighting passenger, sometimes under applicable statutes, to stop its vehicle a sufficient length of time to enable him, acting with ordinary diligence and promptness, to alight with safety before the vehicle is again moved, and a failure in this respect will render the carrier liable for any injury resulting to the passenger,[97] whether the movement of the vehicle is performed

90. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v Banks, 76 So. 472, 16 Ala.App. 188
Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co v Friend, 118 N.E. 598, 70 Ind.App. 366.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Quinn, 219 S.W. 789, 187 Ky. 607.
N.J.—Ploeser v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 105 A. 228, 92 N.J. Law 490—Sullivan v. La Frade, 185 A. 665, 14 N.J.Misc. 482.
Pa.—Chitwood v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 109 A. 645, 266 Pa. 435.
S.C.—Anderson v. Hampton & Branchville R. & Lumber Co., 132 S.E. 47, 134 S.C. 185
Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused.
10 C.J. p 934 note 91.

Mixed trains
A railroad company is required to stop its mixed trains carrying passengers at stations a sufficient length of time to permit passengers to enter and leave, and a failure to do so is negligence.—Witham v. Lusk, Mo.App., 190 S.W. 403.
Time for boarding street cars see infra § 733.

91. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Banks, 76 So. 472, 16 Ala.App. 188.
Ind.—Stradling v. Hahn, 163 N.E. 527, 88 Ind.App. 117—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Friend, 118 N.E. 598, 70 Ind.App. 366.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Quinn, 219 S.W. 789, 187 Ky. 607.
Mo.—May v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 225 S.W. 660, 284 Mo. 508—Witham v. Lusk, App., 190 S.W. 403.
S.C.—Anderson v. Hampton & Branchville R. & Lumber Co., 132 S.E. 47, 134 S.C. 185.
Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused.
10 C.J. p 934 note 92, p 935 note 93.

Conclusion as to care not warranted
That bus driver did not know that a person approaching the bus intended to become passenger would not warrant conclusion driver exercised ordinary care in starting bus while such person was boarding same.—Stradling v. Hahn, 163 N.E. 527, 88 Ind.App. 117.

92. Mo.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Gist, 73 S.W. 857, 31 Tex.Civ.App. 662.
10 C.J. p 935 note 94.

93. La.—Murphy v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 169 So. 890.
Mass.—McRae v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 176 N.E. 773, 276 Mass. 82.
Pa.—Wood v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 170 A. 367, 111 Pa.Super. 430.
Va.—Scott v. Cunningham, 171 S.E. 104, 161 Va. 367.
10 C.J. p 939 note 21
Starting street car before passenger seated see infra § 733.

94. Mo.—Rhodes v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 255 S.W. 1084, 213 Mo.App. 515.
10 C.J. p 939 note 22.

95. Ga.—Gainesville Midland R. Co. v. Jackson, 57 S.E. 1007, 1 Ga.App. 632.

96. N.J.—Haile v. Clayton, etc., Co., 38 A. 805, 61 N.J.Law 197.

97. Ala.—Smith v. Southern Ry. Co., 164 So. 903, 231 Ala. 381.
Ark.—Texarkana & Ft. Smith Ry. Co. v. Adcock, 231 S.W. 866, 149 Ark. 110—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S.W. 561, 148 Ark. 456—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Aydelott, 194 S.W. 873, 128 Ark. 479
Cal.—Vietti v. Hines, 192 P. 80, 48 Cal.App. 266
Fla.—Atlanta & St. A. B. Ry. Co. v. Kelly, 82 So. 57, 77 Fla. 479.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, 280 S.W. 89, 212 Ky. 723—Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. Ry. Co. v. Francis, 220 S.W. 739, 187 Ky. 703.
La.—Guidry v. Morgan's Louisiana & T. R. & S. S. Co., 74 So. 534, 140 La. 1007, L.R.A.1917D 962.
Mich.—Tuttle v. Detroit J. & C. Ry. Co., 159 N.W. 498, 193 Mich. 390
Okl.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Bell, 273 P. 243, 134 Okl. 251.
Or.—Watts v. Spokane, P. & S. Ry. Co., 171 P. 901, 88 Or. 192.
Pa.—Montalini v. Pennsylvania Co., 100 A. 806, 256 Pa. 249.

with ordinary care or negligently,[98] as where the train is merely slowed down and then started up again, with knowledge that a passenger is alighting.[99] Where, however, a reasonable time has been allowed for passengers to alight and the carrier is without knowledge or reason to know of the perilous position of a passenger attempting to alight, it may act on the assumption that he will exercise due care to avoid perilous positions,[1] or that all passengers whose destination is reached have left the cars;[2] and it is not incumbent on it to see that all the passengers have alighted.[3] The fact that a passenger has stepped from a train on to the platform does not terminate the carrier's liability, for it is its duty to prevent any injury to the passenger by the car, although it is not necessary that the train shall be held without moving until the passenger has had time to leave the platform; it is enough if he has had a reasonable opportunity to get beyond danger from the movement of the cars.[4]

Ignorance of passenger's intention to alight. The mere absence of knowledge on the part of a carrier's employee that a passenger intends to alight at a particular place will not excuse the carrier in case a reasonable time is not allowed the passenger so to do.[5]

c. Reasonable Time Dependent on Circumstances

What constitutes a reasonable time to be allowed passengers to board or alight depends on the circumstances surrounding particular cases.

What constitutes a reasonable time for a passenger to board or to alight from a train depends very largely on the circumstances existing at the time, such as the physical ability of the passenger, his encumbrance with luggage, the existence of a crowd on the car or the platform, the darkness of the night with the landing place badly lighted, the difficulties of the place, and the like. It is the duty of the carrier to give a reasonable time under the circumstances as they exist and are known to, or should be known to, the employees in charge of the train.[6] Thus, a longer time than is allowed ordinary passengers may be necessary in the case of children,[7] adults accompanied by small children,[8] persons apparently suffering from a wasting disease, such as tuberculosis,[9] or those who are lame or otherwise infirm.[10] Where a passenger uses ordinary diligence to alight and is injured by the starting of the train, it may be inferred that the time of stoppage was insufficient;[11] but on the other hand, where passengers similarly situated safely leave the car without any accident, it may legitimately be inferred that sufficient time was granted to alight in safety.[12]

§ 730. Moving Train While Passenger Is Boarding or Alighting

Moving a train while a passenger is in the act of boarding or alighting therefrom to the knowledge of the carrier constitutes negligence.

Where a train has been stopped for a reasonable time, the carrier is required to use only ordinary care in thereafter moving it,[13] and if it is not ap-

Tenn.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Powell, 11 Tenn.App. 253—Nashville, C & St. L Ry. v. Buchanan, 7 Tenn Civ A, 56.
Va.—Johnson v. Atlantic Coast Line R Co., 99 S.E. 558, 125 Va. 136.
W.Va.—Bartlett v. Baltimore & O. R Co., 99 S.E. 322, 84 W.Va. 120.
10 C.J. p 935 note 97, p 936 note 1.

98. U.S.—Midland Valley R. Co. v. Page, C.C.Okl., 182 F 125.

99. Cal.—Vietti v. Hines, 192 P. 80, 48 Cal.App 266
10 C.J. p 936 note 99.

1. Ky.—Chesapeake & O. Ry Co. v. Thompson, 270 S.W. 464, 208 Ky. 32.
Mo.—Payne v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 256 S.W. 538.
10 C.J. p 936 note 2.

2. Mo.—Payne v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., supra.
10 C.J. p 936 note 3.

3. Mo.—Payne v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., supra
10 C.J. p 936 note 4.

4. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Ricketts, 37 S.W 952, 18 Ky.L. 687, 52 S.W. 939, 21 Ky.L. 662—Smith v. Louisville City R., 10 Ky. Op. 174.

5. Wis.—Walters v. Chicago, etc., R. Co, 89 N.W. 140, 113 Wis. 367.
10 C.J. p 936 note 6.

6. Ark.—Texarkana & Ft. Smith Ry. Co. v. Adcock, 231 S.W. 866, 149 Ark. 110—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S.W. 561, 148 Ark. 456—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Aydelott, 194 S.W. 873, 128 Ark. 479.
Ind.—Pittsburgh, C, C & St. L Ry. Co v. Friend, 118 N.E. 598, 70 Ind. App 366.
10 C.J. p 937 note 7.

What constitutes reasonable time

A reasonable time within the rule stated in the text is such time as a person of ordinary care and prudence should be allowed to take.—Texarkana & Ft. Smith Ry. Co. v. Adcock, 231 S.W. 866, 149 Ark 110—10 C.J. p 937 note 7 [a].

7. Minn.—Keller v. Sioux City, etc., R. Co., 6 N.W. 486, 27 Minn 178.
Mo.—Ridenhour v. Kansas City Cable R. Co., 13 S.W. 889, 14 S.W. 760, 102 Mo. 270.

8. Ark.—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S. W. 561, 148 Ark. 456.
N.C.—Riggs v. Norfolk-Southern R. Co., 124 S.E. 749, 188 N.C. 366

Family as unit

Where a man becomes a passenger with his wife and little children, he has the supervision of their safety, and they are to be regarded as a unit in so far as affording sufficient time to leave the car is concerned.—Hurt v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 7 S.W 1, 94 Mo. 255, 4 Am.S.R. 374, 7 S.W. 5.

9. Ark.—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S. W. 561, 148 Ark. 456.

10. Iowa.—Mitchell v Des Moines City R. Co, 141 N.W. 43, 161 Iowa 100.
10 C.J. p 937 note 9.

11. Mo.—Cullar v. Missouri, etc., R Co., 84 Mo.App. 340.

12. Mo.—Hurt v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 7 S.W. 1, 94 Mo. 255, 4 Am.S. R. 374, 7 S.W. 5.

13. Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co v. Turner, 77 S.W. 255, 33 Tex. Civ.App. 604.

parent to the carrier's employees that a passenger is either boarding or alighting from the train, the carrier will not ordinarily be liable for an injury resulting from its being started or otherwise moved;[14] but whether or not the train has stopped for a reasonable time, it is negligence to start or otherwise to move it while a passenger, within the actual or constructive knowledge of the employees of the carrier, is in a position of peril in the act of getting on the train or of alighting therefrom,[15] as where they know, or have reason to know, of the infirmity or disability of a passenger, which will require him to take a longer time to board or to alight.[16] This rule applies, although the motion is an ordinary one incident to the operation of the train;[17] it also applies where the passenger's delay in alighting is caused by the carrier's failure to call the station.[18] Any sudden or unnecessary starting or jerking of the train while a passenger is in the act of alighting, which fact the carrier knows, or ought to know, whereby the passenger is injured, renders the carrier liable therefor;[19] this rule also applies to a sudden stopping of the train or car while a passenger is alighting.[20]

§ 731. Care at Places Other than Regular Stopping Places

a. In general

b. Stop after call of station

a. In General

Carriers may be required to exercise due care to protect from injury passengers boarding or alighting from vehicles at places other than regular stopping places.

Where the passenger is attempting to get on board or alight at a place other than a regular stopping place, in pursuance of an express or implied invitation, it is the duty of the carrier to bring the train to a full stop in order to enable him to do so in safety;[21] and if by increasing the speed of the train before it has come to a full stop,[22] or by starting the train or car, when the employees know, or have reason to know, that a passenger is boarding or alighting,[23] the passenger is injured, he may recover for the injuries caused thereby. The duty of a carrier to see that the place at which its vehicle is stopped to pick up or discharge passengers is safe for that purpose, see supra § 723 and infra § 733, is applicable with regard to boarding or alighting passengers at stops other than regular stopping places,[24] the carrier being charged with the duty of knowing whether the place actually selected is of such character;[25] and the carrier is liable for injuries to boarding or alighting passengers as a result of conditions which are more dangerous at the place where the vehicle is stopped than at the regular stopping place.[26] Moreover, where a passenger has been put down at a place other than a regular stopping place, the duty of the 14. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Quinn, 219 S.W. 789, 187 Ky. 607.

Md.—Lambert v. Philadelphia, B & W. R. Co., 125 A. 765, 145 Md. 662.
Pa.—Chitwood v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 109 A. 645, 266 Pa. 435.
10 C.J. p 937 note 14.

15. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Banks, 76 So. 472, 16 Ala. App. 188.
Ark.—Texarkana & Ft. Smith Ry. Co. v. Adcock, 231 S.W. 866, 149 Ark. 110—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S.W. 561, 148 Ark. 456.
Fla.—Atlanta & St. A. B Ry. Co. v. Kelly, 82 So. 57, 77 Fla. 479.
Ky.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 83 S.W.2d 488, 259 Ky. 821.
La.—Nelson v. Vicksburg, S. & P. Ry. Co., 75 So. 212, 141 La. 475
Mo.—May v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 225 S.W. 660, 284 Mo. 508.
Pa.—Hawkins v. Director General of Railroads, 121 A. 46, 277 Pa. 213—Stankowcz v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 62 Pa.Super. 125.
S.C.—Comer v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 90 S.E. 188, 105 S.C. 480.
Tenn.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Powell, 11 Tenn.App. 253
Va.—Johnson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 99 S.E. 558, 125 Va. 136.
W.Va.—Bartlett v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 99 S.E. 322, 84 W.Va. 120.
10 C.J. p 938 note 15.

Passenger warned before signal to start

Trainmen causing train to start when they knew, or should have known, that a passenger is in the act of boarding the train, are negligent even though they have warned passenger before giving the engineer the signal to start the train.—May v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 225 S.W. 660, 284 Mo. 508

16. Ark.—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S.W. 561, 148 Ark. 456.
10 C.J. p 938 note 16.

Tubercular person
Ark.—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S.W. 561, 148 Ark. 456.

17. Tenn.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Powell, 11 Tenn.App. 253.
10 C.J. p 938 note 17.

18. Ky.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Robinson, 123 S.W. 308, 135 Ky. 850.

19. Mo.—Patterson v. Lusk, App., 196 S.W. 65.
10 C.J. p 938 note 19, p 973 note 66.

20. Mass.—Comerford v. New York, etc., R. Co., 63 N.E. 936, 181 Mass. 528.

21. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Cantrell, 37 Ark. 519.
10 C.J. p 940 note 34

22. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. McVey, 114 N.E. 438, 185 Ind. 693.
10 C.J. p 940 note 35.

23. Ill.—See Aur v. East St. Louis Ry. Co., 194 Ill.App. 193
Mich.—Stahl v. Southern Michigan Ry. Co., 178 N.W. 710, 211 Mich. 350
10 C.J. p 940 note 36.

24. Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 638—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 533
Mo.—Watts v. Fleming, 298 S.W. 107, 221 Mo.App. 1123.
Ohio—Cincinnati Street Ry. Co. v. Mueller, 200 N.E. 770, 51 Ohio App. 314.
Va.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Taylor, 132 S.E. 334, 144 Va. 496
10 C.J. p 913 note 39.

25. Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 638—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 533.

Corpus Juris text is cited with approval in Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 869, 212 Ala. 638

26. Ark.—Davis v. Kelly, 237 S.W. 698, 152 Ark. 151.
Ga.—Georgia R. & Banking Co. v.

carrier to provide for his safety has been held to continue until he has proceeded to a point where he has some freedom of locomotion and can in a measure look out for his own safety.[27] Where a passenger is put down in a place short of or beyond his station, he may be entitled to recover for injuries received while attempting, with due care, to reach his destination,[28] unless his being so put down is caused by his own fault,[29] or unless he is put off at a proper place, and the carrier is not guilty of negligence.[30] A carrier stopping short of or beyond the point at which it knows that a passenger desires to alight should, at least, give him notice of that fact before he attempts to leave the vehicle.[31] Rules as to opportunity and time to be allowed passengers for boarding or alighting from trains or cars, see supra §§ 729, 730, infra § 733, and as to the signal for starting the train or car are, likewise, applicable where the train or car is stopped for taking on or discharging passengers at other than its regular or usual stopping place,[32] even though the conductor exceeds his authority and vio-

Brooks, 119 S.E. 424, 30 Ga.App. 692.

La.—Hamilton v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 85 So. 611, 147 La. 616—Johnston v. City of Monroe, App., 147 So. 519.

Mo.—Payne v. Davis, 252 S.W. 57, 298 Mo. 645—Watts v. Fleming, 298 S.W. 107, 221 Mo.App. 1123.

Pa.—Miller v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 138 A. 89, 290 Pa. 130.

Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Woodall, Com.App., 207 S.W. 84, reversing, Civ.App., 159 S.W. 1012.

Va.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Taylor, 132 S.E. 334, 144 Va. 496.

10 C.J. p. 915 note 46 [a].

Place poorly lighted

Where a carrier might have selected a less dangerous and better lighted place to stop its car in order to permit a passenger to alight and transfer to another car at the other end of an incompleted piece of track, the company was held to be liable for injuries sustained by an alighting passenger as a result of being struck by an automobile being driven recklessly and without lights near the place where the car was stopped.—Watts v. Fleming, 298 S.W. 107, 221 Mo.App. 1123.

Cattle guard covered with snow

Where street car passes regular stopping place and stops on private right of way so that entrance gates open on cattle guards covered with snow, the company owes those invited to enter the high degree of care required for protection of passengers.—Richey v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 160 N.W. 188, 135 Minn. 54.

High step or rough ground

(1) When a railroad company fails to provide such facilities, or, because of heavy increase in business or a desire to operate their trains more economically, passengers are forced to alight away from regular receiving platforms, the company will be held liable for accidents occurring, if the place to alight is unsafe, either from a step too high or because the ground is covered with cobblestones or from other defects.—Miller v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 138 A. 89, 290 Pa. 130.

(2) Accordingly the company was held to be liable for injuries sustained by a female passenger as a result of being forced to alight at a place where the step was thirty inches high and the ground was covered with cobblestones and rock ballast.—Miller v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., supra.

(3) The decisions as to the duty of street railway companies in relation to the height of steps do not control since railroads own their right of way and can make their own landing places while street railways are only allowed the use of public highways in common with other vehicles.—Miller v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., supra.

(4) 'The ground on which they alight should be such as to fairly permit safe walking'"—Miller v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., supra.

Stopping over bridge

Where a train was brought to a stop at a station in such manner that a platform of the car in which an alighting passenger was riding extended over a bridge, through which the passenger fell on alighting, the carrier was held to be liable for the injuries sustained.—Hamilton v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 85 So. 611, 147 La. 616.

Assuming car stopped at regular place

Where a passenger, who was injured in stepping on a curb while alighting at a place other than the regular stopping place, thought that the car was stopped at the regular stopping place, which was a smooth pavement, and where he had previously boarded the car, and he was not informed or warned otherwise by the motorman, the carrier was held to be liable.—Johnston v. City of Monroe, La.App., 147 So. 519.

Contractual obligation immaterial

Whether carrier was under contractual obligation to allow passenger to alight where he did is immaterial, as regards liability for injury, where he was rightfully on the train, and alighted from it, where it had stopped at a point other than the station platform, at conductor's invitation.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Woodall, Tex.Com.App., 207 S.W. 84, reversing, Civ.App., 159 S.W. 1012.

Stopping distance from crossing

Where trains were customarily stopped at a highway crossing which was comparatively level and safe, stopping several car lengths from the crossing, requiring a passenger to walk over rough uneven ground, slippery with ice, whereby she slipped and fell into a ditch in attempting to board a train, was held to be negligence rendering the carrier liable.—Davis v. Olson, C.C.A.Minn., 298 F. 921.

27. Ga.—Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Brooks, 119 S.E. 424, 30 Ga.App. 692.

Stepping into steam pit

Where by reason of the limited space in the passageway which he was required to use in making his way from the train to the station, an alighting passenger was injured when he stepped into a steam pit, the carrier was held to be liable, under the rule stated in the text.—Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Brooks, 119 S.E. 424, 30 Ga.App. 692.

28. Mo.—Gatt v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 222 S.W. 827—Irby v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 82 S.W. 2d 118.

10 C.J. 941 note 38.

Falling on trestle

Where passenger, after alighting from street car in nighttime on motorman's assurance that she was at destination which in fact was one stop distant, continued along track toward destination and was injured when she fell on trestle, the company was held liable.—Irby v. St. Louis Public Service Co., Mo.App., 82 S.W. 2d 118.

29. Miss.—Wilson v. New Orleans, etc., R. Co., 8 So. 330, 68 Miss. 9.

Pa.—Fisher v. Paxson, 38 A. 407, 182 Pa. 457.

10 C.J. p. 941 note 39.

30. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Maxwell, Civ.App., 130 S.W. 722.

31. Pa.—O'Malley v. Laurel Line Bus Co., 166 A. 868, 311 Pa. 251.

32. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern lates the rules of the carrier in so stopping the train or car.[33] Where a passenger, unknown to the carrier, alights or falls from a train at a point other than a regular stopping place, the carrier may be under a duty to see that he is not injured.[34] If the train or other vehicle is stopped, not for the purpose of allowing passengers to get on board or alight, care must be taken to avoid injury to passengers who may be misled as to the place of stoppage being the proper one for those purposes.[35] With reference to this matter it is important to know whether there has been an express or an implied invitation to the passenger to get on board or alight at such place, and if such invitation has been given, the duty is involved of using care with reference to passengers who attempt to comply with the invitation,[36] and this rule applies, although the train stops at a station for a reasonable length of time to enable the passenger to get off, but he neglects to do so, and it again stops at another place for him to alight;[37] and the fact that a passenger in such a case fails to demand a return of the car or train to the platform does not cast on him the danger incident to getting off, if he does not know that the alighting place is dangerous.[38]

If a passenger enters or leaves a train or car at a place not intended for getting on board or alighting, without any invitation or direction so to do, he cannot recover for injuries resulting from the unsafe character of the place,[39] and the mere failure to stop a train at the usual stopping place may not be sufficient to indicate negligence on the part of the carrier.[40] A fortiori the mere fact of stopping a street car at a place other than a regular stopping place may not constitute negligence of the carrier as regards a passenger who is injured as he alights therefrom,[41] notwithstanding the conditions at the place where the car is stopped are not precisely similar to those at the regular stopping place,[42] particularly in the absence of any showing that the place where passengers are required to alight is inherently dangerous,[43] or where there

R. Co. v. Siniard, 26 So. 689, 123 Ala. 557.
10 C.J. p 939 note 28.

33. Tex.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Elliott, 61 S.W. 726, 26 Tex.Civ.App 106.

34. Me.—Mahan v. Hines, 115 A. 132, 120 Me. 371.

Brakeman's report sufficient compliance

Where an intoxicated passenger negligently gets off or falls off at a semaphore stop, the brakeman's reporting at the station stop practically at the time notice was first brought to him is a sufficient compliance with the carrier's duty to look out for his safety.—Mahan v. Hines, 115 A. 132, 120 Me. 371.

35. Pa.—O'Malley v. Laurel Line Bus Co., 166 A. 858, 311 Pa. 251.
Wis.—Larson v. Green Bay & W. R. Co., 192 N.W. 63, 179 Wis. 510.
10 C.J. p 940 note 30.

36. Minn.—Kral v. Burlington, etc., R. Co., 74 N.W. 166, 71 Minn. 422.
Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Missildine, Civ.App., 157 S.W. 245.
10 C.J. p 940 note 31.

37. Minn.—Kral v. Burlington, etc., R. Co., 74 N.W. 166, 71 Minn. 422.

38. Mo.—Fillingham v. St. Louis Transit Co., 77 S.W. 314, 102 Mo. App. 573.

39. Iowa.—Chesley v. Waterloo, C. F. & N. R. Co., 176 N.W. 961, 188 Iowa 1004, 12 A.L.R. 1366.
Mass.—Bush v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 123 N.E. 613, 232 Mass. 593.
10 C.J. p 914 note 42, p 915 note 47, p 945 note 67.

40. Mich.—Porter v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 44 N.W. 1054, 80 Mich. 156, 20 Am.S.R. 511.
10 C.J. p 940 note 30 [a].

41. La.—Clogher v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 78 So. 247, 143 La. 85—Freeman v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 1 La.App. 600.
N.Y.—Krupnick v. Branikowski, 284 N.Y.S. 407, 246 App.Div. 782, reversed on other grounds 3 N.E.2d 210, 271 N.Y. 612.
Pa.—Scherer v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 145 A. 76, 295 Pa. 199—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co., 138 A. 852, 290 Pa. 365.
Wash.—Carter v. Spokane United Rys., 288 P. 247, 157 Wash. 166.

Reasons for rule; railroad case distinguished

(1) "Street railway companies do not have fixed stopping places, and cannot be expected to come to a stand with exactness each time at the same point where passengers are discharged . . . differing in this respect from railroad companies which provide regular platforms for stoppage."—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co., 138 A. 852, 855, 290 Pa. 365.

(2) The practical operation of any other rule would be to necessitate the marking of the space constituting the regular stopping place, and to preclude the stopping elsewhere, unless the car company choose voluntarily to incur the risk of a lawsuit. A tardy signal for stopping would have to pass unheeded, with the consequence that many a passenger would be carried beyond his station. On days of rain and slippery tracks the car would have to approach a stopping place gingerly, with bated breath, as it were, lest it be not precise in making the stop. Perhaps such a rule would suit the car company, but certainly not the traveling public.—Clogher v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 78 So. 247, 143 La. 85—Freeman v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 1 La.App. 600.

42. La.—Clogher v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 78 So. 247, 143 La. 85—Freeman v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 1 La.App. 600.

Darkness of night and rain

Where there is sufficient artificial light to enable the passenger to see the conditions, and in the absence of any contention that the landing place was wet or slippery or otherwise affected by rain falling at the time the injury is sustained, the mere fact that it was at night and raining is immaterial.—Freeman v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 1 La.App. 600.

Higher step

That the step from the car step to the ground is slightly higher at the place where the car is stopped than at the regular stopping place does not, without more, constitute negligence.—Clogher v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 78 So. 247, 143 La. 85—Freeman v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 1 La.App. 600.

43. Ky.—Tinnell v. Louisville Ry. Co., 62 S.W.2d 467, 65 S.W.2d 469, 250 Ky. 245—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Saxton, 298 S.W. 1105, 221 Ky. 427.

Injury by automobile

Where because of some trouble with a street car's motor, the conductor directed the passengers to alight at a place other than a regular stopping place, the company is not liable for injuries sustained by is no reason to anticipate harm to the passenger by reason of his alighting at the place where the car is stopped;[44] nor does the opening of the door of a car stopped at a place other than a regular stopping place constitute negligence as regards a passenger who is injured as he alights from the car.[45] A carrier's custom of stopping at a particular point will not, without more, indicate negligence for failure to stop at such precise point on the occasion when an alighting passenger is injured.[46] The general rule that a street railway company is not ordinarily liable for injuries to passengers boarding, or alighting from, its cars when such injuries are caused by obvious street dangers, see infra § 733, applies to injuries sustained by passengers while boarding or alighting from street cars stopped at places other than regular stopping places.[47] Therefore, a street railway carrier is not ordinarily liable for injuries to such passengers arising from the operation of other vehicles in the street.[48] Where the carrier does not know, or have reason to know, that a passenger is in a dangerous position in boarding or alighting, it is not negligence to move the train or car while he is in such position,[49] or suddenly to start a street car as a passenger is in the act of alighting at a place where the car happens to be stopped other than a regular stopping place.[50] This is particularly true where it does not appear that the cars of the company ever stopped for the purpose of permitting passengers to alight at such place.[51] Neither may a carrier be liable for injuries sustained by a passenger in alighting, without notice to the carrier, from a moving train at a point other than a regular stopping place,[52] nor for injuries sustained by a boarding passenger as a result of ordinary jerks or jars, where the person injured enters the train without notice or invitation at a point where the carrier is not accustomed to receive passengers.[53]

Degree of care. The high degree of care which an alighting passenger when struck by a passing automobile—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Saxton, 298 S.W. 1105, 221 Ky. 427.

44. Pa.—Scherer v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 145 A. 76, 295 Pa. 199—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co., 138 A. 852, 290 Pa. 365.
Wash.—Carter v. Spokane United Rys, 288 P. 247, 157 Wash. 166.

"Obviously dangerous place"

"The controversy hinges on the question as to whether the car stopped at an obviously dangerous place" —Scherer v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 145 A. 76, 295 Pa. 199

45. Kan.—Miller v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 15 P.2d 453, 136 Kan. 288.
Wash.—Carter v. Spokane United Rys., 288 P. 247, 157 Wash. 166.

Car stopped by traffic

Where a street car was stopped within a block because of other cars ahead and as a passenger rose and stepped forward to alight, the motorman opened the door for her to do so, the opening of the door was not negligence as regards injuries sustained by the passenger as she alighted.—Miller v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 15 P.2d 453, 136 Kan. 288.

Opening door of moving car

The opening of the door of a moving street car by the motorman at a place not designated as a stopping point is not negligence proximately contributing to cause the injuries received by a passenger on alighting from the moving car, and the street railway company is not liable for such injuries.—Kahlfeldt v. Busby, 272 Ill.App. 469.

46. Miss.—Dantzler Shipbuilding & Dry Docks Co. v. Hurley, 81 So. 163, 119 Miss. 473, 4 A.L.R. 1487, suggestion of error denied 81 So. 406.

47. Iowa.—Chesley v. Waterloo, C., F. & N. R. Co., 176 N.W. 961, 188 Iowa 1004, 12 A.L.R. 1366.
Minn.—Fox v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 251 N.W. 916, 190 Minn. 343.

48. Ill.—Kahlfeldt v. Busby, 272 Ill. App. 469.
Iowa.—Chesley v. Waterloo, C., F. & N. R. Co., 176 N.W. 961, 188 Iowa 1004, 12 A.L.R. 1366.
Kan.—Miller v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 15 P.2d 453, 136 Kan. 288.
Minn.—Fox v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 251 N.W. 916, 190 Minn. 343.
Wash.—Carter v. Spokane United Rys., 288 P. 247, 157 Wash. 166.

Passenger struck by automobile

Ill.—Kahlfeldt v. Busby, 272 Ill.App. 469.
Kan.—Miller v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 15 P.2d 453, 136 Kan. 288.
Wash.—Carter v. Spokane United Rys., 288 P. 247, 157 Wash. 166.

49. Md.—Lambert v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 125 A. 765, 145 Md. 662.
10 C.J. p. 941 note 37.

Backing up to water tank

Where it does not appear that the employees of a railroad knew that anyone was attempting to board its train, the railroad company did not fail to perform any duty owed a passenger by running its train a few feet by a water tank and then backing up, although he was accustomed to board the mail car at the tank, and was injured while boarding it when the train backed.—Lambert v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 125 A. 765, 145 Md. 662.

50. Mass.—Bush v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 123 N.E. 613, 232 Mass. 593.

Starting without bell

Motorman stopping car at other than regular stopping place was not negligent in starting without bell from conductor, in the absence of notice or knowledge that anyone was alighting.—Bush v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 123 N.E. 613, 232 Mass. 593.

No invitation to alight

That other passengers alighted from the car in front of one who was injured while attempting to do so was not, without more, sufficient to show an invitation to alight at the place in question.—Bush v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 123 N.E. 613, 232 Mass. 593.

51. Mass.—Bush v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., supra.

52. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitaker, 300 S.W. 912, 222 Ky. 302.

Sale of ticket as notice

Sale of ticket to the place where the injury occurred was not notice that passenger, injured in alighting from moving train thereat, would take such train.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitaker, 300 S.W. 912, 222 Ky. 302.

That many trains stop at the place where the injury occurred was immaterial in action for injuries in alighting from moving train thereat.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitaker, 300 S.W. 912, 222 Ky. 302.

Flag station

Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitaker, 300 S.W. 912, 222 Ky. 302.

53. W.Va.—Raines v. Chesapeake, is usually required of carriers as regards passengers boarding or alighting from its vehicles, see supra § 723, has been held to be required of carriers with respect to passengers alighting at places other than regular stopping places;[54] and it has been held that, notwithstanding a stop is made at the particular place at a passenger's request, the carrier is bound to exercise the highest degree of care for his safety in alighting,[55] and this especially where the carrier has been in the custom of stopping its cars there to receive or discharge passengers, although it is not a regular stopping place.[56] It has also been held that, if for some proper reason the passenger is required or allowed to leave or to take the train at a place not the customary stopping place, what is required of the carrier is care with respect to his doing so, and the question of approaches is not involved.[57]

b. Stop after Call of Station

A carrier may be liable where a passenger is injured while alighting from a vehicle which is stopped at a place other than a regular stopping place after the announcement of the passenger's station.

The announcement of the name of a station or other regular stopping place being usually intended to inform passengers that the train or car is approaching their destination, so that they may prepare to get off when the train or car stops, is not of itself an invitation to alight;[58] nor does such announcement of itself constitute an act of negligence toward a passenger who is injured in thereupon attempting to alight.[59] If the train or car is soon thereafter brought to a full stop, a passenger may safely conclude that it has arrived at the station or other regular stopping place, and, particularly under statutes requiring that stations be announced, he is justified in attempting to get off, unless he is warned or unless the surroundings and circumstances are such as would show to a reasonably careful and prudent man that the train or car has not reached the proper stopping place; and if by alighting he is injured without any fault on his part the carrier will be liable.[60] There is no duty, however, of warning passengers not to get off when the train is stopped for other purposes, where no station has been called and there are no attendant circumstances calculated to induce a passenger to conclude that the stop is at the usual and proper stopping place.[61]

§ 732. Care as to Persons Not Passengers

Usually a carrier is required to exercise ordinary care to avoid injury to persons other than passengers who go to meet them or to see them off.

One who according to custom goes on a train or a street car to assist a passenger in entering or leaving such train is an invitee or a licensee,[62] and, although the carrier does not owe him the same degree of care that it owes to a passenger,[63] it does owe him ordinary care for his safety and protection while he is entering the car, while he is in it, and while he is leaving it;[64] and especially is there such a duty where a passenger requires assistance which etc., R. Co., 70 S.E. 711, 68 W.Va 694, 33 L.R.A.,N.S., 583.

54. Mo.—Gott v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 222 S.W. 827.

55. Ill.—West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Buckley, 102 Ill.App. 314, affirmed 65 N.E. 708, 200 Ill. 260.

56. Ill.—Chicago City R. Co. v. Lowitz, 119 Ill.App. 360, affirmed 75 N.E. 755, 218 Ill. 24
Or.—Devroe v. Portland R., etc., Co., 131 P. 304, 64 Or. 547.

57. Ga.—Central R. Co. v. Thompson, 76 Ga. 770.
10 C.J. p 914 note 43.

Safe return to platform and egress therefrom

If a passenger is carried beyond a station and required to alight at an unusual place and in darkness, the carrier may be required to exercise such a degree of care as is reasonably necessary to secure his safe return to the platform, and egress therefrom in the usual way.—Payne v. Davis, 252 S.W. 57, 293 Mo. 645.

58. N.Y.—Mearns v. Central R. Co., 57 N.E. 292, 163 N.Y. 108, reversing 48 N.Y.S. 366, 23 App.Div. 298.
10 C.J. p 941 note 41.

59. Ga.—Blitch v. Central R. Co., 76 Ga. 333.
Ky.—Gayle v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 173 S.W. 1113, 163 Ky. 459

60. Ala.—Franklin v. Southern Ry. Co., 72 So. 11, 196 Ala. 118.
La.—Nelson v. Vicksburg, S. & P. Ry. Co., 75 So. 212, 141 La. 475
Wis.—Larson v. Green Bay & W. R. Co., 192 N.W. 63, 179 Wis. 510.
10 C.J. p 941 note 42.

Informing passenger of situation

Where a train was stopped at a switch, a flagman who was present under circumstances leading him to believe that a female passenger who was about to alight was not aware that the train was not at its regular stopping place, should inform her of the situation, especially where the ground at the place where the train was stopped was rough and unsafe —Franklin v. Southern Ry. Co., 72 So. 11, 196 Ala. 118

61. Me.—Ouellette v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 76 A. 280, 106 Me. 153, 138 Am.S.R. 340.
10 C.J. p 942 note 44.

62. U.S.—Lowden v. McClung, C.C.A. Ark., 80 F.2d 694
Ala.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Davis, 137 So. 525, 223 Ala. 600
Kan.—Cannon v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co., 167 P. 1050, 101 Kan. 363, L.R.A.1918A 559
Md.—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md. 621.
N.Y.—Barrett v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 176 N.Y.S. 590, 188 App.Div. 109.
Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Brooks, 179 P. 924, 72 Okl. 208.
10 C.J. p 942 note 45.

63. Ala.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Davis, 137 So. 525, 223 Ala. 600
Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Brooks, 179 P. 924, 72 Okl. 208.
10 C.J. p 942 note 46.

64. Ala.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Davis, 137 So. 525, 223 Ala. 600
Kan.—Cannon v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co., 167 P. 1050, 101 Kan. 363, L.R.A.1918A 559.
Mo.—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 50 S.W.2d 122—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 3 S.W.2d 371, 319 Mo. 233.
N.Y.—Barrett v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 176 N.Y.S. 590, 188 App.Div. 109.

the employees of the carrier do not undertake to render,[65] or where the conductor of the train requests a third person to assist a passenger.[66] One who goes to meet incoming trains for the purpose of performing services for the mutual benefit of such person on one side, and the carrier and arriving passengers on the other, is also held to be an invitee of the carrier, which owes to him a duty of ordinary care not to injure him.[67]

Persons not rendering assistance. Persons other than passengers who are at stations for the purpose of greeting incoming friends or relatives are held to be invitees or licensees[68] for whose safety the carrier is required to exercise ordinary care.[69] It has likewise been held that persons who go to a train to see their friends off are invitees or licensees[70] and the carrier must exercise ordinary care to protect them from injury;[71] but it has also been held that the rule which requires that carriers use due care to avoid injury to persons other than passengers, who come to assist boarding or alighting passengers, does not apply to one who goes on a carrier's cars merely on private business, or for the purpose of meeting and greeting friends or relatives, and with no idea or purpose of rendering any assistance to passengers,[72] and that a custom on the part of the carrier, however long continued, to permit such practice does not entitle such persons to any higher protection than that due to naked licensees.[73] Similarly it has been held that ordinary negligence is not sufficient to impose liability on a carrier for injuries to one who goes to a station to see friends off.[74]

Opportunity and time for alighting. Where the purpose of a person, not a passenger, in entering a train or street car to assist a passenger is known to the conductor or other employee in charge of the train, it is the duty of the carrier to give him a reasonable opportunity and time to render such assistance and leave the vehicle.[75] The carrier may also be required to give persons who board a train to see their friends off a reasonable opportunity to fulfill that purpose and to alight from the train;[76] but if the purpose of a person, who boards a train to as-

Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Brooks, 179 P. 924, 72 Okl. 208.
Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Watts, 216 S.W. 391, 110 Tex. 106, reversing, Civ.App., 173 S.W. 909.
10 C.J. p. 942 note 47.

65. Ark.—Little Rock, etc., R. Co. v. Lawton, 18 S.W. 543, 55 Ark. 428, 29 Am.S.R. 48, 15 L.R.A. 434.
10 C.J. p. 943 note 48.

66. Ky.—Bishop v. Illinois, etc., R. Co., 77 S.W. 1099, 25 Ky.L. 1363.
10 C.J. p. 943 note 49.

67. Mass.—Fournier v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 189 N.E. 574, 286 Mass. 7, 92 A.L.R. 610.
N.D.—Daugherty v. Davis, 187 N.W. 616, 48 N.D. 883.

68. Md.—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md. 621.
Va.—Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. Parrish, 89 S.E. 923, 119 Va. 670.

Not trespasser or bare licensee

"The custom of friends and relatives to accompany to the station persons leaving by train, for the purpose of assisting or of comforting them, or merely as a mark of friendly interest and affection, as well as the custom of friends and relations going to the station for like reasons to meet persons coming in, is so uniform, universal, and long-standing, and is so much a part and parcel of the business of carrying passengers, and has been so uniformly acquiesced in for so long by the carrier, that it would be absurd to regard a person coming to a railroad station to meet an incoming friend or relation either as a trespasser or a bare licensee to whom the carrier owes no duty but that of refraining from wanton or willful negligence"—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 131, 137 Md. 621

69. Md.—Jackson v. Hines, supra.
Va.—Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. Parrish, 89 S.E. 923, 119 Va. 670.

70. Neb.—Leon v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 167 N.W. 787, 102 Neb. 537, L.R.A.1918F 313.
Okl.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Stacy, 171 P. 870, 77 Okl. 165
S.C.—Richardson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 98 S.E. 132, 111 S.C. 359.
Tex.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bailey, Civ.App., 186 S.W. 230, error dismissed.

Attending shipment of corpse

Person going upon railway station platform to accompany others to a train and to attend to shipment of remains of relative of passengers and friend of such person is upon premises by implied invitation of railroad.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Stacy, 171 P. 870, 77 Okl. 165

71. Neb.—Leon v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 167 N.W. 787, 102 Neb. 537, L.R.A.1918F 313.
Okl.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Stacy, 171 P. 870, 77 Okl. 165.
S.C.—Richardson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 98 S.E. 132, 111 S.C. 359.

72. Ark.—Arkansas, etc., R. Co. v. Sain, 119 S.W. 659, 90 Ark. 278, 22 L.R.A.,N.S., 910.
10 C.J. p. 943 note 50.

73. Ark.—Arkansas, etc., R. Co. v. Sain, supra.

74. Kan.—Senning v. Arkansas Valley Interurban Ry. Co., 165 P. 863, 101 Kan. 78.

Warning that car was to start

Where it did not appear that a carrier's employees should have anticipated that a moving car would have struck one who, while at a station to see friends off, had gone into a space between the platform and the car to recover a lost coin, the carrier was not liable for failing to give a warning that the car was to start.—Senning v. Arkansas Valley Interurban Ry. Co., 165 P. 863, 101 Kan. 78.

75. U.S.—Lowden v. McClung, C.C.A. Ark., 80 F.2d 694
Ala.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Davis, 137 So. 525, 223 Ala. 600.
Kan.—Cannon v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 167 P. 1050, 101 Kan. 363, L.R.A.1918A. 559.
Mo.—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 50 S.W.2d 122.—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 3 S.W.2d 371, 319 Mo. 233.
N.Y.—Barrett v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 176 N.Y.S. 590, 188 App.Div. 109.
Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Brooks, 179 P. 924, 72 Okl. 208.
Tex.—Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Lynch, 208 S.W. 714.
10 C.J. p. 943 note 51.

Statutory signal

Duty was owing party assisting passengers with conductor's knowledge to give statutory signal for departure and opportunity thereafter to leave train.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Davis, 137 So. 525, 223 Ala. 600.

76. Neb.—Leon v. Chicago, B. & Q.

sist or see a passenger off, is not known, and there are no circumstances to put the carrier on notice, the carrier is not bound to hold the train until he has had time to alight, or to notify him before the train starts,[77] and it has been held that the carrier is not bound to use ordinary diligence to ascertain the purpose of such person.[78] If in such a case the train starts before such person can get off, he must either remain on the train until he can make known his wish to get off[79] or take the risk of alighting while the train is in motion,[80] unless the carrier has misled him by a false appearance of safety or put him under compulsion with respect to leaving the train.[81] It has been held, however, that, if the train has not stopped long enough to allow such person a reasonable opportunity to alight, it should be again stopped for that purpose,[82] although a carrier is not liable for injuries sustained in jumping from the train as it was moving in the absence of a request that it be stopped.[83] It has been held, however, that even though the carrier does not know of such person's intention to get off, he is entitled to the protection of having the train remain at the station for the customary length of time,[84] or for the length of time prescribed by statute.[85] There is, nevertheless, authority to the effect that, as regards such person, it is not necessary that the train be held for the full length of time usually required for passengers to alight, but only long enough to enable him to alight on notice to the trainmen of his desire so to do.[86]

§ 733. Street Car Cases

a. In general
b. Operation of vehicle and appliances generally
c. Duty to select safe place for boarding and alighting
d. Time for boarding or alighting in general
e. Starting car before passenger seated
f. Starting car while passenger boarding or alighting
g. Starting up car before stopping
h. Seeing that passengers have reached place of safety

a. In General

The carrier is required to exercise a high degree of care to avoid injury to passengers boarding or alighting from street cars.

As may be observed from preceding sections of this title, see supra §§ 723–732, general rules applicable to taking up and setting down passengers are applicable to street cars. However, since the peculiar conditions under which street cars are operated often call for the application of these rules under circumstances which do not exist as to other types of vehicles, rules relating to the carrier's care and liability for injuries to passengers boarding or alighting from street cars, not specifically treated in such preceding sections, are discussed in this section.

In accordance with the ordinary rule that carriers must exercise the highest degree of care to avoid injury to passengers boarding or alighting from the vehicles of such carriers, see supra § 723, it is held to be the duty of the employees in charge of street cars to exercise toward every passenger boarding or alighting from a car that high degree of care which prudent persons engaged in the operation of cars exercise for the safety of passengers under like circumstances;[87] but this degree of care is not in

R. Co., 167 N.W. 787, 102 Neb. 537, L.R.A.1918F 313.

77. Ala.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Watson, 110 So. 316, 215 Ala. 254.
Pa.—Kohler v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 157 A. 618, 305 Pa. 249.
10 C.J. p 944 note 52.

Attendant to ascertain purpose
Railroad is not obliged to have attendant near to receive notice of person's intention to board train to assist passenger and alight at same station—Kohler v Pennsylvania R Co., 157 A. 618, 305 Pa. 249.

78. Pa.—Kohler v. Pennsylvania R. Co., supra.
10 C.J. p 944 note 53.

79. Ga.—Coleman v. Georgia, R., etc., Co., 10 S.E. 498, 84 Ga. 1
Ky.—Parks v Kentucky Cent. R. Co., 3 Ky.L. 691, 11 Ky.Op. 552.

80. Ky.—Berry v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 60 S.W. 699, 109 Ky. 727, 22 Ky.L. 1410
10 C.J. p 944 note 55.

81. Ohio—Lake Shore, etc., R. Co v. Dallet, 35 Ohio Cir.Ct. 606, affirmed 89 N.E. 1118, 80 Ohio St. 735.

82. S.C.—Johnson v. Southern R. Co., 31 S.E. 212, 53 S.C. 203, 69 Am. S.R. 849.
Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v Churchill, Civ.App., 171 S.W. 517

83. Tex.—Ft. Worth & D.C.R. Co. v. Allen, Civ.App., 179 S.W. 62.

84. Tex.—Ft. Worth, etc., R. Co. v Abbott, Civ.App., 170 S.W. 117—Texas Cent. R. Co. v Hutchingson, 132 S.W. 509, 62 Tex.Civ.App. 536

85. Minn.—Street v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 145 N.W. 746, 124 Minn. 517.

86. Ark.—Little Rock, etc., R. Co. v. Lawton, 18 S.W. 543, 55 Ark. 428, 29 Am.S.R. 48, 15 L.R.A. 434

87. Ark.—Beach v. Eureka Traction Co., 203 S.W. 834, 135 Ark. 542.
See Ill.—Appel v Alton, G. & St. L. Traction Co., 207 Ill.App. 562
Iowa.—Fitzgerald v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 207 N.W. 602, 201 Iowa 1302.
N.C.—Woods v. North Carolina Public Service Co., 94 S.E. 459, 174 N.C. 697, 1 A.L.R. 942.
Ohio.—Mahoning & S. Ry. & Light Co. v. Leedy, 136 N.E. 198, 104 Ohio St. 487.
Wash.—Gilson v Washington Water Power Co., 161 P. 352, 93 Wash. 480.
10 C.J. p 945 note 64.

Duty absolute
Duty of street railroad to persons promptly boarding car at regular its application to all persons always the same, as what would be sufficient care as to one person might not be sufficient as to another.[88] Street railway companies are not, however, as regards passengers boarding or alighting from street cars, insurers of safety;[89] nor is a street railway company, as regards such passengers, required to guard against what cannot be reasonably expected,[90] but may assume that they will exercise ordinary precautions for their own safety,[91] and may assume that third persons will not endanger an alighting passenger by violating an applicable statute.[92]

In the absence of actual notice of the incapacity of a passenger to look out for his own safety when alighting from a street car, the carrier owes to him no higher degree of care than to other passengers.[93]

Extent and duration of care. In accordance with the rule that one becomes a passenger on a street car at the moment that he puts his foot on the step of the car in boarding the same with the intention of becoming a passenger, see supra § 557, a street railway company as carrier has from that moment the duty of exercising due care in protecting such boarding passenger from injury;[94] but on a passenger's reaching a place of apparent safety after alighting from a street car the carrier's duty of due care toward him as a passenger is at an end.[95] Of course, where the elements of danger from which injury results to a passenger alighting from a street car are within the control of the carrier, its duty toward such passenger does not end until he has reasonable opportunity to pass beyond the zone of danger created by these conditions.[96]

When rules as to steam railroads apply. Where a street railroad operates its tracks beyond the limits of the city through uneven, open country, it is governed by the rules regulating steam railroads as to the receipt and discharge of passengers.[97]

Prospective passengers waiting to board cars. In accordance with the duty owed by a street railroad company toward pedestrians on or near its tracks, see C.J.S. title Street Railroads § 245, also 60 C.J. p 441 note 30–p 442 note 39, in approaching a place where the presence of prospective passengers waiting to board the car may be expected, the stops is absolute. — Birmingham Electric Co. v. Cleveland, 113 So. 403, 216 Ala. 455.

Holder of a transfer boarding a street car is not entitled to any higher degree of care on the part of the carrier than is due to other boarding passengers.—Carey v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 3 La. App. 217.

88. Ky.—Louisville R. Co. v. Wilder, 136 S.W. 892, 143 Ky. 436.
10 C.J. p 945 note 65.

89. La.—Smith v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 91 So. 514, 150 La. 1070.
N.Y.—Weiser v. Dry Dock E B & B. R. Co., 188 N.Y.S 856

90. Cal.—Northrup v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 47 P.2d 365, 8 Cal. App 2d 189.
10 C.J. p 945 note 66.

91. La.—Smith v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 91 So 514, 150 La. 1070—Gaisser v New Orleans Public Service, 6 La.App. 139.
Pa.—Tomey v. West Penn Rys. Co., 150 A. 612, 300 Pa. 189.

92. Ind.—Terre Haute, I. & E. Traction Co. v. Evans, 161 N.E. 671, 87 Ind.App. 324.

Automobile passing car

Where a street car is stopped to discharge passengers at a point which would not permit an automobile to pass such car in compliance with a statute prohibiting automobiles from passing cars stopped for such purpose within a lateral distance of a prescribed number of feet, the motorman might properly assume that an automobile which had been going in the same direction would not so pass in violation of the statute and to the injury of an alighting passenger. — Terre Haute, I. & E Traction Co. v. Evans, 161 N.E. 671, 87 Ind.App. 324.

93. Wash.—Welsh v. Spokane & I. E. R. Co., 157 P. 679, 91 Wash. 260, L.R.A.1916F 484.

Intoxicated passenger

Wash.—Welsh v. Spokane & I. E. R. Co., 157 P. 679, 91 Wash. 260, L.R.A.1916F 484.

94. Mass.—Franz v. Holyoke St. Ry. Co., 132 N.E. 270, 239 Mass 565.

95. Ala.—Hammett v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 81 So. 22, 202 Ala. 520.
Ga.—Martin v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S.E. 880, 45 Ga.App. 799—Jernigan v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 120 S.E. 439, 31 Ga.App. 273.
Iowa.—Fitzgerald v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 207 N.W. 602, 201 Iowa 1302—Morris v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 187 N.W. 510, 193 Iowa 616—Chesley v. Waterloo, C., F. & N. R. Co., 176 N.W. 961, 188 Iowa 1004, 12 A.L.R. 1366.
Minn.—Ruddy v. Ingebret, 204 N.W. 630, 164 Minn. 40, 44 A.L.R. 159.
Mo.—Smuzynski v. East St. Louis Ry. Co., App., 93 S.W.2d 1058.
Neb.—Jacobson v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 191 N.W. 327, 109 Neb. 356, 31 A.L.R. 563.
Ohio.—Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co. v. Reining, 16 Ohio App. 406, affirmed Reining v. Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co., 140 N.E. 34, 107 Ohio St. 528—Mahoning & S. Ry. & Light Co. v. Leedy, 136 N.E. 198, 104 Ohio St. 487.
Pa.—Martin v. Steen, 167 A. 609, 109 Pa.Super 263.
Wis.—Zalewski v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., 263 N.W. 577, 219 Wis. 541.

96. Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 638.

Darkness at time of alighting or thereafter

Where disembarking place during repairs to bridge over railroad cut was made dangerous by darkness, carrier had duty of warning passengers or maintaining lights, and it was immaterial whether passenger, who fell into cut and was killed, was invited to alight in darkness, or whether place was thereafter made dark by turning out lights of street car before passenger had reasonable opportunity to pass beyond zone of danger.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 638.

Issuance of transfer immaterial

That a transfer has been issued to a passenger who is injured on alighting from a street car with intent to board another car of the carrier does not alter the text rule. —Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 638.

97. Mont.—Robinson v. Helena, etc., R. Co., 99 P. 837, 38 Mont. 222.

The Corpus Juris text is cited with approval in Palmer v. Willamette Valley Southern Ry. Co., 171 P. 1169, 1171, 88 Or. 322.

street car should be operated in such manner as to avoid injury to them,[98] the usual rule being that, as regards prospective passengers waiting at regular stopping places, the car must be operated with ordinary and reasonable care,[99] or care commensurate with the danger involved.[1] In a particular case, however, it was held that a motorman's miscalculation of the distance between a parked vehicle and the track, resulting in injuries to a prospective passenger when such vehicle was thrown against him by the street car which he was waiting to board, constituted negligence as a matter of law.[2] It has also been held that the running of a street car at a rate of speed in excess of that prescribed by ordinance is negligence per se as regards injuries sustained by a prospective passenger when struck by such car, and this irrespective of the prospective passenger's knowledge of such ordinance.[3]

In consonance with the rule that a street railway company as a carrier is not required to guard against what cannot be reasonably expected, see infra § 733, a motorman is not negligent in failing to keep a lookout for passengers who may seek to board the car at a place other than a regular stopping place[4] or in failing to stop his car at a place other than a regular stopping place to permit one seeking to board the car to do so;[5] nor is a motorman, on observing one signaling an intention to board the approaching car at a nonstopping place, required to indicate that the car cannot be boarded at such place.[6] Also, a motorman is not required to have his car under such control at night as to permit it to be stopped within the limits of vision.[7]

b. Operation of Vehicle and Appliances Generally

Street cars must be so operated as to avoid injury to passengers boarding or alighting therefrom, and due care must be exercised to see that such passengers are not injured by the operation of such cars' appliances.

Aside from its duties as to stopping or starting its cars in particular situations with respect to passengers boarding or alighting therefrom, as indicated in subsequent paragraphs of this section, a street railway company, as a carrier, has a positive duty so to operate its cars generally as to avoid injury to passengers boarding or alighting therefrom.[8]

A carrier by street car must also exercise due

98. Ala.—Alabama Power Co v Bass, 119 So. 625, 218 Ala. 586, 63 A.L.R. 1.
Conn.—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., 160 A. 307, 115 Conn. 80.
Me.—Verrill v. Androscoggin Electric Co., 102 A. 179, 116 Me. 519.
Wash.—Switzer v. City of Seattle, 294 P. 225, 159 Wash. 540, modified on other grounds 298 P. 347.

99. Conn.—Vaughn v. Healy, 182 A. 166, 120 Conn. 589—DeCicco v. Connecticut Co., 168 A. 879, 117 Conn. 677—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221.
Ky.—Louisville Taxicab & Transfer Co. v. Reno, 35 S.W.2d 902, 237 Ky. 452.
Neb.—O'Connor v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 177 N.W. 838, 104 Neb. 534.
N.J.—Courtney v. Public Service Ry. Co., 115 A. 740, 96 N.J.Law 308, affirmed 117 A. 925, 97 N.J.Law 564.
R.I.—Villa v. United Electric Rys. Co., 155 A. 366, 51 R.I. 384.

Time when duty arises

Motorman's duty toward intending passenger begins when motorman saw, or should have seen, such person in place of danger of which he may not be cognizant.—Switzer v. City of Seattle, 294 P. 225, 159 Wash. 540, opinion modified on other grounds 298 P. 347.

Care of reasonably prudent man

Motorman is required to use such care to avoid injuries to prospective passengers as reasonably prudent man under same circumstances would exercise.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221.

1. Conn.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., supra.

High degree of care owed passenger is not required as regards prospective passengers.
Neb.—O'Connor v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 177 N.W. 838, 104 Neb. 534.
R.I.—Villa v. United Electric Rys. Co., 155 A. 366, 51 R.I. 384, 75 A.L.R. 282.

Where danger is great

(1) Where the danger to the prospective passenger is great, the care required of the motorman is correspondingly great.—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., 160 A. 307, 115 Conn. 80—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221.

(2) Thus a motorman's duty, when signaled by intending passenger who had to cross tracks to board car, was to exercise great care.—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., supra.

More specifically, in the exercise of due care toward prospective passengers, the motorman of an approaching street car may be required to:

(1) Have his car under control.
Conn.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221—Pond v. Connecticut Co., 111 A. 621, 96 Conn. 437.
Tenn.—Tennessee Electric Power Co. v. Bainbridge, App., 95 S.W.2d 1261.

(2) Maintain a lookout.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., supra.

(3) Sound a warning.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., supra.

(4) Stop on signal.—Pond v. Connecticut Co., supra.

2. Ky.—Louisville Taxicab & Transfer Co. v. Reno, 35 S.W.2d 902, 237 Ky. 452.

3. Mo.—Unterlachner v. Wells, 296 S.W. 755, 317 Mo. 181.

4. Va.—Veale v. Virginia Ry. & Power Co., 131 S.E. 200, 144 Va. 210.

Waving hand by person seeking to board car at nonstopping place did not impute knowledge of intent to board car to motorman.—Veale v. Virginia Ry. & Power Co., 131 S.E. 200, 144 Va. 210.

5. Va.—Hendricks v. Virginia Electric & Power Co., 172 S.E. 160, 161 Va. 793.

6. Va.—Veale v. Virginia Ry. & Power Co., 131 S.E. 200, 144 Va. 210.

7. Conn.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221.

8. Ala.—Alabama Power Co v Bass, 119 So. 625, 218 Ala. 586, 63 A.L.R. 1.
Conn.—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., 160 A. 307, 115 Conn. 80.
Me.—Verrill v. Androscoggin Electric Co., 102 A. 179, 116 Me. 519.

care to see that passengers boarding or alighting from its cars are not injured by the operation of their appliances.[9]

c. Duty to Select Safe Place for Boarding and Alighting

Street railway carriers have the duty of seeing that the place selected for passengers to board or alight from street cars is safe for that purpose.

The rule that a carrier has the duty of seeing that the place where it invites its passengers to board or alight from its vehicles is safe for this purpose, see supra § 723, applies to street cars.[10] It is also the duty of the persons operating a street car to know that the place at which the car is stopped to allow passengers to alight is reasonably safe.[11] It is not essential to the carrier's liability that the situation be bristling with glaring and obvious possibilities of harm,[12] it being sufficient that the situation is one that is likely to result in injury to the passenger in the particular situation.[13] A street railway company is not, however, an insurer of the safety of the place at which cars are stopped to permit passengers to alight.[14] In view of the conditions under which street cars are normally operated, requiring that passengers be picked up from, or discharged on, the traveled portions of public streets which are outside the control of the carrier, the law applicable to other types of carriers, as regards the safety of the place selected for this purpose, is not usually applied as strictly in the case of street cars,[15] the duty of the street railway

9. Ala.—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Ellis, 96 So. 773, 209 Ala. 580.
Mo.—Vogts v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 228 S.W. 526.
N.C.—Brown v. Asheville Power & Light Co., 88 S.E. 858, 171 N.C. 555.
Ohio.—Hess v. Cincinnati Street R. Co., 29 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 67.
10 C.J. p. 945 note 64 [d], [g].

Closing door

(1) Under particular circumstances it has been held that closing the entrance door of a street car as a passenger was boarding the same constituted negligence for which the carrier was liable.
Ala.—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Ellis, 96 So. 773, 209 Ala. 580—Bradley v. Williams, 101 So. 808, 20 Ala. App. 308.
Mo.—Vogts v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 228 S.W. 526.

(2) Where a passenger was injured in falling to the street by reason of the closing of the exit door as she was in the act of alighting, the company was held to be liable, notwithstanding the door was automatic in operation.—Hess v. Cincinnati Street R. Co., 29 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 67.

10. Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 638—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 533—Hammett v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 81 So. 22, 202 Ala. 520.
Ark.—Beach v. Eureka Traction Co., 203 S.W. 834, 135 Ark. 542.
Conn.—St. John v. Connecticut Co., 131 A. 396, 103 Conn. 641.
Ga.—Martin v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S.E. 880, 45 Ga.App. 799—Jernigan v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 120 S.E. 439, 31 Ga.App. 273—Graham v. Savannah Electric Co., 91 S.E. 912, 19 Ga.App. 509.
Ill.—Griswold v. Chicago Rys. Co., 170 N.E. 845, 339 Ill. 94, affirming 253 Ill.App. 498.
Iowa.—Fitzgerald v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 207 N.W. 602, 210 Iowa 1302.
Kan.—Kennedy v. Fleming, 221 P. 349, 114 Kan. 853.
La.—Campbell v. N. O. Public Service, 133 So. 542, 16 La.App. 210—Wagner v. New Orleans Public Service, 120 So. 72, 9 La.App. 699.
Mass.—McManus v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N.E. 529, 262 Mass. 519.
Minn.—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 213 N.W. 43, 171 Minn. 31—Lentz v. Minneapolis & St. Paul Suburban R. Co., 160 N.W. 794, 135 Minn. 310.
Miss.—Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co. v. Raymond, 128 So. 327, 157 Miss. 439.
Mo.—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S.W. 2d 25, 226 Mo.App. 934—Watts v. Fleming, 298 S.W. 107, 221 Mo.App. 1123.
Neb.—Jacobson v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 191 N.W. 327, 109 Neb. 356, 31 A.L.R. 563.
N.H.—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry., 149 A. 602, 84 N.H. 285.
N.J.—Pabst v. Public Service Ry. Co., 141 A. 773, 104 N.J.Law 537.
N.C.—Loggins v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 106 S.E. 822, 181 N.C. 221.
Ohio.—Mahoning & S. Ry. & Light Co. v. Leedy, 136 N.E. 198, 104 Ohio St. 487—Cincinnati Street Ry. Co. v. Mueller, 200 N.E. 770, 51 Ohio App. 314—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Arrison, 159 N.E. 580, 26 Ohio App. 359—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Rauft, 12 Ohio App. 397.
Okl.—Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Latty, 187 P. 491, 77 Okl. 156.
Pa.—McCarty v. Gochnauer, 167 A. 590, 312 Pa. 258—Gerlach v. City of Philadelphia, 157 A. 212, 103 Pa.Super. 401.
Tenn.—Clinton v. Tennessee Electric Power Co., 10 Tenn.App. 311.
Wash.—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P. 583, 127 Wash. 664.
10 C.J. p. 914 note 41.

11. Ala.—Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Walsh, 40 So. 560, 146 Ala. 295.
R.I.—Tilden v. Rhode Island Co., 63 A. 675, 27 R.I. 482.
10 C.J. p. 916 note 51.

12. Mo.—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S.W.2d 25, 226 Mo.App. 934.

13. Mo.—Caley v. Kansas City, supra.

14. Minn.—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 213 N.W. 43, 171 Minn. 31—Ruddy v. Ingebret, 204 N.W. 630, 164 Minn. 40, 44 A.L.R. 159.
Neb.—Jacobson v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 191 N.W. 327, 109 Neb. 356, 31 A.L.R. 563.
Pa.—Perret v. George, 133 A. 228, 286 Pa. 221.

15. Ga.—Martin v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S.E. 880, 45 Ga.App. 799—Graham v. Savannah Electric Co., 91 S.E. 912, 19 Ga.App. 509.
Ind.—Terre Haute, I. & E. Traction Co. v. Evans, 161 N.E. 671, 87 Ind.App. 324.
Iowa.—Morris v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 187 N.W. 510, 193 Iowa 616—Chesley v. Waterloo, C., F. & N. R. Co., 176 N.W. 961, 188 Iowa 1004, 12 A.L.R. 1366.
Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Soper, 286 S.W. 776, 215 Ky. 536.
Minn.—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 213 N.W. 43, 171 Minn. 31.
Neb.—Jacobson v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 191 N.W. 327, 109 Neb. 356, 31 A.L.R. 563.
Pa.—Klingensmith v. West Penn. Rys. Co., 123 A. 787, 279 Pa. 336.
S.C.—Thompson v. Greenville Traction Co., 107 S.E. 911, 116 S.C. 444.
Wash.—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P. 583, 127 Wash. 664.

Other statements of rule

(1) "It is generally held that the law applicable to steam railroads which have particular places to stop to take on and let off passengers, which places are generally prepared in advance by having station build-company in such cases being merely to select a reasonably safe place for its passengers to board or alight,[16] and this duty is met when it stops its car so that the passenger in alighting will step on a part of the street properly marked for public travel.[17] The duty to select a safe place for passengers to board or alight from street cars does not require the carrier to protect such passengers from obvious street dangers,[18] such as those which arise from the operation of other vehicles on the street[19] or ings or platforms, cannot in fairness be applied—at least too strictly—to the operation of street railways, which stop upon signal at innumerable places and usually have not regular stations and platforms."—Tobin v City of Seattle, 221 P. 583, 587, 127 Wash 664.

(2) "A public street in a city is not to be regarded as a passenger station, for the safety of which a railway company may be responsible, when used by passengers to alight."—Thompson v. Greenville Traction Co., 107 S.E. 911, 116 S.C. 444.

16. Ala.—Alabama Power Co v. Hall, 103 So 867, 212 Ala. 638—Mobile Light & R Co v. Therrell, 88 So 677, 205 Ala. 533.
Ga.—Martin v. Georgia Power Co, 165 S.E. 880, 45 Ga App. 799—Georgia Ry. & Power Co v. C C. Gilbert, 146 S.E. 34, 39 Ga App. 58—Georgia Ry. & Power Co v. Gilbert, 146 S E 33, 39 Ga.App. 56—Jernigan v Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 120 S E. 439, 31 Ga.App 273—Graham v. Savannah Electric Co., 91 S E 912, 19 Ga App 509.
Iowa.—Morris v. Omaha & C B St. Ry. Co, 187 N.W. 510, 193 Iowa 616
La.—Campbell v. N. O Public Service, 133 So. 542, 16 La.App. 210—Wagner v. New Orleans Public Service, 120 So 72, 9 La App 699.
Minn.—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry Co., 213 N.W. 43, 171 Minn. 31.
Mo.—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S.W. 2d 25, 226 Mo.App 934
Neb.—Jacobson v Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 191 N.W. 327, 109 Neb. 356, 31 A.L.R. 563
N.H.—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry, 149 A 602, 84 N.H. 285.
N.J.—Pabst v. Public Service Ry. Co., 141 A 773, 104 N.J.Law 537.
Ohio.—Mahoning & S Ry. & Light Co. v. Leedy, 136 N.E 198 104 Ohio St. 487—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Rauft, 12 Ohio App 397
Pa.—McCarty v. Gochnauer, 167 A. 590, 312 Pa. 258
Tenn.—Clinton v. Tennessee Electric Power Co., 10 Tenn App. 311.
10 C.J. p 915 notes 46, 48.

17. Conn.—St. John v. Connecticut Co, 131 A 396, 103 Conn 641.
Ga.—Martin v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S.E 880, 45 Ga.App. 799.
Iowa.—Morris v Omaha & C. B St. Ry Co, 187 N W 510, 193 Iowa 616—Chesley v Waterloo, C., F. & N R Co., 176 N.W. 961, 188 Iowa 1004, 12 A.L.R. 1366.
Wis.—Zalewski v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co, 263 N W. 577, 219 Wis 541.
10 C.J. p 915 note 49.

18. Cal.—Northrup v Pacific Electric Ry. Co, 47 P.2d 365, 8 Cal App.2d 189
Minn.—Fox v. Minneapolis St Ry. Co, 251 N.W 916, 190 Minn. 343—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co, 213 N.W 43, 171 Minn. 31—Ruddy v Ingebret, 204 N.W. 630, 164 Minn 40, 44 A.L.R. 159.
Neb.—Jacobson v Omaha & Council Bluffs St Ry Co, 191 N.W. 327, 109 Neb. 356, 31 A.L.R 563.
Ohio.—Mahoning & S. Ry. & Light Co v. Leedy, 136 N.E 198, 104 Ohio St. 487—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Arrison, 159 N.E. 580, 26 Ohio App. 359.
Pa.—Klingensmith v. West Penn. Rys Co., 123 A 787, 279 Pa. 336—Murtha v. City of Philadelphia, Super., 197 A 513.
Tex.—Wittkower v Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co., Civ.App, 73 S.W.2d 867, error refused.

Other statements of rule; reasons for rule

(1) "The rule adhered to by this and the majority of courts is that a street railway company under ordinary circumstances is not responsible for injuries to a passenger that are caused by obvious street dangers. The risks incident thereto are known to all passengers; they have as good or better opportunity to observe and protect themselves from those risks as have the conductor or motorman."—Fox v. Minneapolis St. Ry Co, 251 N.W. 916, 919, 190 Minn 343.

(2) "It would, under the circumstances, be impracticable to require the company to take the responsibility of protection against these obvious dangers of the street. The motorman . . . could have but little judgment as to these dangers when he is attending his usual duties The company is not the creator of these conditions or street dangers and they are beyond its control"—Ruddy v. Ingebret, 204 N.W 630, 631, 164 Minn. 40, 44 A.L.R. 159

(3) "The very nature of these obvious dangers, which are necessarily within the knowledge of all, and which do not include defective equipment or manipulation of the company's instrumentalities make it impracticable for the company to cope with them, while on the other hand, they may be successfully avoided by ordinary diligence on the part of the passenger in stepping from the street car into the street.'—Ruddy v. Ingebret, supra.

19. Ala.—Hammett v Birmingham Ry, Light & Power Co, 81 So. 22, 202 Ala. 520
Cal.—Northrup v Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 47 P 2d 365, 8 Cal.App 2d 189.
Conn.—St. John v. Connecticut Co, 131 A 396, 103 Conn 641.
Ga.—Martin v. Georgia Power Co, 165 S.E. 880, 45 Ga App 799—Jernigan v. Georgia Ry & Power Co, 120 S E 439, 31 Ga App. 273
Iowa.—Moss v Mason City & C L. R. Co, 251 N.W. 627, 217 Iowa 354—Fitzgerald v. Des Moines City Ry. Co, 207 N.W. 602, 210 Iowa 1302—Chesley v. Waterloo, C., F & N. R Co. 176 N.W 961, 188 Iowa 1004, 12 A.L.R. 1366.
Ky.—Trout's Adm'r v. Ohio Valley Electric Ry Co., 43 S.W.2d 507, 241 Ky. 144.
La.—Cazeaux v. New Orleans Public Service, 134 So. 121, 16 La App. 541.
Md.—Hevell v. Baltimore Transit Co, 196 A 103
Minn.—Ruddy v Ingebret, 204 N.W. 630, 164 Minn. 40, 44 A.L.R 159
Mo.—Smuzynski v. East St Louis Ry. Co, App., 93 S.W 2d 1058.
Neb.—Jacobson v Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry Co, 191 N.W 327, 109 Neb. 356, 31 A.L.R 563.
Ohio.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Karbole, 181 N.E 889, 125 Ohio St. 467—Mahoning & S Ry & Light Co v Leedy, 136 N.E 198, 104 Ohio St. 487—Cleveland Ry Co v. Arrison, 159 N.E 580, 26 Ohio App 359.
Pa.—McCarty v. Gochnauer, 167 A. 590, 312 Pa. 258—Klingensmith v. West Penn. Rys. Co, 123 A. 787, 279 Pa 336.
Tex.—Wittkower v. Dallas Ry & Terminal Co., Civ.App., 73 S.W 2d 867, error refused.

Reason for rule

"The motorman has no way of knowing when a driver will instantaneously become a wrongdoer"—Ruddy v. Ingebret, 204 N.W. 630, 631, 164 Minn 40, 44 A.L.R 159.

Anticipating violation of statute

The company is not bound to anticipate that the operator of a passing automobile will disregard a statute forbidding automobiles from passing a standing street car on the side on which passengers are being received or from which they are being discharged.—Klingensmith v.

from ordinary obstructions, defects, or unevenness of the surface of the street, at the place where the car is stopped.[20] A fortiori, the carrier is not required to exercise a high, or the highest, degree of care to prevent injury to an alighting passenger by reason of conditions existing on the surface of the street at the point where he alights;[21] nor is the carrier liable for injuries resulting from a defective bridge adjacent to the right of way of the street car tracks and outside the control of the carrier.[22]

Degree of care in selecting place to stop. The degree of care required to be exercised by a street railroad in selecting a safe place for passengers boarding or alighting from its cars has been variously stated to be ordinary care,[23] reasonable care,[24] extraordinary care,[25] a high degree of care,[26] and the highest degree of care.[27] It has been held, moreover, that a street railroad which discharges its passengers on its private right of way is bound to the utmost degree of care in procuring a safe place for them to alight.[28]

Usual or designated stopping place. In furtherance of the duty of street railway carriers to select a safe place for their passengers to board or alight, it is usually held to be the duty of a street railroad company, in taking on or letting off passengers, to stop its cars at the usual stopping places,[29] particularly where signaled in time to permit it so to do,[30] although it has also been held that mere failure to

West Penn. Rys. Co., 123 A. 787, 279 Pa. 336.

Requiring entry from particular side

Generally a requirement by a street railway that passengers enter a car from a particular side is reasonable, and the mere fact that in a particular instance the danger from passing vehicles would be less in boarding the car on the opposite side will not in all cases render the railway chargeable with negligence—Klingensmith v. West Penn. Rys. Co., 123 A. 787, 279 Pa. 336.

Requiring exit from particular side

(1) That alighting passenger struck by automobile had been directed to leave street car from its left side could not without more be accounted negligence on the part of the company.—Jernigan v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 120 S.E. 439, 31 Ga.App. 273.

(2) Nor may the fact that a passenger is discharged from that side of the street car where traffic is moving, rather than from the opposite side where there is no traffic, constitute negligence on the part of the carrier.—Anderson v. Grandy, 283 P. 186, 154 Wash. 547.

20. U.S.—Shepard v. Denver Tramway Corporation, C.C.A.Colo., 62 F.2d 339.
Ga.—Graham v. Savannah Electric Co., 91 S.E. 912, 19 Ga.App. 509.
Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Soper, 286 S.W. 776, 215 Ky. 536.
Mass.—Lenoue v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry. Co., 153 N.E. 533, 257 Mass. 285.
Minn.—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 213 N.W. 43, 171 Minn. 31.
Pa.—Perret v. George, 133 A. 228, 286 Pa. 221—Murtha v. City of Philadelphia, Super., 197 A. 513—Martin v. Steen, 167 A. 609, 109 Pa.Super. 263.
R.I.—Villa v. United Electric Rys. Co., 155 A. 366, 51 R.I. 384, 75 A.L.R. 282.
S.C.—Thompson v. Greenville Traction Co., 107 S.E. 911, 116 S.C. 444.

Another statement of rule

"Street car companies are not required to observe the condition of streets over which their cars travel, so as to stop their cars with exactness at places where passengers may avoid ordinary defects in the highway while alighting."—Perret v. George, 133 A. 228, 229, 286 Pa. 221.

Small pebble

Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Soper, 286 S.W. 776, 215 Ky. 536.

21. U.S.—Shepard v. Denver Tramway Corporation, C.C.A.Colo., 62 F.2d 339.
Minn.—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 213 N.W. 43, 171 Minn. 31.

It would be impracticable to require a street railway company to exercise a high degree of care in protecting a passenger against small obstructions on the surface of the street or defects thereon in view of the motorman's exacting duties of guarding against ordinary street risks of traffic, and passengers' ability to look after themselves.—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 213 N.W. 43, 171 Minn. 31.

22. Tenn.—Clinton v. Tennessee Electric Power Co., 10 Tenn.App. 311.

23. Minn.—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 213 N.W. 43, 171 Minn. 31.

24. N.J.—Pabst v. Public Service Ry. Co., 141 A. 773, 104 N.J.Law 537.

25. Ga.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. C. C. Gilbert, 146 S.E. 34, 39 Ga.App. 58—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Gilbert, 146 S.E. 33, 39 Ga.App. 56.

26. Iowa.—Fitzgerald v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 207 N.W. 602, 210 Iowa 1302.
Minn.—Lentz v. Minneapolis & St. Paul Suburban R. Co., 160 N.W. 794, 135 Minn. 310.

27. Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 633—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 533.
Mo.—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S.W.2d 25, 226 Mo.App. 934.
Ohio—Cincinnati Street Ry. Co. v. Mueller, 200 N.E. 770, 51 Ohio App. 314—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Arrison, 159 N.E. 580, 26 Ohio App. 359.

28. Md.—Topp v. United R., etc., Co., 59 A. 52, 99 Md. 630, 1 Ann.Cas. 912.

29. Me.—Verrill v. Androscoggin Electric Co., 102 A. 179, 116 Me. 519.
La.—Johnston v. City of Monroe, App., 147 So. 519.
Miss.—Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co. v. Raymond, 128 So. 327, 157 Miss. 439.
Ohio.—Cincinnati Street Ry. Co. v. Mueller, 200 N.E. 770, 51 Ohio App. 314.
Okl.—Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Latty, 187 P. 491, 77 Okl. 156.
10 C.J. p. 945 note 70.

Stopping on curve

Street railroad was not liable for injury to passenger alighting at usual landing place partly over curve in track.—Harang v. N. O. Public Service, 119 So. 86, 9 La.App. 91.

Stopping over ditch or depression

Stopping a car over a ditch or depression which brought the step two or three feet from the ground was held to indicate negligence on the part of the company as respects a passenger injured in boarding the car, where it appeared that the car might have been conveniently stopped at the usual stopping place on the graded roadway. — Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Latty, 187 P. 491, 77 Okl. 156.

30. Ohio.—Cincinnati Street Ry. Co.

stop at a place indicated as a stopping place may not constitute negligence with respect to a passenger, injured while alighting, provided the place at which the stop is made is reasonably safe for the purpose of alighting.[31] Where conditions in a neighborhood require that street cars be rerouted and that a regular stopping place be relocated, the company may not be liable for injuries sustained by an alighting passenger caused by a failure to stop at the old stopping place.[32]

Place or conditions controlled by carrier. The duty of a street railway, as carrier, to select a safe place for stopping its cars to permit passengers to board or alight is particularly applicable to cases where the place selected, or the conditions constituting the danger, are within the control of the carrier.[33] This is especially true where an ordinance requires that the carrier shall eliminate the conditions constituting the dangerous situation.[34] On the other hand, the duty to provide a safe place for boarding cars does not require that a city operating a street car system shall mark out safety zones on the street at places where cars are boarded[35] or maintain watchmen at such places;[36] nor does the mere fact that a city, operating a street railway system, permits two-way traffic on the paved side of the street adjacent to a track constitute a dangerous situation within the rule requiring that passengers be provided with a safe place to alight.[37]

Excavation or construction work in street. Stopping a street car for a passenger to alight at a place where the street is being excavated may constitute negligence for which the carrier shall be liable,[38] although it is not necessarily negligence on the part of the carrier to pick up passengers at a

v. Mueller, 200 N.E 770, 51 Ohio App 314.
10 C.J. p 946 note 71.

31. Conn.—St. John v. Connecticut Co., 131 A. 396, 103 Conn. 641.

White marked pole

Street railroad need not stop car at white-marked pole, which was usual place for discharge of passengers, and might stop at any convenient place in vicinity, provided exit was afforded on a highway not defective or dangerous—St. John v. Connecticut Co., 131 A. 396, 103 Conn. 641.

32. Mass—Bigelow v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 115 N.E. 250, 226 Mass. 116.

Passenger thrown from running board

Street railway was not liable to passenger thrown from running board, where he stood preparatory to alighting, having passed abandoned stop, on ground that company was negligent in changing stopping places, line being rerouted owing to tunnel construction. — Bigelow v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 115 N.E. 250, 226 Mass. 116.

33. Ky—Mayhew v. Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co, 254 S.W. 202, 200 Ky. 105.
La.—Gates v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co, 75 So. 1002, 141 La. 946—Shally v. New Orleans Public Service, Sewerage & Water Board, 1 La.App. 770, affirmed 105 So. 606, 159 La. 519.
N.H.—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry., 149 A. 602, 84 N.H 285.
Wash—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P. 583, 127 Wash. 664.

At regular depot, duties same as other carriers

A street railway which has provided a regular depot at a stopping place is charged with the same duties with reference to its safety for the discharge of passengers as are imposed on other carriers of passengers.—Mayhew v Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co, 254 S.W. 202, 200 Ky 105.

Constructing landing place; establishing lights

A street railroad which constructs a landing place for patrons and establishes lights to guide them in crossing the tracks thereby invites them to use the crossing and must, as regards alighting passengers, keep it reasonably safe.—Brooks v Union Depot Bridge & Terminal R Co, 258 S.W. 724, 215 Mo.App. 643

Duty to furnish light

A city owning and operating street car system owes a duty to its patrons to see that sufficient light is furnished at places where it stops its cars for taking on passengers to make the place reasonably safe.—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P. 583, 127 Wash 664.

34. N.H.—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry., 149 A. 602, 84 N.H. 285.

Snow and ice ruts

Where an ordinance required a street railway company to remove snow and ice from its tracks and the street adjacent thereto, the company may be liable for injuries resulting to an alighting passenger by reason of snow and ice ruts which have been permitted to remain on the street.—Wilson v Berlin St. Ry, 149 A. 602, 84 N.H 285.

35. Wash—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P 583, 127 Wash. 664.

No reason for applying different rule to city

"If the street railway system were being operated by a private owner, it would not only have no duty to mark out safety zones, but it would have no right to do so, and we cannot see that any greater duty in this regard should devolve upon the city than upon a private owner under the same circumstances"—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P 583, 587, 127 Wash 664.

36. Wash.—Tobin v. City of Seattle, supra.

Reason for rule

"It is perfectly plain that it would be impossible for the respondent or any privately owned street railway system to station watchmen at the almost innumerable stopping places that street cars have. To impose that obligation upon it would be to so burden it as to make it impossible for it to continue operations"—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P. 583, 587, 127 Wash 664.

37. Wash—Jones v City of Seattle, 257 P. 393, 144 Wash 188

38. Kan—Kennedy v. Fleming, 221 P 249, 114 Kan 853
Mo.—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S.W. 2d 25 226 Mo App 934
N.J—Pabst v Public Service Ry Co., 141 A 773, 104 N.J Law 537
Ohio—Cleveland Ry. Co v. Ranft, 12 Ohio App 397.
Pa—Gerlach v City of Philadelphia, 157 A. 212, 103 Pa Super. 401.

View of trench obstructed

Where an alighting passenger's view of an open trench was obstructed by the car itself because of the proximity of the trench to the track at the place where the car was stopped, the company was held to be liable for injuries sustained by such passenger in stepping into such trench while in the very act of alighting—Gerlach v. City of Philadelphia, 157 A. 212, 103 Pa.Super. 401.

point where the streets are under construction or being improved.[39]

Crowd. The mere fact that an alighting passenger is injured as a result of the boisterous and violent conduct of a crowd attempting to board the car may not impose liability on the carrier, particularly in the absence of any showing that the carrier or its servants had previous information or experience that the crowd would attempt to board the car at the time and place in question.[40] Reason to anticipate the presence of a dangerous crowd at the time and place in question may, on the other hand, render the carrier liable for failure to protect an alighting passenger from injury from such crowd.[41]

d. Time for Boarding or Alighting in General

A street car must be stopped long enough to permit person boarding or alighting therefrom to do so in safety.

While receiving or discharging passengers, the car should be held stationary for a reasonable length of time, due regard being had to the circumstances and conditions surrounding the particular passengers,[42] to allow them, in the exercise of reasonable care and diligence on their part, to board or to alight in safety, and, if the carrier fails to hold the car a sufficient length of time to allow them such an opportunity, it is liable for the resulting injuries,[43] although the passenger so injured is not seen by those in charge of the car.[44] The rule also applies, although the car has stopped for purposes other than taking on or setting down passengers, if it is stopped under circumstances which amount to an invitation to passengers to board or alight,[45] as where a car is stopped at a place where it is customary for passengers to board it.[46] On the other hand, a street railway carrier may not be liable for injuries to a boarding passenger in starting the car after he has had a reasonable time to enter, particularly where the car is started in a careful manner[47] or at least without any unusual violence or jerk.[48] It has also been held that the carrier may not be liable for injuries sustained by a passenger from the starting of the car after he has safely entered the car, notwithstanding the start is made with a jolt or jerk.[49] Starting a street car while a passenger is in the body of the car and moving toward the exit to alight does not without more constitute negligence;[50] nor, in the absence of knowl-

39. Pa.—Martin v. Steen, 167 A. 609, 109 Pa.Super. 263.

Reason for rule

"To hold the carrier liable in all such cases would require the street car company either to become an insurer of those who passed over a space where improvements were being carried on or to refuse to accept passengers at such places. The latter would be a great inconvenience to the traveling public and is not required."—Martin v. Steen, 167 A. 609, 109 Pa.Super. 263.

40. Mass.—Dullea v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 146 N.E. 237, 251 Mass. 56.

41. Ga.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Murphy, 110 S.E. 680, 28 Ga.App. 173.

Knowledge of crowd's custom

A street car company, knowing that at a certain time each day a crowd boards the cars at a certain point and struggles and pushes against one another, has reason to anticipate that a female passenger without knowledge thereof, and who has gone on the platform for the purpose of alighting, will be injured, and fails in its legal duty if it fails to use the required diligence to protect her from injury by the crowd. —Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Murphy, 110 S.E. 680, 28 Ga.App. 173.

42. Ill.—Garlinski v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 257 Ill.App. 414—Little v. Peoria Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 385.
10 C.J. p. 946 note 72.

43. Ala.—Van Tinder v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 80 So. 858, 202 Ala. 474.
Cal.—Poak v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 170 P. 159, 177 Cal. 190—Jones v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 202 P. 919, 54 Cal.App. 744.
Ill.—Garlinski v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 257 Ill.App. 414—Little v. Peoria Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 385. See Devine v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 195 Ill.App. 304.
Iowa.—Walters v. Des Moines City Ry., 179 N.W. 865, 191 Iowa 196.
Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Peel, 214 S.W. 874, 185 Ky. 207.
La.—Schernbeck v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 73 So. 771, 140 La. 682—Latmore v. New Orleans Public Service Co., 2 La.App. 349.
Mo.—Baldwin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 231 S.W. 280—Hartweg v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 231 S.W. 269—Vogts v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 228 S.W. 526—Elliot v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 214 S.W. 234, 201 Mo.App. 662.
Okl.—Oklahoma Union Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 231 P. 1062, 105 Okl. 152.
Pa.—Morris v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 100 A. 971, 256 Pa. 390—Laub v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 97 Pa.Super. 323.
W.Va.—Cain v. Kanawha Traction & Electric Co., 102 S.E. 119, 85 W.Va. 434.
Wis.—Kausch v. Chicago, Milwaukee Electric Ry. Co., 186 N.W. 257, 176 Wis. 21.
10 C.J. p. 946 note 73.

44. Ill.—Garlinski v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 257 Ill.App. 414.
Mo.—Elliot v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 214 S.W. 234, 201 Mo.App. 662.
W.Va.—Cain v. Kanawha Traction & Electric Co., 95 S.E. 88, 81 W.Va. 631.

45. Mo.—Elliot v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 214 S.W. 234, 201 Mo. App. 662.
10 C.J. p. 947 note 75.

46. Ind.—Citizens' St. R. Co. v. Jolly, 67 N.E. 935, 161 Ind. 80.
N.C.—Brown v. Asheville Power, etc., Co., 88 S.E. 858, 171 N.C. 555.

47. Iowa.—Worez v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 156 N.W. 867, 175 Iowa 1.

48. Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v. Carroll, 94 So. 743, 208 Ala. 426.

49. R.I.—Straight v. United Electric Rys. Co., 128 A. 571, 46 R.I. 383.

Jolt or jerk expected

"Passengers in the present day of traffic congestion expect . . . there may be some jolt or jerk in starting; they govern themselves accordingly"—Straight v. United Electric Rys. Co., 128 A. 571, 572, 46 R.I. 383.

50. Mass.—Gollis v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry., 149 N.E. 607, 254 Mass. 157.

edge by those in charge of a street car that a passenger has not alighted and is in the act of alighting when the car is started, injuring him, is the carrier liable where it appears that the car has been stopped for a reasonably sufficient time to enable passengers to alight.[51] That an employee of a carrier urges passengers alighting from a street car to "step lively" has been held not to amount to negligence toward an alighting passenger who was injured in being crowded by other passengers in their haste to alight.[52] The mere fact that the employees of the carrier do not know of the presence near the track of an object against which a boarding passenger is brought by the premature starting of the car will not relieve the carrier of liability for injuries sustained by such passenger.[53] It is only at such places where it may be reasonably anticipated that a passenger may attempt to leave the car that the duty rests on the carrier to use care in allowing time for passengers to alight therefrom.[54]

The length of time for which the car must be held stationary must in general be such as to enable passengers attempting to get on or off to reach a place of safety either on the street or in the car before it is started.[55]

Where invitation withdrawn or admission denied. Where a passenger is not in a position to avail himself of the invitation to board a street car, manifested by its stopping, the conductor may recall the invitation at any time before it is accepted,[56] and, where a car is stopped only to discharge passengers, the carrier is not liable for injuries resulting, from the starting of the car, to a passenger attempting to board the same after the conductor has warned him not to do so in a tone of voice sufficiently loud to be heard by an ordinary person.[57] However, where admission to a street car is denied to one who is left standing in a place of danger by reason of the carrier's invitation to board such car, due regard for the danger of such person's position and due care for his safety must be observed in starting the car forward.[58]

e. Starting Car before Passenger Seated

Ordinarily the carrier is not liable for injuries sustained by a boarding passenger from the starting of a street car before he is seated.

It is generally held that it is not necessary to hold a car until a passenger is seated, and that the carrier is not liable for injuries sustained by a passenger while in the act of taking a seat, in consequence of the starting of the car,[59] unless it is started in a violent, unusual, or reckless manner,[60] or unless the unusual conditions and circumstances surrounding a particular passenger, as in case of an enfeebled or infirm passenger, require that the car be held until he is seated.[61] There are cases, however, which hold, without reference to the manner or circumstances of starting, that the carrier may be liable for injuries sustained by a boarding passenger before he has reached a seat.[62]

f. Starting Car While Passenger Boarding or Alighting

Starting a street car while a passenger is boarding

Signal

That the passenger has given a signal to stop does not alter the text rule—Gollis v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry., 149 N.E. 607, 254 Mass. 157.

51. Tex.—San Antonio Traction Co. v. Cox, Civ.App., 184 S.W. 722.

52. Mass.—Ritchie v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 131 N.E. 67, 238 Mass. 473.

53. Wis.—Kausch v. Chicago, Milwaukee Electric Ry. Co., 186 N.W. 257, 176 Wis. 21.

54. Tex.—Galveston Electric Co. v. Marangola, Com.App., 283 S.W. 777, reversing, Civ.App., 273 S.W. 311.

55. Mass.—Binder v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 164 N.E. 441, 265 Mass. 589

Mo.—Baldwin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 231 S.W. 280—Baldwin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 214 S.W. 274—Elliot v. United Rys Co. of St. Louis, 214 S.W. 234, 201 Mo.App. 662

10 C.J. p 947 note 76.

56. Mass.—Buckley v. Boston El. R. Co., 102 N.E. 75, 215 Mass. 50.

57. Mo.—Maxey v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 68 S.W. 1063, 95 Mo.App. 303.

58. U.S.—Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. v. Alcorn, C.C.A.Pa., 266 F. 50.

59. Conn.—Cavanaugh v. Connecticut Co., 149 A. 131, 110 Conn. 698—Belledeau v. Connecticut Co., 149 A. 127, 110 Conn. 625.

Ga.—Georgia Power Co. v. Watts, App., 192 S.E. 493.

Iowa.—Worez v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 156 N.W. 867, 175 Iowa 1.

Md.—Brocato v. United Rys & Electric Co. of Baltimore, 99 A. 792, 129 Md. 572.

Mass.—Phinney v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 189 N.E. 52, 285 Mass. 207—Hallinan v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry. Co., 172 N.E. 862, 273 Mass. 27—Seidenberg v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 165 N.E. 658, 266 Mass. 540—Binder v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 164 N.E. 441, 265 Mass. 589.

Ohio—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Burkhardt, 4 Ohio App. 103.

R.I.—Straight v. United Electric Rys. Co., 128 A. 571, 46 R.I. 383.

10 C.J. p 947 note 79.

Starting without signal or gong

Starting a car without a signal or gong in violation of a company rule does not constitute negligence as regards a passenger who is not yet seated, since the rule in question is not for the benefit of passengers who are fully within the car—Binder v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 164 N.E. 441, 265 Mass. 589.

60. Md.—Grinath v. Baltimore & Belair Electric Ry. Co., 125 A. 604, 145 Md. 290.

R.I.—Adams v. United Electric Rys. Co., 128 A. 197, 46 R.I. 312.

10 C.J. p 947 note 80

61. N.J.—Herbich v. North Jersey St. R. Co., 52 A. 357, 67 N.J.Law 574, reversing 47 A. 427, 65 N.J. Law 381.

62. Pa.—Walters v. Pennsylvania Tract. Co., 28 A. 941, 161 Pa. 36—Austrian v. United Tract. Co., 19 Pa.Super. 329.

or alighting may constitute negligence for which the carrier shall be liable.

Regardless of the length of time for which a car is stopped, and although it is stopped for a length of time which would be reasonable under ordinary conditions, if the conductor or the motorman in charge of the car knows or has reason to know that a passenger is in the act of boarding or alighting, it is negligence suddenly or recklessly to start or otherwise to move the car, whereby the passenger is injured;[63] and this may be so whether or not the starting of the car is by an unusual and unnecessary jerk or lurch of the car.[64] The rule also applies, although the car has been stopped in violation of the carrier's rules[65] or of a city ordinance.[66] Moreover, the rule applies, although the car has stopped at a place which is not a regular stopping place,[67] and for a purpose other than for receiving or discharging passengers,[68] particularly where the stop at such unusual place is under circumstances which import an invitation to board or alight.[69] The fact that a stop was necessitated for the purpose of turning a switch does not excuse the carrier from its duty not to start the car while a passenger entitled to alight at such place was in the act of doing so.[70]

Where, however, the employees in charge of a car do not know, or have reason to know, that a

63. Ala.—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Gallasch, 97 So. 733, 210 Ala. 219—Van Tinder v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 80 So. 858, 202 Ala. 474.
Ariz.—Phœnix Ry. Co. of Arizona v. Beals, 181 P. 379, 20 Ariz. 386.
Cal.—Poak v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 170 P. 159, 177 Cal. 190—Hoffman v. Pacific Electric Co., 188 P. 597, 45 Cal. App. 751.
Ill.—Lundquist v. Chicago Rys. Co., 137 N.E. 92, 305 Ill. 106, affirming 221 Ill. App. 654—Little v. Peoria Ry. Co., 215 Ill. App. 385. See McConnell v. Chicago Rys. Co., 199 Ill. App. 490.
Ind.—Ohio Electric Ry. Co. v. Lease, 121 N.E. 1, 187 Ind. 668.
Iowa.—Walters v. Des Moines City Ry., 179 N.W. 865, 191 Iowa 196.
Ky.—Stover v. Cincinnati, N. & C. Ry. Co., 67 S.W.2d 484, 252 Ky. 425—Louisville & I. R. Co. v. Whitesides, 270 S.W. 19, 207 Ky. 733—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Peel, 214 S.W. 874, 185 Ky. 207—South Covington & C. St. Ry. Co. v. Heinrich, 186 S.W. 187, 170 Ky. 499.
La.—Schernbeck v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 73 So. 771, 140 La. 682—Latmore v. New Orleans Public Service Co., 2 La. App. 349.
Md.—Grinath v. Baltimore & Belair Electric Ry. Co., 125 A. 604, 145 Md. 290.
Mass.—McAvoy v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 175 N.E. 103, 275 Mass. 9—Davey v. Greenfield, etc., R. Co., 58 N.E. 172, 177 Mass. 106.
Mich.—Morris v. Detroit United Ry., 193 N.W. 871, 223 Mich. 264.
Mo.—Detchemendy v. Wells, App., 253 S.W. 150—Leonard v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 239 S.W. 892—McCormack v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 238 S.W. 579—Baldwin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 231 S.W. 280—Vogts v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 228 S.W. 526—Morris v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 223 S.W. 784—Baldwin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 214 S.W. 274—Elliot v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 214 S.W. 234, 201 Mo.App. 662—Lynch v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 193 S.W. 890, 197 Mo. App. 238.
Ohio.—Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co. v. Schrock, 7 Ohio App. 229—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Frank, 6 Ohio App. 112—Dowd v. Cleveland Ry., 22 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 236.
Okl.—Oklahoma Union Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 231 P. 1062, 105 Okl. 152.
Pa.—Morris v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 100 A. 971, 256 Pa. 390—Laub v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 97 Pa. Super. 323.
W.Va.—Malone v. Monongahela Valley Traction Co., 141 S.E. 440, 105 W.Va. 60—Cain v. Kanawha Traction & Electric Co., 102 S.E. 119, 85 W.Va. 434.
Wis.—Kausch v. Chicago, Milwaukee Electric Ry. Co., 186 N.W. 257, 176 Wis. 21.
10 C.J. p. 948 note 84.

Employee's duty to know or see

(1) It is no defense that conductor did not see passenger in act of alighting before signaling motorman to go ahead, as it was his duty to see or know that passenger had reached place of safety before starting car.—Cain v. Kanawha Traction & Electric Co., 95 S.E. 88, 81 W.Va. 631.

(2) The motorman in a pay-as-you-enter car has a duty to see to it that, when he is about to start his car with the door open, no passengers are in the act of boarding.—Lynch v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 193 S.W. 890, 197 Mo.App. 238.

(3) It is the duty of a street car conductor, after stopping the car to enable a passenger to alight, to know before starting the car again, not only that the passenger on whose signal the car was stopped is not in the act of alighting, but also to know that no other passenger who may rely on the signal to stop is in the act of alighting.—Jones v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 202 P. 919, 54 Cal. App. 744.

64. Ky.—Louisville & I. R. Co. v. Whitesides, 270 S.W. 19, 207 Ky. 733—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Peel, 214 S.W. 874, 185 Ky. 207—South Covington & C. St. Ry. Co. v. Heinrich, 186 S.W. 187, 170 Ky. 499.

65. Mo.—Leonard v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 239 S.W. 892.
10 C.J. p. 949 note 88.

66. Mo.—Parks v. St. Louis Transit Co., 96 S.W. 426, 119 Mo.App. 445—Gilroy v. St. Louis Transit Co., 92 S.W. 1152, 117 Mo.App. 663.

67. Mich.—Morris v. Detroit United Ry., 193 N.W. 871, 223 Mich. 264.
Mo.—Morris v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 223 S.W. 784—Elliot v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 214 S.W. 234, 201 Mo.App. 662.
10 C.J. p. 948 note 85.

Knowledge essential

Where a street car passenger attempts to alight when the car stops at an unusual place, knowledge of the conductor, or proof of facts charging him with knowledge, that the passenger is attempting to get off at such place is essential to a recovery for personal injuries caused by the starting of the car while he is doing so.—Lang v. Omaha, etc., St. R. Co., 148 N.W. 964, 96 Neb. 740.

68. Cal.—Hoffman v. Pacific Electric Co., 188 P. 597, 45 Cal. App. 751.
Mich.—Morris v. Detroit United Ry., 193 N.W. 871, 223 Mich. 264.
10 C.J. p. 949 note 86.

Stop to replace trolley

Mich.—Morris v. Detroit United Ry., 193 N.W. 871, 223 Mich. 264.

69. Del.—Coyle v. People's R. Co., 80 A. 638, 23 Del. 454.
10 C.J. p. 949 note 87.

70. Ill.—Lundquist v. Chicago Rys. Co., 137 N.E. 92, 305 Ill. 106, affirming 221 Ill. App. 654.

passenger is attempting to board or alight, it is not negligence to start the car,[71] unless it is started in an unusual and violent manner;[72] and this is particularly true where the car has stopped at a point other than a regular stopping place for some reason other than for receiving or discharging passengers.[73]

A sudden or unusual movement of a street car while a passenger is boarding or alighting is not negligence per se, but its culpability depends on the circumstances of time and place, or of knowledge that such movement may injure a passenger.[74] For example, it has been held that the sudden acceleration or starting of the car may not without more constitute negligence as regards a passenger within the body of the car, notwithstanding he has indicated by signal that he intends to alight at a certain place.[75] On the other hand, it has been held that a jerk or movement may constitute negligence for which the carrier is liable, where it is made at a regular stopping place or at a place where it is customary for the company to take on or discharge passengers,[76] or where the employees in charge of the car know, or have reason to know, that such person is boarding or alighting.[77] Moreover, a sudden starting of a street car may constitute negligence as regards a passenger who is known to the motorman to be in such position that he could not protect himself against even an ordinary jerk or lurch of the car by gripping some part of the car or its equipment.[78] Where a street car is stopped to discharge passengers, a sudden starting of the car or a sudden stopping of such movement resulting in injury to a passenger who is about to alight may also constitute negligence.[79]

g. Starting Up Car before Stopping

Where, after slowing down, as if to stop, at a place where a passenger seeks to board or alight, a street car suddenly starts up without stopping, thereby causing injury to such passenger, the carrier may be liable.

Where a street car slows down and then suddenly starts up again before it has fully stopped, the carrier will be liable for injury to a passenger resulting therefrom, if the passenger while in the exercise of due care has reason to think that the slowing down is for the purpose of enabling him to get on board or to alight,[80] provided those in charge of the car know, or have reason to know, of the passenger's attempt to board or alight,[81] or the place is one where passengers should naturally be expected to get aboard or alight.[82] The mere slackening of the speed of a street car, under circumstances not amounting to an invitation to board, followed by a speeding up of the car without stopping, does not, however, constitute negligence as regards one injured while attempting to board the car,[83] and it is not negligence to increase the speed of the car where the employees in charge thereof

71. Mo.—Husbands v. St. Louis Electric Terminal Ry. Co., App., 196 S.W. 78
10 C.J. p. 937 note 14, p. 949 note 90.

72. Ky.—Samuels v. Louisville R. Co., 151 S.W. 37, 151 Ky. 90.
Tex.—San Antonio Tract. Co. v. Badgett, Civ.App., 158 S.W. 803.

73. Mo.—Husbands v. St. Louis Electric Terminal Ry. Co., App., 196 S.W. 78
10 C.J. p. 949 note 92.

74. Conn.—Cavanaugh v. Connecticut Co., 149 A. 131, 110 Conn. 698—Belledeau v. Connecticut Co., 149 A. 127, 110 Conn. 625.
10 C.J. p. 949 note 94.

75. Mass.—Desautels v. Massachusetts Northeastern St. Ry. Co., 177 N.E. 578, 276 Mass. 381—Gollis v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry., 149 N.E. 607, 254 Mass. 157.

76. U.S.—Virginia Public Service Co. v. Silver, C.C.A.Va., 68 F.2d 230
Ala.—Van Tinder v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 80 So. 858, 202 Ala. 474
10 C.J. p. 949 note 95

77. U.S.—Virginia Public Service Co. v. Silver, C.C.A.Va., 68 F.2d 230.
10 C.J. p. 950 note 96.

78. Conn.—Cavanaugh v. Connecticut Co., 149 A. 131, 110 Conn. 698—Belledeau v. Connecticut Co., 149 A. 127, 110 Conn. 625.

79. U.S.—Virginia Public Service Co. v. Silver, C.C.A.Va., 68 F.2d 230.
Pa.—Laub v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 97 Pa.Super. 323.

Distinguished from starting before passenger seated

"There is a difference . . . between the case in which the passenger is fully and fairly upon the car, which he has just boarded, and the case in which the car has stopped to discharge passengers and they are in the act of leaving it. Our common experience teaches us that in the former case the passenger must anticipate that the car may start before he is seated, and that the movement may be abrupt. In the latter case the passenger has a right to assume that it will remain stationary until those who are being discharged have an opportunity to alight, and its sudden movement is unexpected"—Laub v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 97 Pa.Super. 323, 327.

80. U.S.—Virginia Public Service Co. v. Silver, C.C.A.Va., 68 F.2d 230
Mo.—Chapman v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 233 S.W. 177—Kern v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 259 S.W. 821, 214 Mo.App. 232—Harriman v. Dunham, App., 196 S.W. 443
Wash.—Switzer v. City of Seattle, 294 P. 225, 159 Wash. 540, modified on other grounds 298 P. 347.
10 C.J. p. 950 note 97.

81. Mo.—Harriman v. Dunham, App., 196 S.W. 443.
Wash.—Switzer v. City of Seattle, 294 P. 225, 159 Wash. 540, modified on other grounds 298 P. 347
10 C.J. p. 950 note 98.

82. Mo.—Kern v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 259 S.W. 821, 214 Mo.App. 232
10 C.J. p. 950 note 99.

83. Cal.—Hildebrant v. City and County of San Francisco, 231 P. 1008, 69 Cal.App. 590.

On curve and approaching stopping place

Mere slacking of speed of street car when rounding curve and approaching stopping place was not in itself an invitation for one to be-

do not know, and have no reason to know, of a passenger's attempt to board or alight;[84] and, where the car merely slackens its speed for the purpose of letting an intending passenger get on, the conductor is not bound to ascertain whether any person might be alighting while the car is in motion.[85]

h. Seeing That Passengers Have Reached Place of Safety

A street railway has the duty to see that passengers boarding or alighting from street cars have reached a place of safety before starting such cars.

Where a car has stopped for the purpose of letting one or more passengers on or off, even though it has stopped for a reasonable length of time, and although it is not a regular stopping place, it is the duty of the employees in charge of the car to see, before starting it, that all passengers attempting to get on or off have reached a place of safety,[86] and this duty is not dispensed with by a company rule requiring conductors of cars, stopped before crossing railroad tracks, to go forward and look for approaching trains before signaling the motorman to proceed;[87] nor may a mere lack of knowledge that a passenger is in a position of danger in boarding or alighting relieve the carrier from liability,[88] unless such lack of knowledge is caused by an act of the passenger, as by his boarding or alighting by an unusual mode of ingress or egress.[89] The rule requiring the carrier to see, before starting its car, that passengers boarding or alighting therefrom have reached a place of safety has been held to apply even where the car has been stopped for some other purpose than for receiving or discharging passengers;[90] but it has been held that this rule does not apply to one who, although on the car, has not become a passenger.[91] Under the general rule, stated previously in this paragraph, where a passenger boarding a street car has reached a place of safety within the car, the carrier is not liable for injuries sustained by the starting of the car,[92] unless it is moved in a violent, unusual, or reckless manner;[93] nor may the carrier be liable for injuries resulting to an alighting passenger from the operation of the car in starting on its way after the passenger has been given an opportunity to reach a place of safety,[94] particularly where there is nothing to show that the motorman or conductor come a passenger, and it was not in itself negligence to reduce speed under such circumstances or to increase it afterward.—Hildebrant v. City and County of San Francisco, 231 P. 1008, 69 Cal.App. 590.

84. Mich.—Schultz v. Michigan United R. Co., 123 N.W. 594, 158 Mich. 665, 27 L.R.A.,N.S., 503.
10 C.J. p 950 note 1.

85. Ohio—Ashtabula Rapid Transit Co. v. Holmes, 65 N.E. 877, 67 Ohio St 153.

86. Ill.—Griswold v. Chicago Rys. Co., 253 Ill.App. 498, affirmed 170 N.E. 845, 339 Ill. 94
Pa.—Jamieson v. Pittsburgh Rys Co., 163 A. 292, 309 Pa. 197—Lyons v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 152 A. 687, 301 Pa. 499.
10 C.J. p 951 note 3.

87. W.Va.—Cain v. Kanawha Traction & Electric Co., 95 S.E. 88, 81 W.Va. 631.

Duty to boarding or alighting passengers first

"Neither the rule of the company nor the rule of reason required the conductor to leave his car to perform that duty before he discharged his duty to passengers getting off and on the car."—Cain v. Kanawha Traction & Electric Co., 95 S.E. 88, 81 W.Va. 631.

88. N.Y.—Smith v. Kingston City R. Co., 67 N.Y.S. 135, 55 App.Div. 143, affirmed 62 N.E. 1100, 169 N.Y. 616
10 C.J. p 952 note 6.

89. Ky.—Central Kentucky Tract. Co. v. Chapman, 124 S.W. 830.
Mo.—Cramer v. Springfield Tract. Co., 87 S.W. 24, 112 Mo.App. 350
10 C.J. p 952 note 7.

90. Ill.—West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Manning, 48 N.E. 958, 170 Ill. 417.
10 C.J. p 952 note 4.

91. Mass.—Wheeler v. Boston El. R. Co., 107 N.E. 938, 220 Mass. 298.

92. Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v. Carroll, 94 So. 743, 208 Ala. 426
Iowa—Worez v. Des Moines City Ry Co., 156 N.W. 867, 175 Iowa 1.
R.I.—Straight v. United Electric Rys. Co., 128 A. 571, 46 R.I. 383.

Reason for rule

"The adoption of any other rule would involve intolerable delays in traffic."—Straight v. United Electric Rys. Co., 128 A. 571, 572, 46 R.I. 383

Vestibule

Boarding passenger, who has solidly placed both feet on vestibule floor, has reached a place of safety within the text rule, and this notwithstanding passenger is known to be on way to body of car and required to take upward step to reach it.—Straight v. United Electric Rys. Co., 128 A. 571, 46 R.I. 383.

93. Ill.—Sczuck v. Chicago Rys. Co., 229 Ill.App. 325.
Mass.—Gollis v. Eastern Massachusetts Street Ry., 149 N.E. 607, 254 Mass. 157.
10 C.J. p 949 note 93.

94. Mass.—Noonan v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N.E. 811, 263 Mass. 305.
Wis.—Steinburg v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., 266 N.W. 793—Zalewski v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., 263 N.W. 577, 219 Wis. 541.

Reasonable opportunity

In absence of evidence tending to show that a one-man street car motorman knew or ought in exercise of due care to have known that passenger was in a place of danger, only duty owed to passenger after passenger had safely alighted from car was to give passenger a reasonable opportunity to get beyond danger zone.—Steinburg v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., Wis., 266 N.W. 793.

Assuming withdrawal by passenger

After passenger was safely off street car and afforded a reasonable opportunity to walk to a place of safety, motorman who was in sole charge of car had right to assume that passenger would withdraw far enough to avoid being struck by rear end of car as it swung around curve in usual manner.—Steinburg v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., Wis., 266 N.W. 793.

Duty to look to rear

After passenger had safely stepped from a one-man street car and car was started, motorman was not under duty to look to rear to ascertain whether passenger was in a position so close to car as to be in danger of being hit by the overhang knew or should have known that at the time the car was started the alighting passenger was in a position of danger.[95] On the other hand, where a passenger who has alighted from a street car stopped at a curve is injured by the overhang of the car as it starts up before the passenger has had an opportunity to reach a place of safety, the company may be liable.[96] It cannot be said as a matter of law, however, that it is culpable negligence to start a street car before a passenger has reached what is termed a "place of safety."[97] Particular care is required, before starting a car, which has been stopped on an abrupt curve, to see that boarding passengers are safely aboard the car.[98]

Crowded car. The rule requiring carriers to see that passengers boarding or alighting have reached a place of safety applies, although the car is crowded, making it difficult to see from within it whether passengers are boarding or alighting,[99] and in such a case the conductor is not justified in relying on information given him by one standing on the rear platform of the car;[1] but, if this duty may be performed equally as well from inside the car as at any other point, the conductor need not be on the platform at the time.[2]

§ 734. Elevator Cases

A carrier of passengers by elevator is under a duty to exercise the highest degree of care to avoid injury to passengers entering or leaving its elevators.

As in the case of other types of carriers, see supra § 723, a carrier of passengers by elevator is required to exercise the highest degree of care to avoid injury to passengers entering or leaving the elevator[3] and has the duty of seeing that the place which they are invited to use in entering or leaving is safe for that purpose.[4] It is the duty of a carrier by elevator to allow a reasonable time for passengers, in the exercise of ordinary care, to enter its car with safety,[5] and, where the person in charge of an elevator starts it suddenly, before a person who has entered it has had an opportunity to obtain his balance and stability, it is negligence rendering the operator of the elevator liable to a passenger for injuries thereby sustained;[6] and it is thereof as car swung around curve in usual manner.—Steinburg v Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., Wis, 266 N W. 793

Overhang

(1) Where passenger had alighted from street car and walked fifty feet alongside of car to crosswalk at which she turned to go to curb and was struck by rear end of car after it had moved forward and rear end swung outward while rounding curve, evidence was held insufficient to establish negligence on part of street car operator in respect of allowing passenger to reach place of safety, in respect of starting car forward on curve or in respect of keeping proper lookout.—Zalewski v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co, 263 N.W. 577, 219 Wis. 541.

(2) Where seven to nine seconds elapsed between the time that a passenger alighted and the time that he was struck by the overhang of the car, and it appeared that he could have reached a place of safety in two or three short steps, it was held that the company was not liable for his injuries.—Steinburg v Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., Wis., 266 N W. 793

(3) Duty to warn of danger see supra § 724.

95. Mass.—Noonan v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N.E. 811, 263 Mass. 305.

96. Conn.—St. John v. Connecticut Co., 131 A. 396, 103 Conn 641.
Ill.—Griswold v Chicago Rys. Co., 253 Ill App. 498, affirmed 170 N.E. 845, 339 Ill. 94.
Mo.—Took v. Wells, 53 S.W.2d 389, 331 Mo 249
N.Y.—Wilson v International Ry. Co, 199 N.Y.S. 562, 205 App.Div. 275.
Pa.—Jamieson v. Pittsburgh Rys Co, 163 A. 292, 309 Pa 197—Lyons v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 152 A. 687, 301 Pa 499.
Wash.—Holm v City of Seattle, 294 P. 261, 159 Wash. 618
10 C J p 951 note 3 [j].

97. Kan.—Hopson v. Union Traction Co, 167 P. 1059, 101 Kan. 499.

Reason for rule

"The rule governing such instances must of practical necessity be dependent on the facts of each given case."—Hopson v. Union Traction Co., 167 P 1059, 1061, 101 Kan. 499.

98. Cal.—Drury v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 282 P. 525, 102 Cal. App. 58

Reason for rule

"It should be observed that, when a street car regularly stops for passengers at a safety zone which is located at the beginning of an abrupt turn in the course of the track, greater care should be exercised to see that the passengers are safely aboard and that the car is carefully started and operated around the curve, for the reason that the sudden change in the direction in which the car is traveling is likely to increase the danger to those who may remain on the steps or platform of the car."—Drury v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 282 P. 525, 527, 102 Cal. App. 58.

99. D.C.—Guenther v. Metropolitan R. Co, 23 App D C. 493
Ill.—Hamilton v. Kankakee Electric R. Co., 158 Ill.App. 422.
10 C J p 952 note 8

1. La.—Grant v New Orleans R, etc., Co, 56 So 897, 129 La 811
Pa.—McCurdy v. United Tract. Co, 15 Pa Super 29.

2. Va.—Fanshaw v. Norfolk, etc, Tract. Co., 61 S E 790, 108 Va 300

3. Mo.—McDermed v. Baker, App., 20 S.W 2d 597
Tex.—City Nat. Bank v. Pigott, Civ App., 270 S.W. 234.

4. Mo.—Jenkins v. Missouri State Life Ins Co, 69 S.W.2d 666, 334 Mo 941—McDermed v. Baker, App., 20 S W 2d 597.

Corpus Juris is cited with approval in Jenkins v. Missouri State Life Ins Co, 69 S W 2d 666, 670, 334 Mo 941

Projecting door

Where the lower door of the elevator at the floor where a passenger was invited to alight projected above the floor of the elevator causing a passenger to trip as she attempted to alight, the carrier was held to be negligent for failure to furnish a reasonably safe place to alight.—McDermed v. Baker, Mo.App, 20 S. W.2d 597

5. Ohio.—Ohio Traction Co. v. Flynn, 26 Ohio Cir.Ct., N S, 250.
10 C.J. p 952 note 12

6. Ohio.—Ohio Traction Co. v. Flynn, supra.
10 C.J. p 952 note 13.

particularly necessary that a child passenger shall be granted this opportunity, as in his case there is greater danger of serious consequences from the sudden and rapid motion of the car.[7] An elevator must also be held a reasonable time for passengers to alight;[8] and it has been held that, where the car stops to permit a passenger to alight, the operator must before starting use reasonable care to ascertain if others are about to leave the car, and that it is not necessary that every passenger who wishes to leave at that place should repeat the direction to the operator to stop there.[9] A carrier by elevator is not, however, liable for injuries sustained by a passenger in attempting to alight while the elevator is in motion.[10] Failure to warn a passenger who is invited to alight at a particular floor that the floor of the elevator is not level with the floor of the building may constitute negligence.[11]

4. Care Required and Liability as to Machinery, Tracks and Appliances

§ 735. Sufficiency and Maintenance in General

The carrier must exercise the highest degree of care with reference to the sufficiency and maintenance of its roadbed, machinery, and other appliances used in the transportation of passengers.

The rule requiring a carrier to exercise the highest degree of practicable care and skill in performance of the transportation, stated supra § 678, is applicable in its full extent with reference to the sufficiency and maintenance of the roadbed, bridges, tracks, machinery, and other running appliances of a railroad, street railroad, bus, or taxi company engaged in the transportation of passengers,[12] the degree of care required depending largely on the probable seriousness of accidents that may result from defects.[13] If injuries result to a passenger from defects which could have been avoided by the exercise of the highest care and diligence on the part of the persons employed in the construction and maintenance of the carrier's road and the manufacture and repair of its rolling stock and machinery, the carrier is liable.[14] However, the carrier is not liable for an accident where it exercises such care, prudence, and foresight as is required under the circumstances.[15]

7. N.Y.—McGrell v. Buffalo Office Bldg. Co, 35 N.Y.S 599, 90 Hun 30, reversed on other grounds 47 N.E. 305, 153 N.Y. 265

8. R.I.—Bullock v. Butler Exch. Co., 46 A. 273, 22 R.I. 105.
Tex.—City Nat. Bank v. Pigott, Civ. App., 270 S.W. 234
10 C.J. p 953 note 15

Opening door as invitation to alight
Act of operator in opening door of passenger elevator, stopped at a floor level, constitutes an implied invitation for passengers to leave.—City Nat. Bank v. Pigott, Tex.Civ. App, 270 S.W 234.

9. Mo.—Luckel v. Century Bldg Co, 76 S.W. 1035, 177 Mo. 608—Becker v. Lincoln Real Est, etc., Co., 73 S.W. 581, 174 Mo 246.

10. R.I.—Bullock v. Butler Exch. Co., 46 A 273, 22 R.I. 105.

Opening door before reaching floor
The fact that defendant's servant in charge of an elevator opened the door before reaching the floor at which plaintiff was to alight and before the elevator had stopped did not constitute an invitation to plaintiff to alight before the elevator had stopped.—Bullock v. Butler Exch. Co., 46 A. 273, 22 R.I. 105.

11. Conn.—Bemis v. Plant, 106 A. 764, 93 Conn. 554.

12. Conn.—Dunne v. Connecticut Co., 195 A. 183
Ill.—Roberts v. Economy Cabs, 2 N.E.2d 128, 285 Ill.App. 424.
Mich.—Trent v. Pontiac Transp. Co., 275 S.W. 501, 281 Mich. 586.
Mo.—Thomas v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, App., 293 S.W 1051
Tenn.—Bowers v. N. C. & St. L Ry, 7 Tenn.Civ.App. 473—Perry v Knoxville Ry. & Light Co., 6 Tenn Civ.App. 243.
Tex.—Hines v. Parry, Civ.App, 227 S.W. 339, reversed on other grounds Com.App, 238 S.W. 886.
10 C.J. p 953 note 19

Trolley wires
Street railroad, as regards duty to passengers, had duty of exercising utmost care and skill in construction, management, and maintenance of electric wire—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co v Roman's Guardian, 23 S.W.2d 272, 232 Ky. 285.

13. N.Y.—Kelly v. Manhattan R Co., 20 N.E. 383, 112 N.Y. 443, 3 L.R.A 74
10 C.J. p 953 note 20.

Degree of care
(1) The degree of care required in keeping the company's appliances in reasonably good repair is that high degree of care which would be exercised by very cautious, competent, and prudent persons under the same or similar circumstances.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co v. Parks, 90 S.W. 343, 40 Tex.Civ.App. 480.

(2) It is the duty of a carrier to exercise that high degree of care which a very competent and prudent person would exercise in furnishing reasonably safe appliances and attachments necessary for the accommodation of its passengers, and it is also incumbent on it to use the same care to see that such appliances and attachments are kept in a reasonably safe condition.—Houston, etc., R Co. v. Swancey, Tex.Civ.App., 128 S.W. 677.

14. La.—Haynes v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co 74 So 538, 140 La 1019
10 C.J. p 953 note 21.

Independent contractor
The exercise of this care on the part of the carrier itself cannot be avoided by turning over the construction or maintenance of roadbed or track to an independent contractor—Virginia Cent. R. Co. v. Sanger, 15 Gratt 230, 56 Va. 230.

Where snowsheds are constructed over a railroad track, but not high enough to enable a person to walk over the highest cars of a freight train with safety, and a person in charge of stock, properly passing along the top of the train, is injured by a collision with such snowsheds, he may recover.—Nelson v. Southern Pac. Co., 55 P. 364, 18 Utah 244—Saunders v. Southern Pac. Co., 44 P. 932, 13 Utah 275

15. Iowa.—Hauser v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 219 N.W. 60, 205 Iowa 940, 58 A.L.R. 687.
La.—Martin v Interurban Transp. Co, 131 So. 514, 15 La.App. 256.
10 C.J. p 953 note 22.

§ 736. Inspection

The care required of a carrier as to its equipment requires such inspection thereof as the highest degree of care and foresight would suggest, so far as practicable with the carrying on of its business.

The care required as to roadbed, track, machinery, and appliances is not fully exercised by an originally safe construction, but involves such constant inspection for the purpose of discovering defects or dangers which may be developed in the operation of the road, and in remedying the same, as the highest degree of care and foresight would suggest, so far as practicable, consistently with the carrying on of the carrier's business, and a neglect of this duty renders the carrier liable to passengers who may be injured by reason of any defect which might have been discovered by such inspection.[16] This inspection with respect to both its mode[17] and frequency[18] must be such as can be done consistently with the conduct of the carrier's business. The frequency of inspection is dependent on the liability to impairment, the consequences of which may be apprehended as a result of defective conditions;[19] but the carrier is not required to keep up a continuous inspection,[20] or to know at each moment the condition of every part of a train.[21]

Under circumstances involving peculiar peril, such as a freshet, endangering the safety of the track, the carrier should inspect its tracks with more than ordinary promptitude to discover whether danger has developed;[22] and it has been held that inspection should be made both during and after extraordinary storms in order to prevent accidents.[23]

§ 737. Latent Defects

Generally the duty of a carrier as to furnishing safe machinery and appliances is discharged by a purchase thereof from a competent and reputable manufacturer and an inspection thereof to discover defects by tests which the highest degree of care and prudence suggest.

While it has been held that a carrier is liable for injuries sustained by passengers in consequence of accidents resulting from defects in its machinery, notwithstanding the defects were latent and could not have been discovered by the carrier's ordinary inspection, if the manufacturer could have ascertained them by application of a reasonable test,[24]

16. Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Roman's Guardian, 23 S.W.2d 272, 232 Ky. 285.
La.—Haynes v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 74 So. 538, 140 La. 1019—Martin v. Interurban Transp. Co., 131 So. 514, 15 La.App. 256
Mont.—Batch v. Helena Light & Ry. Co., 159 P. 411, 52 Mont 517.
Ohio—Jones v. Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co., 12 N.E.2d 279, 133 Ohio St. 118.
Tex.—Hines v. Parry, Civ.App., 227 S.W. 339, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 238 S.W. 886.
10 C.J. p 953 note 23.

Mode of inspection insufficient

Where straps in a street car used for registering fares were inspected by looking at them, but were not tested by ringing fares, the company was liable where a strap broke, causing the conductor to fall upon plaintiff.—Batch v. Helena Light & Ry Co., 159 P. 411, 52 Mont. 517.

17. Ga.—Leslie v. Georgia Power Co., 171 S.E. 395, 47 Ga.App. 723
10 C.J. p 954 note 24.

Thoroughness of inspection

The inspection must be as thorough as the dangers incident to the business make necessary.—Rouston v. Detroit United R. Co., 115 N.W. 62, 151 Mich. 237.

Brakes of car from another road

A carrier receiving a car from another road is not required to make a scientific inspection of the brakes of such car to ascertain whether they are safe, but only a practical inspection, or an inspection consistent with the reasonable dispatch of its business.—Western Maryland R. Co. v State, 53 A. 969, 95 Md. 637.

Method used by carriers generally

(1) A carrier is responsible for a lack of exercise of such diligence as would ordinarily be used by a common carrier in the inspection of its equipment for defects.—Trent v. Pontiac Transp. Co., 275 N.W. 501, 281 Mich. 586

(2) Bus company's method of inspecting tie rod and steering device, being same as used by carriers generally was held sufficient and to relieve carrier from liability for break from latent defect.—Martin v. Interurban Transp. Co., 131 So. 514, 15 La. App. 256.

(3) A bus company inspecting its tires in accordance with the customary inspection of tires made generally by bus companies throughout the country has been held to discharge its duty sufficiently in this respect —Ormond v. Wisconsin Power & Light Co., 216 N.W. 489, 194 Wis 305.

Removing part to test strength

As regards liability for injuries to passengers, it was not carrier's duty to have tie rod of recent acquisition and standard manufacture taken loose from bus and its strength tested.—Martin v. Interurban Transp Co., 131 So 514, 15 La App. 256.

18. Ga.—Leslie v. Georgia Power Co., 171 S E 395, 47 Ga.App 723
N.J.—Griffin v Hohorst, Inc., 185 A. 535, 14 N.J Misc. 421.
10 C J. p 954 note 25.

19. Ga.—Leslie v. Georgia Power Co., 171 S E. 395, 47 Ga.App. 723.
10 C.J. p 954 note 26.

20. Ga.—Leslie v. Georgia Power Co, supra
Mo.—Taylor v. Missouri Pac R. Co., 279 S W. 115, 311 Mo 604.
Neb.—Belder v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 272 N W. 220
N J.—Hunter v. Public Service Ry Co, 144 A. 305, 105 N J.Law 300—Griffin v. Hohorst, Inc, 185 A 535, 14 N J Misc. 421—Casale v. Public Service Co-ordinated Transport, 160 A. 326, 10 N J.Misc. 611.
R I.—Bines v. United Electric Rys Co, 148 A. 417, 50 R I. 438.
10 C.J. p 954 note 27.

21. Ga.—Leslie v. Georgia Power Co, 171 S E. 395, 47 Ga.App. 723.
10 C J. p 954 note 27.

22. Me.—Libby v. Maine Cent R. Co, 26 A. 943, 85 Me. 34, 20 L.R.A. 812.
Mo.—Cobb v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co, 50 S W. 894, 149 Mo. 609.
Act of God, vis major, or inevitable accident see supra § 697.

23. N C.—Hardy v Carolina Cent. R Co., 74 N C 734, 76 N.C. 5
Tex.—International, etc., R Co v. Halloren, 53 Tex. 46, 37 Am R 744.

24. Cal.—Morgan v. Southern Pac Co., 187 P. 74, 45 Cal App. 229.
La.—Haynes v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co, 74 So. 538, 140 La. 1019.
10 C.J. p 955 note 34.

Manufacturer as carrier's agent

A railroad was not excused from exercising the utmost care and diligence for the safety of passengers to

there is authority to the contrary,[25] and it may be stated as a general rule, as laid down in Corpus Juris, quoted and cited with approval,[26] that the duty of the carrier as to furnishing machinery and appliances originally safe, suitable, and adequate is discharged by a purchase thereof from a competent and reputable manufacturer[27] and an inspection to detect defects discoverable by any tests which the highest degree of care and prudence can suggest, and hence it will not be liable for injuries resulting from hidden defects which could not be discovered and provided against in the exercise of such care and prudence.[28] However, while a mere lack of knowledge of a latent defect will not excuse a carrier who has not exercised the proper degree of care to discover such defects,[29] a carrier is not liable for latent defects which could not be discovered by the most careful and thorough examination,[30] and certainly is not liable for latent defects of such a character that no degree of skill, care, and foresight could detect their existence.[31]

§ 738. Well Known and Approved Machinery and Appliances

While a carrier is not required to adopt and use every new and untried machine or appliance, it has a duty to provide and make use of the best and most approved machinery and appliances for the safety of passengers then known and in general practical use.

Under the rule stated in Corpus Juris and approved,[32] a carrier of passengers must keep pace with science and art and modern improvement in its appliances,[33] and its duty to its passengers requires that it shall exercise the highest degree of care which is reasonably consistent with the carrying on of its business[34] in providing and making use of the best and most approved machinery and appliances for the safety of passengers then known and in general practical use.[35] Such machinery and appliances as have been in general use and have been found to be safe and efficient may be used;[36] but the mere fact that those used are such as are in common use, irrespective of their safety and sufficiency, is not enough,[37] and the fact that an appliance is constructed in the way that such appliances are usually constructed does not relieve the carrier of negligence, if the method of construction is inherently negligent[38] or dangerous.[39]

A carrier, however, is not required to adopt and use every new and untried machine or appliance, or discover defects in a rail by the fact that the rail was constructed by a competent and skilled manufacturer, from whom it was purchased, the manufacturer having been the road's agent or servant in rolling the rail, for whose want of care it was responsible—Morgan v. Southern Pac. Co., 187 P. 74, 45 Cal.App. 229.

25. Mich—Grand Rapids, etc., R. Co. v. Huntley, 38 Mich. 537, 31 Am.R. 321.

26. U.S.—Henson v. Fidelity & Columbia Trust Co., D.C.Ky., 3 F.Supp. 950, 953, affirmed, C.C.A., 68 F.2d 144, rehearing denied 69 F.2d 778.
La.—Martin v. Interurban Transp. Co., 131 So. 514, 517, 15 La.App. 256.

27. Va.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, denying rehearing 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va. 549, addendum opinion 143 S.E. 299, 150 Va. 647.

Assuming absence of latent defects
It has been held that a railway may assume that a rail furnished and tested by a standard maker, which did not have apparent defects, is a good rail.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, denying rehearing 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va. 549, addendum opinion 143 S.E. 299, 150 Va. 647

28. U.S.—Holland v. Director General of Railroads, C.C.A.N.J., 273 F. 928.
Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
Mo.—Galloway v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 233 S.W. 385.
N.J.—Glassmeyer v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 167 A. 750, 11 N.J.Misc. 675.
10 C.J. p. 954 note 30.

29. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.

30. U.S.—Holland v. Director General of Railroads, C.C.A.N.J., 273 F. 928
10 C.J. p. 955 note 31.

31. U.S.—Holland v. Director General of Railroads, supra.
10 C.J. p. 955 note 32.

Wheels
It has been held that a carrier is not liable for defects in a car wheel not discoverable by the usual and proper tests.—Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Beggs, 85 Ill. 80, 28 Am.R. 613—10 C.J. p. 955 note 33.

32. Pa.—Strobel v. Park, 140 A. 877, 878, 292 Pa. 200, 57 A.L.R. 253.

33. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
10 C.J. p. 955 note 35.

34. Ky.—Riley v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 21 S.W.2d 990, 231 Ky. 564.
10 C.J. p. 955 note 36.

Passengers carried on freight trains
A railroad company operating freight trains on which passengers are allowed to ride is not required to equip them with safety devices such as are usual only to passenger trains and are not practicable in connection with freight trains.—Olds v. New York, etc., R. Co., 51 N.E. 450, 172 Mass. 73—Heyward v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 48 N.E. 773, 169 Mass. 466.

35. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
Ill.—Grubczak v. Chicago Rys. Co., 242 Ill.App. 384.
10 C.J. p. 955 note 37.

Window is an appliance
Window in passenger car or bus is "appliance of transportation" as to which carrier should adopt every reasonable known safeguard to protect traveling public.—Orms v. Traction Bus Co., 150 A. 897, 300 Pa. 474

36. Ohio.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Keil, 26 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N.S., 445.
10 C.J. p. 956 note 38.

37. U.S.—Kitsap County Transp. Co. v. Harvey, C.C.A.Wash., 15 F.2d 166, 48 A.L.R. 1420.
10 C.J. p. 956 note 39.

Must be "suitable"
Although the appliance be the last achievement of mechanical and scientific skill, if it is not a suitable appliance to be used in the transportation of passengers, it is negligence to employ it for that purpose, at least without adequate warning and protection against the perils attending such employment.—Jacobi v. Builders' Realty Co., 164 P. 394, 174 Cal. 708, L.R.A.1917E 696

38. Tex.—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Werline, Civ.App., 84 S.W.2d 288, error dismissed.
10 C.J. p. 956 note 40.

39. U.S.—Kitsap County Transp. Co.

the best in use, but which is not in general use;[40] nor to provide its vehicles with all known and approved appliances necessary to protect its passengers from injury;[41] nor, under the approved statement of the rule in Corpus Juris,[42] is it required to adopt machinery and appliances which are so expensive as to make such adoption impractical for the carrying on of its business,[43] although the mere fact that the adoption entails additional cost will not relieve the carrier from the duty of adopting it.[44]

§ 739. Care as to Track

A railroad or street railroad company owes a duty to its passengers of exercising the highest degree of care to construct and maintain in an adequate and safe condition its roadbed, track, bridges, and culverts.

A railroad or street railroad company owes a duty to its passengers of exercising the highest degree of care and foresight to construct and maintain in a safe and adequate condition its roadbed and track,[45] including the provision of sound and adequate rails,[46] properly fastened.[47] The carrier must exercise the highest degree of care to construct and maintain safe and adequate trestles, and bridges.[48] Likewise the carrier must exercise

v Harvey, C.C.A.Wash., 15 F.2d 166, 48 A.L.R. 1420.
10 C.J. p 956 note 41.

40. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
Ky.—Riley v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 21 S.W.2d 990, 231 Ky. 564.
10 C.J. p 956 note 42.

Door check

A carrier is not negligent because a door of a toilet room on a car, which closes on the hand of a passenger, where he has thrust it to prevent falling after losing his balance, is not supplied with a door check, so that it will close automatically, since carriers do not ordinarily equip such doors with such checks, and the door is a customary appliance in good repair and not obviously dangerous and is being used in a usual and customary manner.—Merton v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 137 N.W. 767, 150 Wis. 540.

41. La.—Murphy v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 169 So. 890

Upright supports

Carrier was held not liable for failure to have upright supports installed in trolley bus at time of fall sustained by passenger when walking to his seat through starting of bus, even though stanchions afforded additional means of support for passengers, where sufficient protection was afforded without uprights.—Murphy v. New Orleans Public Service, La. App., 169 So. 890.

42. Ky.—Riley v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 21 S.W.2d 990, 993, 231 Ky. 564.

43. Ark.—Arkansas Midland R. Co. v. Canman, 13 S.W. 280, 52 Ark. 517.
10 C.J. p 956 note 43.

Block signals on branch line

Failure of railroad to equip branch line with automatic block signals was held not negligence as to passenger injured in train wrecked by robbers.—Riley v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 21 S.W.2d 990, 231 Ky. 564.

44. Ill.—Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Thompson, 56 Ill. 138.
Me.—Cameron v. Lewiston, etc., St. R. Co., 70 A. 534, 103 Me. 482, 125 Am.S.R. 315, 18 L.R.A.,N.S., 497.

45. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
Ark.—Fourche River Valley & I. T. Ry. Co. v. Camp, 214 S.W. 35, 139 Ark. 406.
Mo.—Thomas v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 293 S.W. 1051.
10 C.J. p 956 note 46.

Duty as to ties

(1) Railroad has duty to provide ties that appear to be in condition to carry load under stress of good rails in ordinary way.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, denying rehearing 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va. 549, addendum opinion 143 S.E. 299, 150 Va. 647.

(2) A railroad company will be liable for injuries to a passenger, which result from a derailment of the car in consequence of the giving way of rotten and unsafe ties in the roadway, if such defect in the roadway could have been discovered by a proper discharge of defendant's duties of inspection in time to avert the calamity.—Furnish v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 13 S.W. 1044, 102 Mo. 438, 22 Am.S.R. 781.

Extraordinary and unprecedented storms

In the construction of the roadbed and track the company is not bound absolutely to provide against extraordinary and unprecedented storms, floods, or other inevitable casualties caused by the hidden forces of nature, unknown to common experience, and which cannot be reasonably anticipated by that degree of engineering skill and experience required in the prudent construction of a railroad.—Libby v. Maine Cent. R. Co., 26 A. 943, 85 Me. 34, 20 L.R.A. 812.

Act of God, vis major, or inevitable accident generally see supra § 697.
Duty of railroad generally as to construction and maintenance of tracks and roadbed see C.J.S. title Railroads § 694, also 52 C.J. p. 160 n. 42–50

46. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
Mo.—Thomas v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 293 S.W. 1051.
10 C.J. p 956 note 47.

Liability dependent on negligence

Street railroad must be guilty of negligence to be liable for improper construction of its appliances.—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co., 138 A. 852, 290 Pa. 365.

Remote dangers

Street railway company in construction of appliances was not bound to guard against dangers which were remote.—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co., 138 A. 852, 290 Pa. 365.

47. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358
10 C.J. p 957 note 48.

48. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, supra.
10 C.J. p 957 note 49.

Where state or municipal bridge used

(1) A state bridge, the plans of which are approved and its construction thereunder supervised by state officers, which forms part of a highway and is used by a street railroad company with the consent or license of the state, but over which it has no control, is not such an appliance of the company by adoption as will render it liable for an injury to one of its passengers caused by a defect in a device for raising and lowering the bridge, which, although discoverable in the manufacture, is not apparent on ordinary observation.—Birmingham v. Rochester City, etc., R. Co., 32 N.E. 995, 137 N.Y. 13, 18 L.R.A. 764, overruling 59 Hun 583.

(2) A traction company which undertakes to pass over a bridge owned by a municipality without seeing to its safety is liable to its passengers for injuries resulting to them through the insufficiency of the bridge used to sustain the weight of highest degree of care to construct and maintain safe and adequate culverts,[49] and proper and efficient switches.[50]

Landslides. If the track is so constructed as to subject trains passing thereon to danger from landslides which might have been provided against, the company will be liable for injuries resulting from such dangerous condition.[51]

Number of tracks required. While it would be safer for all railroads to have two tracks and run all trains going in the same direction over the same track, this does not necessarily make it the duty of all railroads to have double tracks. The business of a road may, however, render it unsafe to use a single track, and necessary to the safety of the passengers to use a double one.[52]

§ 740. Obstruction on or near Track; Dangers from Animals

While a railroad must exercise a high degree of care to so construct and maintain its track that there will be no obstructions on or near the track which may imperil the safety of passengers in its cars, it has been held required to exercise only reasonable and ordinary care to discover objects on adjacent lands which may possibly obstruct its track.

A railroad or street railroad company must exercise a high degree of care so to construct and maintain its track that there will be no obstructions on or near the track which may imperil the safety of passengers on its cars,[53] and the carrier will be liable for injuries resulting from temporary obstructions on or near the track, which are there by the negligence of the carrier.[54] However, it has been held that the carrier is required to exercise only reasonable and ordinary care to discover objects off of its right of way, on lands adjacent thereto, which may possibly obstruct its track.[55]

Proximity of parallel tracks. To construct parallel tracks so close together that a passenger on a car on one track may be injured by a passing car on the other track may constitute negligence;[56] and it has been held that the carrier may be held responsible, although the tracks are so located under municipal direction, if the narrow clearance is caused by the company's putting on wider cars after the tracks are located.[57]

Danger from animals. The duty to provide against obstructions involves care to keep animals off the track,[58] and although a railroad company is under no obligation at common law to owners or the cars of such company.—Elgin, etc, Tract Co. v. Hench, 132 Ill.App. 535

49. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co v. Robertson, 83 So 102, 203 Ala. 358.
10 C.J. p 957 note 50.

50. Mo.—Thomas v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, App., 293 S.W. 1051.
10 C.J. p 957 note 51.

Locating switch on curve

Railroad violated no duty owing to passenger by having switch located on curve, so that engineer could not see it in time to avert danger from derailment by train robbers.—Riley v. Louisville & N R. Co, 21 S.W. 2d 990, 231 Ky. 564.

51. U.S.—Gleeson v. Virginia Midland R. Co, D.C., 11 S.Ct 859, 140 U.S. 435, 35 L.Ed. 458.
10 C.J. p 957 note 52.

52. Ark.—Arkansas Midland R. Co. v. Canman, 13 S.W. 280, 52 Ark. 517

53. Tex.—Texas & P. Ry Co. v. Hughes, Civ.App., 192 S.W. 1091, error refused.
10 C.J. p 957 note 54.

Trolley poles

(1) That poles were placed under municipal approval has been held not to exonerate the carrier from liability where the question was also present as to what care the carrier took to protect its passengers from injury by reason of the juxtaposition of the poles to the cars.—Capital Traction Co. v. Copland, 47 App.D.C 152.

(2) A street railroad company is not compelled so to construct and locate its tracks and poles that it will be physically impossible for a passenger, riding on running board of car, to bring himself in contact with poles.—Milliken v. Rhode Island Co., 99 A. 1023, 40 R.I. 82.

Warehouse doors over siding

It was the duty of a person who maintained double doors over a railroad's switch track leading into his warehouse safely to control his doors to prevent injury to a passenger on defendant railroad's car, removal by the railroad of a post set up to prevent the doors opening so far as to collide with passing cars not making out a prima facie case of negligence against it.—Kelly v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 113 A. 194 270 Pa. 149.

54. Mo.—Hoffman v. Western Union Telegraph Co App., 43 S.W.2d 902.
10 C.J. p 958 note 55.

Carrier not negligent

Where undisputed proof showed that timber, covering telegraph company's excavating hole between street car rails, wedged against street car axle bringing car to abrupt stop injuring passenger, street car company was held not negligent.—Hoffman v. Western Union Telegraph Co, Mo App., 43 S.W.2d 902.

Leaves on track

In determining whether it was negligent for a street railroad company not to remove leaves on the track, the jury should consider the nature of the obstruction, whether it was necessary to remove it, and the character and extent of the labor required so to do, keeping in view the degree of care required by the company in maintaining its tracks. —Eaton v. Wilmington City R. Co., 75 A. 369, 24 Del. 435.

55. W.Va.—Thomas v. Monongahela Valley Traction Co., 112 S.E. 228, 90 W.Va. 681.

Entry on adjacent land authorized by statute

A statute authorizing railroads to enter on the lands of any person and cut down standing trees that may be in danger of falling on the tracks, making compensation therefor, imposes a duty on a railroad, subject to the statute as a part of its charter, and the railroad must look out for and remove menacing trees standing adjacent to the right of way, and, for its failure so to do, it must respond in damages for breach of duty.—Rice v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 131 S.W. 374, 153 Mo. App. 35.

56. La.—Caillier v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 120 So. 76, 11 La. App. 93.
10 C.J. p 958 note 56.

57. Fla.—Jacksonville Electric Co. v. Dillon, 64 So. 669, 67 Fla 114.

58. Pa.—Lackawanna, etc, R Co. v. Chenewith, 52 Pa. 382, 91 Am.D. 168.

occupants of the adjacent land to maintain fences sufficient to keep animals off its track as stated in the C.J.S. title Railroads § 177, also 51 C.J. p 707 note 47 et seq, yet it is bound to use all reasonable care to prevent their straying on it, and thereby endangering passengers; and, if the want of a proper fence makes the road unsafe, and an accident happens to a passenger in consequence, the company will be liable;[59] and this is particularly true where the company is required by law to fence its track.[60] However, a statute relating to the liability of a railroad for injuries to stock on its failure to fence its track has been held inapplicable where the collision and injury to a passenger was caused by an object like an automobile on the track.[61]

§ 741 Safe Cars or Other Vehicles

a. In general
b Applications of rule

a. In General

Generally the duty of a carrier involves the exercise of the highest degree of care in furnishing cars and appliances which are safe.

While, by virtue of statutory provisions in at least one jurisdiction, a carrier of persons for reward is bound to provide vehicles safe and fit for the purposes to which they are put, and is not excused for default in this respect by any degree of care,[62] as a general rule the duty of a carrier, such as a railroad or street railroad company, involves the exercise of the highest care in furnishing cars which are safe and provided with proper appliances, and in keeping them in repair, and, if through a failure to exercise such care a passenger suffers an injury in consequence of any defect or unsafe condition of the vehicles or cars, or of the appliances thereof, the carrier is liable therefor,[63] and the carrier cannot delegate the performance of this 59. Ind.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Hendricks, 28 N.E. 58, 128 Ind 462.

10 C.J. p 958 note 60.

60. Tex.—Gulf, etc., R. Co. v Wilson, 15 S.W 280, 79 Tex. 371, 23 Am.S R 345, 11 L.R.A 486
10 C J. p 958 note 61.

61. Wis.—Smith v. Chicago, N. S. & M. R. R., 193 N.W. 64, 180 Wis. 259.

62. Okl.—Jacobsen v. Howard, 23 P. 2d 185, 164 Okl. 88—Sand Springs Ry. Co. v. Westhafer, 218 P. 525, 92 Okl. 89.

63. U.S.—Henson v. Fidelity & Columbia Trust Co, D.C.Ky., 3 F. Supp. 950, affirmed, C.C.A., 68 F.2d 144, rehearing denied 69 F.2d 778
Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v. Hughes, 76 S.W.2d 53, 189 Ark 1015—Chicago, R. I & P. Ry. Co v. McCrary, 16 S W.2d 466, 179 Ark 444.
Conn.—Briganti v. Connecticut Co., 175 A. 679, 119 Conn 316—Duffy v. J. W. Bishop Co, 122 A. 121, 99 Conn. 573.
La.—Haynes v Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 74 So. 538, 140 La. 1019—Martin v. Interurban Transp. Co, 131 So. 514, 15 La App. 256—Pinchera v. Shreveport Rys. Co, 124 So. 538, 12 La.App. 91.
Md.—Baltimore & O R. Co. v. Davis, 137 A 30, 152 Md 427.
Mass.—Casey v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 150 N.E. 850, 255 Mass. 33—Coleman v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 148 N.E. 819, 249 Mass. 155.
N.Y.—Fabian v. Schenectady Rapid Transit, 278 N.Y.S. 160, 243 App. Div. 834.
N.C.—Brown v. Asheville Power & Light Co, 88 S.E 858, 171 N.C. 555
S.C.—Hall v. Southern Ry. Co, 160 S.E. 584, 162 S.C. 260.
Tenn.—Cecil v. Jernigan, 4 Tenn App. 80.
Tex.—Rhodes v Houston, E. & W. T R. Co, Civ.App., 242 S W. 263—St Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rutherford, Civ.App., 184 S W. 700, error refused
10 C.J. p 959 note 63.

Corpus Juris is cited with approval in Grubczak v. Chicago Rys. Co., 242 Ill.App. 384, 388.

Liability dependent on duty

The liability of a carrier to a soldier falling from the box car in which he was riding depends on the duty of the carrier to furnish a guard for the door of the car, which might have prevented the accident —Gainer v. Hines, 184 N Y S. 768 194 App.Div. 21.

Foresight

A carrier, transporting soldiers in a box car, was not bound to foresee that one of the soldiers would stand within two feet of the open door for the purpose of pointing out the scenery to his companions—Gainer v. Hines, 184 N.Y S. 768, 194 App.Div 21.

Mail cars

The rule stated in the text is applicable to mail cars
Md.—Baltimore & O. R Co. v. Davis, 137 A. 30, 152 Md. 427.
Va.—Carter v. Washington & O. D Ry., 95 S E. 464, 122 Va. 458.

Poultry car

Where a produce company, shipping poultry, ordered an L. P. T. poultry car for a shipment, and defendant railway furnished a new car of the type, without defect, except the alleged defect of design or construction, that the grain bin underneath had too large a hole, the railway is not liable for injuries to the produce company's employee, riding with the car, when his leg passed through the hole in the bin when the train was moving, such defect being a latent defect as to the railroad company.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v Hopper, 217 S W. 661, 142 Tenn. 200.

What is not negligence

(1) Injury to a passenger when a severe jerk threw him against the glass covering of a tool box hanging perpendicularly near the door facing could not reasonably have been foreseen, and so placing the box was not negligence.—Coon v. Southern Ry. Co, 88 S.E. 510, 171 N C 759.

(2) In the absence of any statute requiring a barrier across the door of a box car in which soldiers were transported, or proof that a barrier was part of the equipment of the car, its absence in itself affords no proof of negligence—Gainer v Hines, 184 N.Y.S 768, 194 App Div. 21.

(3) Other illustrations see 10 C J. p 959 note 63 [d].

No prior accidents

That defendant street railway company's claim agent had received no report of prior accident due to skirt of passenger catching on knob which served as a bumper to intercept street car gate would not be a complete defense to charge of negligence. —Sander v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 175 P. 901, 38 Cal App. 222.

As to improvements not involving the safety of passengers, a carrier is not required to exercise the highest degree of care in the construction of its cars—Leyh v. Newburgh Electric R Co., 58 N Y.S. 479, 41 App. Div. 218, affirmed 61 N.E. 1131, 168 N.Y. 667.

duty and escape liability for its nonperformance.[61] The carrier is not, however, charged with the duty of providing or maintaining vehicles or appliances in such condition as will absolutely prevent injury to passengers;[65] and, generally, if the cars and appliances adopted by it are of the most approved type in general use by others engaged in a similar occupation, its duty in this respect is sufficiently performed.[66]

Foreign objects. The care required of a carrier with respect to foreign objects or substances in cars or on the platforms or steps thereof, such as snow and ice, baggage, parcels, banana peelings, etc., is considered infra § 744.

b. Applications of Rule

The rule requiring a carrier to exercise the highest degree of care in providing and keeping in safe condition its cars and appliances has been applied to handholds, seats, platforms, doors, brakes, window guards, etc.

A carrier is required to exercise the highest care in providing and keeping in a safe condition such appliances as handrails or handholds,[67] steps,[68] axles,[69] wheels,[70] seats,[71] footrests,[72] coupling arrangements,[73] headlights,[74] platform gates or doors on a street car,[75] overhead racks for packages,[76] and brakes,[77] and in providing bell ropes, where that is practicable in view of the nature of the business.[78]

Window guards or screens. While, under some circumstances, the carrier has a duty to effectually guard openings in its cars and to warn its passenger of the danger,[79] it is generally not regarded as negligence for a carrier to fail to put bars, screens, or other guards on the windows of its cars to prevent passengers from being injured.[80]

Passageway between cars; vestibules. A carrier is bound to keep the passageway between cars which passengers are expressly or impliedly invited to use in a safe condition.[81] While a railroad company is

Failure to equip a train with the tools usually carried by trains for emergency use in case of a wreck is negligence, and, where for want of such tools a passenger is not rescued as promptly as would have otherwise been practicable, the carrier will be responsible for damages for such additional suffering, regardless of whether the wreck itself was or was not caused by its negligence.—Jackson v. Natchez, etc., R. Co., 38 So. 701, 114 La. 981, 108 Am.S.R. 366, 70 L.R.A. 294.

64. U.S.—Henson v. Fidelity & Columbia Trust Co., D.C.Ky., 3 F. Supp. 950, affirmed, C.C.A., 68 F. 144, rehearing denied 69 F.2d 778.

65. Ill.—Grubczak v. Chicago Rys. Co., 242 Ill.App. 384.
10 C.J. p. 959 note 64.

Corpus Juris is cited with approval in Hauser v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 219 N.W. 60, 61, 205 Iowa 940, 58 A.L.R. 687.

66. La.—Murphy v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 169 So. 890.
Ohio.—Gorman v. City of Cleveland, 159 N.E. 136, 26 Ohio App. 109.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Keil, 26 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N.S., 445
Tex.—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Werline, Civ.App., 84 S.W.2d 288, error dismissed
10 C.J. p. 960 note 65.

Corpus Juris is cited and approved in Grubczak v. Chicago Rys. Co., 242 Ill.App. 384, 388.
Appliance inherently negligent or dangerous see supra § 738.

67. Mo.—Galloway v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 233 S.W. 385.
10 C.J. p. 960 note 66.

68. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Rowland's Adm'r, 14 S.W.2d 174, 227 Ky. 841.

Unreasonably high steps
Unreasonably high steps on vehicles, where dangerous to passengers, constitute negligent breach of carrier's duty.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Rowland's Adm'r, 14 S.W.2d 174, 227 Ky. 841.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bowman, 270 S.W. 471, 208 Ky. 39.

69. La.—Haynes v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 74 So. 538, 140 La. 1019.
10 C.J. p. 960 note 67.

70. Pa.—Meier v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 64 Pa. 225, 3 Am.R. 581.
10 C.J. p. 960 note 68.

71. Md.—Smith v. Blue Ridge Transp. Co., 191 A. 66.
Okl.—Chapman v. Red Ball Bus & Baggage Co., 49 P.2d 685, 173 Okl. 599
10 C.J. p. 960 note 69.

Duty not absolute
A carrier is not absolutely bound to furnish passengers safe seats, but is only chargeable with the exercise of a very high degree of care to provide reasonably safe seats.—Boyles v. Texas, etc., R. Co., Tex.Civ.App., 86 S.W. 936.

72. Ark.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. McCrary, 16 S.W.2d 466, 179 Ark. 444.

73. N.Y.—Gottlieb v. New York, etc., R. Co., 3 N.E. 344, 100 N.Y. 462.
10 C.J. p. 960 note 70.

74. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Jones, 71 Ala. 487
N.C.—Briggs v. Durham Tract. Co., 61 S.E. 373, 147 N.C. 389.

75. Mo.—Anderson v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 233 S.W. 203, 290 Mo. 1.
Or.—Adams v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 171 P. 219, 87 Or. 602, L.R.A.1918D 526.
10 C.J. p. 960 note 72.

The use of a street car without gates on the platforms is not negligence, in the absence of a statute forbidding such use, which will make the company liable for injuries received by a person thrown from the car.—Byron v. Lynn, etc., R. Co., 58 N.E. 1015, 177 Mass. 303.

76. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Roemmele, 162 S.W. 547, 157 Ky. 84.

77. Va.—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 162 S.E. 18, 157 Va. 628
10 C.J. p. 960 note 74

78. Ala.—Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Ashcraft, 48 Ala. 15.
Minn.—Oviatt v. Dakota Cent. R. Co., 45 N.W. 436, 43 Minn. 300

79. Ill.—Gilberts v. Rockford & I. Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 324.
10 C.J. p. 961 note 76.

Two to four inches clearance
Where proximity of a carrier's tracks is such as to leave a clearance of only two to four inches between passing cars and such condition has existed a considerable time it is the carrier's duty effectually to guard openings in its cars and to warn its passengers of the danger.—Gilberts v. Rockford & I. Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 324.

80. Ark.—Batte v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co., 199 S.W. 907, 131 Ark. 568.
Mo.—Malone v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 213 S.W. 864, 201 Mo.App. 489.
10 C.J. p. 961 note 77.

81. N.Y.—Scott v. New York Cent.

under no legal obligation to provide vestibules between its cars for its passengers, and a failure to do so is not of itself negligence,[82] where it provides such vestibules, it is its duty to use a high degree of care to maintain them in a safe condition.[83]

Heating cars. A railroad or street railroad company must also provide for the comfort of its passengers by furnishing suitable and safe means for heating its cars and keeping them warm in cold weather.[84]

Toilet rooms. Where toilet rooms are provided the carrier must use care to furnish and keep them in proper condition.[85]

Locomotives. A railroad company owes the duty to its passengers of using a high degree of care to have its locomotives in proper condition;[86] and this duty may extend to the providing of a safe spark arrester.[87]

§ 742. Elevator Cases

Owners of elevators must exercise the highest degree of care with respect to the safety of the car and appliances and make use of the most approved machinery and devices in general practical use for the safety of passengers.

Owners of passenger elevators, although not strictly common carriers of passengers, owe the same duty to those who by invitation, express or implied, are transported in the cars of such elevators, to exercise the highest degree of care, in view of the character of the mode of conveyance adopted, as to the safety of the car and appliances, and, where a passenger on an elevator is injured through some defect in the machinery or appliances, of which defect the proprietor knew, or by the exercise of the highest degree of care could have known and remedied, he is liable to the passenger for the injury thereby sustained.[88] While the own-

R. Co., 216 N.Y.S. 163, 216 App. Div. 623.
10 C.J p 961 note 78.

82. Tenn.—Louisville & N. R Co. v. Hutcherson, 8 Tenn App 235—Bowers v. N., C & St. L. Ry., 7 Tenn Civ.App. 473.
10 C J. p 961 note 79.

Passenger wrongfully on platform
Even where a carrier may be negligent in not having the platform of a car protected by vestibule doors, it is not negligent as to a passenger who stands on the platform, after being directed by the trainmen to go inside the car where he belongs, while the train is stopped on a trestle.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Gregory, 133 S W. 805, 141 Ky. 747, 35 L.R A.,N S., 317.

83. U.S.—Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co v Galvin, C.C A.Mich, 54 F.2d 202, certiorari denied 52 S. Ct. 407, 285 U S. 551, 76 L.Ed. 941.
N.J —Potter v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 174 A 734, 113 N J.Law 441.
N Y.—Scott v. New York Cent. R. Co., 216 N.Y.S. 163, 216 App.Div. 623.
Tenn.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hutcherson, 8 Tenn.App. 235.
10 C.J. p 961 note 80.

84. Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Powell, 56 S.E 1006, 127 Ga. 805, 810, 9 L R.A.,N.S., 769, 9 Ann.Cas 553.
10 C J p 961 note 84.

This rule in Corpus Juris is cited with approval.
Iowa —Hauser v Chicago, R I & P. Ry Co, 219 N W. 60, 61, 205 Iowa 940, 58 A.L R. 687
Ky.—Louisville & I Ry Co v Jones, 250 S.W 822, 823, 199 Ky. 150, 33 A.L.R. 165.

Degree of care
(1) Railroad, in selecting and maintaining coach heating system, had duty to exercise highest degree of care imposed on passenger carriers —Houston & T. C R. Co. v. Werline, Tex Civ App., 84 S.W 2d 288, error dismissed.

(2) A carrier of passengers is bound only to exercise that degree of care in endeavoring to keep its vehicles sufficiently warm which a very cautious and prudent person would exercise under the same or similar circumstances.—Zoccolillo v. Oregon Short Line R Co, 177 P. 201, 53 Utah 39
Providing for comfort and safety of passengers see infra § 744.

85. Tex.—Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McDonald, Com.App, 208 S W. 912, reversing, Civ.App, 160 S.W. 984.

Open toilets
Railroad's failure to furnish train with toilet having bowl or pan at the bottom of stool did not render it liable for injury to passenger's eye from small hard substance blown through opening in stool, such injury not having been foreseen by railroad as result of the use of open toilets.—Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co v. McDonald, Tex Com.App, 208 S W. 912, reversing, Civ.App, 160 S W. 984.

Door check
Failure of carrier to provide door check held not negligence rendering it liable to passenger losing finger, when on sudden lurch of train, car door which he was compelled to unfasten in order to enter toilet, slammed and caught his finger, it appearing that by exercise of ordinary care injury could have been averted, notwithstanding lurch.—Chesapeake & O Ry. Co. v. Hibbs, 128 S E 538, 142 Va 96, 41 A L R 1083.
Duty to provide toilet rooms see supra § 645

86. Ohio —Scrabic v. Cincinnati, N O. & T. P Ry. Co., 182 N E 528, 42 Ohio App. 473.
10 C J. p 962 note 91.

Federal Boiler Inspection Act protects passengers, as well as employees, of carriers subject thereto —Scrabic v. Cincinnati, N O & T. P. Ry. Co, 182 N E. 528, 42 Ohio App. 473.

87. Ark.—Batte v. St Louis Southwestern Ry. Co., 199 S.W. 907, 131 Ark. 568
10 C J p 962 note 92.

Best known
Railroad company must keep its engines in good repair, supplied with best known appliances to prevent escape of cinders.—Batte v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry Co, 199 S.W 907, 131 Ark. 568—10 C.J p 962 note 92 [a].

88. Mass —Draper v. Cotting, 120 N E. 365, 231 Mass 51
Mont.—Gohn v. Butte Hotel Co., 295 P. 262, 88 Mont. 599
Nev.—Smith v Odd Fellows Bldg. Ass'n, 205 P. 796, 46 Nev 48, 23 A.L.R 38.
Pa —Strobel v. Park, 140 A 877, 292 Pa 200, 57 A L R. 253—McKnight v S S Kresge Co., 132 A. 575, 285 Pa 489.
Va.—Murphy's Hotel v. Cuddy's Adm'r, 97 S.E. 794, 124 Va 207
Wash —Getty v. Hutton, 188 P. 10, 110 Wash. 124.
10 C.J p 963 note 94.

Escalator
Department store owner operating escalator for customers' convenience

er is not bound to furnish an appliance which will make accidents impossible, and is only bound to furnish those actually used by men of judgment and common prudence, he must keep pace with science, art, and modern improvements in appliances and make use of the best and most approved machinery and devices in general practical use for the safety of passengers.[89]

Municipal ordinances relating to the use of safety devices and the operation of elevators have been held not applicable to elevators in the course of construction and installation,[90] nor to elevators constructed or installed prior to passage of the ordinance.[91]

Inspection and tests. It is the proprietor's duty, sometimes by virtue of statutory provisions, to employ persons of skill and experience to inspect his passenger elevators;[92] and, for the failure of the persons employed by him to make a proper inspection and to ascertain a defect that is open and visible to a person of reasonable skill and experience, the proprietor is liable,[93] and the owner of an elevator has been held liable for injury to a passenger caused by a latent defect therein where a proper test by the manufacturer would have disclosed such defect.[94]

Foreign objects. The care and liability of a carrier by elevator with respect to the presence of foreign objects and injuries therefrom is considered infra § 744.

owed duty to use reasonable care to keep escalator reasonably safe for customers' use.—Stratton v. J. J. Newberry Co., 169 A. 56, 117 Conn. 522

Negligence necessary

Operators of apartment house were not liable for injuries to prospective tenant caused by an inherent structural defect in an automatic elevator or lack of repair thereof, unless negligent with respect thereto.—McKeon v. Lissner, 223 P. 965, 193 Cal. 297

Freight elevator

Owner of building, maintaining freight elevator, which it notified furniture van helper to use, was under duty to keep it in reasonably safe condition.—Courtney v. Gainsborough Studios, 174 N.Y.S. 855, 186 App.Div. 820.

Particular facts constituting negligence

(1) Owners of elevator with open front, which permitted person riding who fell to be caught and killed, held negligent.—Strobel v. Park, 140 A. 877, 292 Pa. 200, 57 A.L.R 253.

(2) To leave projecting floors in an elevator well, construct indicators so that they project into well, and operate an elevator cage with an open door under such conditions, has been held to constitute negligence.—Kranzusch v Trustee Co., 161 P. 492, 93 Wash. 629.

Electricity cut off

As the electricity for propelling an elevator will at times be cut off, the mere stopping of an elevator thereby was not in any sense a wrongful act toward a passenger, where there was no physical injury caused by it.—Mills v. Robinson, Tex Civ.App., 208 S.W. 351, error refused

Care required and liability in general see supra § 687.

89. Nev.—Smith v. Odd Fellows Bldg. Ass'n, 205 P. 796, 46 Nev. 48, 23 A.L.R 38.
Pa.—Strobel v. Park, 140 A. 877, 292 Pa. 200, 57 A.L.R 253.
10 C.J. p 963 note 97.

Use of experimental appliance not suitable

The use of an appliance not suitable for the purpose has been held to constitute negligence although it is the latest achievement of mechanical and scientific skill.—Jacobi v. Builders' Realty Co., 164 P. 394, 174 Cal. 708, L.R.A.1917E 696.

Appliances not compatible

The installation and use of appliances which are not compatible with its operation, taken in connection with the class and character of the building in which it is used, is not required.—Getty v. Hutton, 188 P. 10, 110 Wash. 124.

Riding on freight elevator

One who accepts an express or implied invitation to ride in a freight elevator is entitled only to such appliances as are proper for freight elevators.—O'Rourke v. Woodward, 77 So. 679, 201 Ala. 265.—10 C.J. p 963 note 99

90. Ind.—Bedford Stone & Construction Co. v Hennigar, 121 N.E. 277, 187 Ind. 716.

91. Cal.—Kauffman v Machin Shirt Co., 140 P. 15, 167 Cal. 506.

92. Cal.—McKeon v Lissner, 262 P. 459, 87 Cal.App. 371.
10 C.J. p 963 note 95

Statute as not diminishing duty

A statute providing for a periodical inspection of elevators by the state has been held not to take from owners the power to provide competent safety devices.—McKeon v. Lissner, 262 P. 459, 87 Cal.App. 371.

Inspection does not relieve from consequences of negligence

If defendants were negligent in the maintenance of an elevator, the mere fact that they employed an inspector and that he made inspections would not relieve them from the consequences of such negligence.—McKeon v. Lissner, 223 P. 965, 193 Cal. 297.

Reasonable care

According to some authorities, the owner of an elevator is required to exercise only reasonable care in this regard, which would require an inspection with such frequency and by persons with such knowledge and experience as should be reasonably required in view of the danger and risk involved in running an elevator.—Rumetsch v. Wanamaker, 110 N.E. 760, 216 N.Y. 379, L.R.A.1916C 1245, reversing 139 N.Y.S. 385 154 App.Div. 800.—10 C.J. p 963 note 98.

93. Cal.—McKeon v. Lissner, 262 P. 459, 87 Cal.App. 371.
10 C.J. p 963 note 96.

94. Wis.—Dibbert v Metropolitan Inv. Co., 147 N.W. 3, 148 N.W. 1095, 158 Wis. 69, L.R.A.1915D 305, 312, Ann.Cas.1916E 924.

5. CARE REQUIRED AND LIABILITY IN MANAGEMENT AND OPERATION

§ 743. In General

A carrier of passengers owes the duty of exercising a high degree of care in managing and operating its vehicles, and a violation of statutory or municipal provisions may constitute negligence per se.

A carrier of passengers, such as a railroad or street railroad company, owes the duty to its passengers of exercising a high degree of care, diligence, and foresight in managing and operating its cars and other machinery and appliances by which the transportation is carried out; and if it fails so to do, it is liable for injuries to passengers caused thereby;[95] but the carrier will not be liable for injuries caused, without any negligence on its part,

95. U.S.—Gray v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., C.C.A.Ill., 24 F.2d 671, 59 A.L.R. 461.
Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v. Mart, 65 S.W.2d 39, 188 Ark. 202
La.—Dixon v. Teche Transfer Co., 1 La.App. 227—Guidry v. Teche Transfer Co., 1 La.App. 225
N.Y.—Agry v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 150 A. 401, 106 N.J.Law 476, reversing 146 A. 587, 7 N.J.Misc. 579.
Pa.—Thompson v. City of Philadelphia, 195 A. 174, 129 Pa.Super. 174
Tenn.—Bowers v. N., C. & St. L. Ry., 7 Tenn.Civ.App. 473
Utah—Brown v. Union Pac. R. Co., 290 P. 759, 76 Utah 475
Va.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va. 549, rehearing denied 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, addendum opinion 143 S.E. 299, 150 Va. 647
Wash.—Poropat v. Olympic Peninsula Motor Coach Co., 299 P. 979, 163 Wash. 78.
10 C.J. p. 963 note 2.

Ordinary care as relative term

The term "ordinary care," when applied to the management of railroad engines and cars in motion, imports all care which the peculiar circumstances of the place or occasion reasonably require, and this will be increased or diminished according as ordinary liability to danger and accident and to do injury to others is increased or diminished in the movement and management of such engines and cars.—MacFeat v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 62 A. 898, 21 Del. 52, 66.

Abandoning post

(1) It was not negligence for conductor and motorman to leave street car on slight incline, provided they first properly secured car.—Delfosse v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, Mo., 201 S.W. 860

(2) Other illustrations see 10 C.J. p. 963 note 2 [d].

Assuming others will proceed in accordance with the law

(1) One operating vehicle on highway may assume that another will proceed in accordance with law and cannot be charged with negligence because of such assumption, unless he continues on after he has knowledge that other is not acting within law.—Gritsch v. Pickwick Stages System, 22 P.2d 554, 131 Cal.App. 774.

(2) It is true that, ordinarily, an automobile driver need not anticipate negligence on the part of another driver on the highway and may assume that other drivers will obey the law, but he cannot assume that the highway is clear and he must be vigilant and anticipate and expect the presence of others, and particularly so when he is driving a heavy and extremely wide bus containing passengers who have entrusted their safety to him, along a narrow road on which he knows that other heavy, wide trucks are being operated.—Blount County v. Perry, 7 Tenn.App. 340.

Competent employees sometimes negligent

It is common knowledge that competent motormen are negligent at times, and, fact that motorman was going at full headway does not show there could not have been sudden overfeeding of controller by him.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo. 1.

Conductor blocking aisle

A conductor must use the care a very cautious, prudent, and competent person would use for the safety of a woman passenger walking toward him in aisle of a moving car. Such conductor was not negligent in temporarily obstructing the aisle by standing therein, bending over to speak to some one, as a woman passenger approached, walking to the rear, and lost her balance before she reached him as she halted to wait for him to let her pass.—Steed v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., Tex.Com.App., 231 S.W. 714, affirming, Civ.App., Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Steed, 209 S.W. 772.

Dripping chemicals

Unless motorman and inspector of elevated knew that chemical dripping from scene of fire would cause harm they were not negligent in running open surface car under it.—Flaherty v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 126 N.E. 798, 235 Mass. 422.

Floor of car

"The carrier does not insure the safety of the passenger, nor is it to be held responsible for unforeseen happenings over which it has no control, but in respect to the floor of the conveyance the defendant company did owe to the passenger, as the trial court stated, 'the highest degree of skill and practicable care in the operation of its busses that may be reasonably expected of intelligent and prudent persons engaged in that business in view of the instrumentalities employed and the dangers naturally to be apprehended and that is reasonably consistent with the practical operation of the company's busses.'"—Jones v. Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co., 12 N.E.2d 279, 282, 133 Ohio St. 118.

Formation of train

The carrier must exercise such care in the formation of a passenger train.
Colo.—Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Pilgrim, 47 P. 657, 9 Colo.App. 86
Ind.—Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Wade, 48 N.E. 12, 18 Ind.App. 346
10 C.J. p. 964 note 4.

Making passenger move to another coach

A carrier is liable for injuries to passenger required to move from one coach to another if its servants knew or could have known by ordinary care that from the circumstances injury might result.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Ashley, 183 S.W. 921, 169 Ky. 330, L.R.A.1916E 763

Reckless driving causing shock to nervous system

Evidence that bus passenger sustained severe shock to nervous system and severe heart strain, and that his physical condition was permanently impaired and his capacity to work diminished, as result of drunken driver's reckless operation of bus in manner which caused passenger to fear that bus would be wrecked, sustained passenger's recovery against bus company.—Tennessee Coach Co. v. Snelling, 186 S.E. 588, 53 Ga.App. 570.

Stop between stations

As regards liability for injuries to passenger, mere stopping of train elsewhere than at station is not negligence.—Holland v. Boston & M. R. R., 181 N.E. 217, 279 Mass. 342.

Inviting passengers to walk on trestle

Where a bridge over a canal was open because mechanism was out of order, and a street car conductor issued transfers to passengers and by a casualty which could not have been reasonably anticipated or foreseen.[96] Where the negligence of the carrier's employees contributes directly to bring about the dangerous situation, the fact that they are reasonably prudent after they discover the impending danger does not relieve the carrier from liability.[97]

Derailment of car. Where a carrier operates its road, car, or train so negligently that a car is derailed, it is liable for the resulting injuries to a passenger,[98] although the mere fact of a derailment does not render the carrier liable, if it occurs without any negligence on its part.[99]

Statutes and ordinances pertaining to road regulations, as between the passenger and the carrier, have been held to be for the benefit and protection of the passengers,[1] and the violation of such provisions has been held to be negligence per se.[2]

Elevators. A carrier by elevator must exercise the highest degree of care and diligence in the operation and management of the elevator for the passenger's safety.[3] The operation of the doors in the suggested and invited them to cross on a nearby railroad bridge, without suggestion or warning of the fact that a train was likely to arrive momentarily, and without providing some means of flagging and preventing it from running down the passengers who might be on the bridge, it was held that the conductor was negligent.—Thompson v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 87 So. 716, 148 La 698.

Duty of trolley car motorman

(1) Trolley car motorman must pay attention to mechanical operations of the car, to pedestrians on the street, to vehicular traffic, to signals of passengers, lights, and various other matters which are necessary to give efficient public service—Thompson v. City of Philadelphia, 195 A 174, 129 Pa Super. 174.

(2) The operator of a trolley car must be vigilant and alert, as regards a passenger's safety, and must keep looking constantly ahead and have his car under sufficient control to avoid even unusual and unexpected dangers—Deady v. Philadelphia Transit Co, 100 Pa Super. 208—10 C J p 963 note 2 [c].

(3) As shown supra § 733, motorman must stop his car so that passengers may alight only at places that are not manifestly dangerous.

96. U S—Mendelson v. Davis, C C A. Neb, 281 F. 18.
Mass—DeDonati v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 9 N E.2d 381.
10 C J p 964 note 3

Brake as support in climbing

Railroad was not negligent in failing to set brake, resulting in injury to shipper accompanying stock and using brake as support in climbing at end of car.—Eiler v. Atchison, T. & S. F Ry Co., 157 P. 261, 98 Kan. 150.

Act of God, vis major, or inevitable accident generally see supra § 697.

97. Ind—Grand Rapids, etc, R. Co. v. Ellison, 20 N E. 135, 117 Ind. 234.

98. Miss—Columbus & G Ry. Co v. Phillips, 133 So. 123, 160 Miss. 390.
Va—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v Baker, 140 S.E 648, 149 Va. 549, rehearing denied 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va 549, addendum opinion 143 S.E 299, 150 Va 647.
10 C J p 965 note 7.

Open switch as gross negligence

The leaving open of a switch leading to a side track when a passenger train may be expected momentarily, without ascertaining its location, is "gross negligence," within Rev L 1910 §§ 2916, 2917, 2918, defining such negligence to be the want of slight care and diligence—Missouri, K. & T. Ry Co. v. Zuber, 184 P 452, 76 Okl. 146, 7 A L R 840, appeal dismissed 41 S.Ct 322, 255 U S 561, 65 L.Ed 786, and error dismissed 41 S. Ct 449, 256 U S 681, 65 L Ed 1169

99. U S.—Gray v. Baltimore & O R. Co., C.C A Ill, 24 F.2d 671, 59 A L R. 461.
Miss—Columbus & G. Ry Co. v. Phillips, 133 So. 123, 160 Miss. 390
10 C J p 965 note 8.

Lookout by fireman

Failure of fireman, who had been engaged in firing engine, to keep lookout, was not violation of duty owing to passenger, injured in train wrecked by robbers.—Riley v Louisville & N R. Co., 21 S W.2d 990, 231 Ky 564

1. Me—Chaput v. Lussier, 165 A 573, 132 Me. 48.
Mass—Rea v Checker Taxi Co., 172 N E 612, 272 Mass. 510

Control of car

Municipal ordinance requiring that street car approaching curve should do so with greatest care and should be under complete control of motorman did not require motorman to have car under such control that it could be stopped instantly, since that would be dangerous to passengers—Youngstown Municipal Ry Co. v. Chismar, 8 N E 2d 156, 54 Ohio App 481.

Statute too vague

As respects liability to passenger on street car, municipal ordinance, providing that on first appearance of danger to vehicles moving toward street car such car should be stopped within shortest time and shortest distance possible, was too vague to constitute rule of conduct in operation of street cars—Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co. v. Chismar, 8 N.E. 2d 156, 54 Ohio App 481.

Violation of statute or ordinance pertaining to speed see infra § 749

2. Tenn—Greyhound Lines, Inc. v Patterson, 14 Tenn App. 652.
10 C.J p 965 note 5

Keeping door closed

Violation of ordinance to keep bus door closed would be negligence per se in action by passenger thrown through open door—Beierla v Hockenedel, 157 N E 573, 25 Ohio App 186.

Bus wheels off pavement

Since in turning at intersection left wheels of bus necessarily moved from paved to graveled portion of street, there was no violation of statute prohibiting operation of vehicles with wheels off pavement—Wade v. North Coast Transp. Co., 5 P 2d 985, 165 Wash 418

3. Ala—O'Rourke v. Woodward, 77 So. 679, 201 Ala. 265.
La.—Ross v Sisters of Charity of Incarnate Word, 75 So 425, 141 La. 601, L R A 1917F 260.
Pa—McKnight v S S. Kresge Co., 132 A. 575, 285 Pa 489.
Wash—Davis v Burke, 156 P. 525, 90 Wash 495

Starting as passenger enters

It is negligence for the operator of an elevator to attempt to close the door and start the car while a passenger is about to enter.—Davis v Burke, 156 P. 525, 90 Wash 495

Operator for automatic elevator

Failure to employ an operator for automatic push button elevator in a hospital is not actionable by any passenger except a child of tender years who cannot appreciate the risk.—Ross v. Sisters of Charity of Incarnate Word, 75 So. 425, 141 La. 601, L R A 1917F 260.

Operator is owner's agent

Employee running elevator operated by defendant company was defendant's agent in conserving passengers' safety against hazards caususual and customary manner that such doors are operated on similar elevators does not necessarily relieve defendant from liability,[4] and the operation of an elevator with the doors opening into it open while passing a floor is negligence.[5] Leaving the door of an elevator shaft open and unguarded while the elevator is not opposite that floor is negligence for which the proprietor is liable in case a person without any contributory negligence on his part steps or falls into the open shaft and is injured.[6]

§ 744. Providing for Safety and Comfort of Passengers on Trains

a. In general
b. Gates, doors, and windows
c. Foreign objects

a. In General

A carrier has a duty to provide for the safety and comfort of passengers and must protect them from disorder, provide sufficient heat, etc.

A carrier has the duty to protect the passengers from disorder;[7] and they should be furnished the usual comfort in the way of heat, but in order to make the carrier liable for injuries due to insufficient heating of the car, it must appear that the condition was negligently permitted to exist, in addition to the fact that a dangerous condition existed, as there is no liability unless the carrier has reason to foresee injury to a healthy person by reason of the atmospheric condition of the car.[8]

Bite by dog. A carrier is not liable for injuries sustained by a passenger being bitten by a dog, where there was no proof that the presence of the dog was a probable source of harm to passengers or that the carrier was negligent in not excluding the dog from the car, or that the carrier's employees knew that the dog was in the car.[9]

b. Gates, Doors, and Windows

It may constitute negligence if the carrier leaves the doors open while the vehicle is moving; and where a passenger is injured by the opening or closing of a door or window the carrier is liable if its employees have been negligent.

A carrier must maintain gates and doors in proper condition, as shown supra § 741, and in addition thereto such appliances must be so used that they will afford the protection intended,[10] and if the doors of the vestibule are left open between sta-ed by banana peel on elevator floor.—Ensley Holding Co. v. Kelley, 158 So. 896, 229 Ala. 650.

Freight elevator

Owner of office building was entitled to carry warehouse trucks on freight elevator on which plaintiff was riding, but if they fell and injured plaintiff because car was negligently operated, plaintiff could recover.—O'Rourke v. Woodward, 77 So 679, 201 Ala 265.

4. Mo—Howard v. Scarritt Estate Co, 184 S W. 1144, 267 Mo 398.

5. Cal—Parsons v. Easton, 195 P 419, 184 Cal 764

6. Tenn.—Southern Bldg Assoc v. Lawson, 37 S W 86, 97 Tenn 367, 56 Am.S.R. 804
10 C.J. p 871 note 66.

7. Ark.—Beasley v Hines, 219 S W. 757, 143 Ark 54, 15 A L R 864.
10 C J p 965 note 14

Tramp boarding train

Knowledge of the impossibility of preventing tramps from boarding trains, which a train crew must be presumed to have had, did not impose on the train crew the continuous duty of so patrolling cars as to make it impossible for tramps to enter them without being discovered.—Beasley v Hines, 219 S.W. 757, 143 Ark. 54, 15 A L.R. 864.

Protection from injuries from third persons generally see supra §§ 695, 696.

8. Utah.—Zoccolillo v. Oregon Short Line R. Co, 177 P. 201, 53 Utah 39

Wis—Marcott v Minneapolis, etc, R. Co, 133 N.W. 37, 147 Wis. 216
10 C J. p 962 notes 84, 85.

Degree of heat

A carrier is only required to heat its cars so as to provide a reasonable degree of comfort for passengers in an ordinary and normal state of health—Zoccolillo v. Oregon Short Line R Co, 177 P 201, 53 Utah 39—10 C J p 961 note 84 [b].

Negligence as matter of law

To permit a car to become so cold as to cause a passenger's feet to freeze constitutes negligence as a matter of law.—Zoccolillo v Oregon Short Line R. Co., 177 P. 201, 53 Utah 39.

Informing as to condition

That plaintiff did not inform the carrier or its servants of the delicate condition of his wife will not preclude recovery for injuries resulting to her from cold contracted through an insufficiently heated car.—St Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rutherford, Tex.Civ App., 184 S W. 700, error refused.

Necessary ventilation during epidemic does not lessen duty

The necessity of proper ventilation of public conveyances and stations during the influenza epidemic of 1918 did not lessen the duty of a carrier to keep its passenger coaches comfortably heated for its passengers.—Davis v. Allen, 251 S W 194, 199 Ky. 442

Mail cars

(1) Railroad should furnish proper heat for a postal car in which a mail clerk is employed at such times as the cars are being used for that purpose with knowledge of the carrier—Louisville & N R Co v. Dougherty, 185 S.W. 114, 170 Ky. 10, L R A 1916E 464—10 C J p 961 note 84 [a].

(2) That employment of postal clerk prevented him from occupying heated coaches furnished by carrier after the wreck, so that he remained in charge of mail and contracted illness, carrier's failure to provide warmth and shelter other than such coaches was not actionable negligence.—Lusk v. Wilkes, 172 P. 929, 70 Okl. 44, L R A 1918E 513.

Extended quotation of Corpus Juris has been made in a case in which the writer of the opinion stated that so far as he has been able to trace the cases, practically all are cited in the footnotes.—Zoccolillo v Oregon Short Line R Co, 177 P 201, 53 Utah 39.

9. Mass—Fiske v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 194 N.E. 835, 289 Mass. 598.

10. Tex—St. Louis Southwestern Ry Co of Texas v. Christian, Civ. App., 191 S.W. 175, error refused.
10 C J. p 965 note 10.

Reasonable care

It is the duty of a railway to use

tions, while the train is moving, it may constitute negligence for which the company will be liable,[11] although under some circumstances, as in the case of interurban cars making frequent stops, it has been held not to constitute negligence in the absence of a special reason appearing for shutting such doors.[12] In the absence of special circumstances, it is not negligence to have the doors of the vestibule, or the drop doors over the steps, open while the vehicle is not in motion or is standing at a station,[13] or when it is just arriving or leaving the station.[14]

Opening or closing. An injury caused to a passenger, such as that of having his hand or foot crushed by the opening or closing of a car window or door, as where it is due to the usual lurching or swinging of the car, is an accident for which the carrier is not liable, unless it is attributable to negligence on the part of the carrier.[15] Thus, where the carrier's employee does not know or have reason to know of a passenger's dangerous position near a door, and he opens or closes the door, whereby the passenger is injured, the carrier is not liable,[16] nor is it liable for injuries to a passenger by the opening or closing of a door or window by another passenger;[17] but the carrier is liable, where its employee, knowing, or having reason to know, of a passenger's dangerous position near a door, opens or closes such door, without warning the passenger of his danger, whereby he is injured.[18]

It is the duty of the carrier to have the windows, doors, and ventilators of a passenger car closed while passing through a long tunnel to prevent the reasonable care to keep the traps and doors of vestibuled cars closed.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry Co. of Texas v. Christian Tex Civ App., 191 S W. 175, error refused.

11. U S—Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co. v Galvin, C C A Mich., 54 F.2d 202, certiorari denied 52 S Ct. 407, 285 U S 551, 76 L Ed 941.
Ill.—Dunn v. Chicago, R. I. & P Ry. Co, 248 Ill.App 26.
N.J—McBride v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 123 A 765, 99 N J Law 464
N Y—Scott v. New York Cent R Co, 216 N.Y.S. 163, 216 App Div 623.
Tenn—Louisville & N R Co. v. Hutcherson, 8 Tenn.App 235.
10 C J. p 961 note 81.

Passenger opening door

A carrier is not responsible for the consequences of a passenger's negligent act in opening a vestibule door a short time before the injury occurred.
U S—Mendelson v. Davis, C C.A. Neb, 281 F 18
W Va—Slaven v. Baltimore & O R. Co., 171 S E 818, 114 W Va 315.

Gate and door

A carrier is not bound, where he keeps the gate on the rear coach fastened, to keep the door also fastened—Daly v Pryor, 198 S.W. 91, 197 Mo App. 583

12. Ill.—Blair v. Chicago, O. & P. Ry. Co, 205 Ill App. 160

13. Tex—Doss v. Southwestern Transp Co, Civ App., 89 S.W.2d 1092, error refused
10 C J p 961 note 82.

14. Ky—Louisville & N R. Co. v. Spears' Adm'r, 232 S.W. 60, 192 Ky. 64.
Mass.—McKay v Boston & M. R. R., 188 N.E. 390, 284 Mass. 606—Carlson v Boston & M R. R., 168 N E 171, 269 Mass 60.
10 C J. p 961 note 83.

15. Ky—York v. Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P Ry. Co, 288 S.W 750, 216 Ky 825.
Mo—Crabtree v. St Louis & S. F R. Co, 273 S W 1104, 218 Mo.App. 306.
10 C J. p 965 note 16.

Rule stated in Corpus Juris is cited and applied in Chadwick v Louisville & N. R. Co., 281 S.W. 1018, 1020, 213 Ky. 831, 45 A L R. 1537.

Conduct indicating or not indicating negligence

(1) Conductor's failure to keep hand on wheel regulating street car door, causing passenger's injury, was held not negligence—Gorman v. City of Cleveland, 159 N.E 136, 26 Ohio App. 109.

(2) That train slowing down caused vestibule door, opened by brakeman, to close on passenger's hand, indicated railroad's negligence—Agry v. Pennsylvania R Co, 150 A. 401, 106 N J.Law 476, reversing 146 A. 587, 7 N J Misc. 579.

(3) In case of a passenger injured by the car door closing on his hand when the car was going round a curve, it was held that the carrier could be found negligent in not having the door open far enough to lock—Colletto v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 100 A. 200, 90 N J.Law 315.

(4) Other illustrations see 10 C J. p 965 note 16 [b], [c].

Inspecting open window

Carriers need not inspect window of passenger coach when raised to see that it is at proper height, or to see that windows are not raised by passengers when ventilation of car is required—Chadwick v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 281 S.W. 1018, 213 Ky. 831, 45 A.L R 1537.

16. Mich—Camp v. Spring, 217 N. W. 917, 241 Mich. 700.
N.Y.—Siegel v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 214 N.Y S. 71, 126 Misc. 452
10 C.J. p 966 note 17.

17. N Y—Smith v Union Ry. Co. of New York City, 247 N.Y.S 804, 139 Misc 69.
10 C J. p 966 note 18.

18. N.Y—Grafstein v Interborough R. Co, 189 N Y.S 68.
Tex—Schaff v. Gordon, Civ.App, 214 S W. 638
10 C J p 966 note 19

Degree of care

(1) Carrier owed highest degree of care to passenger whose fall was caused by premature closing of car door—Williams v. Hudson & M R Co, 141 A. 168, 6 N J Misc 337, affirmed Williams v. Pennsylvania R Co., 143 A. 921, 9 N.J Misc. 218, and Williams v. Hudson & M. R. Co, 151 A. 486, 105 N.J.Law 259.

(2) Train employee, in closing door, is charged with the duty of exercising that high degree of care and vigilance to prevent injury to passenger that a very prudent, cautious, and competent person would have exercised, failure to exercise such care constituting negligence imputable to the carrier.—Schaff v. Gordon, Tex.Civ.App, 214 S W. 638.

Duty to see passenger's position

No duty rests on the conductor of discovering that a passenger on the platform of a car and about to alight has a hand on the jamb of the door and seeing that the door is not allowed to close while her hand is there.—Polis v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co, 117 A. 415 273 Pa 591—L'Hommedieu v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 101 A. 933, 258 Pa. 115.

otherwise inevitable discomfort from smoke, cinders, and gas;[19] but it does not follow that an officer should be provided for every car, or that the omission to shut out the gas and smoke would of itself give a passenger a right to sue for the discomfort and annoyance.[20]

c. Foreign Objects

A carrier is not liable for injuries sustained by a passenger slipping on snow or ice on the platforms or steps, or on a banana peeling, or tripping over objects such as baggage in the aisle unless charged with notice of such objects and an opportunity to remove them; and a carrier is not liable where injury is sustained by reason of objects thrown or blown into the cars unless it was negligent.

While a carrier must exercise the highest degree of care in furnishing safe cars and appliances therein as stated supra § 741 a, a different measure of duty has been held to prevail as to the condition of the vehicle with respect to foreign objects[21]

Snow and ice. Accumulations of snow and ice on car steps and platforms which cannot be prevented in the prosecution of the carrier's business will not be imputed to it as negligence,[22] but the carrier is liable for injuries to passengers caused by such accumulations, if there has been a sufficient opportunity to remove such source of danger,[23] and this duty is not performed by merely appointing employees to keep the steps or platforms in a safe condition[24]

Banana peels or parcels, etc. While the carrier's employees have a duty to remove objects from the aisles and platforms of the vehicles when they have

19. Ky—Louisville & N R. Co. v. Roberts, 218 S.W. 713, 187 Ky 192, 9 A L R 94.
10 C J p 966 note 20.

20. Md—Western Maryland R. Co. v. Stanley, 61 Md. 266, 48 Am R. 96

21. U S—Livingston v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co, C C A S.C, 28 F 2d 563.
Neb.—Belder v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St Ry. Co, 272 N.W. 220.

Ordinary care
A railroad company was held to the exercise of only ordinary care to see that hassocks provided in a chair car, and which are moved about by passengers at their pleasure, are not allowed to project into the aisle.—Bassell v. Hines, C C A Ohio, 269 F. 231, 12 A L R. 1361.

Statute requiring utmost care
Railway must use utmost care to keep passageways in passenger cars unobstructed by objects likely to injure passengers.—Chicago, R. I. & P Ry Co. v. Shelton, 273 P. 988, 135 Okl. 53.

22. U S.—Akin v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co, C.C A.Minn, 21 F.2d 1000.
Ark.—Turner v. Hot Springs St. Ry. Co, 75 S W.2d 675, 189 Ark 894
Me.—Davis v. Waterville, F & O St. Ry. Co., 102 A. 374, 117 Me. 32
Md—Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co. v. Fitch, 136 A. 529, 152 Md 137
Mass.—Hartford v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 182 N.E 476, 280 Mass 288—Seidenberg v. Eastern Massachusetts St Ry. Co., 165 N.E 658, 266 Mass. 540.
N J—Griffin v Hohorst, Inc, 185 A. 535, 14 N J.Misc 421.
R.I—Bines v United Electric Rys Co., 148 A. 417, 50 R I. 438.
10 C.J. p 962 note 87.
Duty as to accumulations of snow and ice at stations, platforms, etc, see supra § 719.

This rule stated in Corpus Juris is cited and applied in Hunter v Public Service Ry. Co, 144 A 305, 105 N J Law 300.

Condition dangerous to person exercising reasonable care
If it is apparent to a reasonably prudent person that passengers cannot get off or on the cars, exercising reasonable care, without danger of falling, the steps and platform should be put in such condition as to enable them to do so, ever though the train or car must be delayed for that purpose.—Garvin v. Butte Electric Ry. Co, 169 P. 40, 54 Mont. 196.

23. U S—Akin v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co, C.C A.Minn, 21 F.2d 1000
Me.—Celucci v. Cumberland County Power & Light Co., 183 A. 754.
Md—Washington, B. & A Electric R. Co. v. Fitch, 136 A. 529, 152 Md. 137.
Mo—Taylor v. Missouri Pac. R. Co, 279 S.W. 115, 311 Mo. 604.
N Y.—Altberger v. New York Consol. R. Co, 162 N Y.S. 739.
10 C J. p 962 note 88.

Degree of care
(1) The carrier should exercise the highest degree of care to protect its passengers from perils incident to slippery steps.
Conn—Dunne v. Connecticut Co., 195 A. 183.
Minn—Gegere v. Chicago & N W. Ry Co., 220 N.W. 429, 175 Minn. 36.
Mo.—Taylor v. Missouri Pac. R Co, 279 S W. 115, 311 Mo 604—Smith v. Kansas City Public Service Co, 56 S.W 2d 838, 227 Mo App. 675.
Ohio.—Olszowy v. Cleveland Ry. Co, 192 N E. 366, 47 Ohio App. 529.
Pa—Saunders v. Altoona & Logan Valley Electric Ry. Co., 84 Pa. Super. 385.
10 C.J. p 962 note 88 [a].

(2) The degree of care required is not the highest, but is such a degree of care as is commensurate with the risk.—Altberger v. New York Consol. R. Co, 162 N.Y S. 739

(3) A railroad company's duty toward its passengers requires it to use due care to keep entrances to its coaches free from accumulations of ice and snow—Young v. Grand Trunk Ry, 100 A. 603, 78 N.H. 605.

Different rule as to railroads and street railroads
The same rule that would apply to the removal of snow and ice on cars of a through railroad train stopping at stations long distances apart does not necessarily obtain in the case of an elevated railroad train or street car operated within a city under conditions so radically different Mo.—Bate v. Harvey, App., 195 S W. 571.
N Y—Altberger v. New York Consol R Co., 162 N.Y S. 739.

Examining steps
A carrier's employee is not under a duty to examine the step at every stop, and failure to examine the step just before the passenger alighted to see if there was ice on it has been held not to constitute negligence—Byrne v. Connecticut Co., 195 A. 184, 123 Conn. 304.

Anticipating falls
In freezing weather, and when deposits of snow and ice are known to be, or are likely to be, on the step, those in charge of a street car are required to anticipate that a passenger might slip on the step—Bate v. Harvey, Mo App, 195 S.W 571.

24. N J—Murphy v North Jersey St. R. Co, 80 A. 331, 81 N.J Law 706, 35 L.R A.,N.S., 592, reversing 73 A. 1119 mem.

notice thereof,[25] the carrier is not liable for injuries occurring where a passenger slips on a foreign object, such as a banana peeling, etc.,[26] or trips over an object in the aisle of the car, such as a hassock or piece of baggage, etc.,[27] unless its employees placed it there or had an opportunity to notice the presence of such object and remove it.

A carrier also has a duty to protect passengers from articles falling[28] from an overhead rack.[29]

Objects thrown or blown into car, etc. A carrier is not liable for injuries sustained by a passenger by reason of objects which are thrown or blown in-

25. Iowa—Costello v. Chicago, R. I & P Ry. Co., 217 N.W. 434, 205 Iowa 1077.
Pa—Wood v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 104 A. 69, 260 Pa. 481, L R A 1918F 817.
Tex—Houston Electric Co. v. Bragg, Com App., 276 S W. 641, affirming, Civ.App, Bragg v Houston Electric Co., 264 S.W 245, motion overruled 280 S W. 188.

26. U S—Livingston v. Atlantic Coast Line R Co., C.C A S C, 28 F.2d 563.
Mo—Vortriede v St Louis Public Service Co, App, 58 S W 2d 492—Jones v. St Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, 5 S W 2d 101, 222 Mo App. 1220—Tevis v. United Rys. Co of St. Louis, App, 185 S.W. 738.
Neb.—Belder v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 272 N W 220.
N.J.—Casale v. Public Service Coordinated Transport, 160 A. 326, 10 N.J.Misc. 611.
N.Y.—Moll v. Niagara Gorge R. Co, 264 N Y S. 761, 238 App Div. 528
Tex—Rhodes v. Houston, E. & W T. R. Co, Civ App, 242 S W. 263
10 C.J. p 959 note 63 [d] (6).

27. Ala.—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So. 479, 198 Ala. 262.
Ill—Heineke v. Chicago Rys. Co, 116 N E 761, 279 Ill. 210, affirming 199 Ill.App. 399—Garner v. East St Louis Ry. Co., 211 Ill App. 201.
Iowa—Costello v. Chicago, R. I. & P Ry. Co., 217 N W. 434, 205 Iowa 1077.
Ky—Hawkins v. Louisville & N R. Co, 202 S W. 632, 180 Ky. 295, 3 A.L.R. 637.
Mass—Phinney v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co, 189 N E. 52, 285 Mass. 207.
Mich.—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N W 112, 283 Mich. 413.
Ohio.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Hamburger, 13 Ohio Cir.Ct ,N S., 273, affirmed 84 Ohio St. 456, 9 Ohio L.Rep 7, 56 Cinc L Bul. 123.
Tex—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blackmon, Civ.App., 56 S.W 2d 199, error refused—Bragg v Houston Electric Co., Civ App, 264 S.W 245, affirmed Houston Electric Co. v Bragg, Com App, 276 S W. 641, overruled 280 S W 188.
10 C.J. p 902 note 43 [b], p 965 note 11, 12

Not negligence per se

It is not negligence as a matter of law for the conductor of a street car, with a seat running lengthwise on each side of car, to permit the bag of a passenger to remain in the aisle, where it is not so placed as to obstruct free exit and entrance into the car, since street railroad is not bound to exercise toward passenger the utmost diligence in such case. Under such circumstances, the carrier will not be liable for injuries, unless it omitted to exercise reasonable care in keeping the aisle clear—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N W. 112, 283 Mich. 413.

Right to bring baggage

(1) Street car passenger may carry personal baggage to his seat and control its disposition, except as restricted by reasonable regulation promulgated by carrier or by legislation, so long as he does not endanger safety of fellow passengers.—Bragg v. Houston Electric Co, Tex.Civ.App., 264 S W 245, affirmed Houston Electric Co v. Bragg, Com. App., 276 S.W. 641, overruled 280 S. W. 188.

(2) Where street railroad rule forbade bringing certain articles into street car, presence of suitcase in aisle of car did not warrant finding that operator violated rule, where suitcase was not within forbidden class of articles—Phinney v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 189 N E. 52, 285 Mass. 207.

Anticipating injury

In action for injuries sustained by falling over suitcase in aisle of street car, it was held that, in view of the circumstances, it might reasonably have been anticipated that baggage would be placed in aisle of street car, and that others, without knowledge of it being so placed, might stumble over it and fall.—Houston Electric Co v. Bragg, Tex. Com App., 276 S W. 641, affirming Bragg v Houston Electric Co., Civ. App, 264 S.W. 245, overruled, Com. App., 280 S W. 188

Furnishing employee to keep aisle clear

Whether exercise of high degree of care required of street car company to prevent injury to passenger required it to furnish person to see that aisle was free of obstructions would depend on conclusions which reasonable minds would reach from the facts, and if reasonable minds might differ, failure to furnish such person would be predicate on which negligence could be based, and holding of trial court that negligence could not be predicated on allegation that some person should have been furnished by street car company to see that aisle was not obstructed when passengers were alighting was error—Houston Electric Co. v. Bragg, Tex Com.App, 276 S W. 641, affirming Bragg v. Houston Electric Co., Civ App., 264 S.W. 245, overruled, Com App., 280 S.W. 188.

Insufficient to charge carrier

Where passenger first testified that she did not see another passenger's suitcase, over which she tripped when preparing to get off street car, until she was nearing home, and later claimed that she saw suitcase protruding into aisle when she boarded car and that suitcase was not moved throughout trip, and there was no evidence that conductor knew of presence of suitcase in aisle before passenger tripped thereon, passenger could not recover, since her version established that suitcase was not in aisle long enough to charge carrier with notice—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N.W 112, 283 Mich. 413.

28. Pa—Neves v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 145 A 602, 295 Pa. 551—Bickley v. Philadelphia & R. Ry Co., 101 A. 654, 257 Pa. 369.

29. Pa—Creahan v Pennsylvania R. Co, 187 A. 51, 123 Pa.Super 268.
10 C.J. p 965 note 13.

Degree of care

A carrier is only bound to use reasonable care and diligence to prevent passengers from being injured by articles falling from racks in the cars, intended to hold the same.—Morris v. New York Cent, etc., R Co., 13 N.E. 455, 106 N.Y 678 1 Silv.A. 513—Whiting v. New York Cent, etc., R. Co., 89 N.Y.S. 584, 97 App.Div. 11.

Duty to inspect

Where proper equipment for accommodation of hand luggage was provided by railroad, responsibility of railroad with relation to location of luggage, for injuries sustained by passenger when struck by satchel which fell from rack over passenger's head, extended only to duty of making proper inspection.—Creahan v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 187 A. 51, 123 Pa.Super. 268.

to the car unless it is negligent.[30]

Elevators. The operator of an elevator is bound to exercise a general oversight of the premises to assure passengers' safety, but he need not anticipate foreign objects, such as banana peels, on the floor due to third persons' carelessness, nor maintain a special watchfulness therefor.[31]

§ 745. Overcrowding

Although it is not negligence per se to receive a passenger on a crowded car, the carrier has a duty to exercise care proportionate to the increased danger caused by the overcrowding.

It is the carrier's duty to exercise a high degree of care to provide its passengers with seats and with a safe place to ride, so as to prevent overcrowding,[32] particularly where it has notice in advance that an unusual number of passengers will ride on its trains;[33] and, while it is not negligence per se to receive a passenger on a crowded car or train,[34] and the carrier is not liable for a passenger's injuries if it exercises a proper degree of care for his safety in such cases,[35] yet it is its duty to exercise a degree of care for the passenger's safety proportionate to the increased danger caused by the overcrowding;[36] and if it fails so to do it is liable for injuries received by the passenger by reason of the overcrowding of the conveyance increasing the danger to him by his being compelled to stand or ride in an unsafe position, or by being put in peril while getting on or off the conveyance.[37] Thus, where a street car passenger is compelled by the 30. Ky.—Schooler v. Louisville & I. R. Co., 82 S.W.2d 221, 259 Ky. 80.

Carrier held not liable

(1) Interurban railroad company was not liable for injury to passenger, struck in eye by small stone thrown into its traction car at or near station, company being unable to deviate from its fixed route or guard its entire line and having no control or means of acquiring control of persons throwing stones into its cars—Schooler v. Louisville & I. R. Co, 82 S W 2d 221, 259 Ky. 80.

(2) Where stone, probably thrown by trailer of truck, struck bus windshield causing injury to passenger's eyes, carrier was not liable to passenger.—Stephenson v. Smith Motor Coach Co., 47 S W.2d 932, 243 Ky. 153.

(3) In action for injuries to passenger struck by stone thrown through open bus window, bus carrier was not negligent, if stone was thrown by passing truck, it not being dangerous to have windows open unless injury therefrom might have been reasonably anticipated under circumstances.—Bowling Green-Hopkinsville Bus Co. v. Edwards, 59 S. W.2d 584, 248 Ky 684.

(4) Other illustrations see 10 C J. p 964 note 3 [h].

31. Ala.—Ensley Holding Co. v Kelley, 158 So. 896, 229 Ala. 650.

Inspection

(1) Failure to inspect floor of elevator at each floor so as to discover banana peel on which passenger slipped, not negligence, although owner's rules so required.—Thomas v. J. Samuels & Bro., 132 A 8, 47 R I 206, reargument denied 132 A. 386.

(2) Passenger elevator operator in department store was under no duty to inspect elevator at top floor in order to discover banana peel on which subsequently passenger slipped—Thomas v. J. Samuels & Bro., supra.

32. N Y—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y. S 1011, 163 Misc. 815.

Utah.—Taylor v. Bamberger Electric R. Co., 220 P. 695, 62 Utah 552.

10 C.J. p 966 note 22

Care required as to protection from crowds on stations, platforms, etc, see supra § 720.

Extended quotation of Corpus Juris as to overcrowding the vehicles of carriers and the liability for injuries resulting therefrom has been made in Jordan v. St. Louis Public Service Co., Mo App, 105 S.W.2d 552, 557.

33. Mo—Jordan v. St. Louis Public Service Co., supra.

10 C.J. p 966 note 23.

34. Ill.—Walsh v. Chicago Rys Co., 128 N.E 647, 294 Ill. 586, reversing 216 Ill.App 409.

La.—Schuh v N. O. Public Service, Inc., 5 La App. 57.

Mass.—Moulton v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 127 N E 886, 236 Mass. 234—Knowles v Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 123 N E. 681, 233 Mass. 347, 5 A L R. 1255.

Pa—Miller v Pittsburgh, H., B & N C. Rys. Co, 157 A. 330, 102 Pa Super 547.

Tenn.—Perry v. Knoxville Ry. & Light Co, 6 Tenn Civ.App. 243.

Wash—Carton v. Eyres & Seattle Drayage Co, 201 P. 737, 117 Wash. 536.

10 C.J. p 966 note 24.

35. Mass.—Power v. Boston Elevated R. Co, 161 N E 623, 263 Mass. 553—Moulton v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 127 N E. 886, 236 Mass 234.

Mo—Carlson v Wells, 276 S.W. 26, 42 A.L.R. 1319.

Tenn—Perry v. Knoxville Ry. & Light Co, 6 Tenn Civ.App. 243

10 C.J. p 966 note 25

36. Ill—Walsh v. Chicago Rys Co, 128 N E 647, 294 Ill. 586, reversing 216 Ill App 409.

N J—Egner v Hudson & M R Co, 162 A. 554, 109 N J Law 367—Barney v. Hudson & M R Co, 145 A. 5, 105 N J.Law 274 affirmed 148 A. 917, 106 N J Law 230, 231.

Okl—Sand Springs Ry. Co. v. Smith, 203 P. 207, 84 Okl 211.

Pa—Miller v. Pittsburgh, H, B & N. C Rys. Co., 157 A. 330, 102 Pa. Super. 547.

Wash—Carton v. Eyres & Seattle Drayage Co, 201 P. 737, 117 Wash. 536.

10 C.J. p 967 note 26

37. Conn—Walker v. Connecticut Co., 100 A. 1063, 91 Conn. 606.

N.Y—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y S. 1011, 163 Misc 815—Broder v. New York Consol R. Co, 162 N. Y.S 1002, 98 Misc 256.

10 C J. p 967 note 27.

Evidence of negligence

An overcrowding of cars exposing a passenger to danger is a sufficient basis for a finding of negligence.—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N Y S. 1011, 163 Misc. 815—10 C.J. p 967 note 27 [a].

Elevators

(1) An owner of a building for whom passenger elevators are being operated may be liable for injuries sustained in the fall of an elevator, although the operator was powerless to prevent the overloading of the elevator.—Campbell v Bradbury, 176 P. 685, 179 Cal. 364.

(2) The operator of an elevator has been held negligent in opening a door back of plaintiff so that she was thrown out backward and then thrown over by the crowd—Chase v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 122 N.E. 174, 232 Mass. 133.

overcrowded condition of the car to ride on the step or platform, and is injured by reason of his being pushed from the car by virtue of its overcrowded condition, the company may be held liable for his injuries.[38]

§ 746. Liability for Collisions

A carrier must generally exercise the highest degree of care to avoid collisions with other cars on the same track or highway, or at crossings and street intersections, but it is not liable to a passenger injured in a collision occurring without fault on its part.

Collisions between trains or cars being one of the most common forms of danger to which passengers are subjected in transportation, the carrier must exercise the highest degree of care and foresight in avoiding them, and, where an injury is inflicted on a passenger by reason of a collision caused by the negligence of the carrier, he is entitled to compensation in damages;[39] but where the carrier exercises proper care under the circumstances, it will not be liable for a collision which occurs without any fault on its part.[40]

Slippery condition of track. The fact that the collision occurs through a car sliding, owing to the rails being slippery from rain or otherwise, does not absolve the carrier from liability as it is bound to anticipate such conditions, and to act accordingly.[41]

At intersecting lines. The duty of exercising proper care to prevent collisions is especially imperative at a railroad or street car crossing. Where trains or cars move on intersecting lines of railroad, the persons in control of each must exercise a proper lookout for the approach of another train or car, and must also have their own train or car under proper control so that it can be stopped promptly;[42] and this rule applies notwithstanding there is a flagman[43] or interlocking device[44] at the

38. Mass.—Moulton v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 127 N.E. 886, 236 Mass. 234.
Okl.—Sand Springs Ry. Co. v. Smith, 203 P. 207, 84 Okl. 211.
10 C.J. p. 967 note 28
Protection from injuries from fellow passengers generally see supra § 695.

39. U.S.—Memphis St. Ry. Co. v. Bobo, Tenn., 232 F. 708, 146 C.C.A. 634, affirmed Memphis St. Ry. Co. v. Moore, 37 S.Ct. 273, 243 U.S. 299, 61 L.Ed. 733.
La.—Powe v. Morgan's L. & T. R. R. & S. S. Co., 7 La.App. 51.
Mich.—Bury v. Detroit United Ry., 164 N.W. 460, 198 Mich. 447.
Mo.—Walquist v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 237 S.W. 493, 292 Mo. 34.
N.J.—King v. Steglitz, 166 A. 146, 111 N.J.Law 11.
Tenn.—Memphis St. Ry. Co. v. Cavell, 187 S.W. 179, 135 Tenn. 462
Tex.—Fort Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Woodward, Civ.App., 254 S.W. 227.
Wis.—Arneberg v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 195 N.W. 844, 182 Wis. 85.
10 C.J. p. 967 note 29.

Care governed by situation and circumstances

Trainmen operating freight and passenger trains, colliding during snow storm, owed passenger duty to use care required by situation and circumstances — Sanucci v. New York Cent. R. Co., 228 N.Y.S. 505, 223 App.Div. 517.

Proper lookout

Motorman of railroad's motor coach was under duty toward passenger to keep proper lookout while backing into station, and failure to look or to see another coach which was plainly visible was negligence.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Varnell, Tex.Civ.App., 97 S.W.2d 320.

40. La.—Benedict v. New Orleans Public Service, 120 So. 521, 9 La.App. 322.
10 C.J. p. 968 note 32.

41. Ill.—Chicago City R. Co. v. Schmidt, 75 N.E. 383, 217 Ill. 396, affirming 117 Ill.App. 213.
10 C.J. p. 968 note 33.

Caterpillars on track

Presence of caterpillars on street car track, causing car to skid, was held not sudden and unforeseeable overwhelming natural force required to sustain defense of vis major.—Bradley v. City of Seattle, 294 P. 554, 160 Wash. 100.

42. Mo.—Bergfeld v. Dunham, App., 228 S.W. 891
Tenn.—Memphis St. R. Co. v. Felts, 6 Tenn.Civ.A. 303.
10 C.J. p. 968 note 34.

Highest degree of care

It is the duty of the operatives of a street car approaching a railroad crossing to use the highest degree of care to ascertain if there is any train closely approaching the crossing, to prevent injury to passengers on the street car.—Bergfeld v. Dunham, Mo.App., 228 S.W. 891.

Motorman fainting

Where a street car motorman fainted in his cab and caused a collision, injuring plaintiff, the responsibility of the street car company for the motorman's failure to exercise reasonable care, where the motorman had warnings of the fainting spell, must be determined in the same manner as any other question arising in the course of the motorman's employment — Goldman v. New York Rys. Co., 173 N.Y.S. 737, 185 App.Div. 739.

Railroads and street railroads distinguished

"In the absence of statutory regulations, there is an element of difference between the duties required of the servants of a steam railroad, and those of an electric street railroad in approaching a crossing where the view is obstructed, such as the one we are considering. For instance, the street railroad employé may be required, if the place of crossing is more than ordinarily dangerous, to stop the car before going on the crossing, and if necessary go forward to a point where he can see whether it is safe to proceed, and look and listen for an approaching train."—Vincennes Tract. Co. v. Curry, 109 N.E. 62, 65, 59 Ind.App. 683.

Freight train

The same degree of care is required in the operation of a freight train at an intersection of tracks as that required of a passenger train, since in either case human life is at stake.—Van Orman v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 115 N.W. 968, 152 Mich. 185.

A contract between carriers as to the stopping of trains at an intersection of their roads cannot affect the care which a carrier owes to its passengers to avoid collisions.—Washington, etc., R. Co. v. Trimyer, 67 S.E. 531, 110 Va. 856.

43. Iowa.—Parker v. Des Moines City R. Co., 133 N.W. 373, 153 Iowa 254, Ann.Cas.1913E 174
Mo.—Augustus v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 134 S.W. 22, 153 Mo.App. 572.

44. Mich.—Van Orman v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 115 N.W. 968, 152 Mich. 185.

crossing, or the company whose passenger is injured has the right of way.[45] Thus the driver or conductor of a street car, when approaching a railroad crossing, should go forward to see that there is no danger in running his car over the crossing,[46] notwithstanding there are crossing gates and they are open,[47] particularly when the view of the railroad is obstructed,[48] and, even though the conductor has gone forward, it is negligence on the part of the driver of the car to follow so closely with his car as not to be able to avail himself of a warning, if given.[49]

Busses, etc., crossing tracks. The driver of a bus or other vehicle carrying passengers for reward must exercise a high degree of care when crossing railroad or street railroad tracks, and the carrier is liable where a collision occurs through its negligence.[50]

Statute or ordinance. The violation of a statute or ordinance requiring street cars to stop before going on to railroad crossings is such negligence as will render the street car company liable for injuries sustained by its passengers in a collision caused by such negligence;[51] and the violation, by a bus driver, of a statute requiring all automobiles to stop before crossing railroad tracks has been held to render the bus company liable as a matter of law for injuries sustained in a collision.[52]

At grade crossings generally. A carrier, carrying passengers over crossings frequently traveled, must exercise the highest degree of care to avoid collisions at such crossings,[53] but in order for the car-

N Y —Gorman v. New York, etc., R. Co., 87 N E. 682, 194 N.Y. 488, reversing 106 N.Y S. 1127, 122 App. Div. 896.

The failure to use at a grade crossing interlocking signals and switches, so arranged that the signal, when set against a train, opens a switch and either derails or sidetracks the train before it can reach the crossing, is not negligence with respect to a collision which occurs at the time when the crossing signal is set at safety for the train on which the injured person is a passenger.—Gorman v. New York, etc., R. Co., 87 N.E 682, 194 N.Y. 488, reversing 106 N.Y S. 1127, 122 App.Div. 896.

45. N.Y.—Zimmer v. Third Ave R. Co., 55 N.Y.S 308, 36 App Div. 265.

No superior right of way

Where the cars of one company have no superior right of way to the cars of another company at crossings, such company having no superior right of way is guilty of negligence if its motorman, when approaching such crossing, sees the car of the other company at a stop and proceeds forward without keeping his car in such control as to enable him to avoid a collision with such other car if it is suddenly started.—Schmidt v. Chicago City R Co., 144 Ill App. 512, affirmed 88 N E 275, 239 Ill. 494

Statutory right of way

That one train has the right to cross first by statute does not excuse those in charge of each train from the exercise of extraordinary care to avoid a collision and consequential injuries to passengers.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Adeeb, 84 S E. 316, 15 Ga.App 842

46. Ky.—Central Passenger R Co v. Kuhn, 6 S.W 441, 86 Ky. 578, 9 Ky.L. 725, 9 Am S R 309.
10 C.J. p 969 note 38.

Signaling while view obstructed

(1) The conductor of a street car, who signaled the motorman to cross the tracks of a railroad although his view was obstructed by the smoke, steam, and noise of a passing train has been held guilty of negligence.—Memphis St. Ry Co. v. Cavell, 187 S W. 179, 135 Tenn. 462.

(2) Such conduct constitutes negligence as a matter of law.—Memphis St Ry. Co. v. Bobo, Tenn, 232 F. 708, 146 C C A. 634, affirmed Memphis St Ry. Co. v. Moore, 37 S.Ct. 273, 243 U S. 299, 61 L Ed. 733.

47. Ill —Chicago, etc, R. Co. v. Smith, 124 Ill App 627, affirmed 80 N.E 716, 226 Ill. 178
Mo —Mulderig v St Louis, etc, R Co., 94 S.W. 801, 116 Mo App. 655

48. Ky.—Central Pass. R. Co. v. Kuhn, 6 S W. 441, 86 Ky. 578, 9 Ky L 725, 9 Am S R. 309
Mo.—Mulderig v. St. Louis, etc, R. Co., 94 S.W. 801, 116 Mo App. 655.

49. Ill —Chicago, etc, R Co. v. Smith, 124 Ill App 627, affirmed 80 N E. 716, 226 Ill. 178.

50. Mich —De Jager v. Andringa, 217 N.W. 332, 241 Mich 474.

Negligence as matter of law

Where driver stopped bus at railroad crossing and after proceeding was struck by passenger train approaching in plain view, bus owners were held negligent as matter of law.—De Jager v. Andringa, 217 N. W. 332, 241 Mich. 474.

Gross negligence

Bus driver who tried to cross track with knowledge of approaching train or who could have seen train if he had looked or listened was held guilty of gross negligence.—Gulf & S I R Co v. Carlson, 102 So. 168, 137 Miss 613.

Care of autobus driver

(1) Autobus driver approaching railway crossing coincidently with railway car must presume car motorman would continue over crossing without slowing —McCarthy v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 255 P. 868, 82 Cal App. 503.

(2) Autobus driver approaching railway crossing coincidently with railway car has continuing duty to use caution in protecting passengers from collision —McCarthy v. Pacific Electric Ry Co, supra.

(3) The rule that a person driving across a street railroad track need exercise only ordinary care has no application in an action by a passenger in an omnibus against its owner for injuries received in a collision at such crossing, as the carrier should exercise a greater degree of vigilance.—Frank Parmelee Co. v. Wheelock, 79 N E 652, 224 Ill. 194, affirming 127 Ill App. 500.

51. Ohio —Cincinnati, D & T. Traction Co v. Holbrock, 32 Ohio Cir. Ct 724
10 C J p 969 note 42.

Where view unobstructed

A statute requiring street car companies to bring their cars to a stop before crossing a railroad track, and to send an employee forward to look out for trains, makes no exception of tracks where the view is unobstructed —Mulderig v. St Louis, etc, R. Co, 94 S W. 801, 116 Mo App. 655.

Violation of statute or ordinance generally see supra, § 743.

52. Miss —Teche Lines v Pope, 166 So 539, 175 Miss. 393.

53. U S —Lehigh Valley R Co. v. Ciechowski, C C A N Y, 10 F 2d 82, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct 352, 270 U.S 654, 70 L Ed. 783

Higher degree of care than required by public service commission

(1) A carrier may be held to a higher degree of care than that exercised in complying with the requirements of the public service rier to be liable it must be guilty of some negligent act or omission.[54]

At street intersections. The duty to exercise care to prevent collisions is particularly applicable at street intersections and a passenger injured in a collision at a street intersection by reason of the carrier's negligence may recover,[55] but the carrier is not liable where the collision occurred without fault commission.—Lehigh Valley R. Co v Ciechowski, C.C.A.N.Y., 10 F.2d 82, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 352, 270 U.S. 654, 70 L.Ed. 783.

(2) Carrier may be required to maintain flagman and gates at crossing of much-traveled highway in addition to maintaining safety signal prescribed by public service commission.—Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Ciechowski, supra.

Timely signal

Timely crossing signal by engineer was held necessary, where he saw automobile approaching crossing under circumstances which might drown warning of his on-coming passenger train.—Lehigh Valley R. Co v. Ciechowski, C.C.A.N.Y., 10 F.2d 82, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 352, 270 U.S. 654. 70 L.Ed. 783.

Duty of bus drivers, etc., crossing railroad tracks see supra this section.

54. Cal.—Jackson v. Pacific Electric Ry Co., 46 P.2d 281, 7 Cal.App.2d 287.

Motorist disregarding crossing signals

Where motorist, disregarding danger signals, drove directly in front of interurban train and was struck by train, and particles of glass from automobile allegedly were blown into eyes of passenger of train who was sitting by open window, railroad was held not liable to passenger, where motorman was not negligent.—Jackson v. Pacific Electric Ry Co., 46 P.2d 281, 7 Cal.App.2d 287.

55. Ill.—Schluraff v Shore Line Motor Coach Co., 269 Ill.App. 569.

La.—Wilkins v. Featherstone Transfer Co., 100 So. 732, 156 La. 601.—Thorgrimson v Shreveport Yellow Cabs, App., 161 So. 49

Mass.—Froio v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 142 N.E. 255, 247 Mass. 474.

R.I.—Zmuda v McFarland, 165 A. 446, 53 R.I. 210.

Tex.—Valee v Joiner, Com.App., 44 S.W.2d 983, reversing Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Joiner, Civ.App., 27 S.W.2d 917.

Care required

(1) A bus driver must exercise the highest degree of care to prevent collisions at street intersections.—Di Rossi v. Connecticut Co., 188 A. 926, 122 Conn. 372.

(2) Holding motorman to "high degree of care" to avoid collision with vehicle using intersecting street was held proper, although vehicle was negligently and unlawfully operated.—Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co. v. Garner, Tex.Civ.App., 42 S.W.2d 665, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 63 S.W.2d 542.

(3) Street car conductor, as well as motorman, has duty to passenger to exercise highest degree of care to avoid collision with automobile.—Kappico v. St. Louis Public Service Co., Mo.App., 41 S.W.2d 826.

(4) Where street car and automobile truck collided at street intersection, injuring street car passenger, duty of both motorman and truck driver was to use care of an ordinarily prudent person under the circumstances.—Kelly v International Ry Co., 212 N.Y.S. 309, 214 App.Div. 652.

(5) Truck driver and taxicab driver whose vehicles collided both owed taxicab passenger duty to use care commensurate with all circumstances.—Nelson v. Haege, 248 N.Y.S. 647, 232 App.Div. 56.

(6) Drivers, gripmen, and motormen of street cars are obliged to exercise à more exacting attention when they approach street crossings in a crowded city where vehicles and pedestrians may always be expected in front of them.—Lazer v Chicago City R. Co., 152 Ill.App. 319

Right of way; through streets

(1) Where an autobus was traveling at a high rate of speed on reaching a street on which an automobile was approaching from his right, the automobile had the right of way, and failure to have the bus under such control as to let the automobile pass in front of it was negligence, rendering defendant bus owner liable to a passenger for injury from the collision.—Baker v. Western Auto Stage Co., 192 P. 73, 48 Cal.App. 283.

(2) That driver of taxicab had right of way at street intersection did not alone relieve it from liability to passenger for negligence in intersection collision.—Hogan v. Miller, 157 S.E. 540, 156 Va. 166.

(3) Taxicab driver, who had right of way, still had duty to keep lookout and exercise highest degree of care for safety of his passenger, could not continue through intersection oblivious to other traffic, and would not be excused, merely because he had right of way, by negligence of another motorist, unless negligence of other motorist was sole cause of accident.—B-Line Cab Co v Lake, 110 S.W.2d 1083, 270 Ky. 763.

(4) Motorman has no right to presume that, by sounding warning at street intersection, vehicles having right of way will yield it.—Louisville & Interurban R. Co v. Kerr, 287 S.W. 926, 216 Ky. 407

(5) Stage driver on through street having right of way could assume automobile approaching on cross street would obey law and stop before entering through street.

Cal.—Gritsch v Pickwick Stages System, 22 P.2d 554, 131 Cal.App. 774

La.—Upton v Bell Cabs, App., 154 So. 359.

(6) However, the motorman or driver cannot assume that a person is not going to violate the law when every indication is to the contrary

Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co v Boyd, 65 S.W.2d 919, 188 Ark. 254.

La.—Upton v Bell Cabs, supra.

(7) In such circumstances, the driver was required to use such care to avoid accident as ordinarily prudent driver would have done under similar circumstances by immediately placing taxicab under proper control, slowing down, or stopping if necessary.—Upton v. Bell Cabs, supra.

Lookout

(1) Failure of driver of taxicab to observe automobile approaching from his right at street intersection notwithstanding automobile was in plain sight justified finding of negligence in action for personal injuries sustained by passenger in taxicab.—Rosenberg v. Matulis, 166 A. 397, 116 Conn. 675

(2) Street car motorman observing motortruck three hundred feet away, and failing to keep it under surveillance, although knowing it must cross his path, held negligent, as regards liability to injured passenger.—Bacon v. New Orleans Public Service, 137 So. 213, 18 La.App. 96, rehearing denied 137 So. 866, 18 La.App. 96

Stopping or slowing down at intersection

(1) Street railway is not obligated to stop cars at all intersections, or to slacken speed so as to permit practically immediate stop.—Benedict v. New Orleans Public Service, 120 So. 521, 9 La.App. 322

(2) Driver of taxicab involved in collision with truck should have stopped before entering from narrow intersecting street into wide thoroughfare with two street car tracks.—Dawson v. Toye Bros. Yellow Cab Co., 131 So. 716, 15 La.App. 326

(3) Taxicab driver, who approach-

on its part.[56]

On highway between intersections. A carrier, such as a bus company or taxicab company, etc., must exercise care to avoid collisions with other vehicles on the highway and is liable to its passenger where he sustains injury in a collision caused by its negligence.[57] However, the carrier is not liable where it was not negligent.[58]

§ 747. Concurrent Negligence of Two Carriers

Generally each carrier is liable to a passenger injured in a collision caused by the concurrent negligence of such carriers.

Where a passenger is injured in a collision caused by the concurrent negligence of two carriers, the general rule is that each carrier is liable,[59] and the ed blind intersection at forty miles per hour without slowing down and rammed into automobile traveling at twenty miles per hour and which had slowed down before reaching intersection and was then in intersection, having right of preemption, was held negligent.—Holland v. Owners' Automobile Ins. Co. of New Orleans, La.App., 155 So. 780.

(4) Bus driver approaching intersection at thirty-five miles per hour, and colliding with motorist slowly crossing intersection, injuring bus passenger was held negligent.—Sloan v. Original Stage Line, 12 P.2d 465, 124 Cal.App. 317.

(5) Driver of taxicab entering through traffic street was not required to stop, as regards liability to passenger, where no stop sign had been erected.—Ramsdell v Frederick, 285 P. 219, 132 Or 161

Proceeding on officer's signal

As regards bus company's liability for injuries to passenger resulting from intersectional collision, traffic officer's signal for bus driver to proceed and signal for on-coming automobile to stop did not authorize bus driver to proceed in negligent manner or to proceed at all if to do so necessarily, exposed passengers to harm.—Di Rossi v. Connecticut Co., 188 A. 926, 122 Conn. 372.

Superior rights of street railroad

(1) While street car companies do not have exclusive use of tracks, their rights are superior to traveling public's, and street cars have right of way.—Ruthberg v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 151 A. 19, 300 Pa. 536.

(2) Street car motorman, although believing he had superior rights on highway, had duty of using due care to prevent impending collision with truck.—Moraski v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 142 A. 276, 293 Pa. 224.

(3) Motorman of trolley car, although having superior right of way, has duty of controlling car, so as to avoid collision.—Caplan v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 92 Pa.Super. 251.

(4) In an action for personal injuries against a street railway company and the driver of an automobile which collided with a car of the company, by a passenger of the company who at the time was in its car, it is not error for the trial court to grant a prayer for instruction asked by the railway company that the car of the company had a preferential right of way which its codefendant was required to respect.—Pistorio v. Washington R & E Co., 46 App.D.C. 479.

56. La.—Benedict v. New Orleans Public Service, 120 So. 521, 9 La. App. 322.
Pa.—Ruthberg v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 151 A. 19, 300 Pa. 536—Rosen v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 100 Pa Super. 242.

57. Ill.—Lavin v. Yellow Cab Co., App., 4 N.E.2d 50.
Pa.—Brown v. Cunningham Cab Co., 92 Pa.Super. 356.

Driving in center of highway

Bus driver's action, in driving within few feet of center of highway when there was unoccupied space the width of the bus to the right on the highway, constituted negligence as regards bus company's liability for passenger's injuries when bus was sideswiped by automobile.—Ross v. Bay City Transit Co., 56 P.2d 247, 12 Cal.App.2d 639.

Lookout

(1) Operator of stage owed passenger duty to keep proper lookout ahead, together with observation of condition of road to avoid obstructions.—Poropat v. Olympic Peninsula Motor Coach Co., 299 P. 979, 163 Wash. 78.

(2) Bus driver was required to be on lookout for animals in highway, regardless of stock law making it unlawful for animals to run at large in county.—Tennessee Coach Co. v Young, 80 S.W.2d 107, 18 Tenn.App. 592.

Bus on car tracks

A bus driver is a common carrier required to exercise the utmost care and diligence for the safety of his passengers, and the jury may find that he is thereby required while driving along a street car track to look behind at intervals to ascertain whether a street car is approaching. The utmost care and vigilance which the driver of a bus owes to his passengers under Civ.Code § 2100 requires him when driving along an interurban track to exercise the utmost care to hear the warning signal of a car approaching from behind, and to turn off from the tracks as soon as he safely can do so, and it is negligence for him to remain upon the tracks after hearing such signal merely because it was more comfortable for the passengers.—Simmons v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co, 212 P. 637, 60 Cal.App. 129

Avoidance of obstructions or vehicles by railroad or street railroad company see infra § 748.

58. Ky.—Dix v. Gross, 111 S.W.2d 673, 273 Ky. 231
N.J.—De Stefano v. Yellow Cab Co, 126 A. 429, 2 N.J.Misc. 1006
N.Y.—Gehm v. Yellow Taxi Corporation, 281 N.Y.S. 320, 245 App.Div. 816
Ohio—Cleveland Ry. Co v. Orwig, 177 N.E. 201, 124 Ohio St. 134.

Sounding horn

Bus driver's failure to sound horn when about to meet and pass truck was held not negligence under statute which requires sounding of horn only when about to pass another vehicle going in same direction.—Gager v Teche Transfer Co, La.App., 153 So. 69.

Slowing down not negligence

Slowing down by a carrier where he could not see in front of him has been held not an act of negligence as respects the crashing into the rear of the car by another car, on the contrary, it was the duty of the carrier to slow down or to stop in such circumstances.—Wilford v Cooper, 98 S.W.2d 39, 266 Ky. 64.

Ordinance inapplicable

Where an automobile backed across the sidewalk into a bus standing in the street parallel to the sidewalk at a time when the street was lighted, but the interior of the bus was not lighted, whereby plaintiff was injured as he was in the act of boarding the bus, the carrier was not liable for negligence as the New York City ordinance requiring bus companies to light the interior of their busses is for the accommodation and convenience of its passengers, and not to warn users of highway.—Kerner v Surface Transp. Corporation, 2 N.Y.S.2d 356, 166 Misc. 742.

59. U.S.—Little v. Hackett, N.J., 6 S.Ct. 391, 116 U.S. 366, 375, 29 L.Ed. 652.

passenger may sue either of them, or he may join them in one action, as shown infra § 760, and the fact that those operating the train or car on the crossing track are negligent will not relieve the carrier of the passenger from liability for injury to him if its employees might, in the exercise of the highest degree of care and precaution, have avoided the collision.[60] This rule applies where a collision is caused by the concurrent negligence of a street railroad company and a sight-seeing automobile,[61] or of a railroad company and a hackman,[62] or of a bus company and a taxicab company,[63] or of two taxicab companies.[64]

The liability of a carrier to an injured passenger where an injury occurs through the concurrent negligence of the carrier and a third person generally is treated supra § 709.

§ 748. Avoidance of Collisions with Animals, Vehicles, or Other Obstacles on or near Track

A railroad or street railroad company is generally held to the highest degree of care in avoiding collision with obstacles or vehicles on or near the track

The highest degree of care is required in avoiding collision with obstacles on or near the track from which danger may be anticipated,[65] although the obstruction is caused by an agency over which the carrier has no control;[66] and this is the rule as to animals on, or which may be about to come on, the track,[67] and also applies to a vehicle,[68] not-

Cal.—Simmons v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 212 P. 641, 60 Cal.App 140.

Ga.—Central of Georgia Ry Co. v. Wheat, 122 S.E 794, 32 Ga.App 151.

Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v Alstadt 143 N.E. 879, 195 Ind 389

N.J.—Matthews v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 27 A. 919, 56 N.J.Law 34, 22 L.R.A 261

10 C.J. p 970 note 45.

The rule as laid down in Corpus Juris is cited and applied in Simmons v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 212 P 637, 641, 60 Cal.App 129.

In Pennsylvania

(1) It has been held that a taxicab company, whose driver stopped cab with rear wheel between trolley rails, and street railway company, whose motorman should have seen wheel there and had ample time to stop car before collision were concurrently negligent and jointly and severally liable.—Hughes v Pittsburgh Transp. Co., 150 A. 153, 300 Pa. 55.

(2) However, in an earlier case it was held that only the carrier with whom the passenger had contracted for carriage is liable.—Lockhart v. Lichtenthaler, 46 Pa. 151.

60. U.S.—Memphis St. Ry. Co. v. Bobo, Tenn., 232 F. 708, 146 C.C.A. 634, affirmed Memphis St. Ry. Co. v. Moore, 37 S.Ct. 273, 243 U.S. 299, 61 L.Ed. 733.

Tenn.—Memphis St. Ry Co. v. Cavell, 187 S.W 179, 135 Tenn. 462.

10 C.J. p 970 note 46.

61. Mo.—McFadden v. Metropolitan St. R Co., 143 S.W. 884, 161 Mo. App. 652.

62. N.Y.—Jerome v. New York Rys. Co., 179 N.Y.S. 777, 190 App.Div. 311

10 C.J. p 971 note 49.

63. N.J.—Koplow v. Hiczwa, 134 A. 891, 4 N.J.Misc. 904.

64. N.J.—Dickson v Ackerman, 168 A 269, 111 N.J.Law 583

65. Pa. — Hughes v. Pittsburgh Transp. Co., 150 A 153, 300 Pa. 55.

10 C.J. p 971 note 50

Elevated railroad pillars

A street car conductor is bound to take notice of the distance between his car and the pillars of an elevated railroad in the street, and of the size of a passenger standing on the running board, in determining whether it is safe to permit the car to pass a pillar before the passenger has had time to enter the car, but it is not necessarily negligence in every case to allow the car to pass the pillar while a passenger is standing on the running board, as a street railroad company is not bound to anticipate that a passenger standing on the running board of an open car will swing back so as to come in contact with a pillar of an elevated railroad sufficiently distant to permit the passenger standing in the position first assumed by him to pass it in safety, although the passenger found such movement convenient in order to swing himself more easily up into the car.—Canavan v. Interurban St. R. Co., 87 N.Y.S. 491.

Passing car on other track

A street car company is liable for the death of a passenger who, while standing on the inside running board of an open car, was struck by a car from the opposite direction on the other track, if the bell on such car was not sounded.—Kalis v. Detroit United R Co., 119 N.W. 906, 155 Mich. 485.

Warning of danger

(1) It was not motorman's absolute duty to warn open trolley car passenger of possible danger as car approached parked vehicles.—Maher v. Connecticut Co., 155 A. 854, 113 Conn 556, 77 A.L.R. 426

(2) Street railroad company is not bound to warn passenger of proximity of pole to its tracks, where danger was known to passenger and was obvious.—Milliken v. Rhode Island Co., 99 A. 1023, 40 R.I. 82

66. La.—Larose v New Orleans Public Service, 119 So. 908, 10 La. App. 91.

10 C.J. p 971 note 51.

67. Tex.—Scott v. Texas Electric Ry Co., Com.App., 32 S.W.2d 641, reversing Texas Electric Ry. Co. v Scott, Civ.App., 21 S.W.2d 24.

10 C.J. p 971 note 52.

68. La.—Larose v. New Orleans Public Service, 119 So. 908, 10 La. App. 91.

Pa.—Petri v. Pittsburgh Rys Co., 195 A. 107.

Wis.—Moen v Madison Rys. Co., 243 N.W. 505, 208 Wis. 388.—Moen v Madison Rys. Co., 243 N.W. 503, 208 Wis 381.

10 C.J. p 971 note 53.

Duty in passing animal drawn vehicle

Motorman of street car, passing unattended animal-drawn vehicle, need only ascertain sufficiency of margin and proceed at reasonably slow speed, unless animals appear restive.—Larose v. New Orleans Public Service, 119 So. 908, 10 La. App. 91.

Liability dependent on negligence

A street railway company was not liable for injuries to a passenger who was knocked from the running board of a car by a truck standing in the street, if the motorman could not have stopped the car after he saw or had an opportunity to see the truck.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Cherry, 105 S.E. 657, 129 Va. 262.

Collisions at street intersections or railroad crossings see supra § 746.

withstanding the carrier has a paramount right of way,[69] and notwithstanding the driver of the vehicle is negligent.[70] However, the carrier will not be liable if it exercises due care and the collision could not have been reasonably anticipated,[71] as where a collision with a wagon is caused by a sudden movement of the horses attached thereto.[72]

§ 749. Dangerous Rate of Speed

A carrier may run its train or cars, without being guilty of negligence per se, at any rate of speed consistent with the safety of its passengers in the absence of a statute or ordinance limiting such speed.

In the absence of a statute or ordinance to the contrary, it is not negligence per se for a carrier to run its train or car at any rate of speed consistent with the safety of its passengers,[73] even though the rate of speed is in excess of the scheduled rate,[74] particularly where the excessive speed results from defective machinery, which defects are not known and could not be known by the exercise of the highest degree of care, and which prevent the engineer or motorman from controlling it.[75] However, the rate of speed at which a train or car is run may be dangerous in view of the circumstances or conditions under which it is operated, or because the particular place is such as to require precautions in that respect, and under such circumstances and conditions may constitute negli-

69. Pa. — Hughes v. Pittsburgh Transp. Co., 150 A. 153, 300 Pa. 55.
10 C.J. p. 968 note 30, p. 971 note 53.

Sharp lookout

While it is not the carrier's duty to anticipate and provide against every exigency or possible contingency which may suddenly arise in the operation of the lines, it is carrier's duty and that of its employees to keep a sharp lookout and be able to stop the car in the face of danger. It is duty of motorman of street car to keep a constant lookout ahead and to have such control of his car as to avoid dangers ordinarily incident to its operation and also to avoid such unusual and unexpected dangers as he sees in time to avoid.—Petri v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., Pa., 195 A. 107.

Absence of negligence not necessarily shown

Fact that headlight on motor truck on side near track was not lighted did not show that motorman was not negligent in colliding therewith but was only circumstance.—Tuttle v. Connecticut Valley St. Ry. Co., 132 N.E. 360, 239 Mass. 553.

70. Pa. — Hughes v. Pittsburgh Transp. Co., 150 A. 153, 300 Pa. 55.
10 C.J. p. 968 note 31

Vehicle following car

If a street car conductor knew that an automobile was following a street car at such a rate of speed and in such close proximity thereto as to make it dangerous to a passenger on the rear platform to stop the car at a place not an ordinary stopping place, it would be negligence for him to do so under the last clear chance doctrine, independent of the duties of the company to a passenger.—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Rice, 250 S.W. 863, 199 Ky. 196.

71. Cal.—Souza v. Market St. Ry. Co., 289 P. 665, 106 Cal. App. 347.
Ky.—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Himbaugh, 82 S.W.2d 776, 259 Ky. 604.—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Rice, 250 S.W. 863, 199 Ky. 196.
Ohio.—Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co. v. Chismar, 8 N.E.2d 156, 54 Ohio App. 481.
R.I.—Rohl v. United Electric Rys. Co., 149 A. 375, 50 R.I. 478.
10 C.J. p. 968 note 30 [b], p. 971 note 54.

Overswing

Street railway owes no duty to keep lookout to prevent collision from overswing or to warn of danger until actually known. Street railway employees could assume that automobile driver would not attempt to pass between parked truck and turning street car.—Wheeler v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 215 N.W. 950, 205 Iowa 439, 55 A.L.R. 473.

Sounding gong

(1) Street car motorman was held not negligent in failing to sound gong, where car was lighted and visible to driver of bus which collided with car.—Rohl v. United Electric Rys. Co., 149 A. 375, 50 R.I. 478.

(2) Municipal ordinance providing that gong on street cars should be sounded at least one hundred feet distant from all street intersections and while passing such intersections held inapplicable in suit against company by passenger on car for injuries sustained in collision between street car and automobile which did not occur at intersection.—Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co. v. Chismar, 8 N.E.2d 156, 54 Ohio App. 481.

Vehicle following car

A street car conductor may assume, in the absence of indication to the contrary, that an automobile following the car will be driven with such care that it can stop before colliding with the street car, even if the street car stops at an unexpected place, since the automobile driver is charged with knowledge that street cars frequently do stop at other than the regular stopping places.—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Rice, 250 S.W. 863, 199 Ky. 196.

Assuming vehicle would clear track

As long as driver of truck rounding curve with left front wheel on space between inside rails of tracks was apparently able to give street car approaching curve from opposite direction, a clear track, motorman was entitled to assume that he would do so.—Wilkerson v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 163 A. 909, 309 Pa. 381.

72. La.—Larose v. New Orleans Public Service, 119 So. 908, 10 La. App. 91.
10 C.J. p. 971 note 55.

73. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
Ill.—Letush v. New York Cent. R. Co., 267 Ill. App. 526.
Wis.—Smith v. Chicago, N. S. & M. R. R., 193 N.W. 64, 180 Wis. 259.
10 C.J. p. 972 note 57.

Derailment not foreseeable

Conduct of motorman of interurban car to have been negligent in actionable sense, must have been such that derailment because of speed ought reasonably to have been foreseen by him. Alleged excessive speed of interurban car was held not to entitle passenger injured by overturning of car to recover, where overturning of car was caused by collision with automobile, driver of which had unobstructed view of two thousand feet toward approaching car for last five hundred feet of his approach to intersection, since motorman could not have foreseen that driver of automobile would not stop.—Bleul v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., Wis., 271 N.W. 1.

74. Tenn.—East Tennessee, etc., R. Co. v. Winters, 1 S.W. 790, 85 Tenn. 240.
10 C.J. p. 972 note 58.

75. Ky.—South Covington, etc., St. R. Co. v. Barr, 144 S.W. 755, 147 Ky. 549.

gence as to passengers thereon,[76] even though it is less than the rate allowed by statute or ordinance;[77] and in accordance with this rule it is the duty of the employee in charge of the motive power of a train or car so to regulate its speed as to have it under control, and to slow up, and, if necessary, to stop, when danger is imminent.[78]

Violation of statute or ordinance. Where statutes or ordinances limiting the rate of speed are held to be for the benefit and protection of passengers, it is generally held to be negligence per se to run at a greater rate of speed;[79] but where a

76. Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v Edwards, 121 So 543, 219 Ala 162
La.—Haynes v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav Co., 74 So 538, 140 La. 1019
—Matteson v Teche Greyhound Lines, App., 178 So 272
Mich.—Bury v Detroit United Ry., 164 N.W 460, 198 Mich. 447
Pa.—Deady v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 100 Pa.Super. 208.
Tenn. — Tennessee Coach Co. v. Young, 80 S.W.2d 107, 18 Tenn App 592.
10 C.J. p 972 note 60.

May constitute negligence

The fact that an electric street car was going at the rate of twelve or fifteen miles an hour in passing over a frog at a curve where the carrier's rules required that cars should not run faster than four miles an hour has been held to be evidence of negligence on the part of the motorman in running the car.—Sweetland v Lynn, etc., R. Co., 59 N.E. 443, 177 Mass. 574, 51 L.R.A. 783

It is negligence toward passengers

(1) To run a street car at great speed when approaching a switch.—Alabama Power Co. v. Edwards, 121 So 543, 219 Ala 162.

(2) Knowingly to drive through loose rock at rapid speed under circumstances where rocks may be thrown and injure some one.—Bowling Green-Hopkinsville Bus Co. v Edwards, 59 S.W.2d 584, 248 Ky. 684.

(3) It was gross and wanton negligence on part of locomotive engineer to run train at high speed with notice that there was water over track ahead.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cole, 74 So 766, 113 Miss 896.

(4) Violation of rule to regulate car when headlights are turned off so as to be able to stop within range of vision was held evidence of negligence.—Tuttle v. Connecticut Valley St. Ry. Co., 132 N.E. 360, 239 Mass 553

(5) Taxicab driver's attempt to cross highly-traveled, sleety street at twenty-five miles an hour at night while snow was falling was held negligence — Barrows v. Checker Taxi Co., 195 N.E. 112, 290 Mass 231

(6) Other illustrations see 10 C.J. p 972 note 60 [a].

It is not negligence toward passengers to run a trolley car at a speed of about ten miles per hour where the street was free of traffic, the road and rails were dry, and the car was lighted.—Rohl v United Electric Rys. Co., 149 A. 375, 50 R.I. 478

Crowded car or train

(1) Where the seats, aisles, and platform of a street car are crowded, the carrier should so regulate the speed as to use the highest degree of care for the safety of passengers consistent with the practical operation of the car.—Alton Light, etc., Co. v. Oller, 75 N.E. 419, 217 Ill. 15, 4 L.R.A.,N.S., 399, affirming 119 Ill.App. 181.

(2) Where a person is accepted as a passenger on a street car which is so crowded that he is compelled to stand on the rear platform and hold on by the handrail, and while in this position, and without notice to him, the car is driven around a curve in the track without slackening speed, in violation of a rule of the company requiring the speed to be reduced one half in rounding curves, and he is violently thrown from the car and injured, such facts are sufficient to establish negligence on the part of the carrier entitling the passenger to recover for his injuries.—Gatens v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 85 N.Y.S. 967, 89 App.Div. 311, affirmed 73 N.E. 1124, 191 N.Y. 515.—Lucas v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 67 N.Y.S. 833, 56 App.Div. 405.

(3) Where in such a case a passenger is thrown from the platform as the train rounds a curve at a speed of from twenty-five to thirty miles an hour, the carrier is liable for his injuries, although an ordinance permits trains to run thirty-five miles an hour at the place of the accident.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Newell, 72 N.E. 416, 212 Ill. 332, appeal dismissed 25 S.Ct. 801, 198 U.S. 579, 49 L.Ed. 1171.

The conductor of a street car, being in control of the movements of the vehicle, is negligent if he allows the motorman to proceed at so excessive a rate of speed as to endanger passengers.—Mobile Light, etc., Co. v. Hughes, 67 So. 278, 190 Ala 216.

Knowledge of conditions

The employees of a carrier are charged with knowledge of the condition of the carrier's railroad track at a point where excessive speed would be likely to cause derailment.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Cheatham, 113 S.W. 777, 52 Tex.Civ.App. 1.

77. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Newell, 72 N.E. 416, 212 Ill. 332, appeal dismissed 25 S.Ct. 801, 198 U.S. 579, 49 L.Ed 1171.

78. La.—McMahon v New Orleans R., etc., Co., 53 So 857, 127 La. 544, 32 L.R.A.,N.S., 346.
10 C.J. p 973 note 62.

Another vehicle in road

Driver of bus must keep machine under such control after discovering another vehicle ahead, to avoid accident. In passenger's action for injuries, bus driver seeing truck enter road one hundred twenty-five feet away and failing to get bus sufficiently under control to avoid collision, but depending on truck getting out of way, held negligent.—Mahfouz v. Interurban Transp. Co. 135 So. 740, 17 La.App. 241.

79. U.S.—Harmon v. Barber, Ohio, 247 F. 1, 159 C.C.A. 219, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 335, 246 U.S. 666, 62 L.Ed 929.
Tenn.—Blount County v. Perry, 7 Tenn.App. 340.
Wash.—Singer v. Martin, 164 P. 1105, 96 Wash. 231.
10 C.J. p 973 note 63.

Through streets

Statutory duty of driver of stage on through street was to drive at careful and prudent speed, having due regard to traffic, surface, and width of highway. Statute limiting speed to fifteen miles an hour at intersection held controlled by subsequently enacted provisions respecting through highways. One driving vehicle on established through highway appropriately marked with stop-signs at intersections need not reduce speed at intersections to fifteen miles an hour, but rate of speed, unless governed by local regulation, is controlled by statute requiring speed not greater than is reasonable and proper.—Gritsch v. Pickwick Stages System, 22 P.2d 554, 131 Cal. App. 774.

Controlling statute as to street railroad

Motor Vehicle Act, limiting speed to twenty miles per hour, has no application to vehicles operated on stationary rails or tracks, and hence does not repeal an ordinance limiting the speed of street cars to ten miles, and so render erroneous an instruction predicating liability for injury to a passenger on a violation of such ordinance.—McKinnon v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 203 P. 122, 55 Cal.App. 96.

regulation of speed is intended for the benefit of persons crossing the track, a violation of such regulation does not raise an imputation of negligence per se in favor of an injured passenger.[80]

§ 750. Sudden Jerks and Jolts

A carrier is not liable for jerks or jolts which are necessarily incident to the use of the conveyance, but the rule is otherwise where the jerk or jolt is unnecessary, or sudden and violent.

It may constitute negligence that the train or car is so operated that, by jerking or jarring, passengers are imperiled who are properly conducting themselves with reference to their transportation, and the conveyance must be operated with regard to the situation of the passengers as known to, or as it should be known to, the employees in charge.[81] Thus it may constitute negligence to stop a train or car with such suddenness and violence as to cause injury to a passenger,[82] where there is no justification or excuse therefor.[83] However, in order that the above rule may apply, the jerk or jolt must be unnecessary or unusually sudden or violent,[84] such jerks and jars as are necessarily incident to the use Repeal of a statute limiting the speed of cars is ineffective to deprive a person injured by a violation of such statute prior to its repeal of his right to rely thereon.—Singer v Martin, 164 P 1105, 96 Wash. 231—10 C.J. p 973 note 63 [c].

Violation of statutes or ordinances relating to operation and management generally see supra § 743.

80. Tex.—Walker v. Metropolitan St. R Co., Civ.App., 151 S.W. 1142

81. Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v. Mart, 65 S.W.2d 39, 188 Ark. 202.
Cal.—McIntosh v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 59 P.2d 959.
Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R Co. v. Hamlett, 89 So 337, 81 Fla. 872.
Mo.—Modrell v. Dunham, App, 187 S.W. 561, 564.
10 C.J. p 973 note 66.

Utmost care

A carrier must use the utmost care in operating its cars so as not to jar or upset passengers.—Bales v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 40 S.W.2d 665, 328 Mo. 171—Laible v. Wells, 296 S.W. 428, 317 Mo. 141

Negligence dependent on circumstances

Whether sudden starting is necessary and consistent with prudent and proper operation of street car depends on circumstances.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v. Mart, 65 S.W.2d 39, 188 Ark. 202.

Making up train after receiving passenger

(1) Where a carrier receives a passenger in one of its cars for passage before making up the train of which such car is to be a part, the law requires the company to make up its train, couple, manage, and control its cars and engines in such a careful, skillful, and prudent manner as to carry the passenger with reasonable safety; and it will be liable for an injury to the passenger resulting from its neglect of this duty, when such passenger is not wanting in ordinary care.—Hannibal, etc., R. Co. v. Martin, 111 Ill. 219, affirming 11 Ill App. 386.

(2) It is the duty of those coupling passenger cars to use the highest degree of care usually exercised by ordinarily prudent persons under like circumstances.—Southern R Co v. Neal, 175 S.W. 14, 164 Ky. 121

82. U.S.—Southern Pac. Co. v Hanlon C.C.A.Cal., 9 F.2d 294.
Mass.—Warren v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 871, 259 Mass 226
Minn.—McMurray v. Twin City Motor Bus Co., 228 N.W. 154, 178 Minn. 561
N.Y. — Bergman v. Brooklyn & Queens Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 727, 163 Misc. 762.
Va.—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co. v Jackson, 162 S.E. 18, 157 Va. 628.
10 C.J. p 974 note 67.

Corpus Juris statement of this rule is cited with approval in Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N.W. 112, 283 Mich. 413.

Conduct held to constitute negligence

(1) Cab driver following close behind automobile ahead, and bringing cab to sudden stop, throwing passenger against partition window, fracturing nose was held negligent.—Stevens v. Yellow Cab Co., La. App., 142 So 807

(2) Sudden stopping of street car and throwing passenger holding on iron railing onto floor held negligence, authorizing recovery of damages.—Warren v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 871, 259 Mass 226.

(3) Where a female passenger, sixty-nine years old and weighing one hundred seventy pounds, had not alighted when the car started and was carried nearly to the next street where cars customarily stopped without signal, the act of the conductor in unnecessarily signaling for an emergency stop causing a bounce that threw the passenger from the car was negligence.—Funk v New Orleans Ry & Light Co., 91 So. 506, 150 La. 1046.

The term "violent stop," as applied to the stopping of a street car, must be given a relative meaning in keeping with the circumstances of the particular case, since a stop which might be inconsequential to a standing passenger in the prime of life may be violent and highly injurious to an aged and infirm person.—Allen v Dunham, 175 S.W 135, 188 Mo App 193

83. U.S.—Southern Pac Co. v. Hanlon, C.C.A.Cal., 9 F.2d 294
Mich.—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N.W 112, 283 Mich 413

Stopping at railroad crossing

The right of action of a railroad's passenger for being thrown from a car platform to the ground when the car lurched forward with a jerk is unaffected by the fact that the jerk was caused by the stopping of the train at a crossing to wait for signals before pulling into a station, a fact of which the passenger was not apprised.—Johnson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 99 S.E 558, 125 Va 136

84. Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Hamlett, 89 So 337, 81 Fla. 872
Ga.—Southern Ry. Co. v Whitehead, 120 S.E. 700, 31 Ga.App. 398.
Iowa.—Wheeler v Des Moines City Ry. Co., 215 N.W. 950, 205 Iowa 439, 55 A.L.R 473.
Ky.—Shafer v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., 14 S.W 2d 780, 228 Ky. 219—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co v Peel, 214 S.W. 874, 185 Ky 207—McDermott v. Louisville & N R Co., 206 S.W. 6, 182 Ky. 22—Millers Creek R Co. v Blevins, 205 S.W. 911, 181 Ky. 800—Louisville Ry Co. v. Osborne, 188 S.W 419, 171 Ky. 348.
La.—Murphy v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 169 So. 890
Mass.—Holland v Boston & M. R R., 181 N.E. 217, 279 Mass. 342—Revsbech v. Boston Elevated Ry Co., 175 N.E. 734, 275 Mass. 317.
Mich.—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N.W. 112, 283 Mich 413.
Mo.—Laible v. Wells, 296 S.W. 428, 317 Mo. 141 — Mendenhall v Springfield Traction Co., App., 26 S.W.2d 50—Katon v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 241 S.W. 983—Laycock v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 227 S.W. 883, certified questions answered, Sup., 235 S.W. 91.

of the conveyance, and are not the result of negligence, will not render the carrier liable for resulting injuries.[85] In accordance with this rule the carrier is not liable where the sudden jerk or jar

N.J.—Raeuber v. Public Service Ry. Co., 98 A. 192, 89 N.J.Law 366.
N.Y.—Smith v. Union Ry. Co. of New York City, 247 N.Y.S. 804, 139 Misc. 69.
Ohio—Yager v. Marshall, 196 N.E. 375, 129 Ohio St. 584.
Pa.—Harkins v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 134 A. 376, 286 Pa. 465 — Fornwalt v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 65 Pa.Super. 559.
Tenn.—N., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Buchanan, 7 Tenn.Civ.A. 56.
Utah.—Morrissey v. Union Pac. R. Co., 249 P. 1064, 68 Utah 323.
10 C.J. p. 974 note 68.

Sudden acceleration or stopping

(1) Sudden acceleration of moving car, or sudden stopping, without more, is not evidence of negligence.—Gollis v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry., 149 N.E. 607, 254 Mass. 157—O'Neill v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 142 N.E. 904, 248 Mass. 362.

(2) This is true irrespective of whether the passenger is seated or standing—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N.W. 112, 283 Mich. 413.

(3) It is not negligent for a train to accelerate speed suddenly while approaching a station.—Vivian v. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co., Tex.Civ.App., 196 S.W. 267, error refused.

(4) A street railway cannot be held liable for resulting injuries to passengers due to sudden jerks in starting, stopping, or operating such conveyances if they are maintained in a serviceable condition and operated in the customary manner.—Selman v. City of Detroit, supra.

Whether jerk violent or unusual dependent on circumstances

(1) Whether a car is started or stopped with an unusual or unnecessary jerk or jolt depends upon the facts in each particular case.
Mass.—Revsbech v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 175 N.E. 734, 275 Mass. 317.
R.I.—Roy v. United Electric Rys. Co., 164 A. 513, 53 R.I. 122.

(2) Care required of street railroad for safety of passengers, and what constitutes violent or unusual jerk of car, depends on existing conditions.—Meyers v. Wells, Mo., 273 S.W. 110.

Beyond passenger's reasonable anticipation

Sudden or violent jerk of moving trolley car is not of itself sufficient to establish motorman's negligence unless it otherwise clearly appears that movement of car was so extraordinary as to be beyond passenger's reasonable anticipation.—Waldov v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 182 A. 129, 120 Pa.Super. 304.

Jerk prima facie unnecessary

When street car on which passengers were standing on steps was proceeding at moderate speed and suddenly jerked forward, sudden movement was prima facie unnecessary and negligent—Cooley v. Dunham, 195 S.W. 1058, 196 Mo.App. 399.

Violent jerk necessarily incident to starting

A carrier has been held liable where the car starts with an unusual or violent jerk, injuring a passenger, although it may be thought that such jerk was necessary to the starting of the car—Bales v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 40 S.W.2d 665, 328 Mo. 171—Laible v. Wells, 296 S.W. 428, 317 Mo. 141.

Sufficient violence to indicate negligence necessary

To entitle a passenger on a street car to recover for injuries received from a jerk or lurch of the car, throwing the passenger from the step of the car, assuming that the passenger had a right to be on the step, it must not only be unnecessary and unusual, but it must be of sufficient violence to indicate negligence in the operation of the car.—Louisville & I. R. Co. v. Roberts, 228 S.W. 681, 190 Ky. 744.

85. U.S.—Griggs v. Erie R. Co., C.C.A.N.J., 71 F.2d 966—Mareniss v. Sheeran, C.C.A.N.Y., 31 F.2d 976—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Needham, W.Va., 244 F. 146, 156 C.C.A. 574.
Ark.—Harris v. Bush, 196 S.W. 471, 129 Ark. 369.
Cal.—McIntosh v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 59 P.2d 959.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Phelps' Adm'r, 205 S.W. 793, 181 Ky. 689.
La.—Masicot v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 75 So. 490, 141 La. 622—Murphy v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 169 So. 890—Ritchie v. New Orleans Public Service, 132 So. 793, 15 La.App. 640—Nee v. New Orleans Public Service, 123 So. 135, 11 La.App. 1—Matthews v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 8 La.App. 463.
Mass.—Phinney v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 189 N.E. 52, 285 Mass. 207—Desautels v. Massachusetts Northeastern St. Ry. Co., 177 N.E. 578, 276 Mass. 381—Revsbech v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 175 N.E. 734, 275 Mass. 317—Seidenberg v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 165 N.E. 658, 266 Mass. 540—Chandler v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 158 N.E. 669, 261 Mass. 230—Warren v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 871, 259 Mass. 226—Walsh v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 152 N.E. 64, 256 Mass. 17.
Mich.—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N.W. 112, 283 Mich. 413—Clifford v. Detroit United Ry., 185 N.W. 741, 216 Mich. 377.
Mo.—Laycock v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 235 S.W. 91, 290 Mo. 344, answering certified questions, App., 227 S.W. 883.
N.J.—Hewitt v. Atlantic & S. Ry. Co., 132 A. 500, 4 N.J.Misc. 339.
N.Y.—Cull v. Union Ry. Co. of New York City, 183 N.Y.S. 275, 192 App.Div. 649.
Pa.—Delaney v. Buffalo, R. & P. Ry. Co., 109 A. 605, 266 Pa. 122—McClusky v. Shenango Valley Traction Co., 161 A. 424, 105 Pa.Super. 275.
R.I.—Roy v. United Electric Rys. Co., 164 A. 513, 53 R.I. 122.
Tenn.—Perry v. Knoxville Ry. & Light Co., 6 Tenn.Civ.App. 243.
Va.—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 162 S.E. 18, 157 Va. 628—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Hibbs, 128 S.E. 538, 142 Va. 96, 41 A.L.R. 1083.
Wash.—Wade v. North Coast Transp. Co., 5 P.2d 985, 165 Wash. 418.
10 C.J. p. 974 note 69.

The rule as stated in Corpus Juris is cited in Caillier v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 120 So. 76, 78, 11 La.App. 93.

Mere fact passenger was thrown off balance, when car started, did not warrant conclusion that starting was unusual, so as to impose liability for injuries sustained.—Phinney v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 189 N.E. 52, 285 Mass. 207.

Not insurer

As respects railroad's liability for injuries sustained by passenger who was thrown from step of car by sudden jerk of train, railroad, although bound to exercise highest degree of care for safety of passenger, was not an insurer.—Savell v. Southern Ry. Co., C.C.A.Ga., 93 F.2d 377, 114 A.L.R. 1261.

Starting car while passenger standing

(1) It is not negligent to start a car while a passenger is standing up, unless the start is with an extraordinary jerk due to some defect in the track or machinery, or want of skill in the person operating the car or train.—Pryor v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 85 Mo.App. 367.

(2) Where a passenger in a street car stands up in the aisle as the car stops between stations, and, although notified that it will soon start, remains standing until it starts with a jerk which injures her, the carrier is not negligent.—Normington v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 96 N.Y.S. 261, 48 Misc. 526.

is caused by its efforts to avoid a collision,[86] or to avoid injury to a person or animal unless this will result in serious injury to passengers,[87] or unless there was some prior negligence on the part of the carrier,[88] as, for example, where the carrier is guilty of negligence in permitting such person or animal to be on the track,[89] or in failing seasonably to discover such presence.[90]

Passengers on freight or mixed trains assume the risk of such additional jerking and jarring as is incident to the operation of such trains, as distinguished from passenger trains, and such jerks or jars will not constitute negligence;[91] but this does not relieve the carrier from using the highest degree of care to prevent unusual and unnecessary jolts and jars by such trains.[92]

While boarding or alighting. The moving of a train or car while a passenger is boarding or alighting is treated supra §§ 730 and 733.

§ 751. Acts in Emergencies

Where confronted with an emergency, the carrier's employees must exercise only such care as an ordinarily prudent person would exercise under like circumstances and conditions.

Where a carrier's employee is confronted with a sudden emergency, the fact that he is obliged to act quickly and without a chance for deliberation must be taken into account, and he is not held to the same degree of care that he would otherwise be required to exercise in the absence of such emergency, but must exercise only such care as an ordinarily prudent person would exercise under like circumstances and conditions,[93] and the failure on his part to exercise the best judgment the case renders possible

86. Mo.—Graber v. Wells, App., 7 S.W.2d 719.
W.Va.—Tochek v. Monongahela Transport Co., 152 S.E. 776, 109 W.Va. 20.
10 C.J. p. 975 note 71.

Assuming car will stay on right side of road

Bus driver may assume that overtaken vehicle will remain on right side of road to which it has drawn after warnings.—Tochek v. Monongahela Transport Co., 152 S.E. 776, 109 W.Va. 20.

Duty to stop quickly

Bus driver's duty to passengers required him to stop bus quickly enough to avoid collision with automobile, if reasonably possible.—Robinson v. Connecticut Co., 189 A. 453, 123 Conn. 300.

87. U.S.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Hanlon, C.C.A.Cal., 9 F.2d 294.
Mass.—Conley v. Town Taxi, 10 N.E.2d 74.
N.Y.—Mintz v. International Ry. Co., 124 N.E. 893, 227 N.Y. 197, reversing 165 N.Y.S. 563, 177 App.Div. 942.
10 C.J. p. 975 note 72.

88. Mintz v. International Ry. Co., 165 N.Y.S. 563, 177 App.Div. 942, reversed with directions 124 N.E. 893, 227 N.Y. 197.

Control of bus

Driver of motor bus must have car under such control that he can stop in emergency without injuring passengers.—Featherstone v. Cleveland Ry. Co., 167 N.E. 606, 32 Ohio App. 93.

Discovering position of switch

Railroad must use same care to discover throwing of cut-over switch as to refrain from throwing switch necessitating emergency stop causing injury.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Baldwin, Tex.Civ.App., 2 S.W.2d 520.

89. N.Y.—Dorr v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 136 N.Y.S. 872, 152 App.Div. 342, affirmed 105 N.E. 652, 211 N.Y. 369, L.R.A.1915D 368, Ann.Cas. 1915C 763.

90. Va.—Safety Motor Transit Corporation v. Cunningham, 171 S.E. 432, 161 Va. 356.
10 C.J. p. 975 note 74.

All circumstances must be considered

In passenger's action for injuries sustained from falling to floor by sudden stop of bus, in considering whether emergency was created by driver's negligence in failure to keep proper lookout, all circumstances must be given due weight.—Safety Motor Transit Corporation v. Cunningham, 171 S.E. 432, 161 Va. 356.

91. Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Hamlett, 89 So. 337, 81 Fla. 872.
Ga.—Hines v. Hendricks, 104 S.E. 520, 25 Ga.App. 682.
La.—Johnson v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 2 La.App. 244.
Mo.—Provance v. Missouri Southern R. Co., App., 186 S.W. 955.
Okl.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lynn, 161 P. 1058, 62 Okl. 17.
10 C.J. p. 975 note 75.

Knowledge of equipment

The equipment of mixed freight and passenger trains "is adapted to such business, and those of the traveling public electing to ride on mixed trains are chargeable with knowledge of such facts."—Meeks v. Graysonia, N. & A. R. Co., 272 S.W. 360, 362, 168 Ark. 966.

92. Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Hamlett, 89 So. 337, 81 Fla. 872.
Ga.—Hines v. Hendricks, 104 S.E. 520, 25 Ga.App. 682.
La.—Johnson v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 2 La.App. 244.
Mo.—Rissmiller v. St. Louis & H. Ry. Co., App., 187 S.W. 573.
Okl.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lynn, 161 P. 1058, 62 Okl. 17.
10 C.J. p. 976 note 76.

Rule well stated in Corpus Juris

The rule as laid down in the text of Corpus Juris has been said to be well stated and is quoted and applied in Millers Creek R. Co. v. Blevins, 205 S.W. 911, 912, 181 Ky. 800.

Extraordinary diligence, as applied to a mixed train, and the jolts and jerks occurring in connection therewith, is that extreme care which very prudent and thoughtful persons would use on a like train under like circumstances.—Southern R. Co. v. Cunningham, 50 S.E. 979, 123 Ga. 90.

Passengers thrown out of seats

Railroad contracting to provide seats in caboose is negligent in handling trains so as to throw passengers out of them.—Johnson v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 2 La.App. 244.

Injury within statute

An injury to a passenger in the caboose of a freight train, resulting from his being thrown from his seat by a violent jerk of the train, is an injury caused by the running of a train within Kirby Dig. § 6773, making railroads responsible, where injury is done to persons or property by the running of trains.—Scullin v. Vining, 191 S.W. 924, 127 Ark. 124.

Notice of passenger's presence

Waybill reciting owner of property would accompany box car held notice to trainmen of owner's position in box car.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Britton, 31 S.W.2d 756, 182 Ark. 437.

93. Ind.—Ft. Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction Co. v. Parish, 119 N.E. 488, 67 Ind.App. 597.
Mass.—Tozier v. Haverhill, etc., R. Co., 72 N.E. 953, 187 Mass. 179.

does not establish lack of care and skill on his part which renders the company liable,[94] although it is not necessarily a defense in such a case that the employee lost his usual ability to control the car, as a reasonable degree of presence of mind is an essential to his competency.[95]

§ 752. Passengers Riding in Dangerous Places

Where a passenger is permitted to ride in a position of danger, the carrier has a duty to exercise a degree of care for him with reference to the danger to which he is exposed.

While passengers should not be encouraged or required, by reason of failure to furnish them other accommodations, to ride in dangerous places, such as on the platforms or steps of railroad or street cars,[96] a carrier is not bound so to restrain the liberty of its passengers that latter can by no act of their own put themselves in unnecessary danger,[97] hence it is not negligence per se to permit passengers to ride on platform or footboard of an open car,[98] except as to passengers under disability,[99]

Miss.—Teche Lines v. Britt, 170 So. 294.

Care commensurate with danger

If emergency was created by sudden entrance of truck on track immediately in front of street car, street railroad was not liable for injuries sustained by street car passenger because motorman failed to use very high degree of care, as the degree of care is commensurate with the danger to be avoided.—Roach v. Yonkers R Co., 271 N.Y.S. 289, 242 App Div 195

Not charged with superhuman powers

Operator of jitney bus is not charged with the necessity of either possessing superhuman powers of anticipation or exercising such powers in a threatened emergency.—McCaffrey v. Automobile Liability Co, Limited, Mutual, 186 N.W 585, 176 Wis 230.

Car out of control on hill

Where the motorman lost control of a street car while going down a hill, and jumped off, and the conductor advised plaintiff passenger to jump off, and she did so, and was injured, plaintiff could plead and submit to the jury two acts of negligence, or either of them: First, the negligence of defendant in suddenly confronting plaintiff with a real or apparent danger of imminent injury on account of permitting the car to get beyond control, thereby terrifying plaintiff into yielding to the impulse or instinct of self-preservation; second, negligence of conductor in negligently giving the alarm to alight from the car, and in advising and assisting plaintiff to alight, causing plaintiff to believe there was imminent danger in remaining on the car. To support a charge of negligence as to passenger injured while jumping from street car of which motorman lost control on a hill, the peril must have been caused by negligence of the street railway, apprehension of peril from the standpoint of the passenger must have been reasonable, and the appearance of danger must have been imminent, leaving no time for deliberation, and, on the other hand, the danger must be judged by the circumstances as they appeared at the time, and not by the result Where motorman lost control of street car on a hill, and conductor negligently advised and assisted woman passenger to alight, in order to recover for negligence in giving the advice, the passenger must prove that a false alarm was given, causing her to believe there was imminent danger in remaining on the car, and this belief must have been such as an ordinarily prudent person would have entertained under the same circumstances, and the passenger's action must have been such as would probably have been taken by an ordinarily prudent person, and must have been unaccompanied with any contributory negligence —Hellar v Kansas City Rys Co., Mo App, 237 S W. 811.

94. Iowa.—Graham v Chicago, etc, R Co, 119 N.W. 708, 122 N.W. 573, 143 Iowa 604.
10 C J. p 976 note 79.
Sudden stops to avoid collisions with persons or vehicles see supra § 750.

95. Mich.—Howell v Lansing City Electric R Co, 99 N.W 406, 136 Mich 432.

96. Tenn.—Louisville & N. R R Co. v Hutcherson, 8 Tenn.App. 235.

Conduct not an invitation to remain in dangerous place

Conductor's request to passengers on running board to wait until car stopped was not invitation to remain in such dangerous place.—Bigelow v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 115 N.E. 250, 226 Mass 116.

No duty to discover position

Motorman was not required to look to see if any one was on step outside closed door after trolley car had started —Tardieu v. Connecticut Co., 154 A. 173, 113 Conn. 94.

Apparent authority of conductor

Conductor of passenger train held not, as matter of law, to act without apparent authority in permitting passenger to ride temporarily in baggage car immediately ahead of coach in which he was originally riding.—Davis v. Jones, 129 S.E 892, 34 Ga. App. 7.

97. Mass.—Bigelow v. Boston Elevated Ry Co., 115 N.E. 250, 226 Mass. 116
10 C J. p 977 note 83.

Signal for emergency stop

Conductor need not give signal for emergency stop because passenger advanced in years rises from seat in open car and steps on running board and stands there for a moment with hold upon car.—Bigelow v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 115 N.E. 250, 226 Mass. 116.

98. Ill —Ervin v. Peoria R Co, 179 Ill App 409.
Or.—Anderson v City, etc., R Co., 71 P. 659, 42 Or. 505.

Evidence of negligence

For a street railway to carry passengers greatly in excess of the seating capacity of its cars and to permit them to stand on the platform and steps is evidence of negligence —Larskowski v. Detroit United Ry., 159 N.W 530, 193 Mich. 409

99. Wis —Griebenow v. Chicago & M E Ry Co., 171 N.W. 664, 169 Wis. 12.
10 C J. p 898 note 23 [c]

Appearance not indicating disability

That a street car passenger injured by falling from the platform while the car was in motion was sixty-nine years old and had one useless eye did not make it negligence for the conductor to allow him to go upon the platform while the car was in motion preparatory to alighting, there being nothing in his appearance to make it incumbent on the conductor to exercise special care in his behalf.—Griebenow v. Chicago & M. E. Ry. Co., 171 N.W. 664, 169 Wis. 12.

Degree of intoxication

Whether a conductor was negligent in compelling an intoxicated person, carrying a sack of clams and fish poles, to ride on the rear platform of the car, depended in part on the degree of intoxication as it appeared to the conductor —Fardette v. New York & S. Ry. Co., 180 N.Y.S. 179, 190 App.Div. 543.

or persons of immature years.[1] If fare is collected from a passenger and he is allowed to ride in a position of danger, it is the duty of the carrier to exercise the proper degree of care for him with reference to the danger to which he is exposed,[2] although the carrier has a rule prohibiting passengers from riding in such positions.[3]

A carrier's duty to exercise the highest degree of care to passengers in the maintenance of its track and the operation of the train extends to a passenger attempting to pass from one car to another of a moving train;[4] but it is not negligence for an elevated railroad company to permit passengers to pass from one car to another while the train is at a standstill, nor in such circumstances is it its duty to warn passengers of the existence of a space between the cars.[5]

§ 753. Duty to Avoid Misleading Passengers as to Movements of Trains

A carrier has a duty to avoid misleading passengers as to movements of the train or car.

Passengers have a right to rely on information or directions given by the conductor or other employee in charge of the train or car as to its movements, and if by such information or directions a passenger is misled into a position of danger whereby he is injured, the carrier is liable therefor.[6] Thus the carrier is liable where by reason of such announcements or directions a passenger is misled into going on the steps or platform of a car from which he is thrown by a sudden movement of the car.[7]

§ 754. Duty to Injured Passenger

A carrier has the duty to render such care and attention to an injured passenger as common humanity dictates, and it is liable for resulting injuries from such neglect even though not negligent in causing the original injury.

It is the duty of a carrier to render such care and attention as common humanity would dictate to a passenger who is injured in an accident.[8] Thus where a passenger falls or is thrown from a train or car, it is the carrier's duty to stop the train or car and to rescue him, if this can be done without endangering the safety of other passengers,[9] and to

Extra precaution

The fact that a passenger has by intoxication voluntarily deprived himself of the ability to exercise ordinary care does not furnish any excuse for the conductor to force him from a place of safety in the train to one where it will require extraordinary care to avoid injury, and when the intoxication is apparent to the conductor it calls for extra precaution on his part.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Carleton, 51 So. 27, 163 Ala. 62.

1. Minn.—Jackson v. St. Paul City R Co., 76 N.W. 956, 74 Minn 48
10 C.J. p 977 note 85.

Boy understanding danger

If a boy passenger on a railroad train had intelligence enough to understand that it was more dangerous to ride on a car platform or on the step than inside the car, no duty devolved on the company to prevent him from so riding—Walling v. Trinity, etc., Valley R. Co., 106 S.W. 417, 48 Tex Civ.App. 35.

2. Mich.—Larskowski v. Detroit United Ry., 159 N.W. 530, 193 Mich. 409.
Mo—Cooley v. Dunham, 195 S.W. 1058, 196 Mo.App. 399.
Pa.—Little v. West Penn Railways Co., 29 Pa Dist. 826
R.I.—Capuono v. Rhode Island Co., 102 A. 721.
10 C.J. p 977 note 86.

Knowledge of particular person on step not necessary

To make out negligence it is not essential that conductor should have known that deceased was particular person upon step—Cooley v. Dunham, 195 S.W. 1058, 196 Mo App. 399.

Care as to passengers riding in places not designed for them see supra § 681

3. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R Co v. Loyd, 160 S.W. 851, 109 Ark. 579
Ga.—Augusta R., etc., Co. v Smith, 48 S.E. 681, 121 Ga 29.

Waiver

A rule prohibiting passengers from standing on platforms while the train or car is in motion is waived by a failure to provide sufficient accommodations for passengers inside the car.—Graham v. McNeill, 55 P. 631, 20 Wash. 466, 72 Am.S.R. 121, 43 L.R.A. 300

4. Tex.—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v Patillo, 101 S.W. 492, 45 Tex.Civ.App 572.

Mail clerk going on engine

Where plaintiff, a railway mail clerk, required to notify the engineer of his omission to blow a whistle for a station at which mail was put off, went on an engine after it was disconnected to give such notice, and there was evidence from which the jury might find that he was placed in a position of danger, to the knowledge of the fireman, by the act of the engineer in setting the engine in motion in ignorance of plaintiff's presence and before he had time to complete giving the notice and alight from the engine, it was held, that plaintiff may recover damages for an injury sustained while getting off, if ordinary care on the part of the fireman required him to call the engineer's attention to his danger.—Rauscher v. Payne, 188 N.W. 1017, 152 Minn. 368

5. Mass.—Hogan v. Boston El. R. Co., 81 N.E. 198, 195 Mass. 313.

6. Mo—Laub v Chicago, etc., R. Co., 94 S.W. 550, 118 Mo.App 488.
10 C.J. p 977 note 91.

7. Ala.—Southern R Co v. Roebuck, 31 So 611, 132 Ala. 412.
Ark.—Midland Valley R Co. v. Hamilton, 104 S.W 540, 84 Ark 81
Kan.—James v. Chicago, etc., R Co, 105 P. 40, 81 Kan 23

8. Miss.—Hughes v. Gregory Bus Lines, 128 So 96, 157 Miss. 374.
10 C.J. p 978 note 93.

9. Miss.—Boyd v. Alabama & V. Ry. Co., 71 So. 164, 111 Miss 12, suggestion of error denied 71 So. 655.
10 C.J. p 978 note 94.

Where return would endanger other passengers

(1) Where an intoxicated passenger falls off a train and his absence is not noticed until the train has traveled several miles, it is not negligence to refuse to back the train, if it appears that other trains are notified to watch for him, and that to back the train would endanger all on board.—Yazoo & M V. R. Co. v. Smith, Miss., 64 So 158, 106 Miss. 455, 49 L.R.A.,N.S., 917.

(2) Where the railroad company does not know that an insane person in jumping from the train is seriously hurt or injured, and could not take him with reasonable promptness to a place where he can receive proper treatment,[10] or to procure others to render the necessary assistance.[11] If the carrier fails to render such care and attention as is required under the circumstances, it is liable for the damages resulting from such neglect,[12] notwithstanding the original injury was not caused by its negligence,[13] or notwithstanding the negligence of the passenger contributed to his injury.[14]

6. Proximate Cause of Injury

§ 755. General Rule

While the carrier's negligent act or omission must have been the direct or proximate cause of the injury complained of in order to render the carrier liable, it is not necessary that it shall be the sole cause.

As in other cases of actionable negligence, in order to hold the carrier liable, its wrongful act or omission constituting negligence must have been the direct or proximate cause of the injury complained of,[15] and the particular act of negligence relied on as constituting the grounds of recovery must have been the proximate cause of the injury.[16] If there were other possible causes, the question is whether the negligent construction, maintenance, or operation of the premises, roadbed, machinery, or appliances was the efficient and dominant cause producing the injury.[17]

Intervening act. If the carrier or its employees safely back down to the place where he fell, and permits the relatives of the injured passenger to leave the train to go back to his assistance, and could not prevent his death or relieve his suffering by going back and picking him up, it is under no duty to back its train for the purpose of taking him up—Boyd v. Alabama, etc., R. Co., 71 So 164, 111 Miss. 12, suggestion of error denied 71 So 655.

10. Miss.—Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Byrd, 42 So. 286, 89 Miss. 308.

11. Ky—Reed v Louisville, etc., R. Co., 47 S W 591, 48 S W. 416, 104 Ky. 603, 20 Ky L 815, 990, 44 L R A 823.

12. Miss.—Hughes v. Gregory Bus Lines, 128 So 96, 157 Miss 374
Tex—San Antonio Public Service Co v. Wellman, Civ App., 288 S W 582
10 C.J. p 978 note 97.

13. Tex.—San Antonio Public Service Co v. Wellman, supra.

14. Miss.—Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Byrd, 42 So. 286, 89 Miss. 308.
Ohio.—Knepfle v Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 32 Ohio Cir.Ct. 660.
10 C.J. p 978 note 98.

15. U.S—Northern Ry. Co. v Page, Mass., 47 S Ct. 491, 274 U S. 65, 71 L Ed. 929, reversing, C.C A., Page v United Fruit Co., 3 F.2d 747, certiorari granted Northern Ry Co v. Page, 46 S.Ct. 19, 269 U.S. 542, 70 L Ed 402.
Del—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B & W R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343.
Ill.—Walsh v Chicago Rys. Co., 128 N E 647, 294 Ill. 586, reversing 216 Ill App 409.
Iowa—Wheeler v Des Moines City Ry Co., 215 N W. 950, 205 Iowa 439, 55 A L R. 473
La.—Matteson v. Teche Greyhound Lines, App., 178 So. 272.
Md—City Cab Co. v. Becker, 166 A. 434, 165 Md. 32.
Minn.—Draves v. Minneapolis & St P Suburban R Co., 172 N.W. 128, 142 Minn 321.
Mont—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 235 P. 330, 72 Mont. 594.
N J—Kelson v. Public Service R Co., 110 A 919, 94 N.J Law 527.
Pa—Lazor v. Banas, 174 A 817, 114 Pa Super 425
Tex—Texas Electric Ry. v. Scott, Civ App., 21 S W.2d 24, reversed on other grounds Scott v. Texas Electric Ry. Co., Com.App., 32 S.W 2d 641
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co v. Lenz, 164 S.E. 572, 158 Va. 732—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 143 S E 299, 150 Va 647, addendum to opinion denying rehearing 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, denying rehearing 140 S E. 648, 149 Va 549—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co v. Hibbs, 128 S.E 538, 142 Va 96, 41 A.L R. 1083.
10 C J. p 978 note 2.

An extended quotation of the rules stated in Corpus Juris as to the necessity of the carrier's negligence being the proximate cause of the injury is made in Paducah Traction Co v. Weitlauf, 195 S W. 99, 102, 176 Ky. 82, L R.A 1917F 353.

Negligence must be causa sine qua non

In order for the carrier to be liable, its negligence must be "causa sine qua non, a cause which, if it had not existed, the injury would not have occurred."—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., Mont., 235 P. 330, 332.

Reasonable, natural, and probable result

(1) A carrier is not liable for an injury to a passenger from an accident, which is not the reasonable, natural, and probable result of the situation, and which could not have been foreseen by the carrier, in the exercise of that high degree of care which the law demands of him.—Kelson v. Public Service R. Co., 110 A. 919, 94 N.J Law 527

(2) In order to warrant finding that negligence of carrier, or its act, not amounting to wanton wrong is the proximate cause of an injury, it must appear that the injury was the natural and probable consequence of the negligence or wrongful act, and that it ought to have been foreseen in the light of attending circumstances.—Chesapeake & O Ry. Co. v Hibbs, 128 S.E 538, 142 Va 96, 41 A.L.R. 1083.

Reasonable anticipation

Whether casting of stone through bus window was actionable negligence depended upon whether throwing of stone and resultant injury to bus passenger could have been reasonably anticipated as probable consequence.—Bowling Green-Hopkinsville Bus Co v. Edwards, 59 S.W.2d 534, 248 Ky. 684.

Each of two acts as proximate cause

Each of two negligent acts of the carrier which combine to produce an injury may be a proximate cause thereof.—Van House v. Canadian Northern Ry. Co., 192 N.W. 493, 155 Minn 57, 28 A.L.R. 357.

"If a carrier is negligent in two particulars, and neither negligent act alone is sufficient to cause an injury, but both, acting concurrently, are the proximate cause of a wreck and subsequent injury, the carrier is liable."—Sproule v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., Tex.Civ.App., 91 S W. 657, 658.

16. Ky.—Paducah Traction Co. v. Weitlauf, 195 S W. 99, 176 Ky. 82, L R.A.1917F 353
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Lenz, 164 S E. 572, 158 Va. 732.
10 C J. p 979 note 4.

17. Miss—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Hawkins, 132 So. 742, 159 Miss. 775.
N.Y.—Santolo v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 187 N.Y.S. 390, 196 App.Div. 34.
10 C.J. p 979 note 3.

were negligent, and the injury resulted mediately or immediately from such negligence, then the carrier is liable, although there may have been an intervening cause not chargeable to the carrier's fault,[18] but in cases where, although the carrier is negligent, there is an intervening independent cause for the injury, not the result of the carrier's negligence or other wrong, the carrier is not liable.[19]

Negligence need not be sole cause. It is not necessary, however, that the negligence of the carrier shall be the sole cause of the resulting injury; even though there is an accompanying cause not chargeable to the carrier, yet if the carrier's negligence contributes to the injury it is liable therefor.[20] Therefore it is immaterial that in connection with the accident causing injury to the passenger there is negligence or wrongful act of a third person, such as the negligence of those managing a train, car, or vehicle with which the train or car in which the passenger is riding collides, or the like, it is enough that the negligence of the carrier contributes in some way or concurs with the negligence of third persons in causing the accident complained of.[21]

The question of joint and several liability where the negligence of two carriers concurs in causing a collision and resulting injuries to passengers is treated supra § 747; and the same question where

18. Ala.—Alabama Power Co v. Bass, 119 So. 625, 218 Ala. 586, 63 A.L.R. 1.
Ill.—Walsh v. Chicago Rys. Co., 128 N.E. 647, 294 Ill. 586, reversing 216 Ill.App. 409
Mich.—Larskowski v. Detroit United Ry., 159 N.W. 530, 193 Mich. 409
Miss.—Oliver Bus Lines v. Skaggs, 164 So. 9, 174 Miss. 201.
Mo.—Watts v. Fleming, 298 S.W. 107, 221 Mo.App. 1123.
10 C.J. p. 979 note 5.

Intervening act not sole proximate cause

That railroad's negligence might not have caused passenger's death without intervening act held not to render intervening act sole proximate cause.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Ballew, Tex.Civ.App. 39 S.W.2d 180, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 66 S.W.2d 659.

Negligent direction to passenger

Where a passenger is induced to leave the train by the negligent direction of the carrier, and he observes ordinary care in attempting to regain it, the carrier is liable for an injury received by the passenger, regardless of what other negligent cause cooperated in producing the injury.—Laub v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 94 S.W. 550, 118 Mo.App. 488.

19. U.S.—New York Cent. R. Co. v. Johnson, Mo., 49 S.Ct. 300, 279 U.S. 310, 73 L.Ed. 706, reversing, C.C.A., 27 F.2d 699, certiorari granted 49 S.Ct. 27, 278 U.S. 590, 73 L.Ed. 523, and opinion amended 49 S.Ct. 417
Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Courson, 174 So. 474, 234 Ala. 273
Ga.—Rome Ry. & Light Co. v. King, 117 S.E. 464, 30 Ga.App. 231.
Ky.—Riley v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 21 S.W.2d 990, 231 Ky. 564.
Md.—United Rys. & Electric Co. of Baltimore v. Perkins, 136 A. 50, 152 Md. 105.
Mich.—Takacs v. Detroit United Ry., 207 N.W. 907, 234 Mich. 42.
Mo.—Francis v. St. Louis Transfer Co., 5 Mo.App. 7.
N.J.—Kelson v. Public Service R. Co., 110 A. 919, 94 N.J.Law 527.
N.Y.—King v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 188 N.Y.S. 700, 197 App.Div. 15, modified on other grounds 135 N.E. 519, 233 N.Y. 330.
N.C.—Garland v. Carolina, C. & O. Ry. Co., 90 S.E. 779, 172 N.C. 638
Pa.—Martin v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 127 A. 765, 282 Pa. 358.
10 C.J. p. 980 note 6.

Negligence of third person

Injury to elderly woman who possessed her senses of sight and hearing and was struck by automobile while crossing street after having alighted from bus and having been directed by bus driver to cross street held proximately caused by negligence of operator of automobile rather than by any negligence of bus company or driver.—Cooke v. Elk Coach Line, Del., 180 A. 782.

Concurring cause

Presence near the street railroad track of a truck, against which plaintiff was carried by the starting of a car while he was boarding it, was not an intervening cause of the injury but a concurring cause.—Kausch v. Chicago, Milwaukee Electric Ry. Co., 186 N.W. 257, 176 Wis. 21.

20. Ariz.—Phoenix Ry. Co. of Arizona v. Beals, 181 P. 379, 20 Ariz. 386.
Ill.—Walsh v. Chicago Rys. Co., 128 N.E. 647, 294 Ill. 586, reversing 216 Ill.App. 409—Kanter v. St. Louis, S. & P. R. R., 218 Ill.App. 565.
La.—Marcus v. Checker Cab Co., 120 So. 408, 10 La.App. 297.
N.C.—Woods v. North Carolina Public Service Co., 94 S.E. 459, 174 N.C. 697, 1 A.L.R. 942
Ohio.—Community Traction Co. v. Freeman, 156 N.E. 598, 116 Ohio St. 448.
Pa.—Lyons v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 152 A. 687, 301 Pa. 499—Litwinavage v. Schuylkill Ry. Co., 124 A. 293, 280 Pa. 53.
Tex.—McAdoo v. McClure, Civ.App., 232 S.W. 348, modified on other grounds Boyles v. McClure, Com.App., 243 S.W. 1080—Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Packard, Civ.App., 193 S.W. 397, error refused
10 C.J. p. 981 note 9.

Two proximate causes

There may be two proximate causes of an injury, and where this condition exists the negligence of one will not exonerate the other.—Woods v. North Carolina Public Service Co., 94 S.E. 459, 174 N.C. 697, 1 A.L.R. 942.

Act of interloper

Where a motorman left a street car on a sloping track near a railroad and an interloper released the brakes and let the car run toward a railroad track, causing a passenger to be injured in alighting, it does not necessarily follow that the motorman's act in leaving the car where he did under the circumstances was not negligence and the proximate cause of the injury.—Kliebenstein v. Iowa Ry. & Light Co., 188 N.W. 129, 193 Iowa 892

21. Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v. Boyd, 65 S.W.2d 919, 188 Ark. 254.
Ill.—Panor v. Northwestern Elevated R. Co., 228 Ill.App. 162—Wennmacher v. Choate, 224 Ill.App. 42.
Ky.—McGraw v. Ayers, 58 S.W.2d 378, 248 Ky. 166—Denker v. Lowe, 234 S.W. 294, 192 Ky. 660
La.—Johnson v. City of Monroe, App., 164 So. 456.
Mass.—Turner v. Berkshire St. Ry. Co., 198 N.E. 178—Cohen v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 165 N.E. 113, 266 Mass. 283
N.J.—Gash v. Khan, 160 A. 367, 10 N.J.Misc. 708.
Or.—Stamos v. Portland Electric Power Co., 274 P. 915, 128 Or. 310
R.I.—Zmuda v. McFarland, 165 A. 446, 53 R.I. 210.
Tex.—Commercial Standard Ins. Co. v. Shudde, Civ.App., 76 S.W.2d 561, error granted
Va.—Hogan v. Miller, 157 S.E. 540, 156 Va. 166.
10 C.J. p. 971 note 48, p. 982 note 10.

the negligence of a carrier and a third person concurs in causing the injuries is treated supra § 709.

§ 756. Applications of Rule

a. Operation of trains or cars
b. Equipment
c. Condition of premises

a. Operation of Trains or Cars

The general rules as to proximate cause apply where the alleged negligent act or omission of the carrier occurs in the operation and management of its trains or cars.

The general rules as to proximate cause apply where the alleged negligent act or omission of the carrier occurs in the operation of its cars,[22] as

22. Cal.—Nicholson v. Porter, 5 P 2d 659, 118 Cal.App. 555.
La.—Cazeaux v New Orleans Public Service, 134 So 121, 16 La App 541—Grennon v. New Orleans Public Service, 120 So. 801, 10 La App 641.
Md.—United Rys. & Electric Co. of Baltimore v. Perkins, 136 A 50, 152 Md. 105.
Mich.—Tozer v. Michigan Cent R Co., 162 N W 280, 195 Mich. 662.
Mo.—Madden v. Red Line Service, App., 76 S W.2d 435—Lincoln v St Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 7 S W 2d 460, 223 Mo App. 46
Ohio—Cleveland Ry. Co. v Arrison, 159 N E 580, 26 Ohio App. 359
R I.—Rohl v. United Electric Rys Co., 149 A. 375, 50 R I. 478.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co v. Lenz, 164 S E 572, 158 Va 732

Foreseeing exact time or manner not necessary

Doctrine of foreseeableness did not require that railroad foresee exact time, manner, or occasion of emergency application of brakes.—Gulf, C & S. F. Ry Co. v. Ballew, Tex Civ App., 39 S W.2d 180, reversed on other grounds, Com App., 66 S W 2d 659

Failure to warn of danger

Woman's negligence in failing to look to right for approaching automobiles before she stepped onto concrete portion of street from cinder strip in center thereof after alighting safely from street car or such negligence combined with that of driver of automobile which struck her, not motorman's failure to warn her of dangers from approaching automobiles in crossing street, held proximate cause of her resulting injury, as to preclude recovery of damages from street railway company—Smuzynski v. East St Louis Ry. Co., Mo App., 93 S.W.2d 1058.

Conductor obstructing aisle

The act of a conductor of a passenger train in temporarily obstructing the aisle as he stood therein, bending over to speak to some one, as a woman passenger approached walking to the rear, was held not the proximate cause of her falling before she reached him as she halted to wait for him to let her pass—Steed v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry Co., Tex Com App., 231 S W. 714, affirming Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Steed, Civ.App., 209 S.W. 772.

Intoxicated passenger

If intoxicants did not contribute to plaintiff's fall from vestibule of street car, negligence in operation and management of car from which thrown was efficient cause of injuries when subsequently run over—Bilodeau v. Fitchburg & L. St. Ry. Co., 128 N E. 872, 236 Mass. 526.

Passengers transferring over railroad trestle

Where a bridge over a canal was open because mechanism was out of order, and a street car conductor issued transfers to passengers and suggested and invited them to cross on a nearby railroad bridge, without suggestion or warning of the fact that a train was likely to arrive momentarily, and without providing some means of flagging and preventing it from running down the passengers who might be on the bridge, the conductor was negligent, and such negligence was the proximate cause of death of a passenger caught on the bridge by a train—Thompson v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 87 So. 716, 148 La. 698.

Negligence or tort of third person causing injury

(1) Commuter who had gone to rear door of coach knowing coach sometimes did not clear trestle, and who was injured while attempting to pull himself around in order to return to front end of coach on discovering rear end of coach was not clear, by passenger allowing door to close upon commuter's hand, held not entitled to recover for injuries from railroad, even if railroad was negligent in stopping coach where it did, since such act did not contribute to commuter's injury.—Overbeck v. Erie R. Co., 187 A. 648, 14 N J.Misc. 816

(2) Negligence, on part of one assisting a furniture van helper, in starting a freight elevator of a building, which was the proximate cause of injury to the helper, precluded his recovery against defendant as though he himself had been guilty of contributory negligence—Courtney v Gainsborough Studios, 174 N.Y.S. 855, 186 App.Div. 820.

(3) Where an intending passenger while standing on the station platform, was struck by the body of a boy who boarded an approaching train before it came to a stop and was thrown under the wheels, it was held that the proximate cause of her injuries was the conduct of the boy, for whose acts the railroad was not liable, and not the absence of the conductor or brakeman, or the fact that the doors were or were not open.—Spagnol v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 123 A 781, 279 Pa. 205, 32 A.L.R. 1313.

(4) Where passenger held child's hand while alighting, child's suddenly jumping from steps jerking passenger forward held proximate cause of passenger's injury, and as matter of law was not reasonably foreseeable by railroad, precluding recovery—St Louis, S F & T. Ry. Co v. Gore, Tex Civ.App., 69 S W 2d 186, error dismissed

(5) A passenger's injury from the tort of a fellow passenger has been held not the proximate consequence of negligence in operating the doors of the car and passing the passenger's destination—Takacs v Detroit United Ry., 207 N.W. 907, 234 Mich 42.

(6) The absence of light on front and rear of bus, which was standing at night at side of highway opposite a vacant lot used for parking purposes, was not the contributing or proximate cause of accident in which passenger was injured when automobile backed out of lot as passenger was in act of boarding the bus, so as to render bus company liable for passenger's injuries.—Kerner v. Surface Transp. Corporation, 2 N.Y.S 2d 356, 166 Misc 742.

Acts held proximate cause

(1) Backward movement of street car held proximate cause of injury to passenger jumping aside and being struck by automobile, notwithstanding passenger was not touched by street car.—Ft. Smith Traction Co. v. Oliver, 46 S.W.2d 647, 185 Ark. 227.

(2) Attempt of cab driver to overtake two automobiles ahead near intersection on busy street held proximate cause of injuries to passenger resulting from collision with truck making left turn from intersecting street—Thorgrimson v. Shreveport Yellow Cabs, La.App., 161 So. 49.

(3) The proximate cause of injury to a passenger injured while stepping over a bag in the aisle when the train gave a lurch was the lurch of the train, and not the placing of the bag in the aisle.—Friedberger v.

where it did not give required signals,[23] or failed to keep a proper lookout,[24] or ran its trains or cars at an excessive speed,[25] or moved the train or car

Baltimore & O. S. W R. Co., 9 Ohio App. 173

Acts held not proximate cause

(1) Collision with cars on switch was not proximate consequence of negligence of trainmen in striking automobile on crossing, which turned switch when thrown against switch stand—Engle v. Director General of Railroads, 133 N.E. 138, 78 Ind.App 547.

(2) A street car conductor owes no duty to a passenger to guard against danger from collision by a following automobile, where it was not reasonably to be anticipated that the driver of the automobile would run his machine into the street car, and, since there can be no negligence unless there is a breach of duty, the conductor's act in stopping the car was not the proximate cause of injuries to a passenger inflicted by the colliding automobile—Louisville Ry. Co v Rice, 250 S.W. 863, 199 Ky. 196

(3) That a door was left unlocked and no attendant provided to assist passengers alighting from a car did not contribute or cause the fall of a passenger, who stepped on a banana peeling, for such result from leaving the door unlocked could not have been reasonably contemplated and was not, in a legal sense, the proximate cause.—Ft Worth & D. C Ry. Co. v. Yantis, Tex.Civ.App., 185 S.W. 969, error refused

(4) Street railway was not responsible for injuries to girl passenger who jumped from car which began to move unattended down slight incline on which it had been stopped where railway was not responsible for car so moving.—Delfosse v. United Rys Co. of St. Louis, Mo., 201 S.W 860.

(5) Failure to have required number of brakemen held not to warrant finding of negligence proximately causing death of passenger who stepped or fell from moving train at station.—Carlson v. Boston & M. R R., 168 N.E. 171, 269 Mass. 60.

(6) Mere failure to announce plaintiff's station was not proximate cause of injury to plaintiff, thrown from step after train had started and was three hundred twenty-five feet away from station, while he was seeking trainman to have train stopped.—Louisville & N. R Co. v. Burk, 268 S.W. 844, 207 Ky. 1

23. Ohio.—Steinman v. Cleveland Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 149, 23 Ohio App. 448.

Failure to call station

The failure of conductor to call station at which eight year old passenger wished to get off train did not render railroad liable for injuries sustained when boy jumped from train after it failed to stop at his station, where passenger and his companions knew that train was nearing station—Nashville, C. & St L Ry. v. Harrell, Tenn.App., 110 S W 2d 1032

Acts held not proximate cause

(1) The failure to sound the gong at a crossing as required by an ordinance was not the proximate cause of the injuries where the collision was with an automobile approaching from the opposite direction on the same street—Alabama Power Co v Bass, 119 So. 625, 218 Ala. 586, 63 A.L.R. 1.

(2) The failure to ring the gong has been held not an act of negligence contributing to the injury where the prospective passenger observed the car approaching.

N J—Courtney v. Public Service Ry. Co., 115 A. 740, 96 N.J.Law 308, affirmed 117 A. 925, 97 N J Law 564

Ohio.—Steinman v. Cleveland Ry Co, 155 N.E. 149, 23 Ohio App 448.

Pa.—Sang v. Pittsburgh, H, B & N C. Ry Co, 80 Pa.Super 524.

24. Mont.—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry Co, 235 P. 330

Independent intervening cause

Presence of ditched car on right-hand side of road and of another automobile which had backed near it to render aid was held not independent intervening cause of passenger's injury when bus, claimed to have been operated at excessive speed and without proper lookout on approaching curve, ran into ditch to avoid collision—Oliver Bus Lines v. Skaggs, 164 So 9, 174 Miss 201.

Not proximate cause

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's son intending to board defendant's street car which ran over him when he fell or slipped under the side after the front had passed, negligence of the motorman in failing to keep a lookout was held not to have contributed to the injury, so as to make defendant liable.—Vosbein v New Orleans Ry & Light Co, 90 So. 579, 150 La. 230.

25. Ga.—Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v Reese, 110 S.E. 750, 28 Ga.App 275.

La.—Matteson v Teche Greyhound Lines, App., 178 So 272.

Mo.—Varley v Columbia Taxicab Co, 240 S.W. 218—Grubb v Dunham, 214 S.W. 256, 201 Mo App. 504.

Wash.—Singer v. Martin, 164 P. 1105, 96 Wash. 231.

Acts of carrier held proximate cause

(1) Proprietor of jitney bus, passenger in which was injured in collision, was liable to passenger if excessive speed of bus would, without more, have brought it to place of the collision at the time when it took place—Singer v Martin, 164 P. 1105, 96 Wash. 231.

(2) In passenger's action against taxicab company, taxicab driver's attempt to cross highly-traveled, sleety street at twenty-five miles an hour at night, while snow was falling was held negligence and proximate cause of collision with automobile which had entered intersection first in exercise of due care—Barrows v. Checker Taxi Co, 195 N.E. 112, 290 Mass. 231.

(3) Failure of the driver of a passenger carrying truck colliding with a truck ahead to exercise such reasonable care in regulating the speed of his vehicle and its proximity to the other as was necessary to protect a passenger seated on the latter with her legs hanging over the end was held the sole proximate cause of her injury, her perilous position being only the condition or remote cause—Gornstein v. Priver, 221 P 396, 64 Cal.App. 249.

Held not proximate cause

(1) The speed of the car is not the proximate cause of an injury where it would have happened even if the car had proceeded slowly—Fairbanks v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 129 N.E. 367, 237 Mass. 127.

(2) Where an electric car at an excessive rate of speed approached a station where several hundred persons were waiting, and several men jumped on the front platform of the car, and the negligent rate of speed naturally resulted in the knocking down of persons standing near the track, and plaintiff was knocked down by one rushing through the crowd to board the car, stumbling as she fell over those who were knocked down by persons on the front platform in such a manner as to slide under the car between the front and rear trucks, the negligent rate of speed was not the proximate cause of the injuries—Grubb v. Dunham, 214 S.W. 256, 201 Mo App. 504.

(3) Negligent speed of bus was held not proximate cause of injuries to passenger, where bus, traveling on through street, was struck by taxicab when half way over intersection and out of course which would normally be followed by taxicab traveling on intersecting street and which failed to stop at stop sign—City Cab Co. v. Becker, 166 A. 434, 165 Md. 32.

while passengers were boarding or alighting,[26] or permitted overcrowding.[27] Also such rules apply with reference to an alleged negligent act or omission, such as a failure to separate white and colored passengers,[28] or the failure to stop to pick up or discharge a passenger[29] at the proper or usual place.[30]

b. Equipment

The general rules as to proximate cause apply where the alleged negligent act or omission of the carrier consists in the failure to furnish and maintain its equipment in proper condition.

The general rules as to proximate cause apply in cases where the alleged negligence consists in the

(4) Motorman's failure to slacken speed was not negligence, causing injury to prospective passenger knocked against car by automobile driving beside it.—United Rys & Electric Co. of Baltimore v. Perkins, 136 A. 50, 152 Md. 105.

26. Cal.—Little v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 271 P. 134, 94 Cal.App. 303.

Acts proximately causing injury

(1) Where an electric car came to a stop or nearly so before reaching the platform on which plaintiff was awaiting the car and then started forward with a severe jerk and threw plaintiff's fellow passengers against other intending passengers, thereby pushing plaintiff off the platform, the sudden jerk was the proximate cause of the accident, and those pushed back were not an independent intervening cause, and lack of guard rail at the rear of the platform at most was but a concurring cause.—Litwinavage v. Schuylkill Ry. Co., 124 A. 293, 280 Pa. 53.

(2) In action for injury to passenger pushed off platform used for entrance and exit of passengers to electric car, where real cause of injury was not the scramble to get aboard, but the sudden jerk of the car forward and for which fellow passengers were not responsible, it was held that the accident could not be said to have resulted from their rudeness or misconduct.—Litwinavage v. Schuylkill Ry. Co., supra.

Not proximate cause

Street car company was held not liable where passenger stumbled over companion's foot while descending from car, and not because of premature starting thereof.—Handy v. New Orleans Public Service, 127 So. 753, 13 La.App. 257.

Concurring cause

If a street car passenger was injured from the concurrence of the catching of her skirt on something on the car and the starting of the car before she had time to alight, that defendant was not responsible for her skirt catching does not relieve it from responsibility for the accident if it negligently started its car while plaintiff was thus embarrassed.—Phœnix Ry. Co. of Arizona v. Beals, 181 P. 379, 20 Ariz. 386.

27. N.C.—Chancey v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 93 S.E. 834, 174 N.C. 351, L.R.A.1918A 1070, Ann.Cas.1918E 580.

As proximate cause

(1) The negligence of a carrier in permitting its car to be overcrowded is the proximate cause of injury to a passenger who is pushed off the car by another passenger who is pushing his way through the crowd to get into a position to alight.—Knaisch v. Joline, 123 N.Y.S. 412, 138 App.Div. 854, distinguishing McVay v. Brooklyn, etc., R. Co., 99 N.Y.S. 266, 113 App.Div. 724.

(2) Other illustrations see 10 C.J. p. 979 note 5 [e].

Not proximate cause

Railroad is not liable to passenger assaulted and robbed on its train, cars being without light and badly overcrowded, there being no causal connection between road's supposed negligent act in overcrowding and failing to light its cars, and injury charged to have resulted.—Chancey v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 93 S.E. 834, 174 N.C. 351, L.R.A.1918A 1070, Ann.Cas.1918E 580.

28. Miss.—Mississippi Power & Light Co. v. Garner, 176 So. 280.

Held proximate cause

(1) Knowingly permitting a violation of a statute requiring the separation of white and colored passengers has been held the proximate cause of an injury resulting from an assault by one of another race in the same car.—Hines v. Meador, 224 S.W. 742, 145 Ark. 356.

(2) Colored passenger could recover against bus carrier for injuries sustained when assaulted by a white passenger, because she refused to give up her seat in a bus which, instead of having partitions to separate the white and colored races, contained a small sign with the word "white" on one side and the word "colored" on the other, on ground that carrier failed to comply with statute requiring separate compartments for the white and colored races, as against contention that failure to have separate compartments was not the proximate cause of the passenger's injury.—Mississippi Power & Light Co. v. Garner, Miss., 176 So. 280.

29. N.C.—Brown v. Linville River Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 431, 174 N.C. 694.

Falling into cattle guard

Failure to stop train and take up passenger was not proximate cause of injury from falling into cattle guard while walking to destination.—Brown v. Linville River Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 431, 174 N.C. 694.

Collision

Failure to stop at a passenger's destination has been held not the proximate cause of injuries received when the car collided with another vehicle.—Fulton v. Kalbach, 179 N.Y.S. 604.

30. N.Y.—Fulton v. Kalbach, supra. N.C.—Garland v. Carolina, C. & O. Ry. Co., 90 S.E. 779, 172 N.C. 638. 10 C.J. p. 981 notes 7, 8.

Held proximate cause

If carrier discharged a passenger at a place beyond her station, whereby she was compelled to walk the track back to destination, the act of discharging was the proximate cause of her injury from being struck by another car.—Gott v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo., 222 S.W. 827.

Acts held not proximate cause

(1) Carrying a street car passenger a few feet beyond the street intersection was not the proximate cause of injuries caused by depression in street after the passenger had voluntarily and safely alighted.—Morris v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 187 N.W. 510, 193 Iowa 616.

(2) Street car company was held not liable to passenger who in alighting from car which stopped sixty steps past intersection, stepped on small rolling object on concrete pavement and fell, as it was not bound to warn of such objects and carrying beyond intersection was not proximate cause.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Soper, 286 S.W. 776, 215 Ky. 536.

(3) Where a trolley car passenger, carried past his station, was given a ticket by the conductor to enable him to ride back, but, instead of doing so, started to walk back on the private right of way of a railroad company and stumbled and fell, sustaining the injuries sued for, the railroad company was not liable, there being no causal connection between the injuries and defendant's act in not letting the passenger off at the right station.—Kelson v. Public Service R. Co., 110 A. 919, 94 N.J.Law 527.

failure of the carrier to furnish and keep in proper condition its machinery, cars, tracks, and appliances.[31]

c. Condition of Premises

The general requirements as to proximate cause apply to an alleged negligent act or omission of the carrier resulting in an alleged defect or dangerous condition of its premises.

The general requirements as to proximate cause apply to an alleged negligent act or omission of the carrier resulting in an alleged defect or dangerous condition of its premises,[32] such as a failure to light its premises properly.[33]

(4) Bus company's act in discharging passenger at other than usual stopping place was held not proximate cause of passenger's injuries when struck by another automobile while crossing road—Waldron v Southwestern Bus Co, 182 N E 596, 42 Ohio App 549.

(5) Alleged negligence of stage in discharging passenger across highway from restaurant where it usually stopped was held not proximate cause of passenger's injuries when struck by automobile while crossing highway to restaurant.—Lewis v Pacific Greyhound Lines, 34 P.2d 616, 147 Or. 588, 96 A.L.R. 718.

(6) Alleged negligence of bus driver in discharging passenger on rainy night at unsafe place on highway was held not proximate cause of injuries sustained by passenger who was struck by automobile traveling on wrong side of highway—Madden v. Red Line Service, Mo.App, 76 S. W 2d 435.

(7) Other illustrations see 10 C J. p 981 note 7 [a], [b].

31. Or.—Benvie v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 156 P. 266, 79 Or. 639
Tex—Texas & N. O Ry. Co. v Rooks, Com.App, 293 S.W. 554, denying rehearing 292 S.W. 536, which affirmed, Civ App, 283 S W 622.

Defective equipment held proximate cause

(1) Railroad's furnishing of mail car with defective door held proximate cause of injury to postal clerk in trying to close it—Baltimore & O. R Co. v. Davis, 137 A. 30, 152 Md. 427.

(2) Proximate cause of death of decedent, who collapsed in elevator and was killed because of dangerous situation, held to be negligence creating dangerous situation.—Strobel v. Park, 140 A. 877, 292 Pa. 200, 57 A L R. 253

Defective equipment held not proximate cause

In a passenger's action for personal injury when an alleged defective gate of the car swung out and he fell from the steps and was injured as he attempted to board a moving train was held not the proximate cause of injury.—Wichita Falls & N W. Ry. Co. v. Cover, 164 P. 660, 63 Okl. 260

Intervening act

Railway mail clerk injured while making unauthorized attempt to repair defective catcher bar on mail car, defect being due to defendant railway's negligence, cannot recover, since his intervening act broke the sequence from the railway's negligence to the accident, and its negligence was therefore not the proximate cause of the injury—Lancaster v. Hall, Tex Civ App., 277 S.W. 776

Negligence of third person

(1) Injuries sustained by prospective railroad passenger when glass from train window fell upon her as as result of companion of another passenger putting hand through window which he was attempting to raise held caused by such party's negligence, for which railroad was not liable, where window, although difficult to raise, was not defective—Hart v Gulf, M. & N R Co, La App, 167 So. 166.

(2) Where the act of employees of the owner of a warehouse in opening a door over defendant railroad's switch track into the warehouse was the direct, voluntary, intelligent, and intervening cause of accident to plaintiff, a passenger on defendant railroad's car struck by the door, such act of the warehouse owner's employees was the proximate cause of the accident, and defendant railroad was not liable, having no control over such employees, the removal by the railroad of a post to prevent opening of the door to the point of collision with cars not being the proximate cause—Kelly v Philadelphia, B & W. R. Co, 113 A. 194, 270 Pa 149.

32. Ky.—Cumberland R Co. v Hemphill, 184 S W. 883, 169 Ky 519.
Tex—Fort Worth & D C. Ry. Co. v Armitage, Civ App., 39 S.W 2d 108, error refused.

Inadequate luggage rack

Defendant railroad's negligence in providing an inadequate luggage rack between seats in its station held the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury notwithstanding the suitcase may have been pushed therefrom by the negligence of a third person—Wright v Kansas City Terminal Ry Co., 193 S.W. 963, 195 Mo.App. 480.

Door stop

Railroad's negligent maintenance of defective automatic door stop in depot held the proximate cause of injuries to passenger struck by door in passing out of depot upon way to train, although the passage of little girls through the door at the same time may have contributed to the cause of the accident—Martin v. Missouri Pac. R. Co, Mo App, 253 S W. 1083.

Failure to provide proper place for alighting

The fact that a passenger while standing on the space between two tracks provided by a carrier as the place for passengers to leave the train is struck and injured by a train on the other track belonging to another carrier does not relieve the first carrier from liability, the failure to provide a proper place for alighting being a proximate cause of the accident.—Chicago Terminal Transfer R Co v Schmelling, 64 N E. 714, 197 Ill. 619, affirming 99 Ill.App 577.

33. Va.—Washington-Virginia Ry Co v Struder, 111 S.E 239, 132 Va 368.

Unlighted station

(1) Negligent failure of an interurban railroad company to have its station lighted does not impose liability for the death of a passenger who was killed in attempting to cross the track to the platform on the opposite side from the station, where there was no showing that the absence of station lights in any way contributed to the accident.—Washington-Virginia Ry. Co. v. Struder, 111 S E 239, 132 Va. 368.

(2) An assault by a negro on a female passenger in an unlighted waiting room after dark is not such a proximate consequence of the carrier's failure to light the room as to charge it with having foreseen the danger and render it liable therefor.—Prokop v. Gulf, etc, R. Co., 79 S. W 101, 34 Tex.Civ App 520.

Insufficient lighting held proximate cause

Any dangerous obstruction or failure to light a walk is proximate cause of injury to passenger occurring before she has a reasonable opportunity to leave the carrier's premises, in the direction ordinarily taken, by means of such walk.—Boyle

7. ACTIONS FOR PERSONAL INJURIES

§ 757. Nature and Form

While an action against a carrier for wrong resulting in personal injury is usually brought in tort, the action may be in assumpsit for breach of the express or implied contract to carry safely, see C.J.S. title Actions § 49 e (5).

§ 758. Right of Action and Conditions Precedent

a. Right of action
b. Conditions precedent

a. Right of Action

A passenger, who by reason of the carrier's failure to perform its duty toward him sustains personal injuries, ordinarily has a right of action therefor against the carrier.

A right of action against a carrier for injury resulting from a defective piece of equipment is not affected by failure of the public authorities to see that the dangerous condition was detected and eliminated.[34] Where plaintiff's cause of action is based solely on the absence of lights on a car, which plaintiff was attempting to board and in so doing fell over a fender on the car, that a statute requires fenders on such cars is immaterial.[35]

If it could be said that a person invited to ride gratuitously is a passenger, such person could have no right of action for injuries resulting from the carrier's negligence during performance of the contract, whether based on the contract or on the imposed duty due to the relationship of the parties, where a statute makes it unlawful to accept free service from a utility, and where statutes making contracts illegal are held to bar all actions arising therefrom whether in contract or in tort.[36]

The repeal, without a saving clause, of a statute giving the passenger a right of action against the carrier for a violation of the statute resulting in personal injury to the passenger terminates his right of action thereunder.[37]

b. Conditions Precedent

Conditions precedent, including the giving of notice required by statute or agreement before bringing suit, or the bringing of the suit within a certain time, must be complied with

The requisite written notice of the personal injury sustained by a passenger as a condition precedent to the maintenance of an action against the carrier therefor, whether required by statute[38] or by the agreement between the parties,[39] must be

v. Waters, 166 N.W. 114, 199 Mich. 478

34. N.Y.—Chakofsky v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 203 N.Y.S. 357, 208 App.Div. 407, reversing 195 N.Y.S. 79

35. La.—Constance v. Louisiana Power & Light Co., 132 So. 525, 15 La.App. 615

36. U.S.—Meloon v. Davis, C.C.A.N.H., 292 F. 82

37. Mass.—Finnegan v. Checker Taxi Co., 14 N.E.2d 127.

38. Tex.—Sawyer v. El Paso, etc., R. Co., 108 S.W. 718, 49 Tex.Civ.App. 106
10 C.J. p. 995 note 77.

39. U.S.—Gooch v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., Idaho, 42 S.Ct. 192, 258 U.S. 22, 66 L.Ed. 443, affirming, C.C.A., 264 F. 664, certiorari granted 41 S.Ct. 8, 254 U.S. 623, 65 L.Ed. 444
Okl.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lynn, 161 P. 1058, 62 Okl. 17.
S.D.—Kearnes v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 171 N.W. 86, 41 S.D. 409.
10 C.J. p. 995 note 78

Agreement valid

Agreement requiring injured party or his representative to give carrier notice in writing of claim within a specified reasonable period is valid.—Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. v. Corcoran, C.C.A.N.Y., 9 F.2d 724, 57 A.L.R. 163.

Purpose of agreement requirement of written notice of injury to cattle caretaker within stated period is to give carrier opportunity to investigate while facts are easily obtainable.—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 286 S.W. 439, 220 Mo.App. 294.

Compliance with requirement

In view of actual knowledge by carrier's agents of injury to plaintiff passenger and of action taken by carrier on that knowledge, letters written by plaintiff to carrier's claim agent within thirty days after injury that he intended to assert claim for damages, and was willing to make settlement, is substantial compliance with his contract to give written notice within thirty days after injury.—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., Mo.App., 264 S.W. 470

Length of time for giving notice

(1) Less time reasonably may be allowed for a notice of a claim for personal injuries to a passenger than is deemed proper for goods, although an exception might be implied if the accident made notice within the time impracticable.—Gooch v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., Idaho, 42 S.Ct. 192, 258 U.S. 22, 66 L.Ed. 443, affirming, C.C.A., 264 F. 664, certiorari granted 41 S.Ct. 8, 254 U.S. 623, 65 L.Ed. 444

(2) In an action by a caretaker of an interstate shipment of live stock, a provision in the written contract, requiring notice of injury within thirty days of the date thereof is reasonable and valid.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lynn, 161 P. 1058, 62 Okl. 17.

(3) Provision in shipping contract, that no claim for injury to person of shipper should be valid unless presented in writing to carrier within four months, was void.—Gerin v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 158 N.W. 630, 133 Minn. 395

To whom notice to be given

A requirement of notice of injury to a passenger riding on a drover's pass is not invalid because it specifies the notice is to be given to the general manager of the carrier.—Gooch v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., Idaho, 42 S.Ct. 192, 258 U.S. 22, 66 L.Ed. 443, affirming, C.C.A., 264 F. 664, certiorari granted 41 S.Ct. 8, 254 U.S. 623, 65 L.Ed. 444.

Shipping contract provisions not applicable to passenger

Where a railroad company's agent refused to permit the shipper of a horse to ride on the shipping contract, and compelled him to purchase given; and the fact that the carrier had actual notice is no excuse for failure to give the notice required,[40] nor can plaintiff claim he was relieved from the necessity of giving notice because the accident prevented defendant from transporting him, the rule as to failure to perform in case of dependent provisions not applying.[41] Under the common law, such a provision may be waived by the carrier.[42]

A statute requiring notice of injuries from ice or snow on "premises" or "adjoining ways" as a condition precedent to an action therefor does not require notice as a condition precedent to an action for injuries to a passenger slipping on ice or snow on the steps of a carrier's car.[43] Service of a summons and complaint has been held sufficient notice under a statute requiring notice of injury within a specified period of time as a condition precedent.[44]

The agreement of the parties sometimes provides that suit for the injury must be brought within a specified time after the cause of action accrues,[45] and under such agreement the time within which suit must be brought does not accrue until notice is given;[46] but the carrier may waive the provision as to the time for suit.[47] It has been held that, in a passenger's action sounding in tort, any stipulation in the transportation contract limiting the time within which suit must be brought is inapplicable;[48] and it has been held that a limitation to a time less than provided by statute cannot be imposed on a shipper in intra-state shipment.[49]

§ 759. Jurisdiction and Venue

The action being transitory, it may be brought in the state where the cause of action arose, or where defendant is served, subject always to such statutory provisions as may regulate the place of bringing the action.

An action by a passenger for personal injuries due to the negligence of the carrier is transitory in its nature and may be brought in the state where the cause of action arose, that is, where the injuries were incurred,[50] although the contract for carriage was made in another state;[51] or in the absence of statutes to the contrary, it may be brought a general ticket, such shipper, although he was injured while on freight train and in car with the animal, has the rights of an ordinary passenger, and the railroad company cannot rely on the limitations in the shipping contract relating to recovery and notice of injury.—Jepsen v. Gallatin Valley Ry. Co, 195 P. 550, 59 Mont. 125.

Effect of statute on agreement

(1) Carmack amendment to the Interstate Commerce Act, U S Comp St. § 8604a, did not relieve a caretaker of carloads of hogs from giving notice to railroad of his injury, as required by contract between them, since amendment deals only with shipments of property, and not with transportation of persons.—Keairnes v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co, 171 N W. 86, 41 S D. 409.

(2) Act March 4, 1915 § 1, Comp. St. § 8604a, prohibiting any provision by a carrier fixing the time for notice of loss or injury to goods at less than ninety days, did not establish a new public policy with reference to similar notices, so as to invalidate a stipulation in a drover's pass requiring notice of claim for personal injuries to be given within thirty days.—Gooch v Oregon Short Line R Co., Idaho, 42 S Ct. 192, 258 U.S. 22, 66 L.Ed. 443, affirming, C C.A., 264 F 664, certiorari granted 41 S.Ct. 8, 254 U.S. 623, 65 L.Ed. 444.

(3) Right of cattle caretaker accompanying interstate shipment to recover from carrier, and duty to give notice of such injury, is governed by the common law, notwithstanding that an agreement that written notice should be made within thirty days was required under a regulation that was part of the carrier's tariff filed with the interstate commerce commission, the Interstate Commerce Act being inapplicable to personal injury cases.—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 286 S.W. 439, 220 Mo App 294.

Provision for notice of injury to property

Where plaintiff, caretaker of stock, was injured while in caboose, by violent starting of train, failure to give notice of injury within sixty days, as required by bill of lading in case of "injury to property," was immaterial.—Davis v. Adkins, Tex.Civ App, 251 S W. 285.

40. U.S.—Gooch v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., Idaho, 42 S.Ct. 192, 258 U S. 22, 66 L Ed 443, affirming, C.C.A., 264 F. 664, certiorari granted 41 S.Ct. 8, 254 U.S. 623, 65 L Ed. 444.

41. Mo—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac. R Co, App., 264 S.W. 470.

42. Mo—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac R. Co., App, 8 S.W 2d 103—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac R. Co, 286 S.W. 439, 220 Mo App 294—Edmondson v Missouri Pac. R. Co, App., 264 S.W. 470.

Immediate investigation of injury and offer to settle is a waiver of written notice of injury under caretaker's contract executed by cattle shipper.—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co, 286 S.W. 439, 220 Mo. App. 294—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac R Co., Mo.App., 264 S.W. 470.

43. Mass—Casey v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 150 N E. 850, 255 Mass. 33.

44. Wis—Maxwell v. Johnson, 161 N.W. 736, 165 Wis. 462.

45. Kan—Koster v. Atchison, T & S. F. R Co., 147 P. 798, 95 Kan. 109.
10 C J p 995 note 79.

Provision of live-stock contract, whereby the shipper traveled as caretaker, that no action should be maintained by him for any damage unless brought within six months, applies to actions for injuries to the shipper, as well as for injuries to the stock.—Achen v. Atchison, T & S F. Ry. Co., 175 P. 980, 103 Kan 668.

46. Kan—James v Chicago, etc, R. Co, 105 P. 40, 81 Kan 23, 27.

47. Tex—St. Louis, etc, R. Co v. Dysart, 130 S.W. 1047, 62 Tex Civ App. 7.
10 C J. p 996 note 81.

48. Okl.—Martin v. Chicago, R I. & P. R Co., 143 P. 711, 46 Okl 169.

49. Tex—Davis v Adkins, Civ App, 251 S.W 285.

50. U S.—Baltimore, etc, R. Co. v. Reed, Ohio, 223 F. 689, 139 C.C A. 192
10 C.J p 996 note 84.

51. Ind—Indiana, etc, R. Co. v. Masterson, 44 N E. 1004, 16 Ind. App. 323.

in the state where defendant is served, although the injury arose in another state.[52]

As between different counties, the action may be brought in any county in which process is served on defendant, unless there is a statutory provision localizing the action.[53] The action may be brought, under various statutes, in the county where the injury occurred or the cause of action arose,[54] or where defendant resides or has its principal office or place of business,[55] or through or into which the line passes,[56] or where plaintiff resides,[57] provided, under some statutes, it is a county through which the road runs.[58] Courts of a county other than those designated by the statutory provisions have no jurisdiction of an action against a carrier.[59]

Convenience of witnesses. It has been held that

52. U S —Hireen v. Interstate Transit Lines, D.C Cal, 52 F 2d 182.
10 C J. p 996 note 86.

53. Ky.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Cowherd, 15 Ky L. 160.
10 C J. p 996 note 88.

54. Ga.—Tennessee Coach Co. v. Snelling, 180 S.E. 741, 51 Ga.App. 432.
10 C J. p 996 note 89.

Selection of county

Foreign corporation operating within state as motor common carrier could be sued in county where cause of action originated and service on person designated by corporation to receive service could be had by second original, although it was not necessary that action be brought in county where cause of action originated, if corporation had agent and place of business within state. —Tennessee Coach Co. v Snelling, 180 S E. 741, 51 Ga.App. 432.

Prior to statute

It was no objection to an action for injuries to a passenger, brought prior to Acts 1903 p 182, requiring suits for personal injuries to be brought in the county where the injury occurred, that it was brought in a county other than that in which the injury occurred or plaintiff resided.—Kansas City, M. & B R Co v. Butler, 38 So. 1024, 143 Ala. 262.

55. Ga —Harrison v. Neel Gap Bus Line, 179 S E. 871, 51 Ga App 120
10 C J p 996 note 90.

As affected by statutory provisions

(1) A statute providing that action against motor common carriers "may" be brought in any county where action could be brought if defendant were railroad being sued on like cause of action is permissive and cumulative, and does not require bringing of action against motor common carrier in county where cause of action originated —Harrison v. Neel Gap Bus Line, 179 S.E 871, 51 Ga App 120.

(2) Where the statute necessitates bringing suit in the county where the carrier is doing business, a passenger is not entitled to maintain venue in county where accident occurred without proof that bus owner was operating as common carrier in such county at time of suit. —Amberson v. Anderson, Tex Civ. App, 43 S.W.2d 120.

Doing business by agent

Where suit may be brought in a county where the carrier does business by agent, a railroad which had formerly maintained a depot in the county, although at the time of the suit it no longer had an agent there, but still maintained the depot for the storage of freight and the convenience of passengers, was "doing business by agent" in that county so as to be subject to suit there in an action by a passenger for personal injuries —Louisville & N. R Co. v Dawson, 68 So. 674, 14 Ala App 272.

56. Okl.—Jacobsen v. Howard, 23 P. 2d 185, 164 Okl. 88.

Carrier operating on lines of another

Where a contract between two railroad companies allowed the second company to operate its trains, in charge of its own servants and conductors, over the tracks of the first, with the added provision that the first company should be liable to the second for any sums which might be recovered against the second because of injuries received by passengers or others while the second was operating its trains over the line of the first, the lessee company was carrying on its business within the counties in which the line of the lessor company ran, and might be sued therein —In re Columbia, N. & L R Co, 71 S E 1013, 89 S.C 407 —Jenkins v Atlantic Coast Line R Co, 71 S E. 1010, 89 S C. 408.

Motor carriers

A motor carrier operating busses under jurisdiction of corporation commission is a "transportation company" within statute authorizing suit in any county through which line passes.—Jacobsen v. Howard, 23 P 2d 185, 164 Okl. 88.

57. Ky —Louisville & N. R Co. v. Spears' Adm'r, 232 S.W. 60, 192 Ky. 64
Mich —Amyot v. Lamb, 190 N.W. 741, 221 Mich 256.
10 C J. p 996 note 91.

Residence of personal representative

Within a provision of Code Civ. Pract § 73, authorizing an action against a common carrier to be brought in the county in which the plaintiff resides, if that is a county through which the carrier passes, plaintiff's residence in an action to recover for the death of a passenger is the residence of the personal representative, by whom the suit is prosecuted, under Ky.St. § 6, not the residence of the deceased passenger, and the administrator can prosecute such action in the county of his residence, whether it is controlled by the state statute or by the order of the director general, requiring suits against carriers while under federal control to be brought in the county or district where the plaintiff resided.—Louisville & N R Co v Spears' Adm'r, 232 S W. 60, 192 Ky. 64, overruling Illinois Cent R Co. v. Willis, 97 S.W. 21, 123 Ky 636, 29 Ky.L. 1187—10 C J. p 996 note 91 [a].

Provision for suit where principal office located

Comp.L 1915 § 12340 par 3, providing that "suits may be commenced" against a railroad in any county where its principal office is situated, etc., does not prohibit passengers to bring action for personal injuries in their home counties pursuant to par 2, the permissive provisions indicating a legislative intent to amplify or define the specified corporate residence of such defendant in which an action may be commenced at plaintiff's option.—Amyot v. Lamb, 190 N.W. 741, 221 Mich. 256.

58. Ohio —Johnson v. Toledo & O. Cent. Ry Co, 5 Ohio N.P.,N.S, 347.
10 C J p 996 note 92

Mandatory provision

The word, "may," in the Ohio statute, Rev St. § 5204, providing that suit may be brought in any county through which the road passes has been held to mean "must" Under such a provision the action cannot properly be brought in the county where the carrier's principal offices are located unless the line of the road passes through such county — Johnson v. Toledo & O. Cent Ry. Co., 5 Ohio N.P ,N.S , 347.

59. Ky.—Sherrell v. Chesapeake, O. & S W R. Co., 12 S.W. 465, 89 Ky 302.
10 C.J. p 996 note 88 [a], [b].

the court may consider the convenience of employee witnesses in determining where the trial shall be held, although their convenience will be given less consideration than the convenience of witnesses who are not connected with the parties.[60]

§ 760. Parties

In an action against a carrier for personal injuries, the carrier may be proceeded against alone, but plaintiff may join other proper parties as defendants, including other carriers, purchasers of offending carriers, and sureties or insurers of carriers.

Where a passenger is injured by the joint or concurrent acts of several joint tort-feasors, he may sue either of them, or he may join them in one action and recover against such as are shown by the evidence to be liable.[61] A nonjoinder of all persons liable therefor cannot be taken advantage of in such an action, but a recovery may be had against such as are shown to be liable,[62] provided the action is brought in tort and not in contract.[63] Carriers having a joint duty toward a passenger may be joined in an action for injuries,[64] but not where the injury results from concurrent, rather than joint, negligence.[65] A purchaser of railroad property, under a decree of foreclosure providing that the purchaser shall take the property subject to all liabilities, may be joined as defendant in an action for personal injuries to, or death of, a passenger, occurring while the road is being operated by a receiver.[66] Companies jointly operating their roads through a lessee may be joined in one action for injuries to a passenger over their lines, where the negligent acts are continuous and chargeable to the common agent of the lessee.[67]

Receivers appointed in a federal court for a defendant railroad company, after a suit is brought against the latter in a state court, need not be made parties to the suit.[68] A shipper of live stock contracting to hold a carrier harmless for any damages it might be required to pay for injuries to a caretaker accompanying the stock is not a necessary party to an action by the caretaker against the carrier for personal injuries.[69]

Sureties and insurers. The surety on a bond, given by the owner of an automobile stage line as a condition precedent to obtaining a certificate of convenience and necessity required for operation of such a line, is a proper party to an action for injuries brought against the owner by a passenger,[70] but an indemnity insurance company contracting to indemnify an automobile transportation company against damages to passengers, cannot be joined in an action for injuries to a passenger against the company, unless the policy expressly or by necessary implication so provides;[71] and a provision in the policy for direct liability to any person as provided for in the policy, whether an action is brought against the assured alone or jointly with the insurer, does not warrant joinder of the insurer in an action in tort against the carrier.[72]

60. N.Y.—Neeley v. Erie R. Co., 119 N.Y.S. 953, 134 App.Div. 781.
10 C.J. p. 997 note 93.

61. Ga.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Wheat, 122 S.E. 794, 32 Ga.App. 151.
Iowa.—Wabash Ry. Co. v. Peterson, 175 N.W. 523, 187 Iowa 1331.
Mont.—Knuckey v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 109 P. 979, 41 Mont. 314.
N.Y.—Jerome v. New York Rys. Co., 179 N.Y.S. 777, 190 App.Div. 311.
Va.—Carlton v. Boudar, 88 S.E. 174, 118 Va. 521, 4 A.L.R. 1480.
10 C.J. p. 997 note 95.

Trucking and street car companies.
Owner of truck colliding with street car is properly made defendant with street railroad in action for injury to street car passenger.—Moraski v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 142 A. 276, 293 Pa. 224.

62. N.Y.—Jerome v. New York Rys. Co., 179 N.Y.S. 777, 190 App.Div. 311.
10 C.J. p. 997 note 96.

63. Pa.—M'Call v. Forsyth, 4 Watts & S. 179.
10 C.J. p. 997 note 97.

64. Mich.—Boyle v. Waters, 166 N.W. 114, 199 Mich. 478.

65. Ohio.—Hudson v. Ohio Bus Line Co., 11 N.E.2d 113, 56 Ohio App. 483.

Bus and taxicab.
Where bus and taxicab were being driven in opposite directions on a street and collided injuring bus passenger, the negligence, if any, was merely concurrent and not joint, precluding joinder of bus company and taxicab company in passenger's action for injuries.—Hudson v. Ohio Bus Line Co., 11 N.E.2d 113, 56 Ohio App. 483.

66. Colo.—Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Gunning, 80 P. 727, 33 Colo. 280.
10 C.J. p. 997 note 98.

67. N.C.—Carleton v. Yadkin R. Co., 55 S.E. 429, 143 N.C. 43, 10 Ann.Cas. 348.

68. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Coy, 168 S.W. 1106, 113 Ark. 265.

69. Okl.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lynn, 161 P. 1058, 62 Okl. 17.

70. Wash.—Hayes v. Staples, 225 P. 417, 129 Wash. 436.
W.Va.—O'Neal v. Pocahontas Transp. Co., 129 S.E. 478, 99 W.Va. 456.

71. W.Va.—Shepherd v. Pocahontas Transp. Co., 131 S.E. 548, 100 W.Va. 703—O'Neal v. Pocahontas Transp. Co., 129 S.E. 478, 99 W.Va. 456.

Statutes not authorizing joinder.
Acts 1923 c. 6 § 82, subs. class H, requiring applicant, as condition precedent to receiving certificate of convenience for operating automobile transportation line, to file with state road commission a bond with surety approved by the commission, or liability insurance policy satisfactory to commission to protect public, does not authorize joinder of indemnity company with its assured as party defendant in action by passenger for injuries while being transported, such statute not creating new remedy, nor is such joinder authorized by Code 1923 c. 71 § 2, on theory that promises of policy were for sole benefit of plaintiff or for sole benefit of class of which she was member.—Shepherd v. Pocahontas Transp. Co., 131 S.E. 548, 100 W.Va. 703—O'Neal v. Pocahontas Transp. Co., 129 S.E. 478, 99 W.Va. 456.

72. W.Va.—Conwell v. Hays, 136 S.E. 604, 103 W.Va. 69.

§ 761. Declaration, Complaint, or Petition

a. In general
b. Relation of carrier and passenger
c. Negligence or wrong generally
d. Acts of employees, fellow passengers, and other third persons
e. Place and time
f. Passengers boarding or alighting
g. Matters of defense; contributory negligence
h. Proximate cause
i. Amendment

a. In General

The declaration, petition, or complaint must definitely and consistently allege all facts necessary to the statement of the cause of action against the carrier.

The declaration, complaint, or petition, in an action by a passenger against a common carrier for personal injuries sustained by reason of the carrier's negligence or wrong, is governed by the rules relating to such pleadings in civil actions generally.[73] Thus, the allegations must be definite[74] and consistent,[75] and must sufficiently state all the facts that are necessary to state the cause of action on which plaintiff relies.[76]

73. S C—Stuckey v Atlantic Coast Line R Co, 38 S E 416, 60 S C 237, 85 Am S R. 842.
10 C J. p 997 note 3

74. Ala—Birmingham Ry, Light & Power Co. v. Hunt, 76 So. 918, 200 Ala 560
10 C J p 997 note 4.

Allegations held definite

(1) Allegation of injury to passenger from negligence of street railroad or its agents or employees. —Alabama Power Co v Edwards, 121 So 543, 219 Ala. 162

(2) Declaration by passenger based on insulting and humiliating treatment inflicted by conductor, stating such conduct in general terms, without specifying evidential facts or averring exact words used —John v Baltimore & O R Co, 95 S E 589, 82 W Va 149

75. Mo—Shanahan v St Louis Transit Co, 83 S.W. 783, 109 Mo. App. 228
10 C J p 997 note 5.

Effect of verdict on inconsistencies

A petition which alleges that the receivers exercise exclusive control of the road, and that plaintiff's injuries resulted from negligence in the operation of the car on the road, is sufficient, after verdict, to sustain judgment against the receivers, although it also contains allegations as to the management by the company, inconsistent with the operation of the car by the receivers, since those defects are waived by answer on the merits—Moore v. Metropolitan St. R Co, 176 S.W. 1120, 189 Mo App. 555.

76. Mo—Rosenzweig v Wells, 273 S. W 1071, 308 Mo. 617.
N.Y.—Bressler v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 13 N E 2d 772, 277 N.Y 200, reversing 297 N Y. S. 336, 251 App.Div 890.
10 C J p 998 note 6.

Declaration, complaint, or petition held sufficient to state a cause of action for personal injuries:

(1) Against two railroad companies for injury to passenger on train of one when derailed by obstructions on connecting track, as to use of which companies were in litigation and violent dispute—Brown v Mississippi Cent. R Co., 109 So. 796, 144 Miss. 326.

(2) At crossing between station platforms.—Banks v. Kansas City Rys Co, 217 S W 488, 280 Mo 227.

(3) By allowing car to be and remain cold—Zoccolillo v Oregon Short Line R. Co, 177 P. 201, 53 Utah 39.

(4) By assault of employee.—Dorton v. Kansas City Rys. Co, 224 S.W. 30, 204 Mo.App 262.

(5) By being thrown from seat when fire truck hit car.—Moen v. Madison Rys. Co, 243 N.W 505, 208 Wis 388—Moen v. Madison Rys Co., 243 N W. 503, 208 Wis 381

(6) By being thrown from conveyance
Cal—Gumpel v. San Diego Electric Ry Co., 172 P. 605, 178 Cal. 166 —Rystinki v. Central California Traction Co., 165 P. 952, 175 Cal 336
Mo—Goodwin v. Wells, 285 S W. 112, 220 Mo App 1.
10 C J p 998 note 6 [a] (7).

(7) By carrier's concurrent negligence.
Ind—Ft. Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction Co. v Parish, 119 N.E. 488, 67 Ind App. 597
Minn—Kloss v. Minneapolis St Ry. Co., 219 N.W 179, 174 Minn. 294.

(8) By collision.—Hoover v St Louis Electric Terminal Ry Co., Mo., 227 S.W. 77, reversing, App, 216 S W 984.

(9) By discharging passenger at dangerous place.
Ga—Locke v Ford, 187 S E. 715, 54 Ga App 322.
Tex—Fuchs v. Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co, Civ App, 18 S W.2d 854, error refused.

(10) By falling from train—Kordick v. Chicago R. Co, 187 Ill.App 74.

(11) By falling over obstructions. —Bragg v. Houston Electric Co., Tex Civ.App, 264 S W. 245, affirmed Houston Electric Co. v Bragg, Com. App, 276 S W 641, motion overruled 280 S W 188—10 C J. p 998 note 6 [a] (6)

(12) By operation of bus in violation of statute.—South Plains Coaches v. Behringer, Tex Civ App, 4 S. W.2d 1003, affirmed Behringer v. South Plains Coaches, Com App, 13 S W 2d 334

(13) By operation of elevator known to be defective—Reel v Consolidated Inv Co., Mo, 236 S W. 43.

(14) In alighting from conveyance
Ga—Hall v. Georgia R & Banking Co, 103 S.E 849, 25 Ga App 459 —Savannah Electric Co v Johnson, 103 S.E. 798, 25 Ga App. 517
Mo—Rosenzweig v Wells, 273 S.W 1071, 308 Mo. 617—McDermott v United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App, 236 S W 1080.
Neb—Leon v. Chicago, B. & Q R Co, 167 N.W. 787, 102 Neb. 537, L R.A.1918F 313.
Tex—Wichita Falls Traction Co v Berry, Civ.App, 187 S W. 415, error dismissed.
Va—Houston v. Lynchburg Traction & Light Co., 89 S E 114, 119 Va 136.

(15) In attempting to board conveyance—Haynie v. Central of Georgia Ry. Co., 93 S E. 258, 20 Ga.App 599—Southern Ry Co. v. Sewell, 90 S.E. 94, 18 Ga App. 544.

(16) Sustained by slipping on apple core on aisle of defendant's street car.—Leslie v. Georgia Power Co, 171 S.E. 395, 47 Ga App. 723

(17) Under doctrine of last clear chance—Cazeaux v. New Orleans Public Service, 124 So 685, 14 La. App. 320—10 C J. p 998 note 6 [a]

(18) Under theory of sudden peril rule.—Cazeaux v. New Orleans Public Service, supra.

Declaration, complaint, or petition held insufficient to state a cause of action for personal injuries:

(1) By being struck by automobile

The declaration, petition, or complaint must allege a duty owing from the carrier to the passenger,[77] or facts showing the existence of a duty to protect plaintiff from the injury of which he complains, defendant's failure to perform such duty, and the injury to plaintiff resulting from such failure;[78] and it is, in general, sufficient to allege ultimate facts showing that the relation of passenger and carrier existed, and that defendant negligently did, or omitted to do, the act or acts that proximately caused, or contributed to causing, the injury as stated,[79] the specific fact that actually caused the injury being duly alleged so that a definite issue may be presented for trial.[80] It is not sufficient to allege while intending to become passenger.—Franklin v. Houston Electric Co., Tex.Civ.App., 286 S.W. 578.

(2) When leaving or alighting from a conveyance—Butler v. Central of Georgia Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 279, 21 Ga.App. 318—10 C.J. p 998 note 6 [b] (3), [d] (1).

(3) Under last clear chance rule
Ind.—Doyle v. Union Traction Co., 152 N.E. 877, 85 Ind.App. 62.
Mo.—Wilson v. Wells, 13 S.W.2d 541, 321 Mo. 929.

After purchase of offending carrier's property

Injured passenger's complaint against negligent bus company is demurrable as against a nonnegligent bus company subsequently buying part of negligent company's property.—Begnell v. Safety Coach Line, 153 S.E. 264, 198 N.C. 688

Negligence in alternative

In street car passenger's action for injuries, a count charging negligence in the alternative was not objectionable where each alternative sufficiently charged good cause of action and was based on the same injury.—Alabama Power Co. v. Edwards, 121 So. 543, 219 Ala. 162.

Recovery of nominal damages

(1) When nominal damages are recoverable, a declaration in action for personal injuries, stating case authorizing any recovery whatever, is not demurrable.—Tampa Electric Co. v. Ferguson, 118 So. 211, 96 Fla. 375.

(2) A petition by white girl passenger against bus carrier, based on fact that colored girl seated herself beside plaintiff, is not generally demurrable because not showing that plaintiff was actually damaged, since plaintiff might recover nominal, vindictive, or punitive damages, even though she did not recover actual, compensatory, or general damages—Hames v. Old South Lines, 183 S.E. 503, 52 Ga.App. 420.

77. Ala.—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So. 479, 198 Ala. 262

Alleging too high a duty

Allegation that defendant street railway owed plaintiff, injured while getting off car, highest degree of care of which human foresight was capable, does not vitiate declaration in personal injury action.—Malone v. Monongahela Valley Traction Co., 140 S.E. 340, 104 W.Va. 417.

78. Ala.—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So. 479, 198 Ala. 262
N.Y.—Dymott v. City of New York, 1 N.Y.S.2d 939, 253 App.Div. 894
10 C.J. p 998 note 7.

Allegations held sufficient to show duty

(1) Complaint for injury to passenger, thrown in alighting from street car, was held certain, and sufficiently to aver defendant's duty to conserve plaintiff's safety as a passenger.—Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co. v. Hunt, 76 So. 918, 200 Ala. 560.

(2) A count alleging that car was signaled to stop, that it overran the regular stopping place about two car lengths, where it stopped to take on passengers, and that, while plaintiff was in the act of boarding, the conductor suddenly closed the entrance door, thereby injuring plaintiff's hand, sufficiently alleges facts which entitle plaintiff to the care owing by the carrier to one in the act of becoming a passenger by carrier's invitation, so that a demurrer on the ground that it did not appear that the plaintiff owed the defendant any duty was properly overruled—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Ellis, 96 So. 773, 209 Ala. 580.

(3) A petition alleging that plaintiff, a woman, was directed by the agent of a carrier to ride in a smoking car, and that the conductor paid no attention to her objection thereto, and that while in the car other passengers therein used obscene and boisterous language, and two of them became involved in a quarrel while standing by her seat, as a result of which she was badly frightened and humiliated, received a nervous shock that resulted in confinement to her bed for a period, and from which she suffered for some time, is sufficient against a demurrer—Payne v. Combs, 249 S.W. 1031, 198 Ky. 749.

Allegations held sufficient to show breach of duty

(1) Allegation that door indicated by bus driver as location of toilet was opening to basement and that plaintiff, a passenger, fell downstairs.—Watts v. Colonial Stages Co., 163 S.E. 523, 45 Ga.App. 115.

(2) As to elevator.—State Realty Co. v. Ligon, 119 So. 672, 218 Ala. 541.

(3) In an action for injury from falling over a suitcase in the aisle of a street car—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Johnson, 71 So. 620, 14 Ala.App. 558.

Allegations subject to special exception

In action against railroad for injury to passenger's eye from spark or cinder from locomotive, the terms "first-class coach" and "first-class manner," in allegations of petition that the railroad failed to transport the passenger in a "first-class manner" while he was a passenger on a "first-class coach," are subject to exception, such terms being improper in pleading railroad's duty to use the highest degree of care and foresight safely to transport the passenger.—Schaff v. Sanders, Tex.Civ.App., 257 S.W. 670, affirmed, Com.App., 269 S.W. 1034.

Joint duty

If two carriers maintain a crosswalk between stations at junction, and their neglecting to light the way concurred to injure a passenger, she could sue both, although she alleged no joint duty.—Boyle v. Waters, 166 N.W. 114, 199 Mich. 478.

79. Ala.—State Realty Co. v. Ligon, 119 So. 672, 218 Ala. 541.
Fla.—Barnwell v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 74 So. 497, 73 Fla. 482.
10 C.J. p 999 note 8.

Allegations held sufficient

(1) Counts which allege that defendant was a common carrier of passengers, that plaintiff was a passenger, and that defendant so negligently conducted itself in transit that at a certain time and place plaintiff was thrown or caused to fall from car, are sufficient—Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co. v. Gray, 71 So. 689, 196 Ala. 42.

(2) Allegations that plaintiff boarded defendant's street car bound for center of city, while stopped at regular stopping place for passengers, took seat therein, and remained thereon as passenger until it was wrecked, sufficiently disclosed relation of carrier and passenger, even if statement that he was a passenger were conclusion and there was no averment that he paid or offered to pay fare.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Alstadt, 143 N.E. 879, 195 Ind. 389.

80. Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Hamlett, 89 So. 337, 81 Fla. 872.

a duty on the part of defendant to do certain things and the breach of that duty as a conclusion of law, but the facts should be stated from which the law will raise the duty.[81]

There should be a definite statement of the injuries received.[82]

The giving of the notice required by statute as a condition precedent to an action for injuries must be pleaded.[83]

Matters which go merely in aggravation or extenuation, and whose effect is to enhance or diminish the damages, need not be pleaded by plaintiff.[84]

In an action for damages for injuries alleged to have been the result of a carrier's negligence, an allegation disclaiming responsibility for the negligence of a third person is surplusage.[85]

b. Relation of Carrier and Passenger

The declaration, complaint, or petition must properly allege the relationship of passenger and carrier.

It is essential, in an action against a carrier for a breach of its duty as a carrier of passengers, that the declaration, petition, or complaint show by proper allegations that the relation of carrier and passenger existed between the person injured and defendant at the time the injury was received,[86] and, therefore, there should be allegations which indicate that defendant was a carrier of passengers,[87] although, if defendant is a railroad company, the fact that it is a carrier of passengers will be presumed.[88] There must also be an allegation of facts showing that plaintiff was a passenger;[89] and, although it is usual to charge that the undertaking to carry plaintiff was for hire,[90] it is not necessary to allege that plaintiff had paid for his transportation, as the obligation to pay is inferred.[91]

81. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Clausen, 50 N.E. 680, 173 Ill. 100.
10 C.J. p 999 note 9.

82. Ga.—Douglas, etc., R. Co. v. Swindle, 59 S.E. 690, 2 Ga.App. 550.
10 C.J. p 999 note 10.

Petition held sufficient

In action by passenger against bus company for breach of contract in failing to summon medical assistance for passenger while passenger was suffering from an apoplectic stroke, a petition alleging that passenger was conscious during the stroke and that his pain was intense, that suffering could have been mitigated by medical attention, and that passenger had been damaged by failure to procure medical aid to alleviate the suffering, coupled with testimony admitted without objection that passenger suffered intensely and that suffering was augmented by the neglect of the bus company's employees, stated a cause of action for pain and suffering.—Searcy v. Interurban Transp. Co., 179 So. 75, 189 La. 183, reversing, App., 179 So. 93, reversing 171 So. 468.

83. Mass.—Klein v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 200 N.E. 6.

84. Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Batchler, 83 S.W. 902, 37 Tex.Civ.App. 116.
10 C.J. p 1000 note 12.

85. Ga.—Rome Ry. & Light Co. v. King, 117 S.E. 464, 30 Ga.App. 231

86. La.—Owens v. South New Orleans Light & Traction Co., 1 La.App. 601.
N.Y.—Dymott v. City of New York, 1 N.Y.S.2d 939, 253 App.Div. 894.
10 C.J. p 1000 note 13

Allegations held sufficient

(1) Allegations that plaintiff bought ticket entitling him to passage and went on platform to wait arrival of train, with intent to become passenger, show at least qualified relation of passenger and carrier.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Friend, 118 N.E. 598, 70 Ind.App. 366.

(2) A complaint alleging that plaintiff was injured while boarding one of defendant's street cars which had stopped to take on passengers, as a result of defendant's negligence in starting the car, without directly alleging plaintiff was a passenger and defendant a common carrier, has been held sufficient, on motion for nonsuit, to show the relationship of passenger and carrier.—Rostad v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 201 P. 184, 101 Or. 569.
10 C.J. p 1000 note 13 [a] (1),.(2).

Allegations held insufficient

(1) In an action for personal injuries to one boarding a car.—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Ellis, 92 So. 106, 207 Ala. 109.

(2) In an action for injuries received in an elevator.—Downs v. Seeley, 56 A. 502, 76 Conn. 317.

(3) In action for death of plaintiff's testator struck by train while on tracks and attempting to flag train at small station.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Webb, 150 So. 741, 112 Fla. 449.

Evidence of relationship not to be alleged

In action for death of railway mail clerk caused by not heating car, it was not necessary to plead contract between railroad and United States further than to show that it conferred upon decedent right to be in car, and court properly refused to require plaintiff to make complaint more specific.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Arnott, 126 N.E. 13, 189 Ind. 350.

87. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Selhorst, 51 So. 568, 165 Ala. 475.
10 C.J. p 1000 note 14.

88. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Adams, 40 So. 385, 146 Ala. 267, 119 Am.S.R. 27.
10 C.J. p 1000 note 15.

89. Ga.—Payne v. Allen, 116 S.E. 640, 155 Ga. 54, reversing 110 S.E. 345, 28 Ga.App. 8.
10 C.J. p 1000 note 16.

Form of allegation

While question on demurrer as to whether relation of carrier and passenger exists as matter of law is always determined from pleaded facts and circumstances, facts shown by conclusions and participial expressions will be given same force and effect as those directly stated.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Alstadt, 143 N.E. 879, 195 Ind. 389.—10 C.J. p 1000 note 16 [a].

Allegation held sufficient

Allegation that "plaintiff took passage on one of defendant's passenger trains to be carried," etc.—Vandalia R. Co. v. Stevens, 114 N.E. 1001, 67 Ind.App. 238.

90. N.Y.—Roberts v. Johnson, 58 N.Y. 613

91. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Alstadt, 143 N.E. 879, 195 Ind. 389.
La.—Spearman v. Toye Bros. Auto & Taxi-Cab Co., 114 So. 591, 164 La. 677.
10 C.J. p 1001 note 18.

Taxicab passenger

A petition for injuries sustained by passenger when taxicab overturned is not demurrable for failure to

Presence on cars with permission. Where the passenger sues for personal injuries received while on the cars with the knowledge and permission of the carrier, it is sufficient to allege that he was on the cars with the permission of the carrier and with the knowledge of its employees in charge.[92]

c. Negligence or Wrong Generally

The carrier's negligence must be properly alleged, it being generally regarded as sufficient to allege it in general terms without specifying particulars or details.

It is not sufficient to allege the carrier's negligence merely as a conclusion of law; but the essential facts constituting the negligence or wrong, or from which it may be presumed, must be stated with reasonable certainty and definiteness in order that defendant may be informed of what it is called on to meet at the trial.[93] Although there are some allege payment of fare.—Shelton Taxi Co. v. Bowling, 51 S.W.2d 468, 244 Ky. 817.

92. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v Coy, 168 S.W. 1106, 113 Ark. 265
10 C.J. p 1001 note 19.

93. U.S.—Lehigh Valley R. Co v Stevenson, C.C.A.N.J., 17 F.2d 748.
Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Allen, 117 So. 333, 96 Fla. 419.
Pa.—Scharf v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 10 Pa.Dist. & Co. 207—Hippy v Conestoga Traction Co., 2 Pa.Dist & Co. 246
10 C.J. p 1001 note 21.

Allegations held sufficient

(1) In carelessly applying brakes of interurban car—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 162 S.E. 18, 157 Va. 628.

(2) In both use of mechanically deficient latch and failure of stage driver properly to close and latch door—McCormick v. Index Stages, 242 P. 1090, 137 Wash. 507.

(3) In failing to give customary warning that train was about to leave.—Hail v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas, Tex.Civ.App., 30 S.W.2d 1062, affirmed Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas v. Hail, Com.App., 48 S.W.2d 589

(4) In failure to operate bus at reasonable and safe rate of speed, and failure to control motion of bus so as to avoid injury to passengers—Buckalew v. Eaton, 191 A. 773, 118 N.J.Law 188.

(5) In failure properly to light tracks at station and to maintain headlights on car, resulting in passenger being struck while signaling car to stop.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v Smith, 127 N.E. 308, 74 Ind.App. 345.

(6) In leaving a helplessly intoxicated passenger off its train on a narrow platform between two much-used tracks in a place of danger without any care for his safety—Panor v. Northwestern Elevated R. Co., 228 Ill.App. 162.

(7) In stopping without warning in middle of highway, although in view of averments as to third party's negligence in running into bus with a truck, the bus driver's negligence probably could not have been proximate cause of accident.—Peterson v. Louisiana Power & Light Co., La.App., 174 So. 644.

(8) That defendants were common carriers of passengers for hire, that plaintiff was passenger in one of defendants' automobiles at time of injury and received her injuries because of gross negligence of driver in permitting automobile to run off road and be overturned.—Bower Auto Rent Co. v. Young, Tex.Civ.App., 274 S.W. 295.

(9) That injuries were caused by negligence in not stopping as scheduled and agreed and on account of brakeman leading plaintiff to believe that train had come to full stop—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v Boys, 123 N.E. 482, 71 Ind.App. 102.

(10) That on a dark night when the platform was unlighted plaintiff, waiting for a train, stepped on an attached porch, the gate to which was open, and fell through a trap-door opening but a few feet from the station platform.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Dixon, 195 S.W. 1099, 176 Ky. 569

(11) That passenger in baggage car when train was derailed, was in the baggage car with knowledge and consent of conductor, and that train was derailed because of negligent condition of track and equipment and excessive speed, and further allegation that injuries were due also to negligence in having certain objects in baggage car so placed that they fell on plaintiff as train was derailed—Davis v. Jones, 129 S.E. 892, 34 Ga.App. 7.

(12) That plaintiff was passenger on wrecked train, and that his injuries were directly caused by carrier's negligence—Curry v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 296 S.W. 473, 221 Mo.App. 1.
10 C.J. p 1001 note 21 [b].

Allegations held insufficient

(1) In absence of more precise allegations as to curve in railroad track and facts connected therewith which made it "dangerous" as alleged, petition in action for death of passenger should have been dismissed.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Stacer, 92 S.E. 962, 20 Ga.App. 195.

(2) Mere allegations that the relation of carrier and passenger existed and that, while it existed, the passenger was injured in connection with the carriage, without the further averment, in general terms at least, that the injury resulted from the carrier's negligence do not state a cause of action.—Reel v. Consolidated Inv. Co., Mo., 236 S.W. 43.

(3) A petition alleging that two railroad companies were negligent in that one sold plaintiff a ticket over its road, and negligently placed her on train of other defendant, and that plaintiff, through negligence of other defendant, was injured in boarding another train for purpose of returning to point from which she started, and as result of negligence of both defendants was delayed in reaching her destination, and thereby suffered certain injuries, did not allege joint acts of negligence, or show that defendants were joint tort-feasors, so as to confer jurisdiction over second defendant—Ryle v Central of Georgia Ry. Co., 119 S.E. 342, 30 Ga.App. 737.

(4) Petition for injuries by glass in street car door falling out when tapped by prospective passenger to attract conductor's attention containing no averments to indicate glass was defective, or not suitable for the purpose for which it was intended, or that defendant should have anticipated it would be used as plaintiff used it, is insufficient—Hudgins v. Georgia Power Co., 159 S.E. 723, 43 Ga.App. 627.

(5) To a petition alleging that defendant maintained a "sharp and dangerous curve," so that coach striking it at a dangerous rate of speed lurched and threw passenger from train, special demurrer on ground that description of curve was indefinite should have been sustained—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v Stacer, supra.

Where prima facie case is alleged, it is not necessary to allege in terms that the carrier was negligent—Lake Shore Electric R. Co. v Hobart, 13 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N.S., 592.

Two acts as concurrent causes

Petition for injury to passenger falling in alighting from street car was held to charge two acts of negligence, concurrent causes of injury, sudden starting, and stopping op-decisions to the contrary,[94] as a general rule, where plaintiff alleges the relation of carrier and passenger, it is sufficient to allege the negligence in general terms; that is, it is not necessary to state the details or particulars of the acts causing the injury, but it is sufficient to state in a general way that defendant was negligent as to the machinery or appliances used, or in failing to construct or maintain the track in a safe condition, or in the operation of the train, conveyance, or the like.[95] Such allegations are sufficient at least as against a general demurrer for want of sufficient facts,[96] posite hole.—Hoffman v. Dunham, Mo.App., 202 S.W. 429.

94. Del.—Riedel v. Wilmington City R. Co., 64 A. 257, 21 Del. 573.
10 C.J. p. 1002 note 22.

Necessity and sufficiency of allegations

(1) In personal injury action by street car passenger, thrown from seat when fire truck hit car, complaint generally alleging negligence, without allegations that motorman discovered, or should have discovered, approach of truck, did not state cause of action.—Moen v. Madison Rys. Co., 225 N.W. 821, 199 Wis. 168, followed in 225 N.W. 822, 199 Wis. 171.

(2) In action by street car passenger thrown from seat when fire truck hit car, complaint alleging on information and belief that motorman heard gong, since numerous occupants of car heard gong, charged motorman with knowledge of truck's approach.—Moen v. Madison Rys. Co., 243 N.W. 505, 208 Wis. 388—Moen v. Madison Rys. Co., 243 N.W. 503, 208 Wis. 381.

95. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Jones, 176 So. 203, 234 Ala. 590—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Courson, 174 So. 474, 234 Ala. 273—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Shelton, 163 So. 633, 231 Ala. 110—Alabama Power Co. v. Carroll, 94 So. 743, 208 Ala. 426—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So. 479, 198 Ala. 262—Tennessee, A. & G. Ry. Co. v. Rossell, 88 So. 362, 18 Ala.App. 17—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Johnson, 71 So. 620, 14 Ala.App. 553.
Ill.—Jensen v. East St. Louis Ry. Co., 202 Ill.App. 583.
Ind.—Curtis v. Mauger, 114 N.E. 408, 186 Ind. 118—Ft. Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction Co. v. Parish, 119 N.E. 488, 67 Ind.App. 597.
Mo.—Malone v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 213 S.W. 864, 202 Mo.App. 489.
Ohio.—Wehrenberg v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 2 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 271.
Or.—Coblentz v. Jaloff, 239 P. 825, 115 Or. 656.
R.I.—De Nicola v. United Electric Rys. Co., 182 A. 1, 55 R.I. 402.
10 C.J. p. 1002 note 23.

In collision cases

(1) A petition, alleging relation of passenger and carrier and injury of plaintiff in collision caused by negligence of defendant, in general terms, sufficiently alleges defendant's negligence, in view of presumption arising from fact of collision.—Hoover v. St. Louis Electric Terminal Ry. Co., Mo.App., 216 S.W. 984, reversed on other grounds, Sup., 227 S.W. 77.

(2) A petition in an action by passenger for injuries alleging that "plaintiff further says that said collision and the injuries she received hereinafter set out were caused by carelessness and negligence of the defendants . . their servants, agents, and employees operating said street car," contains a general charge of negligence, and not a specific charge.—Bergfeld v. Dunham, Mo.App., 228 S.W. 891.

(3) Allegation in passenger's action for injuries, sustained when street car collided with automobile, that defendant negligently, carelessly, and recklessly operated its street car so as to cause street car to strike automobile, is sufficient to raise issue of negligence as against contention that declaration was defective in failing to allege in what respect defendant was negligent.—De Nicola v. United Electric Rys. Co., 182 A. 1, 55 R.I. 402.

Matters peculiarly within defendant's knowledge

(1) The facts constituting the negligence resulting in collision being peculiarly within the knowledge of defendant railway company, plaintiff passenger was not bound to prove the particular acts of commission or omission on the part of the employees of defendant which caused the accident, and was not therefore required to allege the same in his petition.—Arnett v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 176 N.W. 322, 188 Iowa 540.

(2) In action by street car passenger for injuries from collision, general allegations of negligence are permitted, where plaintiff, not being familiar with instrumentalities employed by defendant, has no knowledge of specific character of negligent act causing injury, and doctrine of presumption of negligence will be applied.—Porter v. St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co., 277 S.W. 913, 311 Mo. 66.
10 C.J. p. 1002 note 23 [a].

As against demurrer

(1) In action against street railroad company by intending passenger for injuries received when struck by overhang of street car at curve, count of amended complaint alleging negligence in operation of street car as proximate cause of injuries to intending passenger while standing at customary and regular stopping place waiting to take passage on street car was not demurrable.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Jones, 176 So. 203, 234 Ala. 590.

(2) Whether extraordinary care for a passenger's safety required a street car motorman to get off and see that his car would not collide with a train before crossing railroad tracks was a question for the jury, and a petition alleging a failure to do so was not demurrable.—Rome Ry. & Light Co. v. Gaddis, 111 S.E. 67, 28 Ga.App. 213.

As against objection after judgment

A complaint in an action for personal injuries sustained when the motor stage in which deceased was riding collided with another automobile in the midst of a pool of oil on the highway, occasioned by the breaking of a nearby pipe line, which alleged that the driver "negligently and carelessly caused said stage to collide with the automobile," sufficiently alleges negligence as against an objection, after judgment, that no cause of action was stated.—Carnahan v. Motor Transit Co., 224 P. 143, 65 Cal.App. 402.

96. Ala.—Louisville & N.R. Co. v. Bowen, 103 So. 872, 212 Ala. 690.
Ohio.—Wehrenberg v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 2 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 271.
10 C.J. p. 1003 note 24.

Allegations as to safeguarding of passengers

(1) In an action for injuries against city operating street railroad, complaint alleging that city failed to adopt any other method of making stopping place reasonably safe or any safeguard for the protection of intending passengers, and failed to operate any system whereby intending passengers could signal street cars for the purpose of allowing them to board them, while perhaps subject to motion to make more specific and certain, was not bad as against demurrer.—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P. 583, 127 Wash. 664.

(2) Allegation in action for injuries against street railway company, charging negligence in failing to provide any means whatsoever for safeguarding prospective passengers, while doubtless subject to motion to make more specific and certain, was not bad as against demurrer.—Tobin v. City of Seattle, supra.

but not as against a motion to make more specific;[97] and it has been held that such general language as amounts to hardly more than a statement of a mere conclusion is good as against a general demurrer.[98] The general rule applies, although plaintiff has knowledge of the particular act of negligence which caused the injury.[99] However, a count consisting of general allegation, omitting the word "negligence," and not alleging any facts to show negligence is demurrable.[1] Although by statute plaintiff, in the case of railroads, need not show more than that the injury was caused by a running train, as to other carriers plaintiff must allege facts constituting negligence.[2] Even though an allegation of negligence in general terms would be insufficient, if the passenger's declaration alleges facts showing that the accident was not one which would ordinarily have occurred had reasonable care been exercised, the declaration will be regarded as sufficient.[3]

Where the complaint avers negligence generally and then charges particular acts as constituting negligence, the latter allegation supersedes the general allegation of negligence,[4] and, unless the facts so alleged in themselves constitute actionable negligence, the complaint is subject to a demurrer.[5] When the action is brought against a carrier and another, it is not improper for plaintiff to allege general negligence against the carrier and specific acts of negligence against codefendant.[6]

It has been held that a declaration for the wrongful death of a passenger which properly pleads the facts showing the relationship of passenger and carrier is not bad on demurrer because it may charge a higher degree of care than is owed by carrier to passenger in executing its contract of carriage, as all such matter is treated as surplusage.[7]

An allegation of negligence is not objectionable because the negligence did not occur at the time of the accident causing the passenger's injury, as it is the result of the negligence which is complained of.[8]

97. Wash.—Tobin v. City of Seattle, supra.
10 C.J. p 1003 note 25.

98. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co v. McCurdy, 55 So 616, 172 Ala. 488.

99. Tex.—San Antonio Tract Co. v. Williams, 78 S.W. 977, 34 Tex Civ. App. 372.

1. Ala.—Birmingham Ry, Light & Power Co. v. Garrett, 73 So. 818, 198 Ala. 445.

2. Ark.—Wade v. Brocato, 95 S.W. 2d 94, 192 Ark 826.

Bus passenger's complaint alleging that while riding in defendant's bus in seat back of driver a small stone was thrown through open window near driver's seat and struck passenger in eye as bus passed automobile traveling at high rate of speed on gravel road and alleging negligence only in bus driver's leaving particular window open is demurrable as not stating facts constituting negligence—Wade v. Brocato, 95 S.W 2d 94, 192 Ark. 826.

3. Va. — Houston v. Lynchburg Traction & Light Co., 89 S.E 114, 119 Va. 136.

4. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Wilcox, 61 So. 908, 181 Ala 512.
10 C.J p 1003 note 28

Allegations held general

(1) Allegation of failure to warn passenger of opening of car door at time of collision is no part of a general charge that door was negligently opened—Morris v. Union Depot Bridge & Terminal R. Co., 8 S. W.2d 11, 320 Mo. 371.

(2) Allegations that plaintiff passenger was injured by a cinder from a passing locomotive hitting his eye, due to defendant's negligence, etc., plead negligence generally, and not specifically—Malone v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, 213 S.W. 864, 202 Mo App. 489.

(3) In action for injuries sustained by passenger falling on pavement when street car moved as she was boarding it, an allegation regarding negligence, stating generally the act complained of and alleging that which of defendant's servants was negligent is a fact peculiarly within defendant's knowledge, is general—Zimmerman v. Kansas City Public Service Co, 41 S.W.2d 579, 226 Mo. App 369.

(4) In a passenger's action for injuries sustained in a derailment caused by a cow on the track, allegations that the derailment would not have happened except for the negligence of defendant and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury, but that the reason for the derailment and the particular acts of negligence were peculiarly within defendant's knowledge, and not within plaintiff's knowledge, is a general, rather than a particular, plea of negligence—Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Kappe, Tex Civ App, 235 S.W. 253, error refused.

Allegations held specific

(1) Allegation of negligence in failing to provide a safe and suitable conveyance for plaintiff, in a complaint in action against street railroad for injuries to passenger alleging that injuries resulted from act of carrier's servants.—Derrick v Columbia Ry., Gas & Electric Co, 137 S E 682, 139 S C 200.

(2) Petition alleging motorman negligently started street car with violent jerk, causing plaintiff to be thrown to floor, charges specific negligence, as it alleges the particular person who did the particular act—Dieterman v. Springfield Traction Co, Mo App, 26 S.W 2d 866.

As limiting negligence charged

Where it is alleged that plaintiff "was caused to slip and fall on the snow and slush lying on" defendant's station platform, the negligence charged by the complaint is only with respect to existence of snow and slush, and no defect in the platform was charged—Murphy v Hudson & M R. Co., 167 N Y S 895, 180 App Div. 585.

5. Fla.—Barnwell v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 74 So. 497, 73 Fla. 482
10 C J. p 1003 note 29.

Where facts show no duty

While general allegations as to duty and negligence, standing alone, may with other allegations state cause of action, yet, if other allegations of count state specific material facts showing no duty or negligence within meaning of general allegations, declaration may be had on demurrer—Barnwell v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 74 So. 497, 73 Fla. 482

6. Mo.—Story v. People's Motorbus Co of St. Louis, 37 S.W 2d 898, 327 Mo. 719—Hulen v Wheelock, 300 S.W 479, 318 Mo 502.

7. W Va.—Brogan v Union Tract Co, 86 S.E. 753, 76 W Va. 698.

8. Ala.—Alabama Power Co v Edwards, 121 So. 543, 219 Ala. 162.

Derailment; running off road. In case of injury to a passenger by reason of the derailment or wreck of a train or car, it is sufficient to allege that the derailment was caused by the negligence of defendant without specifying in what particular act the negligence consisted;[9] and the same rule has been applied in cases of a motor carrier whose automobile or bus leaves the highway and runs into a ditch, the situations being regarded as analogous,[10] although there is authority to the contrary in the case of a street railroad.[11] Since the fact of derailment raises a presumption of negligence, an allegation of the fact of derailment has been held sufficient without further allegation of negligence on defendant's part.[12]

Willfulness and wantonness. Where the action is for a willful and wanton injury, an allegation of simple negligence only is not sufficient, but facts showing willfulness, wantonness, or gross negligence on the part of defendant or its employees must be alleged,[13] and if the circumstances averred do not justify an inference of intentional wrong the pleading is insufficient as one for wantonness.[14]

d. Acts of Employees, Fellow Passengers, and Other Third Persons

One seeking to recover for the acts of employees of the carrier, or of copassengers, or other third persons, must allege all matters necessary to his particular cause of action.

An allegation of negligence of an employee is sufficient to charge the carrier with negligence,[15] and it is not necessary to allege that the employee was acting by the authority, and with the knowledge, of the carrier,[16] nor specifically to charge that the acts of the employee were within the scope of his employment, if that fact appears in a general way from the allegation that the employee was acting for the carrier in the matter of which negligence is alleged;[17] nor is it necessary to allege the names of the employees whose negligence caused the injury.[18] Thus, where the injury is caused by the operation of a train or car, it is usually sufficient to allege, in general terms, that the injury complained of was occasioned by the negligence of the servants or agents of the carrier in charge of the train or car;[19] but where the negligent act is apparently not one within the scope of the employee's employment, it must be alleged that he acted within the scope of his employment.[20] A complaint seeking recovery for injuries from defendant as a carrier need not allege that the injuries were not caused by an independent contractor operating defendant's vehicle.[21]

Agency may be sufficiently alleged by allegations of the particular acts and conduct of the alleged agent.[22]

In actions for injuries received by a passenger by reason of assaults, or other wrongful acts on the part of an employee or fellow passenger, or other person, which the employees of the carrier should have prevented, the allegation may properly be of negligence and misconduct on the part of the carrier with respect thereto;[23] and in case of an assault, or other acts, by a person other than an

9. Va.—Hines v. Beard, 107 S.E. 717, 130 Va. 286.
10 C.J. p. 1003 note 31.

10. Cal.—Leitert v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 229 P. 889, 68 Cal. App. 504—Lawrence v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 229 P. 885, 68 Cal. App. 494.

11. Del.—Redding v. Wilmington & Philadelphia Traction Co., 108 A. 739, 7 Boyce 518.

12. Ariz.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Hogan, 108 P. 240, 13 Ariz. 34, 29 L.R.A.,N.S., 813.
10 C.J. p. 1004 note 32.

13. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Mathis, 71 So. 674, 196 Ala. 32.
10 C.J. p. 1004 note 33.

14. Ala.—Western Ry. of Alabama v. Turrentine, 73 So. 40, 197 Ala. 603.

15. Ind.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Hawkins, 115 N.E. 613, 66 Ind.App. 312.

16. Ky.—Shelton Taxi Co. v. Bowling, 51 S.W.2d 468, 244 Ky. 817.

17. Ala.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Davis, 137 So. 525, 223 Ala. 600.
10 C.J. p. 1004 note 34.

18. Ga.—Haynie v. Central of Georgia Ry. Co., 93 S.E. 258, 20 Ga. App. 599.
10 C.J. p. 1004 note 35

Where train is identified

A petition of passenger injured when boarding train is not subject to special demurrer because failing to name company's agents in charge of train, train itself being identified by number and further description—Haynie v. Central of Georgia Ry. Co., 93 S.E. 258, 20 Ga.App. 599.

19. Tex.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Boyd, Civ.App., 141 S.W. 1076.
10 C.J. p. 1004 note 36.

In order to allege specific negligence, as to a street car passenger, there must not only be an averment as to the particular servants whose negligence is complained of, but it must also be pointed out wherein they or either of them have been negligent.—Bergfeld v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 227 S.W. 106, 285 Mo. 654.

20. Ala.—Alabama Great Western R. Co. v. Pouncey, 61 So. 601, 7 Ala.App. 548
10 C.J. p. 1005 note 37.

21. Ala.—Dixie Stage Lines v. Anderson, 134 So. 23, 222 Ala. 673.

22. Ga.—Ryle v. Central of Georgia Ry. Co., 119 S.E. 342, 30 Ga.App. 737.

23. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Moore, 42 So. 1024, 148 Ala. 115.
10 C.J. p. 1005 note 38.

Complaints held sufficient

(1) A complaint alleging brakeman could have prevented third person from assaulting plaintiff stated cause of action.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Retz, 125 N.E. 424, 71 Ind.App. 581.

(2) Complaint alleging railroad conductor saw passenger wrestling with robber for possession of revolver, but negligently failed to prevent robber from injuring passenger, having power to do so, is not demurrable.—Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Co., 170 N.

employee, it should be alleged that the carrier knew, or from the attendant circumstances should have known, of the threatened injury in time to prevent it,[24] and a complaint which fails to show that the injury might have been prevented by the exercise of reasonable care, and that defendant and its servants failed to exercise such care, is insufficient.[25] In such an action, an allegation that the carrier owed plaintiff a high degree of care is not bad as requiring too high a degree of duty.[26] In a passenger's action for assault by one permitted on a train under contract between the carrier and another while acting in the course of, and within the scope of, his business, no allegation of negligence is necessary, the question being liability for the tort of an agent.[27] A petition which clearly states an action against a carrier for assault and battery by its employees in beating, ejecting, and imprisoning a passenger, is not subject to demurrer, because it is insufficient to state a cause of action for malicious prosecution or false imprisonment.[28] Where a petition alleging indecent assault shows that plaintiff was in fact a passenger of a carrier other than the one the acts of whose servants are complained of, it is bad on demurrer.[29] In a petition for assault by a servant of the carrier, an allegation that plaintiff intended to pay his fare is surplusage.[30] One seeking damages because of mortification resulting from the acts of a fellow passenger must allege that the mortification complained of came about through the acts or omissions of the carrier's servants.[31]

Willful or wanton acts. Under the doctrine that a carrier is liable for the willful acts or torts of its agents committed within the general scope of their employment as well as for acts of negligence, in a complaint which shows that plaintiff was a passenger on a train, it is sufficient to charge such willful acts or torts by averring generally that they were committed by the employees of defendant within the scope of their employment, or the line of their duty;[32] and it has been held that it is not necessary to allege the authority of the employee, or that he was acting within the scope of his employment.[33] It is sufficient if the allegations of the petition, if true, would authorize a jury to find willful injury,[34] but if wantonness or willfulness is alleged generally, and the facts on which such charge is predicated are then set out, such facts must in themselves show wantonness or willfulness[35] An allegation which, if true, shows conduct which amounts to a wanton disregard of the right and duty owed to a passenger and which was so gross

E 341, 91 Ind App. 690, rehearing denied 172 N E 659, 91 Ind App. 690.

Complaint held insufficient

Complaint, which alleged that passenger on train was struck without provocation by intoxicated person aboard train—Craig v. New York Cent. R. Co., 287 N Y S. 407, 248 App Div. 557, affirmed 5 N E 2d 356, 272 N Y 610.

24. Ga.—Powell v. Beasley, 194 S E 926, 57 Ga App. 231.
10 C J. p 1005 note 39.

Assault by passenger

A complaint charging that, while plaintiff was a passenger on defendant's train, a negro woman cursed and abused her, to her injury, and averring the injury was proximately caused by gross and wanton negligence of defendant's servants, acting within the scope of their duty as such, was subject to demurrer for failure to aver knowledge.—Hines v. Miniard, 94 So. 302, 208 Ala. 176

Robbery

A petition alleging that a passenger was robbed while standing in the crowded aisle of a passenger coach, but not charging that any employees of the company or anyone connected with it aided or participated in the robbery, nor showing the facts under which it occurred, is not sufficient to authorize recovery against the carrier for the property lost by the robbery.—Hatfield v. Payne, 242 S W. 32, 195 Ky 310.

25. Ind.—Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Co v. Scott, 150 N E 777, 197 Ind. 587, 43 A. L.R 1029.

26. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Driver, 166 So. 701, 232 Ala. 36

27. S D.—Blankenbaker v Chicago, M & St. P. Ry Co, 168 N W. 744, 40 S D. 588, 10 A L.R. 720.

28. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co v Mason, 251 S W 184, 199 Ky 337

29. Ky.—Manatis v. Cumberland & M R. Co, 300 S.W. 593, 222 Ky 190.

30. Mo.—State ex rel. United Rys Co of St. Louis v. Allen, 240 S W. 117.

31. Ga.—Hames v. Old South Lines, 183 S E 503, 52 Ga.App. 420.

32. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co v. Mann, 147 So 165, 226 Ala 379
Ohio.—Siegel v. Cleveland Electric Ry. Co, 17 Ohio Cir Ct ,N.S, 18.
10 C.J. p 1005 note 40.

Sufficient allegation of willfulness

(1) A complaint, charging conductor with "gross and wanton negligence," imputes to him a willingness to inflict injury, or a willfulness in pursuing a course of conduct which would naturally or probably result in injury, or an attempt to perpetrate wrong.—Hines v Miniard, 86 So. 23, 204 Ala. 514, 12 A.L.R. 238.

(2) A count, alleging that the carrier's "servants, agents or employees, acting within the line and scope of their employment as such agents, servants or employees at said time and place, wantonly injured plaintiff on said date and occasion by wantonly causing the plaintiff to be caught in the doors and wantonly injuring and damaging her, etc," is good as against demurrer, on the ground that the facts did not constitute wantonness as matter of law; that it purports to set out quo modo of wantonness, whereas facts did not constitute wantonness, that it does not appear with sufficient certainty that defendant's servants, acting within employment, wantonly injured passenger, and that it does not appear that defendant's employees acting within employment, wantonly caused passenger to fall with knowledge that passenger would likely sustain injuries, or with reckless disregard of consequences.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Mann, 147 So. 165, 226 Ala 379.

33. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co v Mason, 34 So. 207, 137 Ala. 342
10 C J p 1005 note 41.

34. Ga.—Forster v. Southern Ry Co, 146 S E 516, 39 Ga App 216.

35. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co y. Guess, 131 So. 883, 222 Ala 280

as to show a wanton disregard of the consequences on the part of the employee is sufficient as against a general demurrer [36]

In some jurisdictions, in order that punitive damages may be recovered for such acts, it must be alleged that such acts were either participated in, authorized, or ratified by defendant.[37]

e. Place and Time

The place and time of the accident or injury should be properly alleged.

The complaint, declaration, or petition should state as definitely as possible the place where,[38] and the time when,[39] the injury occurred, although it has been held that it is not necessary to specify the time of the injury.[40] However, it is not necessary to allege specifically that the place at which the injury occurred was between the points of plaintiff's departure and destination.[41]

f. Passengers Boarding or Alighting

All matters necessary and proper to show the negligence and liability of a carrier for injuries received when attempting to board or alight from a car or train must be alleged.

In an action for injuries received while attempting to board or alight from a train or car, it should be alleged that the train or car was at a station provided for passengers, or at a place where it was usual or customary to receive or discharge passengers,[42] or that plaintiff was invited or knowingly permitted, by an authorized employee of the company, to make the attempt at the place where it was made,[43] and matters sufficient to charge the carrier with notice of plaintiff's intention to board the car or train should be alleged.[44]

At unsafe place. A complaint for injuries received while alighting at an unsafe place should allege the facts which show defendant's duty to provide a safe place and means for alighting, and its failure so to do, and the resulting injury,[45] although it need not allege what constitutes a safe place,[46] or give a minute description of the place where the stop was made and the injuries occurred.[47] It should charge in terms that the stop was at a place not reasonably safe or convenient, or state facts from which such a conclusion follows as a matter of law.[48] As a carrier having provided proper facilities for boarding or leaving a con-

38. Ga.—Tennessee Coach Co. v Snelling, 180 S.E. 741, 51 Ga App 432.

37. U S—Norfolk & P. Tract Co. v. Miller, Va., 174 F 607, 98 C.C.A. 453.

38. Ark—St Louis, etc., R. Co v Wright, 150 S.W. 706, 105 Ark 269
10 C J. p 1006 note 43

39. Ark—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Wright, supra
10 C J. p 1006 note 44.

40. Ind—Wabash R Co. v. Savage, 9 N.E. 85, 110 Ind 156.

41. Tex—International, etc., R Co v. Underwood, 4 S W. 216, 67 Tex. 589

42. Ind—Terre Haute Tract., etc., Co. v. Payne, 89 N E. 413, 45 Ind. App. 132
10 C.J p 1006 note 47.

43. Ind—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v Wood, 14 N.E 572, 16 N E 197, 113 Ind. 544
10 C.J p 1006 note 48.

Allegations held sufficient

In an action for injuries sustained by a passenger when alighting from a train, where acts were sufficiently alleged to show that the brakeman was on the train as such, that as brakeman and as the employee and servant of the railroad he invited and permitted the passenger to alight at a dangerous place for discharging passengers not provided by the railroad for the discharge thereof, states a cause of action as against the contention that there was no allegation that the brakeman was acting within the scope of his authority—Fort Worth & D. C Ry. Co. v. Lovett, Tex. Civ.App., 243 S W. 519.

44. Conn—Tardieu v. Connecticut Co., 154 A. 173, 113 Conn. 94
Ga—Norton v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 110 S E. 459, 28 Ga App. 167.

45. Ala—Mobile Light & R. Co v. Therrell, 88 So 677, 679, 205 Ala. 553, citing Corpus Juris with approval.
10 C J p 1006 note 49.

Allegations held sufficient

(1) Petition in an action for injury to a passenger while alighting from a train at destination, alleged to have been due to the stopping of the train in an unsafe position, states a cause of action under Neb Rev.St 1913 § 6052, making railroads liable for all injuries to passengers, except where arising from criminal negligence of the passenger or violation of express rules—Jones v. Chicago, R. I. & P Ry. Co., C C A.Neb., 260 F. 929.

(2) Counts charging negligence in not maintaining a suitable means for plaintiff to alight with safety at station, and alleging its duty to do so and its negligence, are sufficient against demurrer.—Atlantic Coast Line R Co. v. Farmer, 79 So. 35, 201 Ala 603.
10 C J. p 1006 note 49 [a].

Allegations held insufficient

(1) In a passenger's action for injuries, an allegation that the place where defendant's car stopped to permit plaintiff to alight was dangerous for a person walking on crutches was not a sufficient allegation of lack of safety or inconvenience, where it did not allege that plaintiff was walking on crutches—Mobile Light & R. Co v. Therrell, 88 So 677, 205 Ala. 553

(2) In a passenger's action for injuries, an allegation that the place where defendant stopped its car for plaintiff to alight was dangerous for a person walking on crutches was a negation of danger for persons normally conditioned and not walking on crutches.—Mobile Light & R. Co. v Therrell, supra.

Complaint showing violation of statute regulating construction

Complaint alleging place where car stopped for passengers to alight was unsafe, which alleges facts showing a violation of Burns St Annot 1914 § 5634, requiring street railway tracks to be laid at the same grade as the streets, as against contention that complaint did not show existence of duty on defendant's part to protect passenger from danger.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v Haney, 132 N. E. 260, 78 Ind App. 624.

46. Ala—Montgomery St. R. Co v. Mason, 32 So. 261, 133 Ala. 508.

47. Va—Richmond City R Co. v. Scott, 11 S E 404, 86 Va. 902
10 C J. p 1007 note 51.

48. Ala.—Mobile Light & R Co. v. Therrell, 88 So 677, 205 Ala 553.

veyance is ordinarily under no duty to render manual assistance, a count based on an employee's failure or refusal to render such assistance must allege facts showing that the duty to do so was present.[49]

Sudden starting or jerking. A complaint for injuries from a sudden starting or jerking of a train or car is generally sufficient where, after alleging that the train or car had stopped, or slowed down to a rate of speed safe for plaintiff to board or alight, at a proper stopping place,[50] it alleges in general terms that while plaintiff was in the act of boarding or alighting from the car or train it was suddenly caused to start or jerk, or increase its speed, through the negligence of defendant or its employees in the operation of the car or train, thereby causing plaintiff's injury,[51] although it does not allege that the car had come to a stop when he made the attempt to board or alight, where the facts alleged imply notice to the carmen of his position,[52] nor that it had not been stopped for a reasonable time.[53] Since every jerk or jar of a train or car does not amount to negligence, allegations that, as plaintiff was boarding or alighting, the car was started or jerked, or the speed suddenly increased, as a proximate consequence of which plaintiff was injured, are insufficient as allegations of negligence,[54] unless they also allege that the jerk was extraordinary, or more than a usual and inevitable accident,[55] especially where the passenger was safely on the car and was not injured while attempting to board or leave it,[56] or unless they conclude with the averment that plaintiff's injuries were proximately caused by the negligent manner in which defendant operated the car.[57] However, where nothing more than that the carrier was guilty of negligence need be alleged and proved, it is not required of plaintiff that he allege the jerk was unnecessary.[58] It has been held necessary to allege 49. Ala.—Atlantic Coast Line R Co. v. Farmer, 79 So. 35, 201 Ala 603.

Allegation sufficient

A count of the complaint, alleging that defendant's servants knew of the irregularity, etc., of the ground at the place where passenger was required to alight, that he was crippled and walked with crutches, and that although it was dangerous for him to leave the car without assistance, they did not assist him, sufficiently charges wanton negligence—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Therrell, 88 So. 677, 205 Ala. 553

Allegations held insufficient

Counts based on conductor's failure or refusal to assist passenger in alighting when, on account of conditions at car step, she could not alight without peril, not alleging any want of facilities for leaving the car in some other way.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co v. Farmer, 79 So. 35, 201 Ala. 603.

50. Colo.—Fox v. Denver City Tramway Co., 143 P. 278, 57 Colo. 511.
10 C.J. p 1007 note 52.

51. Cal.—Murray v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 193 P. 596, 49 Cal App. 462.
Fla.—Atlanta & St. A. B. Ry. Co. v. Kelly, 82 So. 57, 77 Fla. 479.
Ind.—Doyle v. Union Traction Co., 152 N.E. 877, 85 Ind App. 62—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Friend, 118 N.E 598, 70 Ind. App. 366.
Mo.—Lammert v. Wells, App., 282 S. W. 487.
Okl.—Oklahoma Union Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 231 P 1062, 105 Okl. 152
Or.—Rostad v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 201 P. 184, 101 Or 569.
10 C J. p 1007 note 53.

Allegations showing cause for attempt to board moving train

In action for injuries to passenger while boarding a moving train, petition showing injury through act of railroad in starting train without warning prior to time told passenger on alighting, thereby knowingly creating a situation which would naturally induce passenger to attempt to board train, and suddenly jerking train while passenger was so doing, states a cause of action—Redfield v. New York Cent. R. Co., C.C.A.Mo, 83 F.2d 62

Sufficiency after judgment

Complaint, alleging that plaintiff's wife was a passenger on one of defendant railroad's trains, and that while the train was standing at a station to allow passengers to leave it, and while the wife was doing so, the train was suddenly started to her injury, was sufficient to sustain judgment for plaintiff when liberally construed on appeal, in the absence of appropriate and specific grounds of demurrer.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Williams, 84 So. 633, 17 Ala. App. 259.

52. Ind.—Indianapolis, etc., Rapid Transit Co. v. Walsh, 90 N.E 138, 45 Ind App. 42.
10 C.J. p 1007 note 54.

53. Ind.—Public Utilities Co. v. Whitehead, 134 N.E. 894, 78 Ind. App. 85.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R Co. v. Campbell, 35 S.W.2d 26, 237 Ky. 182.

54. Ga.—Rome R., etc., Co. v. Keel, 60 S.E. 468, 3 Ga App. 769.
10 C J. p 1008 note 56.

55. Mo.—Saxton v Missouri Pac. R Co., 72 S.W. 717, 98 Mo.App. 494.

56. Mo.—Laycock v. United Rys Co of St. Louis, 235 S.W. 91, 290 Mo. 344, answering certified questions, App., 227 S.W 883.

Allegations held sufficient

In a street car passenger's action for injuries, a petition alleging that the car moved with a sudden and unexpected jerk, pulling the car forward with such force as to throw some one in the inside of the car against the door, breaking the glass, and causing it to strike plaintiff in the eyes and face, sufficiently alleged that the jerk was an extraordinary and unusual movement of the car—Laycock v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 235 S.W. 91, 290 Mo. 344, answering certified questions, App., 227 S.W. 883.

57. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Gonzalez, 61 So 80, 183 Ala. 273, Ann Cas 1916A 543.

Cause of action held stated

A petition, alleging that plaintiff boarded defendant's pay-as-you-enter car at a transfer station, where it stopped to take on passengers, and that, while on the platform looking in her purse for her fare, the car started with a sudden jerk, throwing another passenger against her and throwing her against an iron bar, setting out the particulars of her injuries, denying her own negligence, and alleging the injury to have been the proximate result of defendant's negligence in starting the car without warning, set out a cause of action—Columbus R. Co v. Joyce, 104 S.E. 21, 25 Ga App. 652.

58. Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v. Mart, 65 S.W.2d 39, 188 Ark. 202.

that it was the duty of the employee of the carrier to look out for the safety of plaintiff injured by an unexpected movement of the car while alighting therefrom.[59]

An allegation that the train started before plaintiff had a reasonable time to board or alight safely is a sufficient averment that the train was not stopped for a sufficient length of time to enable plaintiff, using due diligence, to board or alight in safety.[60]

It is not necessary to allege that plaintiff was in danger, and that this fact was known to defendant, if the circumstances under which the injuries were received, and from which this conclusion might be drawn, are alleged in detail.[61]

A complaint alleging wanton negligence against defendant's employees or some of them in suddenly starting a street car, knowing that plaintiff was disembarking, is insufficient in not averring that all of the employees knew of plaintiff's position, or that those who started the car knew of it.[62]

Crowded car. An allegation that defendant, a street car company, carelessly and negligently permitted its cars, exits, and running board to be greatly crowded with passengers, whereby plaintiff while attempting to alight was thrown and injured, states a cause of action.[63]

g. Matters of Defense; Contributory Negligence

Defenses need not be negatived. In general, freedom from contributory negligence need not be pleaded by the passenger.

Matters of defense ordinarily need not be anticipated and denied in the declaration, complaint, or petition.[64]

Contributory negligence. In some states it is necessary in the petition or complaint expressly to negative any fault or contributory negligence on the part of plaintiff.[65] In most of the states, however, it is held sufficient so to allege the facts as to indicate that the injury was the result of the fault or negligence of defendant, without expressly averring plaintiff's freedom from contribution thereto, which is regarded as a matter of defense,[66] unless the other averments necessary to state a cause of action suggest the inference that plaintiff may have been guilty of contributory negligence;[67] but even in jurisdictions in which contributory negligence need not be negatived, the complaint, declaration, or petition is insufficient on demurrer if the allegations thereof show that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence proximately causing his injury,[68] although it has been held that the complaint is not demurrable if the facts stated do not conclusively show contributory negligence.[69]

h. Proximate Cause

The facts alleged must show that the negligence

59. La.—Mills v. St. Tammany & New Orleans Ry. & Ferry Co., 71 So. 511, 139 La. 285.

60. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Jung, 49 So. 434, 161 Ala. 461, 18 Ann Cas. 557
10 C.J. p 1008 note 59.

61. Ga.—Coleman v. Georgia R., etc., Co., 10 S.E. 498, 84 Ga. 1.
10 C.J. p 1008 note 60.

62. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Bennett, 39 So. 565, 144 Ala. 369.
10 C.J. p 1008 note 61.

63. Ga.—Worthington v. Georgia R., etc., Co., 62 S.E. 525, 131 Ga. 450.
N.J.—Dunham v. Public Service Corp., 69 A. 1012, 76 N.J.Law 452

64. Ala.—Culberson v. Empire Coal Co., 47 So. 237, 156 Ala. 416.
10 C.J. p 1008 note 63.

65. Iowa.—Burger v. Omaha, etc., St. R. Co., 117 N.W. 35, 139 Iowa 645, 130 Am.S.R. 343.
10 C.J. p 1008 note 64.
Pleading of contributory negligence of person injured generally see infra § 799.

66. Ill.—Panor v. Northwestern Elevated R. Co., 228 Ill.App. 162.
Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Friend, 118 N.E. 598, 70 Ind. App. 366.
10 C.J. p 1008 note 65, p 1009 note 67.

67. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitaker, 300 S.W. 912, 222 Ky. 302.
10 C.J. p 1009 note 66.

Petition held sufficient

Petition, in action for personal injuries, averring that plaintiff stepped partly on the track to signal defendant's interurban car to stop, and, on receiving what she understood was the usual response that it would stop, was struck and injured while getting away from the track by the car passing by at a great speed, does not show on its face that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence.—Texas Electric Ry. v. Hooks, Tex.Civ.App., 211 S.W. 654, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

Petition held demurrable

Where plaintiff was injured in attempting to get off a moving train, his petition not alleging that train was not traveling so fast as to make danger of alighting therefrom apparent, and that plaintiff believed he could alight safely, is demurrable.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitaker, 300 S.W. 912, 222 Ky. 302.

68. Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Boys, 123 N.E. 482, 71 Ind.App. 102.
Ohio.—Wehrenberg v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 2 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 271.
10 C.J. p 1009 note 68

69. Ga.—Leslie v. Georgia Power Co., 171 S.E. 395, 47 Ga.App. 723.—Watts v. Colonial Stages Co., 163 S.E. 523, 45 Ga.App. 115.
Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Friend, 118 N.E. 598, 70 Ind.App. 366.—Ft. Wayne & N. I. Traction Co. v. Kumb, 116 N.E. 309, 64 Ind.App. 529.
10 C.J. p 1009 note 69.

Complaint not demurrable

A declaration alleging that defendant carrier, on a dark night, after announcing that the next stop of the train would be at plaintiff's destination, stopped the train on a trestle before reaching such destination, with the car doors open, thus misleading plaintiff into believing that his station had been reached, as a result of which plaintiff alighted and fell from the trestle, was not demurrable as showing contributory negor wrongful act of the carrier or its employees was the proximate cause of the injury.

The declaration, complaint, or petition must allege facts which make it appear that the injury complained of was the proximate result of the alleged negligence or wrongful act on the part of the carrier or its employees.[70] It is not necessary formally to charge that such was the fact,[71] it is sufficient that the facts alleged lead, with reasonable certainty, to the conclusion that the injury proximately resulted from the negligence charged.[72]

Where the petition shows that the proximate cause of the injury to a passenger having safely alighted from a conveyance was the negligence of some third person, the petition is bad on demurrer.[73]

Where several acts of negligence are charged, it need not be alleged which act was the direct or sole cause of the injury, and, where all of them together might have caused it, it may be alleged that each of them contributed to the injury.[74]

Mental suffering. In those jurisdictions in which there can be no recovery for mental suffering unaccompanied by physical injury, a complaint which fails to show that plaintiff's mental suffering was connected with physical injury to him proximately resulting from defendant's negligence does not state a cause of action, where mental suffering is the only damage claimed.[75]

i. Amendment

As in other civil actions the passenger may, in a proper case, amend his declaration, complaint, or petition so long as no new cause of action is introduced.

In actions by passengers against carriers, as in other cases, amendments of the declaration, complaint, or petition may be made which do not introduce new causes of action,[76] and in a proper case ligence.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Norton, 78 So. 982, 75 Fla. 597.

70. Ill.—See McConnell v. Chicago Rys. Co., 199 Ill.App. 490
Mo.—Crone v. United Rys Co. of St Louis, 236 S.W. 654—Curry v. St Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, 296 S.W. 473, 221 Mo App. 1.
Pa.—Scharf v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 10 Pa Dist. & Co. 207.
10 C J. p 1010 note 70.

Allegations held sufficient

Complaint in action by passenger struck by automobile while alighting was sufficient to show proximate cause of injury was combined negligence of railroad and automobilist.—Ft. Wayne & N. I. Traction Co. v. Kumb, 116 N.E. 309, 64 Ind.App. 529.

Complaint held insufficient

Count alleging street railroad failed to sound gong at crossing as required by ordinance was defective in not averring that automobile which was knocked against the prospective passenger was struck by car at street crossing.—Alabama Power Co. v. Bass, 119 So. 625, 218 Ala. 586, 63 A.L.R. 1.

71. Ind.—Hammond, etc, Electric R. Co. v. Antonia, 83 N E. 766, 41 Ind. App. 335.

72. Cal—Rystinki v. Central California Traction Co., 165 P. 952, 175 Cal. 336.
10 C.J. p 1010 note 72.

Allegations held sufficient to allege proximate cause.

U.S.—Pennsylvania Co. v. Clark, C. C.A Ohio, 266 F. 182.
Ala.—Alabama Power Co. v. Bass, 119 So. 625, 218 Ala. 586, 63 A.L R. 1.
Cal—Lawrence v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 229 P. 885, 68 Cal.App. 494.
Ga—Rome Ry. & Light Co v. King, 117 S.E. 464, 30 Ga App. 231.
Ill—Paris v. East St. Louis Ry. Co, 275 Ill App 241.
Ind—Pittsburgh, C, C. & St. L. Ry Co v. Friend, 118 N E. 598, 70 Ind App. 366
N Y.—Broder v New York Consol R. Co, 162 N Y.S. 1002, 98 Misc. 256.
Okl—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Bell, 273 P. 243, 134 Okl. 251.
Tex—Interstate Casualty Co. of Birmingham v. Hogan, Civ.App, 232 S.W. 354.

73. Ga—Martin v. Georgia Power Co, 165 S E. 880, 45 Ga App. 799.

74. Mo.—Parker v. United R. Co, 133 S.W. 137, 154 Mo.App. 126.

Allegation showing concurrent negligence

Allegation that motorman saw express wagon in time to have avoided collision did not show street railroad's negligence was sole proximate cause of collision, rendering verdict for passenger against express company error.—Kloss v. Minneapolis St Ry. Co, 219 N.W. 179, 174 Minn. 294.

75. Ind.—Cleveland, etc., R Co. v Stewart, 56 N E. 917, 24 Ind App. 374.

76. Ala—Gaines v. Birmingham Ry, Light & Power Co, 51 So. 238, 164 Ala. 6—Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co. v. Jung, 49 So. 434, 161 Ala 461, 18 Ann Cas. 557.
Ga.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Clay, 61 S E 226, 130 Ga. 563.
Mo—Hayward v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App., 1 S.W.2d 252.
10 C J. p 1011 note 82.

Amendments held permissible

(1) In an action by a passenger against a street railway company for personal injuries sustained while alighting from a car, plaintiff may at the trial two years after the accident amend his statement by changing averment that there was no stop of the car at all to an averment that there was an insufficient stop, such amendment not being a change of the cause of action but only a restatement in a different form which did the appellant no injury—Schmelzer v. Chester Traction Co, 66 A. 1005, 218 Pa. 29.

(2) Where a petition alleged that on approaching the station the train slowed up, and plaintiff prepared to step off, and on alighting the speed was increased and he was injured thereby, an amendment that defendant was negligent in that the train did not stop a sufficient length of time was improperly refused, where such amendment merely amplified the allegations of the petition, did not affect the substance of the case as originally alleged, nor alter its nature in any respect, and was timely—Evans v. Southern Ry. Co., 77 S E. 197, 12 Ga App. 319.

(3) An amendment of the petition by adding the quoted part so as to make it allege that, while plaintiff was on defendant's street car as a passenger the car jumped the track "by reason of the carelessness and negligence of the defendant, its agents, servants and employés," and plaintiff was thereupon thrown violently from her seat and seriously injured, did not constitute a departure.—Patterson v. Springfield Traction Co, 163 S.W. 955, 178 Mo.App. 250.

(4) Where the petition suggests a breach of the obligation which the carrier owes a passenger, it may be amended to conform to the proof, showing that the servants of defend-amendments are necessary and should be made where allegations material to the cause of action have been omitted.[77] A declaration in tort, however, cannot be so amended as to convert it into an action on the contract of carriage.[78]

§ 762. Plea or Answer

General rules of pleading apply with respect to pleas and answers in actions against carriers of passengers for personal injuries.

The plea or answer in an action against a carrier by a passenger for personal injuries is governed by the general rules relating to such pleadings in civil cases generally, and it must allege everything necessary to a proper statement of the defense.[79] Thus, the plea or answer should allege facts setting up a complete defense to the allegations in the declaration or complaint.[80] Matters of defense, as to which there is no allegation in the complaint, must be set up by special plea, such as an agreement of the passenger to assume the risk,[81] and in order to entitle the carrier to make the defense that it has adopted and promulgated rules and regulations which the passenger has violated, it must plead such rules and allege the facts which constitute the defense.[82] An answer alleging that the injury was due solely and alone to the negligence of a third party presents an affirmative defense in so far as it brings into the case new matter not raised by the complaint.[83] Where defendant pleads specially matters which are covered by the general issue, its plea is bad as amounting to the general issue.[84] In actions ex delicto against the carrier for injury to a passenger, the general issue is "not guilty."[85]

Waiver of defenses. Defenses not made in the plea or answer are generally regarded as waived.[86]

Admissions. An answer admitting that defendant is a railroad or a street railroad corporation admits its character as a common carrier of passengers.[87] A plea of the general issue admits possession and control of the car and appliances described in the declaration,[88] and the capacity in which defendant is sued,[89] and also admits the character in which plaintiff brings his action as set out in the complaint.[90]

§ 763. Issues, Proof, and Variance

a. Issues
b. Matters to be proved
c. Evidence admissible under pleadings
d. Variance

a. Issues

As in civil actions generally, only such matters as are properly put in issue by the pleadings and proof will be considered in actions against carriers for personal injuries.

In an action by a passenger against a carrier for personal injuries, as in other civil actions, such matters, and such only, will be considered on the trial as are properly put in issue by the pleadings and proof in the case.[91] Thus, only such theory of ant wrongfully assaulted plaintiff who was not a passenger.—McDonald v. St. Louis & S. F. R Co, 146 S W. 83, 165 Mo App 75.

Charging negligence generally

A count, added by way of amendment to a complaint for personal injuries, which alleges negligence of defendant generally in the transportation of plaintiff as a passenger, referring to the same accident and injuries as set forth in an original count, but without setting out the particulars of the accident, does not constitute a new cause of action—Gaines v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co, 51 So. 238 164 Ala. 6—10 C.J p 1011 note 82 [b].

77. Ala.—Montgomery Tract. Co v. Fitzpatrick, 43 So. 136, 149 Ala. 511 9 L R A,N S., 851.
10 C.J. p 1011 note 83

78. Ga.—Cox v. Richmond, etc, R. Co, 13 S E. 827, 87 Ga. 747.

79. Ala.—Western R Co. v. McGraw, 62 So 772, 183 Ala. 220
10 C J p 1011 note 86

80. Ala.—Lawrence v Kaul Lumber Co, 55 So 111, 171 Ala 300.
10 C J. p 1011 note 87.

Allegation of unnecessary matters

Where a complaint charged that child had been injured while attempting to board street car on August 25, 1929, and answer denied child had attempted to board car on that date, further allegation in answer that she had attempted to board car on May 27, 1929, and at that time had caught hand in door, although perhaps unnecessary, constituted no error, since defendant was entitled to prove occurrence.—Curtis v. Dallas Ry & Terminal Co., Tex.Civ.App, 73 S W 2d 964, error dismissed.

81. Ind.—Pittsburgh, etc, R Co v Higgs, 76 N E 299, 165 Ind 694, 4 L.R A.,N.S., 1081.
10 C J p 1011 notes 88, 89.

82. Okl.—Lane v. Choctaw, etc., R Co, 91 P. 883, 19 Okl 324.

83. Cal.—Crosby v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 264 P. 346, 88 Cal App 799—Schropshire v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 258 P 1107, 85 Cal.App 216.

84. Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R Co. v Crosby, 43 So. 318, 53 Fla. 400
10 C.J p 1012 note 91.

85. Pa.—McCall v. Forsyth, 4 Watts & S. 179.

86. Tex.—St Louis Southwestern R. Co v Parks, 90 S W. 343, 40 Tex. Civ.App 480.
10 C.J. p 1012 note 92.

87. Mo.—Burbridge v Kansas City Cable R. Co., 36 Mo App. 669.

88. Ill.—Kloepher v. Osborne, 177 Ill.App 384.

89. Ill.—Kloepher v Osborne, supra.

90. Ala.—Birmingham R, etc, Co v. Moore, 43 So. 841, 151 Ala. 327.

91. D C.—Mellon v. Seymoure, 12 F. 2d 836, 56 App D C 301.
Iowa.—Kelly v Muscatine B. & S R Co., 191 N W. 525, 195 Iowa 17
Mass.—Latus v Boston Elevated Ry Co, 158 N.E 668, 261 Mass. 233—Bilodeau v Fitchburg & L. St Ry. Co, 128 N.E 872, 236 Mass 526
10 C J. p 1012 note 99.

Excessive speed

An allegation that motorman negligently used power, mechanism, and controls, so that instead of street car gradually coming to stop before collision, it continued on with great force and speed, does not charge negligence in operating car at excessive speed.—Dallas Ry & Terminal Co. v. Wells, Tex.Civ.App, 60 S W.2d 485, error refused.

the case or such matters of negligence as are properly put in issue by the pleadings and proof can be relied on by plaintiff as grounds for a recovery; he cannot charge one kind of negligence or wrong and recover for negligence or wrong of a different character;[92] and the same rule applies to matters which can be relied on by defendant as grounds of defense.[93] The theory on which a complaint against a carrier proceeds must be gathered from the general scope of the pleading and not from detached allegations,[94] or from facts subsequently disclosed by the evidence;[95] and statements of facts merely as inducement or as steps leading up to the injury counted on will not, for the purpose of restricting plaintiff's measure of damages, be construed as the statement of the cause of action on which a recovery is sought.[96] The gist of such an action for personal injuries received by a passenger is generally simple negligence,[97] and recovery cannot be had on a count for negligence on proof of

Issue of failure to discover danger

Railroad must use same care to discover throwing of cut-over switch as to refrain from throwing switch necessitating emergency stop causing injury, and charge that sudden stopping was negligence comprehended both matters.—Gulf, C & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Baldwin, Tex.Civ.App., 2 S.W. 2d 520.

Where two acts alleged

Where petition for damages for injuries received while boarding a street car alleged that the car was suddenly started "and" the vestibule door was negligently closed, the two acts of negligence were separate and distinct, and the use of "and" between them did not make them a single and undivided or indivisible act; hence, plaintiff could submit his case and recover on both or either of them.—Vogts v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo.App., 228 S.W. 526.

92. Fla.—Williams v. Hines, 86 So. 695, 80 Fla. 690.
Ga.—Hines v. Hendricks, 104 S.E. 520, 25 Ga.App. 682.
Ind.—Hines v. Rollins, 179 N.E. 183, 97 Ind.App. 251—Engle v. Director General of Railroads, 133 N.E. 138, 78 Ind.App. 547.
Iowa.—Monaghan v. Equitable Life Ins. Co. of Iowa, 168 N.W. 892, 184 Iowa 352, superseding Monahan v. Equitable Life Ins. Co. of Iowa, 156 N.W. 994.
Mo.—Crabtree v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 273 S.W. 1104, 218 Mo.App. 306.
S.C.—Durst v. Southern Ry. Co., 125 S.E. 651, 130 S.C. 165.
Tenn.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Harrell, App., 110 S.W.2d 1032.
Tex.—Brown v. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 198 S.W. 986, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.
10 C.J. p 1012 note 1.

Recovery as limited by pleadings

(1) Where plaintiff's pleadings sought recovery for injuries sustained after boarding standing street car, she could not recover or introduce evidence showing injury occurred while boarding moving street car.—Hellman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 27 P.2d 946, 135 Cal.App. 627, rehearing denied, 28 P.2d 384, 135 Cal.App. 627.

(2) In action against street railway for injuries to passenger, where plaintiff pleaded negligence both generally and specifically, he established cause of action by proving either general or specific negligence.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo. 1.

(3) A declaration alleging that defendant was a carrier of passengers, and so grossly and negligently managed and operated a brake on the car in which plaintiff was a passenger that the brake was released, and the handle flew back and struck plaintiff, does not authorize recovery for injuries caused solely by defective appliances.—Washington & O. D. Ry Co. v. Smith, 289 F. 582, 53 App.D.C. 184.

(4) In action by one whose foot caught in crossing while signaling for car to stop, where one count of complaint relies on operation of car at negligent rate of speed, and another count on negligent construction of crossing, either count would support verdict.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Barnett, 127 N.E. 287, 75 Ind.App. 19.

(5) In passenger's action against railroad and employee, in which the right to recover was based solely on the negligence of such employee, and in which there was no general allegation of negligence on part of railroad, passenger could not recover against railroad alone.—Durst v. Southern Ry. Co., 125 S.E. 651, 130 S.C. 165.

Reliance on res ipsa loquitur doctrine

(1) Where plaintiff, in action against a carrier, has pleaded general negligence, he may rely on presumptive negligence
Colo.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo. 1.
Mo.—Lammert v. Wells, Mo.App., 282 S.W. 487.

(2) However, if he has pleaded specific acts of negligence, he could not then invoke the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur to make out his case, and a directed verdict in his favor, based on presumptive negligence under such rule, was error.
Mo.—Mayfield v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 272 S.W. 1051
Tex.—Dowdy v. Southern Traction Co., Civ.App., 184 S.W. 687, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 219 S.W. 1092.

(3) In action for injuries, alleged to have been caused by negligent operation of street car past station building, by which operatives knew or should have known that passengers on footboard were likely to be struck, admission of testimony as to speed and swaying of car as it passed building, to show manner in which injury occurred, is not error as tending to raise assignment of negligence not pleaded.—Van Leer v. Wells, Mo.App., 263 S.W. 493.

(4) In passenger's action for injuries in collision between electric car and a steam locomotive, allegations that car was being run at a rapid rate of speed through darkness with defective headlight on track used by defendant for other traffic do not restrict plaintiff to recovery on proof of defective headlight as only act of negligence relied on, but the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur may apply.—Sand Springs Ry. Co. v. Westhafer, 218 P. 525, 92 Okl. 89.

93. Mo.—Mirrielees v. Wabash R. Co., 63 S.W. 718, 163 Mo. 470
10 C.J. p 1013 note 2.

94. Ind.—Citizens' St. R. Co. v. Willoeby, 33 N.E. 627, 134 Ind. 563.

95. Tex.—International, etc., R. Co. v. Williams, 183 S.W. 1185.
10 C.J. p 1013 note 4.

96. Mo.—Forrester v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 91 S.W. 401, 116 Mo.App. 37.
10 C.J. p 1013 note 5.

Allegations in actions for assault

Where a petition, alleging the relation of passenger and carrier, alleged also that plaintiff was assaulted by defendant's servant while a passenger on defendant's car, the fact that it also alleged that the servant was acting within the scope of his employment could not deprive the passenger of the right to recover as for a breach of defendant's duty as a common carrier.—Buttler v. Wells, Mo.App., 241 S.W. 664.

97. Tex.—Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Redeker, 100 S.W. 362, 45 Tex.Civ.App. 312.
10 C.J. p 1013 note 6.

willful and wanton injury.[98] Likewise, where gross and wanton negligence is charged, proof of simple negligence will not support a recovery;[99] and where the gist of the action is an injury occasioned by the willful acts of an employee, recovery can be had only by showing a willful injury.[1]

General denial or general issue puts in issue the facts essential to plaintiff's recovery,[2] but it does not put in issue the ownership of the track or the control of the cars.[3]

b. Matters to Be Proved

All matters material to the cause of action or defense must be proved as alleged.

Negligence or other matters material to sustain the action[4] or defense[5] must be proved in the manner alleged in the declaration or other pleading. Matters not in issue need not be proved,[6] nor is it necessary to prove averments which are not material,[7] such as averments of mere matters of inducement.[8]

Where several independent acts of negligence or wrongs are alleged by plaintiff, he need not prove every act of negligence or wrong; it is sufficient to prove any one of them as the proximate cause of the injury,[9] although they are alleged conjunctively.[10] Especially is this true where the allegation may be treated either as an additional ground of negligence or as surplusage.[11] However, if the several acts of negligence are alleged as being jointly the proximate cause of the injury, proof of the several acts is required.[12]

98. Iowa—Fitzgibbon v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 79 N.W. 477, 108 Iowa 614.
10 C J. p 1013 note 7.

99. Ala.—Hines v. Minard, 86 So 23, 204 Ala. 514, 12 A L R 238.

1. Iowa.—Way v. Chicago, etc., R. Co, 35 N W. 525, 73 Iowa 463.
10 C J. p 1013 note 8.

2. S C—Smith v. Chamberlain, 17 S E 371, 38 S C. 529, 19 L R A. 710.
10 C J. p 1013 note 9.

3. Ill—Pell v. Joliet, etc, R. Co., 87 N E 542, 238 Ill. 510, affirming 142 Ill.App. 362
10 C J. p 1013 note 10.

4. Ala.—Willingham v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 83 So. 95, 203 Ala. 351
Ark—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Cox, 283 S.W. 31, 171 Ark. 103
Ind.—Hines v. Rollins, 179 N.E. 183, 97 Ind App 251
Md—Hagerstown & F. Ry. Co. v. State, 99 A. 376, 129 Md 318
Mo—Walser v. Missouri Pac. R Co, App, 6 S.W.2d 632—Jones v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 5 S W.2d 101, 222 Mo App. 1220—Taylor v. Kansas City Terminal Ry. Co, App, 240 S.W. 512—Malone v St. Louis-San Francisco Ry Co., 213 S W. 864, 202 Mo.App. 489—Rooker v. Deering Southwestern Ry. Co, App, 204 S.W. 556.
N J—Bradley v. Erie R Co, 143 A. 743, 105 N.J.Law 1, reversed on other grounds 147 A. 572, 106 N.J. Law 51.
Wash.—Calhoun v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 178 P. 805, 105 Wash. 592.
10 C J. p 1013 note 12.

Essential elements

Passenger suing for injuries caused by train jerk or stop must allege and prove that it was sudden, unusual, unnecessary, and so violent as to indicate negligence.—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Hay, 58 S.W.2d 228, 248 Ky. 69.

Result of negligence must be alleged and proved, even where res ipsa loquitur maxim applies.—Kilgore v Brown, 266 P. 297, 90 Cal. App. 555

Specific acts of negligence

A petition alleging that deceased was killed by the negligence of defendant's servant in suddenly starting or permitting a freight elevator to start up, while deceased was placing machinery on it, without warning, when the operator knew or by exercising ordinary care could have known deceased was in a dangerous position, charged specific negligence, which must be proved, thus preventing the application of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur—Grimm v. Globe Printing Co., Mo., 232 S.W. 676.

Time of assault

In action for assault made by railroad conductor, where plaintiff's evidence did not identify any particular conductor, but showed an assault on February 3, which was denied by defendant's train crew, plaintiff, after such refutation, could not recover for assault at different time—Lacy v Louisville & N. R Co., 73 So. 81, 197 Ala. 539.

Untrue allegations

Where plaintiff was not passenger, she cannot recover in action wherein she pleads that she was passenger Where car was not derailed, passenger cannot recover on allegation that car was derailed to her injury.—Porter v. Boston Elevated Ry., 122 N.E. 314, 232 Mass. 299.

Where presumption of negligence arises from mere injury

(1) Where an inference of negligence has arisen, as in the case of a collision, a passenger injured by collision between street cars, alleging negligence generally, need not prove specific act of negligence causing collision—Dallas Ry. Co v. Skorodynski, Tex Civ.App, 292 S W. 638.

(2) Street car passenger injured by passing car, need not prove defendant's negligence.—Rizzo v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 7 La.App. 686

5. Mo—Hulen v. Wheelock, 300 S W. 479, 318 Mo. 502
10 C.J p 1014 note 13.

6. Mass—Barry v Boston, etc., R. Co, 61 N E 518, 172 Mass. 109.
10 C.J. p 1014 note 14

7. Utah—Stonebreaker v. Bamberger, 54 P 2d 418, 88 Utah 310.
10 C J p 1014 note 15.

Allegations held immaterial

(1) Where plaintiff was injured while crossing defendant's street car track in front of a car, which had stopped and was suddenly started, that it was not shown that the car had stopped for the purpose of permitting passengers to board the same, is immaterial, where the car had stopped to discharge passengers, so that plaintiff and others might approach expecting to board it.—Rucker v. San Diego Electric Ry. Co., 183 P. 578, 41 Cal App 787.

(2) Allegations as to speed, stopping, and signaling are immaterial in suit by one in safety zone, struck by rear end of car.—Steinman v. Cleveland Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 149, 23 Ohio App. 448.

8. Tex—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Parks, Civ App, 73 S.W. 439.

9. Ill.—Little v. Peoria Ry Co., 215 Ill App 385. See Leiberich v. East St. Louis & Suburban Ry. Co., 199 Ill App 1.
Mo.—Kaenter v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co, App, 218 S.W 349—Rogers v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 204 S. W. 595
N.Y.—Ulrich v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 159 N.Y.S. 868, 95 Misc. 588.
10 C.J. p 1014 note 17.

10. Tex.—Galveston, etc, R. Co. v. Watts, Civ.App., 182 S W. 412.
10 C.J. p 1015 note 18

11. Mo.—Kaenter v. Missouri Pac. Ry Co, App., 218 S W. 349.

12. Tex.—Ratteree v. Galveston,

c. Evidence Admissible under Pleadings

(1) In general

(2) Under specific and general allegations of negligence

(3) Under general denial or general issue

(1) In general

Only competent evidence of matters properly in issue is admissible.

Competent evidence which substantially corresponds with the allegations, and which is restricted to the issues, is admissible,[13] but evidence which does not conform to the issues, or which relates only to a matter not in issue, is inadmissible.[14] etc., R. Co., 81 S.W. 566, 36 Tex. Civ. App. 197—Williams v. Galveston, etc., R. Co., 78 S.W. 45, 34 Tex. Civ. App. 145.

Proof of concurrent acts required

Where the petition of a passenger on defendant's train averred that a vestibule door was negligently left open, and that as a result of a sudden jar or jolt he was thrown from the car platform onto the tracks, proof of the concurring acts of negligence is essential to recovery.—Giles v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 212 S.W. 873, 278 Mo. 350.

13. Colo.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo. 1.
Mo.—Story v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, 37 S.W.2d 898, 327 Mo. 719—Rosenzweig v. Wells, 273 S.W. 1071, 308 Mo. 617—Abernathy v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., App., 217 S.W. 568—Hamilton v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 89 S.W. 893, 114 Mo. App. 504.
Neb.—Lieb v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 228 N.W. 364, 119 Neb. 222.
N.J.—Poulton v. Merz, 154 A. 190, 9 N.J.Misc. 402.
Va.—Barnard Bus Lines v. Weeks, 158 S.E. 870, 156 Va. 465.
10 C.J. p. 1015 note 21

Evidence held admissible

(1) In an action by a passenger for an assault committed by the motorman in dragging him to the front of the car from a position in the aisle where he was standing, where defendant files a plea alleging that when the motorman laid hands on plaintiff, and removed him from his position in the aisle of the car, plaintiff was blocking the passage of other passengers forward, and plaintiff joins issue on the plea, the evidence by plaintiff will not be confined to the single question of justification, but he may show the facts and circumstances surrounding the alleged assault.—Capital Traction Co. v. Morgan, 44 App. D.C. 237.

(2) In an action for death of a passenger who was thrown from one of defendant's cars while it was being run at an unusual speed while rounding a curve of defendant's track, it is not error to admit evidence for plaintiff that the track was uneven on the curve, for the purpose of showing whether in view of that fact the car could not have been run around the curve slower than the usual rate of speed around an ordinary curve.—Washington Ry. & Electric Co. v. Dittman, 44 App. D.C. 89.

(3) In a street car passenger's action for injuries sustained while alighting, it was not error to permit the conductor to testify that he was not in charge of the particular car on which the plaintiff rode, where the petition alleged and the answer admitted his employment and agency.—Hunter v. Joplin & P. Ry. Co., 197 P. 1092, 109 Kan. 169.

(4) Evidence that street car door was open when plaintiff attempted to board car and that company's rules required conductor to close it before starting was admissible on issue whether car was standing or moving, although negligence in starting without closing door was not pleaded, and such rule was for guidance of company's employees.—Detchemendy v. Wells, Mo.App., 253 S.W. 150.

(5) Under an averment that it was the custom of the motorman not to accelerate speed until receiving a go ahead signal from the conductor, the character of the signal as two bells may be shown.—Chapman v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo., 233 S.W. 177.

(6) In an action for negligence in causing a street car to start while a passenger was alighting, in which it was claimed by defendant that the way plaintiff said she fell was contrary to physical laws, testimony that the car started with a jerk was admissible, although the starting of the car with a jerk was not pleaded, such testimony being material as evidential matter.—Hartweg v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo.App., 231 S.W. 269.

(7) In an action for personal injuries to a seven-year-old boy when alighting from defendant's moving street car, based on the humanitarian doctrine, evidence that the motorman ordered the boy off the car was admissible to prove the motorman's knowledge of the boy's presence.—State ex rel. Metropolitan St. R. Co. v. Ellilison, Mo., 224 S.W. 820, quashing certiorari Quirk v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., App., 210 S.W. 106.

(8) Petition alleging that while deceased was in the act of alighting the street car was negligently started was sufficiently broad to warrant submission of the issue as to whether the conductor allowed deceased a reasonable time safely to alight.—Teske v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo. App., 204 S.W. 577.

(9) Where a complaint in an action for slipping on platform charges only negligence in presence of snow and slush, depression in platform may be considered in respect thereto, but not as independent ground of negligence.—Murphy v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 167 N.Y.S. 895, 180 App. Div. 585.

(10) Under an allegation that injuries to passenger's eye were caused by a cinder or spark from spark arrester on engine used by railroad, evidence as to spark escaping from other engines than that hauling plaintiff, operated at the time and in the immediate vicinity where the injury occurred, was admissible.—Schaff v. Sanders, Tex.Civ.App., 257 S.W. 670, affirmed, Com.App., 269 S.W. 1034.

(11) In action by passenger for injuries in which defendants denied existence of insurance policy, required on behalf of carrier, on date of injury as alleged, plaintiff could offer proof of allegations.—Nicktovich v. Olympic Motor Transit Co., 272 P. 736, 150 Wash. 278.

(12) In an action for injuries against city operating street railway, complaint, alleging that city stopped its cars at a place where the street was paved only on one side and knowingly permitted all vehicular traffic to travel both ways on one side of the street, making a dangerous situation, presented a question for the jury, whether having such knowledge, it was negligent in selecting such a place for the taking on and letting off passengers, and presented a charge which plaintiff was entitled to prove.—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P. 583, 127 Wash. 664.
10 C.J. p. 1015 note 21 [a]

14. U.S.—Hulet v. Payne, C.C.A.N.D., 282 F. 401.
Ill.—Sinopoli v. Chicago Rys. Co., 147 N.E. 487, 316 Ill. 609—Toledo W. & W. R. Co. v. Beggs, 85 Ill. 80, 28 Am.R. 613.
Tex.—Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Henry, Civ.App., 252 S.W. 210.

(2) Under Specific and General Allegations of Negligence

Evidence, to be admissible under specific allegations of negligence or wrong, must be specific and conform to the facts alleged; but under a general allegation evidence of any fact tending to show the negligence or wrong alleged is admissible.

Where the allegations as to defendant's negligence are specific, the proof also must be specific and must conform to the facts alleged[15] This rule has been held to apply notwithstanding such specific allegations are unnecessary;[16] and according to some decisions, where a general allegation of negligence is followed by allegations of specific acts of negligence, the specific allegations must be proved,[17] although specific allegations, where negligence has been alleged generally, have been held not to deprive the passenger of the benefit of the presumption arising from the accident unless his complaint clearly indicates his intention to limit the negligence to the acts specified.[18]

Where the negligence on the part of defendant is alleged in general terms, plaintiff is not confined in his evidence to any particular acts of negligence;[19] and evidence of any fact which is a circumstance tending to show the actionable negligence or wrong covered by the pleadings is admissible, although no mention of such fact is made in the pleading.[20] Thus, evidence is admissible that a passageway between cars was not sufficiently lighted, under an allegation that the station was not sufficiently lighted,[21] and that the brake rod was broken under an allegation that the braking apparatus was in bad repair and useless for the purpose of controlling the car.[22] However, an allegation that a designated

Va.—Murphy's Hotel v. Cuddy's Adm'r, 97 S.E. 794, 124 Va. 207.
10 C.J. p. 1015 note 22.

Evidence held inadmissible

(1) A passenger, not alleging that it was safe to alight from moving train at flag station, could not testify that he thought it safe.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitaker, 300 S.W. 912, 222 Ky. 302.

(2) A contract whereby a street railroad company operated interurban cars within the city and the ordinance authorizing such contract are not admissible, where the petition against both interurban and street railroad company simply pleaded that plaintiff was a passenger in an interurban car, and was injured by the negligence of the servants of defendants then operating the car.—Huntington v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo.App., 220 S.W. 1011.

(3) In an action for the death of one falling through an open vestibule door of a train on which he was a passenger, where it was not contended by plea or otherwise that defendant was negligent in not using proper equipment, the court did not err in excluding defendant's testimony as to the character of equipment in use on the train.—Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Henry, Tex.Civ.App., 252 S.W. 210.

(4) Evidence of safe places on highway is properly excluded, where automobile stage passenger's complaint for injuries failed to allege as negligence driving in storm.—Osborne v. Galusha, 254 P. 1086, 143 Wash. 127.

15. Mo.—Maloney v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 237 S.W. 509.
10 C.J. p. 1016 note 23.

Evidence held inadmissible

In prospective tenant's action against operators of apartment house for injuries caused by defective automatic elevator, in which the only specification of negligence in the complaint was the failure to keep the elevator in repair, plaintiff could not recover on proof of negligent failure to keep the hallway leading to elevator lighted.—McKeon v. Lissner, 223 P. 965, 193 Cal. 297.—10 C.J. p. 1016 note 23 [b].

16. Mo.—Hamilton v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 89 S.W. 893, 114 Mo.App. 504.
10 C.J. p. 1016 note 24.

17. Mo.—Roscoe v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 101 S.W. 32, 202 Mo. 576.
10 C.J. p. 1016 note 25.

18. N.Y.—De Roire v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 199 N.Y.S. 652, 205 App.Div. 549.

19. Ind.—Evansville Rys. Co. v. Miller, 111 N.E. 1031, 64 Ind.App. 206.
Tex.—Dowdy v. Southern Traction Co., Com.App., 219 S.W. 1092, reversing, Civ.App., 184 S.W. 687.
10 C.J. p. 1016 note 26.

20. Okl.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. McClain, 162 P. 751, 63 Okl. 75.
Pa.—McKnight v. S. S. Kresge Co., 132 A. 575, 285 Pa. 489.
10 C.J. p. 1017 note 27.

Evidence admissible under general allegations of negligence

(1) Under a general allegation of negligence, in that the driver of a motor stage caused it to collide with another automobile, evidence that the car was equipped with defective lights is admissible as tending to prove the charge of negligent driving.—Carnahan v. Motor Transit Co., 224 P. 143, 65 Cal.App. 402.

(2) A motor transportation company being sued for personal injuries sustained by a passenger in a collision may not complain that it was surprised and unprepared to meet the issue of defective lights, since on the making of a prima facie case by plaintiff the burden was on it to establish its freedom from negligence, including proof of proper lighting equipment.—Carnahan v. Motor Transit Co., supra.

(3) Any fact indicating that railroad permitted grease to remain on station platform after railroad knew, or should have known, of presence thereof, is admissible under injured passenger's allegation that railroad negligently failed to remove grease.—Stonebreaker v. Bamberger, 54 P. 2d 418, 88 Utah 310.

Under allegation of negligent operation

(1) Proof under doctrine of last clear chance is admissible under a general allegation of negligent operation.—Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Stevenson, C.C.A.N.J., 17 F.2d 748.

(2) In an action to recover for an injury to a passenger in a street car, an allegation that the car was negligently operated was sufficient, in the absence of motion for more specific statement, to permit the introduction of evidence of excessive speed.—Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co. v. McKeeman, Neb., 250 F. 386, 162 C.C.A. 456.

Evidence held inadmissible

In action against receiver of street railway company, wherein passenger pleaded general negligence in collision between street car and automobile, resulting in injury, evidence of negligence in sudden and abrupt stopping of street car is inadmissible, as it does not support the cause of action alleged.—Hughes v. Kiel, Mo.App., 100 S.W.2d 48.

21. Tex.—Galveston, etc. R. Co. v. Thornsberry, 17 S.W. 521.

22. Neb.—St. Joseph, etc. R. Co. v. Hedge, 62 N.W. 887, 44 Neb. 448.

servant of the carrier was negligent, although a general allegation, confines the proof to negligence of the particular servant referred to.[23]

(3) Under General Denial or General Issue

In general, any evidence which goes to controvert the facts which plaintiff must establish may be introduced by defendant under the general issue or general denial.

Under the general issue or general denial defendant may introduce any evidence which goes to controvert the facts which plaintiff is bound to establish to sustain his cause of action,[24] although, under some statutes, defendant cannot prove affirmative matter in avoidance under the general issue, unless it gives notice thereof in writing.[25] Where the gravamen of the complaint is defendant's neglect to discharge a public duty in protecting its passengers from the insults or wrongs of its employees, defendant may prove, under the general issue, that the employee's conduct was fully warranted and justifiable; but where the suit is based, not on defendant's failure to protect the passenger, but on the employee's wrong in insulting the passenger, such justification can be proved only where it has been set up affirmatively by a special plea.[26] It has been held that evidence that plaintiff was drunk is not admissible as justification under the general issue.[27]

d. Variance

The proof must correspond to and support the allegations; a material variance is generally fatal to recovery, but an immaterial variance is not.

The proof must correspond to and support the allegations;[28] and hence, where there is a material

23. Mo.—Perkins v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 243 S.W. 224.

24. U.S.—Robinson v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 35 S.Ct. 491, 237 U.S. 84, 59 L.Ed. 849, affirming 40 App. D.C. 169, L.R.A.1915D 510.
10 C.J. p. 1017 note 31

Evidence held admissible

(1) That passenger's condition was attributable to disease was matter of defense, which railroad company could establish under general denial.—New York Cent. R. Co. v. Johnson, Mo., 49 S.Ct. 300, 279 U.S. 310, 73 L.Ed. 706, reversing, C.C.A., 27 F.2d 699, certiorari granted 49 S.Ct. 27, 278 U.S. 590, 73 L.Ed. 523, and amended 49 S.Ct. 417.

(2) Evidence that husband of plaintiff suing street railroad for injuries alleged to have been sustained while passenger on street car attempted to hire witness to testify in plaintiff's behalf, and statements made by husband in plaintiff's presence concerning hiring of witnesses for such purpose is admissible under general denial as tending to show conspiracy and fraud.—Smith v. St. Louis Public Service Co., Mo. App., 84 S.W.2d 161.

25. Miss.—Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Grant, 38 So. 502, 86 Miss. 565, 109 Am.St.R. 723, 4 Ann.Cas. 556.
10 C.J. p. 1017 note 32.

26. Ga.—Binder v. Georgia R., etc., Co., 79 S.E. 216, 13 Ga.App. 381.

27. N.C.—Raynor v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 39 S.E. 821, 129 N.C. 195.

28. Mo.—Beurskens v. Dunham, App., 193 S.W. 855.
S.C.—Durst v. Southern Ry. Co., 125 S.E. 651, 130 S.C. 165.
10 C.J. p. 1018 note 37.

Variance held not to exist

(1) Evidence establishing assault by railroad employee on passenger, and cause of action for intentional and malicious assault.—Morton v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 20 S.W.2d 34, 323 Mo. 929.

(2) Allegations that defendant so carelessly placed a step box and the box was so insecure that, when plaintiff stepped on it, the box slipped and turned, and caused plaintiff to fall, and evidence showing that the unevenness of the pavement caused the box to turn.—Tanner v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., Mo.App., 258 S.W. 730.

(3) Evidence that the car jerked or moved suddenly or abruptly as plaintiff was alighting and allegations that while she was alighting the car started up.—Clymer v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo.App., 214 S.W. 423.

(4) Allegations that plaintiff, a passenger, was injured because defendant railway company took the forward part of the train some distance from plaintiff's coach and negligently backed it into said coach, and proof of a sudden jerk, by the collision alleged.—Johnson v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., Mo.App., 190 S.W. 352

(5) Averment that driver drove bus off highway, and proof that bus skidded off road.—Tennessee Coach Co. v. Young, 80 S.W.2d 107, 18 Tenn.App. 592.

(6) Complaint alleging nosing on a step was insufficiently secured, and proof that it had been suffered to become loose.—Henry v. Navy Yard Route, 162 P. 584, 94 Wash. 526

(7) Charge that while passenger was alighting car was negligently started without warning, and evidence that he was not given reasonable time to alight, and that the conductor negligently signaled to go ahead.—Cain v. Kanawha Traction & Electric Co., 95 S.E. 88, 81 W.Va. 631

(8) Evidence that plaintiff fell from train, where plaintiff's complaint alleged that she was injured by being thrown from train, and defendant's answer denied that she was injured by any fall or by being thrown.—Fitzgerald v. Southern Pac. Co., 173 P. 91, 36 Cal.App. 660.

(9) In taxicab passenger's action for injuries sustained because of driver's alleged negligence, wherein taxicab corporation denied that cab was driven by any of corporation's agents, and corporation might be liable if it appeared that cab was in its custody and on its business, notwithstanding name of driver or number of cab was not correctly stated in declaration nor by plaintiff when testifying.—Gale v. Independent Taxi Owners' Ass'n, 84 F.2d 249, 65 App.D.C. 396.

Variance or failure of proof

(1) Petition alleging plaintiff fell by descent of elevator and proof showing fall by its ascent did not show failure of proof but variance.—Roberts v. Schaper Stores Co., 3 S.W.2d 241, 318 Mo. 1190

(2) In a street car passenger's action for injuries, there is, at most, an immaterial variance between an allegation of sudden jerk at street intersection and proof that jerk occurred twelve or fifteen feet from intersection, and not a total failure to prove the cause of action alleged.—Harriman v. Dunham Mo.App., 196 S.W. 443

(3) Where a petition was based on railroad's negligence in maintaining an inadequate luggage rack in its station, failure to prove its allegations that the suitcase which injured plaintiff was knocked off the variance between the proof and the allegations, it is fatal to a recovery,[29] as where there is a substantial variance as to the time, place, and cause of the injury,[30] unless such variance is waived by a failure to call the attention of the court thereto,[31] or is cured by an amendment of the pleading.[32]

The variance between an allegation of negligence in suddenly starting a car after it had stopped, while the passenger was attempting to board or alight, and proof that it was moving when he made such attempt, has been held material[33]

On the other hand, where the proof substantially supports the pleading, the fact that it varies therefrom on some immaterial matter is not a fatal variance.[34] Thus, it has been held that the variance between an allegation that plaintiff was thrown or rack by some one constitutes only a variance and not a failure of proof —Wright v. Kansas City Terminal R Co, 193 S.W. 963, 195 Mo.App 480

(4) Where petition alleged defendant railroad negligently failed to provide a luggage rack in its station with a retaining rail to prevent baggage from falling off and the evidence showed an inch molding, there was a variance only.—Wright v. Kansas City Terminal R. Co, supra

(5) Where petition in passenger's personal injury action alleged negligence of defendant in that conductor negligently directed plaintiff to alight from moving train, and defendant was not called on to defend against negligence of any other servant, there was failure of proof and not a mere variance when inference from evidence was that alleged negligent direction was given by brakeman—Bogrees v. Wabash Ry Co, Mo App., 266 S.W. 333

(6) Where petition charged that plaintiff was riding on a ticket purchased of defendant, and that while thus traveling for hire on defendant's car he was assaulted, and the proof was that at the time of the assault plaintiff was traveling on a cash fare paid to another company, a street railway company, and on a portion of the line of travel of the car owned by the street railway, on which defendant's car was operated, under an operating agreement complying with a city ordinance as to such operation, by defendant's crew acting as the crew and employees of the street railway, there was more than a variance, but it amounted to a failure of proof.—Wilcox v. Kansas City Western Ry Co., 213 S. W 156, 201 Mo App 510.

29. Colo—Denver Tramway Co v. Johnson, 179 P. 143, 66 Colo 50.
Ill—See Guthorle v Chicago Rys Co, 211 Ill App 390.
Ky—South Covington & C. S. Ry Co. v. Schied, 217 S.W. 124, 186 Ky. 452
N.Y—Wiener v Fifth Avenue Coach Co, 164 N Y S 667.
10 C.J. p 1018 note 38.

Variances held material

(1) A count against a carrier, alleging plaintiff's injuries were caused by reason of the fact that "the defendant then and there, through its agents, servants, or employés in charge of said train, wantonly and intentionally" caused the train to move and jerk, etc., resulting in injuries to plaintiff, charging wantonness as the direct act of the carrier, and evidence tending to show wantonness on part of employees while acting within the line and scope of their employment.—Atlantic Coast Line R Co v. Thomas, 95 So. 53, 19 Ala.App. 76

(2) In actions for assault and battery on plaintiff passenger by conductor, between a complaint charging direct authorization by the corporation and proof of an unauthorized act by an agent for which the corporation is liable on principle only of "respondeat superior."—Ex parte Louisville & N R Co, 83 So. 52, 203 Ala 328, reversing Louisville & N R. Co v. Lacey, 82 So. 636, 17 Ala App 146.

(3) Proof that plaintiff was led to step off the car by the conductor's negligence in opening a door and allegation that plaintiff was led to take a position on the platform or step from which he fell or was thrown to the ground—Fitzpatrick v Capital Traction Co, 46 App D.C. 13.

(4) Declaration, alleging deceased was killed while passenger, and proof of wrongful refusal to accept him as passenger—Todd v. Louisville & N R Co, 113 N.E 95, 274 Ill 201, L R A 1916F 543

(5) Allegation that plaintiff was a passenger and proof that he refused to pay his fare when lawfully demanded—Willett v. King, 168 N.W. 986, 203 Mich 295.

(6) Evidence that step was thrown up, causing street car passenger to fall in alighting and pleading that door was closed on passenger's heel while alighting.—McConnell v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 89 Pa Super. 316.

30. Mo—Gardner v. Metropolitan St. R. Co, 122 S W. 1063, 223 Mo. 389, 18 Ann Cas. 1166.
10 C J. p 1018 note 39.

31. U.S.—Atchison, T. & S F. Ry. Co. v. Tiefel, C C A.Cal., 28 F.2d 977.
10 C.J. p 1019 note 40.

32. N Y.—Scheu v. Union R Co., 98 N.Y.S 278, 112 App Div 239.
10 C J. p 1019 note 41.

33. Ga.—Gosnell v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 86 S.E 90, 17 Ga.App. 67.
10 C.J p 1019 note 42.

34. Ill—Kaldunski v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 250 Ill App. 475—Hoffman v. Yellow Cab Co, 238 Ill App. 269. See Leiberich v. East St. Louis & Suburban Ry. Co., 199 Ill App 1.
Mo.—Took v. Wells, 53 S.W.2d 389, 331 Mo. 249.
Ohio.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Hill, 12 Ohio App. 125
Tenn—Louisville & N. Ry. Co v. Powell, 11 Tenn.App 253
Tex—Galveston, H. & S A. Ry. Co v. Williams, Civ App., 217 S W. 420.
10 C.J p 1019 note 44.

Variances held immaterial

(1) Allegation that injury was caused by defendant's negligent operation of two street cars, and proof showing that injury was caused by negligent operation of one street car, where defendant was responsible for operation of both street cars.—Jacksonville Traction Co. v. Seelbach, 157 So. 509, 117 Fla. 233

(2) An allegation that he was thrown from the train by an unusual jerk or jar when it stopped at the station, and proof that the train had stopped four hundred and fifty feet from the station when plaintiff was thrown therefrom.—Louisville & N. R. Co v. Spears' Adm'r, 232 S W. 60, 192 Ky. 64.

(3) Charge of negligence of defendant street railway company in starting the car suddenly after it had stopped at its usual place, and "while plaintiff was in the act of boarding the car at a time when she was in a position of danger," and plaintiff's statement that the car started with a jerk—Baldwin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo App, 214 S.W. 274.

(4) Petition alleging that deceased was a street car passenger "until he reached a point at or near an intersection at a point within a few feet, about 30 feet, of where the car was required to stop and discharge passengers," and evidence that the car stopped about thirty feet before reaching the regular stopping place.

pushed from the car, and proof that he stepped or jumped from the car to avoid danger, is immaterial.[35] There is no material variance between allegations of negligence in suddenly starting a car and proof that the car was moving so slowly as not to enhance the danger of the passenger's act;[36] nor is there a material variance between allegations that a car was barely moving and proof that it was standing,[37] nor between allegations that a car was suddenly started while plaintiff was on the step and proof that plaintiff stepped from a moving car, thinking it stationary.[38] Where the gist of the action is the starting of the train while plaintiff was in the act of boarding or leaving it, proof of matters of inducement will not create a variance.[39]

Adverse party misled. It has been held that a variance to be material must be such as to mislead the adverse party,[40] and where it is provided by statute that no variance between pleading and proof shall be deemed material unless it actually misleads the adverse party to his prejudice, the variance must have such effect to be regarded as material.[41]

§ 764. Presumptions and Burden of Proof

a. In general
b. As to existence of relation of carrier and passenger
c. As to negligence or wrong in general
d. Res ipsa loquitur in general
e. Res ipsa loquitur; inapplicability of rule; waiver
f. Res ipsa loquitur; applicability of rule to particular accidents
g. Res ipsa loquitur; rebutting presumption
h. Elevators and escalators

a. In General

The plaintiff has the burden of proving every fact essential to his cause of action; and this burden does not shift even where a presumption of negligence exists.

The burden of proof is on plaintiff to show by a preponderance of evidence all the essential elements of his cause of action.[42] The burden of proving a defense of accident or uncontrollable —Teske v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo. App., 204 S.W. 577.

(5) Allegation that the brakeman was negligent in permitting and inviting the passenger to alight at the place and time of the accident, variance between petition alleging that the passenger in attempting to alight "lost her balance or slipped from said steps," and proof that she jumped off—Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Lovett, Tex.Civ.App., 243 S.W. 519

35. U.S.—Washington, etc., R. Co. v. Hickey, D.C., 17 S.Ct. 661, 166 U.S. 521, 41 L.Ed. 1101.
10 C.J. p. 1020 note 45.

36. Mo.—Gunn v. St. Louis United R. Co., 160 S.W. 540, 177 Mo.App. 512
10 C.J. p. 1019 note 43.

37. Colo.—Denver Tramway Co. v. Johnson, 179 P. 143, 66 Colo. 50.

38. Cal.—Poak v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 170 P. 159, 177 Cal. 190.

39. Mo.—Ridenhour v. Kansas City Cable R. Co., 13 S.W. 889, 102 Mo. 270
10 C.J. p. 1020 note 46.

40. Colo.—Colorado Springs, etc., R. Co. v. Marr, 141 P. 142, 26 Colo.App. 48
10 C.J. p. 1020 note 47.

41. Ky.—Kentucky Tract., etc., Co. v. Waits, 180 S.W. 356, 167 Ky. 236
10 C.J. p. 1020 note 48.

42. Mass.—Finnegan v. Checker Taxi Co., 14 N.E.2d 127.
N.Y.—Bressler v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 13 N.E.2d 772, 277 N.Y. 200, reversing 297 N.Y.S. 336, 251 App.Div. 890.
Pa.—Shade v. The Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist. 34, 20 Pa.Co. 292.
10 C.J. p. 1020 note 51.

Actionable conduct

Plaintiff passenger has burden of proving that language and conduct of defendant railroad's conductor were actionable—Hutchison v. Southern Ry. Co., 95 S.E. 181, 109 S.C. 90.

Due care

Where accident to passenger happened prior to enactment of St.1914 c. 553, burden was on plaintiff to show his intestate was in exercise of due care, that her carelessness did not contribute to accident, and that defendant was negligent—Hurley v. New York, N.H. & H.R. Co., 146 N.E. 235, 251 Mass. 53.

Identification of instrument of accident

To warrant a recovery in an action for injury to one who, just after alighting from a street car, was thrown down by reason of her foot being caught in a rope hanging from the rear of the car, it is not essential to prove the character or purpose of the rope—Landis v. Wichita R. & Light Co., 203 P. 1109, 110 Kan. 205.

Obstructions in aisles

Passenger, suing railroad for injuries caused by obstruction in aisle of car, had the burden of proving the existence of such obstruction—Killeen v. Delaware, L. & W.R. Co., 112 A. 911, 270 Pa. 123.

Ownership, operation, or control

(1) To establish liability in a passenger's action for injury from negligent operation of a street car, there must be some proof of ownership, operation, or control, to cast a duty on defendant—Lester v. Wells, Mo.App., 253 S.W. 387.

(2) In action against taxi owners for negligence of driver, passenger was required to show driver was acting for owners at time of injuries or that owners were estopped to deny such fact—Johnson v. Brewer, 98 S.W.2d 889, 266 Ky. 314.

(3) Proof that at time of accident corporation owned bus raised rebuttable presumption that bus was being operated for purposes of corporation—Irwin v. Pickwick Stages System, 25 P.2d 998, 134 Cal.App. 443.

(4) Conclusive presumption is created by words "shall be deemed" in Motor Vehicle Act providing that title to vehicle shall be deemed not to have passed from legal owner to another until new certificates of registration and ownership are issued.—Irwin v. Pickwick Stages System, supra.

Liability of initial carrier

A passenger, injured while in a car after it has been turned over to a connecting carrier, has the burden of proving the initial carrier's liability for injuries caused by negligence after the car was so delivered.—Cisco & N.E. Ry. Co. v. Proctor, Tex.Civ.App., 272 S.W. 308, affirmed Proctor v. Cisco & N.E. Ry. Co., Com.App., 277 S.W. 1047.

event is on the carrier.[43]

Where the circumstances of the case warrant, certain presumptions may be indulged in, such as that the driver of a motor vehicle is presumed to have seen whatever he would have seen if properly performing his duties,[44] or what was visible to his passenger,[45] or, in a proper case, that an employee was acting within the scope of his authority,[46] and a conductor may be charged with knowledge that his train carries a mail car and baggage car and that persons are employed therein.[47] A street car company having constructed and maintained a safety zone in such fashion that one standing therein could be struck by its cars will be presumed to know that a person occupying such zone is in danger of injury by being struck by a car.[48]

A person dressed in the uniform adopted by the carrier for its employees and acting as an employee will be presumed, in the absence of other evidence, to be in the employ of the carrier,[49] but such presumption does not arise from the mere presence of a person wearing a cap and uniform, and not in any way identified as an employee.[50]

Shifting of burden. Although it has sometimes been stated that the burden of proof will shift to defendant on plaintiff making out a prima facie case,[51] this statement is inaccurate, and, where defendant sets up a plea or answer denying its liability, the main burden of proof does not shift, but is on plaintiff throughout the case,[52] even where a presumption of negligence exists,[53] or defendant has pleaded an affirmative defense,[54] although, where plaintiff introduces evidence sufficient to make out a prima facie case, it is then incumbent on defendant in order to prevent a recovery to introduce evidence sufficient to overcome such showing by plaintiff;[55] but the carrier is not called on to of-

43. La.—Dixon v. Teche Transfer Co., 1 La.App. 227—Guidry v. Teche Transfer Co., 1 La.App. 225

44. Wash.—Duggins v. International Motor Transit Co., 280 P. 50, 153 Wash. 549

45. Ill.—Hoffman v. Yellow Cab Co., 238 Ill.App. 269

46. Authority of bus driver

In action against bus company for injuries to passenger who was mistreated by truck driver, not employed by bus company, with whom passenger had continued journey on being requested to do so by bus driver when bus broke down, a presumption arose that bus driver acted within his authority in requesting passenger to continue journey with truck driver when bus driver's agency was established by showing he occupied the position of a train conductor and was only agent present, and a finding for plaintiff would be authorized if presumption was not rebutted.—South Plains Coaches v. Box, Tex.Civ.App., 111 S.W.2d 1151, error dismissed

47. Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Arnott, 126 N.E. 13, 189 Ind. 350

48. Iowa.—Mangan v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 203 N.W. 705, 200 Iowa 597, 41 A.L.R. 368.

49. Md.—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Kane, 13 A. 387, 69 Md. 11, 9 Am.S.R. 387.
10 C.J. p. 1022 note 63.

50. Va.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99

51. U.S.—Irvine v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., N.J., 184 F. 664, 106 C.C.A. 600.
10 C.J. p. 1021 note 58.

52. R.I.—Chappell v. United Electric Rys. Co., 152 A. 738, 51 R.I. 148
10 C.J. p. 1021 note 59.

53. Cal.—Seney v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 255 P. 279, 82 Cal.App. 226
Mass.—Gilchrist v. Boston Elevated Ry., 172 N.E. 349, 272 Mass. 346—Fitzmaurice v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. Co., 152 N.E. 239, 256 Mass. 217.
N.J.—McKittrick v. Public Service Ry. Co., 128 A. 226, 101 N.J.Law 262.
N.Y.—McKinney v. New York, W. & B. Ry. Co., 179 N.Y.S. 535
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Lowry, 184 S.E. 177—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 162 S.E. 18, 157 Va. 628.
10 C.J. p. 1021 note 60

Burden not shifted by res ipsa loquitur rule

(1) A passenger has the burden of showing the carrier's negligence in order to recover, and while the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur will relieve the passenger of the burden of introducing evidence, on showing that the injury was the result of derailment, yet the burden is not shifted, and if the carrier introduces evidence the passenger is not entitled to recover on mere equipoise.—Hines v. Beard, 107 S.E. 717, 130 Va. 286.

(2) The burden on passenger to recover for injuries in res ipsa loquitur case was to show that she was passenger on bus, and that it skidded or left road in unusual manner, and that she was injured without negligence on her part.—Carlson v. Kansas City, Clay County & St. Joseph Auto Transit Co., 282 S.W. 1037, 221 Mo.App. 537.

54. Cal.—Schropshire v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 258 P. 1107, 85 Cal.App. 216, followed in Crosby v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 264 P. 346, 88 Cal.App. 799.

55. Colo.—Denver Tramway Corporation v. Kuttner, 35 P.2d 852, 95 Colo. 312.
Wallace v. Shreveport Rys. Co., La.App., 175 So. 86, quoting this rule stated in Corpus Juris.
La.—Johnson v. City of Monroe, App., 164 So. 456—Cusimano v. New Orleans Public Service, 122 So. 903, 12 La.App. 586 reversed on other grounds 127 So. 376, 170 La. 95.
Mo.—Heidt v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App., 9 S.W.2d 650
N.Y.—King v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 135 N.E. 519, 233 N.Y. 330, modifying 188 N.Y.S. 700, 197 App.Div. 15—McKinney v. New York, W. & B. Ry. Co., 179 N.Y.S. 535
N.C.—Lindsey v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 92 S.E. 166, 173 N.C. 390
Okl.—Sand Springs Ry. Co. v. Westhafer, 218 P. 525, 92 Okl. 89.
Pa.—Doud v. Hines, 112 A. 528, 269 Pa. 182—Bickley v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 101 A. 654, 257 Pa. 369
10 C.J. p. 1022 note 61.

Unsafe railroad accepted by government

In an action against a railroad company for negligence in constructing an unsafe railroad, accepted and operated by the government for carrying troops on a military reservation, where there was no proof that the government required the construction in such haste as to excuse the negligence, the railroad cannot be relieved from liability on that ground, as it cannot be assumed fer evidence until facts showing a prima facie liability on its part have been proved.[56]

b. As to Existence of Relation of Carrier and Passenger

The plaintiff has the burden of proving he was a passenger at the time of the accident, aided by the presumption that one who is traveling on a public conveyance used for passenger carriage, and who is not an employee of the carrier, is lawfully on such conveyance as a passenger.

The burden is on plaintiff to prove that he was a passenger, and as such was being rightfully transported at the time of the accident,[57] although during the trial there is no suggestion of a denial of that fact.[58] This burden, however, is aided by the presumption that a person traveling in a railroad car, or other public conveyance used for passenger carriage, and who is not connected with the carrier as employee, is there lawfully as a passenger;[59] but such presumption does not arise where there is evidence that the person was riding on the train as a trespasser,[60] as where he was riding on a car, or part of the train, not intended for the accommodation or use of passengers;[61] nor is there any presumption that one riding in the private vehicle of another is being carried as a passenger for hire.[62]

Evidence that plaintiff was riding on a ticket purchased at defendant's ticket office and at the time of the accident was a passenger on defendant's train which was being operated over its railroad is prima facie proof that the train was being operated by, and in charge of, defendant's employees.[63] The burden is on the carrier to prove that plaintiff, injured in attempting to board a car, was a trespasser unable to pay his fare.[64]

A person on a freight train carrying passengers is presumed to be thereon as a passenger,[65] particularly where it is required by statute that local freight trains shall carry passengers.[66] However, ordinarily one riding on a train used for conveying freight exclusively,[67] or on a freight car of a mixed train, is presumed not to be a passenger, and he has the burden of showing special circumstances to rebut this presumption.[68] Where defendant carrier is a carrier only of goods by truck, there is a presumption that a driver of the truck had no authority to invite or permit persons to ride thereon.[69]

As between connecting carriers, where a passenger buys what purports to be a through ticket from the first carrier, he will be presumed to be under such carrier's care during the whole trip, and the burden is on such carrier to show otherwise.[70]

as a matter of law that the government required the construction of a dangerous track—Bryson v. Hines, C.C.A.N.C., 268 F. 290, 11 A.L.R. 1438

56. Tex.—Paris, etc., R. Co. v. Robinson, 114 S.W. 658, 53 Tex.Civ. App. 12.

57. Conn.—Petrillo v. Kolbay, 165 A. 346, 116 Conn. 389.
10 C.J. p. 1040 note 76.

58. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. McCurdy, 55 So. 616, 172 Ala. 488

59. Pa.—Berkebile v. Johnstown Traction Co., 99 A. 871, 255 Pa. 310.
10 C.J. p. 1040 note 78.

Automobile passenger

A person traveling in an autobus used for carrying passengers, in the absence of countervailing circumstances, is presumed to be a passenger for hire.

Cal.—Meier v. Golden State Auto Tour Corporation, 195 P. 290, 50 Cal.App. 277.

Tenn.—Baskin & Cole v. Whitson, 8 Tenn.App. 578.

Entering train at usual station

When a train stops at the usual station for receiving and discharging passengers, and a person enters the coaches, he is presumed to be a passenger—Rowell v. Hines, 103 S.E. 545, 114 S.C. 339.

Payment of fare

(1) Where conductor testified plaintiff was a passenger, the fact that there was no evidence she had ticket, nor paid fare, nor was able and willing to pay, was immaterial as affecting a contention that there was no proof that she was a passenger, it being presumed from her riding between stations that she paid fare—Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Helms, Tex.Civ.App., 261 S.W. 225.

(2) One intending to become a passenger, who was injured in the depot while waiting for his train, and who subsequently boarded the train, must be presumed to have paid the regular fare—Ft. Worth & D.C. Ry. Co. v. Brown, Tex.Civ.App., 205 S.W. 378.

60. Tex.—Southerland v. Texas, etc., R. Co., Civ.App., 40 S.W. 193.

61. Ark.—Prescott, etc., R. Co. v. Hopkins, 182 S.W. 551, 122 Ark. 168.
10 C.J. p. 1040 note 80.

Presumption is that one riding out of place provided by a railroad company for passengers is not a passenger, or, if such, that he has assumed the increased risk from riding there.—Chicago, R.I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Thurlow, Kan., 178 F. 894, 102 C.C.A. 128, 30 L.R.A.,N.S., 571.

Work trains

The presumption that one who is permitted by an employee of a company to ride on a construction train is not lawfully thereon may be overcome by special circumstances implying the authority of such employee to grant such privilege—Rosenbaum v. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 36 N.W. 447, 38 Minn. 173, 8 Am.S.R. 653.

62. U.S.—Lydon v. Robert Smith Ale Brewing Co., C.C.Pa., 133 F. 830.

63. Ill.—Lake Erie, etc., R. Co. v. Delong, 109 Ill.App. 241.

64. Ind.—Chicago, L.S. & S.B. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 115 N.E. 368, 66 Ind. App. 126.

65. Va.—Southern R. Co. v. Dawson, 36 S.E. 996, 98 Va. 577.
10 C.J. p. 1040 note 83

66. Ark.—Kruse v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 133 S.W. 841, 97 Ark. 137.

67. U.S.—Dysart v. Missouri, K. & T.R. Co., Mo., 122 F. 228, 58 C.C.A. 592.
10 C.J. p. 1040 note 85.

68. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Huff, 81 S.W. 525, 98 Tex. 110, reversing, Civ.App., 78 S.W. 249.
10 C.J. p. 1041 note 86.

69. Wash.—Gruber v. Cater Transfer Co., 165 P. 491, 96 Wash. 544, L.R.A. 1917F 422.

70. Pa.—Prethrow v. West Jersey, etc., R. Co., 63 A. 415, 214 Pa. 112, 112 Am.S.R. 736.
10 C.J. p. 1041 note 87.

Rebutting presumption. The presumptions as to the relation of passenger and carrier, arising from the manner in which a person is traveling, are merely presumptions of fact, and may of course be rebutted by the carrier or the passenger.[71]

c. As to Negligence or Wrong in General

The burden of proving the negligence or wrong of the carrier is on plaintiff, who must also show such negligence or wrong was the proximate cause of his injury.

As in other civil cases in which damages are sought to be recovered for injuries caused by the negligence of another, the burden is on plaintiff who seeks to recover for the negligence or wrong of the carrier to show by a preponderance of the evidence the negligence or wrong as alleged,[72] and that such negligence or wrong was the proximate cause of the injury complained of,[73] and this obligation may sufficiently be performed by showing circumstances attending the injury from which a presumption of negligence on the part of the carrier arises, thereby putting on the carrier the onus of showing due care on its part, as shown infra § 764 d. The passenger does not have the burden of showing the exact breach of duty committed by the carrier.[74] Where the evidence raises the issue of unavoidable

71. U.S.—Bryant v. Chicago, St. P., M. & O. etc., R. Co., Minn., 53 F. 997, 4 C.C.A. 146.
10 C.J. p. 1041 note 88.

72. U.S.—Old South Lines v. McCuiston, C.C.A.Ga., 92 F.2d 441—Windham v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., C.C.A.Ala., 71 F.2d 115.
Ala.—Mosley v. Teche Lines, 166 So. 800, 232 Ala. 110.
Ark.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Evans, 109 S.W.2d 918.
Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., Super., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343.
Ga.—Holmes v. Georgia Power Co., 162 S.E. 403, 44 Ga.App. 588, reversed on other grounds Georgia Power Co. v. Holmes, 165 S.E. 284, 175 Ga. 487, conformed to Holmes v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S.E. 918, 45 Ga.App. 826.
Ill.—See Van Zandt v. Metropolitan West Side Elevated Ry. Co., 205 Ill.App. 453.
Ky.—Cincinnati, N. & C. Ry. Co. v. Trenkamp, 295 S.W. 866, 220 Ky. 552—McDermott v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 206 S.W. 6, 182 Ky. 22.
La.—King v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 74 So. 168, 140 La. 843.
Mass.—Shine v. New York, N. H. & H. R. R., 128 N.E. 713, 236 Mass. 419, 11 A.L.R. 1075.
Mo.—Schulz v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 4 S.W.2d 762, 319 Mo. 8—Tevis v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 185 S.W. 738.
Mont.—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 235 P. 330, 72 Mont. 594.
Neb.—Haight v. Omaha & C., B. St. Ry. Co., 166 N.W. 248, 101 Neb. 841.
N.H.—Lewis v. Boston & M. R. R., 106 A. 605, 79 N.H. 165.
N.Y.—Farmer v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 205 N.Y.S. 479, 123 Misc. 383—Meyers v. Hines, 191 N.Y.S. 773, 199 App.Div. 594—Slomka v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 182 N.Y.S. 156, 191 App.Div. 727—McKinney v. New York, W. & B. Ry. Co., 179 N.Y.S. 535.
Okl.—Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Latty, 187 P. 491, 77 Okl. 156.
Pa.—Martin v. Steen, 167 A. 609, 109 Pa.Super. 263—Bowman v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 149 A. 877, 299 Pa. 558, certiorari denied 51 S.Ct. 27, 282 U.S. 849, 75 L.Ed. 752—Kelly v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 113 A. 194, 270 Pa. 149.
S.C.—Hutchison v. Southern Ry. Co., 95 S.E. 181, 109 S.C. 90.
Va.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va. 549, rehearing denied 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, rehearing denied 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, addendum opinion, 143 S.E. 299, 150 Va. 647—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99.
10 C.J. p. 1021 note 53, p. 1022 note 65.

Prima facie case

In action for death of passenger, plaintiff has burden of establishing prima facie case, and carrier is not bound where whole case rests on circumstantial evidence to advance a more plausible theory than that advanced by plaintiff.—Daly v. Pryor, 198 S.W. 91, 197 Mo.App. 583.

Notice of conditions

(1) In action for injury sustained by slipping on banana skin on station platform, plaintiff had burden of proving skin was there long enough to charge railroad with constructive notice of its presence.—Deegan v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 160 A. 858, 307 Pa. 207.

(2) Trolley passenger, suing for injuries from fall in underground passage, need not prove direct notice to trolley company of dangerous character of structure.—Palmer v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 100 Pa.Super. 380.

(3) Burden was on one suing for injuries, caused by taxicab driver's refusal to help remove plaintiff from floor to seat of cab, to prove that driver knew or should have known that heater in floor was so hot as to burn plaintiff.—Schmuck v. Heilman, 161 A. 420, 106 Pa.Super. 12.

(4) Passenger suing for injuries received when stumbling over brick on walk leading from train must show that brick was placed by person for whose conduct defendants were responsible, or had remained so long that it should have been discovered and removed.—Meridian Terminal Co. v. Stewart, 108 So. 496, 143 Miss. 523.

73. U.S.—New York Cent. R. Co. v. Johnson, Mo., 49 S.Ct. 300, 279 U.S. 310, 73 L.Ed. 706, reversing, C.C.A., 27 F.2d 699, certiorari granted 49 S.Ct. 27, 278 U.S. 590, 73 L.Ed. 523, and opinion amended 49 S.Ct. 417—Northern Ry. Co. v. Page, Mass., 47 S.Ct. 491, 274 U.S. 65, 71 L.Ed. 929, reversing, C.C.A., Page v. United Fruit Co., 3 F.2d 747, certiorari granted Northern Ry. Co. v. Page, 46 S.Ct. 19, 269 U.S. 542, 70 L.Ed. 402—Old South Lines v. McCuiston, C.C.A.Ga., 92 F.2d 441.
Iowa.—Moss v. Mason City & C. L. R. Co., 251 N.W. 627, 217 Iowa 354.
Ky.—Johnson v. Brewer, 98 S.W.2d 889, 266 Ky. 314.
La.—Lakios v. New Orleans, T. & M. Ry. Co., App., 147 So. 525.
Mo.—Madden v. Red Line Service, App., 76 S.W.2d 435—Willi v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 224 S.W. 86, 205 Mo.App. 272.
Mont.—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 235 P. 330, 72 Mont. 594.
Neb.—Haight v. Omaha & C., B. St. Ry. Co., 166 N.W. 248, 101 Neb. 841.
N.H.—Vaughan v. Boston & M. R. R., 103 A. 129, 78 N.H. 615.
Tex.—Lancaster v. Hall, Civ.App., 277 S.W. 776.
10 C.J. p. 1022 note 66.

Negativing inference of other cause

Plaintiffs, suing for wrongful death from starting train without warning, had burden of negativing inference of death from cause for which railroad was not responsible.—Betcher v. Southern Pac. Co., C.C.A.Tex., 29 F.2d 735.

74. Mich.—Trent v. Pontiac Transp. Co., 275 N.W. 501, 281 Mich. 586.

accident, the burden is on plaintiff to show such was not the cause of the injuries.[75] Where the carrier is negligent, the burden is on it to prove that the act of a fellow passenger, which it claims was the sole proximate cause of the injury, entirely superseded its negligence and was in itself responsible for the injury and not foreseeable.[76]

Where the degree of negligence is not shown, ordinary negligence, and not gross negligence or willfulness or wantonness will be presumed.[77]

Assault. In an action for an assault by an employee of the carrier, the burden is on plaintiff to prove that the injury was caused by the wrongful act of such employee, while acting within the line of his duty.[78] Where an assault is shown it is presumed that it was unlawful, and the burden is on the carrier to prove justification, and if the carrier puts in evidence to show justification, the burden is on plaintiff to rebut it.[79] Where it appears that plaintiff was the aggressor in provoking the assault, it is incumbent on defendant to show that the employee used no more force than was reasonably necessary to repel plaintiff's assault.[80] Where the assault is committed by a fellow passenger, who previously thereto was quiet and orderly, no presumption of prior misconduct from which the trainmen could have anticipated the assault can be indulged, merely because it subsequently appeared that the passenger was drunk or crazy.[81]

d. Res Ipsa Loquitur in General

The res ipsa loquitur doctrine applies in actions for simple negligence against carriers, and a prima facie case is made out when it is shown that the injury was caused by something in the care, custody, or control of the carrier or connected with its business, and the circumstances were such that the accident could not well have happened without defendant being negligent.

The maxim, Res ipsa loquitur, which is recognized to some extent in the proof of negligence in general, applies to common carriers, and is of peculiar application in actions for simple negligence against carriers of passengers, such as railroad or street railroad companies, and in a number of cases the rule has been broadly stated that the happening of an accident to the passenger, at least where it appears to have occurred without fault on his part, gives rise to a presumption of negligence on the part of the carrier, so that the passenger makes out a prima facie right to recover for personal injuries received during transportation, by proof that he was at the time of receiving the injury a passenger, that an accident occurred, and that his injury resulted therefrom, and thereby casts on defendant the burden of rebutting such presumption.[82] This, however, is too broad a state-

75. Tex.—Dallas Ry. Co. v. Alexander, Civ.App., 23 S.W.2d 512.

76. Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Ballew, Civ.App., 39 S.W.2d 180, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 66 S.W.2d 659.

77. Ky.—Southern R. Co. v. Lee, 101 S.W. 307, 30 Ky.L. 1360, 10 L.R.A.,N.S., 837.
10 C.J. p. 1023 note 68.

78. Ky.—White v. South Covington, etc., R. Co., 150 S.W. 837, 150 Ky. 681.
Md.—Rosenkovitz v. United R., etc., Co., 70 A. 108, 108 Md. 306.
10 C.J. p. 1021 notes 55, 56.

79. Mo.—Parris v. Deering Southwestern Ry. Co., App., 227 S.W. 1071.

No more force than necessary

Where the carrier seeks to justify the assault by an employee, it is incumbent on it to show that no more force was used than was necessary under the circumstances.—Parris v. Deering Southwestern R. Co., Mo.App., 227 S.W. 1071.

80. Ark.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Berger, 44 S.W. 809, 64 Ark. 613, 39 L.R.A. 784.

81. Ky.—Payne v. Moore, 244 S.W. 869, 196 Ky. 454.

82. U.S.—Pennsylvania Co. v. Clark, C.C.A.Ohio, 266 F. 182.
Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Mealing, 108 So. 511, 214 Ala. 537.—Tennessee, A. & G. Ry. Co. v. Rossell, 88 So. 362, 18 Ala.App. 17.
Cal.—Leonard v. Pickwick Stage System, 7 P.2d 1059, 120 Cal.App. 512.
Ill.—Field v. Winheim, 123 Ill.App. 227.
Iowa.—Preston v. Des Moines Ry. Co., 241 N.W. 648, 214 Iowa 156.
Ky.—Warren v. Cumberland R. Co., 193 S.W. 1037, 175 Ky. 92.
La.—Cusimano v. New Orleans Public Service, 127 So. 376, 170 La. 95, reversing 122 So. 903, 12 La.App. 586.—Hopkins v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 90 So. 512, 150 La. 61, 19 A.L.R. 1362.—Gaines v. Teche Lines, App., 176 So. 134.—Wallace v. Shreveport Rys. Co., App., 175 So. 86.—Gager v. Teche Transfer Co., App., 153 So. 69.—Bacon v. New Orleans Public Service, 137 So. 213, 18 La.App. 96, rehearing denied 137 So. 866, 18 La.App. 96.—Baptiste v. New Orleans Public Service, 127 So. 655, 13 La.App. 625.—Nee v. New Orleans Public Service, 123 So. 135, 11 La.App. 1.—Larose v. New Orleans Public Service, 119 So. 908, 10 La.App. 91.—Poncet v. South New Orleans Light & Traction Co., 3 La.App. 64.
Mo.—Powell v. St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co., 81 S.W.2d 957, 336 Mo. 1016.—Malone v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 213 S.W. 864, 202 Mo.App. 489.
N.Y.—De Roire v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 199 N.Y.S. 652, 205 App.Div. 549.
Pa.—Orms v. Traction Bus Co., 150 A. 897, 300 Pa. 474.
S.C.—Thompson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 102 S.E. 11, 113 S.C. 261.
10 C.J. p. 1023 note 71.

It is an "inference," and not a "presumption," from the showing of the overturning of a taxicab injuring a passenger that it occurred through the negligence of the driver.—Dowd v. Atlas Taxicab & Auto Service Co., 202 P. 870, 187 Cal. 523.

Permissible inference only

Under the rule established by the supreme court of the United States, which is binding on the courts of the District of Columbia, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not require an inference of negligence to be drawn from proof of injury to a street car passenger happening without her fault, but merely permits such inference to be drawn.—Robertson v. Washington Ry. & Electric Co., 279 F. 180, 51 App.D.C. 311.

ment. As stated in § 676 supra, the carrier is not an insurer against injuries to the passenger, but plaintiff's right of action for injuries is based on negligence, the burden of proof of which is on him; and the circumstances of many, if not all, of the cases in which the rule is so broadly stated have been such that the presumption would have arisen from the circumstances of the accident Therefore, the mere proof of an injury to the passenger in course of transportation, which, so far as it is shown, might have occurred by reason of other cause than the carrier's negligence, such as the act of the passenger himself, or without fault of anyone, will not make out a prima facie case,[83] particularly where the circumstances connected with the accident were of such a character as to withdraw as against defendant any presumption of negligence.[84] Thus, the presumption of negligence does not arise from the mere happening of an accident,[85] even though the carrier cannot explain

Extent of burden

(1) The carrier has the burden only of showing freedom from negligence —Gager v. Teche Transfer Co, La App, 153 So. 69.

(2) In suit by passenger for personal injuries, burden is on common carrier by motorbus to show that it was free from negligence, but it is not necessary for carrier to show how or why injury occurred —Baptiste v. New Orleans Public Service, La App, 161 So. 783.

(3) Street railway company, sued for injuries to passenger alleging only defective operation of exit step, was not required to show how and why plaintiff was injured —Wylie v Shreveport Rys. Co, App., 140 So. 715, affirmed 145 So. 513, 176 La. 193.

83. U.S —Old South Lines v. McCuiston, C C A Ga, 92 F 2d 439.
Ala —Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala 358
Md —Tittlebaum v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 174 A. 89, 92, 167 Md. 397.
Mont.—Heck v Northern Pac. Ry. Co, 196 P. 521, 59 Mont. 106.
Or —Richardson v. Portland Trackless Car Co, 233 P. 540, 113 Or. 544.
Pa —Mink v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 93 Pa Super. 63.
Wash.—Morrissey v Union Pac. R. Co, 249 P 1064, 68 Utah 323, referring to collection of authorities in Corpus Juris.
10 C J. p 1024 note 74.

"If, by the evidence . . . it was disclosed that the injury complained of might have been caused either by the defendant's negligence or by the act of another for which the defendant was not responsible, then the doctrine would not apply." —Tittlebaum v. Pennsylvania R. Co, supra

No presumption of negligence arises from injuries received by:

(1) Catching of plaintiff's heel while alighting from street car —Coleman v. Boston Elevated Ry Co., 143 N.E 819, 249 Mass 155.

(2) Falling of window glass from street car —Cleveland Ry Co. v. Sutherland, 152 N.E. 726, 115 Ohio St. 262.

(3) Falling over a suitcase projected in the aisle of a street car. —Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v Johnson, 71 So 620, 14 Ala App 558

(4) Falling window in railroad car.
Ky —Chadwick v. Louisville & N R. Co, 281 S W. 1018, 213 Ky. 831, 45 A.L.R 1537
Mass —Murphy v. Boston Elevated Ry Co., 118 N E. 191, 229 Mass. 38

(5) Mere skidding of motor vehicle.
Mass —Bartlett v Town Taxi, 160 N E 797, 263 Mass. 215.
R I.—Peters v. United Electric Rys Co, 165 A 773, 53 R I 251, modified on other grounds 167 A. 122

(6) Slipping on banana peel in aisle of coach —Windham v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., C C A. Ala, 71 F.2d 115.

(7) Slipping on fresh plum on vestibule floor, and passenger had burden to prove that motorman-conductor knew or should have known of presence of plum in time to remove it —Morrison v. Pacific Northwest Public Service Co., 30 P 2d 344, 146 Or 225.

(8) Slipping of stepping box —Beltz v. Buffalo, R & P. Ry Co, 119 N E 81, 222 N Y 433 reversing 160 N.Y.S. 1124, 171 App Div. 976.

(9) Sudden breaking of window, where no showing was made that accident was caused by mechanical defect in window, or by passing train, and where window a short time before had been examined and nothing had been found wrong, and where evidence was offered to show accident was caused by third person over whom railway had no control —Tittlebaum v Pennsylvania R Co, 174 A. 89, 167 Md 397.

(10) Tripping over baggage in aisle.—Heineke v. Chicago Rys Co., 116 N E. 761, 279 Ill. 210, affirming 199 Ill App 399.

(11) Taxicab passenger, from sudden turning of car —Bartlett v Town Taxi, 160 N.E. 797, 263 Mass. 215.

(12) Stumbling over suitcase in aisle of a car —Dusenbury v Delaware, L. & W R. Co., 158 N.Y.S 681, 95 Misc. 241.

84. Miss —Gulf & S I R. Co v. Odum, 98 So. 60, 133 Miss 543. 10 C.J p 1024 note 75.

Standing train

Generally, the doctrine of the maxim res ipsa loquitur cannot have any application to injuries received by a passenger while alighting from a standing train.—Heck v. Northern Pac Ry. Co, 196 P. 521, 59 Mont. 106

Passenger safely alighting from car

(1) Where passenger is injured after safely alighting, carrier is not liable, presumption of its negligence when passenger is injured being inapplicable —Stewart v. New Orleans Public Service, 4 La App 543

(2) Where passenger after alighting was struck by bus turning corner, happening of accident created no presumption of negligence.—Fitzpaldi v. Philadelphia Rural Transit Co, 163 A. 397, 107 Pa Super. 385

Where testimony was conflicting as to whether plaintiff's injuries were sustained while a passenger and about to alight, or whether they were sustained at a distance of six or eight feet from the car after she had safely alighted, the rule of res ipsa loquitur has no application.—Livingston v Omaha & C. B St Ry. Co, 175 N W 662, 104 Neb 118

Injury by fellow passenger

Where a passenger was not hurt by any instrumentality connected with the means of transportation, but from a piece of pipe carried by an alighting passenger there was no presumption against the carrier, and the burden of proof was on the passenger.—Wood v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 104 A 69, 260 Pa. 481, L R.A.1918F 817.

85. Mich.—Trent v. Pontiac Transp Co., 275 N.W 501, 281 Mich. 586
N Y —Morgan v. Oceanic Steam Nav. Co, 224 N Y.S. 420, 130 Misc 570.
Ohio —Canton Motor Coach v Hall, 189 N E. 505, 46 Ohio App 516.
Pa —Zaltouski v. Scranton Ry. Co, 165 A 847, 310 Pa 531—Creahan v Pennsylvania R. Co., 187 A. 51, 123 Pa.Super. 263 — Baron v. Wilkes-Barre Ry. Co., 71 Pa.Super. 103
S C —Nelson v. Charleston & W. C. Ry. Co., 121 S.E. 198, 92 S.C. 151.

it,[86] as from the mere fact that the passenger is injured while boarding, riding on, or alighting from a street car,[87] or from the mere fact of his falling from a train or car,[88] or on steps at a station;[89] nor does such presumption arise merely from the fact that defendant owned and operated, through its employee, the car by which plaintiff was injured,[90] nor from the mere relation of passenger and carrier.[91] The applicability of the res ipsa loquitur doctrine does not depend on the degree of care imposed by law on the carrier of passengers.[92]

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is applicable only where the thing shown speaks of the negligence of defendant,[93] and, where it is further made to appear that the injury was caused by something which, at the time it occurred, was in the care, custody, or under the control of the carrier, or in some way connected with, or related to, its business in the transportation of passengers, and the circumstances attending the injury were so unusual and of such a nature that the accident could not well have happened without defendant being negligent, as where the happening of the accident appears to have been due to defective roadbed, track, machinery, or appliances, or fault in the operation of the conveyance, it makes out a prima facie case in favor of plaintiff and throws on the carrier the burden of adducing evidence to show its freedom from negligence, that is, from any want of the exercise of the high degree of care, skill, and foresight required of carriers of passengers in the prosecution of their business with respect to the defect or fault which caused the accident.[94]

Negligence held not to be presumed

(1) That intending passenger was struck by "rear overhang" of street car rounding curve did not raise presumption of railroad's negligence.—Dwyer v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 2 P.2d 468, 115 Cal.App. 709.

(2) Where a carrier permitted a negro passenger to ride on its cars into a city where a mob attacked the car and injured the passenger, negligence of carrier will not be presumed from the mere happening of the accident.—Williams v. East St. Louis & S. Ry. Co., 232 S.W. 759, 207 Mo.App. 233.

(3) The skidding of an automobile or motorbus while traveling along wet street at eight or ten miles an hour cannot be presumed to be negligent.—Heidt v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, 284 S.W. 840, 219 Mo.App. 683.

(4) Where the thumb of a passenger on an elevated train was injured through a sliding door closing on it, no negligence could be inferred from the mere happening of the accident.—Kinbec v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 191 N.Y.S. 313.

(5) Court could not infer that, because railroad cars are usually provided with catch to hold door open while passengers are passing in or out, and door closed, catch was defective, or that railroad was negligent in not having door placed back sufficiently to interlock with catch.—Wood v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 170 A. 367, 111 Pa.Super. 430.

(6) Negligence could not be predicated on closing of door of railroad car on passenger's finger, in absence of evidence that door was closed in unusual manner or that there was anything defective in operation or construction of door or catch, or that railroad employee was responsible for door's movement.—Wood v. Pennsylvania R. Co., supra.

86. N.Y.—Salomone v. Yellow Taxi Corporation, 151 N.E. 442, 242 N.Y. 251, reversing 213 N.Y.S. 899, 215 App.Div. 790, and reargument denied 152 N.E. 445, 242 N.Y. 602.—Brown v. Klein, 245 N.Y.S. 654, 230 App.Div. 681.

87. Cal.—Rystinki v. Central California Traction Co., 165 P. 952, 175 Cal. 336.—Duffield v. Payne, 227 P. 217, 66 Cal.App. 767.
Ill.—Piper v. Green, 216 Ill.App. 590.
Md.—State v. United Railways & Electric Co. of Baltimore, 159 A. 916, 162 Md. 404, 83 A.L.R. 1307.—Callis v. United Rys. & Electric Co., 97 A. 715, 128 Md. 406.
Pa.—Wood v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 170 A. 367, 111 Pa.Super. 430.—Keller v. H., M. & F. Pass. R. Co., 1 Pa.Dist. 197, affirmed 149 Pa. 65.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Lenz, 164 S.E. 572, 158 Va. 732.
10 C.J. p. 1024 note 76.

88. La.—Betts v. Shreveport Rys. Co., 137 So. 615, 18 La.App. 282.
N.Y.—Scott v. New York Cent. R. Co., 216 N.Y.S. 163, 216 App.Div. 623.
10 C.J. p. 1025 note 77.

89. Ga.—Flanders v. Atlanta Terminal Co., 95 S.E. 307, 21 Ga.App. 812.

90. Mont.—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 235 P. 330, 72 Mont. 594.

91. Tex. — Southland Greyhound Lines v. Frausto, Civ.App., 69 S.W. 2d 497, error dismissed.

92. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Berry, 124 N.E. 737, 188 Ind. 514, denying rehearing 121 N.E. 655, 188 Ind. 514.

93. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
10 C.J. p. 1025 note 78.

94. U.S.—May Department Stores Co. v. Bell, C.C.A.Mo., 61 F.2d 830.—New York Cent. R. Co. v. Johnson, C.C.A.Mo., 27 F.2d 699, certiorari granted 49 S.Ct. 27, 278 U.S. 590, 73 L.Ed. 523, reversed on other grounds 49 S.Ct. 300, 279 U.S. 310, 73 L.Ed. 706, opinion amended 49 S.Ct. 417.—Mendelson v. Davis, C.C.A.Neb., 281 F. 18.
Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.—Bradley v. Williams, 101 So. 808, 20 Ala.App. 308.
Cal.—McIntosh v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 59 P.2d 959.—Robinson v. McAlister, 13 P.2d 926.—St. Clair v. McAlister, 13 P.2d 924, 216 Cal. 95.—Smith v. O'Donnell, 12 P.2d 933, 215 Cal. 714.—Graff v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 172 P. 603, 178 Cal. 171.—Rystinki v. Central California Traction Co., 165 P. 952, 175 Cal. 336.—Snyder v. Tanner Motor Livery, App., 50 P.2d 1051.—Jones v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 202 P. 919, 54 Cal.App. 744.
Colo.—Denver Tramway Corporation v. Kuttner, 35 P.2d 852, 95 Colo. 312.—Yellow Cab Co. v. Hodgson, 14 P.2d 1081, 91 Colo. 365, 83 A.L.R. 1156, quoting Corpus Juris at length.
Ill.—Roberts v. Economy Cabs, 2 N.E.2d 128, 285 Ill.App. 424.
Ind.—Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. v. Thornburg, 125 N.E. 57, 74 Ind.App. 642.
Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Roman's Guardian, 23 S.W. 2d 272, 232 Ky. 285.—Chadwick v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 281 S.W. 1018, 213 Ky. 331, 45 A.L.R. 1537.
La.—Wallace v. Shreveport Rys. Co., App., 175 So. 86.—Stevens v. Yellow Cab Co., App., 142 So. 807.—Rizzo v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 7 La.App. 686.
Md.—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158

It has been held that this presumption continues throughout the trial of the case;[95] and it has also been held that the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is not restricted in its application to carriers to injuries to persons who assume the character of passengers,[96] but applies to prospective as well as actual passengers,[97] and to a passenger injured on a freight train the same as to one injured on a passenger train.[98]

The doctrine applies to carriers jointly operating the conveyance at the time of the passenger's injury.[99]

Reasons for rule. The reasons for the doctrine as to the presumption of negligence arising from the circumstances of the injury inflicted on a passenger are, by some courts, said to be based on the fact that the evidence as to the cause of the accident lies peculiarly within the knowledge of the carrier.[1] By other courts it is said to rest on the fact that, where an accident happens which in the ordinary course of business would not happen if the required degree of care was observed, the presumption is that such care was wanting;[2] and still other courts base the doctrine in this class of cases on the ground that, as the carrier has failed in the duty to carry safely, undertaken by contract, the burden is on it to show an excuse for such failure.[3]

Md. 424, reargument denied 149 A 565, 158 Md. 424, and appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S Ct. 40, 282 U.S 801, 75 L Ed. 720—Hagerstown & F. Ry. Co. v. State, 99 A. 376, 129 Md. 318.

Mass.—Fitzmaurice v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. Co., 152 N E 239, 256 Mass. 217.

Mich.—Durfey v. Milligan, 251 N.W. 356, 265 Mich. 97.

Mo—Powell v. St Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co., 81 S.W.2d 957, 336 Mo. 1016—Elliott v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 236 S.W. 17—Anderson v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 233 S.W. 203, 290 Mo. 1—Malone v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 213 S.W. 864, 202 Mo App. 489.

Mont.—Heck v. Northern Pac. Ry. Co, 196 P. 521, 59 Mont. 106.

N.J.—Egner v. Hudson & M. R Co, 162 A. 554, 109 N J Law 367—Barney v Hudson & M. R. Co., 145 A 5, 105 N J.Law 274, affirmed 148 A. 917, 106 N.J Law 230, 231—Rapp v. Butler-Newark Bus Line, 138 A. 377, 103 N.J.Law 512, affirmed 140 A. 921, 104 N.J.Law 444.

N Y.—Salomone v. Yellow Taxi Corporation, 151 N.E. 442, 242 N Y 251, reversing 213 N.Y.S. 899, 215 App.Div. 790, and reargument denied 152 N.E. 445, 242 N Y. 602—Smith v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 201 N Y S. 676, 121 Misc. 673—Dusenbury v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 158 N Y S. 681, 95 Misc. 241.

Ohio—Sentker v. Martin, 19 Ohio N. P.,N S, 445.

Or.—Richardson v. Portland Trackless Car Co, 233 P. 540, 113 Or. 544.

Pa—Petri v. Pittsburgh Rys Co., 195 A. 107—Miller v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 154 A. 924, 303 Pa. 524—Petrie v Kaufmann & Baer Co, 139 A. 878, 291 Pa. 211—Johnston v. Director General of Railroads, 133 A. 158, 286 Pa. 166—Furby v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 132 A. 796, 286 Pa 85—Mink v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 93 Pa.Super. 63—Heim v. Philadelphia & Reading R. Co., 29 Pa.Dist. 453

S C—Hall v. Southern Ry Co, 160 S.E. 584, 162 S.C. 260—Porter v. Davis, 110 S.E. 121, 118 S C. 153.

Tenn.—Nashville Ry. & Light Co v. Owen, 11 Tenn App. 19.

Tex—Bower Auto Rent Co. v. Young, Civ App, 274 S.W. 295.

Va—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 140 S E. 648, 149 Va 549, rehearing denied 141 S.E 753, 149 Va. 549, addendum opinion 143 S. E 299, 150 Va. 647—Walters v Norfolk & W Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 182, 122 Va. 149.

Wash — Wade v. North Coast Transp. Co., 5 P 2d 985, 165 Wash 418—Bradley v. City of Seattle, 294 P. 554, 160 Wash. 100.

10 C J. p 1025 note 79.

Cause of accident unknown to plaintiff

In actions for injuries to passengers, carrier has burden of showing freedom from negligence if facts indicate that passenger had no knowledge of cause of accident.—Peterson v. Louisiana Power & Light Co, La. App, 174 So. 644.

"Split switch"

In a suit for injury to intending passenger, it appeared that a street car took an unexpected course, the back wheels going as they were intended and the front ones veering off by reason of a split switch and causing an unusual and dangerous movement of the car which could not have happened except for some defect in the track or car or some negligence in its management, defendant had burden of explaining the casualty, the machinery and appliances being peculiarly within defendant's knowledge. — Mayne v Kansas City Rys. Co, 229 S.W. 386, 287 Mo 235.

Knowledge of defendant of conditions

(1) Res ipsa loquitur doctrine would apply against railroad if conditions showed that grease on which passenger slipped must have been on station platform for considerable time.—Stonebreaker v Bamberger, 54 P.2d 418, 88 Utah 310.

(2) In such a case, a passenger slipping on grease on station platform is not bound to prove that railroad, knowing that motor vehicles frequently traversed platform and left grease, had, or was chargeable with, knowledge of particular grease involved—Stonebreaker v. Bamberger, supra.

Taxicab companies

(1) Taxicab company is "common carrier" within the application of the res ipsa loquitur doctrine which applies in action by passenger.—Bezera v. Associated Oil Co, 3 P.2d 622, 117 Cal App. 139.

(2) Driver's violation of rule by driving in prohibited direction on one-way street was evidence of negligence with respect to passenger.—Rea v. Checker Taxi Co., 172 N.E. 612, 272 Mass. 510.

Bus carrier

Rule of res ipsa loquitur applies to negligent injury by bus carrier, where accident could not ordinarily have happened without carrier's negligence, requiring carrier to show freedom from negligence—Crozier v. Hawkeye Stages, 228 N.W. 320, 209 Iowa 313

95. S.C—McKittrick v. Greenville Tract. Co., 70 S E. 414, 88 S.C 91.

96. N.Y.—Bartnik v. Erie R Co., 55 N.Y S 266, 36 App.Div. 246.

10 C.J. p 1026 note 82

97. Colo—Denver Tramway Corporation v. Kuttner, 35 P.2d 852, 95 Colo. 312.

98. Ind.—Vandalia R. Co. v. Darby, App., 108 N E. 778.

99. Kan—Woods v. Kansas City, K. V. & W. R Co., 8 P.2d 404, 134 Kan. 755

1. Cal.—Steele v. Pacific Electric R. Co, 143 P. 718, 168 Cal. 375.

10 C J. p 1027 note 84.

2. Iowa—Monahan v. Equitable L. Ins. Co, 156 N.W. 994.

10 C J. p 1027 note 85

3. La.—Hopkins v. New Orleans Ry.

Statutory provisions. In some jurisdictions this rule of res ipsa loquitur has been made the subject of statutory enactments,[4] under some of which enactments the presumption of negligence arises where the injury is shown to have been caused by the running of a locomotive or car, or other machinery,[5] or on proof of defendant's failure to use the utmost care and diligence for the safe carriage

& Light Co., 90 So. 512, 150 La. 61, 19 A.L.R. 1362—Johnson v. City of Monroe, App., 164 So. 456—Johnson v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 2 La.App. 244

10 C.J. p. 1027 note 86.

Extent of burden under rule

Although the carrier has the burden of proving its freedom from negligence where the passenger was not carried to his destination safely, the carrier is not required to show how and why passenger was injured to bar recovery.—Cusimano v. New Orleans Public Service, 127 So. 376, 170 La. 95, reversing 122 So. 903, 12 La.App. 586—Bynum v. City of Monroe, La.App., 171 So. 116—Dillon v. New Orleans Public Service, La.App., 170 So. 406.

4. In Arkansas, under Crawford & Moses' Dig. § 8562, injury of passenger by moving train is prima facie evidence of railroad's negligence.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Henry, 269 S.W. 51, 168 Ark. 146—10 C.J. p. 1027 note 87 [a].

In Florida

(1) The provision of Rev. Gen. St. 1920 § 4964, making a railroad company liable for damage to persons, stock, or other property by the "running" of locomotives, or cars, or other machinery, unless the company shall make it appear that its agents have exercised all ordinary and reasonable care and diligence, and providing that in all cases the presumption shall be against the company, applies only where injury is caused by an act of the railroad or its agents in running its locomotives or cars or other machinery.—Tampa Electric Co. v. Soule, 94 So. 692, 84 Fla. 557.

(2) Where the statutory presumption of negligence is applicable to put on defendant railroad company the burden of proving due care and diligence, the presumption does not outweigh proofs that employees of defendant company did in fact use due care in the premises, but the question of liability is to be determined by a proper consideration of all the evidence adduced under appropriate charges as to the law.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Hamlett, 89 So. 337, 81 Fla. 872.

10 C.J. p. 1027 note 87 [b].

In Georgia

(1) Proof of injury to person by servant of railroad raises presumption that railroad's negligence was proximate cause.—Western & A. R. R. v. Dobbs, 137 S.E. 407, 36 Ga.App. 516.

(2) The presumption of negligence as to a passenger raised by Civ. Code 1910 § 2780, is a rule of evidence and not a presumption of law, and may be rebutted either by the testimony of plaintiff or by that of defendant.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Winn, 103 S.E. 733, 25 Ga.App. 438.

(3) The presumption extends only to the acts of negligence charged in the petition.—Hines v. Hendricks, 104 S.E. 520, 25 Ga.App. 682—Southern Ry. Co. v. Winn, supra.

(4) In an action by a passenger to recover damages for personal injuries statute making proof of injury inflicted by train prima facie evidence of railroad's negligence is not void as arbitrary or unreasonable.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. Co. v. Fountain, 160 S.E. 789, 173 Ga. 593.

10 C.J. p. 1027 note 87 [c].

In Louisiana Civ.Code § 2754, throwing the burden of proof on a carrier to show want of negligence, refers to "things" intrusted to the care of the carrier and not to a person.—McGinn v. New Orleans R., etc., Co., 43 So. 450, 118 La. 811, 13 L.R.A.,N.S., 601 and note.

In Mississippi code 1906 § 1985, as amended by L.1912 c. 215, declaring that proof of injury inflicted by running of engines, etc., shall be prima facie evidence of want of skill and care, applies to shock received by passenger leaning against controller on platform of electric car not then in motion.—Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co. v. Hicks, 76 So. 873, 116 Miss. 164.

In Nebraska, under the Railroad Incorporation Act of 1867, § 3, Consol.St., 1891 c. 9 § 572, where it is established that a person is injured while a passenger of the railroad company, a conclusive presumption of negligence arises, except where it is disclosed that the injury was caused by his own criminal negligence, or by his violation of some rule of the company brought to his actual notice.—Lincoln Tract. Co. v. Heller, 100 N.W. 197, 102 N.W. 262, 72 Neb. 127.—10 C.J. p. 1027 note 87 [e].

5. Ga.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. Co. v. Fountain, 160 S.E. 789, 173 Ga. 593

10 C.J. p. 1027 note 88.

Running of train essential

(1) Where injury is shown to have been caused by running of train, presumption arises that injury was caused by railroad's negligence, but before presumption can be indulged, there must be some evidence that injury was caused by operation of train.—Lowden v. Scott, Ark., 95 S.W.2d 630.

(2) Where a passenger on a street car, in attempting to leave the car at a place where the car usually stops for the purpose of allowing passengers to descend from it after the car has come to a full stop, falls and injures herself, the mere fact of the injury does not cast on the company the presumption that it either caused the injury or that the injury was the result of any negligence on the part of the company or its agents, under Rev.Gen.St.1920 § 4964, since the presumption under such statute exists only where the injury was the result of an act of the railroad or its agents in running its locomotives, or cars, or other machinery.—Tampa Electric Co. v. Soule, 94 So. 692, 84 Fla. 557.

(3) The word "running," as used in the statute conveys the idea of action, the doing of something by the railroad company or its agents, and the presumption of negligence does not exist where, by no act of the company or its agents in running the locomotives, cars, or other machinery, a person or stock or other property is injured on railroad premises.—Tampa Electric Co. v. Soule, supra.

(4) Where a passenger was knocked from the platform of a street car and run over by the car, the presumption applies, although the alleged negligence was disassociated from the operation of the car, such as the negligent failure to protect the passenger from the danger to be anticipated from a crowd boarding the car.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Murphy, 110 S.E. 680, 28 Ga.App. 173.

(5) Where sole contention of passenger was that injury resulted from railroad's failure to have fire in its waiting room, and it affirmatively appeared that the damage was not caused by running of locomotive or cars or other machinery, or by persons in its employment and service, there was no presumption of negligence.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Newsome, 118 S.E. 566, 30 Ga.App. 621.

(6) In action for death of plaintiff's husband, who was stealing a ride on passenger train, where it appeared that he was discovered beside the track shot and bruised, the presumption of negligence against railroad did not arise.—Gray v. Georgia Southern & F. Ry. Co., 92 S.E. 961, 20 Ga.App. 201.

10 C.J. p. 1027 note 88 [b].

of passengers.[6] This presumption disappears on introduction of rebuttal testimony by the carrier.[7]

Gratuitous passenger. In case of injury to a gratuitous passenger, he must offer proof to supplement the presumption of negligence, in order to show gross negligence by the carrier,[8] and in the case of an employee riding on a free pass stipulating that the rider assumes all risk, the burden is on plaintiff to prove that the acts or omissions of the company were willful or wanton, as no presumption of willfulness or wantonness arises under a statute providing for a presumption of negligence where injuries result from running of trains.[9]

What law governs. It has been held that, as such presumption relates to the burden of proof, it is governed by the law of the forum, although the injury occurred in another state, where no such rule obtains.[10]

e. Res Ipsa Loquitur; Inapplicability of Rule; Waiver

The res ipsa loquitur doctrine does not apply when the injury was not the result of the carrier's negligence; nor does it apply where specific acts causing the injury are pleaded; nor if waived by plaintiff.

When the accident is such that negligence of the carrier cannot be inferred therefrom, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply;[11] nor does it apply where the evidence shows that the injury resulted probably from some unavoidable cause, that is, some cause outside the ordinary supervision and control of the carrier, and not connected with the construction or operation of the railroad,[12] or was not the result of any defect in the means of transportation or operation,[13] or that the accident might have been the result of the wrongful acts or negligence of third persons,[14] or of causes not due to human agency,[15] or where the accident causing the injury is to the passenger and not to the vehicle on which he is riding at the time;[16] nor does this doctrine apply where a definite cause is clear on the evidence.[17]

Act of passenger contributing to injury. The presumption of negligence does not arise where the injury is caused by some defect in the means of transportation combined with some deliberate and voluntary act on the part of the passenger[18] or a

6. Okl.—Sand Springs Ry. Co. v. Westhafer, 218 P. 525, 92 Okl. 89.

7. Ga.—Holmes v. Georgia Power Co., App., 162 S.E. 403, 44 Ga.App. 588, reversed on other grounds Georgia Power Co. v. Holmes, 165 S.E. 284, 175 Ga. 487, conformed to Holmes v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S.E. 918, 45 Ga.App. 826.

8. Pa.—Bowman v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 149 A. 877, 299 Pa. 558, certiorari denied 51 S.Ct. 27, 282 U.S. 849, 75 L.Ed. 752.
10 C.J. p. 1028 note 89.

9. Ga.—Lanier v. Bugg, 123 S.E. 145, 32 Ga.App. 294.

10. Ark.—Huckaby v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 177 S.W. 923, 119 Ark. 179.

11. Mass.—Coleman v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 143 N.E. 819, 249 Mass. 155.

12. U.S.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chatters, La., 49 S.Ct. 329, 279 U.S. 320, 73 L.Ed. 711, reversing, C.C.A., 26 F.2d 403, which affirmed, D.C., Chatters v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 17 F.2d 305, and certiorari granted 49 S.Ct. 26, 278 U.S. 590, 73 L.Ed. 523.
Pa.—Zolden v. Shenango Valley Traction Co., 94 Pa.Super. 191.
10 C.J. p. 1028 note 91.

Monoxide gas affecting bus passenger
The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur has been held inapplicable in passenger's action against bus company for ill effects resulting from inhalation of carbon monoxide gas while passing through tunnel.—Warshawsky v. Nevins Bus Co., 153 A. 114, 9 N.J.Misc. 227.

13. Pa.—Burns v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 144 A. 103, 294 Pa. 277—Duffy v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 140 A. 496, 291 Pa. 564—Swink v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 120 A. 827, 277 Pa. 220—Deady v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 100 Pa.Super. 208.
Va.—Walters v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 182, 122 Va. 149.

Doctrine held inapplicable
(1) That passenger, standing on steps of street car, stooped over, extending body beyond side of car and was struck by milk platform, raised no presumption of negligence of carrier.—Miller v. Pittsburgh, H., B & N. C. Rys. Co., 157 A. 330, 102 Pa.Super. 547.

(2) An injury to a passenger by the ordinary opening or closing of a street car door, although done by an employee of carrier, is not sufficient to charge the latter with negligence, since the presumption is such employee was acting within the proper line of his duty.—Swink v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 120 A. 827, 277 Pa. 220.

(3) Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is inapplicable in action for death of passenger where the sole course was the fact that the passenger fell or stepped off moving train.—Kercher's Adm'r v. Richmond, F. & P. R. Co., 142 S.E. 393, 150 Va. 108.

(4) In suit by plaintiff, injured by falling out of invalid chair while being lowered from defendant's baggage car by plaintiff's husband and friends, assisted by baggage master, doctrine of res ipsa loquitur was inapplicable.—Walters v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 182, 122 Va. 149.

14. Colo.—Yellow Cab Co. v. Hodgson, 14 P.2d 1081, 91 Colo. 365, 83 A.L.R. 1156, quoting Corpus Juris text.
Minn.—Sullivan v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 200 N.W. 922, 161 Minn. 45.
10 C.J. p. 1028 note 92.

Negligence of party to collision
Injured taxicab passenger, offering evidence that automobile driver's act was one cause of collision with taxicab, could not recover from taxicab company without proving its driver's negligence.—Klan v. Security Motors, 164 A. 235, 164 Md. 198.

15. Pa.—Fleming v. Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co., 27 A. 858, 158 Pa. 130, 38 Am.S.R. 835, 22 L.R.A. 351.
10 C.J. p. 1028 note 93.

16. Ark.—Price v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 88 S.W. 575, 75 Ark. 479, 112 Am.S.R. 79.
10 C.J. p. 1028 note 94.

17. Ill.—Letush v. New York Cent. R. Co., 267 Ill.App. 526.
Ind.—Engle v. Director General of Railroads, 133 N.E. 138, 78 Ind.App. 547.
Pa.—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co., 138 A. 852, 290 Pa. 365.
10 C.J. p. 1028 note 95.

18. Mass.—Shaughnessy v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 110 N.E. 962, 222 Mass. 334.
10 C.J. p. 1028 note 96.

fellow passenger.[19]

As dependent on pleading. The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur applies only where defendant's negligence is charged generally, and not where the specific acts which caused the injury are alleged, as in such a case plaintiff has the burden of proving the specific acts relied on;[20] but it has been held that plaintiff is not deprived of the benefit of such rule merely because he alleges his cause of action with unnecessary particularity,[21] and that, where a passenger pleads general and specific acts of negligence and the cause is tried on the theory that both specific and general negligence are alleged, the presumption of the carrier's negligence arises on proof of plaintiff's injury while a passenger.[22]

Injuries while at depot. Owing to the fact that the carrier is not required to use the highest degree of care to keep in repair the depot appointments, see supra § 713 et seq, the presumption of negligence has been held not to arise where injuries are received at a depot before taking passage on the carrier's train or vehicle,[23] unless they are received through the operation of a train.[24]

Waiver of presumption. When his petition has properly invoked the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur the passenger, by undertaking to prove some specific cause of the accident, does not waive the presumption of negligence arising from the injury to him,[25]

19. Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 187 P. 233, 77 Okl. 140

20. Ariz—Pickwick Stages Corporation v. Messinger, 36 P.2d 168, 44 Ariz 174.
Cal—Starkey v Market St. Ry. Co., 265 P 839, 90 Cal App. 249—Seney v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 255 P. 279, 82 Cal.App. 226.
Fla—Williams v. Hines, 86 So. 695, 80 Fla 690.
Mo—Stolovey v. Fleming, 8 S.W 2d 832, 328 Mo. 623—Duggan v. St. Louis Public Service Co, App, 56 S.W 2d 626—Mendenhall v. Springfield Traction Co, App., 26 S.W.2d 50—Heidt v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, 284 S.W. 840, 219 Mo. App 683
Tex—International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Bartek, Com.App., 213 S.W. 602, affirming, Civ.App., 177 S.W. 137.
10 C J. p 1028 note 97.

Application of doctrine to specific acts

In action for death of passenger when street car in which he was riding struck a truck, plaintiff who pleaded specific acts of negligence of street railroad must rely for recovery on such acts alone, but is entitled to application of rule of res ipsa loquitur in so far as such specific acts of negligence alleged in complaint were concerned—Atkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 234 P. 863, 71 Cal.App. 82.

Notice of intention not to rely on specific allegations

In passenger's action against street railroad for injuries sustained when trolley wire end swung through window and struck passenger, res ipsa loquitur rule could not be invoked unless passenger's pleading put railroad on notice that passenger did not intend to be restricted to specific allegation of defectiveness, and that passenger was relying upon more general allegation of defectiveness in wire. Passenger's petition against street railroad, for injuries sustained when trolley wire end swung through window and struck passenger, alleging specific acts of negligence and use of defective wire which was old and worn out "or defective in some manner unknown to this plaintiff," entitled passenger to invoke res ipsa loquitur rule.—Wichita Falls Traction Co v. Elliott, Tex. Com App., 81 S W.2d 659, answering certified questions, Civ.App., 85 S.W. 2d 1093, error dismissed.

Pleading held general, permitting application of doctrine

(1) In an action for damages for injuries sustained by a passenger, when the train on which he was riding was derailed.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.

(2) In action for injuries allegedly caused when defendant so negligently operated the train as to cause it to suddenly jerk with unusual and unnecessary force—Rhodes v. Missouri Pac R. Co., 255 S.W. 1084, 213 Mo.App. 515.

(3) In actions for injuries sustained in a collision.
Cal.—Sloan v. Original Stage Line, 12 P 2d 465, 124 Cal.App. 317.
Mo.—Powell v. St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co, 81 S W.2d 957, 336 Mo 1016—Stofer v. Harvey, App., 204 S.W. 587

(4) In action for injuries to passenger in auto stage.—Jianou v. Pickwick Stages System, 296 P. 108, 111 Cal App. 754

(5) In action for injuries to passenger when bus broke down.—Clarke v Cardinal Stage Lines, 31 P.2d 1, 139 Kan. 280.

(6) In passenger's action for injuries when falling from street car—Carlson v. Wells, Mo, 276 S.W. 26, 42 A L R. 1319.

(7) In action for injuries received when employees negligently started street car—Lich v. Wells, Mo.App., 296 S W 1043.

21. U S—May Department Stores Co. v. Bell, C C.A Mo, 61 F.2d 830
Kan.—Woods v. Kansas City, K V. & W. R. Co., 8 P 2d 404, 134 Kan. 755.
N Y.—De Roire v. Lehigh Valley R. Co, 199 N.Y S 652, 205 App Div. 549, citing Corpus Juris with approval.
10 C J p 1029 note 98

22. Cal.—Mudrick v. Market St. Ry. Co, App., 74 P 2d 328—Hellman v Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 27 P. 2d 946, 135 Cal.App. 627, rehearing denied 28 P.2d 384, 135 Cal. App. 627.
Iowa.—Crozier v. Hawkeye Stages, 228 N.W. 320, 209 Iowa 313.
N.Y.—De Roire v. Lehigh Valley R Co., 199 N.Y.S. 652, 205 App.Div. 549.
Tenn.—Oliver v. Union Transfer Co, 71 S.W.2d 478, 17 Tenn.App. 694—Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Patterson, 14 Tenn App. 652.
Tex—Schaff v. Sanders, Civ.App., 257 S.W. 670, affirmed, Com.App., 269 S W. 1034
10 C.J. p 1029 note 99.

23. N.J.—Feil v. West Jersey, etc, R Co., 72 A 362, 77 N.J.Law 502
10 C J. p 1029 note 2.

24. Md—Baltimore, etc., R. Co v. State, 63 Md. 135.
10 C J. p 1029 note 3.

25. Cal—Kilgore v. Brown, 266 P. 297, 90 Cal.App 555
Mo—Powell v St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co, 81 S W.2d 957, 336 Mo 1016—Porter v. St Joseph Ry, Light, Heat & Power Co., 277 S.W. 913, 311 Mo. 66—Kinchlow v. Kansas City, K. V. & W. Ry. Co, App., 264 S W 416—Timmons v Kurn, App, 100 S W.2d 952—Alewel v East St Louis & S Ry. Co, App., 26 S.W 2d 869—Malone v. Greyhound Lines, App., 22 S.W 2d 199—Smith v Creve Coeur Drayage & Motorbus Co., 296 S.W. 457, 220 Mo App. 1122—Heidt v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, 284 S W. 840, 219 Mo App. 683—Gibson v. Wells, App., 258 S W 1—Stofer v. Harvey, App, 204 S.W.

unless such evidence shows clearly what caused the accident.[26] He cannot avail himself of such presumption, however, where he has agreed that there shall be no liability on the carrier for injury to the passenger.[27] The application of the res ipsa loquitur doctrine against a carrier as to a passenger injured in a collision is not waived by proof of the negligence of the other party to the collision.[28]

f. Res Ipsa Loquitur; Applicability of Rule to Particular Accidents

(1) In general
(2) Collisions
(3) Explosives
(4) Derailments; wrecks of motor vehicles
(5) Machinery or appliances, and defects or breaks
(6) Sudden jerks; premature or sudden starts

(1) In General

The res ipsa loquitur doctrine applies to many kinds of accidents, such as overturning of cars, thrown or falling articles, and the like.

In the application of the general rule of res ipsa loquitur it has been held that the overturning or breaking down of a car or stagecoach is prima facie evidence of the carrier's negligence.[29] An accident caused by the washing away of an embankment, the breaking down of a bridge, or other casualty connected with the maintenance of the roadway, is prima facie evidence of negligence;[30] but it will not be presumed, in the absence of proof, that the carrier has exclusive possession of the tracks over a bridge owned by a municipality.[31] The presumption of negligence has also been held to arise where a passenger is injured during a fight between drunken passengers,[32] but no inference of failure to use due care for protection of a passenger arises merely from the fact that a fellow passenger committed an assault and battery on plaintiff.[33]

Falling or thrown articles. A presumption of negligence on the part of the carrier has been held to arise where a passenger is injured by an article thrown from a passing train,[34] as for example, a piece of coal,[35] or sparks or cinders,[36] or by the falling of some article in the car in which the passenger is being carried,[37] or by the falling of a pile of baggage.[38]

(2) Collisions

In general, a prima facie case is made against the carrier when it is shown that a collision occurred in which the passenger was injured.

As a general rule the happening of a collision between a train or car on which a passenger is riding, and another train or car of the same or another carrier, or with some obstruction on the track, whereby the passenger is injured, makes out a prima facie case of negligence,[39] and it is then incum-

587—Kilroy v. Kansas City & K. V. Ry. Co., App., 195 S.W. 522
10 C J p 1029 note 4

26. Mo.—Smith v. Creve Cœur Drayage & Motorbus Co, 296 S.W 457, 220 Mo App 1122.
Evidence held not to destroy right to submit case on res ipsa loquitur doctrine—Hurley v. Missouri Pac Transp. Co., App, 56 S W 2d 620, certiorari quashed State ex rel. and to Use of Hurley v. Becker, 66 S.W.2d 524, 334 Mo 537—Malone v. Greyhound Lines, Mo App, 22 S W.2d 199

27. Pa.—Crary v. Lehigh Valley R Co, 53 A. 363, 203 Pa 525, 93 Am S.R. 778, 59 L R A 815.
10 C.J. p 1029 note 5.

28. Cal—Robison v. McAlister, 13 P.2d 926—St. Clair v McAlister, 13 P 2d 924, 216 Cal. 95.

29. Kan—Bean-Hogan v. Kloehr, 175 P. 976, 103 Kan. 731, citing Corpus Juris with approval.
10 C.J p 1029 note 6.

30. U.S.—Gleason v. Virginia Midland R Co., 11 S.Ct 859, 140 U.S. 435, 35 L Ed 458, reversing 16 D C. 350.
10 C.J. p 1030 note 7.

31. N.Y—Meschneck v. Brooklyn, etc., R Co., 109 N.Y.S. 594, 125 App. Div. 265.

32. Pa.—Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Pillow, 76 Pa. 510, 18 Am.R. 424.

33. N.J—Hoff v. Public Service Ry. Co., 103 A. 209, 91 N.J.Law 641, reversing 101 A 404, 90 N.J.Law 386.

34. Ark.—Missouri Pac R Co. v Angus, 65 S.W 2d 543, 188 Ark 300.
Mo—Thomas v St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 293 S.W. 1051, citing Corpus Juris with approval.
10 C.J. p 1030 note 10.

35. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Reynolds, 71 S.W. 516, 24 Ky L. 1402.
10 C J. p 1030 note 11.

36. Ark—Batte v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co, 199 S.W. 907, 131 Ark 568.
Tex—Schaff v Sanders, Civ.App, 257 S W. 670, affirmed, Com App., 269 S.W. 1034

37. Pa.—Bickley v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co, 101 A. 654, 257 Pa 369.
10 C J. p 1030 note 12.
Article falling from rack in car
In railroad passenger's action for injuries sustained when struck by satchel which fell from rack over passenger's head, passenger had burden to show dislodgement of satchel was due to some cause railroad should have foreseen.—Creahan v. Pennsylvania R Co, 187 A. 51, 123 Pa.Super 268.

38. N.Y.—Horowitz v. Hamburg-American Packet Co, 41 N.Y S 54, 18 Misc 24, reversed on other grounds 43 N Y.S 1156, 14 App. Div. 631

39. U S.—Southern Ry. Co v Hussey, C C.A.Mo., 42 F.2d 70, 74 A.L. R. 1172, certiorari granted 51 S. Ct. 75, 282 U.S 826, 75 L.Ed 736, affirmed 51 S Ct. 367, 283 U S 136, 75 L Ed. 908—Chicago Rys Co v. Kramer, Ill, 234 F. 245, 148 C.C.A. 147.
Ark—Kansas City Southern Ry Co. v Cockrell, 277 S.W. 7, 169 Ark. 698.
Kan.—Cloud v. Kansas-Oklahoma Traction Co., 173 P. 338, 103 Kan. 249, 7 A L.R. 1671.
Mo.—Lowder v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 221 S.W. 800.
N Y.—De Roire v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 199 N.Y.S 652, 205 App.Div. 549, citing Corpus Juris with approval—Pierson v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 172 N.Y S. 492, bent on defendant, in order to prevent a recovery, to prove that the injury was not due to its negligence but resulted from an inevitable accident or some cause against which human care and foresight could not have provided,[40] or, having so alleged as an affirmative defense, that the accident and resulting injuries were caused solely and only by the negligence of the other party to the collision.[41] The presumption of negligence is the only presumption arising from the fact of the collision,[42] and plaintiff has the burden of proving all other necessary elements of the case.[43] Plaintiff has the burden of proving negligence of the carrier in collision cases when the res ipsa loquitur doctrine does not apply,[44] and the doctrine will not apply when plaintiff's evidence shows the collision was caused, not by the carrier's negligence, but by the negligence of the other party to the collision.[45]

It has been held that, where the respective agencies which cause a collision are not both within the 184 App Div 678, affirming 168 N Y S 425, 102 Misc 130, dismissal of appeal denied 123 N.E. 885, 226 N.Y 689, and affirmed 126 N E 920, 227 N Y. 666.

Pa.—Snyder v. Philadelphia & R Ry. Co., 130 A 398, 284 Pa. 59—Williams v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 101 A. 748, 257 Pa. 354—Zeaman v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 62 Pa Super. 463

Tenn.—Illinois Central Ry. Co. v. Solinsky, 12 Tenn App 389—Nashville Railway & Light Co. v. Owen, 11 Tenn App. 19.

Tex.—Dallas Ry. Co. v. Skorodynski, Civ.App., 292 S.W 638.

W Va.—Hodge v. Sycamore Coal Co., 95 S.E. 808, 82 W.Va. 106.

10 C J p 1032 note 27

Particular acts causing collision

The facts constituting the negligence resulting in collision being peculiarly within the knowledge of defendant railway company, plaintiff passenger was not bound to prove the particular acts of commission or omission upon the part of the employees of defendant which caused the accident.—Arnett v Illinois Cent. R. Co., 176 N.W 322, 188 Iowa 540

Prima facie case of negligence shown by collisions

(1) Caused by the parted sections of a train coming together—Steele v. Southern R Co, 33 S E. 509, 55 S C 389, 74 Am.S R. 756—10 C.J. p 1033 note 32.

(2) Between a train or car with a bridge.—Wilkerson v. Corrigan Cons. St R Co, 26 Mo App. 144.

(3) Between motor carriers and objects on the side of the road.

La.—Rowland v. Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co, 5 La.App. 156—Weikel v. Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co, 5 La.App. 146.

Mo.—Story v. People's Motorbus Co of St. Louis, 37 S.W.2d 898, 327 Mo 719.

(4) With a train or car of another line at a crossing—Clark v. Chicago, etc., R Co, 29 S W 1013, 127 Mo. 197—10 C J p 1033 note 30

(5) With an animal on the track—Yates v United Rys Co of St. Louis, Mo.App., 222 S.W. 1034—10 C J. p 1033 note 31

Railroad motor cars

In action against railroad for death of construction contractor engaged in riding on railroad motorcar in collision with motorcar operated by another contractor, res ipsa loquitur rule is not inapplicable on theory that motorcar operated by other contractor was not under exclusive management and control of railroad, or on ground that contractor was contributorily negligent in failing to keep reasonable lookout, since contributory negligence does not affect application of res ipsa loquitur rule. The evidence showed that servant of railroad accompanying contractor had charge of motorcar and exclusive right to control its operation, so far as contractor was concerned, although contractor sometimes drove car.—International-Great Northern R. Co v. Lucas, Tex Com App, 99 S W 2d 297, reversing, Civ. App, 70 S W 2d 226, opinion corrected, Com App, 100 S W 2d 97.

Collision of airplanes see C.J S. title Aerial Navigation § 45.

40. Cal.—Scarborough v. Urgo, 216 P. 584, 191 Cal 341—Carnahan v Motor Transit Co., 224 P. 143, 65 Cal App 402.

La.—Rowland v. Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co., 5 La App 156—Weikel v. Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co, 5 La App. 146

Mo.—Hulen v. Wheelock, 300 S W 479, 318 Mo 502—Stegman v People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App, 297 S W 189, 193.

10 C J p 1033 note 28.

Contrary proof

Implied negligence of owner of bus struck by truck, injuring passengers, may be removed by uncontradicted proof to contrary.—Cox v. Scott, 140 A. 390, 104 N J.Law 371, reversing Cox v. Rosenvinge, 135 A. 59, 4 N J Misc. 949

Effect of explanation

While proof of occurrence of a collision makes out a prima facie case of negligence, which the carrier sued for injury to a passenger must repudiate by proof, yet, when any explanation of the wreck is offered by defendant, the presumption falls, and the court should not then charge that the burden of proof is on the carrier to show that the wreck was not the proximate result of negligent operation—Lamar v. Panhandle & S. F Ry. Co, Tex Com.App, 248 S W. 34, reversing, Civ.App., 234 S W. 605

Oral proof of due care

A prima facie case made by plaintiff cannot be destroyed by oral proof tending to show due care by defendant, the sufficiency of such evidence being for the jury—Cecil v Wells, 259 S.W. 844, 214 Mo.App 193

41. Cal.—Crosby v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 264 P. 346, 88 Cal App. 799—Schropshire v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 258 P. 1107, 85 Cal.App 216.

42. No presumption of injury

In favor of street railroad's passenger suing its receivers, there is no presumption that she was injured at all in a collision, or consequently that her alleged condition resulted therefrom; the only presumption she can rely on is the presumption of negligence arising from the fact of collision—Stofer v. Dunham, Mo App., 208 S W. 641.

43. Mo.—Stofer v. Dunham, App, 208 S W. 641.

Matters for proof by plaintiff

Injured passenger, relying on doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, need prove only relation of passenger and carrier, carrier's exclusive control of car, collision, consequent injury, and extent—Smith v. Creve Cœur Drayage & Motorbus Co, 296 S W. 457, 220 Mo.App. 1122.

44. Mass.—Di Leo v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 150 N E. 891, 255 Mass 140.

45. Cal.—Gritsch v. Pickwick Stages System, 22 P.2d 554, 131 Cal.App 774

N.Y.—Norris v. National Biscuit Co, 215 N Y S 478, 216 App.Div. 462.

In action against carrier alone

Where passenger suing stage owner for injuries sustained in collision did not sue owner of other colliding automobile, and evidence warranted inference that operator of other automobile was alone guilty of negligence, res ipsa loquitur doctrine did not apply—Gritsch v Pickwick Stages System, 22 P.2d 554, 131 Cal App. 774.

control of defendant carrier, a presumption of negligence does not arise,[46] but there is authority to the contrary.[47]

Collisions between vehicles on highways. While it has been held that no presumption of negligence arises from a collision between a motor carrier and another vehicle on a street or highway,[48] or between a street car and a vehicle on a street or highway[49] particularly where it is apparent that the vehicle was the cause of the accident,[50] or where it is doubtful as to whether the car or the vehicle caused the accident,[51] it has been held that collisions between a motor carrier and another vehicle on the highway raise a presumption of negligence,[52] and where a street car causes a collision with a vehicle on the street, a presumption of negligence on the part of the carrier arises.[53] A presumption of negligence cannot arise against both the car and the vehicle, unless it is apparent that they were joint instrumentalities in causing the injury.[54]

As between different companies, it has been held that the fact of the collision and injury raises a presumption of negligence against the company carrying the passenger, but not against the other company,[55] and the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply against the carrier when the car in which plaintiff was riding was struck by a car following it, but operated by another company.[56] When both the carrier and the other party to the collision are sued by the passenger, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply as to such other party, who is obligated to exercise only ordinary care.[57]

Jumping in fear of collision. A presumption of negligence on the part of the carrier has been held to arise where a passenger is injured by jumping from a car, in a well grounded fear that a collision is about to take place.[58]

Objects projecting from other trains. The presumption of negligence has been held to arise where a passenger is struck by objects projecting from cars passing on adjoining tracks[59]

46. Colo.—Yellow Cab Co. v. Hodgson, 14 P.2d 1081, 91 Colo. 365, 83 A.L.R. 1156.
N.Y.—Plumb v. Richmond Light & R. Co., 187 N.Y.S. 38, 195 App.Div. 254, affirmed 135 N.E. 504, 233 N.Y. 285
10 C.J. p. 1033 note 33.

This Corpus Juris text has been quoted as authority in support of the proposition that, in joint action against taxicab owner and driver of other automobile for injuries sustained by taxicab passenger in collision resulting, "res ipsa loquitur" doctrine is inapplicable to taxicab owner, the other vehicle not being under his management and control. —Yellow Cab Co. v. Hodgson, 14 P.2d 1081, 91 Colo. 365, 83 A.L.R. 1156.

47. Iowa.—Crozier v. Hawkeye Stages, 228 N.W. 320, 209 Iowa 313.
Mo.—Zichler v. St. Louis Public Service Co., 59 S.W.2d 654, 332 Mo. 902—Cecil v. Wells, 259 S.W. 844, 214 Mo.App. 193—Gibson v. Wells, App., 258 S.W. 1.

48. Neb.—Knight v. Lincoln Traction Co., 255 N.W. 774, 127 Neb 447
Va.—Riggsby v. Tritton, 129 S.E. 493, 143 Va. 903, 45 A.L.R. 280, motion denied 133 S.E. 580, 45 A.L.R. 280.

Burden of proof on plaintiff
Negligence must be determined from facts bringing about collision between motor bus and automobile, and burden is upon passenger, suing for personal injuries, to prove negligence of bus driver as basis for recovery.—Knight v. Lincoln Traction Co., 255 N.W. 774, 127 Neb 447.

49. Mass.—Di Leo v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 150 N.E. 891, 255 Mass 140—Sandler v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 130 N.E. 104, 238 Mass 148—McNiff v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 125 N.E. 391, 234 Mass 252.
Pa.—Wilkerson v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 163 A. 909, 309 Pa. 381—Welsh v. Jump House Wrecking Co. of Pennsylvania, 159 A. 170, 306 Pa. 228—Appenzeller v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 163 A. 387, 107 Pa.Super. 319—Zolden v. Shenango Valley Traction Co., 94 Pa.Super. 191.
10 C.J. p. 1033 note 34.

50. N.Y.—Plumb v. Richmond Light & R. Co., 135 N.E. 504, 233 N.Y. 285, affirming 187 N.Y.S. 38, 195 App.Div. 254.
10 C.J. p. 1033 note 35.

51. Cal.—Harrison v. Sutter St. R. Co., 66 P. 787, 134 Cal. 549, 55 L.R.A. 608
10 C.J. p. 1033 note 36.

52. Cal.—Scarborough v. Urgo, 216 P. 584, 191 Cal. 341—Strock v. Pickwick Stages System, 290 P. 432, 107 Cal.App. 298—Carnahan v. Motor Transit Co., 224 P. 143, 65 Cal.App. 402.
Iowa.—Crozier v. Hawkeye Stages, 228 N.W. 320, 209 Iowa 313
La.—Thibodeaux v. Star Checker Cab Co., App., 143 So. 101—Dawson v. Toye Bros. Yellow Cab Co., 131 So. 716, 15 La.App. 326
N.J.—Cox v. Scott, 140 A. 390, 104 N.J.Law 371, reversing Cox v. Rosenvinge, 135 A. 59, 4 N.J.Misc. 949.
Okl.—A. & A. Taxicab Co. v. Bass, 58 P.2d 567.

Rear end collision
Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur applies where motor bus driven in excess of lawful statutory speed collides with automobile going in same direction.—Pickwick Stages Corporation v. Messinger, 36 P.2d 168, 44 Ariz. 174.

53. Cal.—Atkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 234 P. 863, 71 Cal.App. 82
Mo.—Zichler v. St. Louis Public Service Co., 59 S.W.2d 654, 332 Mo. 902
10 C.J. p. 1034 note 37

54. Cal.—Harrison v. Sutter St. R. Co., 66 P. 787, 134 Cal. 549, 55 L.R.A. 608.

55. Md.—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158 Md. 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md. 424, and appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S.Ct. 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed. 720.
10 C.J. p. 1034 note 39.

56. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Mann, 124 N.E. 510, 72 Ind.App. 50

57. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Alstadt, 143 N.E. 879, 195 Ind. 389.

58. Del.—Eaton v. Wilmington City R. Co., 75 A. 369, 24 Del. 435.
10 C.J. p. 1034 note 40.

59. N.Y.—Breen v. New York Cent.,

(3) Explosives

Negligence is generally presumed when the passenger's injury results from an explosion on or about the car in which he is riding.

Injuries to a passenger caused by an explosion on or about the car in which he is riding,[60] such as by an explosion of the boiler of the locomotive,[61] or of the controller box of an electric car,[62] or of a lamp in the car or other vehicle,[63] have been held to make out a prima facie case of negligence on the part of the carrier unless it is evident that the explosion was such that it could not have been prevented by that high degree of care required of carriers[64] or the carrier shows it occurred through no fault of his own.[65]

(4) Derailments; Wrecks of Motor Vehicles

A presumption of negligence arises when injuries are shown to have been received by a passenger in a derailment accident, or when a motor carrier runs off the road.

Applying the rule previously stated, that negligence is not to be inferred from the mere happening of an accident, it has been held that derailment of a car, in and of itself, is not evidence of negligence;[66] but generally a presumption of negligence with regard to the condition of the track, roadbed, or machinery, or with regard to the operation of the train, arises where injuries are shown to have been received by a passenger in a derailment accident,[67] or, by analogy, when a motor vehicle leaves the road or highway,[68] and places on de-etc., R Co., 16 N.E. 60, 109 N.Y. 297, 4 Am.S.R 450.

10 C J. p 1034 note 41.

60. Ark.—Butler County R. Co. v. Lawrence, 250 S.W. 340, 158 Ark. 271.
10 C.J. p 1037 note 56.

The burden was on defendant carrier to overcome the presumption that an explosion of the boiler of the motor car in which plaintiff was riding resulting in injury to plaintiff was not due to its negligence.—Butler County R. Co. v. Lawrence, 250 S. W. 340, 158 Ark. 271.

61. Mo.—Kelly v. Chicago, etc., R Co, 87 S.W. 583, 113 Mo.App. 468.
10 C.J. p 1037 note 57.

62. Kan.—Woods v. Kansas City, K. V. & W. R. Co., 8 P.2d 404, 134 Kan. 755.
10 C J. p 1037 note 58.

Complication of machinery, no excuse

That machinery of street car is complicated does not exclude application of res ipsa loquitur to case of passenger injured when controller of car exploded, causing him to jump.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo. 1.

63. N J.—Hughes v. Atlantic City, etc., R. Co., 89 A. 769, 85 N.J. Law 212, L R.A.1916A 927.
N.Y.—Wilkie v. Bolster, 3 E.D.Smith 327.

64. Mass.—Bigwood v. Boston, etc., R Co., 95 N.E. 751, 209 Mass. 345, 35 L R A.,N S., 113.

65. Colo.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo 1.

66. Mich.—Bury v. Detroit United Ry, 164 N.W. 460, 198 Mich. 447.

67. U.S.—Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Ciechowski, C.C.A.N Y, 10 F.2d 82, certiorari denied 46 S Ct. 352, 270 U.S. 654, 70 L.Ed. 783—Pennsylvania Co. v. Clark, C.C.A.Ohio, 266 F. 182.
Ala.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Robertson, 91 So 470, 206 Ala 578—Central of Georgia R Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
Cal.—Lawrence v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 229 P. 885, 68 Cal.App 494—Morgan v. Southern Pac. Co, 187 P. 74, 45 Cal App 229.
Ill.—Feldman v. Chicago Rys. Co, 124 N E 334, 289 Ill. 25, 6 A.L R. 1291, reversing 212 Ill App. 482—Klaustermeier v. St. Louis, S. & P. R. R., 222 Ill App. 374—Kanter v. St. Louis, S. & P. R. R., 218 Ill. App. 565.
Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Morris, 136 N.E. 861, 193 Ind. 313.
Iowa.—Lewis v. Cedar Rapids & I. C. R. & Light Co., 167 N W. 538, 183 Iowa 725, L R.A 1918E 826.
Kan.—Cloud v Kansas-Oklahoma Traction Co., 173 P. 338, 103 Kan. 249, 7 A.L.R. 1671
La.—Wade v. Houston & S. R. Co., 72 So. 220, 139 La. 759.
Mass.—Gilchrist v. Boston Elevated Ry., 172 N E. 349, 272 Mass. 346.
Miss.—Columbus & G. Ry. Co. v Phillips, 133 So 123, 160 Miss. 390
Mo.—Trowbridge v. Fleming, 269 S. W. 610—Watson v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 287 S.W. 813, 221 Mo.App. 621—Jackmann v. St Louis & H. Ry. Co, App., 187 S W. 786.
Ohio.—Scrabic v. Cincinnati, N O. & T P. Ry Co, 182 N.E. 528, 42 Ohio App. 473—Lake Shore Electric R Co v. Hobart, 13 Ohio Cir Ct,N.S, 592.
Pa.—Shaughnessy v. Director General of Railroads, 118 A. 390, 274 Pa. 413, 23 A.L.R 1211.
Tex.—Dowdy v. Southern Traction Co., Com.App, 219 S.W. 1092, reversing, Civ App, 184 S.W. 687—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Stivers, Civ App., 211 S W. 319
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Lowry, 184 S.E 177—Chesapeake & O Ry Co. v. Baker, 143 S. E. 299, 150 Va 647, addendum to opinion denying rehearing 141 S E 753, 149 Va. 549, denying rehearing 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va 549—Hines v. Beard, 107 S E 717, 130 Va. 286.
W.Va.—Thomas v. Monongahela Valley Traction Co, 112 S E. 228, 90 W.Va. 681
10 C J. p 1034 note 42.

Extent of presumption

Presumption of railroad's negligence merely relieves one injured of necessity of alleging and proving specific negligence.—Bond v St Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 288 S W. 777, 315 Mo. 987.

Derailment after collision

(1) Although train collided with object not within carrier's control, the presumption of breach of duty persists, and the derailment and resulting injury charges the carrier with the burden of exculpating itself from presumable negligence.—De Roire v. Lehigh Valley R Co, 199 N.Y S 652, 205 App.Div. 549.

(2) When a derailment results from a collision of a passenger train with an animal on the track, a presumption of negligence arises against the carrier, which can be rebutted by the carrier only by showing that it was free from negligence, and to meet this burden it must show that in all matters which might have been connected with the accident it has exercised that high degree of care, skill, and foresight which is required of it by the nature of the business.—Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Kappe, Tex Civ.App, 235 S W. 253, error refused.

(3) Where a passenger train collides with a freight on a side track and is derailed, a presumption of negligence arises as a fact.—Wichita Falls, R. & Fort Worth R Co. v. Baker, Tex Civ.App., 242 S W. 273

68. Cal.—Mansfield v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, Inc., 229 P. 890, 68 Cal App. 507—Leitert v

fendant the burden of accounting for the derailment and showing that it was without negligence on the part of its employees, or that the accident could not have been prevented by the exercise of the highest degree of care compatible with the prosecution of its business.[69] The presumption may be rebutted by evidence which makes it equally probable that the derailment was not due to negligence on defendant's part,[70] even without showing what caused the derailment,[71] or it may be rebutted by evidence showing that it was caused by the acts of some third person,[72] or by vis major;[73] but proof that the derailment occurred from some unaccountable cause has been held insufficient to overcome the presumption.[74]

While plaintiff need not show any negligence causing the derailment, if he alleges general negligence, he may show specific defects without destroying the presumption of negligence on the carrier's part,[75] and the right of a passenger to the inference of negligence arising from a motor vehicle's leaving the road is not lost by his introducing evidence of the topography of the country and the general surroundings of the scene of the accident,[76] nor testimony as to how the overturning of the vehicle occurred.[77] The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply when the cause of the derailment is definitely shown by positive evidence.[78]

The presumption that a traveler at a railroad crossing exercised due care because his own safety was involved does not apply to the driver of a motor carrier running off the road.[79]

The res ipsa loquitur doctrine does not apply where the carrier had no control or management of the train derailed, but the burden is on plaintiff to show that the negligence of the railroad, which hired its equipment and employees to the owner of the train, caused the accident.[80]

Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 229 P. 889, 68 Cal.App. 504—Lawrence v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 229 P. 885, 68 Cal.App. 494—Wright v. Yosemite Transp. Co., 175 P. 906, 38 Cal. App. 782—Wright v. Yosemite Transp. Co., 175 P. 905, 38 Cal.App. 277.

Or.—Francisco v. Circle Tours Sightseeing Co., 265 P. 801, 125 Or. 80—Coblentz v. Jaloff, 239 P. 825, 115 Or. 656.

Tenn.—Oliver v. Union Transfer Co., 71 S.W.2d 478, 17 Tenn.App. 694—Greyhound Lines, Inc., v. Patterson, 14 Tenn.App. 652.

69. U.S.—Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Ciechowski, C.C.A.N.Y., 10 F.2d 82, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 352, 270 U.S. 654, 70 L.Ed. 783—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Irving, Wash., 234 F. 562, 148 C.C.A. 328.

Ala.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Robertson, 91 So. 470, 206 Ala. 578—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.

Cal.—Morgan v. Southern Pac. Co., 187 P. 74, 45 Cal.App. 229.

Ill.—Kanter v. St. Louis, S. & P. R. R., 218 Ill.App. 565.

Mo.—Scheipers v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 298 S.W. 51—Bond v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 288 S.W. 777, 315 Mo. 987—Trowbridge v. Fleming, 269 S.W. 610—Craig v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 185 S.W. 205.

Pa.—Shaughnessy v. Director General of Railroads, 118 A. 390, 274 Pa. 413, 23 A.L.R. 1211—Doud v. Hines, 112 A. 528, 269 Pa. 182.

Tex.—Dowdy v. Southern Traction Co., Com.App., 219 S.W. 1092, reversing, Civ.App., 184 S.W. 687.

Va.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va. 549, rehearing denied 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, addendum opinion 143 S.E. 299, 150 Va. 647.

W.Va.—Thomas v. Monongahela Valley Traction Co., 112 S.E. 228, 90 W.Va. 681.

10 C.J. p 1035 note 43.

70. Ga.—Florida Cent., etc., R. Co. v. Rudulph, 38 S.E. 328, 113 Ga. 143.

10 C.J. p 1036 note 44.

71. Tex.—Davis v. Galveston, etc., R. Co., 93 S.W. 222, 42 Tex.Civ. App. 55.

10 C.J. p 1036 note 45.

72. U.S.—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Irving, Wash., 234 F. 562, 148 C.C.A. 328.

10 C.J. p 1036 note 46.

Burden of proving vandalism on defendant

Burden was on carrier to prove that wreck was caused by malicious tampering with switch and that carrier was not negligent in failing to discover condition in time to avert accident.—Sinan v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 284 P. 1041, 103 Cal. App. 703.

Circumstantial evidence of vandalism

Where a passenger shows that there was a derailment which caused her injuries, and the carrier produces circumstantial evidence tending to show that the derailment was due to vandalism, plaintiff must show negligence by a preponderance of the evidence.—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Irving, Wash., 234 F. 562, 148 C.C.A. 328.

73. Mont.—Pierce v. Great Falls, etc., R. Co., 56 P. 867, 22 Mont. 445.

10 C.J. p 1036 note 47.

74. Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Lindsey, 110 S.W. 995, 51 Tex.Civ. App. 67.

10 C.J. p 1036 note 48.

75. Mass.—Gilchrist v. Boston Elevated Ry., 172 N.E. 349, 272 Mass. 346.

Ohio.—Scrabic v. Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. Ry. Co., 182 N.E. 528, 42 Ohio App. 473.

10 C.J. p 1036 note 49.

76. Cal.—Mansfield v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, Inc., 229 P. 890, 68 Cal.App. 507.

77. Cal.—Seney v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 255 P. 279, 82 Cal.App. 226.

78. Va.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, denying rehearing 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va. 549, addendum opinion 143 S.E. 299, 150 Va. 647.

Defective rail

Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur held inapplicable to derailment due to transverse fissure in rail, being applicable only in absence of positive evidence.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Baker, 141 S.E. 753, 149 Va. 549, denying rehearing 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va. 549, addendum opinion 143 S.E. 299, 150 Va. 647.

79. W.Va.—Venable v. Gulf Taxi Line, 141 S.E. 622, 105 W.Va. 156.

80. U.S.—Sasinowski v. Boston & M. R. R., C.C.A.Mass., 74 F.2d 628.

Circus train transported under contract

Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur held inapplicable in action against railroad for death of circus employee resulting from derailment due to dropping of drawbar which coupled circus cars, where railroad under its contract to transport circus train

An allegation of willful injury to a passenger resulting from a derailment cannot be sustained by a prima facie presumption of the carrier's negligence resulting from an unexplained derailment.[81]

(5) Machinery or Appliances, and Defects or Breaks

Negligence is presumed where an accident occurs through the breaking, or defective condition, of machinery or appliances by means of which the passenger is carried.

Where an accident causing injuries to a passenger occurs through the breaking, or the defective condition of some portion, of the machinery or appliances by which the passenger is carried, a prima facie case of negligence on the part of the carrier is made out.[82] It is then incumbent on the carrier, in order to prevent a recovery, to show that the injury occurred without any negligence on its part, and that it was the result of an inevitable accident.[83] The passenger does not have the burden of proving latent defects in appliances and defendant's knowledge thereof.[84] Negligence is not inferable from the fact that a passenger fell in alighting from a car because of the height of the running board.[85] A passenger, catching his foot on a step while alighting from a vehicle, must prove that the injuries were caused by a visible defect which the carrier could have discovered.[86] The rule does not apply to a case where the injury results from some defect in the floor of the vehicle, perfectly visible to the passenger[87] or from striking a seat pedestal had no control over circus cars.—Sasinowski v. Boston & M. R. R., C. C.A.Mass., 74 F.2d 628.

81. Ala.—Knight v. Tombigbee Valley R. Co., 67 So. 238, 190 Ala. 140.

82. U.S.—May Department Stores Co. v. Bell, C.C.A.Mo., 61 F.2d 830.
Cal.—Sander v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 175 P. 901, 38 Cal. App. 222.
Fla.—Tampa Electric Co. v. Vavoudes, 149 So. 584, 111 Fla. 524.
Ill.—Appel v. Alton, G. & St. L. Traction Co., 207 Ill.App. 562.
Kan.—Cloud v. Kansas-Oklahoma Traction Co., 173 P. 338, 103 Kan. 249, 7 A.L.R. 1671.
Ky.—Consolidated Coach Corporation v. Hopkins, 14 S.W.2d 768, 288 Ky. 184.
La.—Martin v. Interurban Transp. Co., 131 So. 514, 15 La.App. 256.
Md.—Smith v. Blue Ridge Transp. Co., 191 A. 66.
N.J.—Barney v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 145 A. 5, 105 N.J.Law 274, affirmed 148 A. 917, 106 N.J.Law 230, 231—McPherson v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 127 A. 23, 100 N.J.Law 262, modified on other grounds 128 A. 231, 101 N.J.Law 410.
Pa.—De Marchi v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 107 A. 703, 264 Pa. 321—Finnegan v. Delaware River Ferry Co., 68 Pa.Super. 428.
10 C.J. p. 1036 note 51.

Nature of inference

When a passenger shows that he was injured through some defect in appliances of carrier, which might have been prevented by due care, jury may infer negligence, unless carrier proves that due care was exercised, which inference is a legal inference in sense that it is permitted by law, but not in sense that it is required.—McPherson v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 128 A. 231, 101 N.J. Law 410, modifying 127 A. 23, 101 N.J.Law 262.

Res ipsa loquitur doctrine held applicable where injuries are caused by:

(1) Blowout of tire.—Brisolara v. Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co., 127 So. 57, 13 La.App. 27.

(2) Breaking of an axle.—Clarke v. Cardinal Stage Lines, 31 P.2d 1, 139 Kan. 280—10 C.J. p. 1037 note 53.

(3) Breaking of wheel.—Sakowski v. Baird, 69 S.W.2d 649, 334 Mo. 951—10 C.J. p. 1037 note 52.

(4) Breaking of seat.—Rosenbaum v. Union Ry. Co., 169 N.Y.S. 456.

(5) Breaking of strap on fare register permitting conductor to fall on passenger.—Batch v. Helena Light & Ry. Co., 159 P. 411, 52 Mont. 517.

(6) Breaking of tie rod.—Martin v. Interurban Transp. Co., 131 So. 514, 15 La.App. 256.

(7) Breaking suddenly of glass window.—Bressler v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 13 N.E.2d 772, 277 N.Y. 200, reversing 297 N.Y.S. 336, 251 App.Div. 890—Naylor v. Erie R. Co., 278 N.Y.S. 837, affirmed 283 N.Y.S. 996, 246 App.Div. 548.

(8) Defective door.—Schlossberg v. New York Rys. Co., 171 N.Y.S. 255.

(9) Defective seat.—Smith v. Blue Ridge Transp. Co., Md., 191 A. 66.

(10) Defective step.—Fitzgerald v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 174 N.E. 490, 274 Mass. 287.

(11) Defective trapdoor.—Johnston v. Director General of Railroads, 133 A. 158, 286 Pa. 166.

(12) Falling pole.—Stewart v. Barre & Montpelier Traction & Power Co., 111 A. 526, 94 Vt. 398.

(13) Shock of electricity because of a defect in the insulation or other appliances.
Miss.—Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co. v. Hicks, 76 So. 873, 116 Miss. 164
N.J.—McKittrick v. Public Service Ry. Co., 128 A. 226, 101 N.J.Law 262.
10 C.J. p. 1037 note 54.

(14) Trolley wire.
Ill.—Jensen v. East St. Louis Ry. Co., 202 Ill.App. 583.
Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Roman's Guardian, 23 S.W. 2d 272, 232 Ky. 285.

Inference of defective appliance

That a door of an interurban car equipped with an automatic catch or spring to keep the door open closed on a passenger's hand spoke for itself, and raised an inference that the catch was defective, although there was testimony that after the accident the conductor examined the catch and found it in good condition.—Anderson v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 233 S.W. 203, 290 Mo. 1.

83. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Robertson, 83 So. 102, 203 Ala. 358.
Md.—Smith v. Blue Ridge Transp. Co., 191 A. 66.
Mo.—Kinchlow v. Kansas City, K. V. & W. Ry. Co., 264 S.W. 416
N.J.—McKittrick v. Public Service Ry. Co., 128 A. 226, 101 N.J.Law 262.
Pa.—De Marchi v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 107 A. 703, 264 Pa. 321.
10 C.J. p. 1037 note 55.

84. Ky.—Consolidated Coach Corporation v. Hopkins, 14 S.W.2d 768, 228 Ky. 184.

85. Mass.—Kinnarney v. Milford & U. St. Ry. Co., 134 N.E. 614, 241 Mass. 127.

86. N.J.—Heinige v. Little Ferry Bus Line, 171 A. 135, 12 N.J.Misc. 213.

87. Kan.—Cloud v. Kansas-Oklahoma Traction Co., 173 P. 338, 103 Kan. 249, 7 A.L.R. 1671.

which projected because the top had been pushed back.[88]

Breaking of glass; falling windows. While it has been held that negligence may be inferred from the breaking of glass, resulting in injury to a passenger,[89] and that where glass falls from a window suddenly and without warning the burden is on the carrier to show its freedom from negligence,[90] so where, in the case of breaking of glass, the facts and circumstances show that the accident could not have happened if the carrier had used ordinary care,[91] the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur has been held inapplicable in an action for injuries resulting from the breaking of a window due to its sudden and unexplained fall where the window was subject to the passenger's control[92] or to the breaking of a window where there was nothing to show the cause thereof, or any defect,[93] or to the falling out of a cracked glass, of which defendant was not charged with notice.[94]

The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply against an initial carrier to the breaking of a car window after the car has passed from the initial carrier into the custody of another carrier.[95]

A passenger injured by the sudden falling of a window has the burden of proving the carrier's negligence, the mere unexplained falling of the window not being evidence of negligence.[96]

Property belonging to and taken by a passenger into a car of a carrier is not an appliance of transportation, within the rule that, where an injury results from something improper or unsafe in the appliance of transportation, the burden is on the carrier to prove that such injury did not result from its negligence.[97]

Ice and snow. The burden is on the carrier to rebut the inference of negligence arising from snow and ice on the steps of its conveyances.[98] Plaintiff has the burden of showing icy condition was known to the carrier or had existed long enough that by the exercise of due care it could have been discovered and remedied.[99]

(6) Sudden Jerks; Premature or Sudden Starts

The carrier is presumed to have been negligent when it is shown that the injuries resulted from an unusual or extraordinary jerk or a sudden and unusual stop, or a sudden start while the passenger was boarding or alighting; but no such presumption arises merely from the fact of jerking or jolting, or stopping and starting.

As to injuries resulting from the sudden movement of a train or car, causing a jerk or jolt, the burden of proving which is on plaintiff,[1] it has been held that the fact of the jerk or jolt itself, when proved as being unusual or extraordinary in its nature, is prima facie evidence of negligence, the burden then being on defendant to show freedom

88. Mass.—Mulry v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 179 N.E. 595, 278 Mass. 210, 78 A.L.R. 1372.

89. N.J.—Wirth v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 194 A. 143, 119 N.J.Law 25—Scilimbracca v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 146 A. 665, 7 N.J. Misc. 635, affirmed 152 A. 920, 107 N.J.Law 192.

90. La.—Hart v. Gulf, M. & N. R. Co., App., 167 So. 166.
Mo.—Pennifold v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 59 S.W.2d 713.

91. Wis.—Sommerfield v. Chicago, N. S. & M. R. R., 180 N.W. 847, 173 Wis. 191.

92. Conn.—Briganti v. Connecticut Co., 175 A. 679, 119 Conn. 316

93. N.Y.—McKinney v. New York, W. & B. Ry. Co., 179 N.Y.S. 535.
Wis.—Sommerfield v. Chicago, N. S. & M. R. R., 180 N.W. 847, 173 Wis. 191.

94. N.Y.—Bressler v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 1 N.E.2d 828, 270 N.Y. 409, reversing 282 N.Y.S. 120, 245 App.Div. 814—Bressler v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 336, 251 App.Div. 890.

95. U.S.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chatters, La., 49 S.Ct. 329, 279 U.S. 320, 73 L.Ed. 711, reversing, C.C.A., 26 F.2d 403, which affirmed, D.C., Chatters v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 17 F.2d 305, and certiorari granted 49 S.Ct. 26, 278 U.S. 590, 73 L.Ed. 523.

96. Mass.—Scott v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 176 N.E. 530, 276 Mass. 21—Luca v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 171 N.E. 664, 271 Mass. 410.
N.C.—Saunders v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 117 S.E. 4, 185 N.C. 289, 29 A.L.R. 1258.
However, it has been held that, where a window falls on the arm of a passenger, the happening of the accident raises a presumption of negligence on part of the railroad company—Paynter v. Atlantic City R. Co., 62 Pa.Super. 455.

97. N.Y.—Dusenbury v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 158 N.Y.S. 681, 95 Misc. 241.

No presumption
That baggage is in the aisle and a passenger stumbles over it does not raise a presumption of negligence on the part of the street railroad—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N.W. 112, 283 Mich. 413.

98. Minn.—Gegere v. Chicago & N.W. Ry. Co., 220 N.W. 429, 175 Minn. 96

99. Mo.—Blankenship v. St. Louis Public Service Co., 71 S.W.2d 723.
Mont.—Heck v. Northern Pac. Ry. Co., 196 P. 521, 59 Mont. 106.
N.J.—Griffin v. Hohorst, Inc., 185 A. 535, 14 N.J.Misc. 421.
Wis.—Ennis v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 232 N.W. 540, 202 Wis. 277.

Presence of ice on step of defendant's bus, causing alighting passenger's fall, does not invoke res ipsa loquitur doctrine.—Griffin v. Hohorst, 185 A. 535, 14 N.J.Misc. 421.

Matter within carrier's knowledge
Passenger, who slipped on icy step when boarding street car, need not show that icy condition of step existed when car left car barn in order to recover, since such information lay peculiarly with street railway—Olszowy v. Cleveland Ry. Co., 192 N.E. 366, 47 Ohio App. 529.

1. Kan.—Wall v. Union Traction Co., 196 P. 434, 108 Kan. 531.
Va.—Ellis v. Virginia Ry. & Power Co., 110 S.E. 382, 132 Va. 24.
10 C.J. p. 1030 note 15.

from negligence on its part;[2] and it is not necessary for plaintiff to go further and to show that the jerk or jolt was not in the course of the ordinary operation of the road,[3] but the presumption of negligence becomes conclusive unless it is shown that the jerking or jolting of the car was unavoidable in the exercise of the highest degree of care.[4] Thus a prima facie case has been held to be made out, under the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, where it is shown that the passenger was injured by reason of the sudden and unusual lurching or jerking of a moving train or car, causing him to be thrown therefrom,[5] or by the sudden and unusual stopping of a train or car, causing him to fall,[6] or by reason of the sudden starting of a car while the passenger was boarding or alighting therefrom, after it had stopped,[7] or almost stopped,[8] at a regular stopping place.

Where jerk or jolt not unusual. On the other hand, the mere fact that the injury was caused by a jerk or jolt of the car does not raise a presumption of negligence, where it is not shown that the jerk or jolt was of an unusual or extraordinary nature,[9] particularly where there was no collision or injury to the car;[10] and it has been held that such presumption will not arise even from an unusual jerk and the resulting injury, but that plaintiff must show negligence on the part of the carrier in the construction of the road or in the management of the train or car;[11] and when defendant shows there

2. U.S.—Southern Pac. Co v. Hanlon, C.C.A.Cal., 9 F.2d 294.
Md.—United Rys. & Electric Co. of Baltimore v. Phillips, 99 A. 355, 129 Md. 328, L.R.A.1917C 384.
Mo.—Thompson v. Kansas City Public Service Co., App., 114 S.W.2d 145—Heidt v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App., 9 S.W.2d 650—Rhodes v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 255 S.W. 1084, 213 Mo.App. 515.
10 C.J. p 1030 note 16.

Discharge of full duty

Carrier had burden of showing passenger had not been thrown through opening of vestibule door while train was moving, or, if he had, that carrier discharged its full duty.—Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co. v. Galvin, C.C.A.Mich., 54 F.2d 202, certiorari denied 52 S. Ct. 407, 285 U.S. 551, 76 L.Ed. 941.

3. Mass.—Bell v. New York, etc., R. Co., 104 N.E. 963, 217 Mass. 408.

4. Okl.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Fitts, 140 P. 144, 40 Okl. 685, L.R.A.1916C 348.
10 C.J. p 1031 note 18.

5. N.C.—McGraw v. Southern Ry. Co., 175 S.E. 286, 206 N.C. 873
Or.—Richardson v. Portland Trackless Car Co., 233 P. 540, 113 Or. 544.
10 C.J. p 1031 note 19.

6. U.S.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Hanlon, C.C.A.Cal., 9 F.2d 294.
Ky.—Kentucky & T. Ry. Co. v. Ball, 194 S.W. 785, 175 Ky. 630.
N.Y.—Lombardi v. New York State Rys., 231 N.Y.S. 306, 224 App.Div. 438.
Pa.—Di Paolo v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 101 Pa.Super. 254.
10 C.J. p 1031 note 20.

7. Cal.—Goldstein v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 202 P. 155, 54 Cal.App. 322—Murray v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 193 P. 596, 49 Cal.App. 462.
Ill.—Heineke v. Chicago Rys. Co., 116 N.E. 761, 279 Ill. 210, affirming 199 Ill.App. 399.
Mo.—Paul v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 46 S.W.2d 910—Zimmerman v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 41 S.W.2d 579, 226 Mo.App. 369.
Tenn.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Akin, 203 S.W. 329, 140 Tenn. 34, citing Corpus Juris with approval
W.Va.—Bartlett v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 99 S.E. 322, 84 W.Va. 120.
10 C.J. p 1031 note 21.

Extraordinary violence of street car movement need not be established to permit recovery for injuries caused by sudden starting, without warning, after car has stopped to permit passengers to alight.—Laub v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 97 Pa.Super. 323.

Inferences from sudden starting

(1) Proof of the sudden starting forward of an electric car as a passenger was alighting raises the inference that it was caused by the motorman, there being no other reasonable or probable cause to which to attribute it.—Hecke v. Dunham, Mo.App., 192 S.W. 120.

(2) In absence of evidence, there is a presumption that conductor in charge of a street car gave signal to start car, which resulted in injury to a passenger alighting.—Lerch v. Hershey Transit Co., 99 A. 800, 255 Pa. 190.

(3) The doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, as applied to the sudden starting of a passenger coach, warrants or authorizes an inference or assumption that sudden starting was due to negligence of those controlling train, but does not compel such inference or presumption.—Williamson v. Salt Lake & O. Ry. Co., 172 P. 680, 52 Utah 84, L.R.A.1918F 588

8. Mo.—Chapman v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 233 S.W. 177
Utah.—Paul v. Salt Lake City R. Co., 83 P. 563, 30 Utah 41.
10 C.J. p 1031 note 22.

A street railroad is presumed to have knowledge of the customary practice of the motormen to accelerate speed of cars only on go ahead signals from conductors, if such practices have continued for a substantial time.—Chapman v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo., 233 S.W. 177.

9. Md.—State v. United Railways & Electric Co. of Baltimore, 159 A. 916, 162 Md. 404, 83 A.L.R. 1307—Grinath v. Baltimore & Belair Electric Ry. Co., 125 A. 604, 145 Md. 290.
Mass.—Johnson v. Berkshire St. Ry. Co., 198 N.E. 154—Viglas v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. Co., 169 N.E. 780, 270 Mass. 264—Seidenberg v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 165 N.E. 658, 266 Mass. 540.
Mo.—Provance v. Missouri Southern R. Co., App., 186 S.W. 955.
Neb.—McCann v. Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Ry. Co., 222 N.W. 633, 117 Neb. 786.
Pa.—Crawford v. Reading Transit & Light Co., 116 A. 542, 273 Pa. 74—Laub v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 97 Pa.Super. 323—Fornwalt v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 65 Pa.Super. 559.
Va.—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 162 S.E. 18, 157 Va. 628.
10 C.J. p 1031 note 23.

That passenger fell and sustained injuries when street car started raises no presumption of negligence on part of carrier or motorman.—Mendenhall v. Springfield Traction Co., Mo.App., 26 S.W.2d 50.

10. Pa.—Cline v. Pittsburg R. Co., 75 A. 850, 226 Pa. 586, 27 L.R.A., N.S., 936
10 C.J. p 1032 note 24.

11. Pa.—Delaney v. Buffalo, R. & P. Ry. Co., 109 A. 605, 266 Pa. 122.
Utah.—Morrissey v. Union Pac. R. Co., 249 P. 1064, 68 Utah 323.
10 C.J. p 1032 note 25.

was no sudden, unusual, or unnecessary jerk of the car the presumption disappears and plaintiff must introduce other evidence of negligence.[12] Thus the mere fact that a train or car was started or stopped with a sudden jerk does not of itself raise a presumption of negligence,[13] and this is also true of the sudden stopping of a taxicab.[14] When it is shown that the sudden stopping was to avoid a collision with another vehicle the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply.[15]

g. Res Ipsa Loquitur; Rebutting Presumption

The presumption of negligence is not conclusive, but may be rebutted by the carrier by any competent evidence showing its freedom from fault.

The presumption of negligence on the part of the carrier, arising from the circumstances of the injury to a passenger, under the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, is a presumption of fact and not of law, and, although of itself sufficient to support a verdict for the passenger,[16] it may be rebutted by the carrier,[17] in doing which the burden is on the carrier to show that the accident was inevitable, or could not have been prevented by the exercise of the required degree of skill and care on its part,[18] or that it would not have occurred but for the passenger's own negligence.[19] Although it has been held that the carrier must explain the cause of the accident in order to rebut the presumption of negligence,[20] as a general rule the burden is not on it to furnish a satisfactory explanation of the cause of the accident, but merely to rebut the inference that it has failed to use due care,[21] and it is generally sufficient if the carrier produces sufficient evidence to balance the presumption without overcoming it by the preponderance of the evidence;[22] but it has been held that the burden is on the carrier to overcome the presumption of negligence to the satisfaction of the jury,[23] and that proof that the accident happened from some inexplicable cause,[24] or that the probabilities are equal that the accident did or did not result from the carrier's negligence,[25] does not satisfy the burden of proof to show freedom from negligence; and where a breach of contract of carriage is involved it has been held that a balance of the testimony will not preclude recovery where plaintiff has made out a prima facie case.[26] No inference or presumption obtains as

12. Ga.—Georgia Power Co. v. Watts, App., 192 S.E. 493.

13. Iowa.—Walters v. Des Moines City Ry., 179 N.W. 865, 191 Iowa 196.
N.Y.—Cohen v. Surface Transp. Corporation of New York, 289 N.Y.S. 678, 160 Misc. 247.
Pa.—Cook v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 182 A. 755, 120 Pa. Super. 565—Wood v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 170 A. 367, 111 Pa. Super. 430—Izard v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 100 Pa.Super. 240.
Tenn.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Akin, 203 S.W. 329, 140 Tenn. 34
10 C.J. p 1032 note 26.

Stopping or starting as cause

Where, in an action for death of a passenger about to alight, plaintiff does not show whether the injury was due to jerk of train in stopping, for which railroad would not be liable, or to sudden start without warning, for which it would have been liable, plaintiff could not recover.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Akin, 203 S.W. 329, 140 Tenn. 34.

14. Mass.—Conley v. Town Taxi, 10 N.E.2d 74.

No inference from mere fact of stopping

In taxicab passenger's action for injuries sustained as alleged result of sudden stop of taxicab, in absence of evidence to show existing conditions, inference was not warranted that purpose of stopping taxicab was to permit occupants to alight, or that cause of stop was not traffic conditions appearing in the street.—Conley v. Town Taxi, Mass., 10 N.E.2d 74.

15. Conn.—Robinson v. Connecticut Co., 189 A. 453, 122 Conn. 300.
Ill.—Letush v. New York Cent. R. Co., 267 Ill.App. 526.

16. Mo.—Roberts v. Schaper Stores Co., 3 S.W.2d 241, 318 Mo. 1190.
N.Y.—Salomone v. Yellow Taxi Corporation, 151 N.E. 442, 242 N.Y. 251, reversing 213 N.Y.S. 899, 215 App.Div. 790, and reargument denied 152 N.E. 445, 242 N.Y. 602.
10 C.J. p 1038 note 61.

17. La.—Foster v. New Orleans Public Service, 3 La.App. 514.
Miss.—Gulf & S. I. R. Co. v. Odum, 98 So. 60, 133 Miss. 543.
Mo.—Hartnett v. May Department Stores Co., App., 85 S.W.2d 644—Kilroy v. Kansas City & K. V. Ry. Co., App., 195 S.W. 522.

Presumption held rebutted

Where a passenger was injured by an unexplained explosion near his seat and there were no marks on or about the seat or in the car made by such explosion, and the railroad company showed that the car was inspected and cleaned that morning and no explosive left in it and that none was afterward seen in it, such evidence completely rebutted any presumption that arose on account of such explosion and entitled the railroad company to a directed verdict.—Gulf & S. I. R. Co. v. Odum, 98 So. 60, 133 Miss. 543.

18. Wash.—Hayes v. Staples, 225 P. 417, 129 Wash. 436.
10 C.J. p 1038 note 62.

19. Neb.—Lincoln Tract. Co. v. Webb, 102 N.W. 258, 73 Neb. 136, 119 Am.S.R. 879
10 C.J. p 1038 note 63.

20. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Mitchell, 21 S.W. 883, 57 Ark. 418
N.Y.—Burke v. State, 119 N.Y.S. 1089, 64 Misc. 558.

21. La.—Wark v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 168 So. 797.
10 C.J. p 1038 note 65.

22. Cal.—Bourguignon v. Peninsular Ry. Co., 181 P. 669, 40 Cal. App. 689.
10 C.J. p 1038 note 66.

Most satisfactory explanation required

Where a passenger transported by a carrier is injured in a derailment, and the carrier attempts to give a satisfactory explanation of the accident, or to show such care in all respects as to exclude the conclusion of want of care, the explanation or care shown must be most satisfactory.—Bourguignon v. Peninsular Ry. Co., 181 P. 669, 40 Cal.App. 689.

23. Va.—Murphy's Hotel v. Cuddy's Adm'r, 97 S.E. 794, 124 Va. 207.
10 C.J. p 1038 note 67.

24. Okl.—Muskogee Electric Tract. Co. v. Eaton, 152 P. 1109, 49 Okl. 344.

25. Iowa.—Arnett v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 176 N.W. 322, 188 Iowa 540.
10 C.J. p 1039 note 69.

26. La.—Wallace v. Shreveport Rys. Co., App., 175 So. 86.

against the uncontradicted sworn testimony of all the eyewitnesses.[27]

h. Elevators and Escalators

In cases of injuries received on elevators or escalators, the burden of proving negligence is on plaintiff, aided by the presumption of negligence arising when the accident is such that it would not have happened had due care been used.

A passenger injured on an elevator has the burden of proving negligence on the part of the carrier or the operator of the elevator causing his injury;[28] and the same is true in escalator cases.[29] Mere proof of a defect in the elevator, whether latent or patent, merely tends to prove, but is not proof of, negligence;[30] but where plaintiff proves the fact of his injury from an accident which in the usual course of events would not have happened if due care had been used, a prima facie case, under the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, is made out, and it is then incumbent on defendant, in order to prevent a recovery, to show that the accident was not due to negligence on its part,[31] or that the passenger's contributory negligence caused the injury.[32] The fact of the falling of an elevator while being operated as a carrier of passengers is presumptive evidence of either negligence in its operation or that it was out of repair or faultily constructed, and throws on the owner the burden of showing freedom from negligence,[33] but he has not the burden of explaining how it fell.[34] It has been held that where an elevator suddenly drops about four feet causing a person who is entering to fall against and injure another person who is a passenger in the car, and there is no showing why it

Presumption held not overcome

A street railroad was liable for injuries to paid passenger sustained in fall in aisle of car caused by alleged negligence of motorman in starting car with a jerk, where evidence of freedom from negligence to overcome passenger's prima facie case consisted only of motorman's denial that car started with jerk, there being no other witnesses, since a balance of testimony as to facts constituting negligence was insufficient to overcome prima facie case of negligence established—Wallace v. Shreveport Rys. Co., La.App., 175 So. 86.

27. Cal.—Ginochio v. City & County of San Francisco, 206 P. 763, 57 Cal.App. 150.

28. Ala.—Ensley Holding Co. v. Kelley, 158 So. 896, 229 Ala. 650
Mass.—Draper v. Cotting, 120 N.E. 365, 231 Mass. 51.
Pa.—McKnight v. S. S. Kresge Co., 132 A. 575, 285 Pa. 489.
Tex.—Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Chocolate Shop, Civ.App., 30 S.W.2d 416, affirmed, Com.App., 44 S.W.2d 989.
10 C.J. p 1039 note 70.

No presumption from mere fact of death

Where one riding in a passenger elevator fell over and was killed, no presumption of negligence on the part of the operator of the elevator can arise from that fact standing alone, the elevator being in good condition—Monaghan v. Equitable Life Ins. Co. of Iowa, 168 N.W. 892, 184 Iowa 352.

29. Mass.—Conway v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 152 N.E. 94, 255 Mass. 571.

Proof of responsibility required

Action based on negligence in operating escalators cannot be maintained unless proved affirmatively that defective condition was due to elevated railway's act or omission—Conway v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 152 N.E. 94, 255 Mass. 571.

30. Cal.—McKeon v. Lissner, 223 P. 965, 193 Cal. 297.

31. Ill.—Burdette v. Chicago Auditorium Ass'n, 166 Ill.App. 186.
Iowa.—Monaghan v. Equitable Life Ins. Co. of Iowa, 168 N.W. 892, 184 Iowa 352.
Mass.—Draper v. Cotting, 120 N.E. 365, 231 Mass. 51.—Cleary v. Cavanaugh, 106 N.E. 998, 219 Mass. 281.
Mo.—Roberts v. Schaper Stores Co., 3 S.W.2d 241, 318 Mo. 1190.
N.Y.—Courtney v. Gainsborough Studios, 174 N.Y.S. 855, 186 App.Div. 820.
Pa.—Petrie v. Kaufmann & Baer Co., 139 A. 878, 291 Pa. 211.—McKnight v. S. S. Kresge Co., 132 A. 575, 285 Pa. 489, both cases citing Corpus Juris as authority.
Va.—Murphy's Hotel v. Cuddy's Adm'r, 97 S.E. 794, 124 Va. 207.
Wis.—Dehmel v. Smith, 227 N.W. 274, 200 Wis. 292.
10 C.J. p 1039 note 71.

Escalators

Rule as to evidence making prima facie case is same for injured passenger in department store escalator as in elevator or train.—May Department Stores Co. v. Bell, C.C.A.Mo., 61 F.2d 830.

Presumption held to exist

(1) An elevator passenger has only to show that he was injured by the rapid descent and sudden stopping of the elevator under the control of defendant, to make out case presumptively showing negligence—Worden v. Central Fireproof Bldg. Co., 155 P. 839, 172 Cal. 94.

(2) Res ipsa loquitur maxim is applicable to injury to infant passenger on department store escalator resulting from breaking of a tooth of a comb plate.—May Department Stores Co. v. Bell, C.C.A.Mo., 61 F.2d 830.

(3) When passenger was injured by failure of passenger elevator to stop at proper place, fact raises presumption of negligence on part of owner of elevator.—McCardle v. George B. Peck Dry Goods Co., 195 S.W. 1034, 271 Mo. 111.

(4) The rule of res ipsa loquitur applies to action for the death of an employee of a transfer company, while loading a furnace on a freight elevator which suddenly started up, although deceased was in the employ of an independent contractor, the testimony showing that the elevator operator was in defendant's employ and under deceased's control only while serving him as he did any person using the elevator, and defendant owing deceased the same duty a railway carrier owes to passengers—Grimm v. Globe Printing Co., Mo., 232 S.W. 676.

(5) Petition alleging elevator started in motion and descended while plaintiff was alighting, causing plaintiff to fall, alleged general negligence within doctrine of res ipsa loquitur—Roberts v. Schaper Stores Co., 3 S.W.2d 241, 318 Mo. 1190.

Rebuttal

Presumption from accident that elevator owner was negligent may be rebutted by showing that utmost skill, foresight, and diligence could not prevent it—McKnight v. S. S. Kresge Co., 132 A. 575, 285 Pa. 489.

32. Mo.—Cooper v. Century Realty Co., 123 S.W. 848, 224 Mo. 709.

33. Cal.—Campbell v. Bradbury, 176 P. 685, 179 Cal. 364
10 C.J. p 1039 note 73.

34. N.Y.—Klein v. Fraser, 155 N.Y.S. 848, 169 App.Div. 812.—Gage v. Waldorf Astoria Hotel Co., 152 N.Y.S. 1019, 90 Misc. 331.

drops or that it is defective, or of any previous trouble, or that the operator was incompetent, or that the usual precautions were wanting, there is no negligence on the part of the owner[35] When proof is offered by the owner of the elevator, overcoming the presumption, the burden is then on plaintiff to show negligence.[36] When the only negligence specified in the complaint is the failure of defendant to keep the elevator in order and repair, the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur does not apply.[37]

§ 765. Admissibility of Evidence

a. In general
b. Relation of carrier and passenger
c. Competency and selection of carrier's employees
d. Circumstances affecting acts or omissions of carrier's employees
e. Condition of carrier's premises
f. Condition of vehicles and appliances
g. Condition of track or roadbed
h. Taking up and setting down passengers
i. Management and operation of conveyance
j. Other or similar acts and accidents
k. Subsequent repairs and precautions
l. Custom or course of business
m. Rules of carrier

a. In General

The general rules governing admissibility of evidence apply in actions by passengers against carriers in actions for personal injuries.

The rules governing the competency, relevancy, and materiality of evidence in civil actions generally apply in an action by a passenger for personal injuries.[38] Subject to these rules, any evidence is admissible which tends to show the situation of the parties and the circumstances immediately attending the accident or injury,[39] but evidence that is irrelevant, immaterial, or incompetent is, of course, inadmissible.[40]

35. Mich.—Elsey v. J. L. Hudson Co., 155 N.W. 377, 189 Mich. 135, L.R.A. 1916B 1284.

36. N.Y.—Courtney v. Gainsborough Studios, 174 N.Y.S. 855, 186 App. Div. 820

37. Cal.—McKeon v. Lissner, 223 P. 965, 193 Cal. 297.

38. Evidence held admissible

(1) Where, in an action for injuries to a passenger while alighting from a railroad car, a physician who had attended plaintiff some time afterward testified as to plaintiff's broken ribs at the time he called to see her, it was error for the court to refuse to permit him to answer a question whether plaintiff had not told him that just prior to the time of such examination she had sustained an injury by falling from a horse or mule.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Cothran, 42 So. 100, 149 Ala. 673.

(2) In a personal injury action against a railroad company, testimony of the amount of bills rendered by physicians for services to plaintiff is admissible, where the witness saw the first doctor present his bill and noted the amount, which was not objected to by plaintiff, and requested the other doctor to render his bill and saw the statement.—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Hydrick, 160 S.W. 196, 109 Ark. 231.

39. Md.—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158 Md. 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md. 424, appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S.Ct. 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed. 720.
10 C.J. p. 1041 note 91.

Aggravation of injury

Under evidence that plaintiff requested surgeons to amputate leg above ankle, it was error to exclude evidence that he had accident insurance netting larger sum for such amputation, being persuasive of motive for self-inflicted injury.—Reynolds v. Alton, G. & St. L. Traction Co., 112 N.E. 668, 273 Ill. 207, reversing 194 Ill. App. 87.

Conduct of employee

In an action for injuries to passenger carried past her station and struck by another car in going back to her destination, evidence that conductor stopped the car at place beyond station and pointed out lights at place of destination was admissible under petition alleging that conductor directed plaintiff to alight at that place.—Gott v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo., 222 S.W. 827.

Conviction of driving under influence of liquor

Reception of testimony that truck driver had been convicted of driving while under influence of liquor at time of accident, and took an appeal which he dismissed on advice of counsel, was not error.—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158 Md. 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md. 424, appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S.Ct. 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed. 720.

Custom

Where a railway mail clerk was injured by failure of carrier to heat the mail car on a side track at the terminal, it was error, in his action for such injuries, to exclude evidence that it was customary for clerks to notify the carrier if they intended remaining in the car.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Dougherty, 185 S.W. 114, 170 Ky. 10, L.R.A. 1916E 464.

On question of culpability

That independent contractor repairing elevator told owner's employee, who told owner's manager, that elevator was safe for fifteen years, held admissible as affecting culpability for death of expressman where damages are measured by culpability rather than liability.—Levesque v. Hildreth & Rogers Co., 177 N.E. 623, 276 Mass. 429

Place of accident

Testimony by witness that he saw blood on tracks morning after accident is admissible as showing point of collision.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So. 920, 200 Ala. 562.

40. Mass.—Kuhlen v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 79 N.E. 815, 193 Mass. 341, 118 Am.S.R. 516, 7 L.R.A.,N.S., 729
10 C.J. p. 1041 note 92.

Evidence held inadmissible

(1) In a passenger's action for injuries in which there was a count for wanton negligence, defendant cannot show, either as a defense to the wanton count or for the purpose of enlightening the jury in awarding punitive damages, that punitive damages were assessed in a suit by another passenger based upon the same alleged act of wanton negligence, the negligent act forming as many distinct and unrelated wrongs as there were individuals injured by it.—Alabama Power Co. v. Goodwin, 99 So. 158, 210 Ala. 657.

In an action against a carrier and a railroad for injuries resulting from a collision, defendants cannot bring into the case the relative duties and obligations between themselves, as the controversy involves only the liability of each to plaintiff.[41]

Report of accident. It has been held that where the carrier maintains a system of having accidents reported by employees, evidence that no such report had been made is admissible as tending to show that no such accident occurred;[42] but it has been held that evidence that no report of the accident had been made is inadmissible when objected to by plaintiff,[43] or where defendant otherwise had notice thereof.[44] Where plaintiff in an action for injuries inflicted by an employee has shown a ratification by defendant of the employee's acts, defendant may show what report its employee made to it of the affair.[45]

b. Relation of Carrier and Passenger

Competent evidence is admissible to prove or disprove the relation of carrier and passenger.

As bearing on the existence of the relation of carrier and passenger at the time of the accident, evidence is admissible which tends to prove[46] or to disprove[47] the injured person's right to ride on the car or other vehicle. Thus evidence is admissible which tends to show that the person injured was on the car or train by the invitation or with the acquiescence of one of the employees in charge thereof,[48] or, if he was on a car or part of the train not used for the accommodation of passengers, that he was there by the authority or direction of one of the employees.[49] Evidence is admissible which tends to show that the passenger, although he had not already paid his fare, intended to become a passenger and had at the time money sufficient to pay his fare,[50] or that he had a ticket entitling him to ride as passenger.[51] On the question whether an employee's pass or ticket was a gratuity or a part consideration for his wages, evidence that it was the carrier's custom to furnish other like employees with like transportation and as to what was said by the carrier's superintendent or manager in regard thereto is admissible.[52]

c. Competency and Selection of Carrier's Employees

As bearing on the competency of an employee, evidence of his habits and previous instances of negligence or care is admissible. Competent evidence is admissible to show the care taken in the selection of employees by the carrier.

Where the competency of an employee is in question, evidence of other specific acts of negligence by him is admissible to show his incompetency,[53]

(2) Where an injured passenger had a telephone conversation with the conductor of the car more than one year after the accident, in which the conductor asked if the passenger was going to sue the street railway, evidence of such conversation was irrelevant and wholly immaterial.—South Covington & C. Ry. Co. v. Goldsmith, 218 S.W. 286, 187 Ky. 68.

(3) Where it clearly appeared that crowded condition of car could not have contributed, it was proper to exclude question as to crowded condition.—Eaton v. New York, N. H. & H. R. R., 116 N.E. 815, 227 Mass. 113.

(4) In action for death of one thrown off platform at curve, evidence as to number of cars that "would" pass over curve daily and not number that "did" pass, that skull had previously been fractured, and that passenger drank intoxicants, offered to show his want of equilibrium, was properly excluded.—Halloran v. Boston Elevated St. Ry. Co., 112 N.E. 849, 224 Mass. 280.

(5) Testimony that injured party could not read pass containing agreement relieving railroad of liability for injuries was immaterial, and admission was prejudicial.—Wessman v. Boston & M. R. R., 152 A. 476, 84 N.H. 475.

(6) In an action for injury to a passenger, it is not material that one going through the car immediately after the accident saw no one who appeared to be injured, plaintiff in her testimony not claiming to have received any injury that might be visible to the casual observer, and saying that she made no complaint at the time.—Vuilleumier v. Oregon Water Power & Ry. Co., 105 P. 706, 55 Or. 129.

41. Mo.—Knox v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co., 203 S.W. 225, 199 Mo.App. 64.

42. N.Y.—Hirsch v. Union Ry. Co. of New York, 96 N.Y.S. 333, 38 Misc. 527.
10 C.J. p. 1042 note 93.

43. D.C.—Guenther v. Metropolitan R. Co., 23 App.D.C. 493.

44. Ill.—Smith v. Chicago City R. Co., 169 Ill.App. 570.

45. Mo.—Hayes v. St. Louis R. Co., 15 Mo.App. 584.

46. Ill.—Springer v. Ford, 59 N.E. 953, 189 Ill. 430, 82 Am.S.R. 464, 52 L.R.A. 930, affirming 88 Ill.App. 529.
10 C.J. p. 1042 note 97.

47. Ky.—Morris v. City Transfer & Yellow Taxi Co., 294 S.W. 1030, 220 Ky. 219.
10 C.J. p. 1042 note 98.

Rule as to issuance of pass

Where issue existed whether work train gang laborer, injured when freight train on which he was riding was derailed, was passenger, railroad's rule tending to confirm its insistence that station agent had no authority to issue pass to laborer on freight train is improperly excluded.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Ringstaff, C.C.A. Ohio, 67 F.2d 482

48. Tex.—American Express Co. v. Ogles, 81 S.W. 1023, 36 Tex.Civ.App. 407.
10 C.J. p. 1043 note 99.

49. Ill.—East St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Zink, 82 N.E. 283, 229 Ill. 180.
10 C.J. p. 1043 note 1.

50. U.S.—Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Marinovich, Wash., 189 F. 328, 111 C.C.A. 60.
10 C.J. p. 1043 note 2.

51. Ill.—Collison v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 88 N.E. 251, 239 Ill. 532.
10 C.J. p. 1043 note 3.

52. Wash.—Harris v. Puget Sound Electric R. Co., 100 P. 838, 52 Wash. 289.
10 C.J. p. 1043 note 4.

53. U.S.—McKinney v. Neil, C.C. Ohio, 16 F.Cas.No.8,865, 1 McLean 540.
10 C.J. p. 1043 note 5.

and, as bearing on his rashness or unfitness for his position, evidence of the use of reckless language by an employee has been held admissible.[54] Particular instances of care on the part of the employee are admissible to rebut evidence of his reputation for carelessness shown by evidence of particular instances of negligence,[55] as is also evidence of his known reputation for efficiency.[56]

Evidence of the habits and competency of an employee is admissible on the question of his negligence at the time of the accident complained of.[57] Thus the intemperate habits of an employee may be shown in evidence to prove negligence on his part, nor is this limited to drunkenness at the time of accident;[58] but where it is shown that the employee was negligent on the occasion in question, and his competency is not attacked, evidence as to his reputation for ability, prudence, etc., is not admissible as not being pertinent.[59] The fact that a taxi driver's license has been suspended and reissued to him is not evidence of his incompetency nor is it admissible as such.[60]

Care in selection of employees. Evidence as to the amount of care taken by the carrier in selecting its employees is not admissible on the question of their negligence,[61] nor is evidence that the employee was discharged after the accident admissible for this purpose.[62] However, evidence that the carrier employed and retained an incompetent employee is admissible to show negligence on its part in that respect,[63] as well as in respect to all the consequences of a failure of duty on the part of such employee.[64]

d. Circumstances Affecting Acts or Omissions of Carrier's Employees

In a proper case evidence of conditions and circumstances existing at the time and place of the accident or injury is admissible to prove or disprove the negligence of the carrier or its employees.

Evidence of the conditions and circumstances existing at the time and place of the accident or injury is admissible for the purpose of proving or disproving negligence on the part of defendant or its employees in causing the injury complained of.[65] Thus, as bearing on the carrier's negligence, evidence is admissible which tends to show notice to its employees of the passenger's physical condition[66] or danger at the time of the accident or injury,[67] and which tends to show whether or not in view of such notice it did all that was practicable to prevent such an accident as occurred.[68]

Abuse and insult. In an action for abusive or insulting language or conduct of an employee, plaintiff may show the continuance of the abusive or insulting acts even after he had been relieved from duty by another employee,[69] the manner and the 54. Tenn.—Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Messino, 1 Sneed 220.

10 C.J. p 1043 note 6.

55. N.H.—Plummer v. Ossipee, 59 N.H. 55.

56. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. McEwan, 31 S.W. 465, 17 Ky.L. 406.
10 C.J. p 1043 note 8.

57. Pa.—Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Books, 57 Pa. 339, 98 Am.D. 229
10 C.J. p 1043 note 9.

58. Ind.—Pennsylvania Co. v. Newmeyer, 28 N.E. 860, 129 Ind. 401.
10 C.J. p 1044 note 10.

59. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Farris, Civ.App., 126 S.W. 1174.

60. Mass.—Finnegan v. Checker Taxi Co., 14 N.E.2d 127.

61. Ga.—Augusta, etc., R. Co. v. Randall, 11 S.E. 706, 85 Ga. 297.

62. N.Y.—Schmitt v. Dry Dock, etc., R. Co., 3 N.Y.St. 257.

63. Miss.—Vicksburg, etc., R. Co. v. Patton, 31 Miss. 156, 66 Am.D. 552

64. Me.—Jones v. Co-operative Assoc. of America, 84 A. 985, 109 Me. 448, L.R.A.1915E 745.

65. Mass.—Powers v. Old Colony St. R. Co., 87 N.E. 192, 201 Mass. 66.
10 C.J. p 1044 note 16.

Evidence held admissible

Railroad sued for injuries resulting from glass which was pushed through excursion train coach door by third person who injured passenger alleged was disorderly, on ground that railroad failed to afford passenger adequate protection after having reasonable grounds for believing that violence was imminent from third person, could, under rule of collective facts, question railroad's inspector of police who was aboard train, as to inspector's knowledge of any unusual or boisterous conduct of third person immediately preceding third person's breaking of glass.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Courson, 174 So. 474, 234 Ala. 273.

66. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Bell, 179 S.W. 400, 166 Ky. 400.
10 C.J. p 1044 note 17.

Intoxication of passenger

(1) In action for death of intoxicated passenger from defendant's negligence, and in permitting him to fall or jump from car, evidence as to extent of his intoxication within reasonable time before and after he was on train was competent.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mudd's Adm'x, 191 S.W. 102, 173 Ky. 330.

(2) In suit for injuries to passenger from fall in waiting station after being removed from electric train when suffering cerebral hemorrhage, excluding conductor's cross-examination testimony that on previous trips passenger had shown evidence of intoxication is error, where conductor on direct had testified he believed passenger intoxicated when he removed him from car.—Fagerdahl v. North Coast Transp. Co., 28 P.2d 107, 175 Wash. 600, modified on other grounds 35 P.2d 46, 178 Wash. 482.
10 C.J. p 1044 note 17 [a].

67. Mass.—Nute v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 100 N.E. 1099, 214 Mass. 184.
10 C.J. p 1044 note 18.

Evidence held inadmissible

In action for death of passenger on ground that defendant's trainmen knew, or could have known, of his intoxication, but negligently permitted him to fall or jump from car, evidence as to his sobriety three or four hours before he boarded train is too remote.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mudd's Adm'x, 191 S.W. 102, 173 Ky. 330.—10 C.J. p 1044 note 18 [a].

68. Mass.—Coy v. Boston El. R. Co., 98 N.E. 1041, 212 Mass. 307.

69. Mo.—Malecek v. Tower Grove, etc., R. Co., 57 Mo. 17.
10 C.J. p 1045 note 23.

tone of voice accompanying the language used,[70] the physical effect such conduct had on plaintiff,[71] and the presence of others on the car at the time,[72] but not evidence having no tendency to prove the cause of action.[73] Defendant may show the employee's general reputation for politeness;[74] but evidence that the abuse or insult was brought about by the misconduct of the passenger is admissible only in mitigation of damages.[75]

Assault. Evidence of conditions and circumstances existing at the time is admissible in an action against a carrier for an assault on a passenger by an employee of the carrier,[76] or by a fellow passenger,[77] or other persons.[78] In an action for an assault by an employee, evidence is admissible which tends to show his employment[79] and duties,[80] and the capacity in which he acted.[81]

Evidence that the passenger had at some previous time made threats against the employee is inadmissible,[82] as is also evidence that the employee had been criminally prosecuted for the assault,[83] or subsequently been discharged.[84]

e. Condition of Carrier's Premises

Evidence as to conditions existing at the time and place of the accident is admissible to show negligence of the carrier with regard to its station premises or platforms; and competent evidence is admissible to show notice of such conditions.

As bearing on the question of the carrier's negligence with regard to its station premises or platforms, evidence is admissible as to the conditions existing there at the time of the accident,[85] and as 70. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Pouncey, 61 So. 601, 7 Ala App. 548.

10 C.J p 1045 note 29.

71. U S —Austro-American S. S. Co. v. Thomas, N.Y , 248 F 231, 160 C.C A. 309, L.R.A 1918D 873.

72. Tex —San Antonio Tract. Co. v. Lambkin, Civ.App., 99 S.W. 574.

73. U.S —Austro-American S. S. Co. v. Thomas, N.Y., 248 F 231, 160 C C.A. 309, L.R A 1918D 873.

Criminal statute

In action against steamship company for notifying passenger that check was worthless and threatening ejection, Italian statute as to attributing to another an act exposing such other to public scorn is inadmissible having no bearing on the cause of action —Austro-American S. S. Co v. Thomas, N Y , 248 F. 231, 160 C.C.A. 309, L R.A.1918D 873.

74. Ga.—Georgia Southern, etc., R. Co v. Ransom, 63 S E 525, 5 Ga. App. 740.

75. Ala.—Birmingham R , etc , Co v. Coleman, 61 So 890, 181 Ala. 478.
10 C.J. p 1045 note 32.

76. Wis —Berg v. Chicago, etc , R. Co , 131 N W. 902, 146 Wis. 419.
10 C J. p 1044 note 20

Evidence held immaterial

In action against railroad company for assault by brakeman, it not being shown that brakeman struck plaintiff, evidence of plaintiff's physical condition was not material.— Blackburn v. Williamson & P. C. Ry. Co., 202 S.W. 500, 180 Ky. 254.

77. Ala —Southern R Co. v. Haynes, 65 So. 339, 186 Ala 60.
Va —Norfolk, etc., R Co. v. Birchfield, 54 S E. 879, 105 Va. 809.
10 C J p 1044 note 21

Previous conduct of intoxicated passenger

In passenger's action against railroad for injuries inflicted by a fellow passenger, evidence as to the conduct of such fellow passenger at railroad station while waiting for train was properly admitted for purpose of proving that ticket agent knew or should have known that such fellow passenger was drunk, quarrelsome, and in a dangerous condition, and that he was intending to board train.—Falzarano v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co , 194 A. 75, 119 N.J Law 76

78. Condition of plaintiff

In action by passenger against street railway for injuries sustained from assault by third persons, testimony that passenger's arm was not well at time of assault is admissible, since condition of arm might have necessitated greater protection —Birmingham Electric Co. v. Driver, 166 So. 701, 232 Ala. 36.

To show motive for assault

In action by passenger against street railway for injuries received on street car from assault claimed by railway to have resulted from labor dispute, admission of passenger's testimony as to where he worked during preceding May while strike was on is not error, since tending to show motive for assault —Birmingham Electric Co. v. Driver, 166 So 701, 232 Ala 36.

79. Ind —Southern R. Co. v Crone, 99 N.E. 762, 51 Ind App. 300.
10 C J. p 1045 note 22.

80. N Y —Brewster v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 123 N.Y S. 992, 68 Misc 348.

81. Md —Philadelphia, etc , R Co. v. Green, 71 A. 986, 110 Md. 32.
10 C J. p 1045 note 24.

82. Ky.—Louisville & N. R Co v. Mason, 251 S.W 184, 199 Ky. 337.
10 C J. p 1045 note 25.

83. W.Va.—Layne v. Chesapeake, etc , R. Co , 69 S E. 700, 68 W.Va. 213, 31 L R.A ,N S , 414.
10 C J. p 1045 note 26.

84. Ark —Pine Bluff, etc R Co v. Washington, 172 S W. 872, 116 Ark. 179

85. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co v. Payne, 118 S W 352, 133 Ky. 539, 19 Ann Cas 294.
10 C J. p 1045 note 34.

Evidence held admissible

(1) In action for death of prospective passenger struck by automobile on approach to station, testimony of railroad ticket agent that municipality controlled light near where accident happened is admissible — Petrillo v. Kolbay, 165 A. 346, 116 Conn. 389.

(2) Testimony that it would have been good engineering to have used movable platform as part of temporary structures during construction was competent —Harrington v Boston Elevated Ry. Co , 118 N E 880, 229 Mass 421, 2 A.L R 1057

(3) In action by plaintiff, who in going to station to take train, instead of entering through passenger gate, started from street crossing diagonally across tracks, and was injured by falling on cattle guards, plaintiff should have been permitted to show when the cattle guards were installed, and whether they were installed on both sides of the crossing —Kovarik v. Long Island R Co., 178 N Y.S. 705, 189 App Div. 534

Evidence held inadmissible

(1) In alighting passenger's action for injuries evidence of preliminary suggestions as to preferable type of subway platform not binding defendant for fault in plan adopted is rightly excluded —Bartol v. City of Boston, 156 N E 844, 259 Mass 323.

(2) Where decedent fell on station platform in attempting to board to whether the station was a regular, or only a flag, station.[86] However, evidence as to conditions existing at other places,[87] or at the same place at other times before or after the accident,[88] is inadmissible, unless it appears that the conditions have remained the same, as where only a short space of time has intervened.[89] Evidence of statements of a member of a railroad commission to an official of the railroad company with regard to the condition of a station and its platform is admissible to show notice of its condition to the company.[90] Evidence as to the small cost for which a defect at a station could be remedied is admissible as proving want of care on the part of the company in not making repairs before the accident.[91]

Evidence tending to show how the accommodations at the station at which the accident occurred compare as to safety with those of other stations is admissible for the purpose of showing lack of care on the part of the carrier in failing to furnish proper accommodations, particularly where the objecting party has introduced like evidence with respect to other stations.[92]

f. Condition of Vehicles and Appliances

Competent evidence is admissible on the question of the carrier's negligence relative to injuries caused by the condition of its cars or other vehicles or appliances.

On the question of the carrier's negligence relative to injuries caused by its cars or other vehicles or appliances, evidence tending to show their condition or equipment at the time of the accident is admissible.[93] For this purpose, evidence as to the condition of the car or vehicle at other times before or after the accident is admissible where it does not appear that there has been a change in its condition in the meantime;[94] but it has been held that in the absence of proof that the condition has remained the same such evidence is inadmissible.[95] Evidence of the defective condition of a part of the vehicle, which did not cause the injury, is immaterial.[96]

Evidence as to the condition of other cars or vehicles is generally held inadmissible, in the absence of proof that they are similarly constructed and equipped as the car or vehicle in question;[97] but, for the purpose of determining whether a car was properly equipped, evidence may be admitted as to whether other cars had been constructed in the same manner,[98] or as to whether a certain improvement had extensively been known and used prior to the time of the accident,[99] or as to the possibility, and ease or difficulty, of procuring something different, better, and safer than the safety device used, where the question is whether its use was negligence.[1] When the contention is not that the train, evidence as to box cars standing on house track which did not contribute to injury is improper—Louisville & N R Co v. Rowland's Adm'r, 286 S.W. 929, 215 Ky 663.

86. Ark—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Stanford, 106 S W. 205, 84 Ark. 406

87. N Y—McKinney v New York Consol R. Co., 129 N E 652, 230 N Y 194, reversing 172 N.Y.S. 906, 186 App Div. 959
10 C J. p 1045 note 36.

88. U S—Chicago, etc, R. Co. v. Rorvig Minn, 217 F. 953, 133 C. C.A 625
10 C J. p 1045 note 37.

89. Ind—New York, etc., R. Co v. Mushrush, 37 N.E. 954, 38 N E. 871, 11 Ind.App. 192.
10 C J p 1045 note 38

90. S C—Smoak v Savannah, etc, R. Co., 43 S.E. 662, 65 S C. 299.

91. N.H.—Haskell v. Manchester St. R. Co, 64 A. 186, 73 N H 587.

92. Va—Chesapeake, etc, R. Co. v. Barger, 72 S.E. 693, 112 Va. 688

93. Ala—Southern R Co. v Harrington, 52 So 57, 166 Ala. 630, 139 Am S R 59.
10 C J. p 1046 note 42

Evidence held admissible

Evidence of construction and condition of heater in taxicab floor is admissible on question of driver's negligence in refusing to help remove drunken passenger, burned on the heater, from floor to seat—Schmuck v. Heilman, 161 A 420, 106 Pa Super. 12.

94. Mich—Dorrance v. Michigan United R. Co., 141 N.W. 697, 175 Mich 198, Ann.Cas 1915A 763.
10 C J p 1046 note 43.

Evidence admissible or erroneously excluded

(1) Testimony that plate on which plaintiff slipped was terribly worn, slick, and dished some two weeks before accident is competent—S. S Kresge Co. v. McCallion, C.C A.Mo., 58 F 2d 931.

(2) Even though a declaration of a street car passenger did not authorize recovery for injuries caused by defective appliances, evidence that the brake was defective, so as to require greater care in properly setting it to avoid its being accidentally released, was admissible on the issue of whether the conductor was negligent in setting the brake because of the greater care imposed on him by his knowledge of its condition—Washington & O. D Ry Co v. Smith, 289 F. 582, 53 App D C. 184

(3) Where, on injury to a passenger by derailment, a carrier was charged with negligence in running rapidly over track recently repaired, and in failing to provide cars with proper equipment and with defective attachments, it was error to refuse permission to the carrier to show disclosures of an inspection of the cars some shortly after and the balance the next day, it being incumbent on the carrier to meet and disprove the alleged acts which would give application to the rule of res ipsa loquitur.—Payne v. Cohlmeyer, C C A.Ill., 275 F. 803.

95. D.C.—Lewis v. Washington Ry & Electric Co, 285 F 977, 52 App. D C. 243.
10 C.J. p 1046 note 44.

96. Ala.—Bradley v. Lewis, 100 So. 324, 211 Ala. 264

97. Mass—Unterberg v Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 164 N E. 478, 266 Mass. 10.
10 C.J. p 1046 note 45.

98. Ala—Central of Georgia R Co. v. Storrs, 53 So. 746, 169 Ala 361.
10 C J. p 1047 note 46.

99. Pa—Strobel v. Park, 140 A. 877, 292 Pa 200, 57 A L R 253.
10 C J p 1047 note 47.

1. Mass.—Draper v Cotting, 120 N. E. 365, 231 Mass. 51.

equipment as such was insufficient, but that it was so worn as no longer to serve its purpose, testimony to bring out how the equipment compared with that on other vehicles is inadmissible.[2]

Rules for maintenance of elevators, promulgated by a state industrial accident commission, are admissible on the question of negligent maintenance of an elevator.[3]

Notice of condition. Notice to the carrier of a defect from which injury to a passenger has resulted is competent evidence, irrespective of the source of the notice;[4] and, as bearing on the question of notice, evidence is admissible to show that plaintiff had complained to the carrier of the defect,[5] or that a report had been furnished to it showing the vehicle's condition;[6] but evidence of complaints as to the condition of a car, made by the passengers to each other, and not to the carrier's employees, is not admissible.[7] Rumor among the employees of the carrier as to the condition of any of the means of transportation, although not admissible to prove the bad condition of the same,[8] is admissible to show notice to carrier of its bad condition.[9]

Evidence of the time during which an obstruction over which plaintiff fell remained in the aisle of a car is admissible as bearing on whether the carrier's employees knew or ought to have known of the obstruction.[10]

In a railroad mail clerk's action for injuries claimed to have been due to the insufficient or defective equipment of the mail car, United States statutes giving the postmaster-general authority to require certain things to be done by the carrier in connection with contracts to be made for the carriage of mail under the railroad mail service, sections of the postal laws and regulations containing provisions as to railroad mail cars and their equipment, and a pamphlet issued by the post-office department containing specifications for fixtures for mail cars are admissible.[11]

g. Condition of Track or Roadbed

Competent evidence of the condition of the track or roadbed at the time and place of the accident is admissible on the question of the carrier's negligence. In a proper case, evidence of conditions at other times or places may be admitted.

As bearing on the question of the carrier's negligence, evidence, if otherwise competent, is admissible as to the condition of its track or roadbed at the time and place of the accident,[12] and of notice thereof to the carrier's employees;[13] but where the evidence establishes negligence independently of the condition or construction of the track, evidence on the latter question is immaterial.[14] Evidence that a curve was constructed according to good engineering principles so that there would be a minimum of jarring and jolting is properly excluded as too remote in an action to recover for being thrown from a car as it rounded the curve.[15] A custom on the part of the carrier to keep its track in general good repair is not admissible to prove the good condition of the track.[16]

Reports of railroad officials prior to the accident are admissible, against the company, to show the condition of the track at the time of the accident,[17] as is also a report of the state railroad commis-

2. Conn.—Sickmund v. Connecticut Co., 189 A. 876, 122 Conn. 375.

3. Cal.—McKeon v. Lissner, 223 P. 965, 193 Cal. 297.

4. Wis.—Ferguson v. Truax, 110 N. W. 395, 111 N.W. 657, 112 N.W. 513, 132 Wis. 478, 14 L.R.A.,N.S., 350, 13 Ann Cas. 1092.
10 C J. p 1047 note 50.

5. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Harrington, 52 So. 57, 166 Ala. 630, 139 Am.S.R. 59.

6. Ky.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Benedict, 159 S.W. 526, 154 Ky. 675.

7. Ky.—Louisville, etc, R. Co. v. Scalf, 110 S W. 862, 33 Ky.Law 721, 26 L.R A.,N.S, 263.

8. Mich.—Wormsdorf v. Detroit City R. Co, 42 N.W. 1000, 75 Mich. 472, 13 Am S R. 453.

9. Mich.—Wormsdorf v. Detroit City R. Co, supra.

10. Ala.—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So. 479, 198 Ala. 262.

11. Va.—Washington, etc, R. Co. v. Carter, 85 S.E. 482, 117 Va. 424.

12. Mo.—Gardner v. Metropolitan St. R. Co, 122 S.W. 1068, 223 Mo. 389, 18 Ann.Cas. 1166.
10 C J. p 1047 note 56.

Evidence held admissible

(1) On the issues as to whether defendant was negligent in maintaining its trolley poles so near passing cars as to endanger the safety of passengers in the cars, evidence is admissible regarding the swaying of the cars as they pass the poles.—Capital Traction Co. v. Copland, 47 App.D C. 152.

(2) In action for death of street car passenger in collision resulting from derailment, evidence of arrangement between company and city by which city was required to relay foundation of track and that it had refused to do so is admissible.—Bury v Detroit United Ry., 164 N W 460, 198 Mich 447

(3) On issue whether railway company was negligent in not discovering position and condition of tree before it fell onto its track, evidence that track was straight for a distance of two hundred yards north of where tree stood is admissible.—Texas & P Ry. Co v. Hughes, Tex. Civ App, 192 S W. 1091, error refused.

13. Mo.—Bond v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 288 S.W. 777, 315 Mo 987.
10 C.J. p 1047 note 57.

14. Wis.—Hartwig v. Chicago, etc., R. Co, 5 N.W. 865, 49 Wis. 358.

15. Mass.—Halloran v. Boston Elevated St. Ry. Co, 112 N.E 849, 224 Mass. 280.

16. Tex.—Ft. Worth, etc., R Co v. Thompson, 21 S W. 137, 2 Tex Civ. App. 170.

17. U S.—Vicksburg, etc., R. Co v. Putnam, Ga., 7 S.Ct. 1, 118 U.S. 545, 30 L Ed. 257.
10 C.J. p 1049 note 69.

sioners.[18] Such reports must be distinguished from reports of the circumstances of the accident.[19]

As a general rule, the evidence to show the defective condition of the track must be confined to the place of the accident, or in the immediate vicinity where the conditions generally were the same;[20] and evidence as to the condition of the track at times and places other than the time when and place where the accident occurred is generally inadmissible.[21] Evidence as to the condition of the track at places other than that of the accident may be admitted to show negligence on the part of the carrier in the operation of the train.[22] Evidence as to the construction and maintenance of other roads is generally inadmissible to prove or disprove negligence in construction and maintenance at the place in question.[23]

It has been held that evidence of the general bad condition of the road is not admissible even on the question of exemplary damages.[24]

Limitations as to time. As a general rule, evidence of defects in the means of transportation, such as the track or roadbed, must be limited to defects existing at the time of the accident;[25] but where there is evidence showing that the condition of the track before and after the accident was substantially the same, evidence of its condition at such time is admissible to show its condition at the time of the accident,[26] and to show knowledge on the part of defendant of the existence of such condition.[27]

Where condition of whole structure in issue. Where, as in the case of a bridge, the condition of the structure as a whole is in issue, evidence is admissible as to the condition of portions of the structure other than that which gave way.[28]

h. Taking Up and Setting Down Passengers

Competent evidence of the conditions and circumstances existing at the time and place a passenger attempting to board or alight from a vehicle was injured is admissible on the question of negligence of the carrier.

Evidence as to the conditions and circumstances existing at the time and place a passenger was injured while alighting from or boarding a car or train is admissible on the question of the carrier's negligence in causing the injury,[29] unless under the 18. N.Y.—Baruth v. Poughkeepsie City, etc., R. Co., 85 N.Y.S. 822, 89 App.Div. 324.

10 C.J. p. 1049 note 70.

19. Ga.—Carroll v. East Tennessee, etc., R. Co., 10 S.E. 163, 82 Ga. 452, 6 L.R.A. 214.

20. Ill.—Klinck v. Chicago City R. Co., 177 Ill.App. 165, affirmed 104 N.E. 669, 262 Ill. 280, 52 L.R.A., N.S., 70, Ann.Cas.1915B 177.
10 C.J. p. 1047 note 59.

Condition in vicinity

In action against railroad company for death resulting from defective track, plaintiff may not only show defective condition of track at place of accident, but its condition on either side thereof, as corroborative.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Harper, 123 S.E. 154, 32 Ga.App. 267.

21. Wis.—Stewart v. Everts, 44 N.W. 1092, 76 Wis. 35, 20 Am.S.R. 17.
10 C.J. p. 1048 note 60.

22. Ill.—Jacksonville Southeastern R. Co. v. Southworth, 25 N.E. 1093, 135 Ill. 250, affirming 32 Ill.App. 307.
10 C.J. p. 1048 note 64

23. Cal.—Bosqui v. Sutro R. Co., 63 P. 682, 131 Cal. 390.
10 C.J. p. 1048 note 62.

24. Tex.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Mitchell, 12 S.W. 810, 75 Tex. 77.

25. Mass.—Marshall v. Old Colony St. R. Co., 83 N.E. 860, 198 Mass. 18.
10 C.J. p. 1048 note 66.

26. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Lewis, 33 N.E. 960, 145 Ill. 67, affirming 48 Ill.App. 274.
10 C.J. p. 1048 note 67.

27. Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Richards, 49 S.W. 687, 20 Tex.Civ.App. 203.
10 C.J. p. 1048 note 68.

28. Or.—Leonard v. Southern Pac. Co., 28 P. 887, 21 Or. 555, 15 L.R.A. 221.
10 C.J. p. 1048 note 65.

29. Va.—Director General of Railroads v. Gordon, 114 S.E. 668, 134 Va. 381
10 C.J. p. 1049 note 72.

Evidence held admissible or erroneously excluded

(1) In action by a passenger for injuries, under allegation that while she was alighting the car suddenly started, the motorman in charge of the car could state whether he loosened the brakes, or did anything to cause the car to start forward.—Erwin v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 76 So. 915, 200 Ala. 557

(2) In a passenger's action for injuries received while alighting by the sudden starting of the train to move it to its proper place at the station platform, evidence that no employees were stationed at the place the coaches first stopped, to warn or assist alighting passengers was admissible to prove that no warning was given, although plaintiff alleged no negligence in failing to assist her to alight.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Douglas, C.C.A.Tenn., 289 F. 325.

(3) Ruling requiring flagman, alleged to have shoved passenger from train, to detail duties with respect to assisting passenger from train is not erroneous.—St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 124 So. 231, 220 Ala. 107.

(4) In a street car passenger's action for injuries sustained as she was alighting, it was not error to admit, over the objection that it was irrelevant, her testimony that she was not put off the car at the place where she intended to get off, but that she intended to get off there and walk back.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Murphy, 110 S.E. 680, 28 Ga.App. 173

(5) Plaintiff is properly permitted to show there were persons in uniform, apparently railway's employees, standing outside door from station to platform, and that brakeman near where she stepped into space between platform and car did not warn her.—Harrington v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 118 N.E. 880, 229 Mass. 421, 2 A.L.R. 1057.

(6) In action for injuries to man seeking to enter one-man street car, who was struck by rear end of car as it was swung around curve, excluding testimony of passenger, who stated that she informed motorman of presence of man coming to car, that man must have gone the other way, is error, where night was dark and rainy and passenger was particular circumstances of the case it is incompetent, irrelevant, or immaterial.[30] Thus evidence may be admitted as to whether the place was a regular or usual stopping place;[31] but it has been held that evidence of a custom of stopping or not stopping at a particular place is not admissible, unless it is shown that the passenger had knowledge of such custom.[32] On the question of negligence in in position for observation superior to that of motorman.—Mardorf v. Duluth-Superior Transit Co, 265 N W. 32, 196 Minn. 347.

(7) Excluding testimony showing banana peeling, found where passenger fell when alighting from coach, showed no indication of having been stepped on, is error.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Hawkins, 132 So. 742, 159 Miss. 775.

(8) Where a witness testified that he was familiar with the sound of a gong used by the gripman, as distinguished from the sound of the bell the conductor used for starting signals his further testimony that it was the bell to start the car he heard ring at the time of plaintiff's injury was not inadmissible as a conclusion.—Kohr v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 92 S.W. 1145, 117 Mo.App. 302.

(9) In an action against a street railway company for personal injuries sustained in alighting from a car, evidence that the passenger was struck and injured by the overhang of a car in rounding a curve and before he had a reasonable opportunity to leave the place of alighting is competent and should be submitted to the jury on the proximate cause of such injury.—Trail v. Tulsa St. Ry. Co., 222 P. 950, 97 Okl. 19.

(10) That rail in which plaintiff caught heel crossed highway used constantly by pedestrians without injury may be considered in determining negligence of street railroad in permitting plaintiff to alight there.—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co., 138 A. 852, 290 Pa. 365.

30. Wyo.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Lampman, 104 P. 533, 18 Wyo 106, 25 L.R.A.,N.S., 217, Ann.Cas.1912C 788.
10 C.J. p 1049 note 73.

Evidence held inadmissible or properly excluded

(1) In passenger's action against railroad for injuries allegedly sustained because of failure of railroad to provide footstool to aid him in alighting from train, refusal to allow plaintiff to answer question whether he had or was offered assistance in getting off train is proper where railroad had no duty to provide footstool, complaint did not allege want of assistance, and evidence failed to show that railroad had notice of any such need by passenger Refusal to allow witnesses to be asked distance from running board to ground of particular automobile and nature of assistance rendered passengers alighting from particular train is not improper since inquiry could not properly be confined to one particular automobile or train—Roberts v. Kurn, 165 So. 77, 231 Ala. 384.

(2) In passenger's action for injuries, under allegation that while she was alighting the car suddenly moved backward, in the absence of evidence that the brake was released, evidence that if the brake were released at all the car would move was inadmissible—Erwin v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 76 So. 915, 200 Ala. 557.

(3) In action for injuring plaintiff by starting street car while he was getting on, admitting evidence motorman left plaintiff on hospital steps was error.—De Gruchy v. City and County of San Francisco, 290 P. 491, 107 Cal.App. 622.

(4) In action against bus company and motorist for injuries to plaintiff when she was struck by automobile while attempting to board bus which had stopped on her side of street in answer to her signal, excluding traffic regulation prohibiting bus from receiving or discharging passengers at places other than curb of traveled way or established loading places is proper, where there was no curb or established loading place at point of accident.—Vaughn v. Healy, 182 A. 166, 120 Conn. 589.

(5) In action for death of prospective passenger caused by failure of interurban car, answering signal, to stop or slow down, admission of testimony of locomotive engineer that upon such signal proper railroading requires locomotive engine to whistle and stop was error.—Indiana Union Traction Co. v. Hiatt, 114 N.E 478, 65 Ind App. 233, reversing on rehearing 112 N.E. 406, rehearing denied 115 N.E. 101, 65 Ind.App. 233.

(6) Defendant carrier could not show injured passenger's statement to another that her husband was too intoxicated to render assistance at time of accident testified to by wife, where defendant offered no evidence showing husband's condition.—Stutsman v. Des Moines City Ry. Co, 163 N.W. 580, 180 Iowa 524.

(7) A question whether a crippled prospective street car passenger, in approaching a street car, was apparently unsafe or had perfect control of herself, and as to her being in possession of her powers, was properly excluded where witness had testified generally as to plaintiff's manner of getting on and off cars. —Mitchell v. Des Moines City Ry. Co, 141 N W 43, 161 Iowa 100

(8) In passenger's action for injuries sustained by movement of train while passenger was alighting, evidence relating to conductor's failure to use movable step is irrelevant—Louisville & N. R. Co. v Campbell 35 S.W.2d 26, 237 Ky. 182.

(9) Passenger's testimony that he did not know station, at which he was injured in alighting from moving train, was flag stop, is inadmissible—Louisville & N. R. Co v Whitaker, 300 S W. 912, 222 Ky. 302

(10) In action for injuries to passenger stepping or falling from platform after train had started from plaintiff's destination, which station plaintiff claimed had not been called, evidence that conductor had not taken up plaintiff's hat check marking his destination was immaterial and properly excluded—Louisville & N R. Co. v. Burk, 268 S.W. 844, 207 Ky. 1.

(11) Exclusion of testimony as to other holes near street car stop is not error in passenger's action for injuries after alighting, where hole in which plaintiff fell was identified. —Gast v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 169 N E 905, 270 Mass. 330.

(12) In action for injuries when car door closed on hand, conductor's testimony as to number of brakemen required by law on five-car train, and as to whether brakeman was in habit of fastening door back, was properly excluded—MacGill-Allen v New York, N H & H. R. Co, 118 N.E 248, 229 Mass. 162.

(13) Where a director of public safety exceeded authority in authorizing street railroad to disregard ordinance requiring street cars to stop on near side of intersection, evidence as to director's authority and his acts is properly excluded— Virginia Ry. & Power Co v. Taylor, 132 S W. 334, 144 Va 496.

31. R I—Moore v. Woonsocket St. R Co 63 A. 313, 27 R.I. 450, 114 Am S R 59
10 C J. p 1050 note 74.

Flag station

Proof that station, at which passenger was injured in alighting from moving train, was flag station, is admissible—Louisville & N R. Co v. Whitaker, 300 S W. 912, 222 Ky. 302.

32. Mass—Greer v. Union St. R. Co, 79 N E. 267, 193 Mass. 246.
10 C.J p 1050 note 75.

suddenly or prematurely starting a train or car, evidence is admissible as to the length of time the train or car stopped,[33] and evidence by other passengers that they also attempted to alight or board at the same place, but that the car started before they could do so, is admissible,[34] as is also evidence of the crowded condition of the car at the time;[35] and it has also been held that evidence of the length of time the train or car usually stopped at that place is admissible on such issue,[36] although there are cases to the contrary.[37] Evidence that the operator failed to stop when signaled is admissible as bearing on his negligently starting before plaintiff had time to alight after he finally did stop.[38]

Competent evidence is admissible to show the passenger's pain and suffering.[39]

Evidence that the passenger's subsequent conduct aggravated the injury is irrelevant on the question of defendant's negligence.[40]

i. Management and Operation of Conveyance

Competent evidence may be introduced on the question of the negligence of the carrier in the management and operation of a conveyance.

Evidence tending to show the conditions existing at the time and place of the accident is admissible on the question of the carrier's negligence in managing or operating the car or train which caused the injury,[41] as where the injury was caused by a collision,[42] or by sudden jerks or jolts, whether 33. Mich.—Tuttle v. Detroit, J. & C. Ry. Co., 159 N.W. 498, 193 Mich. 390.

10 C.J. p. 1050 note 76

34. Colo.—Franklin v. Visalia Electric R. Co., 131 P. 776, 21 Cal. App. 270.
10 C.J. p. 1050 note 77.

35. D.C.—Metropolitan R. Co. v. Jones, 1 App. D.C. 200

36. Conn.—Fuller v. Naugatuck R. Co., 21 Conn. 557
10 C.J. p. 1050 note 79.

37. Pa.—Windle v. Davis, 118 A. 503, 275 Pa. 23.
10 C.J. p. 1050 note 80.

38. Mo.—Moss v. Wells, 249 S.W. 411

39. Mo.—Looff v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 246 S.W. 578.

40. Ark.—Butler v. Arkansas Power & Light Co., 54 S.W.2d 984, 186 Ark. 611

41. Mass.—Pitcher v. Old Colony St. R. Co., 81 N.E. 876, 196 Mass. 69, 124 Am.S.R. 513, 13 L.R.A.,N.S., 481, 12 Ann.Cas. 886
10 C.J. p. 1051 note 81

Evidence held admissible

(1) In an action for injuries sustained in a train wreck, evidence that the train was running on regular time, and as to the distance between two points, was competent.—Day v. Lusk, Mo., 219 S.W. 597

(2) In an action by a postal clerk for personal injuries received while alighting from moving engine on which he had gone to notify the engineer of his failure to whistle for a mail station, it was not error to admit the postal regulations requiring plaintiff so to inform the engineer.—Rauscher v. Payne, 188 N.W. 1017, 152 Minn. 368

(3) Evidence that bus was practically demolished and that another passenger was badly mangled was admissible in passenger's action to recover for injuries.—Pickwick Greyhound Lines v. Silver, 125 So. 340, 155 Miss. 765

(4) In passenger's action for injuries, under doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, when falling from street car, evidence that car on which plaintiff was riding was crowded, and that doors were permitted to remain open, and passengers ride on the step, was relevant in determining whether car was being operated consistently with degree of care required of carrier under the circumstances.—Carlson v. Wells, 276 S.W. 26, 42 A.L.R. 1319

Evidence held inadmissible

(1) In action for injuries because of causing a jerk or lurch throwing plaintiff from a street car, evidence as to the previous conduct and habit of the conductor in sitting down and talking to passengers was incompetent to establish the condition at the time of the accident.—Starr v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 201 P. 599, 187 Cal. 270.

(2) Evidence of proceedings years before in controversy between city and street railroad over use of one-man street cars is not material on issue whether railroad exercised required diligence toward aged and infirm passenger, in operating street car as one-man car.—Georgia Power Co. v. Braswell, 173 S.E. 763, 48 Ga.App. 654

(3) In an action against electric railway for death of passenger, admission of testimony as to the railroad's failure to purchase new controller boxes within the preceding three years, not merely for particular car, but for any car operated by it, is immaterial, in absence of evidence that a controller would wear out or become defective in three years, and being irrelevant as evidence of general neglect to prove negligence in operation of a particular car.—Quellmalz v. Atlantic Coast Electric Ry. Co., 110 A. 914, 94 N.J.Law 474

(4) In action by prospective passenger, where street car knocked automobile against her, admitting ordinances requiring sounding gong, inapplicable to facts, is error.—Alabama Power Co. v. Bass, 119 So. 625, 218 Ala. 586, 63 A.L.R. 1.

(5) Testimony of motorist riding alongside street car at point of accident offered upon issue of swaying of street car, having little or no probative value is inadmissible.—State v. United Railways & Electric Co. of Baltimore, 159 A. 916, 162 Md. 404, 83 A.L.R. 1307.

42. Iowa.—Parker v. Des Moines City R. Co., 133 N.W. 373, 153 Iowa 254, Ann.Cas.1913E 174.
10 C.J. p. 1051 note 82

Evidence held admissible

(1) While a railroad company is not liable for torts of its servants not occurring in the course of the service, where the engineer of a train fell asleep and his train collided with one ahead, evidence that, from whatever cause, he had not slept for twenty-three hours before collision, was admissible as bearing on the issue whether his conduct was reckless or merely negligent.—Davis v. McCree, C.C.A.Ohio, 299 F. 142, error dismissed 45 S.Ct. 94, 266 U.S. 582, 69 L.Ed. 452.

(2) In an action by a passenger against a street railway for injuries suffered in a collision, testimony that the rear end of one car was materially damaged, and that there were several people injured, was properly received as part of the res gestæ and as tending to show the force of the collision.—Gatv v. United Rys. Co., Mo., 251 S.W. 61.

(3) Where bus was not moved after collision with truck, testimony of witness arriving on scene within thirty-five minutes as to tracks of truck is admissible.—Cumberland & such jerks or jolts were of an unusual nature.[43]

Rate of speed. As bearing on the carrier's negligence, evidence may be admitted as to the rate of speed at which the car or train was running at the time and place of the accident,[44] unless the negligence charged is such that the speed of the train or car has no bearing on it.[45] Such evidence should be based on some standard of rapidity, and show, at least approximately, the actual rate of speed, and that it was unsafe.[46] Thus, on the issue of such speed, the manner in which the passenger sustained his injury, together with other testimony, may be shown,[47] as may also the facts that the train or car was behind time,[48] that it lurched and the passengers were bumped about,[49] that it was being operated in violation of an ordinance as to rate of speed,[50] or in violation of a rule of the carrier[51] or of an order of the railroad commissioners,[52] and whether or not it was running at the usual speed.[53]

j. Other or Similar Acts and Accidents

Evidence of other or similar acts or accidents is generally not admissible to show independent acts of negligence, but in a proper case may be admissible as bearing on conditions existing at the time and place of the accident, and on the carrier's negligence or care at that time and place.

As a general rule, evidence of the conditions existing at other times and places, or of other accidents or acts of negligence on the part of the carrier or its employees, is not admissible to show independent acts of negligence,[54] and likewise evi-

Westernport Transit Co v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158 Md 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md. 424, appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S.Ct 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed 720.

(4) Evidence that employee was drunk five hours before accident is admissible—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Baron, 3 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 633.

Evidence held inadmissible

In action for injuries to passenger in collision of street cars, motorman's testimony as to how far he was from other car when he concluded that there was danger of a collision is inadmissible, the question being when he should have reached such conclusion, and such question being for the jury.—Ganz v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., Mo., 220 S.W 490.

43. Mo.—Ownby v Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 228 S.W. 879
Neb.—McCann v. Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Ry Co., 222 N.W. 633, 117 Neb. 786
Ohio.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Merk, 180 N.E. 51, 124 Ohio St 596.
10 C.J. p 1051 note 83.

Evidence held inadmissible

Where defendant's conductor was allowed to testify that "there was no unusual jerk of the car, nor any jerking after it was stopped, other than the ordinary movement of the car after it was stopped," defendant was not entitled to have him answer the question, "Was the stop violent enough to cause you to lose your footing on the back end?"—Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co. v. Mayo, 61 So. 289, 181 Ala 525.

44. Ky.—Consolidated Coach Corporation v Wright, 22 S.W.2d 108, 231 Ky. 713.
10 C.J p 1051 note 84.

Evidence held admissible

(1) Testimony of speed of autobus when quarter mile from place of accident is not too remote—Crosby v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 264 P. 346, 88 Cal.App. 799—Schropshire v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 258 P. 1107, 85 Cal.App. 216

(2) In passenger's action for injuries sustained when thrown to floor of taxicab by sudden stop made to avoid collision, passenger's testimony that he and companion called driver's attention to high rate of speed and requested driver to reduce speed is admissible on question of driver's alleged negligence—Mendler v. Town Taxi, Mass., 3 N.E.2d 15.

45. Ill.—Elgin, etc., Tract. Co. v. Hench, 132 Ill.App 535.
10 C.J. p 1052 note 85

46. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co v Newell, 72 N.E. 416, 212 Ill. 332, appeal dismissed 25 S.Ct. 801, 198 U.S. 579, 49 L.Ed. 1171.
10 C.J p 1052 note 86.

47. N.C.—Carter v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 81 S.E. 321, 165 N.C. 244.

48. Ala.—St Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Savage, 50 So. 113, 163 Ala. 55.
10 C.J. p 1052 note 88.

49. Ill.—Alton Light, etc., Co. v. Oller, 119 Ill.App 181, affirmed 75 N.E. 419, 217 Ill. 15, 4 L.R.A. 399.

50. Ala.—Alabama Power Co v. Bass, 119 So. 625, 218 Ala. 586, 63 A.L.R. 1.
10 C.J. p 1052 note 90.

51. Mass.—Partelow v. Newton, etc., R. Co., 81 N.E. 894, 196 Mass. 24.
10 C.J. p 1052 note 91.

52. Mich.—Van Orman v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 115 N.W. 968, 152 Mich 185.
10 C.J. p 1052 note 92.

53. Mass.—Worthen v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 125 Mass. 99.

54. Ill.—See Todd v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 197 Ill App. 544.
Mass.—Gast v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 169 N.E. 905, 270 Mass. 330.
N.Y.—Creasy v. Eastern Greyhound Lines v. New York, 291 N.Y.S. 746, 249 App Div. 59
Pa.—Deegan v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 160 A. 858, 307 Pa. 207.
Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. McNeill, Civ.App., 270 S.W. 1038, citing Corpus Juris with approval.
Wash.—Nicktovich v. Olympic Motor Transit Co., 272 P. 736, 150 Wash. 278.
10 C.J. p 1052 note 94.

Evidence held inadmissible or properly excluded

(1) Testimony that witness one night almost hit girl where fatal accident occurred is inadmissible, where it was not shown that conditions were similar to or even approximated those existing at time of accident—Petrillo v Kolbay, 165 A. 346, 116 Conn. 389.

(2) Evidence that previously guard told plaintiff to pass through elevated train was properly excluded in absence of evidence that guard had authority to promulgate general order.—Rhoades v. Boston Elevated Ry Co., 122 N.E. 194, 232 Mass. 361.

(3) In action against street railway for injuries to passenger in collision with train at crossing, evidence that on that night a negligent accident occurred to street car and crew whereby they were delayed and were late at crossing was inadmissible—Bergfeld v. Dunham, Mo.App., 202 S.W 253

(4) In action against receivers of street railway for injuries to passenger at railroad crossing, evidence that on prior eastward trip car was delayed ten minutes on account of controller dropping off was inadmissible to prove negligence of conductor in failing to go ahead at crossing on westward trip to look for train—Bergfeld v. Dunham, Mo.App., 201 S.W. 640.

(5) In action against receivers of street railway for injuries to passen-dence that accidents had not happened under similar conditions at other times or places is not admissible to disprove negligence at the time and place in question.[55]

Where, however, such evidence is confined to similar accidents or acts of negligence, at or near the place in question, it may be admitted as bearing on the conditions that probably existed at the time and place of the accident,[56] and evidence of continued use of an alleged defective vehicle before and after the injury without other accident has been held admissible to prove the condition at the time of the injury.[57] Such evidence may be admitted to show a previous and continuous defective or dangerous condition of things,[58] and to show notice to the carrier of such defects,[59] and, perhaps, when its purpose is to charge the carrier with notice of an employee's incompetency.[60] Evidence of other similar accidents is also admissible to rebut the carrier's evidence that it had carried a great many passengers without accident.[61]

Evidence as to the effect of the accident on other passengers is ordinarily not admissible,[62] unless the conditions surrounding the different passengers are shown to have been the same.[63] Where the only issue is the extent of plaintiff's injuries, evidence that other passengers were killed is inadmissible.[64] Such evidence has been held admissible to show the force of a collision[65] and to prove the conditions existing at the time of the accident.[66]

Evidence that on prior occasions footstools were provided for alighting passengers is admissible when limited to its bearing on whether defendant in the exercise of ordinary care was under a duty to provide such a stool.[67]

k. Subsequent Repairs and Precautions

Evidence of repairs and precautions made or taken after the accident is inadmissible to show negligence of the carrier, although in a proper case it may be admitted for other purposes.

ger at railroad crossing, evidence that car on prior eastward trip was delayed by controller dropping off was not admissible to show delay had thrown car behind time so that crew were too hurried to stop at crossing to look for train.—Bergfeld v. Dunham, Mo App, 201 S.W. 640.

(6) Witness testifying as to only knowing of one other case where street car stopped so violently, it was error to permit her to state where it was—McCann v. Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Ry. Co, 222 N. W. 633, 117 Neb. 786.

(7) In motor stage passenger's action for injuries sustained in collision, striking testimony of driver of other stage ahead that truck struck his stage also is not error.—Nicktovich v. Olympic Motor Transit Co, 272 P. 736, 150 Wash. 278.

55. Mo—Wright v Kansas City Terminal R Co., 193 S W. 963, 195 Mo.App. 480.
N.J.—Leech v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 174 A 537, 113 N.J.Law 366, affirmed 178 A. 754, 115 N J Law 114.
Tex—Texas & N. O. R. Co v McNeill, Civ App., 270 S.W. 1038, referring to Corpus Juris as authority for this proposition.
Utah.—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U. R Co, 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312.
10 C.J p 1052 note 95.

56. U.S.—S. S. Kresge Co. v. McCallion, C.C A Mo., 58 F.2d 931.
Utah.—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U. R Co, 194 P 665, 57 Utah 312.
10 C J. p 1053 note 96.

Predicate required

Before evidence showing other accidents similar to plaintiff's accident in re-entering train after temporary absence could be introduced, it must be shown that conditions were similar.—Sellars v. Southern Pac. Co., 166 P 599, 33 Cal App. 701.

57. D C—Lewis v. Washington Ry & Electric Co, 285 F. 977, 52 App D C 243.

58. Tex—Eastern Texas Electric Co v Kappe, Civ.App., 235 S W. 253, error refused.
10 C J. p 1053 note 97.

59. D C—Capital Traction Co. v. Copland, 47 App D C 152.
Ky.—Louisville & N R Co v Priddy, 71 S W 2d 39, 254 Ky 173.
Mass—Parker v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 174 N E 927, 273 Mass. 345—Boyd v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 162 N E. 735, 264 Mass. 364.
Mo—Lowther v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, 261 S W. 702, 214 Mo. App. 293.
N Y—Kovarik v. Long Island R Co, 178 N Y.S. 705, 189 App.Div 534.
Wash—Henry v. Navy Yard Route, 162 P 584, 94 Wash. 526.
10 C J. p 1053 note 98.

Where carrier obliged to know condition

In an action for injuries to an alighting passenger whose evidence showed the deposit of loose gravel on the platform, evidence that another passenger nearly fell, or that the gravel was loose and slid from under her foot, was not admissible to show notice, as it was the duty of the carrier to know the condition of the platform and it was not entitled to notice—Barlow v Salt Lake & U. R Co., 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312.

Evidence held admissible

Exclusion of evidence, in action for death of passenger, of defendant's knowledge that prospective passengers waiting on adjacent highway had been killed or injured, was error, such evidence being admissible to explain decedent's position while awaiting approach of car.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221.

60. Colo—Denver City Tramway Co. v. Cowan, 116 P 136, 51 Colo 64.

61. Ill.—Illinois Cent R Co. v. Treat, 54 N.E 290, 179 Ill. 576, affirming 75 Ill.App. 327

62. Ky.—Consolidated Coach Corporation v. Garmon, 26 S W 2d 20, 233 Ky. 464.
10 C.J. p 1054 note 2.

Discretion of court

In action for injuries to passenger thrown to floor of car in which she was standing when motorman made emergency stop, in which the passenger testified that car was crowded, and that all standing passengers were hurled forward, railroad's testimony that no other claims for damages arising out of the accident were made, although as to collateral fact, is admissible in discretion of court.—Sullivan v. Minneapolis St Ry. Co., 200 N.W. 922, 161 Minn. 45.

63. Tenn—Tennessee Coach Co. v. Young, 80 S.W.2d 107, 18 Tenn. App. 592.
10 C J. p 1054 note 3

64. Ky.—Cincinnati, N O & T P. Ry. Co v. Perkins, 264 S W. 758, 204 Ky. 334.

65. Mo—Gaty v. United Rys. Co., 251 S.W. 61—Davis v. Fleming, App, 253 S.W 798.
Tex.—Tamar v. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co., Com.App., 248 S W. 34, reversing, Civ.App, 234 S.W. 605.
10 C.J. p 1054 note 3 [a] (2).

66. N J.—Benedetto v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 156 A. 37, 9 N.J.Misc. 758.

67. Utah.—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U. R. Co., 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312.

According to some decisions, evidence of repairs or alterations made, or additional precautions taken, after an accident has occurred, is admissible as tending to show prior negligence as to the conditions existing at the time and place of the accident;[68] but by the weight of authority such evidence is held inadmissible for that purpose,[69] although it is admissible for the purpose of showing the condition of things at the time and place of the accident,[70] or to show defendant's control over the place where the accident occurred,[71] or to show that, contrary to the carrier's contention, it was not necessary to maintain the appliance causing the injury in the manner in which it was maintained.[72] The true and proper ground for the exclusion of such evidence is stated to be because it would be unjust that defendant should not take additional precautions against the recurrence of an accident without the risk of admitting previous negligence.[73]

l. Custom or Course of Business

In a proper case evidence of habit or custom or course of business of the carrier or passenger is admissible.

Where, in the absence of any question of evil intent or of any intent at all, the point of fact to be determined is whether or not the passenger or the carrier did a certain thing or did it in a particular way, and the direct testimony as to the fact is conflicting, evidence is admissible to show that the one or the other was in the habit of doing the thing in question, or accustomed to do it in a particular way.[74] The direct evidence as to the fact in question must, however, be conflicting,[75] or the testimony of the opposing witnesses must be based on the customary action with regard to the fact in question, to render such evidence admissible.[76] A custom or practice established by the carrier itself is not admissible to disprove negligence on its part,[77] but a general custom among other carriers, under similar conditions, may be so admitted;[78] and where plaintiff proves a custom as to particular cars the carrier may show that all cars followed such custom.[79]

Evidence of a custom as to what was done with passengers carried beyond their destination is not admissible, especially where there is no evidence that the passenger, injured in returning to his destination after having been carried past it, was informed of the custom or that the carrier offered to conform therewith.[80]

Evidence of a course of conduct for a considerable time without accident is admissible to show that such course of conduct was not negligent.[81]

A departure by the carrier from its usual course of conduct may be admissible to show negligence on its part.[82]

Inspection. Evidence that it was not customary to remove bolts for inspection is admissible on the question of defendant's exercise of due care in an action for injuries caused by the fall of an elevator due to a latent defect in such a bolt.[83]

Right of way at crossings. Evidence of a custom between two street railroad companies of giving one company the right of way at crossings is admissible, in an action against both companies for injuries received in a collision at a crossing, to 68. Ga.—Augusta, etc., R. Co. v. Renz, 55 Ga. 126.

Pa.—Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Henderson, 51 Pa. 315.

Cautious driving

In action for injuries sustained while passenger in automobile owned and operated by defendant, evidence that defendant drove differently and safely after accident is inadmissible to show previous negligence.—Desmarchier v. Frost, 99 A. 782, 91 Vt. 138.

69. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Rowland's Adm'r, 286 S.W. 929, 215 Ky. 663.
Minn.—Reid v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 213 N.W. 43, 171 Minn. 31.
Ohio—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Halterman, 153 N.E. 922, 22 Ohio App. 234.
10 C.J. p. 1054 note 6.

70. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Evans, 137 S.W. 568, 99 Ark. 69.
10 C.J. p. 1054 note 7.

71. Kan.—Tipton v. Topeka R. Co., 132 P. 189, 89 Kan. 451.
10 C.J. p. 1054 note 8.

72. Tex.—Texas Midland R. Co. v. Truss, Civ. App., 186 S.W. 249, error refused.

73. U.S.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Hall, Cal., 100 F. 760, 41 C.C.A. 50.
10 C.J. p. 1054 note 9.

74. Cal.—Sanchez v. Pacific Auto Stages, 2 P.2d 845, 116 Cal.App. 392.
Mo.—Beckner v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 232 S.W. 745.
Or.—Lawrence v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 179 P. 485, 91 Or. 559, quoting Corpus Juris with approval.
10 C.J. p. 1054 note 11.

75. Ala.—Montgomery Light & Traction Co. v. Devinney, 75 So. 883, 200 Ala. 135.
10 C.J. p. 1055 note 12.

76. Mass.—Wentworth v. Eastern R. Co., 9 N.E. 563, 143 Mass. 248.
10 C.J. p. 1055 note 13.

77. Del.—MacFeat v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 62 A. 898, 21 Del. 52.
10 C.J. p. 1055 note 14.

78. Minn.—Campbell v. Duluth, etc., R. Co., 120 N.W. 375, 107 Minn. 358, 22 L.R.A.,N.S., 190.
10 C.J. p. 1055 note 15.

79. Ind.—Indiana Union Traction Co. v. Hiatt, 115 N.E. 101, 65 Ind. App. 233, denying rehearing 114 N.E. 478, 65 Ind. App. 233.

80. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Seaborn, 53 So. 241, 168 Ala. 658.

81. Ind.—Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Newell, 75 Ind. 542.

82. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Fisher, 31 Ill.App. 36.

83. Mich.—Stapleton v. Furniture Exhibition Bldg. Co., 177 N.W. 139, 209 Mich. 385.

show which company was guilty of the greater negligence.[84]

Evidence of customary action of passengers may be admissible as affecting the duty of the carrier to take the proper precautions for their safety;[85] and to explain plaintiff's acts,[86] but such evidence must show more than the occasional practice of a single passenger.[87]

m. Rules of Carrier

In a proper case the rules of a carrier adopted for the government of the conduct of passengers or its employees may be admitted in evidence.

A rule of a carrier, adopted for the government of the conduct of passengers or of its employees in the operation of its trains, and which does not require more than the law requires of the carrier with respect to the matters covered by such rules, is admissible in evidence on the question of the carrier's negligence,[88] provided such rule is shown to have been in existence at the time of the accident,[89] and that the passenger had, or was chargeable with, notice thereof.[90] However, it has been held that such a rule is incompetent in behalf of the carrier;[91] and in some jurisdictions it has been held that a rule intended for the guidance of employees is not admissible to show either due care or negligence toward passengers.[92] Where the rule requires more than the law requires, or where it requires the performance of acts which the law does not recognize as a duty devolving on the carrier, it is inadmissible.[93] Where there is no violation of the rules of a public service commission they should not be admitted.[94]

§ 766. Weight and Sufficiency of Evidence

a. In general
b. Negligence generally; proximate cause
c. Applications of rules

a. In General

Proof by a preponderance of the evidence is necessary and sufficient in actions against carriers for injuries to passengers.

The rules of evidence which govern in civil actions generally control questions involving the weight and sufficiency of the evidence on all matters arising in an action by a passenger against a carrier for personal injuries.[95] Thus, all the facts constituting plaintiff's cause of action or defend-

84. Cal.—Howland v. Oakland Cons. St. R Co., 42 P 983, 110 Cal. 513.

85. Conn—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221
10 C J p 1055 note 19.

Evidence held admissible

In an action for injuries from being pushed under a moving street car by a crowd of fellow passengers on Sunday, evidence of the behavior of the usual Sunday and holiday crowds was admissible as bearing on defendant's duty to anticipate the danger and guard against it, and the fact that at times the crowds were larger would make no difference, since the crowd, whether large or small, acted in the same way.—Grubb v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 230 S.W. 675, 207 Mo App. 16.

86. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co v. Jones, 176 So 203, 234 Ala. 590

87. Pa.—Drake v. Pennsylvania R Co., 20 A 994, 137 Pa. 352, 21 Am S R. 883.

88. Mass.—McNeil v. New York, N H. & H. R. Co., 185 N E 471, 282 Mass 575—La Fond v. Boston & M R R, 94 N E. 693, 208 Mass 451.

Mo—Bond v. St Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 288 S.W 777, 315 Mo 987—Whitlow v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App, 282 S.W. 525, certiorari quashed State ex rel St Louis & San Francisco Ry Co. v. Daues, 290 S.W. 425, 316 Mo. 474

N.Y.—Hubsch v. Fifth Ave. Coach Co, 185 N.Y S. 475.

S C.—Tidwell v. Columbia Ry, Gas & Electric Co., 95 S.E. 109, 109 S C 34.
10 C.J. p 1055 note 24.

Limitation on admissibility

Rules of carrier of passengers regulating conduct of employees are admissible in evidence only where their violation is negligence complained of, or where they tend to prove defendant's guilt of negligence complained of, or constitute an admission that due care requires observance of conduct prescribed by such rules.—Sinopoli v. Chicago Rys Co, 147 N.E 487, 316 Ill 609

89. Mo.—Paquin v. St. Louis & S R Co., 90 Mo App. 118
10 C J p 1056 note 25.

90. N J—Walker v Silvio, 138 A. 510, 5 N J Misc 833.
10 C.J p 1056 note 26

91. Ill—West Chicago St R. Co v. Brown, 112 Ill App. 351.

92. N Y.—Longacre v. Yonkers R. Co, 140 N E 215, 236 N.Y. 119, 28 A.L R 1030, modifying 194 N Y S. 952, 202 App.Div. 845.
10 C J. p 1056 note 28.

93. Wyo.—Chicago, etc., R Co v. Lampman, 104 P. 533, 18 Wyo 106, 25 L.R.A ,N S., 217, Ann Cas 1912C 788.

94. Mass.—Bilodeau v. Fitchburg & L. St. Ry. Co., 128 N E. 872, 236 Mass. 526—London v Bay State St. Ry Co., 121 N E. 394, 231 Mass 480.

95. Tex—Heck v. San Antonio Public Service Co, Civ.App, 255 S W. 811.
10 C J. p 1056 note 31.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To show a cause of action—Rowland v Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co, 5 La.App 156.

(2) To make a prima facie case for plaintiff

N Y—Micklin v. Union Ry. Co. of New York City, 212 N.Y.S 291, 125 Misc 863—Karsch v Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 176 N.Y.S. 774

Tenn.—Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Patterson, 14 Tenn App 652.
10 C J. p 1056 note 31 [a] (1).

(3) To take case to jury.—Keppler v. Wells, Mo., 238 S W 425.

(4) To sustain finding that fire in taxicab injuring passengers came from heater.—Durfey v. Milligan, 251 N.W. 356, 265 Mich 97
10 C.J p 1056 note 31 [a]

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To show unavoidable accident.—Brisolara v. Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co, 127 So. 57, 13 La. App. 27.

(2) To disprove injury to passenger in bus by sudden turning of bus.—Mahfouz v Interurban Transp. Co, 135 So. 740, 17 La.App 241.

(3) To show that plaintiff made a business of being injured on railways—Tindall v Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co, 200 Ill App 556.
10 C.J p 1056 note 31 [b].

ant's defense must be established by a preponderance of the evidence.[96] Plaintiff must establish by a preponderance of the evidence the fact of the relation of carrier and passenger at the time of the accident,[97] and the same rules apply as to the com-

96. R.I.—Hanley v. Rhode Island Co., 99 A. 753.
Wis.—Ennis v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 232 N.W. 540, 202 Wis. 277.
10 C.J. p. 1056 note 32

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery.
U.S.—Pinson v. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co., C.C.A.Tex., 37 F.2d 652—Memphis St. R. Co. v. Townes, C.C.A.Tenn., 281 F. 127.
Ill.—Crane v. Railway Exp. Agency, 12 N.E.2d 672, 293 Ill.App. 328.
Neb.—Leon v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 167 N.W. 787, 102 Neb. 537, L.R.A.1918F 313.
N.Y.—Jones v. Eastern Greyhound Lines, 288 N.Y.S. 523, 159 Misc. 662.
Okl.—Missouri, Kansas & Oklahoma Coach Lines v. Benton, 10 P.2d 451, 157 Okl. 10.
Pa.—McQuaide v. Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 67 Pa.Super. 425.
10 C.J. p. 1056 note 32 [a] (1).

(2) To show that bus porter who let suitcase fall on passenger's head and neck was special employee of bus company for whose negligence bus company was liable.—Interurban Transp. Co. v. Reeves, 108 S.W.2d 594, 194 Ark. 321.

(3) To support verdict that injured plaintiff, at station platform to meet mother-in-law, was not a mere licensee.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Percifull, 2 S.W.2d 1112, 176 Ark. 1205.

(4) To establish that collision occurred.—Strock v. Pickwick Stages System, 290 P. 482, 107 Cal.App. 298.

(5) To warrant inference that traffic light had been installed and maintained by traffic authority of municipality, as regards right of bus driver to proceed in accordance with direction of traffic light.—Viggiano v. Connecticut Co., 191 A. 95, 122 Conn. 514.

(6) To establish that trainmaster was railroad's employee, rendering it liable for his negligence.—Sabol v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 238 N.W. 281, 255 Mich. 548, certiorari denied Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Sabol, 52 S.Ct. 265, 284 U.S. 688, 76 L.Ed. 581.

(7) To justify the jury's conclusion that a crowd in its rush to get on pushed plaintiff under a moving car.—Grubb v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 230 S.W. 675, 207 Mo.App. 16.

(8) To show that boy, who had fallen on the track in attempting to board a train after gates were closed, was alive when run over by an oncoming train.—Johnson v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 183 N.Y.S. 224, 192 App.Div. 639.

(9) To warrant finding of serious and permanent injuries to railway passenger.—Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co. of Texas v. Smith, Tex.Civ.App., 285 S.W. 1104.

(10) To warrant jury finding that alleged injured person was injured in collision between street car and automobile.—Nelson v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 222 N.W. 792, 197 Wis. 513.

(11) To justify finding that deceased fell down stairway leading from station platform to basement, and that the fall caused his death.—Falk v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 157 N.W. 904, 133 Minn. 41.

(12) To establish defendant's contention that sole cause of street car derailment in which passenger sustained injuries for which he was suing was the breaking of the axle of the car.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Lowry, 184 S.E. 177, 166 Va. 207.

(13) To overcome prima facie case made out by passenger.—Bynum v. City of Monroe, La.App., 171 So. 116.
10 C.J. p. 1056 note 32 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery.
U.S.—Pickwick Stage Lines v. Edwards, C.C.A.Utah, 64 F.2d 758.
La.—Goldenberg v. Nugent, App., 162 So. 459—Danove v. American Safe Deposit Co., App., 151 So. 93.
Mo.—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 286 S.W. 439, 220 Mo.App. 294.
N.Y.—Yocum v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 231 N.Y.S. 922, 224 App.Div. 544.
Okl.—St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Manley, 189 P. 177, 78 Okl. 59.
Pa.—Moore v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 87 Pa.Super. 393.
R.I.—Hanley v. Rhode Island Co., 99 A. 753.
10 C.J. p. 1056 note 32 [b] (1).

(2) To sustain allegation of complaint that decedent contracted safely to transport and deliver plaintiff by automobile to California.—McClure v. Johnson, Ariz., 69 P.2d 573.

(3) To warrant finding that express company's servant was acting within his employment when he shot plaintiff.—Lamanna v. American Express Co., 120 N.E. 30, 230 Mass. 564.

(4) To show that window which fell on street car passenger's arm was open to its full extent was latched.—Murray v. International Ry. Co., 251 N.Y.S. 320, 233 App.Div. 262.

(5) To show duty of carrier to give assistance to plaintiff.—St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dobyns, 157 P. 735, 57 Okl. 643.

(6) To require a finding that the passenger was injured, in view of the nature of such testimony, making it impossible to contradict it, and other testimony warranting the jury to disregard and disbelieve it.—Heck v. San Antonio Public Service Co., Tex.Civ.App., 255 S.W. 811.

(7) To show a custom of allowing people to ride on the back part of truck where goods were carried, which would be available to plaintiff.—Gruber v. Cater Transfer Co., 165 P. 491, 96 Wash. 544, L.R.A.1917F 422.

(8) To establish duty of carrier stopping bus at hotel, to exercise care to keep hotel in reasonably safe condition for passengers using rest rooms.—Pickwick Stage Lines v. Edwards, C.C.A.Utah, 64 F.2d 758.

(9) To sustain a finding that plaintiff's feet were frozen while on defendant's train.—Zoccolillo v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 177 P. 201, 53 Utah 39.

(10) To establish conclusively that plaintiff's injury could not have been caused as alleged.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. McDade, 53 S.W.2d 595, 186 Ark. 317.

Insult to passenger by carrier's servant without physical injury was held to support cause of action for breach of contract.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Carroll, 70 So. 984, 14 Ala.App. 374.

97. Mass.—Guinevan v. Checker Taxi Co., 194 N.E. 100, 289 Mass. 295.
10 C.J. p. 1057 note 33.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To show the injured person was a passenger at the time of the accident.
Ala.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Thomas, 104 So. 559, 20 Ala.App. 617.
Ark.—Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co. v. Perry, 298 S.W. 337, 174 Ark. 1030.
Colo.—Yelloway, Inc., v. Garretson, 3 P.2d 292, 89 Colo. 375.
Ky.—Jesse v. Dunn, 51 S.W.2d 918, 244 Ky. 613.
La.—Scarborough v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 82 So. 286, 145 La. 323.
Mass.—Guinevan v. Checker Taxi Co., 194 N.E. 100, 289 Mass. 295—Dion v. Drapeau, 150 N.E. 14, 254 Mass. 186.
Mich.—Perz v. Pere Marquette Ry. Co., 198 N.W. 208, 226 Mich. 452.
Minn.—Gruhl v. Northern Pac. Ry. Co., 168 N.W. 127, 140 Minn. 353.

panies or persons liable for the injuries,[98] but such | facts need not be established beyond all doubt.[99]

N.C.—Myers v. Kirk, 135 S.E. 788, 192 N.C. 700
R.I.—Chaufty v. De Vries, 102 A. 612, 41 R.I. 1.
Wis.—Nelson v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 222 N.W. 792, 197 Wis. 513—Arneberg v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 195 N.W. 844, 182 Wis. 85.
10 C.J. p. 1057 note 33 [a] (1).

(2) To warrant a finding, in an action for the death of one accompanying a shipment of live stock, that deceased was the caretaker entitled to accompany the stock under the contract of shipment, although the owner of the stock was also in the car—Adams v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 161 N.W. 295, 179 Iowa 1334

(3) To warrant a finding that jitney driver's authority to take passenger was not limited to a particular route, and that he accepted plaintiff as a passenger and received his fare as the servant of his employer. —Chaufty v. De Vries, 102 A. 612, 41 R.I. 1.
10 C.J. p. 1057 note 33 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To show plaintiff was a passenger at the time of the injury.
Ill.—Todd v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 113 N.E. 95, 274 Ill. 201, L.R.A. 1916F 543—Foote v. Chicago, N. S. & M. R. Co., 256 Ill.App. 581—Cribb v. Chicago Rys. Co., 252 Ill.App. 33—Goodison v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 213 Ill.App. 56.
N.H.—Ingerson v. Grand Trunk Ry., 106 A. 488, 79 N.H. 154.
N.Y.—De Perri v. Motor Haulage Co., 173 N.Y.S. 189, 185 App.Div. 384.
10 C.J. p. 1057 note 33 [b] (1).

(2) To show plaintiff was guilty of fraud or deceit in presenting expired ticket, which conductor accepted—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Burton, C.C.A.W.Va., 62 F.2d 110, 88 A.L.R. 756, certiorari denied 53 S.Ct. 507, 288 U.S. 617, 77 L.Ed. 990.

(3) To show that passenger, who was discharged from train in dark, some distance away from platform, and injured in fall while crossing tracks, had placed herself in custody of uncle who had met her, as against contention that railroad was relieved of responsibility.—Young v. Baldwin, C.C.A.Ark., 84 F.2d 841.

(4) To show that passenger had made any fraudulent representations in securing and using a pass.—McGrath v. Payne, Mo., 245 S.W. 1061.

(5) To show that deceased was a trespasser or mere licensee—Rhodehouse v. Director General of Railroads, 111 A. 662, 95 N.J.Law 355.
10 C.J. p. 1057 note 33 [b].

98. Minn.—Casey v. Northern Pac. Ry. Co., 213 N.W. 57, 171 Minn. 34
10 C.J. p. 1057 note 34.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To establish ownership or operation by defendant.
Ill.—Princell v. Pickwick Greyhound Bus Lines, 262 Ill.App. 298—Wall v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., 210 Ill.App. 136.
Kan.—Crawford v. Southern Kansas Stage Lines Co., 66 P.2d 601, 145 Kan. 580.
Mo.—Watkins v. Kansas City & W. B. R. Co., App., 209 S.W. 950—Olive v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 193 S.W. 32, 197 Mo.App. 118.
Tex.—Dallas Ry. Co. v. Warlick, Civ. App., 268 S.W. 512, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 285 S.W. 302.

(2) To show ownership of bus and operation by employee acting within the scope of his employment—Irwin v. Pickwick Stages System, 25 P.2d 998, 134 Cal.App. 443.

(3) To show ownership as purchaser or assignee of purchaser at foreclosure sale, the terms of which required assumption of all liabilities—White v. Chicago, P. & St. L. R. Co., 196 Ill.App. 459.

(4) To sustain finding that bus driver operating car on defendants' route under defendants' permit was defendants' agent in transportation of injured passenger, within meaning of Motorbus Law.—McCarthy v. Valdez, Tex.Civ.App., 10 S.W.2d 1051, error dismissed.

(5) To show that the chauffeur of a taxicab was under control of defendant taxicab company, and engaged in its business—Burke v. Shaw Transfer Co., 243 S.W. 449, 211 Mo.App. 353, certiorari quashed State ex rel. Shaw Transfer Co. v. Trimble, Sup., 250 S.W. 384

(6) To warrant finding that driver of bus was acting within scope of authority from defendant as bus owner.—Saunders v. Crawford, 164 So. 526, 122 Fla. 13.

(7) To show driver was acting within the scope of his employment—Baskin & Cole v. Whitson, 8 Tenn. App. 578.

(8) To establish that the proximate cause of accident was negligence of drivers of both taxicabs of different companies entering intersection authorizing recovery against both carriers—Hanley v. Checker Cab Co., 126 So. 274, 12 La.App. 562.

(9) To show negligence of taxicab company, whose driver stopped car with rear wheel between trolley rails, as well as negligence of the railway company.—Hughes v. Pittsburgh Transp. Co., 150 A. 153, 300 Pa. 55.

(10) To sustain finding that sidewalk surrounding subway station was within control of traction company sued for injuries, operating under lease of subway and entrances and approaches.—Smith v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 159 N.E. 501, 262 Mass. 18.

(11) To support finding that plaintiff was not injured by defendant's vehicle.—Young v. Gregory Bus Line, 1 Tenn.App. 282
10 C.J. p. 1057 note 34 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To establish identity of taxicab driver or show that he was taxicab company's agent or employee, as alleged in complaint, and hence insufficient to support verdict against such company.—United Transp. Co. v. Jeffries, App., 200 N.E. 424, superseded 5 N.E.2d 524, 211 Ind. 226.

(2) To show street railroad, owning majority stock of railroad on which passenger was injured, operated it in violation of statute—Berkey v. Third Ave. Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 58, 244 N.Y. 84, 50 A.L.R. 599, reversing 217 N.Y.S. 156, 217 App.Div. 504, motion denied 155 N.E. 914, 244 N.Y. 602, 50 A.L.R. 599.

(3) To show that, by contract between carriers, initial carrier was liable for injuries after it had turned car over to connecting carrier—Cisco & N.E. Ry. Co. v. Proctor, Tex.Civ.App., 272 S.W. 308, affirmed Proctor v. Cisco & N.E. Ry. Co., Com.App., 277 S.W. 1047.
10 C.J. p. 1057 note 34 [b].

Conduct of carrier's counsel, together with evidence from which ownership may be inferred, may be sufficient to show defendant company's ownership of car.—Lucius v. Wells, Mo.App., 263 S.W. 546.

As between codefendants

In passenger's action for injuries in derailment against railroad and the Pullman Company, where the railroad's own witnesses testified that it was the duty of the railroad to inspect and repair the running gear of the Pullman cars while in use, and where there is no evidence that the Pullman Company was responsible for the roadbed, railroad could not complain of direction of verdict for Pullman Company.—Thompson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 102 S.E. 11, 113 S.C. 261.

99. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Jones, 3 So. 902, 83 Ala. 376.

b. Negligence Generally; Proximate Cause

Negligence of the carrier, and proximate cause, must be proved by a preponderance of the evidence.

Negligence on the part of defendant, or employees, must be shown by a preponderance of the evidence.[1] It is not necessary that negligence be

1. La.—Woodley v Service Cab Co., App., 159 So 124
10 C.J. p 1058 note 37

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To justify a verdict or finding of negligence of defendant.
U.S.—Yellow Cab Co v Keane, C.C.A.Ill., 93 F.2d 290.
Cal.—Hartje v Olcott, 3 P.2d 340, 116 Cal.App. 712—McKeon v. Lissner, 262 P. 459, 87 Cal.App. 371—Anderson v San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Rys., 214 P. 289, 61 Cal.App. 21
Ill.—See Boland v. Gay, 201 Ill.App. 359.
La.—Scarborough v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 82 So. 286, 145 La. 323
Mich.—Rice v. Michigan Ry. Co., 175 N.W. 454, 208 Mich. 123
Minn.—Gerin v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 158 N.W. 630, 133 Minn. 395.
Mont.—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 249 P. 1013, 77 Mont. 85
N.J.—Rhodehouse v. Director General of Railroads, 111 A. 662, 95 N.J.Law 355.
N.Y.—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 163 Misc. 815.
N.C.—Dunn v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 784, 174 N.C. 254
Pa.—Borden v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 76 Pa.Super. 517.
10 C.J. p 1058 note 37 [a] (1).

(2) To warrant finding that conductor in charge of street car was negligent in allowing intoxicated passenger to stand in car where he was likely to fall and injure other passengers.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Hubbard, 91 S.E. 618, 120 Va. 661.

(3) To show that conductor was charged with notice of station at which eight year old passenger was to get off train, as respects railroad's liability for injuries sustained when boy jumped from train after it had failed to stop at his station.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry v. Harrell, Tenn.App., 110 S.W.2d 1032.

(4) To show that porter in closing car door knew that passenger's hand was on jamb thereof.—Schaff v. Gordon, Tex.Civ.App., 214 S.W. 638.

(5) To sustain finding that cinder which injured plaintiff passenger came from defendant's locomotive, which was passing on another track.—Malone v St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 213 S.W. 864, 202 Mo.App. 489.

(6) To support finding conductor of interurban car was negligent in not protecting passenger from robber.—Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Co. v. Scott, 170 N.E. 341, 91 Ind.App. 690, rehearing denied 172 N.E. 659, 91 Ind.App. 690

(7) To show that the likelihood of a waiting passenger being so pushed by pressure of the crowd struggling to get on the car was a matter reasonably to be anticipated by defendant.—Grubb v Kansas City Rys. Co., 230 S.W. 675, 207 Mo.App. 16.

(8) To justify finding that adequate number of employees were not in attendance on elevated railway platform.—Bryant v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 122 N.E. 744, 232 Mass. 549.

(9) To support finding that defendant railroad was backing its engine over four miles an hour in violation of city ordinance, rendering it negligent.—Dunn v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 784, 174 N.C. 254.

(10) To show that bus driver, who attempted to jerk a trunk onto bus by its handle alone and without warning passenger helping him of such attempt was negligent.—Gaines v Teche Lines, La.App., 176 So. 134.
10 C.J. p 1058 note 37 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To show negligence.
U.S.—Missouri Pac. Transp. Co. v. Bennett, C.C.A.Neb., 95 F.2d 177.
Ga.—Green v Hines, 102 S.E. 899, 25 Ga.App. 202—Flanders v Atlanta Terminal Co., 95 S.E. 307, 21 Ga.App. 812
Ill.—Schwartz v. Chicago Rys. Co., 208 Ill.App. 232. See Van Zandt v. Metropolitan West Side Elevated Ry. Co., 205 Ill.App. 453.
Kan.—Brehm v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 206 P. 868, 111 Kan. 242, 25 A.L.R. 1056—Brigham v. Union Traction Co., 164 P. 1076, 100 Kan. 435.
Ky.—Williams v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 210 S.W. 172, 183 Ky. 602
Mass.—Conley v. Town Taxi, 10 N.E.2d 74—Tsatsos v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. Co., 166 N.E. 633, 267 Mass. 365—Stanley v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 143 N.E. 338, 248 Mass. 494.
Mich.—Smith v. Peets, 186 N.W. 397, 217 Mich. 255.
N.Y.—Sadacca v. New York Rys. Co., 174 N.Y.S. 287, 186 App.Div. 582—Schasel v. International Ry. Co., 173 N.Y.S. 571, 185 App.Div. 194.
N.D.—Finlayson v. Yellow Cab Co., 217 N.W. 662, 56 N.D. 407.
R.I.—Thomas v. J. Samuels & Bro., 132 A. 8, 47 R.I. 206, reargument denied 132 A. 386.
Tenn.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Harrell, App., 110 S.W.2d 1032.
Tex.—Bragg v Houston Electric Co., Civ.App., 264 S.W. 245, affirmed Houston Electric Co v Bragg, Com.App., 276 S.W. 641, motion overruled 280 S.W. 188—Wichita Valley Ry. Co v. Helms, Civ.App., 261 S.W. 225
Va.—Walters v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 182, 122 Va. 149

(2) To show that the conductor or motorman had notice of the presence of the suitcase in the aisle, or that it had been in the aisle a sufficient length of time so that they should have taken notice of it.—Garner v. East St. Louis Ry. Co., 211 Ill.App. 201.

(3) To show any negligence in employing an elevator operator under sixteen years of age.—Hoffman v Ellis, 174 N.Y.S. 362, 106 Misc. 283.

(4) To permit recovery from railroad company for injuries sustained by eight year old passenger who jumped from train traveling from twenty-five to thirty-five miles per hour when train failed to stop at such passenger's station.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Harrell, Tenn.App., 110 S.W.2d 1032.

(5) To show negligence in that the brakeman did not fasten the car door back "securely."—Brehm v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 206 P. 868, 111 Kan. 242, 25 A.L.R. 1056

(6) To show negligence of railway company in permitting blowing out of fuse.—Brasslavsky v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 145 N.E. 529, 250 Mass. 403.

(7) To take to jury question whether taxicab driver knew or should have known that heater in cab floor, on which drunken passenger was lying, was hot enough to burn him.—Schmuck v. Heilman, 161 A. 420, 106 Pa.Super. 12

(8) To show that passenger was in a helplessly drunken condition, so that conductor, in removing him to a car where his presence would not offend other passengers, was required to look after his safety by seeing that he was carefully seated in the car.—Louisville & N. R. Co v Phelps' Adm'r, 205 S.W. 793, 181 Ky. 689

(9) To justify a finding of negligence on defendant's part in running past platform at a high rate of speed after having observed plaintiff's signal.—Rice v Michigan Ry. Co., 175 N.W. 454, 208 Mich. 123.

(10) To establish building owner's negligence because maintaining inferior and antiquated type of elevator or in employing inexperienced and incompetent operator.—Brandon proved beyond a reasonable doubt,[2] and it may be established by circumstantial, as well as by direct, evidence;[3] but, as a verdict for plaintiff cannot rest on mere conjecture or speculation,[4] the evidence must be sufficient to prove the essential facts constituting the negligence relied on,[5] and must consist of some reasonable evidence of well defined acts of negligence.[6] A mere probability or possibility that some one was wanting in care is not sufficient to justify a finding of negligence,[7] unless such probability or possibility is based on rational grounds and is supported by the facts proved;[8] and it is not sufficient to show an injury and that some part of the carrier's equipment had a part in the accident without any evidence showing a defect in construction or operation or facts from which such defect or dereliction might be inferred.[9] Where the evidence is equally as consistent with due care as with negligence, no recovery can be had.[10] These rules also apply to the proof of willfulness, wantonness, or recklessness.[11]

To justify a judgment of dismissal, the evidence

v Gottlieb, 132 So. 283, 16 La.App. 676.

(11) To support finding that the conductor was negligent in permitting plaintiff to go on the platform. —Griebenow v Chicago & M. E. Ry. Co., 171 N.W. 664, 169 Wis 12.
10 C.J. p 1058 note 37 [b].

Cause of plane crash

Evidence tending to establish that air transport company furnished sound plane, properly equipped, and an experienced pilot, but not explaining why pilot went fifty miles off his course and proceeded over dangerous territory at unsafe altitude, was insufficient to sustain verdict in its favor in suit for death sustained when plane crashed into mountain.—Goodheart v American Airlines, 1 N.Y.S.2d 288, 252 App Div 660

Presumption as preponderance

Where proof does not rebut prima facie showing contemplated in application of res ipsa loquitur doctrine, such prima facie showing supplemented by presumption would constitute proof by preponderance of evidence—Robison v. McAlister, Cal., 13 P.2d 926—St. Clair v. McAlister, 13 P.2d 924, 216 Cal. 95.

2. Wis.—Beery v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 40 N.W. 687, 73 Wis. 197.
10 C.J. p 1058 note 38.

3. Conn.—Robinson v. Connecticut Co., 189 A. 453, 122 Conn. 300.
Md.—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158 Md. 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md. 424, and appeal dismissed American Oil Co v. Metz, 51 S.Ct. 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed. 720
10 C.J. p 1058 note 39.

Evidence held sufficient to raise presumption of negligence—Malone v Greyhound Lines, Mo.App., 22 S.W.2d 199

4. U.S.—Northern Ry. Co. v Page, Mass., 47 S.Ct. 491, 274 U.S. 65, 71 L.Ed. 929, reversing, C.C.A., Page v. United Fruit Co., 3 F.2d 747, certiorari granted Northern Ry. Co. v. Page, 46 S.Ct. 19, 269 U.S. 542, 70 L.Ed. 402.
Ark.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Evans, 109 S.W.2d 918, 194 Ark. 1156.
Ind.—Hines v Rollins, 179 N.E. 183, 97 Ind.App. 251.
Mass.—Holland v Boston & M. R. R., 181 N.E. 217, 279 Mass. 342
Miss.—Columbus & G. Ry. Co. v. Phillips, 133 So. 123, 160 Miss. 390
Pa.—Leglar v Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. R. Co., 131 A. 363, 284 Pa. 521.

5. Tex.—Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v Helms, Civ.App., 261 S.W. 225
10 C.J. p 1058 note 40.

Proof required

In bus passenger's action for injuries resulting from fall caused when bus started after having stopped at intersection, in order to permit inference of negligence by bus driver, passenger was obliged to prove by direct evidence that way in which bus was started was negligent, or to prove by what appeared to have taken place as physical fact that driver was negligent.—Cohen v. Surface Transp. Corporation of New York, 289 N.Y.S. 678, 160 Misc. 247.

Test of sufficiency

In action for death from fall on elevator, test of sufficiency of evidence is whether circumstances are such as to satisfy reasonable minds that death resulted from negligence of defendant—Strobel v. Park, 140 A. 877, 292 Pa. 200, 57 A.L.R. 253

Conflicting statements immaterial

Witness' conflicting statements were immaterial as regards sufficiency of evidence of negligence of driver of bus which skidded off road when driver attempted to avoid hitting mule, in view of other witnesses' testimony as to speed of bus, presence of mule, and condition of road — Tennessee Coach Co v. Young, 80 S.W.2d 107, 18 Tenn.App. 592

Evidence held insufficient

In bus passenger's action for injuries resulting from fall caused when bus started after having stopped at intersection, the fact that another passenger of bus lost his equilibrium when bus started is insufficient to show jerk caused when bus started was caused by negligence of driver, in absence of evidence showing other passenger was acting in such way as to prevent his being overbalanced by any change in motion of bus—Cohen v Surface Transp. Corporation of New York, 289 N.Y.S. 678, 160 Misc. 247.

6. U.S.—Cornette v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., Pa., 195 F. 59, 115 C.C.A. 61.

7. U.S.—Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co. v Galvin, C.C.A.Mich., 54 F.2d 202, certiorari denied 52 S.Ct. 407, 285 U.S. 551, 76 L.Ed. 941.
10 C.J. p 1059 note 42

8. Mich.—Robinson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 97 N.W. 689, 135 Mich. 254.

9. Pa.—Wood v Pennsylvania R. Co., 170 A. 367, 111 Pa.Super. 430.

10. R.I.—Wilbour v. Rhode Island Co., 67 A. 445
10 C.J. p 1059 note 44.

11. S.C.—McLean v Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 61 S.E. 900, 81 S.C. 100, 128 Am.S.R. 892, 18 L.R.A., N.S., 763
10 C.J. p 1059 note 45.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To show wanton negligence
Ga.—Madden v. S. L. Mitchell Automobile Co., 94 S.E. 92, 21 Ga.App. 108
Ill.—Bernier v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 215 Ill.App. 454, affirmed 129 N.E. 747, 296 Ill. 464.

(2) To warrant exemplary damages for injury to passenger in elevator.—Reel v Consolidated Inv. Co., Mo., 236 S.W. 43

Evidence held insufficient

(1) In action for death, by derailment, of employee of railroad company riding on free pass, to show willful or wanton misconduct of railway company or its servants—Lanier v. Bugg, 123 S.E. 145, 32 Ga.App. 294.

(2) In action for death, by collision of trains, of person riding on free pass, stipulating against liability for accident, to support charge of willful killing.—Ft. Wayne & Wabash Valley Traction Co v. Justus, 115 N.E. 585, 186 Ind. 464.

(3) In action for personal injuries received from falling out of defend-should show care, so conclusively that the only fair inference is that the accident was one that could not have been guarded against by ordinary care.[12]

Proximate cause. Plaintiff must show by a preponderance of evidence that defendant's negligence or wrong in fact caused his injuries.[13] This fact may be shown by circumstantial evidence,[14] which must be of such strength and character as to warrant an inference or reasonable probability, from the facts proved, that defendant's negligence caused the injury;[15] and such evidence is not sufficient if it merely raises a surmise or conjecture that such was the fact,[16] as where the inference or probaant's baggage truck driven by its servant, to show that the driver was guilty of gross negligence or of wantonly causing plaintiff's injury —Gruber v. Cater Transfer Co., 165 P. 491, 96 Wash. 544, L.R.A.1917F 422.

Proof of actual knowledge

Wantonness of carrier's servants must rest on servants' actual knowledge, but such knowledge need not be shown by direct proof —Birmingham Electric Co. v. Mann, 147 So. 165, 226 Ala. 379—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Guess, 131 So. 883, 222 Ala. 280.

12. N.Y.—Gage v. Waldorf Astoria Hotel Co., 152 N.Y.S. 1019, 90 Misc. 331.

13. Ark.—Turner v. Hot Springs St. Ry. Co., 75 S.W.2d 675, 189 Ark. 894.
Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Allen, 117 So. 333, 96 Fla. 419.
Kan.—Large v. Schaff, 167 P. 1054, 101 Kan. 372.
10 C.J. p. 1059 note 47.

14. N.Y.—Fagan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 115 N.E. 704, 220 N.Y. 301, L.R.A.1917E 663, reversing 155 N.Y.S. 609, 170 App.Div. 47.
10 C.J. p. 1059 note 48.

15. La.—Bertrand v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 75 So. 217, 141 La. 490.
Mass.—McCarthy v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 112 N.E. 235, 223 Mass. 568.
10 C.J. p. 1059 note 49.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To show defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of the injury.
Cal.—Boa v. San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Rys., 187 P. 2, 182 Cal. 93—Pedrow v. Federoff, 247 P. 212, 77 Cal.App. 164.
Ill.—See Bourland v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 199 Ill.App. 126.
La.—Woods v. Armour & Co., App., 154 So. 759.
Mont.—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 249 P. 1043, 77 Mont. 85.
N.Y.—Fagan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 115 N.E. 704, 220 N.Y. 301.
Pa.—Riff v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 148 A. 102, 298 Pa. 256.
Tex.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Whittington, Civ.App., 292 S.W. 966—Schaff v. Gordon, Civ.App., 214 S.W. 638—Texas Midland R. Co. v. Truss, Civ.App., 186 S.W. 249, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 1059 note 49 [c] (1).

(2) To warrant finding that a passenger was injured when he fell from a train moving at a speed of forty to fifty miles per hour, without direct testimony to that effect.—Olivieri v. Hines, C.C.A.Pa., 271 F. 939.

(3) To sustain finding for bus passenger on ground that bus driver's negligence in driving unnecessarily close to center line of highway was proximate cause of passenger's injuries suffered when bus was sideswiped by automobile —Ross v. Bay City Transit Co., 56 P.2d 247, 12 Cal. App.2d 639.

(4) To support conclusion that negligent operation of stage was proximate cause of plaintiff's elbow, resting on windowsill, being struck by passing truck.—Strock v. Pickwick Stages System, 290 P. 482, 107 Cal.App. 298.

(5) To show that negligence of bus driver in collision proximately contributed to passenger's injuries.—Raddant v. Watson, 264 P. 589, 89 Cal.App. 103.

(5) To show plaintiff's injury was proximately and directly caused by defendant's stage leaving the highway and descending into a gulch —Leitert v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 229 P. 889, 68 Cal.App. 504.

(7) To show that contusions were received by sudden turning and stopping of bus.—Mahfouz v. Interurban Transp. Co., 135 So. 740, 17 La.App. 241.

(8) To support a finding that plaintiff's injuries were produced by the street car accident —Fishleigh v. Detroit United Ry., 171 N.W. 549, 205 Mich. 145.

(9) To support a finding that injuries to a passenger were received as a consequence of a jerk of train. —Burkett v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., Mo.App., 208 S.W. 104.

(10) To show that defendant railway company's negligence in failing to have its station platform properly lighted was the proximate cause of the injury to plaintiff's wife.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bailey, Tex.Civ.App., 186 S.W. 230, error dismissed.

(11) To support finding of the jury that defendant's premises being in an unsafe condition was proximate cause of injury —Himstreet v. Chicago & N.W. Ry. Co., 166 N.W. 665, 167 Wis. 71.

(12) To justify finding that negligence in putting intoxicated person off at destination, without precaution for his safety, was proximate cause of death.—Fagan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 115 N.E. 704, 220 N.Y. 301, L.R.A.1917E 663, reversing 155 N.Y.S. 609, 170 App.Div. 47.

(13) To support judgment for plaintiff as against contention that deceased died of heart disease.— Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Rowland's Adm'r, 14 S.W.2d 174, 227 Ky. 841.

(14) To authorize recovery on theory of concurring negligence of bus driver and truck driver, as against contention that truck driver's negligence was an independent, intervening, and efficient cause —Capital Motor Lines v. Gillette, 177 So. 881, 235 Ala. 157.

(15) To show that bus driver's negligence proximately caused accident without any negligence of plaintiff contributing thereto —Kalogerakas v. Public Service Co-ordinated Transport, 150 A. 574, 8 N.J.Misc. 462.

(16) To justify finding that there was a direct causal connection between the negligence of defendant in not protecting a passenger from being crowded under a moving car by fellow passengers struggling to get on and her injury thus received, and also to enable the jury to find with reasonable certainty that her injury was due to such negligence rather than any other cause —Grubb v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 230 S.W. 675, 207 Mo.App. 16.
10 C.J. p. 1059 note 49 [c].

Expert testimony

Where plaintiff sues carrier for loss of an eye, he need not prove by expert that infection causing removal was caused by the injury, where there was other evidence justifying such inference —Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Edmonds, 174 P. 1052, 73 Okl. 2.

Passenger's testimony that she did not know cause of her falling down steps is not conclusive against her on issue of carrier's negligence.— Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Whittington, Tex.Civ.App., 292 S.W. 966.

16. Mass.—Gillis v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. Co., 165 N.E. 497, 266 Mass. 481.

bility that the injury was caused by defendant's negligence has no immediate connection with, or relation to, the established facts from which it is made.[17] Of course, no recovery can be had when the proximate cause of the injury was not the negligence of defendant,[18] nor where plaintiff's condition is shown by the evidence not to be the result of any injury received while a passenger.[19]

c. Applications of Rules

The rule that a preponderance of the evidence is necessary and sufficient in actions of this character is one of wide application.

The above rules as to the weight and sufficiency of the evidence apply in actions for injuries to passengers by reason of negligence in respect of the condition of the carrier's platforms, approaches, or other parts of the station premises,[20] or of its road-

Mo.—Hoffman v. Western Union Telegraph Co., App., 43 S.W.2d 902. 10 C.J. p 1059 note 50.

Evidence held insufficient to show

(1) Negligence as proximate cause —Trudell v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 289 N.Y.S. 53, 248 App.Div. 787.

(2) That swaying of street car on trucks was proximate cause of collision with pedestrian standing between tracks waiting for other car. —Elliott v. Market St. Ry. Co., 40 P. 2d 547, 4 Cal.App.2d 292.

(3) That accident was attributable to the running of the train, or to the act of any person in the employment of defendant.—Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Moore, 90 S.E. 854, 146 Ga. 108.

(4) That son who died of abscess of brain and septicaemia allegedly resulting from injuries sustained in automobile collision, was injured in collision.—Holland v. Owners' Automobile Ins. Co. of New Orleans, La. App., 155 So. 780.

(5) That motorman's failure to keep a proper lookout was proximate cause of injury.—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 235 P. 330, 72 Mont. 594.

(6) That bright headlight on street car was the cause of injury and death of intending passenger run down by automobile when about to board street car.—Klingensmith v. West Penn Rys. Co., 123 A. 787, 279 Pa. 336.

(7) That slippery condition of steps was proximate cause of fall.— Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wisdom, Tex.Civ.App., 216 S.W. 241, reversed on other grounds Wisdom v. Chicago, R. I. & G. R. Co., Com.App., 231 S.W. 344.

(8) That death of passenger in the latter part of October from pneumonia, following injury on September 24, was the result of the accident.— Santolo v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 187 N.Y.S. 390, 196 App.Div. 34.

10 C.J. p 1059 note 50 [a].

Uncontradicted testimony

Plaintiff's uncontradicted testimony that she was injured while a passenger on defendant's street car, by being thrown against a seat by a violent jerk while she was going to the door to leave the car, which was uncontradicted, because no complaint of injury was made at the time, so that defendant could not identify the crew in charge of the car, does not establish conclusively that the injury to plaintiff was the result of plaintiff's negligence.—Robertson v. Washington Ry. & Electric Co., 279 F. 180, 51 App.D.C. 311.

17. Pa.—Ginn v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 69 A. 992, 220 Pa. 552.

18. Cal.—Northrup v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 47 P.2d 365, 8 Cal.App. 2d 189.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To show proximate cause of injury was negligence of third person

Cal.—Northrup v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 47 P.2d 365, 8 Cal.App.2d 189.

Iowa.—Moss v. Mason City & C. L. R. Co., 251 N.W. 627, 217 Iowa 354.

(2) Evidence that for several years prior to accident in which taxicab passenger was injured driver had been subject to epileptic attacks, that examination by physician after accident disclosed froth at mouth, and that physician considered him suffering from epileptic attack at that time, disclosed that epileptic attack was sole cause of accident.— Wishone v. Yellow Cab Co., 97 S.W.2d 452, 20 Tenn.App. 229.

19. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Reid, 81 S.W.2d 408, 258 Ky. 753.

20. Mass.—Anjou v. Boston El. R. Co., 94 N.E. 386, 208 Mass. 273, 21 Ann.Cas. 1143.

10 C.J. p 1059 note 52.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for injuries resulting from negligence in respect of platforms or stations.

Ill.—Molloy v. Chicago Rapid Transit Co., 166 N.E. 530, 335 Ill. 164.

N.J.—Hexamer v. Public Service Ry. Co., 132 A. 310, 4 N.J.Misc. 184.

N.Y.—Dashew v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 175 N.Y.S. 875.

Pa.—Palmer v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 100 Pa.Super. 380.

Tex.—Texas Electric Ry. v. Stewart, Civ.App., 217 S.W. 1081, error refused—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Brown, Civ.App., 205 S.W. 378.

10 C.J. p 1059 note 52 [a] (1).

(2) To show negligence in failing to provide a proper place for passengers to wait.

Kan.—Higgins v. Southern Kansas Stage Lines Co., 42 P.2d 599, 141 Kan. 641.

Ky.—Davis v. Allen, 251 S.W. 194, 199 Ky. 442.

Tex.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shaw, Civ.App., 218 S.W. 814, dismissed for want of jurisdiction—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner, Civ. App., 194 S.W. 651.

(3) To show negligence in maintaining lights.

Ill.—Newberry v. Baltimore & O. C. Terminal R. Co., 223 Ill.App. 304 —White v. Chicago, P. & St. L. R. Co., 196 Ill.App. 459.

Mo.—Payne v. Davis, 252 S.W. 57, 298 Mo. 645.

Tenn.—Union Bus Terminal v. Mennen, 14 Tenn.App. 551.

Tex.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bailey, Civ.App., 186 S.W. 230, error dismissed.

Wis.—Pleva v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 246 N.W. 694, 210 Wis. 568—Zilles v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 246 N.W. 693, 210 Wis. 564.

(4) To show that defendant was not negligent respecting the number of lights and their arrangement around the station.—Mills v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 86 So. 750, 148 La. 217.

(5) To show negligence in failing to furnish guards

Ill.—Newberry v. Baltimore & O. C. Terminal R. Co., 223 Ill.App. 304.

Ky.—South Covington & C. St. Ry. v. Vanice, 278 S.W. 116, 211 Ky. 774.

(6) To show that sufficient time had elapsed before accident for the carrier, in the exercise of proper care, to have known and remedied the conditions.

Mass.—Solomon v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 176 N.E. 810, 276 Mass. 139—Fournier v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 189 N.E. 574, 286 Mass. 7, 92 A.L.R. 610.

Pa.—Greenfield v. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie R. Co., 157 A. 587, 305 Pa. 456.

(7) To sustain finding that plaintiff, struck by truck on platform, was injured in exercise of due care, by negligence.—Aldrich v. Boston & M. R. R., 130 N.E. 482, 238 Mass. 29.

(8) To make out prima facie case of negligence by elevated railroad in failing to apply ashes or other substance to reduce slippery condition bed and tracks;[21] or in respect of the condition of its cars or conveyances,[22] or other appliances and of platform, and dismissal of complaint was error—Rosenthal v New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 208 N.Y.S 427, 124 Misc. 513.

(9) To show negligence in allowing platform to be overcrowded—Commerford v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 192 N.Y.S 349, 199 App Div. 852.

(10) To sustain judgment for plaintiff who fell on steps of escalator leading to elevated railroad, at time escalator was stationary and being used as stairway, on ground that steps were negligently maintained—Hart v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 292 N.Y.S. 762, 249 App.Div. 844.

(11) To show that defendant railroad was negligent in maintaining a signal operating rod at a height of five feet, seven inches above the ground in front of its station over a portion of the platform over which passengers were accustomed to walk.—Texas Midland R. Co v. Truss, Tex.Civ.App, 186 S.W 249, error refused.

10 C.J. p 1059 note 52 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for injuries resulting from negligence in respect of stations or platforms

Mass.—Mascary v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 155 N.E. 637, 258 Mass. 524—O'Brien v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 145 N.E 259, 250 Mass. 192—Pearson v. Payne, 139 N.E. 488, 245 Mass 158—MacGilvray v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 118 N.E. 166, 229 Mass 65, 4 A.L.R. 283

Minn.—McDonnell v. St. Paul Union Depot Co, 195 N.W. 538, 157 Minn. 66.

Mo.—Hamilton v. Pryor, 201 S.W. 550, L.R.A.1918D 212.

N.J.—Maphete v. Hudson & M. Ry Co, 119 A. 777, 98 N.J.Law 369, affirmed 124 A. 925, 100 N.J.Law 180—Holt v. New York, S & W. R Co., 158 A. 469, 10 N.J.Misc. 214.

N.Y.—Sheehan v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 280 N.Y.S 316, 245 App Div. 737—Murphy v. Hudson & M R. Co., 167 N.Y.S. 895, 180 App.Div. 585—Tod v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 226 N.Y.S. 388, 131 Misc. 311, reversing 220 N.Y.S 174, 129 Misc 156—Wichman v. New York Consol. R. Co, 165 N.Y.S. 83

Pa.—Wilson v. Reading Co., 95 Pa Super. 570—Neves v. Pennsylvania R Co, 11 Pa Dist & Co 187.

Tex.—Fort Worth & D C. Ry. Co. v. Armitage, Civ.App., 39 S.W.2d 108, error refused—Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Tucker, Civ.App., 287 S.W 71

(2) To show knowledge or notice actual or constructive, of dangerous condition.

Mass.—Sack v. Davis, 139 N.E. 819, 245 Mass 114.

N.Y.—Boettcher v. Dowling, 277 N.Y.S. 228, 243 App Div 397, affirmed 200 N.E. 316, 270 N.Y 557.

(3) To show that brick, over which passenger disembarking from train stumbled, had been allowed to remain on walk through negligence of terminal company maintaining passenger station or railroad using it.—Meridian Terminal Co v Stewart, 108 So. 496, 143 Miss. 523.

(4) To show negligence in allowing platform to be overcrowded—Farmer v Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 205 N.Y.S 479, 123 Misc. 383

(5) To support finding in plaintiff widow's favor on either of the issues whether or not the place where the accident occurred was on passenger depot premises, and whether or not the railroad had invited the traveling public to use such place for ingress to, or egress from, its station—Chicago, R. I. & G Ry. Co. v. Taylor, Tex.Civ.App., 225 S.W. 822, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

10 C.J. p 1059 note 52 [b].

Conclusive evidence

While custom of others under like conditions was evidence tending to show that defendant railroad was not negligent in providing a safe and suitable place for the passage of its passengers from its coaches to a transfer boat, it was not conclusive evidence of that fact—Yazoo & M V. R Co. v. Hill, 216 S.W. 1054, 141 Ark. 378.

21. Wash.—Northern Pac. R Co. v Valentine, 126 P 99, 70 Wash. 95
10 C.J. p 1060 note 53

Evidence held sufficient to show negligence in respect of the condition of the tracks

Ill.—See Healy v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 196 Ill.App. 1.

Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v Franklin, Civ.App., 155 S.W. 553.

10 C.J. p 1060 note 53 [a].

Evidence held insufficient to show negligence in respect of the condition of the roadbed or tracks

Cal.—Marovich v. Central California Traction Co., 216 P. 595, 191 Cal. 295

Mich.—Bury v. Detroit United Ry., 164 N.W. 460, 198 Mich. 447

22. N.J.—Murphy v. North Jersey St. R Co, 80 A. 331, 81 N.J.Law 706, 35 L.R.A.,N.S., 592, reversing 73 A. 1119

10 C.J. p 1060 note 54.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To make a prima facie case.

Mo.—Mulderig v. Wells, App., 257 S.W. 1060.

N.J.—Russell v Public Service Ry. Co., 139 A. 322, 104 N.J.Law 34.

N.Y.—Bohrman v. Nassau Electric R Co, 174 N.Y.S. 155.

(2) To sustain a recovery for negligence in respect of the condition of the car causing the injury.

Ark.—Missouri Pac. R. Co v. Blevins, 59 S.W 2d 25, 187 Ark. 1163—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co v Daniels, 280 S.W. 354, 170 Ark 346

Cal.—Sander v Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 175 P. 901, 38 Cal App 222

Conn.—Waters v. Connecticut Co, 155 A. 59, 113 Conn. 768—Connelly v. Connecticut Co., 140 A. 121, 107 Conn 236

Ill.—Gilberts v Rockford & I Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 324. See Emerson v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 203 Ill. App. 412—Bourland v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 199 Ill.App. 126.

Ky.—Davis v. Allen, 251 S.W. 194, 199 Ky. 442.

La.—Scarborough v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co, 82 So. 286, 145 La 323.

Me.—Davis v. Waterville, F & O. St. Ry. Co, 102 A. 374, 117 Me. 32.

Mass.—Guinevan v. Checker Taxi Co, 194 N.E 100, 289 Mass. 295—Hartford v Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 182 N.E 476, 280 Mass. 288—Scott v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 176 N.E. 530, 276 Mass 21—Parker v. Middlesex & B St Ry. Co., 129 N.E. 353, 237 Mass. 291.

Mich.—Trent v Pontiac Transp Co, 275 N.W. 501, 281 Mich. 586—Durfey v. Milligan, 251 N.W. 356, 265 Mich. 97.

N.H.—Young v. Grand Trunk Ry., 100 A. 603, 78 N.H. 605—Guevin v. Manchester St. Ry, 99 A. 298, 78 N.H. 289, L.R.A.1917C 410

N.Y.—Furiati v. Brooklyn & Queens Transit Corporation, 296 N.Y.S. 913, 251 App.Div. 858.

Pa.—Geisenberger v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 65 Pa Super. 376.

Tex.—Houston Electric Co. v. Pearce, Civ.App., 192 S.W. 558, dismissed for want of jurisdiction—Texas Midland R Co. v. Sikes, Civ.App, 185 S.W 412, error refused.

10 C.J. p 1060 note 54 [a] (1).

(3) To show negligence in construction and maintenance of elevator

Ark.—Williams-Echols Dry Goods Co. v. Wallace, 219 S.W 732, 142 Ark 363.

D.C.—Goldenberg Co. v. Schicht, 83 F.2d 593, 65 App D.C 336.

Nev.—Smith v. Odd Fellows Bldg. Ass'n, 205 P. 796, 46 Nev. 48, 23 A.L.R 38

Wash.—Kranzusch v. Trustee Co., 161 P. 492, 93 Wash. 629.

10 C.J. p 1060 note 54 [a] (2)–(11).

(4) To justify finding of store company's negligence in maintenance of escalator—S. S. Kresge Co. v. McCallion, C.C.A.Mo., 58 F.2d 931.

equipment used as a means of transportation;[23] or in respect of the management and operation of the cars or other conveyances in general;[24] or in respect of negligence whereby a passenger is caused

(5) To show negligence in inspection

Cal.—Wendler v. Pickwick Stages System, 24 P.2d 543, 133 Cal.App. 592—Jianou v. Pickwick Stages System, 296 P. 108, 111 Cal.App. 754

Conn.—Duffy v. J. W. Bishop Co., 122 A. 121, 99 Conn. 573.

R.I.—Colton v. Rhode Island Co., 100 A. 498, 40 R.I. 264.

Tex.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers, 201 S.W. 417.

(6) To show failure properly to equip coaches.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Warren, 269 P. 368, 132 Okl. 107.

(7) To show negligence, in an action by a passenger against a carrier for injuries received by the sudden releasing of a trapdoor of a car, over which the passenger was invited to pass.—McBride v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 123 A. 765, 99 N.J.Law 464.

(8) To sustain a defense of latent defect

La.—Martin v. Interurban Transp. Co., 131 So. 514, 15 La.App. 256.

Mo.—Sakowski v. Baird, 69 S.W.2d 649, 334 Mo. 951.

(9) To warrant the finding that the carrier was guilty of no negligence.—Slomka v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 132 N.Y.S. 156, 191 App.Div. 727.

(10) To support finding of no failure of duty of carrier respecting inspection and repair of elevator in which injured plaintiff was riding.—Dehmel v. Smith, 227 N.W. 274, 200 Wis. 292.

(11) To support finding step, handle bar, and vestibule floor of street car were in good order, and floor free from slippery substance causing passenger to fall.—Brandt v. New Orleans Public Service, 132 So. 244, 15 La.App. 391.

(12) To show, in action by passenger who received burns from steam pipes beneath seat in railroad coach, that passenger occupying seat in usual and ordinary manner would have no occasion to come in contact with heated pipes.—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Werline, Tex.Civ.App., 84 S.W.2d 288, error dismissed.

(13) To meet a prima facie case.—Courtney v. Gainsborough Studios, 174 N.Y.S. 855, 186 App.Div. 820.

10 C.J. p. 1060 note 54 [a]

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for negligence in respect of the condition of the car which caused the injury.

U.S.—Old South Lines v. McCuiston, C.C.A.Ga., 92 F.2d 439.

Ariz.—Phoenix Ry. Co. of Arizona v. Beals, 181 P. 379, 20 Ariz. 386.

Ill.—See Duley v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 202 Ill.App. 523.

Ky.—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Potter, 194 S.W. 308, 175 Ky. 258.

La.—Harrison v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 176 So. 418—Woodley v. Service Cab Co., App., 159 So. 124—Wylie v. Shreveport Rys. Co., App., 140 So. 715, affirmed 145 So. 513, 176 La. 193.

Md.—Hagerstown & F. Ry. Co. v. Wingert, 105 A. 537, 133 Md. 455.

Mass.—Mulry v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 179 N.E. 595, 278 Mass. 210, 78 A.L.R. 1372—Grabb v. Nahant & Lynn Street Ry. Co., 145 N.E. 927, 250 Mass. 401—Coleman v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 143 N.E. 819, 249 Mass. 155—O'Neill v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 142 N.E. 904, 248 Mass. 362—Labrie v. Donham, 138 N.E. 3, 243 Mass. 584—Kinnarney v. Milford & U. St. Ry. Co., 134 N.E. 614, 241 Mass. 127—Kerr v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry., 117 N.E. 310, 228 Mass. 281.

Minn.—O'Leary v. St. Paul City Ry. Co., 164 N.W. 659, 138 Minn. 163.

Mo.—Tevis v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 185 S.W. 738.

N.J.—Griffin v. Hohorst, Inc., 185 A. 535, 14 N.J.Misc. 421.

N.Y.—Callahan v. New York Rys. Corporation, 256 N.Y.S. 779, 235 App.Div. 219—Devine v. Empire State R. R. Corporation, 231 N.Y.S. 623, 220 App.Div. 466—Commerford v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 192 N.Y.S. 349, 199 App.Div. 852.

Ohio.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Keil, 26 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N.S., 445.

Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 187 P. 233, 77 Okl. 140.

R.I.—Mattinson v. United Electric Rys. Co., 142 A. 161.

Tex.—Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Chocolate Shop, Civ.App., 30 S.W.2d 416, affirmed, Com.App., 44 S.W.2d 989.

Wis.—Ennis v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 232 N.W. 540, 202 Wis. 277—Gardner v. Chicago & M. Electric Ry. Co., 159 N.W. 1066, 164 Wis. 541.

10 C.J. p. 1060 note 54 [b] (1).

(2) To show negligence because of failure to equip cars with certain safety appliances.—Marovich v. Central California Traction Co., 216 P. 595, 191 Cal. 295.

(3) To show negligence on the part of a carrier in failing to provide a guard or barrier for the door of a box car in which soldiers were being transported.—Gainer v. Hines, 184 N.Y.S. 768, 194 App.Div. 21.

(4) To show that window was raised and improperly fastened by servant, and not by person for whose act street railway was not responsible.—Murphy v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 118 N.E. 191, 229 Mass. 38.

(5) To show defective window latch, in absence of showing that window which fell on street car passenger's arm was latched.—Murray v. International Ry. Co., 251 N.Y.S. 320, 233 App.Div. 262.

(6) To show that step was defective.—Lewis v. Washington Ry. & Electric Co., 285 F. 977, 52 App.D.C. 243.

(7) To show that suitcase had been in aisle of coach before passenger stumbled over it long enough to charge train employees with notice that it was there and with negligence in not removing it.—Gulf, C. & S.F. Ry. Co. v. Blackmon, Tex.Civ.App., 56 S.W.2d 199, error refused.

(8) To rebut presumption of negligence arising from injury of passenger by falling through open trapdoor on vestibule platform of railroad car, which trapdoor opened as she was going to step on it.—Johnston v. Director General of Railroads, 133 A. 158, 286 Pa. 166.

(9) To sustain defense of latent defect.—Wendler v. Pickwick Stages System, 24 P.2d 543, 133 Cal.App. 592.

10 C.J. p. 1060 note 54 [b]

23. W.Va.—Mannon v. Camden Interstate R. Co., 49 S.E. 450, 56 W.Va. 554.

10 C.J. p. 1060 note 55.

Evidence held sufficient to raise issue of negligence in selecting, keeping in repair, and operating spark arresters.—Schaff v. Sanders, Tex.Com.App., 269 S.W. 1034, affirming, Civ.App., 257 S.W. 670.

24. Iowa.—Graham v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 107 N.W. 595, 131 Iowa 741, 117 Am.S.R. 445, 7 L.R.A.,N.S., 603.

10 C.J. p. 1060 note 56.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To establish a prima facie case of negligent management or operation

Ark.—Meeks v. Graysonia, N. & A. R. Co., 272 S.W. 360, 168 Ark. 966.

Cal.—McIntosh v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 59 P.2d 959, 7 Cal.2d 90—Robison v. McAlister, 13 P.2d 926—St. Clair v. McAlister, 13 P.2d 924, 216 Cal. 95.

Mont.—Jepsen v. Gallatin Valley Ry. Co., 195 P. 550, 59 Mont. 125.

N.Y.—Lombardi v. New York State Rys., 231 N.Y.S. 306, 224 App.Div. 438.

Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Grace, 159 P. 1011, 61 Okl. 12.

Wash.—Hayes v. Staples, 225 P. 417, 129 Wash. 436.

(2) To show negligence in the management or operation of a train or car and to sustain a recovery for injuries caused thereby

Ala.—Selma Street & Suburban Ry. Co v Vaughan, 73 So 19, 197 Ala. 477.

Cal.—Leonard v. Pickwick Stage System, 7 P.2d 1059, 120 Cal.App 512—Seney v Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 255 P. 279, 82 Cal App. 226

Conn.—Duffy v J W. Bishop Co., 122 A 121, 99 Conn. 573

Ill.—Sage v. Johnson, 205 Ill App 85—Dunne v Boland, 199 Ill App. 308. See Heineke v Chicago Railways Company, 199 Ill App 399, affirmed 116 N E 761, 279 Ill. 210.

Kan.—Jerobek v. Safeway Cab, Transfer & Storage Co, 73 P.2d 1097, 146 Kan. 859

Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Ashley, 183 S.W. 921, 169 Ky. 330, L. R A.1916E 763

Mass.—Johnson v. Berkshire St. Ry. Co, 198 N E. 154—Dorman v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry. Co, 177 N. E. 812, 277 Mass. 95—Sullivan v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 112 N E. 1025, 224 Mass. 405.

Mich.—Kriss v Field, 216 N.W. 460, 241 Mich. 42.

Minn.—Hoppe v. Boulevard Transp. Co, 215 N.W. 852, 172 Minn. 516

Mo.—Cooley v. Dunham, 195 S.W. 1058, 196 Mo.App. 399.

Neb.—Giffen v. Lincoln Traction Co., 225 N.W 232, 118 Neb. 459.

N J.—Kyse v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 98 A 193, 89 N.J.Law 363.

N.Y.—Mintz v. International Ry. Co., 165 N.Y S. 563, 177 App.Div. 942.

Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Warren, 269 P. 368, 132 Okl. 107.

Va.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Cherry, 105 S.E. 657, 129 Va. 262.

10 C.J. p 1060 note 56 [a] (1).

(3) To show negligence in causing an unusual and unnecessary jerk or jar, or sudden stop.

Ark.—Missouri Pac. R Co. v. Cathey, 254 S.W. 374, 160 Ark. 153—Scullin v. Vining, 191 S.W. 924, 127 Ark. 124.

Cal.—McIntosh v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 59 P.2d 959, 7 Cal 2d 90—Goldstein v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 202 P. 155, 54 Cal.App 322.

Ky.—Millers Creek R Co. v Blevins, 205 S W. 911, 181 Ky. 800.

La.—Thompson v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co, 83 So. 19, 145 La. 805—Scarborough v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 82 So. 286, 145 La. 323—Dillon v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 170 So. 406.

Mo.—Johnson v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., App, 190 S.W. 352—Modrell v. Dunham, App., 187 S W. 561, 564

Okl.—McLaughlin v. Union Transp. Co., 57 P.2d 868, 177 Okl. 115.

Pa.—Di Paolo v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 101 Pa Super. 254—Diffendorfer v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 67 Pa Super 187.

Wis.—Hanley v Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co, 263 N W. 638, 220 Wis 281, followed in 263 N W 641, 220 Wis 288

10 C J p 1060 note 56 [a] (3).

(4) To show negligence in operating vehicle at high speed.

Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v Barnett, 127 N E. 287, 75 Ind App. 19.

N J.—Warner v Public Service Coordinated Transport, 158 A. 333, 10 N J Misc. 122

(5) To show negligence in rounding curve at high speed

U.S.—Atchison, T. & S. F Ry. Co. v Tiefel, C C.A Cal, 28 F.2d 977.

Neb.—Baldwin v. Omaha & C B St. Ry Co., 181 N.W. 525, 105 Neb. 614.

Tenn.—Baskin & Cole v. Whitson, 8 Tenn.App. 578.

10 C J. p 1060 note 56 [a] (4), (7).

(6) To show negligence in failing to keep a lookout.

Kan.—Griffith v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 164 P. 1094, 100 Kan. 475.

Va.—Safety Motor Transit Corporation v. Cunningham, 171 S.E. 432, 161 Va. 356

(7) To support finding that accident in which passenger was alleged to have been injured by sudden stopping of street car, could not have occurred on such car and in manner as alleged by passenger—Phillips v. Shreveport Rys. Co., La. App., 163 So. 845.

(8) To show absence of negligence in management or operation

Ark.—Harris v. Bush, 196 S W. 471, 129 Ark. 369.

Cal.—Tucker v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 161 P 1147, 174 Cal. 42—Frederick v. San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Rys., 191 P. 1020, 48 Cal. App. 336.

La.—Baptiste v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 161 So. 783

Tenn.—Oliver v. Union Transfer Co., 71 S.W.2d 478, 17 Tenn App. 694.

10 C.J. p 1060 note 56 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To show negligence in operation or management.

Cal.—Rystinki v. Central California Traction Co., 165 P. 952, 175 Cal. 336.

Conn.—Viggiana v. Connecticut Co., 191 A. 95, 122 Conn. 514—Tardieu v. Connecticut Co., 154 A. 173, 113 Conn. 94.

Ill.—Letush v New York Cent. R. Co., 267 Ill App. 526

La.—Karp v. Powers, 124 So. 781, 12 La.App 518

Mass.—Conley v. Town Taxi, 10 N.E. 2d 74—Chandler v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 158 N.E. 669, 261 Mass. 230—Burns v. Boston Elevated Ry Co., 138 N E. 802, 244 Mass 451.

Miss.—Gulf & S. I R. Co. v. Meyers, 75 So 244, 114 Miss 458.

N Y.—Ruppenthal v. Nassau Electric R Co, 181 N Y S. 617, 191 App. Div 487.

Pa.—Miller v. Pittsburgh, H, B. & N C. Rys Co., 157 A 330, 102 Pa. Super. 547—Holutin v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 89 Pa. Super 326

10 C J p 1060 note 56 [b] (1) (3).

(2) To show excessive speed

Mass.—Tsatsos v. Boston, R. B & L. R Co, 166 N E 633, 267 Mass. 365

Wash.—Wade v. North Coast Transp. Co., 5 P 2d 985, 165 Wash 418

(3) To show negligence in making sudden stop.

Conn.—Robinson v. Connecticut Co., 189 A 453, 122 Conn. 300.

Mass.—Conley v. Town Taxi, 10 N. E 2d 74.

(4) To warrant finding that brakes were defective or negligently applied—Tsatsos v. Boston, R. B & L. R Co., supra.

(5) To warrant finding that noise of whistle was excessive and unreasonable.—Tsatsos v. Boston, R. B & L R. Co., supra.

(6) To show that conductor was under duty to give emergency stop signal when passenger stood on running board—Bigelow v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 115 N.E. 250, 226 Mass. 116.

(7) To show that defendant street railway company discovered plaintiff's dangerous position on car steps in time to avert his being knocked off by post—Horwitz v. Jefferson County Traction Co., Tex.Civ.App., 188 S.W. 26, error refused.

(8) To warrant finding that motorman or inspector was negligent in operating car under elevated structure, from which solution of soda, water, and vitriol was dripping—Flaherty v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 126 N E. 798, 235 Mass. 422.

10 C.J. p 1060 note 56 [b]

Evidence held insufficient to show negligence in respect of jerking or jolting

(1) Generally.

Ga.—Georgia Power Co. v. Watts, 192 S.E. 493, 56 Ga App. 322—Southern Ry. Co v. Whitehead, 120 S E. 700, 31 Ga.App 398.

La.—Veith v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 92 So 730, 152 La. 47.

N J.—Lederer v. Public Service Coordinated Transport, 157 A. 119, 9 N J.Misc 1127.

N.Y.—Cohen v. Surface Transp. Corporation of New York, 289 N Y. S 678, 160 Misc 247.

Pa.—Jenkins v. Beyer, 180 A. 135, 118 Pa Super. 527.

(2) Mere characterization of the movement as a "terrific" or "violent" lurch.—Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v.

to fall from a car or other vehicle.[25] These rules | also apply in respect of the derailment of a car

Birchett, Va., 252 F. 512, 164 C.C.A. 428, 5 A.L.R. 1028.

(3) Description of movement of a car as it was rounding a curve as "a jar," "a jolt," "a rather severe jolt," "a swinging jolt," etc.—Hagerstown & F. Ry. Co. v. State, 99 A. 376, 129 Md. 318.

(4) Street car passenger's testimony that her hands were wrenched from seats—Phinney v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 189 N.E. 52, 285 Mass. 207.

(5) Testimony of plaintiff that, when electric car stopped, the "floor was all shook up" and threw her off her feet.—Walsh v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 152 N.E. 64, 256 Mass. 17.

(6) Testimony of plaintiff that street car started with a terrible jump, and that she got a sensation that floor of car was going to be torn from under her.—Convery v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 147 N.E. 824, 252 Mass. 418.

(7) Premature birth of a child to a passenger—Elliott v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., Mo., 236 S.W. 17.

(8) Passenger's testimony that a sudden jolt or jar of the train threw her against the side of a seat, and her grip to the floor—Elliott v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., supra.

(9) Testimony indicating that moving trolley car jerked suddenly or violently, unless it clearly appears from other facts that movement of car was beyond passenger's reasonable anticipation—Cutler v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 179 A. 434, 319 Pa. 351.

(10) Evidence merely showing that just as passenger sat down at extreme end of side seat of street car sudden stopping of car caused her to slip off seat onto floor, and that suddenness of stop was such as to cause several passengers hanging onto straps to be twirled around and passengers on side seats to be jostled up against each other.—Endicott v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 177 A. 17, 318 Pa. 12.

(11) In actions for falls sustained by passengers through sudden stopping or starting of street car, statements that street car started violently are not sufficient to show negligent operation, but there must be evidence inherently establishing that occurrence was of unusual character, or evidence of its effect on other passengers sufficient to show such fact.—Endicott v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., supra.

(12) To make out a prima facie case of negligence against the carrier.—Delaney v. Buffalo, R. & P. Ry. Co., 109 A. 605, 266 Pa. 122.
10 C.J. p. 1060 note 56 [c].

Elevators; evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for injuries to a passenger caused by negligent operation
Iowa—Stukas v. Warfield, Pratt, Howell Co., 175 N.W. 81, 188 Iowa 878.
Mo.—Dieterman v. Springfield Traction Co., App., 26 S.W.2d 866.
Tex.—American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Nussbaum, Civ.App., 230 S.W. 1102, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

(2) To warrant inference, in passenger's action for injuries, that operator of elevator did something causing accident, under res ipsa loquitur doctrine.—Dehmel v. Smith, 227 N.W. 274, 200 Wis. 292.
10 C.J. p. 1060 note 56 [d].

Elevators; evidence held insufficient to show negligence in management or operation of elevator—Grimm v. Globe Printing Co., Mo., 232 S.W. 676—10 C.J. p. 1060 note 56 [e].

25. Mass.—Coy v. Boston El. R. Co., 98 N.E. 1041, 212 Mass. 307.
10 C.J. p. 1061 note 57.

Reasonable inference

Where there is evidence affording a reasonable inference that deceased's fall from a street car was caused by the motorman's negligence, recovery is not defeated by a possibility not supported by evidence that it was caused by vertigo—Selma Street & Suburban Ry. Co. v. Vaughan, 73 So. 19, 197 Ala. 477.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for injuries received in falling or being thrown from a train or car through the negligence of the carrier.
Ill.—See Wimmer v. Chicago Rys. Co., 205 Ill.App. 426—McConnell v. Chicago Rys. Co., 199 Ill.App. 490.
La.—Funk v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 91 So. 506, 150 La. 1046.
Mo.—Jacobs v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 217 S.W. 579—Shelton v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., App., 190 S.W. 46.
10 C.J. p. 1061 note 57 [a] (1).

(2) To warrant a recovery for injuries received in falling or being thrown through the open door or gate of the vehicle.
U.S.—Olivieri v. Hines, C.C.A.Pa., 271 F. 939.
Pa.—Jenkins v. Beyer, 180 A. 135, 118 Pa.Super. 527.
Va.—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 162 S.E. 18, 157 Va. 628.
10 C.J. p. 1061 note 57 [a] (3).

(3) To sustain finding that passenger, attempting to pass from one car to another, was thrown through open vestibule door when train lurched.—Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co. v. Galvin, C.C.A.Mich., 54 F.2d 202, certiorari denied 52 S. Ct. 407, 285 U.S. 551, 76 L.Ed. 941.

(4) To sustain finding of negligence of stage company in failing securely to latch door closing against end of seat.—McCormick v. Index Stages, 242 P. 1090, 137 Wash. 507.

(5) To warrant finding that car was swaying when plaintiff was thrown from rear vestibule, and that such movements were excessive, violent, and irregular, and that plaintiff would not have been thrown off and killed by following car had there not been negligence.—Bilodeau v. Fitchburg & L. St. Ry. Co., 128 N.E. 872, 236 Mass. 526.

(6) To show negligence in that employee should have foreseen that children, running out on car platform, might fall or jump therefrom, and, while not bound to close doors or drive children back, or put them off, could have been found negligent in failing to take any of such steps—Longacre v. Yonkers R. Co., 140 N.E. 215, 236 N.Y. 119, 28 A.L.R. 1030, modifying 194 N.Y.S. 952, 202 App. Div. 845.
10 C.J. p. 1061 note 57 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for injuries received in falling or being thrown from a train or car through the negligence of the carrier.
U.S.—Griggs v. Erie R. Co., C.C.A.N.J., 71 F.2d 966.
La.—Brandt v. New Orleans Public Service, 132 So. 244, 15 La.App. 391.
Md.—Callis v. United Rys. & Electric Co., 97 A. 715, 128 Md. 406.
Mo.—Dunn v. Alton R. Co., 104 S.W.2d 311, 340 Mo. 979.
N.H.—Lewis v. Boston & M. R. R., 106 A. 605, 79 N.H. 165.
N.Y.—Cull v. Union Ry. Co. of New York City, 183 N.Y.S. 275, 192 App. Div. 649—Longacre v. Yonkers R. Co., 182 N.Y.S. 373, 191 App.Div. 770.
N.D.—Olson v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 175 N.W. 371, 43 N.D. 371.
Pa.—Waldov v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 182 A. 129, 120 Pa.Super. 304.
10 C.J. p. 1061 note 57 [b] (1).

(2) To warrant the submission to the jury of the question whether it was negligent for the motorman to leave a gate open, or that the failure to close such gate was a proximate or contributing cause to the injury of a passenger who fell from the moving car.—Marovich v. Central California Traction Co., 216 P. 595, 191 Cal. 295.

(3) To show violation of ordinance requiring carrier to keep doors or train,[26] or motor carriers whose vehicles run off the road;[27] or in respect of negligence in causing a collision,[28] and also in actions for injuries to passengers, caused by the carrier's negligence in closed—Brandt v New Orleans Public Service, 132 So 244, 15 La App 391

(4) To warrant inference that carrier negligently permitted vestibule door to be open—Scott v New York Cent R Co., 216 N Y S 163, 216 App Div. 623.

10 C J. p 1061 note 57 [b]

26. Cal—Roberts v Sierra R Co., 111 P 519, 527, 14 Cal.App 180.

10 C J. p 1062 note 58

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a recovery for injuries received because of a derailment

Ill—Klaustermeier v. St. Louis, S & P. R R., 222 Ill App 374—Kanter v St Louis, S. & P R. R., 218 Ill App. 565.

Kan.—Orr v Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 157 P 421, 98 Kan. 120.

10 C J p 1062 note 58 [a]

Evidence held insufficient to sustain a recovery for injuries caused by a derailment.

Va—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co v. Baker, 143 S E. 299, 150 Va 647, addendum to opinion denying rehearing 141 S E. 753, 149 Va. 549, denying rehearing 140 S.E. 648, 149 Va. 549.

Wis.—Smith v. Chicago, N. S. & M R. R., 193 N.W. 64, 180 Wis 259.

10 C J p 1062 note 58 [b].

27. Evidence held sufficient

(1) To support finding that driver was negligent in permitting automobile to run off road and overturn, and that his negligence was proximate cause of accident.—Westfall v. Kern, 43 P 2d 392, 96 Colo 383.

(2) To warrant finding of bus company's negligence in action for injuries resulting from driving car into ditch, submitted on res ipsa loquitur doctrine.—Francisco v Circle Tours Sightseeing Co., 265 P 801, 125 Or. 80.

28. Utah.—Dearden v. San Pedro, etc., R Co, 93 P. 271, 33 Utah 147

10 C.J p 1062 note 59.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To show negligence in causing a collision and to sustain a recovery for injuries caused thereby.

U S.—Interstate Stage Lines Co v. Ayers, C.C.A.Mo. 42 F.2d 611—Detroit Taxicab & Transfer Co. v Callahan, C C.A Mich., 1 F.2d 911

Ark.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry Co. v. Britton, 31 S.W 2d 756, 182 Ark. 437—Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co. v. Perry, 298 S.W 337, 174 Ark. 1030.

Cal.—Raddaut v. Watson, 264 P. 589, 89 Cal App 103—Gornstein v. Priver, 221 P 396, 64 Cal App. 249—Kemp v Van Bezel, 199 P. 1099, 53 Cal.App. 312.

Colo—Yelloway, Inc, v Garretson, 3 P.2d 292, 89 Colo 375

Ill—Haly v Decatur Yellow Cab Co, 8 N.E 2d 210, 290 Ill App. 615 See Parker v. Chicago Rys Co, 200 Ill App. 9—Hertel v. Chicago City Ry Co., 198 Ill App 415

Kan—Harris v. Combs, 53 P 2d 485, 143 Kan. 42—Mathews v Kansas City Rys Co, 178 P 252, 104 Kan 92—Bean-Hogan v Kloehr, 175 P 976, 103 Kan. 731

La.—Guernsey v Toye Bros. Yellow Cab Co, App, 172 So 459—Thibodeaux v. Star Checker Cab Co, App, 143 So. 101

Me—Wakely v Androscoggin & K. Ry. Co., 177 A 613, 133 Me. 514.

Mass—Rea v. Checker Taxi Co, 172 N E. 612, 272 Mass 510.

Minn.—Useman v. Minneapolis St Ry Co, 268 N.W. 866, 198 Minn 79.

Mo—Perkins v. United Rys. Co of St. Louis, App, 243 S.W. 224—Katon v. Kansas City Rys. Co, App., 241 S.W 983

N J. — Super v Garfield-Passaic Transit Co, 155 A. 619, 9 N J Misc. 812—Jones v. People's Rapid Transit Co, 153 A 373, 9 N J Misc 315—Ward v. Lydiard, 141 A. 166, 6 N.J.Misc 370.

N.Y—Gilligan v. Jones, 282 N.Y S. 354, 246 App Div 531, affirmed 2 N. E 2d 694, 271 N Y 559

Pa—Lelar v Quaker City Cabs, 164 A 105, 108 Pa Super 15—Deady v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 100 Pa Super. 208.

R I.—Zmuda v McFarland, 165 A 446, 53 R I. 210.

Tenn—Nashville Ry. & Light Co. v Owen, 11 Tenn.App 19

Tex—San Antonio Traction Co. v. Roberts, Civ App, 152 S.W. 455

Va—Richmond-Washington Motor Coaches v. Austin, 152 S E 357, 154 Va 148.

Wash—Shanahan v. International Stage Co, 3 P 2d 1092, 164 Wash. 609—Sinclair v. Yabe, 199 P 725, 116 Wash 409—McDorman v Dunn, 172 P. 244, 101 Wash. 120

Wis—Carson v Leet, 203 N W 394, 186 Wis. 566—Naus v Chicago & M. Electric Ry. Co., 201 N W. 281, 185 Wis. 178.

10 C J. p 1062 note 59 [a] (1).

(2) To make a prima facie case.

Mo.—Gibson v. Wells, App, 258 S. W. 1—Moran v Kansas City Rys Co, App., 232 S W. 1111

N J—Anderson v. Green Cab Co, 133 A. 788, 102 N.J.Law 521, 4 N. J Misc. 629.

N.Y—Notter v Union Ry. Co. of New York, 286 N Y.S. 745, 247 App Div. 140.

R I.—De Nicola v. United Electric Rys. Co., 182 A. 1, 55 R.I. 402.

Tex—Dallas Ry Co v Skorodynski, Civ.App 292 S.W 638

10 C J. p 1062 note 59 [c].

(3) To warrant finding of negligent speed of taxicab in action for cab passenger's injuries—Thorgrimson v Shreveport Yellow Cabs, La App, 161 So. 49

(4) To sustain finding that taxicab was driven at unduly high speed in center of road, so as to crash into approaching car causing passengers' injuries—Chaput v. Lussier, 165 A. 573, 132 Me 48.

(5) To support conclusion that collision was due to negligence of bus driver in partly driving on wrong side of slippery road at speed of thirty miles per hour—Sengebush v. Edgerton, 180 A 694, 120 Conn. 367

(6) To warrant a finding that the accident was caused by the driver's negligence in driving too close to an ice wagon—Ivancich v. Davies, 199 P 784, 186 Cal. 520.

(7) To show that taxicab driver was negligent in failing to keep proper lookout for approaching automobile—Friede v. Toye Bros. Yellow Cab Co, La App, 156 So. 48

(8) To sustain finding that passenger was not, as claimed, injured by being thrown backward against window sill when street car, slowly making right turn, collided with truck, resulting in slight physical damage to each—Groce v. New Orleans Public Service, La App, 159 So. 166.

(9) To authorize finding that collision could have been avoided by exercise of care owing to passenger.—Cohen v Eastern Massachusetts St Ry. Co, 165 N.E. 113, 266 Mass. 283

(10) To justify a verdict against both the carrier and the other party to the collision.

Cal—Malone v. Red Top Cab Co. of Los Angeles, 60 P 2d 543, 16 Cal App 2d 268—Simmons v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 212 P. 637, 60 Cal.App. 129

Conn—Rosenberg v Matulis, 166 A. 397, 116 Conn. 675

Ind—Ft. Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction Co v. Parish, 119 N E. 488, 67 Ind.App. 597.

La.—Brook v. Interurban Motor Transp. Co., 100 So. 428, 156 La. 286.

Neb—Daly v Publix Cars, 259 N. W 163, 128 Neb 403

N Y—Martin v. North American Cement Corporation, 284 N Y.S. 192, 246 App Div. 858.

(11) To sustain finding that negligence of the carrier was the sole taking up passengers[29] and in actions for injuries | to passengers caused by carrier's negligence in set-cause of the collision.—Noah v. Black & White Cab Co, 32 P 2d 437, 138 Cal App 236

(12) To show negligence was that of third party only.

Ohio—Canton Motor Coach v. Hall, 189 N E 505, 46 Ohio App. 516.

Pa—Wilkerson v Pittsburgh Rys Co, 163 A. 909, 309 Pa 381.

(13) To show that carrier was not negligent

Cal—Billig v. Southern Pac Co, 219 P 992, 192 Cal 357

Ky—Fitzgerald v. South Covington & C St. Ry. Co., 234 S W. 738, 192 Ky. 819.

La—Gager v. Teche Transfer Co., App, 153 So. 69.

Mich.—King v. Neller, 199 N.W. 674, 228 Mich. 15.

Minn—Eliason v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co, 158 N.W. 622, 133 Minn. 392.

(14) To show that speed of street car sideswiping wagon was not excessive—Larose v. New Orleans Public Service, 119 So 908, 10 La App 91

(15) To sustain a verdict for both defendants.—Day v. Brooklyn City R Co, 191 N Y S. 484, 199 App Div. 179.

(16) To sustain finding, in action by taxicab passenger for injuries sustained in collision, that motorist made left turn at intersection with due care, although motorist did not at all times watch approaching taxicab that later collided with him.—Noah v Black & White Cab Co., 32 P 2d 437, 138 Cal App 236.
10 C.J. p 1062 note 59 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To show negligence in causing a collision and to sustain a recovery for injuries caused thereby

U S—Third Ave Ry Co. v. Mills, N.Y, 249 F. 661, 161 C C.A. 571.

Cal—Rice v Smith, 24 P 2d 369, 133 Cal App. 403.

Ky.—Wigginton's Adm'r v. Rickert, 217 S W. 933, 186 Ky 650.

La.—Groce v. New Orleans Public Service, App, 159 So 166—Upton v. Bell Cabs, App, 154 So 359.

Neb.—Knight v. Lincoln Traction Co., 255 N.W. 774 127 Neb 447

N Y—Quinlan v Sixth Ave R Co., 4 Daly 487

Ohio—Ohio Traction Co v. Miller, 13 Ohio Cir Ct ,N.S , 67

Pa—Ruthberg v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 151 A 19, 300 Pa. 536—Howell v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 94 Pa Super 449.

R I—McKay v. Rhode Island Co, 113 A 673

10 C J p 1062 note 59 [b] (1).

(2) To show willful negligence of carrier—Dierickx v. Davis, 137 N E. 685, 80 Ind.App. 71, certiorari denied 44 S Ct. 36, 263 U.S. 709, 68 L.Ed. 518.

(3) To show that negligence of either carrier or other party caused collision—McNiff v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 125 N E. 391, 234 Mass. 252

(4) To show conclusively that carrier failed to use the highest degree of care.—Lamar v Panhandle & S F. Ry Co., Tex Civ.App, 234 S W. 605, reversed on other grounds, Com App., 248 S.W. 34.

(5) To sustain verdict for injured street car passenger on theory that collision between street car and allegedly stalled automobile was due to excessive speed of street car on slippery tracks—Williams v. United Electric Rys Co., 167 A. 117, 53 R.I 472.

(6) To overcome presumption raised by doctrine of res ipsa loquitur—Illinois Central Ry. Co. v. Solinsky, 12 Tenn App 389.

(7) To support verdict for defendant.

N J—Gash v. Khan, 160 A. 367, 10 N J.Misc 708

N Y—Sanucci v. New York Cent. R Co., 228 N.Y.S. 505, 223 App.Div. 517.

(8) To make a prima facie case—Froio v. Eastern Massachusetts St Ry. Co, 142 N E 255, 247 Mass 474. 10 C.J. p 1062 note 59 [b].

Testimony exonerating employee

In passenger's action for negligent injury from railway collision against railroad and railroad employee, testimony of employee, exonerating himself, was not undisputed evidence of nonliability of railroad—Kansas City Southern Ry Co. v. Cockrell, 277 S W. 7, 169 Ark 698

29. Conn.—Kopacka v. New York, etc, R Co, 90 A 27, 88 Conn. 82 10 C J. p 1063 note 60.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for injuries received by passenger attempting to board a car or train

Cal—Keyser v San Diego Electric Ry. Co, 60 P.2d 136, 16 Cal App 2d 48.

Ill—Phil v Springfield Consol. Ry Co., 219 Ill App. 588—Little v Peoria Ry Co, 215 Ill App. 385.

Ind—Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Co v. Angelo, 169 N E 478, 95 Ind App 476

Ky.—Louisville & N R. Co v. Bowman, 270 S W. 471, 208 Ky. 39.

Mo—Baldwin v. Kansas City Rys Co, App., 214 S W. 274—Elliott v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 214 S W 234, 201 Mo.App. 662—Burkett v Missouri Pac R. Co., App., 208 S W. 104.

N.J—Tansey v. Tedesco, 107 A. 419, 93 N.J.Law 259.

Okl—Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Latty, 187 P. 491, 77 Okl. 156.

Pa.—Ensor v. Pennsylvania R Co., 159 A 872, 306 Pa 451—Ferrara v West Jersey & S R. Co, 71 Pa. Super. 290.

Va—Burr v. Virginia Railway & Power Co., 145 S E 833, 151 Va. 934

(2) To sustain a recovery for injuries to a prospective passenger.

Ark.—Ft Smith Light & Traction Co. v. Phillips, 206 S.W 453, 136 Ark. 310

N.J—Olsen v. White Way Tours, 153 A. 267, 9 N.J.Misc. 181.

N Y—Campbell v. Richmond Light & R Co, 127 N E 271, 228 N.Y 383, reversing 168 N Y.S 813, 181 App Div. 320, and reargument denied 129 N.E 906, 229 N.Y. 537.

Tex.—Texas Electric Ry. v. Stewart, Civ App., 217 S.W. 1081, error refused.

(3) To justify inference that passenger was in act of boarding car, and conductor should have known such fact—Garlinski v Chicago City Ry Co., 257 Ill App 414

(4) To show that passenger's injury would probably not have occurred if there had been a platform stool or porter at car which she was re-entering after a temporary absence—Sellars v. Southern Pac. Co, 166 P 599, 33 Cal App 701

(5) To warrant finding that street car motorman could have seen prospective passenger crossing street in time to have checked or stopped car—Schimmelpfenning v. Wells, Mo, 24 S W.2d 154.

(6) To show that electric railway operated car at negligent rate of speed in approaching regular local stopping place—Lake Shore Electric Ry. Co v. Ordway, 156 N.E 235, 24 Ohio App. 317.

(7) To warrant finding that passenger was not, as contended, injured in boarding train when conductor released passenger's arm requiring passenger to seize handrail—St. Louis, S F & T. Ry Co. v Gore, Tex Civ App, 69 S W 2d 186, error dismissed

(8) To support finding that carrier was not negligent—Foote v. Chicago, N S. & M R. Co, 256 Ill. App. 581.

(9) To show that railroad, sued for injuries passenger sustained while boarding train, was not negligent in obstructing passageway.—Hail v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas, Tex.Civ.App., 30 S.W. 2d 1062, affirmed Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas v. Hail, Com. App., 48 S.W.2d 589.

ting down passengers,[30] such as in starting the car | before the passenger has had a reasonable oppor-

(10) To support verdict for defendant.
Cal.—Dwyer v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 2 P.2d 468, 115 Cal.App. 709.
La.—Jones v. New Orleans Public Service, 140 So. 871, 19 La.App. 699.
Mass.—Gerber v. New York Cent. R. R., 192 N.E. 837, 288 Mass. 318.
10 C.J. p. 1063 note 60 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To raise issue regarding railroad's negligence in not having employee assist passenger in boarding train when he was injured.—Hail v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas, Tex.Civ.App., 30 S.W.2d 1062, affirmed Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas v. Hail, Com.App., 48 S.W.2d 589.

(2) To show willful and wanton negligence of motorman whose car struck prospective passenger.—Covert v. Rockford & I. Ry. Co., 132 N.E. 504, 299 Ill. 288.

(3) To show that train, on which plaintiff, holding a drover's pass, was seeking to take passage in caboose, stood at usual place where such trains stand before starting.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Tex.Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused.

(4) To support verdict against railroad for alleged injuries to passenger when caught in door during attempt to board trolley car.—Grace v. Atlantic City & S. R. Co., 157 A. 439, 10 N.J.Misc. 38.

(5) To support judgment for defendant.—Bentrovato v. Concourse Bus Line, 200 N.Y.S. 356.

Evidence held insufficient to show negligence

(1) In taking up passenger.
Ala.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Hayne, 95 So. 879, 209 Ala. 186.
Cal.—Gaskill v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 159 P. 200, 30 Cal.App. 593.
La.—Dale v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 80 So. 588, 144 La. 357.
N.Y.—Hessler v. New York Rys. Co., 167 N.Y.S. 863.
Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Reinhart, 160 P. 51, 61 Okl. 72.
Pa.—Harrar v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 92 Pa.Super. 242.
10 C.J. p. 1063 note 60 [b] (1).

(2) As to prospective passenger.
Cal.—Gore v. Market Street Ry. Co., 48 P.2d 2, 4 Cal.2d 154.—Elliott v. Market St. Ry. Co., 40 P.2d 547, 4 Cal.App.2d 292.
Me.—Robitaille v. Androscoggin & K. Ry. Co., 121 A. 540, 122 Me. 570.
Mass.—Fairbanks v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 129 N.E. 367, 237 Mass. 127.
Mo.—McMiens v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 202 S.W. 1082, 274 Mo. 326.
Va.—Veale v. Virginia Ry. & Power Co., 131 S.E. 200, 144 Va. 210.

(3) In suddenly increasing speed of car as passenger attempted to board it.—Ginochio v. City and County of San Francisco, 228 P. 428, 194 Cal. 159.—10 C.J. p. 1063 note 60 [b] (3).

(4) In closing platform or door over steps before passenger had reasonable time and opportunity to board train.—Palen v. Wheelock, C.C.A.Mo., 13 F.2d 34.

(5) In closing vestibule door on train.—Palen v. Wheelock, supra.

30. Mo.—Weber v. Kansas City Cable R. Co., 12 S.W. 804, 13 S.W. 587, 100 Mo. 194, 18 Am.S.R. 541, 7 L.R.A. 819.
10 C.J. p. 1063 note 61.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for negligence in setting down a passenger.
Ill.—See Larson v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 209 Ill.App. 531.
Mass.—Poppel v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 267, 258 Mass. 389.
Mich.—Pawlicki v. Detroit United Ry., 158 N.W. 162, 191 Mich. 536.
Minn.—McMurray v. Twin City Motor Bus Co., 228 N.W. 154, 178 Minn. 561.
Mo.—Stakebake v. Union Pac. R. Co., App., 185 S.W. 1166.
Pa.—Montalini v. Pennsylvania Co., 100 A. 806, 256 Pa. 249.
Tex.—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Courtney, Civ.App., 214 S.W. 839, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Preston, Civ.App., 194 S.W. 1128, affirmed, Com.App., 228 S.W. 928.—Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Berry, Civ.App., 187 S.W. 415, error dismissed.
10 C.J. p. 1063 note 61 [b] (1).

(2) To show negligence in making sudden stop.
Conn.—Spiro v. Bridgeport Auto Transit Co., 155 A. 416, 113 Conn. 773.
Mass.—Danofsky v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 117 N.E. 4, 228 Mass. 97.
Mo.—Goodwin v. Wells, 285 S.W. 112, 220 Mo.App. 1.
Va.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Bailey, 96 S.E. 275, 123 Va. 250.

(3) To sustain a recovery for injuries caused a passenger while alighting from a moving train or car.
Ark.—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Duffey, 183 S.W. 748, 122 Ark. 429.
Minn.—Leonczak v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 201 N.W. 551, 161 Minn. 304.
10 C.J. p. 1063 note 61 [b] (2).

(4) To support verdict for plaintiff struck by street car when alighting from jitney bus.—Alexander v. Matteucci, 135 A. 820, 5 N.J.Misc. 133.

(5) To establish the railroad's negligence in failing to light the station platform or its surroundings, carrying plaintiff beyond it, inviting him to alight in an unfamiliar place in the darkness, and failing to give him any warning or instructions.—Payne v. Davis, 252 S.W. 57, 298 Mo. 645.—Copeland v. Davis, Mo.App., 253 S.W. 427.

(6) To warrant finding that passenger was killed by falling into a river after being misled into alighting on a bridge, when his train stopped at a water tank after a brakeman called his station.—Larson v. Green Bay & W. R. Co., 192 N.W. 63, 179 Wis. 510.

(7) To show negligence in failing to assist passenger in alighting.
Iowa.—Olson v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 170 N.W. 466, 186 Iowa 384.
Mo.—Turner v. Wabash R. Co., App., 211 S.W. 101.

(8) To sustain finding that defendant was negligent because of the manner in which the conductor or brakeman assisted her off the car.—Steketee v. Waters, 159 N.W. 368, 193 Mich. 177.

(9) To show negligence in respect of the location of the step box.—Spry v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 211 P. 1112, 112 Kan. 580.

(10) To establish that passenger fell from step of street car because step was negligently in improper position.—Baptiste v. New Orleans Public Service, 127 So. 655, 13 La.App. 625.

(11) To authorize a finding that defendant raised the step before plaintiff reached a position of safety.—McCormack v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, Mo.App., 238 S.W. 579.

(12) To show that an electric railway company did not authorize its employees to invite and assist passengers to use the baggage and mail compartment of a combination car in leaving the car.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99.

(13) To rebut successfully passenger's prima facie case that street car motorman negligently closed automatic door as passenger was descending, causing plaintiff's leg to become jammed between door and iron rod, and causing passenger to fall.—Carter v. New Orleans Public Service, La.App., 146 So. 49.
10 C.J. p. 1063 note 61 [b].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for negligence in setting down a passenger.

tunity to reach a place of safety in boarding[31] or | alighting from[32] a train or car, or in failing to pro-

Conn.—Byrne v Connecticut Co., 195 A. 184, 123 Conn. 304.
Ill.—Coultis v. Illinois Terminal Co., 3 N.E.2d 166, 285 Ill.App. 600—Jaroszewski v. Chicago Rys. Co., 241 Ill.App. 1. See Palm v. Rockford City Traction Co., 200 Ill.App. 115.
Ky.—Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. Ry. Co. v. Francis, 220 S.W. 739, 187 Ky. 703—Kentucky & T. Ry. Co. v. Ball, 194 S.W. 785, 175 Ky. 630.
La.—Lakios v. New Orleans, T. & M. Ry. Co., App., 147 So. 525—Betts v. Shreveport Rys. Co., 137 So. 615, 18 La.App. 282—Delhomer v. St. John the Baptist Parish School Board, 126 So. 272, 12 La.App. 580—Burnett v. New Orleans Public Service, 7 La.App. 743—Bass v. Illinois Central Ry. Co., 4 La.App. 175.
Me.—Mahan v. Hines, 115 A. 132, 120 Me. 371.
Mass.—Rogers v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 141 N.E. 285, 246 Mass. 478.
N.H.—Currier v. Boston & M. R. R., 97 A. 741, 78 N.H. 586.
N.Y.—Beltz v. Buffalo, R. & P. Ry. Co., 119 N.E. 81, 222 N.Y. 433, reversing 160 N.Y.S. 1124, 171 App. Div. 976—Johnson v. Brooklyn & Queens Transit Corporation, 292 N.Y.S. 323, 249 App.Div. 779.
S.C.—Bennett v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 123 S.E. 327, 129 S.C. 13.
Tex.—Lattimer v. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 106 S.W.2d 727—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Jones, Civ. App., 187 S.W. 717.
Va.—Walters v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 182, 122 Va. 149.
10 C.J. p. 1063 note 61 [c] (1).

(2) To sustain a recovery for injuries caused a passenger while alighting from a moving car.—Marovich v. Central California Traction Co., 216 P. 595, 191 Cal. 295—10 C.J. p. 1063 note 61 [c] (2).

(3) To show that street car was operated with defective step mechanism or that mechanism was carelessly operated.—Wylie v. Shreveport Rys. Co., 145 So. 513, 176 La. 193, affirming, App., 140 So. 715.

(4) To warrant a finding that a conductor of a train was personally negligent, where a passenger was injured while alighting.—Watts v. Spokane, P. & S. Ry. Co., 171 P. 901, 88 Or. 192.

(5) To show, as a matter of law, a street railroad's negligence in permitting passenger to alight at other than usual stopping place.—Scherer v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 145 A. 76, 295 Pa. 199.

(6) To show that a man in cap and uniform, assisting passengers to alight by a door not intended for passengers, was an employee of the company or acting for it.—Davidson v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 105 S.E. 669, 129 Va. 99.

(7) To sustain, in an action for injuries to a passenger who claimed she fell from a street car when her skirt caught on a basket which another passenger had set on the platform near the steps, thereby tripping her and throwing her to the ground, the contention of the carrier that plaintiff had reached the ground in safety and thereafter fell from some unknown cause.—Hopkins v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 90 So. 512, 150 La. 61, 19 A.L.R. 1362.
10 C.J. p. 1063 note 61 [c].

Violation of rule of public utilities commission requiring motor busses to stop at extreme right of available roadway when taking on or discharging passengers would justify finding of negligence.—Hyde v. Connecticut Co., 188 A. 266, 122 Conn. 236.

31. N.Y.—Akersloot v. Second Ave. R. Co., 30 N.E. 195, 131 N.Y. 599, 15 L.R.A. 489, affirming 8 N.Y.S. 926.
10 C.J. p. 1064 note 62.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for negligence in starting car or train while passenger was attempting to board it.
Cal.—Riley v. Southern Pac. Co., 207 P. 699, 57 Cal.App. 477.
Ga.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Freeney, 96 S.E. 575, 22 Ga.App. 457.
Ill.—See Devine v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 195 Ill.App. 304.
N.J.—Moore v. Atlantic & Suburban Ry. Co., 144 A. 309, 7 N.J.Misc. 105.
N.Y.—Marinelli v. New York Rys. Co., 175 N.Y.S. 539.
Pa.—Donnelly v. Pennsylvania Co., 97 A. 272, 252 Pa. 175.
Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 1064 note 62 [a] (1).

(2) To sustain a recovery for injuries received when car was started in unusual manner before passengers were seated.—Hallinan v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry. Co., 172 N.E. 862, 273 Mass. 27—Convery v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 147 N.E. 824, 252 Mass. 418.

(3) To afford ground for reasonable inference that the conductor knew that plaintiff intended to board the car, and to show defendant's knowledge of such intent.—Morris v. Detroit United Ry., 193 N.W. 871, 223 Mich. 264.
10 C.J. p. 1064 note 62 [a].

Evidence held insufficient to sustain recovery for negligence in starting or jerking a train or car while passenger was boarding it.
La.—Murphy v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 169 So. 890.
Md.—Brocato v. United Rys. & Electric Co. of Baltimore, 99 A. 792, 129 Md. 572.
Tex.—Hail v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 30 S.W.2d 1062, affirmed Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas v. Hail, Com.App., 48 S.W.2d 589.
10 C.J. p. 1064 note 62 [b].

Intention bona fide to become passenger, and acceptance by carrier, may be shown by attendant circumstances and by implications therefrom.—Gulf, M. & N. R. Co. v. Bradley, 142 So. 493, 167 Miss. 603.

32. Del.—Girardo v. Wilmington, etc., Tract. Co., 90 A. 476, 5 Boyce 25.
10 C.J. p. 1064 note 63.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for injuries received when the train or car was started or jerked while passenger was alighting.
Cal.—Baker v. Market St. Ry. Co., 11 P.2d 912, 123 Cal.App. 688—Andrews v. San Diego Electric Ry. Co., 205 P. 700, 56 Cal.App. 414.
Fla.—Atlanta & St. A. B. Ry. Co. v. Kelly, 82 So. 57, 77 Fla. 479.
Ga.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Williams, 91 S.E. 894, 19 Ga.App. 462.
Ill.—Kapella v. Chicago Rys. Co., 228 Ill.App. 528. See Ensminger v. Chicago Rys. Co., 205 Ill.App. 603—Feldman v. Chicago Rys. Co., 205 Ill.App. 288—Emerson v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 203 Ill.App. 412—McConnell v. Chicago Rys. Co., 199 Ill.App. 490.
Ind.—Hines v. Rollins, 179 N.E. 183, 97 Ind.App. 251.
Iowa.—Elmore v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 224 N.W. 28, 207 Iowa 862.
Ky.—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Peel, 214 S.W. 874, 185 Ky. 207—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Farmer, 206 S.W. 619, 182 Ky. 368.
Me.—Clapp v. Cumberland County Power & Light Co., 117 A. 307, 121 Me. 356.
Mich.—Tuttle v. Detroit J. & C. Ry. Co., 159 N.W. 498, 193 Mich. 390.
Minn.—Stevens v. St. Paul City Ry. Co., 167 N.W. 1045, 140 Minn. 306.
Mo.—Huntington v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 233 S.W. 95—Hartweg v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 231 S.W. 269—Roach v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 228 S.W. 520—Patterson v. Lusk, App., 196 S.W. 65.
N.Y.—Mallory v. International Ry. Co., 231 N.Y.S. 385, 224 App.Div. 455—Bradley v. Waverly, Sayre & Athens Traction Co., 191 N.Y.S. 451.
Ohio.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Smith, 172 N.E. 409, 35 Ohio App. 204—Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co. v. Schrock, 7 Ohio App. 229.

vide a safe place for setting down passengers;[33] | and also apply in actions for injuries caused by Okl.—Oklahoma Union Ry Co v. Bertrand, 264 P. 621, 129 Okl 263.

R.I.—Buttera v. Rhode Island Co, 110 A. 71—Brown v. Rhode Island Co, 102 A 965.
Tenn.—Nashville, C & St. L Ry. v. Akin, 203 S.W 329, 140 Tenn 34
Tex.—Dallas Ry Co. v. Hallum, Civ. App., 276 S W 460—Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co v. Lynch, Civ.App, 208 S W. 714.
Va.—Virginia Trust Co. v. Raymond, 91 S E 613, 120 Va. 674.
10 C.J. p 1064 note 63 [a] (1).

(2) To sustain finding that conductor gave starting signal or that movement of car was due to negligence in starting the car.—Fitzpatrick v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 112 N.E. 94, 223 Mass. 475.

(3) To show that plaintiff fell after alighting from car—Young v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 86 So. 268, 147 La. 820

(4) To establish that train had stopped before passenger undertook to alight—Louisville & N. R. Co. v Campbell, 35 S.W.2d 26, 237 Ky. 182

(5) To show that negligence in suddenly starting street car was proximate cause of passenger's injuries.—Smith v. Dallas Ry. Co, Tex. Civ App, 8 S.W.2d 548, error dismissed

(6) To sustain verdict for defendant.
Ill.—See Schuman v. Chicago Rys Co., 198 Ill.App. 447.
Kan.—Hunter v Joplin & P. Ry. Co., 197 P. 1092, 109 Kan. 169.
Tex.—Fox v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co, Civ.App., 186 S.W. 852.
10 C J. p 1064 note 63 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for negligence in starting or moving a train or car before a passenger had a reasonable opportunity to alight in safety.
Ala.—Erwin v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co, 76 So. 915, 200 Ala. 557.
Ill.—See Rockstroch v. Calumet & S. C. Ry. Co, 210 Ill.App. 250—Dallas v. East St. Louis & Suburban Ry. Co., 203 Ill.App. 129—Joseph v. Chicago City Ry. Co, 202 Ill.App. 159—Davenport v. Calumet & South Chicago Ry. Co., 197 Ill App 372.
La.—Rainey v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 171 So 585—Wark v. New Orleans Public Service, App, 168 So. 797—Barnes v. Shreveport Rys Co., 120 So. 551, 9 La.App. 261—Hebert v. New Orleans Public Service, 119 So. 575, 10 La App. 341
Me.—Clapp v. Cumberland County Power & Light Co, 117 A. 307, 121 Me. 356
Mass.—Gollis v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry., 149 N.E. 607, 254 Mass. 157
N.J.—Fish v. Atlantic City & S R. Co., 156 A. 326, 9 N J Misc. 1051—Rappoport v. Atlantic City & Seashore Ry. Co, 152 A. 706, 9 N J Misc 51—Martin v. Public Service Co-ordinated Transport, 152 A 699, 9 N J Misc 54—Lawson v West Jersey & Seashore R. Co., 144 A. 187, 7 N J.Misc. 116.
N Y.—Dumanski v Stradone, 232 N Y S 485, 225 App.Div 181.
10 C J p 1064 note 63 [b] (1).

(2) To warrant inference that car was started in unusual way—Desautels v. Massachusetts Northeastern St. Ry. Co., 177 N E 578, 276 Mass. 381

(3) To show that motorman applied power negligently—Desautels v. Massachusetts Northeastern St. Ry. Co, supra.

(4) To show negligent operation—Desautels v. Massachusetts Northeastern St. Ry. Co., supra.

(5) To defeat verdict for plaintiff.—Burnham v. Peoria Ry. Co., 223 Ill App 573
10 C J. p 1064 note 63 [b].

Proof of sudden jerk of street car permits inference that it was caused by motorman, where there is no other probable agency to which to attribute such starting.—Lammert v. Wells, Mo.App, 282 S.W. 487.

Elevator; evidence held sufficient to establish prima facie case.—Roberts v Schaper Stores Co., 3 S W.2d 241, 318 Mo. 1190.

33. Md.—Topp v. United R, etc., Co., 59 A. 52, 99 Md 630, 1 Ann.Cas 912.
10 C J p 1065 note 64.

Negligence is sufficiently shown, in action for injury to trolley car passenger while alighting to temporary platform, by evidence showing that accident would not have happened had appliance been properly cared for—Gormley v. Union Paving Co., 95 Pa.Super. 78.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for negligence in failing to provide a safe place for setting down passengers
Ark.—Lusk v. Craft, 187 S.W. 176, 124 Ark. 599.
La.—Thomas v Shreveport Rys. Co., 127 So 119, 13 La App 212.
Mo.—Ganahl v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 197 S.W. 159, 197 Mo. App. 495.
R.I.—Whitworth v. United Electric Rys Co, 137 A. 781, 48 R.I. 301.
Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. McNeill, Civ App, 270 S W 1038—Houston, E. & W T Ry. Co. v. Hooper, Civ.App., 184 S W 347, error refused—Galveston, H & S. A. Ry Co. v. Williams, Cr App., 217 S.W 420

(2) To sustain a recovery for injuries received in being required or invited to alight at a place other than the regular platform or stopping place.
La.—Johnson v. City of Monroe, App, 147 So 519.
Pa.—Miller v. Lehigh Valley R Co, 138 A 89, 290 Pa. 130

(3) To sustain a recovery for injuries received when alighting at a temporary platform.—Gormley v Union Paving Co, 95 Pa.Super. 78.

(4) To sustain finding that crews stopping train before reaching station was negligent in permitting passenger to use defective wooden path between tracks.—McCarron v Erie R. Co, 159 A 807, 10 N.J Misc. 498

(5) To sustain finding that bus owner did not exercise required care toward seven-year-old passenger, struck by truck, in inviting him to alight, in the traveled portion of the highway from bus stopping on left side of highway—Roden v Connecticut Co., 155 A. 721, 113 Conn 408.
10 C J. p 1065 note 64 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for negligence in failing to furnish a safe place for setting down passengers
Cal.—Choquette v. Key System Transit Co., 5 P 2d 921, 118 Cal. App. 643
Ill.—Feeney v. Chicago City Ry. Co, 220 Ill.App 400.
La.—Melilli v. Jacobs, App, 170 So 279—Campbell v. N. O Public Service, 133 So. 542, 16 La.App. 210
Mass.—Gast v. Boston Elevated Ry Co., 169 N E. 905, 270 Mass 330—Williamson v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 156 N.E. 22, 259 Mass 229
Pa.—Scherer v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 145 A. 76, 295 Pa. 199—Low v. Harrisburg Rys. Co, 138 A. 852, 290 Pa. 365.

(2) To show that defendant railroad in stopping near destination called for in plaintiff's drover's pass stopped at usual and customary place.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Tex.Civ App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused.

(3) To show negligence, in action against street railroad, where plaintiff passenger, having alighted from street car not stopping at regular stop, was immediately struck by automobile.—Lacks v. Wells, 44 S.W. 2d 154, 329 Mo. 327.
10 C J. p 1065 note 64 [b].

Tilting of step box

The fact that a step box tilted over when an alighting passenger stepped upon it is not sufficient to authorize a jury to find that rough-abuse or assaults on passengers by the carrier's employees[34] or by the actions, abuse, or assaults by fellow passengers,[35] or for personal indignities offered a passenger by a conductor or other employee.[36]

§ 767. Trial

The trial of an action for personal injuries by a passenger against a carrier is governed by the rules applicable to the trial of civil actions generally, as stated in the C.J.S. title Trial, and, so far as applicable, by the rules applicable to actions for personal injuries generally, as stated in the C.J.S. title Negligence §§ 251–305, also 45 C.J. p. 1278 note 1 et seq.

§ 768. Questions of Law and Fact

a. In general
b. Existence of relation of carrier and passenger
c. Negligence in general
d. Care as to children and others under disability
e. Acts or omissions of carrier's employees in general
f. Number and efficiency of employees
g. Acts of fellow passengers or other third persons
h. Condition and use of carrier's premises, tracks, and roadbed
i. Taking up passengers
j. Operating trains where passengers are being received or discharged
k. Condition of cars and equipment
l. Operation of cars
m. Passing other vehicles or objects
n. Collisions
o. Derailments; running off road
p. Setting down passengers
q. Care as to persons accompanying passengers
r. Proximate cause of injury
s. Companies and persons liable
t. Conditions and operation of elevators and escalators

a. In General

In actions by passengers against carriers for personal injuries, questions of law and fact are governed by general rules. When there is evidence sufficient to sustain a finding of the existence or nonexistence of a material ness or unevenness in the surface caused the tilting—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v Skaggs, Miss., 179 So. 274

34. Ky.—Ashland Coal & Iron Ry. Co. v. Elswick, 225 S.W. 244, 189 Ky. 507.
10 C.J. p. 1065 note 65.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery by a passenger for an assault by an employee of the carrier
Ky.—Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co. v. Webb, 259 S.W. 697, 202 Ky. 341—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bennett, 209 S.W. 358, 183 Ky. 445.
Mo.—Morton v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 20 S.W.2d 34, 323 Mo. 929—Knoell v. Kansas City, C., C. & St. J. Ry. Co., App., 198 S.W. 79.
Tex.—Schaff v. Wright, Civ. App., 251 S.W. 515

(2) To show injuries could have resulted from assault—Morton v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., supra.

(3) To warrant the submission to the jury of the question of actual damages resulting from humiliation and disgrace caused by an assault.—Sonnen v. St. Louis Transit Co., 76 S.W. 691, 102 Mo.App. 271.
10 C.J. p. 1065 note 65

Evidence held insufficient to sustain a recovery by a passenger for assault by an employee of a carrier.
La.—Smith v. New Orleans Public Service, 127 So. 16, 12 La.App. 692
Miss.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Farrior, 75 So. 777, 115 Miss. 96.
S.C.—Hutchison v. Southern Ry. Co., 95 S.E. 181, 109 S.C. 90.
10 C.J. p. 1065 note 65 [b].

Speculative evidence

In an action for assault and abuse by defendant's train conductor, evidence consisting solely of plaintiff's testimony has been held highly speculative as to whether the assault caused the recurrence of fits.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Hagler, 254 S.W. 1071, 160 Ark. 543.

35. Mo.—Sira v. Wabash R. Co., 21 S.W. 905, 115 Mo. 127, 37 Am.S.R. 386
10 C.J. p. 1065 note 66

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To sustain a recovery for injuries caused by acts of fellow passengers
Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Driver, 166 So. 701, 232 Ala. 36
Ark.—Butler County R. Co. v. Exum, 187 S.W. 329, 124 Ark. 229
D.C.—Washington Ry. & Electric Co. v. Perry, 47 App.D.C. 90
Ky.—Louisville & I. R. Co. v. Garr, 273 S.W. 540, 209 Ky. 841—Payne v. Combs, 249 S.W. 1031, 198 Ky. 749
N.J.—Falzarano v. Delaware L. & W. R. Co., 194 A. 75, 119 N.J.Law 76—Hoff v. Public Service Ry. Co., 101 A. 404, 90 N.J.Law 386, reversed on other grounds 103 A. 209, 91 N.J.Law 641, 15 A.L.R. 860.

(2) To authorize finding that carrier knew, or should have known, that plaintiff's fellow passenger was drunk, and if not put off train would require personal observation.—Memphis, D. & G. R. Co. v. Trussell, 183 S.W. 981, 122 Ark. 516.

(3) To warrant jury in finding that railroad employees should have anticipated by exercise of due care that brawling, drunken individual, who inflicted injuries on fellow traveler, was an undesirable and objectionable passenger to ride on its train.—Falzarano v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 194 A. 75, 119 N.J.Law 76

(4) To show that motorman and conductor of street car failed to use ordinary care to protect passenger from assault by fellow passenger.—El Paso Electric Co. v. Cannon, Tex.Civ.App., 69 S.W.2d 532, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 99 S.W.2d 907
10 C.J. p. 1065 note 66.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain a recovery for injuries caused by acts of fellow passengers.
Ala.—Hines v. Miniard, 86 So. 23, 204 Ala. 514, 12 A.L.R. 238
Md.—Pugh v. Washington Ry. & Electric Co., 113 A. 732, 138 Md. 226
Mass.—MacGilvray v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 118 N.E. 166, 229 Mass. 65, 4 A.L.R. 283
10 C.J. p. 1065 note 66 [b]

36. N.C.—Harrison v. Norfolk-Southern R. Co., 113 S.E. 678, 184 N.C. 86.
10 C.J. p. 1065 note 67.

fact in issue, and the evidence is conflicting or is such that reasonable minds might draw different conclusions therefrom the question is one for the jury. The court may determine the matter only when there is no evidence, or when the evidence is legally insufficient or is undisputed.

In an action by a passenger against a carrier for personal injuries, questions of law are ordinarily to be determined by the court and it is error to submit them to the jury.[37] Issues of fact, on the other hand, are ordinarily to be determined by the jury under proper instructions from the court.[38]

Where there is sufficient evidence on which the jury might justifiably find the existence or the nonexistence of material facts in issue, and the evidence is conflicting or of such a character that reasonable minds might draw different conclusions therefrom, the issues should be submitted to the jury for determination, as the weight of the evidence and the credibility of the witnesses are matters for determination by the jury;[39] and in such 37. Md.—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Carr, 17 A. 1052, 71 Md. 135.

10 C.J. p. 1065 note 70

Construction of municipal ordinance applicable to operation of street cars, and question whether it is in force is for court.—Schimmelpfenning v. Wells, Mo., 24 S.W. 2d 154

Reasonableness of rules of carrier
In New York the question of whether regulations made by carrier for protection of its passengers are reasonable is for court.—Garricott v. New York State Rys., 119 N.E. 94, 223 N.Y. 9, L.R.A.1918D 929, reversing 151 N.Y.S. 1117, 167 App.Div. 953.

Whether suit authorized
In a suit by a passenger for injuries, whether suit brought by plaintiff was authorized by her was a question of law and fact for the court.—Beardon v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co., 146 S.W. 861, 103 Ark. 341.

The degree of care required of a common carrier is a question of law for court, but whether such care was exercised by carrier is fact question for jury.—Jones v. Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co., 12 N.E.2d 279, 133 Ohio St. 118.

38. Pa.—Hawkins v. Director General of Railroads, 121 A. 46, 277 Pa. 213.
10 C.J. p. 1066 note 71.

Reasonableness of rules of carrier
Where conduct of injured passenger was in no way affected by a regulation of defendant carrier with regard to point at its platform where cars should stop, question of reasonableness of regulation is properly submitted to jury.—Boston Elevated Ry. Co. v. Teele, Mass., 248 F. 424, 160 C.C.A. 434.

Notice of injury
In action for injuries received from fall on ice on street railway platform, where court permitted amendment to declaration that statutory notice of injury caused by ice had been given, whether such notice had been given was properly submitted to jury where the evidence was conflicting.—Klein v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., Mass., 200 N.E. 6.

39. U.S.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chatters, C.C.A.La., 26 F.2d 403, affirming, D.C., Chatters v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 17 F.2d 305, certiorari granted Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chatters, 49 S.Ct. 26, 278 U.S. 590, 73 L.Ed. 523, reversed on other grounds 49 S.Ct. 329, 279 U.S. 320, 73 L.Ed. 711.—Pennsylvania Co. v. Clark, C.C.A.Ohio, 266 F. 182

Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Courson, 174 So. 474, 234 Ala. 273.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Holmes, 87 So. 574, 205 Ala. 47.—Willingham v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 83 So. 95, 203 Ala. 351.

Ark.—Missouri Pacific Transp. Co. v. Sharp, 108 S.W.2d 579, 194 Ark. 405.

Cal.—Hanton v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 174 P. 61, 178 Cal. 616.

Ill.—Moore v. Aurora, E. & C. R. Co., 92 N.E. 573, 246 Ill. 56.

Kan.—Cross v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 242 P. 469, 120 Kan. 58.

Md.—Stewart Taxi-Service Co. v. Spencer, 132 A. 153, 149 Md. 635.

Mich.—Pawlicki v. Detroit United Ry., 158 N.W. 162, 191 Mich. 536.

Minn.—Falk v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 157 N.W. 904, 133 Minn. 41.

Mo.—Winkler v. Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. R. Co., 10 S.W.2d 649, 321 Mo. 27.—Rosenzweig v. Wells, 273 S.W. 1071, 308 Mo. 617.—Weissman v. Wells, 267 S.W. 400, 306 Mo. 82.—Smith v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 84 S.W.2d 161.—Roussell v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 257 S.W. 516.—Middleton v. St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co., 195 S.W. 527, 196 Mo.App. 258.

N.Y.—Hogel v. Bee Line, 284 N.Y.S. 848, 246 App.Div. 833.—Supple v. International Ry. Co. 203 N.Y.S. 749, 208 App.Div. 547.—Bush v. Christopher & T. St. R. Co., 16 N.Y.S. 212, 41 N.Y.St. 92

Pa.—Little v. West Penn Railways Co., 29 Pa.Dist. 826.

Tex.—Haskins v. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 89 S.W.2d 831, error dismissed.—Curtis v. Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co., Civ.App., 73 S.W.2d 964, error dismissed.—Vick v. Schaff, Civ.App., 260 S.W. 916.—Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Berry, Civ.App., 187 S.W. 415, error dismissed.

Va.—Barnard Bus Lines v. Weeks, 158 S.E. 870, 156 Va. 465.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Dressler, 111 S.E. 243, 132 Va. 342, 22 A.L.R. 301.

W.Va.—Duty v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., 73 S.E. 331, 70 W.Va. 14.
10 C.J. p. 1066 notes 72, 73

Evidence held sufficient to require submission to jury
(1) For injury to passenger pushed from car by crowd.—Dashew v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 175 N.Y.S. 875.

(2) In an action for injury to a passenger in a street car.—Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co. v. McKeeman, Neb., 250 F. 386, 162 C.C.A. 456.

(3) In an action for injury to passenger's eye from cinder from locomotive.—Schaff v. Sanders, Tex. Civ.App., 257 S.W. 670, affirmed, Com. App., 269 S.W. 1034

(4) In a passenger's action for an assault by a conductor.—Flynn v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co., Mo. App., 190 S.W. 371.

(5) In passenger's action for damages caused by insulting language of railroad conductor.—Phillips v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 158 S.E. 274, 160 S.E. 323, 76 A.L.R. 415.

(6) In passenger's action for injuries in overturning of bus.—Perry v. Pickwick Stages of Oregon, 243 P. 787, 117 Or. 598.

(7) On question as to the negligence of carrier accepting passenger on freight train.—Osborne v. Southern R. Co., 96 S.E. 34, 175 N.C. 594.

(8) On question of willful or wanton negligence.—McCree v. Davis, C.C.A.Ohio, 280 F. 959.

(9) On question whether pneumonia and tuberculosis resulted from la grippe.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shaw, Tex.Civ.App., 218 S.W. 814, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.
10 C.J. p. 1066 note 72 [a].

Evidence of failure to exercise highest degree of care and diligence in protecting a passenger makes the case a proper one for a jury.—Snow v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 84 Pa.Super. 236.

a case it is error for the court to take the case from the jury by nonsuit, dismissal, direction of a verdict, or peremptory instruction.[40] However, where there is no evidence on an issue of fact,[41] or where the evidence is legally insufficient to sustain a finding as to such fact,[42] or is undisputed and of such a character that only one inference can reasonably be drawn therefrom,[43] the question becomes one for the determination of the court as a matter of law and the court should dispose of it without the intervention of a jury,[44] as by dismissal or nonsuit, by sustaining a demurrer to the evidence, or by directing a verdict.[45]

b. Existence of Relation of Carrier and Passenger

The existence of the relation of carrier and passenger is generally a question for the jury.

It is ordinarily a question for the jury as to whether the relation of carrier and passenger existed between defendant and the person injured, at the time of the injury,[46] unless the evidence is

Knowledge of limitations of pass

Whether plaintiff riding on defendant's car as a cook of the W Co., under an agreement by the latter with the carrier, had knowledge of the pass and the provisions thereof under which she was being carried, limiting the carrier's liability, is, under the evidence, a question of fact for the jury.—Western Maryland Ry Co. v. Shatzer, 120 A. 840, 142 Md. 274.

Evidence that instrumentality of carrier caused injury

The weight of evidence that plaintiff was injured by road's instrumentality was for jury under rule that, if passenger is injured, presumption of negligence arises.—Comer v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 90 S.E. 188, 105 S.C. 480.

Improbability of testimony

In action for personal injuries due to alleged failure of defendant railroad to give plaintiff a reasonable opportunity to board train at a flag station, the court did not err in refusing to direct verdict for defendant on ground that plaintiff's story of what happened was inherently incredible as the credibility of the witness is for the jury.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Quinn, 219 S.W. 789, 187 Ky. 607.

In action for injuries resulting from being forced off moving train by brakeman of defendant railway, whether plaintiff's evidence was unreasonable, contradictory, and untrue was for the jury.—Gannaway v. Pitcairn, Mo.App., 109 S.W.2d 78.

40. N.Y.—Zemmel v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 181 N.Y.S. 384.—Dashew v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 175 N.Y.S. 875.
10 C.J. p 1067 note 74.

41. Neb.—Zancanella v. Omaha & C. B. St. R. Co., 142 N.W. 190, 93 Neb. 774.
10 C.J. p 1067 note 75.

Unavoidable accident

(1) Issue of unavoidable accident was not raised in action against railroad for death of construction contractor riding on railroad motor car, where there was no testimony that accident would have happened even if both contractor and railroad were exercising due care.—International-Great Northern R. Co. v. Lucas, Tex.Com.App., 99 S.W.2d 297, reversing, Civ.App., 70 S.W.2d 226, opinion corrected, Com.App., 100 S.W.2d 97.

(2) In passenger's action for injuries sustained when railroad's motor coach backing into station collided with another coach standing near station, evidence held not to raise issue of unavoidable accident, but to conclusively establish that collision was result of negligence of motorman in failing to keep proper lookout.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Varnell, Tex.Civ.App., 97 S.W.2d 320.

42. U.S.—Sasinowski v. Boston & M. R. R., C.C.A.Mass., 74 F.2d 628.
Mass.—Finnegan v. Checker Taxi Co., 14 N.E.2d 127.
Ohio.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Keil, 24 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N.S., 445.
10 C.J. p 1067 note 76.

Evidence held insufficient to take case to jury

(1) On the question of defendant's ownership of car causing injury.—Lackland v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 191 S.W. 1104, 197 Mo.App. 62.

(2) On question of fraud.—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 286 S.W. 439, 220 Mo.App. 294.

43. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Norwood, 64 So. 604, 186 Ala. 49.
N.J.—Keeney v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 94 A. 604, 87 N.J.Law 505.

44. Mo.—Price v. St. Louis Transit Co., 102 S.W. 626, 125 Mo. 67.
Ohio.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Keil, 26 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N.S., 445.

45. N.H.—Vaughan v. Boston & M. R. R., 103 A. 129, 78 N.H. 615.
10 C.J. p 1067 note 79.

Immaterial matter

Failure to prove statement which was not basis of claim did not entitle defendant to general charge as to count containing statement.—St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 124 So. 231, 220 Ala. 107.

46. U.S.—Erie R. Co. v. Gordon, C.C.A.N.J., 30 F.2d 101.
Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So. 920, 200 Ala. 562.
Cal.—Hart v. Fresno Traction Co., 167 P. 885, 175 Cal. 489.
Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Webb, 150 So. 741, 112 Fla. 449.
Ga.—Smith v. Bugg, 134 S.E. 116, 35 Ga.App. 488.
Ill.—Foote v. Chicago, N. S. & M. R. Co., 256 Ill.App. 581. See Healy v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 196 Ill. App. 1.
Ky.—Jesse v. Dunn, 51 S.W.2d 918, 244 Ky. 613.
Md.—Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hoover, 120 A. 526, 142 Md. 251.
Minn.—Rau v. Smuda, 221 N.W. 232, 175 Minn. 328.—Gegere v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 220 N.W. 429, 175 Minn. 96.
Miss.—Teche Lines v. Keller, 165 So. 303, 174 Miss. 527.
Mo.—Gossett v. Kansas City Public Service Co., App., 17 S.W.2d 372.—Watts v. Fleming, 298 S.W. 107, 221 Mo.App. 1123.
N.J.—Brennan v. Public Service Ry. Co., 148 A. 775, 106 N.J.Law 464.
N.Y.—Salomone v. Yellow Taxi Corporation, 151 N.E. 442, 242 N.Y. 251, reversing 213 N.Y.S. 899, 215 App.Div. 790, reargument denied 152 N.E. 445, 242 N.Y. 602.—Supple v. International Ry. Co., 203 N.Y.S. 749, 208 App.Div. 547.
N.C.—Loggins v. Southern Public Utilities Co., 106 S.E. 822, 181 N.C. 221.
Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Warren, 269 P. 368, 132 Okl. 107.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Shadid, 159 P. 913, 60 Okl. 188.
Pa.—Berkebile v. Johnstown Traction Co., 99 A. 871, 255 Pa. 310.
10 C.J. p 1067 note 80.

Existence of emergency authorizing invitation to ride free

It would be a question for the jury to determine whether an emergency existed which justified or authorized a motorman in the state of Maine to permit an eleven year old school child to ride free by reason of a fall of snow which was not so deep as to prevent another school child from walking in the highway beside the track, assuming that the motorman had implied authority to give free rides in emergency cases, under a statute prohibiting giving of free rides generally, but permit-insufficient to be submitted, or is undisputed and such that but one conclusion can be reasonably drawn therefrom, in which case the court alone may dispose of the question.[47]

c. Negligence in General

The question of the carrier's negligence with respect to the injury of the passenger is ordinarily one for the jury, unless the evidence is insufficient or is undisputed, in which case the court should dispose of the question.

In accordance with the general rules, the question of the carrier's negligence with respect to the injury sustained by the passenger is one of fact for the jury and should be submitted to them, where there is sufficient evidence to go to the jury, and it is conflicting or such that different conclusions reasonably might be drawn therefrom,[48] and in ting it in emergencies—Meloon v. Davis, C C A N H, 292 F. 82.

Employee as passenger

In an action against a street railway for injuries to its employee claiming to have been riding on its car as a passenger, whether the employee was a passenger is a question for the jury—Bernard v. Michigan United Traction Co., 178 N.W. 43, 210 Mich. 333.

Invitation to become passenger

(1) Whether plaintiff was passenger on street car through implied invitation by stopping of car, is for jury—Kendall v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry Co, 125 N.E. 139, 234 Mass. 66.

(2) Whether passengers were being received and discharged from street car, which plaintiff attempted to enter, is for jury—Nuttall v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry. Co., 114 N E 291, 225 Mass. 167

(3) The stopping of a train where not scheduled to stop, about time another train was scheduled to stop, did not, as matter of law, constitute implied invitation to board, but the question is one of fact for the jury.—McPartland v Boston, R. B. & L. R. R., 136 N E 168, 242 Mass. 346.

Whether relation had arisen

(1) Whether decedent, whose body was found on cowcatcher after train plowed through station platform, intended to be passenger, is for jury. —Erie R. Co. v. Gordon, C.C.A N.J., 30 F.2d 101.

(2) Whether plaintiff in action for injuries sustained while attempting to board train had acquired rights of passenger when injured is a fact question for jury—Gerber v New York Cent. R. R, 192 N E 837, 288 Mass. 318.

(3) In an action against a railroad for an assault and battery by employee in railroad office, whether plaintiff was, at the time of the assault, a passenger of defendant railway, is for the jury.—Clark v. Bland, 106 S.E. 491, 181 N.C. 110.

(4) Whether plaintiff suing for injuries received in boarding bus had become passenger entitled to high degree of care and a chance to reach place of safety within vehicle before it was started is for jury.—Coyle v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry. Co, 173 N E 586, 273 Mass 475

(5) Evidence that deceased paid his fare to some one who demanded it of him while riding on defendant's interurban train makes it a jury question whether deceased paid an authorized person or was a trespasser—Pearson v. Piedmont & N. Ry. Co, 99 S E 811, 112 S C 220.

(6) In action for injuries on railroad station premises to which plaintiff had gone with family six hours before departure of train he intended to take, question of reasonableness of time in which plaintiff went to station is for the jury.—Baker v. Williams, Tex Civ App, 198 S W. 808.

10 C J. p 1067 note 80 [a].

Persons riding on passes

Whether a pass was required or was being used by plaintiff, the employee of a telegraph company, while she was traveling as cook on one of her employer's camp cars, under an agreement with the carrier, is, on conflicting evidence, a jury question.—Western Maryland Ry. Co. v Shatzer, 120 A. 840, 142 Md 274—10 C J p 1067 note 80 [c].

Propriety of peremptory instruction in case of injury to alleged passenger after alighting from car depends upon whether defendant owed plaintiff any duty—Trout's Adm'r v. Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co., 43 S.W 2d 507, 241 Ky. 144.

47. Minn.—Tuder v. Oregon Short Line R. Co, 160 N W 785, 135 Minn 294, L.R.A 1917C 86.
Va—Virginia Ry & Power Co v Dressler, 111 S E 243, 132 Va 342, 22 A.L R 301.
10 C.J. p 1068 note 81.

Where passenger voluntarily leaves car

In an action by one claiming to be a passenger when assaulted by motorman after leaving a street car on a public street, where the evidence showed that plaintiff left the car voluntarily, the court properly refused to submit question whether he was a passenger—Willingham v. Birmingham Ry, Light & Power Co., 83 So. 95, 203 Ala. 351.

Evidence held insufficient to take to the jury, in action by work train gang laborer for injuries sustained when freight train on which he was riding from place of work to town where he lived, was derailed, the question whether laborer was passenger at time of injury—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co v. Ringstaff, C C.A Ohio, 67 F 2d 482—10 C J p 1068 note 81 [a].

48. U.S.—Chicago, M & St. P Ry Co. v. Harrelson, C C A Mo, 14 F 2d 893—Boston Elevated Ry Co. v. Teele, Mass, 248 F. 424, 160 C. C.A 434—New England R. Co v Hyde, Mass., 101 F 401, 41 C C A. 549, certiorari denied 21 S Ct. 924, 181 U.S 619, 45 L Ed. 1031
Ark—Missouri Pac R Co. v. McDade, 53 S W 2d 595, 186 Ark 317
Ga.—Payne v. Lyon, 111 S E. 226, 28 Ga App 246, reversed on other grounds 114 S.E 892 154 Ga 501, conformed to 115 S E 138, 29 Ga. App. 327
Ill—Kramer v. Safeway Lines, App, 13 N E 2d 995
Ky—Lexington & E Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 216 S W 86, 186 Ky. 739—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Sinclair, 188 S.W 648, 171 Ky. 562.
Mass—Ward v. Boston Terminal Co., 190 N E. 726, 286 Mass 517—Kelly v. Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn R Co, 164 N E. 624, 266 Mass. 23—Burnham v. Boston & M R. R, 116 N E. 735, 227 Mass. 422
Miss—Teche Lines v Britt, 170 So. 294
Mo—Bond v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry Co, 288 S W. 777, 315 Mo. 987
N J—Rhodehouse v Director General of Railroads, 111 A 662, 95 N J. Law 355—Giardini v. McAdoo, 107 A 437, 93 N.J Law 138—Gross v. Hudson & Manhattan R. R., 185 A. 365, 14 N J Misc 374—Paling v. New York Cent R. Co., 146 A 788, 7 N J Misc. 554, affirmed 150 A. 920, 106 N J Law 586
N.Y—Goldweber v. New York Consol R. Co, 173 N.Y S. 470
Ohio—Greyhound Lines v. Kunze, 181 N E. 503, 41 Ohio App. 508
Pa—McQuaide v. Pittsburgh, C, C. & St. L. Ry. Co 67 Pa Super. 425.
S.C—Derrick v. Columbia Ry., Gas & Electric Co., 137 S.E. 682, 139 S. C 200
Tex—Scott v. Texas Electric Ry. Co, Com.App., 32 S W 2d 641, reversing Texas Electric Ry. Co. v. Scott, Civ.App., 21 S.W.2d 24—

such case it is error for the court to dispose of such question without the intervention of the jury, as by giving an affirmative charge, sustaining a demurrer to the evidence, directing a verdict for defendant, or granting a nonsuit.[49] The question of negligence, however, should not be submitted to the jury where the evidence on that question is legally insufficient,[50] or is undisputed and is such that but one conclusion can be reasonably drawn therefrom with regard to such negligence;[51] but in such case the court should of itself dispose of the question, as by granting a nonsuit or dismissal, or by directing a verdict for defendant,[52] or should render a judgment non obstante veredicto.[53]

Where a presumption of negligence exists against a carrier in case of an injury to a passenger, it is primarily for the jury to determine whether or not the carrier was negligent when it has introduced evidence to rebut such presumption,[54] although the Houston, E & W T. Ry Co. v. Hooper, Civ App, 184 S.W 347, error refused—International & G. N. Ry. Co. v Williams, Civ App., 183 S.W 1185, error refused.

W.Va—Holtman v. Norfolk & W. Ry Co, 136 S E. 855, 103 W.Va. 194

10 C J p 1068 note 84

"Care and diligence is generally a mixed question of law and fact. When the facts are undisputed and the deductions therefrom indisputable, or the duty is fixed by the law and is the same under all circumstances, the question is for the court. But if the facts are disputed, or the inference of negligence is a matter of discretion, it must be submitted to the jury."—Central of Georgia R Co v Robertson, 83 So 102, 105, 203 Ala 358.

Ambulance service

In an action against persons furnishing ambulance service, it is a question for the jury as to whether the dropping by an employee of defendant of the stretcher on which the patient was being carried was due to negligence or to an "accident," which is any casualty which could not be prevented by ordinary care and diligence, or an occurrence which human prescience and prudence cannot foresee or forestall—Moseley v. Patterson, 107 S E 623, 27 Ga App. 133

Uncontradicted testimony

Even if the testimony as to the accident in which a street car passenger was injured was uncontradicted, such testimony did not conclusively establish negligence, if it was open to more than one inference, in which case the jury alone were authorized to determine what inference should be drawn from it—Robertson v Washington Ry. & Electric Co, 279 F 180, 51 App D C 311.

Whether or not injured person is passenger, as affecting rule

In a suit for injuries to a woman, who after she alighted from a street car and while crossing the track behind it caught her foot in a trailing rope as the car started, whether injuries received were due to the company's negligence is for the jury, whether or not she was to be regarded as a passenger at the time of the accident—Landis v. Wichita R & Light Co, 203 P. 1109, 110 Kan 205.

Where plaintiff's evidence makes out a prima facie case

(1) In action against a common carrier for negligent injury, evidence showing relation of passenger and carrier, manner in which accident happened, and injury, makes a prima facie case for the plaintiff, and defendant's motions for nonsuit and directed verdict were properly denied—Coblentz v. Jaloff, 239 P 825, 115 Or 656.

(2) That bus passenger made prima facie case under res ipsa loquitur doctrine did not forestall jury's consideration of evidence tending to absolve defendant, even though submitted by plaintiff—Story v People's Motorbus Co of St. Louis, 37 S W 2d 898, 327 Mo. 719

10 C J. p 1068 note 84 [a].

Test of sufficiency of evidence

Where the evidence bearing upon railroad's negligence favorable to plaintiff, discarding all evidence favorable to the defendant, was sufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff, defendant's liability was for the jury—Nevill v. Gulf, C & S. F Ry. Co, Tex.Civ App, 187 S W 388, reversed on other grounds, Com App., 244 S W. 980, which is reversed 252 S W 483

Vicious dog in station

Negligence of railroad in permitting in station a vicious dog which bit passenger is for jury—Kansas City Southern Ry Co. v. Pinson, C C A Tex, 61 F 2d 1001—Pinson v Kansas City Southern Ry. Co, C C A Tex, 37 F 2d 652—10 C J. p 1068 note 84 [b].

49. N J—Rhodehouse v. Director General of Railroads, 111 A. 662, 95 N J.Law 355.

10 C J p 1069 note 85.

50. Md—Hevell v. Baltimore Transit Co, 196 A 103—Hagerstown & F Ry. Co v. State, 99 A 376 129 Md. 318.

10 C J p 1069 note 86.

51. Tenn.—Memphis St Ry Co. v. Cavell, 187 S.W. 179, 135 Tenn 462—Memphis St. Ry v Mitchum, 6 Tenn Civ.A 227.

10 C J. p 1069 note 87.

52. U S—Holland v. Director General of Railroads, C C.A.N.J, 273 F. 928—Spiesberger v Michigan Cent. R. Co, Ill., 235 F. 864, 149 C C.A. 176.

Ill—Grubczak v. Chicago Rys. Co., 242 Ill App. 384.

Ky—Hawkins v. Louisville & N. R Co., 202 S.W. 632, 180 Ky 295, 3 A.L R 637

Mass.—Hamilton v. Boston, R B. & L R. R., 134 N E 371, 240 Mass 458

N.Y—Brown v. Klein, 245 N.Y.S 654, 230 App.Div. 681

Pa.—Burns v Pennsylvania R Co., 144 A. 103, 294 Pa 277—Fittipaldi v Philadelphia Rural Transit Co, 163 A 397, 107 Pa.Super. 385.

Tex—Hail v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas, Civ App, 30 S W 2d 1062, affirmed Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas v. Hail, Com App, 48 S.W 2d 589—Vivian v San Antonio, U & G. R. Co., Civ App, 196 S W 267, error refused.

10 C J. p 1069 note 88.

53. Pa—Creahan v. Pennsylvania R Co., 187 A 51, 123 Pa Super. 268.

54. Cal.—Karsey v City and County of San Francisco, 20 P.2d 751, 130 Cal App 655, citing Corpus Juris text as authority.

Ga—Seaboard Air Line Ry Co v. Fountain, 160 S E 789, 173 Ga. 593—Holmes v. Georgia Power Co, 162 S E 403, 44 Ga App 588, reversed on other grounds Georgia Power Co. v. Holmes, 165 S E 284, 175 Ga 487, conformed to Holmes v Georgia Power Co., 165 S E 918, 45 Ga App 826.

S C—Porter v Davis, 110 S.E. 121, 118 S C 153—Thompson v Atlantic Coast Line R Co, 102 S E 11, 113 S C 261.

10 C J. p 1069 note 89.

Boys throwing stones

In action for injury to subway train passenger by glass from broken window, whether presumption of want of care and negligence arising from accident to passenger had been overcome by railroad's explanation that glass was broken by boys carrier may make such a showing of freedom of negligence as will entitle him to have the question determined as a matter of law.[55] Indeed, even when there is a presumption of negligence arising from a failure on the part of the carrier to explain how an accident happened, it is for the jury to say whether the presumption, which is only prima facie evidence of negligence, entitles plaintiff to a verdict.[56]

d. Care as to Children and Others under Disability

Whether proper care was exercised by the carrier toward a passenger unable to care for himself is generally a question for the jury.

Whether in a particular case the carrier is under the duty of rendering special assistance to a passenger,[57] and whether the carrier exercised proper care with respect to a child,[58] or a passenger who by reason of intoxication,[59] sickness,[60] or other infirmity or disability was unable to care for himself,[61] or whether the carrier was negligent in failing to secure medical attention for an injured passenger,[62] is ordinarily a question for the jury. Where, however, there is nothing to show that there was any failure to exercise due care with respect to the passenger it is proper for the court to sustain a demurrer to the evidence[63] or direct a verdict for defendant.[64]

e. Acts or Omissions of Carrier's Employees in General

Generally it is for the jury to determine whether the acts or omissions causing the injury were acts or omissions of an employee of the carrier acting within the scope of his employment, and whether such acts or omissions constituted negligence, gross negligence, malice, wantonness, or recklessness.

Except where the evidence is insufficient to be submitted, or is clear and undisputed,[65] it is generally a question for the jury as to whether the acts on the outside throwing stones against it was for jury.—Bressler v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 13 N.E.2d 772, 277 N.Y. 200, reversing 297 N.Y.S. 336, 251 App. Div. 890.

Expert testimony as overcoming presumption

In action against railroad for injuries to passenger in derailment, court cannot say, as a matter of law, that the mere opinion of an expert witness that the cause of the accident was a broken bolt, which could not have been detected by the most expert inspection, is sufficient to overcome the presumption of negligence.—Thompson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 102 S.E. 11, 113 S.C. 261.

55. Wash.—Hayes v. Staples, 225 P. 417, 129 Wash. 436.

56. N.Y.—Salomone v. Yellow Taxi Corporation, 151 N.E. 442, 242 N.Y. 251, reversing 213 N.Y.S. 899, 215 App.Div. 790, reargument denied 152 N.E. 445, 242 N.Y. 602.

57. Okl.—Dickinson v. Tucker, 176 P. 949, 74 Okl. 43.—St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dobyns, 157 P. 735, 57 Okl. 643.
Tex.—International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams, Civ.App., 183 S.W. 1185, error refused.

58. U.S.—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Harrelson, C.C.A.Mo., 14 F.2d 893.
Ala.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Thomas, 104 So. 559, 20 Ala.App. 617.
Ark.—Citizens' Bank v. Fairweather, 191 S.W. 911, 127 Ark. 63.
N.C.—Brantley v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 190 S.E. 731, 211 N.C. 454.
Ohio.—Morris v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 20 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 607.
Tex.—Southern Traction Co. v. Reagor, Civ.App., 186 S.W. 272, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 1069 note 90.

Child on escalator

Negligence of department store as respects injury to infant passenger on escalator is for jury under res ipsa loquitur maxim.—May Department Stores Co. v. Bell, C.C.A.Mo., 61 F.2d 830.

59. Ill.—Panor v. Northwestern Elevated R. Co., 228 Ill.App. 162.
N.Y.—Fardette v. New York & S. Ry. Co., 180 N.Y.S. 179, 190 App. Div. 543.
Pa.—Jameitis v. Wilkes-Barre Ry. Co., 121 A. 317, 277 Pa. 437.—Kradel v. Pittsburgh, H., B. & N. C. Ry. Co., 100 A. 128, 255 Pa. 427.
10 C.J. p. 1069 note 91.

60. U.S.—Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Schrimpf, Minn., 236 F. 200, 149 C.C.A. 390.
Mich.—Tozer v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 162 N.W. 280, 195 Mich. 662.
10 C.J. p. 1069 note 92.

Failure to open waiting room for passengers' accommodation

In an action for failing to open a station at the proper time, whereby a sick passenger was exposed to a hailstorm and made worse, conflicting evidence as to the time of opening the station requires submission of the issue to the jury.—Ginn v. U. S. Railroad Administration, 103 S.E. 548, 114 S.C. 236.

Punitive damages

Where there is no evidence to warrant punitive damages in an action for failure to open a station, thereby exposing a sick passenger to the weather, it is error not to direct a verdict for defendant as to punitive damages.—Ginn v. U. S. Railroad Administration, 103 S.E. 548, 114 S.C. 236.

61. Ark.—Hines v. Patterson, 225 S.W. 642, 146 Ark. 367.—Pittman v. Hines, 221 S.W. 474, 144 Ark. 133.
Ga.—Georgia Power Co. v. Braswell, 173 S.E. 763, 48 Ga.App. 654.
Minn.—Carroll v. St. Paul Union Depot Co., 204 N.W. 470, 164 Minn. 28.
Tex.—Stewart v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., Com.App., 229 S.W. 577, error refused.
Va.—Kercher's Adm'r v. Richmond, F. & P. R. Co., 142 S.E. 393, 150 Va. 108.
10 C.J. p. 1070 note 93.

Evidence held sufficient, in an action against a carrier for injuries to an aged and feeble passenger sustained in alighting because of the refusal of the conductor to furnish the passenger necessary assistance, to justify the refusal of a nonsuit, and a peremptory instruction requested by a defendant.—Holmes v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 106 S.E. 567, 181 N.C. 497.

62. Miss.—Hughes v. Gregory Bus Lines, 128 So. 96, 157 Miss. 374.

63. Kan.—Imel v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 163 P. 807, 100 Kan. 130.

64. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mudd's Adm'x, 191 S.W. 102, 173 Ky. 330.

65. N.Y.—Huntington v. Union Ry. Co. of New York City, 258 N.Y.S. 676, 144 Misc. 341.
10 C.J. p. 1070 note 94.

To warrant directed verdict for corporation, evidence rebutting passengers' prima facie case that at or omissions which caused the injury were the acts or omissions of an employee of the carrier,[66] whether he was at the time acting within the scope of his employment[67] and whether the acts or omissions constituted negligence[68] or whether they amounted to gross negligence, malice, wantonness, or recklessness.[69] When a passenger seeks to recover for mistreatment by an employee, on conflicting evidence it is for the jury to determine whether he was mistreated in the manner claimed.[70]

Whether an employee, in making an assault on a time of accident corporation owned bus, and that driver was employed by it and acting within scope of employment, must be uncontradicted, clear, and free from reasonable suspicion.—Irwin v Pickwick Stages System, 25 P.2d 998, 134 Cal.App. 443

Evidence held insufficient to warrant directed verdict

Evidence to rebut passengers' prima facie case that at time of accident bus driver was employed by corporation and acting within scope of employment.—Irwin v. Pickwick Stages System, 25 P.2d 998, 134 Cal. App. 443

Proof of willful, wanton, or gross negligence in operating of train past signal, and colliding with train ahead, resulting in death of holder of pass held insufficient for jury—Bowman v. Pennsylvania R Co., 149 A. 877, 299 Pa 558, certiorari denied 51 S.Ct. 27, 282 U S. 849, 75 L Ed 752.

66. Pa—Bickley v. Philadelphia & R Ry Co., 101 A. 654, 257 Pa 369.
10 C J p 1070 note 95.

67. Cal—Cromwell v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 283 P. 375, 102 Cal.App. 499.
D C.—Seymoure v. Director General of Railroads, 290 F. 291, 53 App. D C 316.
Minn—Rau v. Smuda, 221 N.W. 232, 175 Minn. 328.
Mo.—Gannaway v. Pitcairn, App., 109 S W.2d 78.
N J—Nell v. Godstrey, 101 A. 50, 90 N J.Law 709.
N C.—Cole v. Atlantic Coast Line R Co., 191 S.E. 353, 211 N.C. 591.
Tenn.—Baskin & Cole v. Whitson, 8 Tenn App. 578.
10 C.J. p 1070 note 96.

Conductor boarding car

Conflicting evidence presented jury issue whether conductor, who, in boarding street car, knocked down prospective passenger, boarded car to relieve conductor thereon and was therefore acting within the scope of his employment—Cromwell v. Los Angeles Ry Corporation, 283 P. 375, 102 Cal App. 499.

Evidence sufficient to make question for jury

Evidence that three employees of a railroad company, who were also peace officers, were employed by the company to keep order about the station and meet incoming trains and to arrest persons who were drunk or disorderly, is sufficient to make it a question for the jury whether the officers were acting in the scope of their employment in going upon a train to arrest a passenger, notwithstanding testimony by one of them that it was not their duty to go upon the train unless requested by the conductor, and they had not been so requested—Louisville & N R Co. v. Mason, 251 S.W 184, 199 Ky. 337.

68. Fla—Florida Motor Lines v. Bradley, 164 So. 360, 121 Fla. 591.
Ky—Dix v. Gross, 111 S.W.2d 673, 271 Ky. 231—B-Line Cab Co v Lake, 110 S.W 2d 1083, 270 Ky 763.
Mass—Mercier v. Union St. Ry Co, 125 N E. 181, 234 Mass 85.
Minn—Benson v. Northland Transp. Co, 274 N W. 532.
N.J—Barney v. Hudson & M R. Co, 145 A. 5, 105 N J.Law 274, affirmed 148 A. 917, 106 N J Law 230, 231.
N.Y—Feldman v. New York Rys. Co., 158 N Y.S. 698.
Ohio.—Jones v. Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co., 12 N.E 2d 279, 133 Ohio St. 118.
Okl.—Tulsa Yellow Cab, Taxi & Baggage Co. v. Salomon, 75 P 2d 197, 181 Okl. 519
Or—Adams v Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 171 P. 219, 87 Or 602, L R.A 1918D 526
Tenn.—Blount County v. Perry, 7 Tenn.App 340.
Tex.—Schaff v. Gordon, Civ.App, 214 S W. 638.
Wash.—Osborne v. Galusha, 254 P. 1086, 143 Wash. 127
10 C.J. p 1070 note 97.

Negligence in continuing to work

(1) Where a street car motorman, after having experienced two periods of dizziness, and who was not feeling well, fainted in his cab and thereby caused a collision with another car, resulting in injuries to plaintiff, the question as to whether or not he was in the exercise of reasonable care in continuing to run his car was for the jury—Goldman v New York Rys. Co, 173 N.Y S. 737, 185 App.Div. 739.

(2) Where driver of passenger stage suddenly collapsed, causing accident and injury to passenger, whether driver who had been feeling ill was negligent in staying alone in driver's compartment without advising any one of his condition held for jury.—Duran v. Pickwick Stages System, 35 P.2d 148, 140 Cal.App 103

Advising passenger to jump from moving car

In action by passenger injured while jumping from street car beyond control while it was going at a great speed down a hill, whether conductor was negligent in advising plaintiff to leave the car is a question for the jury—Hellar v. Kansas City Rys. Co, Mo.App., 237 S.W. 811.

Expelling disorderly passenger

Whether bus driver exercised proper care for safety of passengers in attempting to expel disorderly passenger as alleged, so as to render bus owner liable for injuries sustained by passenger in the ensuing fracas, was for trier of facts.—Spalt v. Eaton, 196 A. 736, 119 N J Law 343, affirming 192 A. 576, 118 N.J Law 327.

In trial without jury

(1) The question is one of fact for the trial court.—Wendler v Pickwick Stages System, 24 P.2d 543, 133 Cal App. 592.

(2) Whether the employee of an operator of an auto stage exercised due care to discover defect in wheel and avoid accident was question for court trying action without jury.—Jianou v. Pickwick Stages System, 296 P. 108, 111 Cal.App. 754.

69. Ala—Birmingham Electric Co v. Mann, 147 So. 165, 226 Ala. 379—Louisville & N. R. Co v. Weathers, 50 So. 268, 163 Ala 48.
Ohio—Wiley v. Green Cab Co., 179 N E. 419, 41 Ohio App. 88.
10 C J. p 1070 note 98.

Punitive damages

In action for injuries to a passenger from an assault by a street car conductor with an iron bar, in view of disparity between the age and size of the conductor and plaintiff, the conductor being a young man of twenty-two, and plaintiff being sixty-three and weighing only one hundred and forty-eight pounds, notwithstanding plaintiff's conduct may have started trouble between them, the question of punitive damages should not have been eliminated, and refusing an instruction to that effect was not error.—Hunter v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 248 S.W. 998, 213 Mo.App. 233.

70. Miss.—Yazoo & M. V R Co. v. Sanders, 72 So. 144, 111 Miss 733.

passenger, was acting within the general scope of his employment,[71] whether the assault was willful,[72] whether the assault was justified by the conduct of the passenger,[73] and whether the employee in committing the assault used more force than was necessary to repel an assault on him by the passenger,[74] are generally questions of fact for the jury. Likewise, on conflicting evidence, it is for the jury to determine whether a female passenger, alleged to have been forcibly ravished by an employee of the carrier, voluntarily yielded her person.[75]

The liability of a carrier for injuries to a passenger transported by an independent contractor is, on disputed evidence, a question for the jury.[76]

f. Number and Efficiency of Employees

Negligence of the carrier with regard to the number and efficiency of employees is ordinarily a question for the jury.

Where the evidence is conflicting or is such that reasonable minds might draw different conclusions therefrom, negligence as to the number and efficiency of employees at a particular place,[77] or in the operation of cars,[78] is ordinarily a question for the jury, such as whether it was negligence to operate a street car without a conductor.[79] There is, of course, no question for the jury as to such matters where the evidence is insufficient, or is clear and undisputed.[80]

g. Acts of Fellow Passengers or Other Third Persons

Generally it is for the jury to say whether the carrier's employees exercised proper care to protect a passenger from the acts of fellow passengers or other third persons.

Whether or not the carrier's employees exercised proper care to protect a passenger from the acts of fellow passengers,[81] or of other third persons,[82]

71. Mo.—Sturgis v. Kansas City Rys Co., App., 228 S.W. 861—Dorton v Kansas City Rys. Co, 224 S.W. 30, 204 Mo.App 262
Pa.—Durando v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 80 Pa.Super. 65
Tex.—Davis v. Teague, Civ.App, 256 S.W. 957.
10 C.J. p 1070 note 99.

Employee or deputy sheriff
In an action for assault, etc., on a passenger by special agent of the carrier, on conflicting evidence the question in what capacity the assaulting party was acting, as a deputy sheriff or as an employee, as special agent of the carrier, was for the jury.—Baker v. Hines, 213 P. 313, 88 Okl. 266.

72. Mo.—Morton v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, 20 S.W.2d 34, 323 Mo. 929.

73. D.C.—Mt. Vernon & Marshall Hall Steamboat Co v. McKenney, 46 App.D.C. 99.
Ky.—Louisville Ry Co v. Kramer, 11 S.W.2d 930, 226 Ky. 739—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bennett, 209 S.W. 358, 183 Ky. 445.
Tex.—Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co v. Mathews, Civ.App, 1 S.W.2d 754, reversed on other grounds, Com.App, 12 S.W.2d 163.
10 C.J. p 1070 note 1.

74. Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co v. Huddleston, Civ.App, 178 S.W. 704.
10 C.J. p 1070 note 2.

75. U.S.—Dickinson v. Scruggs, Tenn., 242 F. 900, 155 C.C.A. 488.

76. Ala.—Dixie Stage Lines v. Anderson, 134 So. 23, 222 Ala. 673.

77. N.J.—Sandler v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 151 A. 99, 8 N.J.Misc. 537, affirmed 156 A. 459, 108 N.J.Law 203.
10 C.J. p 1070 note 3.

78. Iowa.—Kelly v. Muscatine, B. & S. R. Co, 191 N.W. 525, 195 Iowa 17
Tenn.—Wishone v. Yellow Cab Co, App, 97 S.W.2d 452
10 C.J. p 1070 note 4.

Testimony of employee for jury to consider
Motorman's competency and freedom from negligence could not be conclusively established by himself or witnesses called for purpose; what he did or did not do could be accepted in evidence, and the jury only was competent to find truth therefrom.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo. 1.

79. Ala.—Armstrong v. Montgomery St. R. Co, 26 So. 349, 123 Ala. 233.
10 C.J. p 1071 note 5.

80. N.Y.—Wynn v. Central Park, etc., R. Co, 30 N.E. 721, 133 N.Y. 575, reversing 14 N.Y.S. 172.
10 C.J. p 1071 note 6

81. Ala.—Hines v. Minard, 86 So. 23, 204 Ala. 514, 12 A.L.R. 338
Ark.—Payne v. McDonald, 233 S.W. 813, 150 Ark. 12—Hines v. Rice, 218 S.W. 851, 142 Ark. 159.
Kan.—Holmes v. Fleming, 253 P. 224, 122 Kan. 652
Mass.—Franz v. Holyoke St. Ry. Co, 132 N.E. 270, 239 Mass. 565
Mo.—Koenig v. St. Louis Public Service Co, App, 45 S.W.2d 896—Liljegren v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App, 227 S.W. 925—Abernathy v. Missouri Pac. R. Co, App, 217 S.W. 568
N.J.—Skillen v. West Jersey & S. R. Co., 115 A. 372, 96 N.J.Law 492.
Pa.—McMullin v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 116 A. 832, 273 Pa. 159—Coyle v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co, 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa. 496—Lerch v. Hershey Transit Co, 99 A. 800, 255 Pa. 190
Tex.—Pacific Greyhound Lines v. Vermillion, Civ.App, 87 S.W.2d 312, error dismissed—Nevill v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co, Civ.App, 187 S.W. 388, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 244 S.W. 980, which is reversed 252 S.W. 483
10 C.J. p 1071 note 7.

Evidence held to raise question for jury as to duty of employees
(1) In action by passenger for injuries caused by abusive manner, language, and immodest conduct of an insane negro passenger in the same car, as to the duty to plaintiff of the porter immediately to report her complaint to the conductor —Hines v. Minard, 94 So. 302, 208 Ala. 176.

(2) Whether railroad employees had duty under circumstances to eject drunken passenger from train before he committed assault on another passenger and whether, if such was impossible under the circumstances, employees failed in their duty to keep such passenger away from fellow passengers whom he was approaching and threatening, was for the jury.—Falzarano v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co, 194 A. 75, 119 N.J.Law 76

82. Mich.—Moffit v. Grand Rapids Ry. Co., 200 N.W. 274, 228 Mich. 349.
Mo.—Williams v. East St. Louis & S. Ry. Co, 232 S.W. 759, 207 Mo.App. 233
10 C.J. p 1071 note 8.

is ordinarily a question for the jury, unless the evidence is insufficient to be submitted, or is clear and undisputed.[83]

On conflicting evidence it is for the jury to say whether a passenger, assaulted by another passenger, provoked the difficulty and was therefor responsible for his own injury.[84]

h. Condition and Use of Carrier's Premises, Tracks, and Roadbed

Proper care of the carrier with respect to the condition of its station premises, platforms, and approaches, and the condition of its track and roadbed at the place where the injury occurred, is ordinarily for determination by the jury.

It is ordinarily a question for the jury as to whether the carrier exercised proper care with regard to the condition of its walks, platforms, or other station premises at the time of the injury,[85] such as whether such premises were properly lighted at the time,[86] or whether the platform used for boarding and alighting from trains or cars was constructed and maintained in a reasonably safe condition,[87] unless the evidence is insufficient to go

Protection from mob

In an action by a negress against a carrier for damages for permitting her to ride in a street car into the city of East St. Louis at the time a mob was attacking negroes in such city, without her knowledge, resulting in injury to her, whether defendant had knowledge of the operation of the mob which attacked the car, or other mobs in the city at the time in question, in time to have warned plaintiff of her danger, and to have taken reasonable precaution for her safety and protection, is a question for the jury—Williams v. East St Louis & S. Ry. Co., 232 S.W 759, 207 Mo App 233.

83. Ky.—Peak v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 297 S.W 1107, 221 Ky. 97.
N.Y—Hershey v. New York, O & W Ry. Co, 179 N.Y.S 396, 189 App Div. 270.
S.C—Stalnaker v. Southern Ry. Co., 180 S.E. 357, 176 S.C. 408.
10 C J p 1071 note 9.

Evidence held insufficient to go to jury in action by live stock shipper, who had been permitted by railroad to travel with stock in stock car, for injuries committed by a robber, who had boarded the car—Beasley v. Hines, 219 S W. 757, 143 Ark 54, 15 A L R 864.

84. Ark.—Hines v. Meador, 224 S.W. 742, 145 Ark 356.

85. Ark—Mills v Franklin, 196 S. W. 928, 130 Ark. 80.
Conn—Pins v. Connecticut Co., 102 A. 595, 92 Conn 310.
Ill.—Reivitz v. Chicago Rapid Transit Co, 158 N.E. 380, 327 Ill 207
Ky—Louisville & I. Ry Co v Jones, 250 S W. 822, 199 Ky. 150, 33 A.L.R. 165
Md—Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hoover, 120 A. 526, 142 Md 251
Mass.—Solomon v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 176 N.E 810, 276 Mass. 139—Smith v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 159 N E 501, 262 Mass. 18—Cook v Boston Elevated Ry Co, 142 N E. 824, 248 Mass 142
Minn—Falk v. Chicago & N W. Ry Co, 157 N.W. 904, 133 Minn 41.
Mo—Finn v. Terminal R Ass'n of St. Louis, App., 97 S.W.2d 890—Martin v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., App., 253 S W. 1083—Wright v Kansas City Terminal Ry. Co., 193 S W. 963, 195 Mo App 480.
N.J—Leech v. Hudson & M R Co, 174 A. 537, 113 N J.Law 366, affirmed 178 A 754, 115 N J Law 114—Portley v Hudson & M R Co., 168 A. 184, 111 N J Law 204, affirmed 172 A 384, 113 N J Law 13—Holt v. New York, S & W. R Co, 166 A. 156, 110 N J.Law 505—Costello v Director General of Railroads, 112 A 861, 95 N J Law 538—Pabst v Hudson & M R Co., 133 A 74, 4 N J Misc 414.
N Y—Heffron v New York Cent & H R R Co., 119 N E 1024, 223 N.Y 473, reversing 161 N Y S 1128, 175 App Div 962—Allessi v New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S 1011, 163 Misc. 815—Ulrich v Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 159 N Y.S 868, 95 Misc. 588—Ulrich v Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 157 N.Y S 753.
N C.—Goodman v Queen City Lines, 180 S.E 661, 208 N.C 323.
N D—Wall v Great Northern Ry. Co., 175 N W 705, 43 N D 422.
Pa—Deegan v Pennsylvania R. Co, 160 A 858, 307 Pa. 207—Yocum v. Philadelphia & West Chester Traction Co, 70 Pa Super 510.
Utah—Stonebreaker v. Bamberger, 54 P 2d 418, 88 Utah 310
Wis—Himstreet v Chicago & N. W Ry. Co, 166 N.W 665, 167 Wis 71.
10 C J. p 1071 note 10.

Failure to warn of conditions

In a proper case it is for the jury to determine whether carrier was negligent in failing to inform passenger that in transfer between depots on walk jointly provided by carriers, she would be obliged to cross railroad tracks, and in failing to warn passenger, going between stations at junction over walk, of approaching train.—Boyle v. Waters, 166 N W. 114, 199 Mich. 478.

Former passengers

In action against railroad for injuries sustained by former passenger who was permitted to remain in station before going to station of connecting railroad, and who fell into an unguarded pit in returning to station from toilet on station premises, the question of whether the railroad kept premises in a reasonably safe condition is a question of fact for the jury—Sink v Grand Trunk Western Ry. Co., 198 N.W. 238, 227 Mich 21.

Constructive notice of conditions

Where witness testified to seeing banana skin on station platform one hour and a half before plaintiff slipped thereon, whether railroad had constructive notice of its presence is for jury.—Deegan v Pennsylvania R. Co, 160 A 858, 307 Pa. 207.

Negligence as matter of law

Sanitary Code rule 52, Vernon's Sayles Civ.St.Annot.1914 art 4553a, requiring each depot, etc, while in use for accommodation of public to be heated, if necessary, etc, applies to case of passengers waiting for a delayed train, and failure to perform that duty would be negligence as a matter of law—Chicago, R. I & G. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner, Tex. Civ.App., 194 S.W. 651.

Direction of verdict improper

It was error for the court to peremptorily instruct the jury to find damages for plaintiff suing for injuries resulting from failure to heat passenger waiting room, where the proof of injury and its cause is not certain and conclusive—Davis v Day, 89 So 814, 127 Miss 140.

86. Mass.—McCarthy v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. Co., 159 N.E. 507, 262 Mass 56
Mich—Boyle v. Waters, 166 N.W. 114, 199 Mich. 478.
N.Y—Creasy v. Eastern Greyhound Lines of New York, 291 N.Y S. 746, 249 App Div. 59.
Pa—McAllister v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 187 A. 415, 324 Pa 65, affirming 182 A. 738, 121 Pa.Super. 131—Wolf v. Smith, 97 A. 853, 252 Pa. 562.
10 C J. p 1071 note 11.

87. Md—Jackson v Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md 621.
Mass—Klein v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 200 N.E. 6—Regan v. Boston to the jury,[88] in which case it is proper to direct a verdict for defendant.[89] It is also ordinarily a question for the jury as to whether the carrier had or was chargeable with knowledge that a platform not intended for passengers would be used by them,[90] or whether the carrier impliedly invited intending passengers to use a certain approach to the station.[91] Where it is purely speculative whether defendant was guilty of any negligence with regard to its premises, the question should not be submitted to the jury.[92]

Condition of tracks and roadbed. Negligence with respect to the condition of the track or roadbed at the place where the injury occurred is also ordinarily a question for the jury,[93] unless the evidence thereon is insufficient to go to the jury, or is clear and undisputed.[94]

i. Taking Up Passengers

Negligence of a carrier with respect to taking up passengers is generally a question for the jury.

Where the evidence is conflicting, or is such that reasonable minds might draw different conclusions therefrom, it is ordinarily for the jury to say whether or not the carrier was guilty of negligence with respect to taking up a passenger,[95] such as

& M. R. Co., 113 N.E. 200, 224 Mass. 418.
Mo.—Oesch v. St. Louis Public Service Co., 59 S.W.2d 758, 228 Mo. App. 1055—Lowther v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 261 S.W. 702, 214 Mo.App. 293—Roussell v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 257 S.W. 516.
N.J.—Swallow v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 191 A. 775, 118 N.J.Law 157—Sandler v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 151 A. 99, 8 N.J.Misc. 537, affirmed 156 A. 489, 108 N.J.Law 203.
N.Y.—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 1011, 163 Misc. 815.
Utah.—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U. R. Co., 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312.
10 C.J. p. 1072 note 12.

Temporary platform

Whether it was reasonable for railway in performance of duty of passenger to provide guards or to give warning, where extensive changes were under way at station, and whether due care required railway to install movable platform at place of injury, as part of temporary structures, are questions of fact.—Harrington v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 118 N.E. 880, 229 Mass. 421, 2 A.L.R. 1057.

88. U.S.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Burton, C.C.A.W.Va., 50 F.2d 730
Iowa.—Stout v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 200 N.W. 596, 198 Iowa 1017.
Mass.—Renzi v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 199 N.E. 738—Sisson v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 178 N.E. 733, 277 Mass. 431—Parker v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 174 N.E. 927, 273 Mass. 345—Boyd v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 162 N.E. 735, 264 Mass. 364.
Mo.—Taylor v. Kansas City Terminal Ry. Co., App., 240 S.W. 512.
N.H.—Wessman v. Boston & M. R. R., 152 A. 476, 84 N.H. 475.
N.Y.—Lang v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 183 N.Y.S. 270, 193 App.Div. 56.
10 C.J. p. 1072 note 12 [b].

89. Minn.—Shepley v. Minneapolis Motor Bus Terminal Co., 230 N.W. 264, 180 Minn. 84
N.J.—Seckler v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 174 A. 501, 113 N.J.Law 299

90. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Grider, 161 S.W. 1032, 110 Ark. 437

91. Mo.—Chase v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 114 S.W. 1141, 134 Mo.App. 655.

92. Ohio—Greyhound Lines v. Martin, 189 N.E. 244, 127 Ohio St. 499

93. U.S.—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Irving, Wash., 234 F. 562, 148 C.C.A. 328.
Cal.—Morgan v. Southern Pac. Co., 187 P. 74, 45 Cal.App. 229
Mo.—Thomas v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 293 S.W. 1051—Whitlow v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 282 S.W. 525, certiorari quashed State ex rel. St. Louis & San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Daues, 290 S.W. 425, 316 Mo. 474.
Pa.—Lindsay v. Beaver Valley Traction Co., 83 Pa.Super. 274.
10 C.J. p. 1072 note 15.

Carrier's negligence in constructing bridge which gave way, wrecking train and injuring passenger, is for jury.—Curry v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 296 S.W. 473, 221 Mo.App. 1.

Safety devices at switches

Negligence of carrier in failing to maintain safety appliance in proper condition, with result that train passed through open switch onto another railroad, is for jury, in passenger's action for injuries—Southern Ry. Co. v. Hussey, C.C.A.Mo., 42 F.2d 70, certiorari granted 51 S.Ct. 75, 282 U.S. 826, 75 L.Ed. 736, affirmed 51 S.Ct. 367, 283 U.S. 136, 75 L.Ed. 908.

Evidence held sufficient to go to jury

Evidence of a carrier's negligence in failing to frequently inspect an embankment.—Pennsylvania Co. v. Clark, C.C.A.Ohio, 266 F. 182.

94. Ga.—Georgia R., etc., Co. v. Gilleland, 66 S.E. 944, 133 Ga. 621.
Mich.—Whipple v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 90 N.W. 287, 130 Mich. 460.

Evidence held insufficient

(1) Where the evidence is insufficient, the issue of defendant's negligence in failing to use a switch stand, which automatically signaled when it was interfered with, is not for the jury.—Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. v. Donahue, N.Y., 238 F. 770, 151 C.C.A. 620.

(2) Where plaintiff intending passenger, was standing on platform and train drew into station, and when front of engine had not quite reached point on track opposite to where he was standing, he was struck in the side by a discarded railroad spike, flattened in two places near its end or point, which flattened places were bright and new-looking, and no one knew where the spike came from, and it appeared track had been inspected thirty-five or forty minutes before, the court erred in not directing verdict for defendant carrier in action for injuries.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Gleaves, C.C.A. Ark., 294 F. 523.

95. U.S.—Mathis v. Tutweiler, C.C.A.Tenn., 295 F. 661—Boston Elevated Ry. Co. v. Teele, Mass., 248 F. 424, 160 C.C.A. 434
Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Jones, 176 So. 203, 234 Ala. 590—Montgomery Light & Traction Co. v. O'Connor, 85 So. 384, 204 Ala. 24.
Conn.—Vaughn v. Healy, 182 A. 166, 120 Conn. 589—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., 160 A. 307, 115 Conn. 80—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221.
Fla.—Tampa Electric Co. v. Gibson, 161 So. 727, 119 Fla. 112
Ga.—Norton v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 110 S.E. 459, 28 Ga.App. 167
Ill.—Sage v. Johnson, 205 Ill.App. 85. See Kelly v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 207 Ill.App. 464, affirmed 119 N.E. 622, 283 Ill. 640.
Iowa.—Carlisle v. Davenport & M. Ry. Co., 159 N.W. 667, 178 Iowa 224.
Mass.—Gerhart v. Holyoke St. Ry. Co., 128 N.E. 421, 236 Mass. 392
Minn.—Smith v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 159 N.W. 963, 134 Minn. 404.

whether it was negligent in assisting, or in failing to assist, a passenger to board a train or car,[96] or whether it exercised proper care with respect to the place at which the train or car stopped,[97] or whether the carrier induced the public to believe that they were invited to board trains at a place other than a regular stopping place.[98] It is also ordinarily a question for the jury as to whether the carrier was negligent in starting or moving a train or car while a passenger was boarding it,[99]

Mo.—Sugarwater v. Fleming, 293 S.W. 111, 316 Mo. 742—Griffin v. Missouri Power & Light Co., App., 99 S.W.2d 474—Link v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., App., 233 S.W. 834—Willi v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 224 S.W. 86, 205 Mo.App. 272.

N.J.—Courtney v. Public Service Ry. Co., 115 A. 740, 96 N.J.Law 308, affirmed 117 A. 925, 97 N.J.Law 564.

N.Y.—Brott v. Auburn & S. Electric R. Co., 115 N.E. 273, 220 N.Y. 92, reversing 154 N.Y.S. 1113, 169 App. Div. 913—Meyers v. Hines, 191 N.Y.S. 773, 199 App.Div. 594—Gubernick v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 205 N.Y.S. 31, 123 Misc. 153—Armour v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 154 N.Y.S. 93, 90 Misc. 665.

Ohio.—Keifer v. Cleveland Ry. Co., 8 Ohio App. 272.

Pa.—Dickun v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 161 A. 739, 308 Pa. 20—Forrest v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 104 A. 663, 261 Pa. 383—Morris v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 100 A. 971, 256 Pa. 390.

R.I.—Barlik v. United Electric Rys. Co., 197 A. 452, reargument denied 198 A. 359.

S.C.—Towill v. Southern Ry. Co., 127 S.E. 559, 131 S.C. 423.

Tenn.—Tennessee Electric Power Co. v. Bainbridge, App., 95 S.W.2d 1261.

Tex.—Ft. Worth & D.C. Ry. Co. v. Hawley, Civ.App., 235 S.W. 659, dismissed for want of jurisdiction—Texas Electric Ry. v. Stewart, Civ. App., 217 S.W. 1081, error refused.

Wash.—Switzer v. City of Seattle, 294 P. 225, 159 Wash. 540, modified on other grounds 298 P. 347.

10 C.J. p. 1072 note 17.

Particular questions of fact

(1) Negligence of elevated railway as cause of steps folding up and throwing passenger boarding car to rear platform.—Fitzgerald v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 174 N.E. 490, 274 Mass. 287.

(2) In an action for injuries to a passenger, received when he was boarding a street car and the slack of the trolley rope fastened to the grab rail wound around his hand and fingers as the trolley jumped from the wire, whether defendant's conductor was negligent in fastening the trolley rope to the grab rail—Flaherty v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 141 N.E. 505, 247 Mass. 44.

(3) In passenger's action for injuries sustained while boarding moving train, whether railroad negligently failed to give customary warning call "All aboard."—Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas v. Hail, Com.App., 48 S.W.2d 589, affirming Hail v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 30 S.W.2d 1062.

(4) Whether motorman suddenly and negligently opened doors of street car causing them to strike prospective passenger.—Meyer v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 251 N.W. 841, 125 Neb. 712.

(5) Whether motorman was negligent in neither seeing nor hearing intending passenger who rapped on door twice and in starting street car without notice, striking intending passenger.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Krofta, 180 N.E. 641, 125 Ohio St. 126.

(6) Question of negligence, where plaintiff was struck by overhang of street car which started while plaintiff was on narrow curved platform between two cars when in act of boarding second car.—Lasater v. Conestoga Traction Co., 160 A. 447, 306 Pa. 500.

(7) Negligence in speeding up street car and failing to see pedestrian and sound gong.—Johnson v. City of Seattle, 250 P. 409, 141 Wash. 385.

(8) It could not be ruling as matter of law that it would be negligence to call out or to fail to call out "wide step," and whether train between which and platform plaintiff fell consisted of four or five cars, and whether plaintiff could recover if she attempted to go upon first car at regular stopping place, are questions for the jury.—Harrington v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 118 N.E. 880, 229 Mass. 421, 2 A.L.R. 1057.

(9) It was not negligence as matter of law for street car company, operating two cars on cross-town line, to have its conductor leave car to turn switch at end of route, as respects passenger boarding car while conductor was so engaged.—Clarke v. New York Rys. Co., 171 N.Y.S. 248.

96. Cal.—Hellman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 27 P.2d 946, 135 Cal.App. 627, rehearing denied 28 P.2d 384, 135 Cal.App. 627—Sanchez v. Pacific Auto Stages, 2 P.2d 845, 116 Cal.App. 392—Sellars v. Southern Pac. Co., 166 P. 599, 33 Cal.App. 701.

Ga.—Metts v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115.

Tex.—Southern Traction Co. v. Reagor, Civ.App., 186 S.W. 272, error refused.

10 C.J. p. 1073 note 18.

Not matter of law

A carrier does not as a matter of law owe a passenger the duty of assistance in entering its cars, unless conditions exist showing that such assistance is necessary and it is apparent to the employees of the carrier or is made known or is desired by the passenger.—Bird v. Schaff, Tex.Civ.App., 206 S.W. 711.

97. U.S.—Davis v. Olson, C.C.A. Minn., 298 F. 921—Boston Elevated Ry. Co. v. Teele, Mass., 248 F. 424, 160 C.C.A. 434.

Cal.—Sanchez v. Pacific Auto Stages, 2 P.2d 845, 116 Cal.App. 392.

10 C.J. p. 1073 note 19.

98. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Doan, 62 N.E. 826, 195 Ill. 168, affirming 93 Ill.App. 247.

10 C.J. p. 1073 note 20.

99. U.S.—Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. v. Alcorn, C.C.A.Pa., 266 F. 50.

Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Wood, 130 So. 786, 222 Ala. 103—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Banks, 76 So. 472, 16 Ala.App. 188.

Cal.—Hellman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 27 P.2d 946, 135 Cal.App. 627, rehearing denied 28 P.2d 384, 135 Cal.App. 627.

Ill.—Stanton v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 119 N.E. 291, 283 Ill. 256, affirming 205 Ill.App. 385—Fels v. Chicago Motor Coach Co., App., 9 N.E.2d 265.

Mass.—Gerber v. New York Cent. R. R., 192 N.E. 837, 288 Mass. 318—Coyle v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry. Co., 173 N.E. 586, 273 Mass. 475—Fournier v. Holyoke St. Ry. Co., 154 N.E. 546, 258 Mass. 257—Nuttall v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry. Co., 114 N.E. 291, 225 Mass. 167.

Mich.—Sullivan v. Detroit United Ry., 182 N.W. 33, 213 Mich. 679.

Minn.—Mardorf v. Duluth-Superior Transit Co., 261 N.W. 177, 194 Minn. 537.

Mo.—Hudson v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 246 S.W. 576—Zimmerman v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 41 S.W.2d 579, 226 Mo.App. 369—Altheimer v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App., 6 S.W.2d 976—Hayward v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App., 1 S.W.2d 252—Boggess v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 229 S.W. 404, 207 Mo.App. 1.

N.H.—Robinson v. Boston & M. R. R., 160 A. 473, 85 N.H. 474.

N.J.—Nogrady v. Erie R. Co., 144 A. 803, 105 N.J.Law 396—Sullivan v.

or before he had reached a seat in the car.[1] However, where the evidence is insufficient to show negligence, the question should not be submitted to the jury,[2] but the court may properly direct a verdict for defendant.[3]

j. Operating Trains Where Passengers Are Being Received or Discharged

Whether operating a train or car at a place where another train or car is taking on or discharging passengers is negligence, and whether the train or car so operated was operated in a negligent manner, are ordinarily for the jury to determine.

Whether the operation of a train or car at a place where another train or car is receiving or discharging passengers is negligence,[4] whether the operator of the train or car which the injured passenger intended to board was negligent,[5] or whether the train or car which caused the injury to a passenger or intending passenger who was rightfully on or near the tracks at a station or regular stopping place was operated at the time in a negligent manner,[6] is ordinarily a question of fact for the jury. Where the evidence is insufficient, or is clear

La Frade, 185 A. 665, 14 N.J Misc 482, affirmed 189 A. 365, 117 N J Law 442.

N Y —Haynes v. Elmira Water, Light & R Co., 170 N.Y S 369, 182 App Div. 472

Or.—Rostad v. Portland Ry, Light & Power Co., 201 P. 184, 101 Or. 569

Pa —Bracken v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 15 Pa Dist 229

Utah —Williamson v. Salt Lake & O Ry Co., 172 P 680, 52 Utah 84, L. R A 1918F 588.

10 C J p 1073 note 21.

Sudden jerks

Evidence that sudden start of motor bus broke passenger's grip on supporting bar and threw her against seat, causing injuries, justified submitting case to jury —McRae v Boston Elevated Ry Co., 176 N.E. 773, 276 Mass 82.

Not matter of law

(1) It is not necessarily culpable negligence as matter of law to start street car before passenger has reached place of safety, as the rule governing depends on facts of each case.—Hopson v Union Traction Co., 167 P 1059, 101 Kan 499.

(2) A carrier does not as matter of law owe duty of stopping trains at stations for sufficient time to enable passengers who have gotten on safely to find seats —Blume v Chicago, M. & St P Ry Co., 158 N.W. 418, 133 Minn. 348, Ann.Cas 1918D 297.

Demurrer to evidence properly overruled

(1) Where the only eyewitness of an accident testified that deceased got on the step of a street car which he had signaled to stop, and while he was on the step the car started with a jerk, and deceased fell with his head in the direction taken by the car, and there was nothing to show whether deceased had hold of the handrail or what he might have done to overcome a sudden jerk, the manner of the accident was not so contrary to physical laws that a demurrer to the evidence should have been sustained.—Beckner v. Kansas City Rys Co, Mo App, 232 S W. 745

(2) In action by passenger for personal injuries received while boarding car, when it started with a jerk, that plaintiff testified that she was thrown forward instead of backward or pitched in a certain direction while standing in peculiar position that she was, has been held not contrary to physical laws requiring sustaining demurrer to evidence —Traynor v. Wells, Mo App., 273 S W 1100.

1. Ala —Bradford v Birmingham Electric Co., 149 So 729, 227 Ala. 285.

Md —Grinath v. Baltimore & Belair Electric Ry. Co., 125 A. 604, 145 Md. 290

N Y.—Waterman v. Empire State R. R, 206 N Y.S 630, 211 App.Div 170

Pa —Wood v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 170 A. 367, 111 Pa.Super. 430

Tex.—Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co. v Travis, Civ App, 46 S W 2d 743, affirmed 78 S W 2d 941, 125 Tex 11

10 C.J p 1073 note 22.

Reasonable time to reach seat

Whether conductor gave woman carrying child and leading another reasonable time to find seat for herself and children before causing train to move held for jury —Riggs v. Norfolk-Southern R. Co., 124 S E. 749, 188 N C. 366

2. Mich —Kerr v. City of Detroit, Department of Street Railways, 238 N W. 190, 255 Mich 446

Ohio —Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Barragate, 180 N.E 694, 125 Ohio St 190

R I.—Peters v. United Electric Rys Co., 165 A. 773, 53 R I. 251, modified on other grounds 167 A. 122

Evidence held insufficient to make issue for jury of primary negligence of street railroad company in action for injuries to intending passenger from overswing of turning car, in view of plaintiff's own admissions.—De Lorme v. St Louis Public Service Co, Mo.App, 61 S.W 2d 247.

3. Mass —Parker v. Boston Elevated Ry Co., 174 N E. 927, 273 Mass 345 —Bean v. Eastern Massachusetts St Ry Co, 168 N.E 807, 269 Mass. 206—Boyd v. Boston Elevated Ry Co., 162 N E. 735, 264 Mass. 364.

4. U.S.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Hobson, C C A.Ga., 43 F 2d 715—Pennsylvania R Co v. Rogers, N.J, 244 F 76, 156 C C.A 504

Ala —Alabama City, G. & A. Ry. Co. v Bessiere, 72 So. 325, 197 Ala 5

Cal —Ferran v Southern Pac. Co., 44 P 2d 533, 3 Cal 2d 350—Wilkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 232 P 131, 195 Cal 185.

Mass —McCarthy v Boston, R B. & L. R Co., 159 N E 507, 262 Mass. 56.

10 C J p 1074 note 23

5. Ala —Montgomery Light & Traction Co v. O'Connor, 85 So. 384, 204 Ala. 24

6. Ala —Montgomery Light & Traction Co v O'Connor, supra.

Cal —Lewis v Pacific Electric Ry Co, 272 P. 346, 94 Cal App 748

Mass —Somerville v. New York, N. H & H. R Co 189 N E. 592, 285 Mass 539—Lipski v. Boston Elevated Ry Co, 143 N E 335, 248 Mass. 508

Mich —Schnurr v Detroit United Ry, 193 N W. 772, 222 Mich 591—Boyle v. Waters, 166 N.W 114, 199 Mich. 478

10 C.J p 1074 note 24.

Injury to prospective passenger in safety zone

In action against street railroad for injuries received from being struck by rear end of street car while it was rounding a curve at time when plaintiff was standing in a safety zone marked off by street railroad, whether motorman of street car knew that place occupied by plaintiff was a position of peril to her held question for jury. Where plaintiff, standing in safety zone, maintained by street car for safety of its passengers, was struck by rear end of street car rounding a curve, whether or not street railroad was charged with negligence in maintaining safety zone as it was maintained, and whether or not motorman exercised reasonable care in rounding curve knowing that plaintiff was occupying a perilous position, held for jury. Whether a motorman of street car has right to assume that an adult pedestrian will not stand so close to track as to be struck by street car as it swings out in rounding a curve and undisputed, there is no question for the jury,[7] and a verdict for defendant may properly be directed.[8]

k. Condition of Cars and Equipment

Negligence with respect to the construction and maintenance of cars and equipment is a question for the jury, except where the evidence is clear and undisputed or is insufficient to go to the jury.

Except where the evidence is insufficient to go to the jury, or is clear and undisputed,[9] whether or not the carrier was negligent with respect to the construction and maintenance, in a safe condition, of the car, equipment, or appliances which caused the injury, is ordinarily a question for the jury.[10] cannot be determined as a matter of law, but is governed by fact limitations, as it is knowledge of possible injury and not certainty of it that imposes duty on operator to use all reasonable means to avoid injury—Mangan v Des Moines City Ry. Co., 203 N.W. 705, 200 Iowa 597, 41 A.L.R. 368

7. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v Kilburn, 113 S.W.2d 844, 272 Ky. 44.

Neb.—Lofgren v Omaha & C., B. St. Ry. Co., 174 N.W. 222, 103 Neb. 723

Evidence held insufficient, on question of gross negligence, in action for injuries to a street car passenger after alighting and while crossing the tracks—Davis v. Saginaw-Bay City Ry. Co., 157 N.W. 390, 191 Mich. 131

8. U.S.—Nutter v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., C.C.A.W.Va., 72 F.2d 982.

9. U.S.—Windham v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., C.C.A.Ala., 71 F.2d 115.

Ala.—Rowe v. Alabama Power Co., 167 So. 324, 232 Ala. 257

Ky.—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Potter, 194 S.W. 308, 175 Ky. 258

Mass.—Hahesy v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 165 N.E. 114, 266 Mass. 307.

Mo.—Jones v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 5 S.W.2d 101, 222 Mo. App. 1220.

N.J.—Hunter v. Public Service Ry. Co., 144 A. 305, 105 N.J.Law 300—Conover v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 106 A. 384, 92 N.J.Law 602

N.Y.—Moll v. Niagara Gorge R. Co., 264 N.Y.S. 761, 238 App.Div. 528.

Ohio—Gorman v. City of Cleveland, 159 N.E. 136, 26 Ohio App. 109.

Or.—Morrison v. Pacific Northwest Public Service Co., 30 P.2d 344, 146 Or. 225.

Pa.—Swink v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 120 A. 827, 277 Pa. 220—De Walt v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 106 A. 110, 263 Pa. 236

R.I.—Bines v. United Electric Rys. Co., 148 A. 417, 50 R.I. 438.

Tenn.—Wilson v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry., 65 S.W.2d 637, 16 Tenn.App. 695

Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rutherford, Civ.App., 184 S.W. 700, error refused.

10 C.J. p. 1075 note 26.

Evidence held insufficient to require submission

(1) Falling of railroad car's window or closing of door on passenger's hand, without evidence of defect or negligence—MacGill-Allen v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 118 N.E. 248, 229 Mass. 162.

(2) Existence of ice upon street car step whereon passenger slips, without more.—Olszowy v. Cleveland Ry. Co., 192 N.E. 366, 47 Ohio App. 529.

(3) Failure to submit whether street car operator was negligent in permitting suitcase in aisle is not error, where evidence did not disclose that motorman knew of suitcase—Phinney v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 189 N.E. 52, 285 Mass. 207.

(4) Railway is entitled to directed verdict where passenger falling over luggage in car aisle offered no evidence respecting railroad's knowledge of obstruction, as the mere presence of luggage in the aisle is not per se sufficient to show negligence.—Costello v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 217 N.W. 434, 205 Iowa 1077.

(5) Where passenger entered coach and took vacant seat by window that was then open, and placed her arm on the window sill, and after the train had gone about eight miles the window fell upon the arm and injured it, the rule of res ipsa loquitur did not apply, and the passenger should have been nonsuited, although she testified she neither touched the window nor did anything else to cause it to fall—Saunders v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 117 S.E. 4, 185 N.C. 289, 29 A.L.R. 1258.

(6) Evidence that burn received by passenger from steam pipes beneath seat in railroad coach was caused by railroad's negligence, is insufficient, where heating system used was of standard approved type generally in use, there was no evidence that different or safer method was in use by any railroad, or could have been provided, or that appliances were defective or dangerous, or that any other person had received burns from pipes, and passenger using car in usual and ordinary manner would not come in contact with pipes.—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Werline, Tex.Civ.App., 84 S.W.2d 288, error dismissed.

10. U.S.—Long v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., S.C., 238 F. 919, 151 C.C.A. 653.

Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v. Hughes, 76 S.W.2d 53, 189 Ark. 1015—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. McCrary, 16 S.W.2d 466, 179 Ark. 444—Butler County R. Co. v. Lawrence, 250 S.W. 340, 158 Ark. 271—Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Teater, 186 S.W. 294, 124 Ark. 1

Cal.—Cox v. Central California Traction Co., 259 P. 987, 85 Cal.App. 596.

Colo.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo. 1.

Conn.—Sickmund v. Connecticut Co., 189 A. 876, 122 Conn. 375

Ill.—Molloy v. Chicago Rapid Transit Co., 166 N.E. 530, 335 Ill. 164.

Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Arnott, 126 N.E. 13, 189 Ind. 350

Iowa.—Olson v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 170 N.W. 466, 186 Iowa 384—Calvert v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 169 N.W. 641, 184 Iowa 1238.

Ky.—Consolidated Coach Corporation v. Hopkins, 14 S.W.2d 768, 228 Ky. 184—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Rowland's Adm'r, 14 S.W.2d 174, 227 Ky. 841—Louisville & I. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 250 S.W. 832, 199 Ky. 150, 33 A.L.R. 165

Md.—Smith v. Blue Ridge Transp. Co., 191 A. 66—Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Davis, 137 A. 30, 152 Md. 427—Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co. v. Fitch, 136 A. 529, 152 Md. 137—Hines v. Watkins, 112 A. 299, 137 Md. 211.

Mass.—Hartford v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 182 N.E. 476, 280 Mass. 288—Scott v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 176 N.E. 530, 276 Mass. 21—Wissell v. Worcester Consol. St. Ry. Co., 158 N.E. 659, 261 Mass. 364—Fitzmaurice v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. Co., 152 N.E. 239, 256 Mass. 217—Bagnell v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 142 N.E. 63, 247 Mass. 235—Parker v. Middlesex & B. St. Ry. Co., 129 N.E. 353, 237 Mass. 291.

Minn.—Gegere v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 220 N.W. 429, 175 Minn. 96—Bulin v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 201 N.W. 307, 161 Minn. 226—Rittle v. St. Paul City Ry. Co., 183 N.W. 146, 149 Minn. 216.

Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Hawkins, 140 So. 873, 163 Miss. 505.

Mo.—Taylor v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 279 S.W. 115, 311 Mo. 604—Brindley v. Wells, 271 S.W. 48, 308 Mo. 1—Pennifold v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 59 S.W.2d 713—

Thus it is ordinarily a question for the jury whether it was negligence to leave the vestibule connection between two cars unlighted on a dark night,[11] or to leave the outside or trapdoor of the vestibule open, without a guard,[12] or whether a condition existed which, in the exercise of the care required of him, an employee of the carrier should have discovered and remedied, or warned the passenger thereof.[13]

1. Operation of Cars

Whether the train, car, or other vehicle of the carrier was negligently operated is a question for the jury, unless the state of the evidence is such as to permit or require the court to determine it.

Unless the insufficiency, or the clear and undisputed character, of the evidence makes it a question for the court,[14] the question whether or not the train or the car which caused the injury was, at the time, operated with the proper degree of care and skill is generally for the jury.[15] Thus it is

Smith v. Kansas City Public Service Co, 56 S.W.2d 838, 227 Mo App 675—Tueteberg v. St Louis Public Service Co., App, 41 S W 2d 956

Mont.—Garvin v. Butte Electric Ry. Co, 169 P. 40, 54 Mont 196.

N.H.—Seaver v Manchester St. Ry., 97 A. 220, 78 N.H 584.

N.J.—Agry v Pennsylvania R. Co., 150 A. 401, 106 N J Law 476, reversing 146 A 587, 7 N J.Misc. 579—Holda v. Public Service Co-ordinated Transport, 168 A. 753, 11 N. J Misc 879.

N Y.—Wyatt v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 172 N.Y.S. 223

N C.—Lindsey v Atlantic Coast Line R Co, 92 S E. 166, 173 N C. 390

Ohio.—Olszowy v. Cleveland Ry Co, 192 N.E. 366, 47 Ohio App 529—Reis v Cincinnati Traction Co., 13 Ohio N P ,N S, 166.

Okl.—Chicago, R. I & P Ry Co v. Shelton, 273 P 988, 135 Okl 53—St Louis & S. F R Co v. McClain, 162 P. 751, 63 Okl. 75

Pa.—Orms v. Traction Bus Co, 150 A 897, 300 Pa. 474—De Bouvier v Pennsylvania R Co, 107 A 775, 264 Pa 443—Saunders v Altoona & Logan Valley Electric Ry. Co., 84 Pa.Super 385

R.I.—Tomei v United Electric Rys. Co., 163 A 479.

S.C.—Hall v. Southern Ry. Co., 160 S E. 584, 162 S.C. 260.

Tex.—Houston Electric Co. v Bragg, Com.App., 276 S.W. 641, affirming Bragg v. Houston Electric Co., Civ. App., 264 S.W 245, motion overruled, Com App., Houston Electric Co v. Bragg, 280 S W 188—Texas & Pac. Ry Co v Hanson, Civ App., 189 S W. 289, error refused.

Wash.—French v Spokane & I. E. R Co, 172 P. 1159, 102 Wash. 236.

10 C.J p 1074 note 25.

Jury could infer carrier's negligence, where trapdoor forming apparently safe part of vestibule floor of railroad car went down, injuring passenger.—Rogers v. New York Cent. R. Co, 150 A. 357, 106 N.J. Law 394

Where box car used for passengers

In a soldier's action for injuries sustained by falling from the door of a box car, it was for the jury to decide whether, as a practical thing, guards or the like had been designed and put in use to such extent that the carrier should have known of them.—Gainer v. Hines, 184 N Y.S. 768, 194 App Div. 21.

Electric shock

In action by passenger on street car for injuries from electric shock, if explanation of defendant leaves case with no disputed fact, verdict may be directed, but if testimony presents disputed material facts, or if reasonably divergent inferences may be drawn by fair-minded men, from material facts not disputed, question is for jury, mere weight of evidence not being criterion as to whether case should go to jury.—McKittrick v Public Service Ry. Co., 128 A 226, 101 N J Law 262

11. U.S.—Bronson v Oakes, Minn., 76 F 734, 22 C.C.A 520

Ala.—Clanton v. Southern R. Co, 51 So 616, 165 Ala. 485, 27 L R A, N.S, 253

12. Ga.—Central of Georgia Ry Co v Deas, 96 S E 267, 22 Ga App. 425

N J.—Potter v Pennsylvania R Co., 174 A. 734, 113 N J Law 441.

10 C J. p 1075 note 28.

13. U S.—Chesapeake & O. Ry Co v. Burton, C.C A W.Va, 62 F 2d 110, 88 A L R. 756, certiorari denied 53 S.Ct. 507, 288 U S 617, 77 L.Ed. 990.

Ala.—Atkinson v Dean, 73 So 479, 198 Ala 262

Conn.—Dunne v. Connecticut Co, 195 A. 183

Mass.—Poulos v Labbe, 195 N.E. 893—Scott v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 176 N E. 530, 276 Mass. 21.

Mo.—Vortriede v. St. Louis Public Service Co, App., 58 S.W.2d 492

R.I.—Bines v United Electric Rys. Co., 133 A. 624.

Banana peel on doorsill

Evidence, in a passenger's action for injuries received when he stepped on a banana peel and fell to the ground, held to authorize submission of the issue of the carrier's negligence in permitting the banana peel to remain upon the doorsill—Ft. Worth & D. C Ry. Co v. Yantis, Tex.Civ.App., 185 S W. 969, error refused.

14. Ala.—Mosley v. Teche Lines, 166 So. 800, 232 Ala. 110.

10 C J p 1075 note 30.

Direction of verdict for defendant required or proper

(1) In action for death of person riding on drover's pass.—Texas & N O R Co. v. McElheny, Tex Civ App, 294 S.W 287

(2) In action by passenger for injuries from being struck by opening of coach door by flagman while passenger was stooping to pick up suit case, where the evidence showed that injury resulted from mere accident and was not due to any negligence of railroad company or its servants.—Louisville & N R Co v. Bunnell, 104 So. 344, 20 Ala.App. 583.

(3) Where jolt of car or closing of door on passenger's hand, or both in combination, did not warrant finding of carrier's negligence.—Caramicos v. New York, N. H & H. R Co, 178 N E. 542, 277 Mass 364

(4) Testimony that passenger, standing on car platform as train was entering station, was thrown off his feet and lost hold on guard rail because of allegedly unusual and extreme jolt is insufficient, as matter of law, to show railroad's negligence, where train's speed was six miles per hour, and there was no evidence of defect in car or track or of carelessness in running train.—McKay v Boston & M R. R., 188 N E. 390, 284 Mass. 606.

15. U.S.—New York Cent. R Co v Johnson, C C A.Mo., 27 F 2d 699, certiorari granted 49 S.Ct. 27, 278 U S. 590, 73 L Ed 523, reversed on other grounds 49 S.Ct. 300, 279 U S. 310, 73 L Ed. 706, amended 49 S Ct. 417—New York, N H & H Ry Co. v Kilby, Mass, 233 F. 252, 147 C.C A 258.

Ark.—Ft Smith Light & Traction Co. v. Phillips, 206 S W 453, 136 Ark 310.

Cal.—Horney v. Dillingham, 253 P. 970, 81 Cal App. 443.

Colo.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry Co. v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo. 1

Conn.—Belledeau v. Connecticut Co, 149 A. 127, 110 Conn. 625, followed generally a question for the jury as to whether the carrier was negligent as to the overloaded or overcrowded condition of the car;[16] or whether it was negligent as to the rate of speed at which the car was running at the time of the accident;[17] whether it was negligent in failing to keep a proper lookout;[18] whether it was negligent as to causing a passenger to fall or to be pushed or thrown from the car,[19] such as by reason of its crowded in Cavanaugh v Connecticut Co., 149 A 131, 110 Conn. 698—Sacks v. Connecticut Co, 146 A. 494, 109 Conn 221.

Ill.—Kaldunski v. Chicago City Ry. Co, 250 Ill.App. 475

Ky—Adams v. Hilton, 110 S.W 2d 1088, 270 Ky. 818—Consolidated Coach Corporation v. Hopkins, 14 S.W 2d 768, 228 Ky. 184.

Md—Washington & R Ry. Co. of Montgomery County v. Sullivan, 110 A 478, 136 Md. 202.

Mass—Moulton v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 127 N.E. 886, 236 Mass. 234—Mercier v. Union St. Ry. Co., 125 N.E 181, 234 Mass. 85.

Mich.—Borski v. City of Wakefield, 215 N.W 19, 239 Mich. 656—Bury v. Detroit United Ry., 164 N W. 460, 198 Mich. 447.

Mo.—Delfosse v. United Rys. Co. of St Louis, 201 S W. 860—Jordan v St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 103 S W.2d 552, quoting Corpus Juris text—Carter v. Wells, App, 40 S.W.2d 725—Lincoln v St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 7 S.W.2d 460, 223 Mo App. 46—Hellar v Kansas City Rys. Co., App, 237 S W. 811—Willi v United Rys Co. of St. Louis, 224 S W 86, 205 Mo.App. 272

N J—Van Keuren v Erie R Co., 157 A 545, 10 N J Misc. 6—Benedetto v. Hudson & M R. Co., 156 A 37, 9 N J Misc 758—Anthony v. Public Transit Co, 130 A. 895, 3 N.J. Misc 1204

Ohio—Northern Ohio Traction & Light Co v. Jenkins, 3 Ohio App. 161.

Or.—Lamm v. Silver Falls Timber Co, 277 P. 91, 133 Or. 468, reversed on other grounds 286 P 527, 133 Or. 468, rehearing denied 291 P. 375, 133 Or. 468, appeal dismissed 51 S.Ct. 214, 282 U.S. 812, 75 L Ed. 727.

Pa.—Sperry v. White Star Lines, 172 A. 646, 315 Pa. 361—Bickel v. Reed, 179 A. 762, 118 Pa Super. 335.

R.I.—Keefe v. United Electric Rys. Co., 195 A. 599.

10 C.J. p 1075 note 29.

Negligence of taxicab driver

If the driver of a cab saw or, if reasonably alert, ought to have seen a hole in the street, and apprehended that danger to the passengers was likely to result from driving into it, considering the speed at which he was moving, and could have avoided the hole, then the court would not have been warranted in holding, as matter of law, that his conduct did not involve negligence.—O'Connell v. Quaker City Cab Co., 84 Pa.Super. 323.

Operation with knowledge of defect

In action for injuries to a passenger on a jitney bus, when a tire exploded raising the floor under plaintiff so as to strike and inflict injury, and three times before the explosion the driver had left his seat to observe the source of a peculiar noise emanating apparently from the wheel, whether defendant was negligent in operation of the bus was properly a question for jury—Klorman v. Drogin, 123 A. 760, 99 N.J.Law 422, 31 A.L.R. 1191

Operation in tunnel

Testimony showing that, when passing through a tunnel half a mile long, the trainmen did not close the transoms or windows of a passenger coach, that the quantity of smoke and gas entering the car was very unusual, nearly suffocating passengers, and tending to show that the fireman stoked the engine immediately before entering the tunnel, is sufficient to require submission of the question of negligence of the railroad company to the jury—Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. Ry. Co. v. Ball, C.C.A.Tenn., 288 F. 173.

16. Minn.—Oletzky v Great Northern Ry. Co., 169 N.W. 715, 141 Minn. 218.

Mo.—Jordan v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 103 S W.2d 552.

N.J.—Egner v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 162 A 554, 109 N.J Law 367

N.Y.—Allessi v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 297 N Y.S 1011, 163 Misc 815—Dashew v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 175 N Y S. 875.

Okl.—Sand Springs Ry. Co. v Smith, 203 P 207, 84 Okl. 211.

Wash—Carton v. Eyres & Seattle Drayage Co., 201 P. 737, 117 Wash. 536.

10 C J. p 1075 note 31.

Violation of ordinance fixing capacity

As the violation of an ordinance fixing the carrying capacity of street cars would be negligence, in an action for injuries to passenger thrown to floor of car in which she was standing when motorman made emergency stop, question of whether ordinance fixing carrying capacity of street car was violated is for jury—Sullivan v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 200 N.W. 922, 161 Minn. 45.

17. U.S.—Nevin Bus Lines v. Ritenour, C.C A Ohio, 61 F 2d 637—Mareiniss v. Sheeran, C.C.A.N.Y., 31 F.2d 976.

Cal—Gritsch v Pickwick Stages System, 22 P 2d 554, 131 Cal App. 774—Holt v. Yellow Cab Co. of San Diego, 12 P.2d 472, 124 Cal. App. 385.

Md—Washington, B. & A E. Ry. Co. v. State, 113 A 338, 137 Md. 538.

Miss.—Pickwick Greyhound Lines v Silver, 125 So. 340, 155 Miss. 765.

Mo.—Unterlachner v Wells, 296 S. W 755, 317 Mo 181—Timmons v. Kurn, App., 100 S W.2d 952—Alewel v East St. Louis & S. Ry. Co., App, 26 S.W.2d 869

N Y—Rogers v Burke, 241 N.Y.S. 414, 229 App Div. 361.

Ohio.—A. F. Waite Taxi & Livery Co. v. McGrew, 16 Ohio App 219.

Or—Odrlin v. Dugan, 1 P.2d 599, 137 Or. 140.

Pa.—Petri v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 195 A. 107.

S.C.—Nelson v. Charleston & W. C. Ry. Co, 121 S.E. 198, 92 S C. 151.

Tenn. — Tennessee Coach Co v. Young, 80 S W.2d 107, 18 Tenn App. 592

10 C.J. p 1075 note 32.

Evidence held insufficient to go to the jury on the question of negligence as to the rate of speed.—Bowling Green-Hopkinsville Bus Co. v Edwards, 59 S.W 2d 584, 248 Ky. 684—10 C J. p 1075 note 32 [c].

18. Mont.—Fisher v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 249 P. 1043, 77 Mont 85.

The amount of vigilance required of a bus driver as a carrier of passengers while driving along street car tracks is a question for the jury.—Simmons v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 212 P. 637, 60 Cal App 129.

19. U.S.—Giger v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., C C.A.N.Y., 60 F.2d 63.

Ala—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Glenn, 141 So. 537, 224 Ala. 620

Cal.—Mudrick v Market St. Ry Co, App., 74 P.2d 328.

Ill.—Roberts v Economy Cabs, 2 N. E 2d 128, 285 Ill App 421. See Roberts v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 205 Ill App. 594.

Mo.—Pietzuk v. Kansas City Rys. Co, 232 S.W. 987, 289 Mo. 135—Daly v. Pryor, 198 S.W. 91, 197 Mo.App. 583.

N.J.—Wall v. G. R. Wood, Inc, 197 A. 41, 119 N.J.Law 442—Ryan v. Public Service Ry. Co., 134 A. 650, 103 N.J.Law 145—Schott v. Weiss, 105 A 192, 92 N J.Law 494.

N.Y.—Libaris v. Murray, 299 N.Y.S. 184, 252 App.Div 781—McKinney v. Canadian Pac. Ry. Co, 213 N. Y.S. 168, 215 App Div. 786.

condition,[20] or by a sudden and unusual lurch, jerk, or jolt of the car,[21] or whether it was otherwise negligent in operating the train or car in such a manner as to cause sudden and unusual stops, lurches, jerks, or jolts, thereby causing injury.[22]

Tex—Haskins v. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 89 S.W.2d 831, error dismissed.

10 C.J. p. 1075 note 33

20. Mo—Meyers v. Wells, 273 S.W. 110.

Ohio—Beierla v. Hockenedel, 157 N. E. 573, 25 Ohio App. 186.

Pa.—Panek v. Scranton Ry. Co., 102 A. 274, 253 Pa. 589

10 C.J. p. 1076 note 34.

21. U.S.—Great Northern Ry. Co. v. Shellenbarger, C.C.A.Or., 54 F.2d 606, certiorari denied 52 S.Ct. 580, 286 U.S. 555, 76 L.Ed. 1290—Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co. v. Galvin, C.C.A.Mich., 54 F.2d 202, certiorari denied 52 S.Ct. 407, 285 U.S. 551, 76 L.Ed. 941.

Cal.—Gumpel v. San Diego Electric Ry. Co., 172 P. 605, 178 Cal. 166.

Ill.—Norton v. Richardson, App., 13 N.E.2d 868—Raphael v. Chicago & West Towns Rys., 11 N.E.2d 831, 293 Ill.App. 58

Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Burk, 268 S.W. 844, 207 Ky. 1.

Mass.—Danofsky v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 117 N.E. 4, 228 Mass. 97.

Mich.—Larskowski v. Detroit United Ry., 159 N.W. 530, 193 Mich. 409

Mo.—Meyers v. Wells, 273 S.W. 110—Dunn v. Alton R. Co., App., 88 S.W.2d 224—Rooker v. Deering Southwestern Ry. Co., 226 S.W. 69, 206 Mo.App. 79.

Ohio—Stark Electric R. Co. v. Brooks, 114 N.E. 245, 94 Ohio St. 324

Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Larmon, 45 P.2d 76, 172 Okl. 461.

Pa.—Miller v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 154 A. 924, 303 Pa. 524—De Marchi v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 107 A. 703, 264 Pa. 321—Panek v. Scranton Ry. Co., 102 A. 274, 253 Pa. 589

Wis.—Markowitz v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., 271 N.W. 380.

10 C.J. p. 1076 note 35.

22. U.S.—Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. v. Byrne, C.C.A.N.J., 60 F.2d 268—Southern Pac. Co. v. Hanlon, C.C.A.Cal., 9 F.2d 294.

Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v. Mart, 65 S.W.2d 39, 188 Ark. 202—Hunter v. Mullins, 203 S.W. 590, 136 Ark. 530.

D.C.—Capital Traction Co. v. Lyon, 24 F.2d 262, 57 App.D.C. 396.

Ill.—Heineke v. Chicago Rys. Co., 116 N.E. 761, 279 Ill. 210, affirming 199 Ill.App. 399—Kaldunski v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 250 Ill.App. 475.

Ky.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Hay, 88 S.W.2d 318, 261 Ky. 566—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Hay, 58 S.W.2d 228, 248 Ky. 69—McDermott v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 206 S.W. 6, 182 Ky. 22—Kentucky & T. Ry. Co. v. Ball, 194 S.W. 785, 175 Ky. 630—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bland, 188 S.W. 468, 171 Ky. 424—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Ashley, 183 S.W. 921, 169 Ky. 330, L.R.A.1916E 763.

La.—Wallace v. Shreveport Rys. Co., App., 175 So. 86.

Md.—Washington Ry. & Electric Co. v. Anderson, 177 A. 282, 168 Md. 224—Western Maryland Ry. Co. v. Shatzer, 120 A. 840, 142 Md. 274

Mass.—Mendler v. Town Taxi, 3 N.E.2d 15—Revsbech v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 175 N.E. 734, 275 Mass. 317—Pickard v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 166 N.E. 561, 267 Mass. 133—Weiner v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N.E. 259, 262 Mass. 539—Gray v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 146 N.E. 244, 251 Mass. 167.

Minn.—Underdahl v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 259 N.W. 78, 193 Minn. 548—Sullivan v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 200 N.W. 922, 161 Minn. 45.

Mo.—Toomey v. Wells, 276 S.W. 64, 310 Mo. 696—Elliott v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 236 S.W. 17—Crenshaw v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 52 S.W.2d 1035—Paul v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 46 S.W.2d 910—Mendenhall v. Springfield Traction Co., App., 26 S.W.2d 50—Lincoln v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 7 S.W.2d 460, 223 Mo.App. 46—Rhodes v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 255 S.W. 1084, 213 Mo.App. 515—Fletcher v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 221 S.W. 1070—Shafer v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 201 S.W. 611—Husbands v. St. Louis Electric Terminal Ry. Co., App., 196 S.W. 78—Cooley v. Dunham, 195 S.W. 1058, 196 Mo.App. 399—Modrell v. Dunham, App., 187 S.W. 561, 564

Neb.—Wilson v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 157 N.W. 626, 99 Neb. 693.

N.J.—Buckalew v. Eaton, 191 A. 773, 118 N.J.Law 188—Cohn v. Public Service Co-Ordinated Transport, 162 A. 641, 109 N.J.Law 387—Seimner v. Public Service Co-ordinated Transport, 151 A. 624, 107 N.J.Law 159.

N.Y.—Quinn v. Colonial Motor Coach Corporation, 195 N.E. 211, 266 N.Y. 584, reversing 275 N.Y.S. 634, 242 App.Div. 812—Fish v. Brooklyn & Queens Transit Corporation, 285 N.Y.S. 4, 246 App.Div. 843—Mintz v. International Ry. Co., 165 N.Y.S. 563, 177 App.Div. 942—Bergman v. Brooklyn & Queens Transit Corporation, 297 N.Y.S. 727, 163 Misc. 762—Zemmel v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 172 N.Y.S. 162.

Ohio.—Wilkey v. Cleveland Ry. Co., 177 N.E. 637, 123 Ohio St. 679—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Hunt, 156 N.E. 133, 116 Ohio St. 291—Featherstone v. Cleveland Ry. Co., 167 N.E. 606, 32 Ohio App. 93—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Mueller, 166 N.E. 391, 31 Ohio App. 488.

Pa.—Young v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 129 A. 91, 283 Pa. 234—Kleine v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 97 A. 395, 252 Pa. 214—Bickel v. Reed, 179 A. 762, 118 Pa.Super. 335—Dress v. Schuylkill Ry. Co., 83 Pa.Super. 149—Murphy v. Altoona & Logan Valley Electric Ry. Co., 81 Pa.Super. 504—Bliss v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 73 Pa.Super. 173—Gould v. Atlantic City R. Co., 68 Pa.Super. 431

R.I.—Roy v. United Electric Rys. Co., 164 A. 513, 53 R.I. 122—Adams v. United Electric Rys. Co., 128 A. 197, 46 R.I. 312.

Tex.—Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Jones, Civ.App., 105 S.W.2d 443—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Baldwin, Civ.App., 2 S.W.2d 520

Wash.—Humphreys v. City of Seattle, 281 P. 994, 152 Wash. 339, modifying 277 P. 834, 152 Wash. 339

Wis.—Hanley v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., 263 N.W. 641, 220 Wis. 288—Hanley v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., 263 N.W. 638, 220 Wis. 281.

10 C.J. p. 1076 note 36.

Sufficiency of defendant's explanation

(1) Whether prima facie case made by passenger in caboose injured by sudden stopping of train was overcome by brakeman's uncontradicted testimony that such sudden stopping was caused by trespasser stepping on coupling pin in climbing off car is for jury—Gibson v. Southern Pac. Co., C.C.A.Tex., 67 F.2d 758, certiorari denied Southern Pac. Co. v. Gibson, 54 S.Ct. 458, 291 U.S. 673, 78 L.Ed. 1062

(2) In action by passenger injured when thrown to floor when street car made unusual and violent stop, whether, notwithstanding defendant's explanation, motorman exercised required care, is for jury—Karsey v. City and County of San Francisco, 20 P.2d 751, 130 Cal.App. 655.

(3) Trolley company's explanation that sudden stop was to avoid collision with truck held insufficient to take case from jury in passenger's personal injury action.—Di Paolo v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 101 Pa.Super. 254.

m. Passing Other Vehicles or Objects

Whether there was any negligence in operation in passing other vehicles or objects is ordinarily a question for the jury.

Whether in passing other vehicles or objects near the track the car was operated in a negligent manner, whereby the passenger was struck by such other vehicle or object and injured, is generally a question for the jury.[23] Thus it is generally a question for the jury as to whether notice or warning should have been given to the passengers of the danger of injury from such vehicles or objects.[24]

Direction of a verdict for defendant is proper where there is insufficient proof of negligence of the carrier in an action by a passenger allegedly injured when the car passed too near another vehicle or object.[25]

n. Collisions

Ordinarily it is for the jury to determine whether the carrier was guilty of negligence with respect to a collision in which a passenger is injured.

It is generally a question for the jury as to whether the carrier was negligent with respect to a collision between its trains or cars,[26] or between

Refusal of peremptory instruction proper

In an action by passenger for injury caused by a jerk or lurch of car, where the evidence does not sustain the burden upon defendant under Code 1906 § 1985, to show freedom from negligence—Gulf & S. I. R. Co v. Meyers, 75 So. 244, 114 Miss. 458

Evidence held insufficient to go to jury

(1) Evidence insufficient to show unusual nature of jolts and jerks causing passenger to fall.—Viglas v. Boston, R. B & L. R. Co, 169 N.E. 780, 270 Mass 264

(2) Evidence that jolt, which caused train passenger to place hand on door frame and door to close, was unusual—Caranicos v New York, N H & H R. Co, 178 N.E. 542, 277 Mass. 364.

(3) Evidence that two violent successive jerks of trolley car threw passenger forward and then backward against seat when she arose to leave car—Cutler v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 179 A. 434, 319 Pa. 351.

(4) Evidence merely showing sudden stopping of street car which threw passenger, awaiting to alight, to floor.—Hody v. Pittsburgh Rys Co, 178 A 302, 318 Pa 272—Smith v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co, 171 A 879, 314 Pa. 541.

(5) Evidence merely showing sudden jerk of street car which threw passenger violently to floor while walking in car.—McClusky v Shenango Valley Traction Co, 161 A. 424, 105 Pa.Super. 275.

(6) Evidenee of sudden stopping or jerking of street car when automobile struck side of street car—Cook v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 182 A. 755, 120 Pa.Super. 565.

(7) In passenger's action against bus company for injuries received when passenger was thrown from seat when driver stopped bus suddenly while moving at slow rate of speed, to avoid collision with automobile which stopped suddenly in front of bus.—Robinson v. Connecticut Co, 189 A 453, 122 Conn. 300

(8) In an action for personal injuries sustained as a result of the suddenness with which such train was attempted to be stopped, in a futile effort to avoid collision with an automobile on the track at a village highway crossing—Letush v New York Cent R. Co, 267 Ill App. 526.

(9) In passenger's action for injuries on sudden stopping of turning street car, caused by collision between automobile, caught by car's overswing, and parked truck.—Wheeler v. Des Moines City Ry. Co, 215 N.W. 950, 205 Iowa 439, 55 A.L.R 473.

(10) In bus passenger's action for injuries resulting from fall caused when bus started after having stopped at intersection—Cohen v Surface Transp Corporation of New York, 289 N.Y.S. 678, 160 Misc. 247.

(11) In passenger's action for injuries sustained because of jerk of street car which came after she had boarded street car and after car had been set in motion—Yager v. Marshall, 196 N.E. 375, 129 Ohio St 584.

(12) In action by passenger injured when hurled to the floor by jolting and jumping of a street car.—Crawford v. Reading Transit & Light Co, 116 A. 542, 273 Pa 74.

(13) In street car passenger's personal injury action, based on fall following sudden stop of car—Iszard v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 100 Pa.Super 240

(14) In action for death of mail clerk—Morrissey v. Union Pac R. Co, 249 P. 1064, 68 Utah 323.

(15) On question of injury by willful negligence.—Tuder v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 160 N.W. 785, 135 Minn. 294, L.R.A 1917C 86.

(16) Where passenger, who sought to recover for personal injuries resulting from violent starting and jerking of street car, stated that car started violently, but there was no evidence as to any unusual or violent starting of car, nonsuit should be granted.—Uffelman v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 98 A. 574, 253 Pa 394.

10 C.J. p 1076 note 36 [b].

23. Mass.—Finnegan v. Checker Taxi Co, 14 N.E 2d 127—Freedman v. Eastern Massachusetts St Ry Co, 12 N E 2d 739.
Mo.—Smith v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App, 204 S W. 575
Pa—Zaltouski v Scranton Ry. Co., 165 A 847, 310 Pa. 531.
R I—Mousally v United Electric Rys Co., 195 A. 224.
10 C J. p 1076 note 37.

Refusal to instruct for defendant held proper

In a passenger's action for injuries by reason of a lurch of the train, causing her arm to fall outside the window and strike a locomotive on a side track, it was not error to refuse an instruction to find for defendant because the testimony failed to show negligence in that the trainmen testified as to the position of a "clearance post" beyond which locomotives were not allowed to pass on the side track, and that it was impossible for one to extend an arm far enough out of the window to strike a locomotive on such side track, where they were contradicted by evidence that plaintiff's arm did strike a locomotive on the side track.—Lancaster v Knighton, Tex Civ.App, 230 S W 876, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

24. Conn—Maher v. Connecticut Co, 155 A 854, 113 Conn. 556, 77 A.L.R 426
10 C J. p 1077 note 38
25. Mich—Thomas v City of Detroit, 248 N W. 583, 263 Mich. 166.
10 C.J. p 1076 note 36 [a].
26. Minn—Birdsall v Duluth-Superior Transit Co, 267 N.W. 363.
Mo—Hulen v Wheelock, 300 S W. 479, 318 Mo. 502—Walquist v. Kansas City Rys. Co, 237 S.W. 493, 292 Mo. 34—Ganz v. Metropolitan St R. Co., 220 S W. 490.
Pa.—Zeaman v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 62 Pa.Super. 463.

its train or car and the train or car of another carrier at a crossing,[27] or on the same track,[28] or between the carrier's conveyance and another vehicle at a street, road, or highway intersection,[29] or between its train or car and a wagon or other vehicle or object on or near the track,[30] or between a motor vehicle of the carrier and some other vehicle or object on or near the street, road, or highway.[31]

Where the evidence conclusively shows the neg-

R.I.—Chappell v. United Electric Rys. Co., 152 A. 738, 51 R.I. 148.
Tex.—Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Cordova, Civ.App., 252 S.W. 226.
10 C.J. p. 1077 note 39

Wanton negligence

Evidence that the engineer of a railroad train at night had not slept for twenty-three hours, that he passed and saw block signals showing that there was a train ahead, that he became drowsy and, without warning his fireman, fell asleep, and his train, passing a brakeman who had been sent back and who signaled him to stop, crashed at full speed into the train ahead which was standing at a station, tended to show such a reckless disregard of duty by the engineer as amounted to wanton negligence, and required submission of that issue to the jury.—Davis v. McCree, C.C.A.Ohio, 299 F. 142, error dismissed 45 S.Ct. 94, 266 U.S. 582, 69 L.Ed. 452.

27. Cal.—McNeil v. East Bay St. Rys., 32 P.2d 598, 220 Cal. 591.
Mo.—Bergfeld v. Dunham, App., 228 S.W. 891.
10 C.J. p. 1077 note 40.

28. Mo.—Morris v. Union Depot Bridge & Terminal R. Co., 8 S.W.2d 11, 320 Mo. 371.
Tex.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, Civ.App., 286 S.W. 536.

29. Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v. Boyd, 65 S.W.2d 919, 188 Ark. 254
Cal.—Forbell v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 254 P. 890, 200 Cal. 718—Crosby v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 264 P. 346, 88 Cal. App. 799—Schropshire v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 258 P. 1107, 85 Cal.App. 216.
Conn.—Di Rossi v. Connecticut Co., 188 A. 926, 122 Conn. 372.
Ind.—Yellow Cab Co. v. Kruszynski, App., 196 N.E. 136.
Iowa.—Morris v. La Bahn, 189 N.W. 797, 194 Iowa 377.
Md.—Sun Cab Co. v. Reustle, 192 A. 292—Stewart Taxi-Service Co. v. Spencer, 132 A. 153, 149 Md. 635.
Mass.—Turner v. Berkshire St. Ry. Co., 198 N.E. 178—Cohen v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 165 N.E. 113, 266 Mass. 283—Froio v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 142 N.E. 255, 247 Mass. 474.
Mo.—Gibson v. Wells, App., 258 S.W. 1.
N.J.—Dickson v. Ackerman, 168 A. 269, 111 N.J.Law 583
N.C.—Headen v. Bluebird Transp. Corporation, 191 S.E. 331, 211 N.C. 639.
Okl.—Oklahoma Ry. Co. v. Mount, 9 P.2d 11, 155 Okl. 275
Or.—Ramsdell v. Frederick, 285 P. 219, 132 Or. 161.
Pa.—Farrell v. Boggs & Buhl, 106 A. 198, 263 Pa. 221—Caplan v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 92 Pa.Super. 251
R.I.—Drewett v. United Electric Rys. Co., 188 A. 877—Finlay v. Plante, 160 A. 865, 52 R.I. 325
Va.—Hogan v. Miller, 157 S.E. 540, 156 Va. 166.
Wis.—Carson v. Leet, 203 N.W. 394, 186 Wis. 566.

Whether carrier should have protected crossing by gates and flagman is for jury.—Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Ciechowski, C.C.A.N.Y., 10 F.2d 82, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct. 352, 270 U.S. 654, 70 L.Ed. 783

Whether plaintiff's testimony relieves defendant of liability

Whether plaintiff's testimony and inferences therefrom, in an action against a street railway company for injuries to a passenger in a collision between a street car and a motor truck, were such as to relieve defendant, which offered no testimony, from liability, is a question for the jury.—Cecil v. Wells, 259 S.W. 844, 214 Mo.App. 193.

Freedom from negligence as a matter of law

Where jitney bus driver proceeded to cross intersection in front of car over which he had the right of way, and, on discovery that such automobile was turned so as to cross path of the jitney bus, turned in same direction as such automobile and could have avoided collision if such automobile had not struck the rear wheel of the bus, the driver did not as a matter of law fail to exercise the high degree of care which he owed his passenger.—McCaffrey v. Automobile Liability Co., Limited, Mutual, 186 N.W. 585, 176 Wis. 230.

30. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Mealing, 108 So. 511, 214 Ala. 597—Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co. v. Beal, 76 So. 1, 200 Ala. 409.
Ga.—Bailey v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 124 S.E. 907, 32 Ga.App. 793.
Ind.—Ft. Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction Co. v. Parish, 119 N.E. 488, 67 Ind.App. 597.
Kan.—Zimmerman v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 286 P. 669, 130 Kan. 338.
Mich.—Parr v. City of Detroit, 262 N.W. 443, 272 Mich. 659.
Mo.—Zichler v. St. Louis Public Service Co., 59 S.W.2d 654, 332 Mo. 902—Moran v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 232 S.W. 1111.
N.H.—Giguere v. Boston & M. R. R., 167 A. 561, 86 N.H. 294
N.Y.—Plumb v. Richmond Light & R. Co., 135 N.E. 504, 233 N.Y. 285, affirming 187 N.Y.S. 38, 195 App.Div. 254—Rogers v. Burke, 241 N.Y.S. 414, 229 App.Div. 361—Warne v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 162 N.Y.S. 455, 175 App.Div. 559
Pa.—Welsh v. Jump House Wrecking Co. of Pennsylvania, 159 A. 170, 306 Pa. 228—Riff v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 148 A. 102, 298 Pa. 256—Appenzeller v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 163 A. 387, 107 Pa.Super. 319—Carradus v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 86 Pa.Super. 159
W.Va.—Koon v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 192 S.E. 332
10 C.J. p. 1077 note 41.

31. U.S.—Southern Kansas Stage Lines v. Gibson, C.C.A.Okl., 87 F.2d 23
Ark.—Missouri Pac. Transp. Co. v. Norwood, 90 S.W.2d 480
Ill.—Garvey v. Chicago Rys. Co., 171 N.E. 271, 339 Ill. 276.
Ky.—Wilford v. Cooper, 98 S.W.2d 39, 266 Ky. 64—McGraw v. Ayers, 58 S.W.2d 378, 248 Ky. 166
Md.—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158 Md. 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md. 424, and appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S.Ct. 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed. 720
Mo.—Story v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, 37 S.W.2d 898, 327 Mo. 719—Hurley v. Missouri Pac. Transp. Co., App., 56 S.W.2d 620, certiorari quashed State ex rel. and to Use of Hurley v. Becker, 66 S.W.2d 524, 334 Mo. 537—Myerson v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App., 297 S.W. 451—Stegman v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App., 297 S.W. 189, 193.
N.J.—Schreiber v. Public Service Coordinated Transport, 169 A. 629, 112 N.J.Law 199—Fedor v. Skrivonek, 152 A. 448, 9 N.J.Misc. 7—Lunaski v. S. Kosson & Sons, 149 A. 760, 8 N.J.Misc. 265—Schafnacher v. Gray Bus Line, 135 A. 86, 4 N.J.Misc. 980—Kaltman v. Bocino, 126 A. 654, 2 N.J.Misc. 1125.

ligence of the carrier's employee causing the collision, a directed verdict for plaintiff is proper,[32] or the court may instruct the jury that defendant was negligent.[33]

When uncontradicted proof to overcome the presumption of negligence arising from the happening of a collision is offered, the question then becomes one for the court.[34]

When the evidence fails to show any negligence, the question of negligence is not to be submitted to the jury.[35]

o. Derailments; Running Off Road

The question of the negligence of a carrier whose train or car is derailed, or whose motor vehicle runs off the road, is generally one for the jury.

Whether the carrier was negligent with respect to the derailment of a train or car, by reason of which a passenger was injured, is generally a question for the jury,[36] and, where there is evidence of negligence, the question is for the jury, even though there is evidence that the derailment was caused by the acts of a third person,[37] or an act of God,[38] or evidence tending to show that defendant exercised the highest possible degree of care.[39] Similarly, whether a motor carrier was negligent is for the jury to determine in an action for injuries sustained by a passenger when a motor vehicle runs off the road.[40]

N C—Lancaster v B. & H Coach Line, 150 S.E. 716, 198 N C 107.
Pa—Brown v. Cunningham Cab Co., 92 Pa Super. 356.
Wis—Dauplaise v. Yellow Taxicab Co, 235 N W. 771, 204 Wis 419.

Collision in tunnel

Whether bus driver was negligent, in driving bus through tunnel at distance of only fifteen feet from car ahead, was question of fact in a collision case.—Stille v Nevin Bus Lines, 143 A 413, 9 N J Misc. 449

Evidence held insufficient to go to jury

(1) Evidence, in passenger's action for injuries sustained when bus standing on highway was struck by overtaking motorist, as to whether bus should have displayed red light because of weather conditions, where motorist testified he saw bus as he rounded curve; also evidence of whether bus driver stopped bus on road when a clear view of bus could not be had from distance of one hundred and fifty feet in either direction so as to render bus company liable for injuries sustained by passenger when overtaking motorist collided with bus—Boileau v Williams, 185 A. 429, 121 Conn. 432.

(2) Evidence as to negligence in bus passenger's action for injury when bus stopped suddenly in attempt to avoid collision with automobile which stopped in front of it—Canton Motor Coach v. Hall, 189 N E 505, 46 Ohio App. 516.

Direction of verdict for defendant

In passenger's action for injuries against receiver of street railroad company, divergence between pleading of injury proximately resulting from collision between street car and automobile, and proof of injury caused by sudden stopping of street car immediately prior to collision with automobile, constitutes a complete failure of proof and not mere variance, entitling receiver to direction of verdict.—Hughes v. Kiel, Mo.App., 100 S.W.2d 48.

32. Cal.—McCarthy v. Pacific Electric Ry Co, 255 P 868, 82 Cal App 503.
Tenn—Memphis St Ry. v Mitchum, 6 Tenn Civ A 227.

33. Tex—Galveston Electric Co. v Biggs, Civ App, 14 S W.2d 307, error refused

34. N J—Cox v Scott, 140 A 390, 104 N J Law 371, reversing Cox v Rosenvinge, 135 A. 59, 4 N.J Misc 949.

35. N J.—Cox v Scott, supra
Wis—Moen v. Madison Rys. Co, 254 N W 643, 215 Wis. 253—Moen v Madison Rys. Co., 254 N.W. 641, 215 Wis 248.

36. U S—Lehigh Valley R Co v Ciechowski, C.C.A N.Y, 10 F.2d 82, certiorari denied 46 S.Ct 352, 270 U S. 654, 70 L Ed. 783—Panama R Co v Strobel, C C A.Canal Zone, 282 F 52.
Ala.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co v. Robertson, 91 So. 470, 206 Ala. 578.
Ark—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Cox, 283 S.W. 31, 171 Ark. 103
Ill—Kanter v St Louis, S. & P. R. R, 218 Ill App 565
Iowa—Boston v Keokuk Electric Co., 221 N.W 508, 206 Iowa 753—Guthrie v. Muscatine, B. & S. Ry Co, 192 N.W 260.
Mass—Gilchrist v. Boston Elevated Ry, 172 N.E. 349, 272 Mass 346
Miss.—Columbus & G Ry. Co. v. Phillips, 133 So. 123, 160 Miss 390.
Mo—Trowbridge v. Fleming, 269 S. W. 610—Van Tresse v. Kansas City Public Service Co, 4 S.W.2d 1095, 222 Mo.App. 671.
N D—Hurley v Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry Co., 189 N W. 322, 48 N D 1251.
Pa.—Ward v. Southern Pennsylvania Traction Co., 80 Pa Super. 394.
S.C.—Thompson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 102 S.E. 11, 113 S C. 261.
Tex.—Heck v. San Antonio Public Service Co, Civ App., 255 S W. 811.
Va.—Hines v Beard, 107 S.E. 717, 130 Va 286.
10 C J. p 1077 note 42.

Duty of court

After evidence for both sides is in, in action by passenger for injuries sustained in a derailment, and motion is made to take decision from jury, court has duty to determine whether evidence is equally balanced or preponderates for one side, and whether there is any reasonable hypothesis on which jury could base a finding of defendant's negligence, and, if there is, to submit case to jury.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v Lowry, Va., 184 S.E 177.

37. U S.—Delaware, L & W R. Co. v Donahue, N Y, 238 F. 770, 151 C C A 620
Pa—Audino v New Castle & Lowell Ry Co., 83 Pa Super. 257.

Tampering with switch

(1) In action by passenger for injuries sustained when train ran into open switch, question whether wreck was caused by malicious tampering with switch is for jury.
U S.—Delaware, L & W. R. Co. v. Donahue, N.Y., 238 F. 770, 151 C. C A. 620.
Cal.—Sinan v. Atchison, T & S. F Ry Co, 284 P. 1041, 103 Cal.App. 703.

(2) Where passenger train ran into open switch, negligence in employees' failure to notify train master that switch had been spiked is for jury—Sinan v Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., supra.

(3) Where train wreck was caused by open switch, carrier's negligence in not discovering condition in time to avert accident is for jury.—Sinan v Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., supra.

38. Mo.—Bond v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry Co., 288 S.W. 777, 315 Mo. 987

39. Mo—Scheipers v. Missouri Pac. R Co., 298 S.W. 51

40. Ky.—Consolidated Coach Corpo-

Where the presumption of negligence arising when a passenger is injured as the result of a derailment has been rebutted by uncontradicted evidence, a directed verdict for defendant is proper,[41] although whether the presumption has been overcome has been held for the jury, even though defendant's evidence as to the cause of the derailment is uncontradicted.[42]

p. Setting Down Passengers

Negligence of the carrier with respect to the setting down of passengers is generally a question for the jury.

It is ordinarily a question for the jury under the evidence as to whether the carrier was negligent with respect to setting down a passenger,[43] such as, whether it was negligent in assisting or in failing to ration v. Earls' Adm'r, 94 S W 2d 6, 263 Ky. 814—Consolidated Coach Corporation v. Wright, 22 S.W.2d 108, 231 Ky 713

Miss.—Oliver Bus Lines v. Skaggs, 164 So 9, 174 Miss 201

N J—Davis v. Public Service Coordinated Transport, 174 A. 540, 113 N J Law 427

N C—Love v. Queen City Lines, 174 S E 514, 206 N C. 575—Berry v Inter-Carolina Motor Bus Co., 151 S E 245, 198 N.C 817

Pa.—Deacon v. Shea, 86 Pa.Super 373.

Tenn—Greyhound Lines, Inc., v. Patterson, 14 Tenn App 652.

Wash—Poropat v. Olympic Peninsula Motor Coach Co, 299 P. 979, 163 Wash 78

Evidence sufficient to go to the jury

(1) On evidence that after a tire on an auto stage blew out the stage ran about three hundred feet with no appreciable decrease in speed, struck a tree, overturned, and injured a passenger, whether driver exercised the proper degree of care cannot be determined as a matter of law in carrier's favor.—McMillan v Auto Interurban Co., 221 P. 314, 127 Wash. 625.

(2) Where plaintiff showed injury while riding for hire and in usual manner on conveyance furnished and that injury was caused by defect in, or management of, conveyance, which ran off the road, carrier's evidence that he had exercised proper care in testing and inspecting conveyance did not destroy presumption arising from circumstances of accident, and ultimate question was for jury—Hayes v. Staples, 225 P. 417, 129 Wash. 436

41. N J—Glassmeyer v Pennsylvania R Co., 167 A 750, 11 N.J.Misc. 675.

Va—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Lowry, 184 S.E. 177

42. Pa—Shaughnessy v Director General of Railroads, 118 A. 390, 274 Pa. 413, 23 A L.R 1211—Doud v. Hines, 112 A. 528, 269 Pa 182.

43. U S.—Spiesberger v Michigan Cent. R. Co., Ill, 235 F. 864, 149 C C.A. 176.

Ark.—Missouri Pacific Transp. Co v Sharp, 108 S.W.2d 579—Missouri Pac. Transp Co. v. Robinson, 86 S W.2d 913, 191 Ark. 428.

Cal—Brizzolari v Market St Ry. Co, 46 P 2d 783, 7 Cal.App 2d 246

Ill—Paris v East St. Louis Ry. Co, 275 Ill.App 241.

Iowa.—Olson v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 170 N W. 466, 186 Iowa 384.

Ky.—Cincinnati, N O & T. P. Ry. Co. v. Francis, 220 S W. 739, 187 Ky 703.

Mich—Chalker v Detroit, G., H. & M. Ry. Co, 173 N W 532, 207 Mich. 138.

Minn—Leban v Range Rapid Transit Co 208 N.W. 533, 167 Minn. 40—Van House v. Canadian Northern Ry Co, 192 N W. 493, 155 Minn. 57, 28 A L R. 357

Mo—Chapman v. Kansas City Rys Co, 217 S W 290—Jordan v. St Louis Public Service Co., App., 103 S W.2d 552—McCormack v United Rys. Co of St. Louis, App, 238 S. W 579—Chapman v. Kansas City Rys. Co, App, 217 S.W. 623.

N.Y—Harris v. Brooklyn & Queens Transit Corporation, 291 N.Y.S. 963, 249 App Div. 749—Morey v New York Cent. R Co, 254 N.Y S 531, 234 App.Div 210, affirmed 184 N.E 148, 260 N Y. 691

N C.—Woods v North Carolina Public Service Co, 94 S E. 459, 174 N.C 697, 1 A L R. 492

N.D—Arnold v Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 228 N.W. 456, 59 N D. 59

Ohio.—Jackson v Cleveland Ry. Co., 146 N E 75, 111 Ohio St. 631.

Pa—Windle v. Davis, 118 A. 503, 275 Pa. 23—Minster v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 176 A 72, 115 Pa Super. 562—Mink v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 93 Pa Super. 63—Pitts v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 84 Pa Super. 395—Hall v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 74 Pa.Super. 52

Va.—Walters v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co, 94 S.E. 182, 122 Va. 149.

Wash.—Holm v. City of Seattle, 294 P 261, 159 Wash. 618.

W.Va—Kaufman v. Charleston Transit Co, 186 S E. 617.

10 C.J. p 1078 note 43.

Negligence as to passenger alighting from moving train or car

(1) Whether alighting from a moving train was at the direction or invitation of the conductor and whether giving such direction or invitation was actionable negligence are questions for the jury.—Fullerton v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 199 N W 93, 159 Minn. 475

(2) Whether street car company was liable for injury to passenger falling on pavement after alighting from slowly moving car and being struck by automobile is question for jury.—Fitzgerald v. Des Moines City Ry. Co, 207 N W 602, 201 Iowa 1302

(3) Whether the carrier was guilty of negligence in opening car doors while car was in motion, thereby inviting the passenger to attempt to alight, is a question for the jury

Cal—Duffield v. Payne, 227 P 217, 66 Cal App 767

Iowa—Fitzgerald v Des Moines City Ry Co., 207 N W 602, 201 Iowa 1302.

Mo—Hibler v Kansas City Rys. Co, 237 S.W. 1014, 292 Mo. 14—Tillery v. Harvey, App., 214 S W. 246

N J.—Trimboli v. Public Service Coordinated Transport, 168 A. 572, 111 N.J Law 481

10 C.J. p 1078 note 43 [a].

Evidence held insufficient to go to jury

(1) Evidence of railroad's negligence causing death of passenger who fell from moving train at destination station—Carlson v. Boston & M. R R, 168 N.E 171, 269 Mass 60

(2) Evidence of passenger injured while alighting from motor bus—Hoovis v. Bellinkoff, 246 N.Y.S. 52, 138 Misc. 762.

(3) Evidence as to whether motorman who was in sole charge of car was negligent in moving car forward before passenger walked beyond overhang of the car.—Steinburg v Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., Wis., 266 N.W. 793.

(4) Evidence of negligence of bus company, in respect of injuries to passenger while attempting to alight from bus—Doscher v Public Service Co-ordinated Transport, 149 A. 758, 8 N J Misc. 256.

(5) Evidence as to railroad's negligence, in action against railroad for injuries sustained by passenger who, after alighting from car, had his leg run over by train.—Brooks v. Southern Ry Co, C.C A.Ga., 86 F 2d 920, certiorari denied 57 S Ct. 613, 300 U.S. 674, 81 L.Ed. 880.

(6) Fact that unassisted woman passenger with child in arms slipped and fell does not in itself entitle her assist a passenger in alighting,[44] or in failing to apply brakes so as to prevent the car from rolling,[45] or in suddenly starting or moving the car while a passenger was alighting,[46] or in suddenly to go to jury on issue of carrier's negligence—Gatchell v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 130 N.E. 94, 238 Mass. 185

(7) That plaintiff while alighting was crowded by other passengers and fell did not make question for jury—Ritchie v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 131 N.E. 67, 238 Mass. 473.

44. Ala.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Barber, 56 So. 858, 2 Ala.App. 507
Ark.—Payne v. Thurston, 230 S.W. 561, 148 Ark. 456.
Ga.—Metts v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115
Mo.—Mahaney v. Kansas City, Clay County & St. Joseph Auto Transit Co., 46 S.W.2d 817, 329 Mo. 793—Lackey v. Missouri & K. I. Ry. Co., 264 S.W. 807, 305 Mo. 260.
Pa.—Hager v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 104 A. 599, 261 Pa. 359.
Tex.—Wisdom v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., Com.App., 231 S.W. 344, reversing Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wisdom, Civ.App., 216 S.W. 241—Williams v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 196 S.W. 309—International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Williams, Civ.App., 183 S.W. 1185, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 1078 note 44

Where duty to assist not shown

Carrier's duty to assist sick, aged, or infirm passengers to alight depends on the circumstances of case; but, where there is no evidence that a passenger falls within such exception to general rule, the submission of carrier's negligence in not assisting him to alight is reversible error.—Dickinson v. Tucker, 176 P. 949, 74 Okl. 43.

Evidence insufficient to go to jury

In an action against a street railroad for injuries to alighting passenger, in which the evidence showed that the passenger was a comparatively young woman, with nothing to indicate that she was not physically strong and able to take care of herself under ordinary circumstances, and that her mother, an older woman, had alighted alone in safety, and could have relieved the passenger of the baby in her arms if necessary, the submission to jury of whether the motorman's failure to assist the passenger in alighting with the baby in her arms was negligence is error.—Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. v. Nichols, Tex.Civ.App., 254 S.W. 515.

45. Mass.—McAvoy v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 175 N.E. 103, 275 Mass. 9

46. U.S.—Virginia Public Service Co. v. Silver, C.C.A.Va., 68 F.2d 230.
Ala.—Smith v. Southern Ry. Co., 164 So. 903, 231 Ala. 381—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Guess, 131 So. 883, 222 Ala. 280—Mobile Light & R. Co. v. Gallasch, 97 So. 733, 210 Ala. 219—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Williams, 84 So. 633, 17 Ala.App. 259.
Ariz.—Phoenix Ry. Co. of Arizona v. Beals, 181 P. 379, 20 Ariz. 386.
Ark.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Hinkle, 109 S.W.2d 433.
Cal.—Baker v. Market St. Ry. Co., 11 P.2d 912, 123 Cal.App. 688—Murray v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 193 P. 596, 49 Cal.App. 462
Ill.—Lundquist v. Chicago Rys. Co., 137 N.E. 92, 305 Ill. 106, affirming 221 Ill.App. 654. See McConnell v. Chicago Rys. Co., 199 Ill.App. 490.
Iowa.—Havens v. Omaha & Council Bluffs St. Ry. Co., 207 N.W. 677—Walters v. Des Moines City Ry., 179 N.W. 865, 191 Iowa 196
Ky.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 83 S.W.2d 488, 259 Ky. 821—Louisville & I. R. Co. v. Whitesides, 270 S.W. 19, 207 Ky. 733—Johnson v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 200 S.W. 50, 179 Ky. 81.
Mass.—Mucci v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 159 N.E. 513, 262 Mass. 308
Mich.—Tuttle v. Detroit, J. & C. Ry. Co., 159 N.W. 498, 193 Mich. 390
Minn.—Larson v. Wisconsin Ry., Light & Power Co., 164 N.W. 666, 138 Minn. 158—Benoe v. Duluth St. Ry. Co., 164 N.W. 662, 138 Minn. 155
Mo.—Lammert v. Wells, App., 282 S.W. 487—Whitaker v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 209 S.W. 632—Davis v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., App., 185 S.W. 1170.
N.J.—Jackson v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 170 A. 22, 111 N.J.Law 487—Schunck v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 168 A. 218, 111 N.J.Law 244, affirmed 171 A. 794, 112 N.J.Law 500
N.Y.—Schwartz v. New York & N.S. Traction Co., 174 N.Y.S. 147
Or.—Carlson v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 254 P. 809, 121 Or. 519.
Pa.—Hawkins v. Director General of Railroads, 121 A. 46, 277 Pa. 213—Kozak v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 92 Pa.Super. 574—Hassan v. Reading Co., 89 Pa.Super 592.
R.I.—Robishaw v. United Electric Rys. Co., 175 A. 477—Broderick v. Rhode Island Co., 104 A. 689.
S.C.—Gladden v. Southern Ry. Co., 141 S.E. 90, 142 S.C. 492.
Tenn.—N., C. & St. L. Ry. v. Buchanan, 7 Tenn.Civ.App. 56
Tex.—Mathews v. North Texas Traction Co., Civ.App., 243 S.W. 718.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Walker, 148 S.E. 694, 152 Va. 883.
W.Va.—Malone v. Monongahela Valley Traction Co., 141 S.E. 440, 105 W.Va. 60.
10 C.J. p. 1078 note 45.

Wanton negligence

Inference of wanton conduct cannot be submitted, where requiring inference on inference that motorman was signaled to start while passenger was disembarking—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Guess, 131 So. 883, 222 Ala. 280.

Reasonable time to alight

(1) What is a reasonable time for a street car to stop in discharging passengers depends on the circumstances of each particular case, and is generally a mixed question of law and fact for jury determination.—Cain v. Kanawha Traction & Electric Co., 102 S.E. 119, 85 W.Va. 434.

(2) In a passenger's action for injuries, conflicting evidence makes it a question of fact for the jury as to whether the station of plaintiff's destination was properly announced on arrival of the train and whether she was allowed a reasonably sufficient time to disembark from the train, circumstanced and conditioned as she was.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Conley, Civ.App., 236 S.W. 521, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 252 S.W. 737, affirmed 260 S.W. 561, 113 Tex. 472, 32 A.L.R. 1183.
10 C.J. p. 1078 note 45 [b].

Evidence held insufficient

In passenger's action for injuries sustained in falling when street car started, evidence warranted directed verdict for defendant—Desautels v. Massachusetts Northeastern St. Ry. Co., 177 N.E. 578, 276 Mass. 381—10 C.J. p. 1078 note 45 [a]

Demurrer to evidence

(1) Testimony of passenger, falling while alighting on sudden starting of car, that she fell with head in direction in which car was going, was not so contrary to physical law as to require sustaining of demurrer to evidence.—Hoffman v. Dunham, Mo.App., 202 S.W. 429.

(2) Plaintiff's testimony as to the way he fell when open street car was suddenly started while he was alighting was not so contrary to physical or natural laws as to authorize sustaining of demurrer to evidence.—Middleton v. St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co., 195 S.W. 527, 196 Mo.App. 258

(3) Testimony, in woman passenger's action against street railway company, that her injuries resulted from being dragged when seized by her right hand by the conductor as she was thrown by sudden starting of the car was not such as to justify demurrer to the evidence on the ground that the accident as described or violently starting the car after stopping just before reaching the alighting place and while a passenger was alighting or preparing to alight,[47] or in suddenly increasing the speed of a car which had slowed down for the apparent purpose of allowing a passenger to alight and while he was attempting so to do,[48] or in setting down a passenger at an improper time or place,[49] or in failing to provide a reasonably safe place to alight[50] or in failing to was a physical impossibility—Keith v Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo App., 231 S W. 1046

Direction of verdict for plaintiff

Undisputed testimony as to manner of operation of bus and plaintiff's injury warrants directed verdict for plaintiff in action for such injuries—Amsdill v. Detroit Motorbus Co, 206 N W. 494, 233 Mich 150.

Nonsuit

A nonsuit is improper under evidence showing that defendant's street car stopped on grade and plaintiff, about to alight, was injured when car suddenly and violently started and stopped.—Laub v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 97 Pa.Super. 323.

47. Ark—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Berry, 241 S W. 888, 154 Ark. 210.
La.—Nelson v. Vicksburg, S. & P. Ry. Co., 75 So. 212, 141 La. 475.
Mass—McNeil v. New York, N H. & H. R Co., 185 N.E. 471, 282 Mass. 575.
Mo—Hays v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co, App, 201 S.W 566.
N.J—Scott v. Atlantic City & S. R. Co., 132 A. 239, 4 N J Misc 193.
Tenn—Young v. Gregory Bus Line, 1 Tenn App. 282.
10 C J. p 1079 note 46.

48. U S.—Spiesberger v. Michigan Cent R Co., Ill, 235 F. 864, 149 C C A. 176.
Ohio—Grubbs v. Cincinnati, L. & A. St. Ry Co, 17 Ohio N P ,N S., 356.
10 C.J. p 1079 note 47.

49. Ala.—Hammett v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 81 So 22, 202 Ala 520
Minn—Lentz v. Minneapolis & St. Paul Suburban R Co., 160 N.W. 794, 135 Minn. 310
Mo.—Gott v. Kansas City Rys. Co, 222 S.W 827—Irby v. St. Louis Public Service Co, App., 82 S W.2d 118—Watts v. Fleming, 298 S W 107, 221 Mo App. 1123.
N.J.—Smith v. Delaware, L & W. R. Co., 99 A. 205, 89 N J.Law 643—Gore v. Delaware, L. & W R. Co., 98 A. 389, 89 N J.Law 224.
N.Y.—Krupnick v. Branikowski, 3 N E.2d 210, 271 N.Y. 612, reversing 284 N.Y.S 407, 246 App Div. 782.
Ohio.—Cincinnati Street Ry. Co. v. Mueller, 200 N.E 770, 51 Ohio App. 314—Cleverdon v. Lake Shore Elec Ry. Co., 20 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N.S., 550, affirmed 80 N.E. 1128, 75 Ohio St. 618.
Pa.—Gourlay v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 100 Pa.Super. 419.
10 C.J. p 1079 note 48.

Invitation to alight

(1) Whether facts alleged authorized conclusion that defendant had extended invitation to passenger to alight at other than regular stopping place, is for jury—Waters v. Texas Electric Ry, Tex.Civ.App., 267 S.W. 1005

(2) In passenger's action for injuries sustained when struck by another train while alighting, whether the situation at the rear end presented invitation to alight from forward end of particular car is question for jury.—Kinder v. Erie R. Co., 162 A. 387, 109 N.J Law 469, reversing 146 A. 923, 7 N.J Misc. 637, following 137 A 88, 103 N.J Law 316.

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To take to jury question of motorman's negligence, where street car stopped in middle, rather than at edge, of intersection, and former passenger, after alighting, was injured by automobile—MacLearn v. Iowa Southern Utilities Co., 234 N W. 851, 212 Iowa 555

(2) Evidence of motorman's negligence in not warning or assisting passenger.—Tefft v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 188 N.E. 507, 285 Mass. 121.

(3) In action for death of passenger from being carried beyond his destination and put off at dangerous place, where he was killed by freight train while crossing tracks to reach his station.—Ferrick v. Baltimore & O R Co., 103 A. 559, 260 Pa. 176

Motor carriers

(1) In action by taxicab passenger for injuries sustained when he was struck by automobile just after getting out of taxicab, whether taxicab driver had so parked taxicab that there was space of more than fifteen feet of main-traveled portion of street left unobstructed is for jury—Checker Cab & Baggage Co. v. Harrison, 87 S W 2d 32, 191 Ark. 564.

(2) Where defendant stopped its bus in the middle of the street in discharging plaintiff as a passenger, whereby plaintiff was injured by being hit by an automobile unlawfully passing the bus on the right side, it was for the jury to determine whether under the circumstances the driver of the bus might reasonably have anticipated that automobile drivers would pass the bus on the right-hand side.—Paris v. East St. Louis Ry. Co, 275 Ill App. 241.

(3) In passenger's action against bus company for injuries sustained when her foot slipped off curb, while alighting from bus and attempting to step onto curb about two feet from outer edge of bus step, whether company was negligent because of manner in which motorman drove bus alongside curb was for jury under evidence.—Thomason v. Chicago Motor Coach Co., 10 N.E.2d 714, 292 Ill App. 104

(4) Whether proper care for motor bus passengers' safety requires that a particular bus should be driven to curb when it is reasonably convenient to do so on a particular occasion may be presented as a fact question.—Thomason v. Chicago Motor Coach Co., supra.

(5) In taxicab passenger's action for injuries sustained when cab was struck by overtaking automobile while passenger was alighting, whether taxicab driver was negligent in stopping on street at place where it was likely that overtaking vehicle would be unable to pass to left or to stop because of street car rails and icy ruts is for jury—Paulos v Koelsch, 263 N W. 913, 195 Minn. 603

(6) Question of negligence of cab driver, in respect of injury to passenger struck by automobile, while alighting from cab in driveway on left side of street, was for jury.—Bien v. Meyers, 155 A. 480, 9 N.J. Misc 676.

(7) Whether defendant operating motor bus, by stopping bus ten feet from curb, created dangerous condition, constituting negligence, which caused injuries to passenger struck by automobile on alighting, is a question of fact for jury—Cleveland Ry Co. v. Crooks, 181 N.E. 102, 125 Ohio St 280.

50. U.S—Young v. Baldwin, C.C A. Ark, 84 F.2d 841.
Ark.—Beach v. Eureka Traction Co., 203 S W. 834, 135 Ark. 542.
Ga—Holmes v Georgia Power Co., 162 S.E. 403, 44 Ga App. 588, reversed on other grounds Georgia Power Co v Holmes, 165 S E. 284 175 Ga. 487, conformed to Holmes v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S E. 918, 45 Ga.App 826.
Kan.—Kennedy v. Fleming, 221 P. 249, 114 Kan. 853.
Ky.—Cincinnati, N & C Ry. Co. v. Trenkamp, 295 S W. 866, 220 Ky. 552—Mayhew v. Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co., 254 S W 202, 200 Ky. 105
Mass.—McManus v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N E. 529, 262 Mass. 519.
Miss—Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co. v. Raymond, 128 So. 327, 157 Miss. 439.

provide or furnish reasonably safe means for a passenger to alight.[51]

q. Care as to Persons Accompanying Passengers

It is generally for the jury to determine whether the carrier was negligent as to a person accompanying a passenger.

Negligence of the carrier as to a person who was injured while at its station or on a car for the purpose of meeting or accompanying passengers is generally a question for the jury.[52]

r. Proximate Cause of Injury

It is generally for the jury to determine under the evidence whether the negligence of the carrier was the proximate cause of the injury to the passenger.

It is ordinarily a question for the jury, under the evidence, to say whether the injuries for which recovery is sought were proximately caused by the carrier's negligence or other wrong,[53] or whether Mo.—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S.W.2d 25, 226 Mo.App. 934—Brooks v. Union Depot Bridge & Terminal R. Co., 258 S.W. 724, 215 Mo.App. 643.

N.J.—Malzer v. Koll Transp. Co., 156 A. 639, 108 N.J.Law 296—Pabst v. Public Service Ry. Co., 141 A. 773, 104 N.J.Law 537.

N.Y.—Engel v. Brooklyn & Queens Transit Corporation, 299 N.Y.S. 186.

N.C.—Lane v. Southern Ry. Co., 134 S.E. 855, 192 N.C. 287, 51 A.L.R. 1114.

N.D.—Faubion v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 177 N.W. 371, 45 N.D. 269.

Ohio.—Poehl v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 151 N.E. 806, 20 Ohio App. 148.

Pa.—Gerlach v. City of Philadelphia, 157 A. 212, 103 Pa.Super. 401—Fissell v. Hines, 78 Pa.Super. 179—Hall v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 74 Pa.Super. 52.

Utah.—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U. R. Co., 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312.

Va.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Taylor, 132 S.E. 334, 144 Va. 496.

10 C.J. p. 1079 note 49.

Passenger alighting after smashup

Whether trolley company failed properly to safeguard passengers, where one stepped on screw in alighting after smashup, is a question for jury.—Carradus v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 86 Pa.Super. 159.

51. Ark.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Hill, 216 S.W. 1054, 141 Ark. 378.

Ga.—Metts v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115.

Mo.—Mahaney v. Kansas City, Clay County & St. Joseph Auto Transit Co., 46 S.W.2d 817, 329 Mo. 793—Tanner v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., App., 258 S.W. 730—Bate v. Harvey, App., 195 S.W. 571.

Or.—Nelson v. United Rys. Co., 166 P. 763, 85 Or. 427.

Pa.—Lawton v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 151 A. 13, 300 Pa. 532.

Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Parry, Civ.App., 1 S.W.2d 760, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 12 S.W.2d 997—Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. v. Nichols, Civ.App., 254 S.W. 515—Williams v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 196 S.W. 309—Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Berry, Civ.App., 187 S.W. 415, error dismissed.

10 C.J. p. 1079 note 50.

Where negligence not proximate cause

In passenger's action for personal injury, court was not warranted in submitting defendant's failure sufficiently to light front exit of car and step thereof where such failure was not the proximate cause of injury.—Stout v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 200 N.W. 596, 198 Iowa 1017.

52. U.S.—Lowden v. McClung, C.C.A.Ark., 80 F.2d 694.

Ga.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Weathers, 108 S.E. 556, 27 Ga.App. 375.

Kan.—Cannon v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 167 P. 1050, 101 Kan. 363, L.R.A.1918A 559.

Mo.—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 3 S.W.2d 371, 319 Mo. 233.

Okl.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Stacy, 171 P. 870, 77 Okl. 165—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Brooks, 179 P. 924, 72 Okl. 208.

10 C.J. p. 1079 note 51.

Opportunity to alight

Where plaintiff, who had assisted his mother and two children to board defendant's train, was injured while alighting from the train after it had started, on the conductor's refusal to stop the train to let him off after being requested to do so and with notice of plaintiff's object in boarding the train, the issue of negligence was for the jury.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Churchill, Tex.Com.App., 212 S.W. 155, affirming, Civ.App., 171 S.W. 517, rehearing denied, Com.App., 213 S.W. 253.

53. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Jones, 176 So. 203, 234 Ala. 590.

Ark.—Missouri Pacific Transp. Co. v. Sharp, 108 S.W.2d 579, 194 Ark. 405—Reed v. Baldwin, 92 S.W.2d 392, 192 Ark. 491—Checker Cab & Baggage Co. v. Harrison, 87 S.W.2d 32, 191 Ark. 564—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Hall, 53 S.W.2d 432, 186 Ark. 270—Ft. Smith Traction Co. v. Oliver, 46 S.W.2d 647, 185 Ark. 227—Butler County R. Co. v. Lawrence, 250 S.W. 340, 158 Ark. 271—Mills v. Franklin, 196 S.W. 928, 130 Ark. 80.

Cal.—Lafferty v. Market St. Ry. Co., 46 P.2d 996, 7 Cal.App.2d 698—Brizzolari v. Market St. Ry. Co., 46 P.2d 783, 7 Cal.App.2d 246—Duran v. Pickwick Stages System, 35 P.2d 148, 140 Cal.App. 103—Even v. Pickwick Stages System, 293 P. 700, 109 Cal.App. 636—Aydlott v. Key System Transit Co., 286 P. 456, 104 Cal.App. 621.

Conn.—Di Rossi v. Connecticut Co., 188 A. 926, 122 Conn. 372—Roden v. Connecticut Co., 155 A. 721, 113 Conn. 408.

Ga.—Norton v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 110 S.E. 459, 28 Ga.App. 167.

Ill.—Yasbec v. Sprague, App., 13 N.E.2d 868.

Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Friend, 118 N.E. 593, 70 Ind.App. 366.

Iowa.—Fitzgerald v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 207 N.W. 602, 201 Iowa 1302—Kelly v. Muscatine, B. & S. R. Co., 191 N.W. 525, 195 Iowa 17—Carlisle v. Davenport & M. Ry. Co., 159 N.W. 667, 178 Iowa 224.

Ky.—McGraw v. Ayers, 58 S.W.2d 378, 248 Ky. 166—Consolidated Coach Corporation v. Garmon, 26 S.W.2d 20, 233 Ky. 464—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Roman's Guardian, 23 S.W.2d 272, 232 Ky. 285—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Rowland's Adm'r, 14 S.W.2d 174, 227 Ky. 841.

Md.—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158 Md. 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md. 424, and appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S.Ct. 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed. 720—Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co. v. Fitch, 136 A. 529, 152 Md. 137—United Rys. & Electric Co. of Baltimore v. Perkins, 136 A. 50, 152 Md. 105—Stewart Taxi-Service Co. v. Spencer, 132 A. 153, 149 Md. 635.

Mass.—Hartford v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 182 N.E. 476, 280 Mass. 288—Gilchrist v. Boston Elevated Ry., 172 N.E. 349, 272 Mass. 346.

Mich.—Adelsperger v. City of Detroit, 227 N.W. 694, 248 Mich. 399—Herter v. City of Detroit, 222 N.W. 774, 245 Mich. 425.

Minn.—Paulos v. Koelsch, 263 N.W. 913, 195 Minn. 603—Sullivan v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 200 N.W. 922, 161 Minn. 45—Draves v. Min-they were caused by some act of the person injured, as stated infra § 803, or by the acts of some third person.[54]

On the other hand, where the facts are undisneapolis & St P. Suburban R. Co., 172 N.W 128, 112 Minn 321.

Miss—Teche Lines v Keller, 165 So. 303, 174 Miss 527—Hughes v. Gregory Bus Lines, 128 So. 96, 157 Miss 374

Mo—Schulz v St Louis-San Francisco Ry Co, 4 S W 2d 762, 319 Mo. 8—Hulen v Wheelock, 300 S W. 479, 318 Mo 502—Bond v St Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 288 S W. 777, 315 Mo. 987—Hamilton v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., 270 S W. 100—Weissman v. Wells, 267 S.W. 400, 306 Mo 82—Finn v Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, App, 97 S. W 2d 890—Alewel v. East St. Louis & S. Ry. Co., App, 26 S.W.2d 869—Willi v. United Rys Co. of St. Louis, 224 S.W. 86, 205 Mo. App 272—Shafer v. Kansas City Rys Co, App, 201 S.W. 611.

Neb—Tighe v Interstate Transit Lines, 263 N W. 483, 130 Neb 5—McCann v. Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Ry. Co., 222 N W. 633, 117 Neb. 786.

N.J.—Galamb v Erie R. Co, 156 A. 128, 108 N.J.Law 7—Russell v. Public Service Ry. Co., 139 A. 322, 104 N.J Law 34—McKittrick v. Public Service Ry. Co, 128 A. 226, 101 N J.Law 262—DenBleyker v. Public Service Co-Ordinated Transport, 164 A. 695, 11 N.J Misc 101—Benedetto v. Hudson & M. R. Co, 156 A. 37, 9 N J.Misc. 758—Sandler v. Hudson & M. R. Co, 151 A. 99, 8 N.J.Misc 537, affirmed 156 A 459, 108 N J Law 203.

N.Y—Williams v New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 238 N.Y.S 778, 248 App Div. 765, affirmed 6 N.E 2d 58, 272 N.Y. 366—Fulton v Kalbach, 179 N.Y.S 604.

N.C.—Cole v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 191 S.E. 353, 211 N C. 591—Lane v. Southern Ry Co., 134 S. E 855, 192 N.C. 287, 51 A.L.R. 1114

N.D.—Hurley v. Chicago, M & St. P. Ry. Co., 189 N.W. 322, 48 N. D. 1251.

Ohio.—Community Traction Co v. Freeman, 156 N E. 598, 116 Ohio St. 448—Beierla v. Hockenedel, 157 N.E. 573, 25 Ohio App. 186.

Okl—Trail v Tulsa St. Ry. Co, 222 P. 950, 97 Okl. 19—Muskogee Electric Traction Co v. Latty, 187 P. 491, 77 Okl. 156—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v McClain, 162 P. 751, 63 Okl 75.

Pa—Finley v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 106 A. 786, 263 Pa. 403—Kradel v. Pittsburgh, H., B & N C Ry. Co, 100 A. 128, 255 Pa. 427.

R.I—Keefe v. United Electric Rys. Co., 195 A. 599—Drewett v. United Electric Rys. Co., 188 A. 877.

S C—Hall v. Southern Ry. Co., 160 S E 584, 162 S C 260—Anderson v. Hampton & Branchville R. & Lumber Co., 132 S E. 47, 134 S C. 185

Tenn.—Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. Patterson, 14 Tenn.App. 652

Tex—Fort Worth v D. C. Ry Co. v. Miller, 247 S W. 503, 112 Tex. 350—Galveston, H. & S. A Ry. Co v. Bell, 216 S.W. 390, 110 Tex. 104, affirming, Civ App, 165 S W 1—Greer v. Thaman, Com.App., 55 S.W.2d 519, reversing, Civ.App., 34 S.W.2d 378—Texas & N O Ry. Co. v. Rooks, Com.App., 292 S W. 536, affirming, Civ App, 283 S W. 622, rehearing denied, Com.App, 293 S W. 554—Dallas Ry. Co. v. Warlick, Com App., 285 S W 302, reversing, Civ App, 268 S W 512—Texas & N. O. R. Co v. Ewing, Civ.App., 46 S.W 2d 398, error dismissed—Schaff v. Gordon, Civ App, 214 S. W. 638—Southern Traction Co. v. Reagor, Civ.App, 186 S W. 272, error refused—Texas Midland R. Co. v. Sikes, Civ App., 185 S W. 412, error refused.

Va.—Virginia Ry & Power Co. v. Taylor, 132 S E 334, 144 Va. 496.

Wash—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 221 P. 583, 127 Wash. 664—Carton v. Eyres & Seattle Drayage Co, 201 P 737, 117 Wash. 536—Blystone v. Walla Walla Valley Ry. Co., 165 P. 1049, 97 Wash 46.

Wis.—Nelson v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co, 222 N.W. 792, 197 Wis. 513

10 C.J. p 1080 note 52.

Whether external cause alleged by defendant as causing injury was sole cause is question for jury—State ex rel St. Louis & San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Daues, 290 S.W 425, 316 Mo 474, quashing certiorari Whitlow v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry Co., App., 282 S.W. 525.

Excessive speed

In passenger's action for injuries from overturning bus, whether speed of fifty miles per hour caused bus to lose tire and overturn is for jury—Nevin Bus Lines v. Ritenour, C C.A Ohio, 61 F 2d 637—10 C.J. p 1080 note 52 [a].

Joint and concurrent negligence

(1) In street car passenger's action against street railroad and a truck owner for injuries sustained in a head-on collision between street car and truck while crossing bridge, whether collision was caused by joint and concurrent negligence of truck driver in continuing race with an automobile crowding him onto tracks of approaching street car and of street car motorman in failing to stop car or keep a lookout was for jury—Petri v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., Pa., 195 A. 107.

(2) Whether street railroad's negligence or wanton or intentional wrong, concurring with negligence of driver of automobile knocked against prospective passenger, proximately caused her injury, was for jury—Alabama Power Co v. Bass, 119 So. 625, 218 Ala. 586, 63 A L R 1.

(3) In passenger's action against street railway and another company as joint tort-feasors, whether concurrent acts of both or separate acts of either, were proximate cause, was for the jury.—Georgia Ry & Power Co. v. Ryan, 100 S.E. 713, 24 Ga.App 288.

(4) Whether joint and concurrent negligence of driver of truck and motorman of street car striking parked truck which injured intending passenger was proximate cause of injury was for jury—Louisville Taxicab & Transfer Co. v. Reno, 35 S.W 2d 902, 237 Ky. 452.

(5) Whether railroad's negligence concurred with passenger's act in accidentally applying emergency brakes, causing another passenger's death when coaches broke apart, was for jury under evidence—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry Co. v. Ballew Tex.Com App, 66 S W.2d 659, reversing, Civ. App., 39 S.W.2d 180.

Physical facts

(1) Whether plaintiff's injury was a physically possible result of the negligence complained of is a question for the jury.

U.S.—Virginia Public Service Co v. Silver, C.C.A Va., 68 F 2d 230—Frates v Thomas, C.C A.Okl., 57 F 2d 535.

Mass—Burnham v. Boston & M. R R, 116 N E 735, 227 Mass. 422

Okl.—A & A Taxicab Co. v. Bass, 58 P 2d 567.

10 C J. p 1080 note 52 [d] (1).

(2) When a previously injured person becomes a passenger, in his action for negligence causing further injuries, extent of injuries received in prior accident and the extent of injuries received in stage accident for which the carrier would be liable are for jury.—Poropat v. Olympic Peninsula Motor Coach Co., 299 P. 979, 163 Wash 78.

10 C.J. p 1080 note 52 [d].

54. Ark.—Baldwin v. Wingfield, 85 S W 2d 689, 191 Ark. 129.

Cal—Johnson v. Pickwick Stages System, 291 P. 611, 108 Cal App. 279.

Conn.—Boileau v. Williams, 185 A. 429, 121 Conn 432.

Ill.—Kanter v. St. Louis, S. & P. R. R., 218 Ill.App. 565.

puted, the question of proximate cause of an injury to a passenger is for the court;[55] and, where plaintiff fails to prove that the negligence of the carrier was the proximate cause of the injury, there is no case for the jury,[56] and it is proper for the court to grant a nonsuit or to direct a verdict for defendant.[57]

When injuries are sustained after the relation of passenger and carrier has terminated, whether the cause of the accident was too remote to allow compensation by way of damages is a question of law for the court.[58]

s. Companies and Persons Liable

On conflicting evidence it is for the jury to determine what company or person is responsible for the passenger's injuries.

Where the evidence is conflicting, it is a question for the jury as to which one of several companies or persons is responsible for the injuries,[59] or whether both or all were guilty of negligence.[60] However, the liability of a defendant should not be submitted on insufficient evidence,[61] and, where the undisputed evidence shows that the sole proximate cause of the injuries was the failure on the part of one of two carriers sued jointly to exercise the care and diligence to insure the safety of its passengers which is required by law, the court may grant a nonsuit as to the other carrier.[62] Similarly, in an action against a carrier and another for injuries resulting from a collision, a binding instruction in favor of the carrier is proper where there is no showing of negligence on the part of the carrier.[63] Where there is no proof that either defendant owned, operated, or had anything to do with the car causing the injuries, a verdict in favor of each defendant should be directed on request;[64] but, when joint negligence is charged, and plaintiff is entitled to go to the jury as to one of defendants, a nonsuit as to all defendants is improper.[65]

While lessees of a station are not liable to permissive licensees in the absence of willful or wanton negligence, in a action by a passenger on a bus line for injuries received at the station of the lessees by reason of the condition of the premises, evidence of simple negligence is insufficient to take the case to the jury.[66]

t. Conditions and Operation of Elevators and Escalators

Under and subject to the rules above discussed, the question of the negligence in the construction, main-

Ky.—B-Line Cab Co. v Lake, 110 S.W.2d 1083, 270 Ky. 763.
Md.—Sun Cab Co v. Reustle, 192 A. 292—Stewart Taxi-Service Co v. Spencer, 132 A. 153, 149 Md. 635.
Mo.—Zichler v. St. Louis Public Service Co., 59 S.W.2d 654, 332 Mo. 902—Delfosse v United Rys Co. of St Louis, 201 S.W. 860—Timmons v. Kurn, App., 100 S.W.2d 952.
N.J.—McPherson v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 127 A. 23, 100 N.J Law 262, modified 128 A. 231, 101 N.J.Law 262—Scalimbracca v. Central R. Co of New Jersey, 146 A. 665, 7 N.J.Misc. 635, affirmed 152 A. 920, 107 N.J Law 192
10 C.J. p. 1080 note 54.

Signal to start while passenger is alighting

In a passenger's action for injuries received on starting of car before she had alighted, question whether signal for starting of car was given by conductor or another passenger, as claimed by defendant, is, on conflicting evidence, for jury.—Lerch v Hershey Transit Co., 99 A. 800, 255 Pa. 190.

55. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co v Turner, 292 S.W. 758, 219 Ky. 92.
N.C.—Garland v. Carolina, C. & O. Ry., 90 S.E. 779, 172 N.C. 638, L.R.A.1917B 706.
10 C.J. p. 1080 note 55.

56. U.S.—Betcher v. Southern Pac. Co., C.C.A.Tex., 29 F.2d 735.
Ill.—Coffin v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 251 Ill.App. 169
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v Fields, 246 S.W. 130, 197 Ky. 135.
N.Y.—Dusenbury v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 158 N.Y.S. 681, 95 Misc. 241.
Ohio.—Canton Motor Coach v. Hall, 189 N.E. 505, 46 Ohio App. 516.
Tex.—Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Werline, Civ.App., 84 S.W.2d 288, error dismissed
Utah.—Morrissey v. Union Pac. R. Co., 249 P. 1064, 68 Utah 323.
Wis.—Moen v Madison Rys. Co., 254 N.W. 641, 215 Wis. 248, followed in 254 N.W. 643, 215 Wis. 253.
10 C.J. p. 1080 note 56.

57. Ark.—Lowden v. Scott, 95 S.W. 2d 630, 192 Ark. 887.
Ga.—Moseley v. Patterson, 107 S.E. 623, 27 Ga.App. 133.
Ky.—Gray v Louisville Ry. Co., 211 S.W. 560, 184 Ky. 182.
Mass.—Finnegan v. Checker Taxi Co., 14 N.E.2d 127.
Mich.—Takacs v Detroit United Ry., 207 N.W. 907, 234 Mich. 42.
10 C.J. p. 1080 note 57.

58. N.J.—Kelson v. Public Service R. Co., 110 A. 919, 94 N.J Law 527.

59. N.C.—Myers v. Kirk, 135 S.E. 788, 192 N.C. 700
Pa.—Windle v Davis, 118 A. 503, 275 Pa. 23
10 C.J. p. 1080 note 58.

Agreement between defendants

In action against two railroads for personal injuries to a passenger, where it appeared that one had been running trains over the track of the other for fourteen years, the court did not err in submitting to the jury the question as to whether there was an agreement between the roads—Texas & N. O. R. Co v. Jones, Tex. Civ.App., 201 S.W. 1085.

60. U.S.—Southern Ry Co. v. Hussey, C.C.A.Mo., 42 F.2d 70, 74 A.L.R. 1172, certiorari granted 51 S.Ct. 75, 282 U.S. 826, 75 L.Ed. 736, affirmed 51 S.Ct. 367, 283 U.S. 136, 75 L.Ed. 908.
Cal.—Burke v. Dillingham, 258 P. 627, 84 Cal.App. 736.
Ky.—Louisville Taxicab & Transfer Co. v. Reno, 35 S.W.2d 902, 237 Ky. 452.

61. N.C.—Love v. Queen City Lines, 174 S.E. 514, 206 N.C. 575.

62. Pa.—Cleary v Quaker City Cab Co., 132 A. 185, 285 Pa. 241.
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 59

63. Pa.—Cole v. National Casket Co., 101 Pa.Super. 207.

64. Mich.—Randolph v. Detroit United Ry., 181 N.W. 44, 213 Mich. 100.

65. Pa.—Martin v. Steen, 167 A. 609, 109 Pa.Super. 263.

66. N.C.—Goodman v. Queen City Lines, 180 S.E. 661, 208 N.C. 323.

tenance, or operation of elevators or escalators whereby a passenger is injured is for the determination of the jury.

In case of injury to a passenger on an elevator or escalator, it is generally a question for the jury, under the evidence, to say whether the owner or proprietor of the elevator or escalator was negligent with respect to its construction and maintenance,[67] or with respect to the manner in which it was operated at the time of the injury.[68] On the other hand, the court must take the case from the jury when from all the evidence no negligence appears.[69]

67. Ala.—Ensley Holding Co. v. Kelley, 158 So. 896, 229 Ala. 650.
Cal.—McKeon v. Lissner, 223 P. 965, 193 Cal. 297
Mass.—Levesque v. Hildreth & Rogers Co., 177 N.E. 623, 276 Mass. 429—Du Bois v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 176 N.E. 920, 276 Mass. 98.
Mich.—Stapleton v. Furniture Exhibition Bldg. Co., 177 N.W. 139, 209 Mich. 385.
Mo.—Grote v. Hussmann, 223 S.W. 129, 204 Mo.App. 466.
N.J.—Richter v. L. Bamberger & Co., 165 A. 289, 11 N.J.Misc. 229.
Wash.—Engstrand v. Hartnett, 180 P. 132, 106 Wash. 404.
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 60.

Safety devices

(1) Whether appliances on elevator were out of order, and to what extent failure to use safety appliances tended to show negligence, are questions for the jury.—Draper v. Cotting, 120 N.E. 365, 231 Mass. 51.

(2) Where state laws and municipal building code required doors of automatic elevators to be kept in safe operating condition and in good repair, evidence that plaintiff desiring to use elevator in defendant's building fell into shaft by reason of defective condition of automatic elevator, which permitted door to be opened when elevator cab was at different floor, justifies submission of issue of defendant's negligence to the jury under rule of res ipsa loquitur.—Cramer v. Mergard, 11 N.E. 2d 108, 56 Ohio App. 493.
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 60 [a].

Weight of evidence and credibility of witnesses

In action for injury to passenger on department store escalator, credibility of defendant's witnesses and weight of their evidence was for jury.—May Department Stores Co. v. Bell, C.C.A.Mo., 61 F.2d 830.

Proximate cause

Evidence that plaintiff fell into shaft by reason of defective condition of automatic elevator, which permitted door to be opened when elevator cab was at different floor, from which inference of negligence could be drawn under the building laws, with evidence that, on other occasions, door opened when cab was not at floor, which was known to lessee of premises, together with evidence that in opening door plaintiff's fingers were caught and he was precipitated into shaft, makes a case for the jury on issue of proximate cause.—Cramer v. Mergard, 11 N.E. 2d 108, 56 Ohio App. 493.

68. U.S.—National Biscuit Co. v. Litzky, 22 F.2d 939, C.C.A.Mich., 56 A.L.R. 853.
Ala.—Johnson v. Hopkins, 105 So. 663, 213 Ala. 492
Cal.—Parsons v. Easton, 195 P. 419, 184 Cal. 764
Ky.—Otis Hidden Co. v. Newhouse, 264 S.W. 731, 204 Ky. 324.
Md.—O'Neill & Co. v. Crummitt, 190 A. 763
Mass.—Harrington v. Little, 174 N.E. 237, 274 Mass. 81—Waters v. Cotting, 116 N.E. 824, 227 Mass. 405.
Mich.—Sikora v. Fellowcraft Club, 161 N.W. 826, 195 Mich. 49.
Mo.—Hesemann v. May Department Stores Co., 39 S.W.2d 797, 225 Mo. App. 584.
N.Y.—Kantrowitz v. Bergmann, 163 N.Y.S. 996, 177 App.Div. 190.
Pa.—Bell v. City of Pittsburgh, 146 A. 567, 297 Pa. 185, 64 A.L.R. 1542—Petrie v. Kaufmann & Baer Co., 139 A. 878, 291 Pa. 211—McKnight v. S. S. Kresge Co., 132 A. 575, 285 Pa. 489.
R.I.—Vrooman v. Shepard Co., 190 A. 452
Wash.—Davis v. Burke, 156 P. 525, 90 Wash. 495.
Wis.—Brendlson v. Ed. Schuster & Co., 168 N.W. 198, 167 Wis. 566
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 61.

Whether elevator operator was in elevator at time of accident is a question for jury.—McKnight v. S. S. Kresge Co., 132 A. 575, 285 Pa. 489.

Negligent starting of elevator

Because elevator operator received instructions to go ahead from passenger who had nothing to do with operation of elevator, he was not relieved of duty of exercising care in starting, whether duty of attention to plaintiff's decedent was excused by the talk was a question for the jury, at most.—Sikora v. Fellowcraft Club, 161 N.W. 826, 195 Mich. 49.

Lookout

In passenger's action for injuries sustained while leaving elevator, whether operator failed to keep a proper lookout before closing door, to ascertain whether anyone was leaving elevator, is for jury.—City Nat. Bank v. Pigott, Tex.Civ.App., 270 S.W. 234.

Aggravating circumstances

In action under Rev.St.1919 § 4217, for death of elevator passenger, evidence that doors of elevator would not latch, which was known to operator and manager of building, and that operator attempted to run elevator from basement knowing of such condition, makes the question whether facts constituted aggravating circumstances one for jury.—Williams v. Short, 268 S.W. 706, 219 Mo.App. 99, transferred, Mo., 263 S.W. 200.

Liability of company operating

In a passenger's action against elevator company for injuries in fall of elevator in courthouse, refusal to direct verdict for the elevator company is not error where the company was operating the elevator, which had not yet been accepted by the county.—Otis Elevator Co. v. Walstad, C.C.A.Fla., 37 F.2d 895.

Proximate cause

(1) In action for death on elevator, where decedent was caught between floor of elevator and wall, submission of question of probable cause to jury is proper. Cause of death, where decedent suddenly fell while riding on elevator and was caught between elevator and wall, is a question for jury.—Strobel v. Park, 140 A. 877, 292 Pa. 200, 57 A.L.R. 253.

(2) In passenger's action for injuries sustained while leaving elevator, whether operator's failure to keep proper lookout constituted negligence which was proximate cause of accident is for jury.—City Nat. Bank v. Pigott, Tex.Civ.App., 270 S.W. 234.
10 C.J. p. 1080 note 52 [e].

69. Cal.—Schwerin v. H. C. Capwell Co., 34 P.2d 1050, 140 Cal.App. 1.
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 62.

Evidence held insufficient for jury

(1) In customer's action for injuries sustained when thrown to floor while leaving ascending escalator in defendant's store.—Wordell v. Shepard Co., R.I., 192 A. 464.

(2) Evidence as to operator's negligence in not discovering presence of old banana skin.—Ensley Holding Co. v. Kelley, 158 So. 896, 229 Ala. 650

(3) Evidence as to whether defendant knew or should have known of presence of banana peel in its passenger elevator.—Thomas v. J.

§ 769. Instructions

a. In general
b. Requests for instructions
c. Invading province of jury
d. Conformity to pleadings and evidence
e. Instructions as to proximate cause of injury
f. Instructions as to presumptions and burden of proof

a. In General

In actions by a passenger against a carrier for personal injuries, the rules of civil actions generally and actions for negligence require that the court properly instruct the jury as to the law applicable to the facts, and the duty or degree of care required of the carrier under the particular circumstances.

Instructions, in an action by a passenger against a carrier for personal injuries, are governed by the rules applicable to instructions in civil actions generally, and more particularly in actions for negligence. Thus, in such an action each party is entitled to instructions covering his theory of the case,[70] and in its charge to the jury the court must correctly state the law applicable to the facts,[71] do-

Samuels & Bro., 132 A. 8, 47 R.I. 206, reargument denied 132 A. 386.

(4) In an action for injuries in passenger elevator in office building, it was error for the court to submit to the jury whether or not it was negligence not to furnish a device which would prevent the elevator being moved while the doors were open, the only evidence concerning such device being that such device was used in department stores and apartment houses, and opinions of experts that such devices were not practicable in an office building—Getty v. Hutton, 188 P. 10, 110 Wash. 124.

70. Ky.—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Hay, 58 S.W.2d 228, 248 Ky. 69.
Mich.—Chalker v. Detroit, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 173 N.W. 532, 207 Mich. 138.
Mo.—Wiard v. Dunham, 210 S.W. 873.
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 66.

Proper instructions stated

In action for injuries to passenger who was injured, as he claimed, when thrown by sudden jerk from steps after train had stopped at his station and had started to leave it, wherein defense was that plaintiff stepped from train.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Burk, 268 S.W. 844, 207 Ky. 1.

Instructions held proper

(1) Instruction in an action for the death of an alleged passenger, sufficiently submitting the defense that deceased did not intend to pay any fare and had no right on the train and was a trespasser.—Payne v. Allen, 110 S.E. 345, 28 Ga.App. 8, reversed on other grounds 116 S.E. 640, 155 Ga. 54, conformed to 116 S.E. 642, 30 Ga.App. 80.

(2) In action against street railroad for injuries to passenger, in view of defendant's evidence, an instruction that the mere fact that the conductor was on duty and in charge of the car did not deprive him of his right to defend his person, and that, if plaintiff attempted to strike him without being first assailed, plaintiff could not recover, held proper, although plaintiff's evidence was to the contrary.—Wiard v. Dunham, Mo., 210 S.W. 873.

Instruction held erroneous

An instruction that, as plaintiff has introduced no evidence that motorman of defendant's street car struck decedent pursuant to instructions by defendant, jury must find that he did not do so pursuant to any such instructions, is error, plaintiff's theory being that motorman was acting under defendant's instructions in answering conductor's emergency call, and hence that defendant was liable for any injuries resulting from motorman's negligent, wanton, or tortious act in performing duty while so acting.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 232 P. 491, 69 Cal.App. 770.

71. Cal.—Gritsch v. Pickwick Stages System, 22 P.2d 554, 131 Cal.App. 774.
Conn.—Petrillo v. Kolbay, 165 A. 346, 116 Conn. 389.
Ill.—Bernier v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 213 Ill.App. 530. See Benson v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 208 Ill.App. 613.—Horst v. St. Louis Electric Terminal Ry. Co., 199 Ill.App. 169.
Ind.—Mishler v. Chicago, S. B. & N. I. Ry. Co., 122 N.E. 657, 188 Ind. 189.
Kan.—Cloud v. Kansas-Oklahoma Traction Co., 173 P. 338, 103 Kan. 249, 7 A.L.R. 1671.
Minn.—Gerin v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 158 N.W. 630, 133 Minn. 395.
Mo.—May v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 225 S.W. 660, 284 Mo. 508.
Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Dizney, 160 P. 880, 61 Okl. 176.
Wash.—Osborne v. Galusha, 254 P. 1086, 143 Wash. 127.
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 67.

Instructions held proper and sufficient

(1) Generally

Ala.—Bradford v. Birmingham Electric Co., 149 So. 729, 227 Ala. 285.
Ill.—See Heineke v. Chicago Rys. Co., 199 Ill.App. 399, affirmed 116 N.E. 761, 279 Ill. 210.
Ky.—Arnett v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., 248 S.W. 1040, 198 Ky. 491.
Mo.—Unterlachner v. Wells, 296 S.W. 755, 317 Mo. 181.—Kirk v. Kansas City Terminal Ry. Co., App., 27 S.W.2d 739.
N.J.—Leech v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 174 A. 537, 113 N.J.Law 366, affirmed 178 A. 754, 115 N.J.Law 114.
N.Y.—Conti v. New York Cent. R. Co., 176 N.Y.S. 365, 187 App.Div. 829.
Pa.—Bowman v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 149 A. 877, 299 Pa. 558, certiorari denied 51 S.Ct. 27, 282 U.S. 849, 75 L.Ed. 752.
Tenn.—Yellow Cab Co. v. Teller, 9 Tenn.App. 416.
Vt.—Desmarchier v. Frost, 99 A. 782, 91 Vt. 138.
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 67 [a] (1).

(2) As to who is an employee—Interurban Transp. Co. v. Reeves, 108 S.W.2d 594, 194 Ark. 332.

(3) As to liability of a carrier for negligent acts of persons assisting passengers.—Interurban Transp. Co. v. Reeves, supra.

(4) In an action for assault by an employee.
D.C.—Capital Traction Co. v. Morgan, 44 App.D.C. 237.
Mo.—Parris v. Deering Southwestern Ry. Co., App., 227 S.W. 1071.—Dorton v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 224 S.W. 30, 204 Mo.App. 262.—Flynn v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co., App., 190 S.W. 371.
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 67 [a] (2).

(5) In actions for injuries sustained by an intending passenger, or when boarding a train or car.
U.S.—Boston Elevated Ry. Co. v. Teele, Mass., 248 F. 424, 160 C.C.A. 434.
Conn.—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., 160 A. 307, 115 Conn. 30.
Mass.—Harrington v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 118 N.E. 880, 229 Mass. 421, 2 A.L.R. 1057.
Mo.—Vogts v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 228 S.W. 526.—Burkett v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., App., 208 S.W. 104.
10 C.J. p. 1081 note 67 [a] (4).

(6) In actions for injuries from starting of car before passenger was seated.

Ala.—Bradford v. Birmingham Electric Co, 149 So 729, 227 Ala. 285
Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co v Mart, 65 S.W.2d 39, 188 Ark. 202.

(7) In actions for injuries from sudden jerks, jolts, or stops.
Ark.—Harris v. Bush, 196 S W. 471, 129 Ark 369
Conn.—Lawlor v. Connecticut Co., 186 A. 491, 121 Conn 511.
Mo.—Simmons v Wells, 20 S.W.2d 659, 323 Mo 882—Laycock v. United Rys. Co. of St Louis, App., 227 S.W 883, certified questions answered 235 S.W. 91, 290 Mo. 344.

(8) In actions by passenger injured in a collision
Ga.—Atlanta & W. P. R. Co. v. Reese, 110 S E 750, 28 Ga App. 275.
Mass.—Tuttle v. Connecticut Valley St. Ry Co., 132 N.E. 360, 239 Mass 553.
Mo.—Kinchlow v. Kansas City, K V. & W. Ry. Co, 264 S W 416—Bergfeld v Kansas City Rys. Co, 227 S W 106, 285 Mo. 654
N Y.—Norris v. National Biscuit Co., 215 N Y S. 478, 216 App.Div. 462
R.I.—Houghton v. Baillargeon, 167 A. 115, 53 R I 475.

(9) In actions for injuries to alighting passenger.
Mo.—Relford v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 50 S W 2d 171
Pa.—Pitts v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 84 Pa Super. 395.
Wash.—Nollmeyer v Tacoma Ry & Power Co, 164 P. 229, 95 Wash 595.

(10) In actions for injuries to an alighting passenger by a sudden jerk, stop, or movement of the car
Ala.—Birmingham Ry, Light & Power Co v. Gray, 71 So. 689, 196 Ala 653.
Cal.—Baker v. Market St Ry Co, 11 P 2d 912, 123 Cal App. 688
Ind.—Indianapolis Traction & Terminal Co. v Thornburg, 125 N.E 57, 74 Ind App 642.
Mass.—McNeil v New York, N. H. & H. R. Co, 185 N.E 471, 282 Mass. 575.
Mo.—McMahon v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App, 233 S.W. 64—Morris v. Kansas City Rys Co, App., 223 S.W 784
10 C J. p 1081 note 67 [a] (3).

(11) In an action for setting down a passenger at an improper place —Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co. v Raymond, 128 So. 327, 157 Miss. 439—10 C J. p 1081 note 67 [a] (6).

(12) In an action for injuries to a passenger after alighting from car. —Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co. v. Raymond, supra.

(13) In actions for injuries to persons accompanying passengers.
Ga.—Central of Georgia Ry Co. v. Hill, 94 S.E. 50, 21 Ga App 231.
Mo.—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R Co, 50 S.W.2d 122.

(14) In an action for injuries to caretaker of stock.
Ind.—Heed v. Gummere, 136 N.E. 5, 192 Ind. 227.
Tex.—Roberts v Ft Worth & D C Ry. Co, Civ App, 229 S W 954.

(15) In actions for injuries to passengers on a mixed train—Millers Creek R Co v. Blevins, 205 S W. 911, 181 Ky. 809.

(16) In actions for injuries to elevator passenger
Ark.—Williams-Echols Dry Goods Co. v. Wallace, 219 S.W. 732, 142 Ark. 363.
Mass.—Draper v Cotting, 120 N.E 365, 231 Mass 51
Mo.—McDermed v. Baker, App, 20 S.W 2d 597
Wash.—Davis v Burke, 156 P 525, 90 Wash 495.
10 C J. p 1081 note 67 [a] (11).

(17) In actions for injuries to passengers on escalators—Hesemann v. May Department Stores Co., 39 S W. 2d 797, 225 Mo App 584

(18) As to effect of violation of statute as evidence of negligence— Finnegan v Checker Taxi Co., Mass., 14 N.E 2d 127

(19) When an action for injuries caused by the act of trainmen in shutting car door while plaintiff, an intending passenger, was on the car steps, whereby he was jolted to the ground, was not based solely on theory of a willful and wanton act, and only on proof of which recovery would be justified, the rule that, in a suit based on a willful and wanton act, it is error to instruct the jury that defendant would be liable on proof of negligent conduct alone does not apply—Hines v. Evitt, 103 S.E. 865, 25 Ga App. 606
10 C J. p 1081 note 67 [a].

Instructions held erroneous

(1) Generally
Ga.—Augusta-Aiken Ry & Electric Corp. v Andrews, 93 S E. 543, 20 Ga App. 789.
Miss.—Yazoo & M. V R. Co. v Hawkins, 132 So. 742, 159 Miss. 775.
Mo.—Unterlachner v. Wells, 278 S W. 79—Hurley v. Missouri Pac Transp Co, App, 56 S.W 2d 620, certiorari quashed State ex rel and to Use of Hurley v Becker, 66 S W 2d 524, 334 Mo. 537—Parris v Deering Southwestern Ry Co., 208 S W. 97, 203 Mo App. 182
10 C J. p 1081 note 67 [b] (1).

(2) In an action for injuries to a passenger by a sudden jerk, stop, or movement.
Ky.—Chesapeake & O R. Co v. Hay, 58 S W.2d 228, 248 Ky 69—Louisville & I. R. Co. v. Roberts, 228 S.W. 681, 190 Ky. 744.
Mo.—Altheimer v People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App, 6 S W 2d 976

(3) In actions for injuries to passengers alighting from car.
Ky.—Chesapeake & O R Co v. Daniel, 251 S W 1007, 199 Ky 817—Chesapeake & O R. Co. v Mollett, 251 S W. 1005, 199 Ky. 813
Mo.—Mahaney v Kansas City, Clay County & St. Joseph Auto Transit Co, 46 S W 2d 817, 329 Mo. 793—Patterson v Lusk, App., 196 S W. 65

(4) In an action for injury to passenger by robber.—Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Co v. Scott, 150 N.E 777, 197 Ind 587, 43 A L R. 1029.

(5) In action for personal injuries due to alleged failure of defendant railroad to give plaintiff a reasonable opportunity to board train at a flag station—Louisville & N R Co. v. Quinn, 219 S W 789, 187 Ky. 607

(6) In action for injuries sustained by person riding on train on pass —Dunn v Alton R Co, Mo App, 88 S W 2d 224

(7) In action for injuries by one waiting for a street car near highway crossing—Fisher v Butte Electric Ry Co., 235 P. 330, 72 Mont. 594.

(8) In action against street car company by motorists and street car passenger for injuries sustained when automobile collided with street car—Taddeo v Tilton, 289 N.Y S. 427, 248 App.Div. 290

(9) In an action by a passenger against a carrier, where defendant seeks to avoid liability on the grounds that the transfer line had been leased, and was in possession of, and was being operated by, other parties, at the time the cause of action arose, it is reversible error to instruct the jury that, although such transfer had in effect been made, defendant would still be liable, unless plaintiff had notice thereof.—Brownell v. Burke, 221 P. 1026, 97 Okl. 50.

(10) Instruction on duty of automobile driver to stop at stop sign at street intersection is erroneous as submitting admitted existence of sign to jury as question of fact, and as making obedience to ordinance a matter of discretion, rather than positive duty.—Washington v City of Seattle, 16 P 2d 597, 170 Wash 371, 86 A.L R. 113.
10 C J p 1081 note 67 [b].

Relation of passenger and carrier

(1) Where, if plaintiff was injured while disembarking from train and making his way to station, he necessarily passed over narrow and limited space between two trains, in which there was a steam pit, into which he stepped, instruction that, if he disembarked from coach and was making his way to the station, he was a passenger, and as such the railroad owed him duty of extraordinary care, was not error.—Georgia R & Banking Co. v. Brooks, 119 S.E 424, 30 Ga App 692.

(2) In an action for the death of a passenger, an instruction pursuant to Civ Code 1910 § 2715, that a carrier might demand prepayment of fare, but that, if by its permission persons entered into its vehicle with the intention of being carried, an obligation to pay fare was implied, and the reciprocal liability of the carrier arose, is not erroneous.—Payne v. Allen, 110 S.E 345, 28 Ga. App. 8, reversed on other grounds 116 S E 640, 155 Ga 54, conformed to 116 S E 642, 30 Ga App 80

(3) Refusal of charge that passenger on street car ceases to be such when car stops and passenger steps in safety from car onto street is not error—Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co v. Raymond, 128 So 327, 157 Miss 439

(4) An instruction that if plaintiff did not have hold of car for purpose of entering, when car started, she was not passenger is properly denied—Fournier v Holyoke St Ry Co, 154 N E. 546, 258 Mass. 257 10 C J p 1081 note 67 [d]

Instructions in actions against several defendants

(1) In action against street railway company and director general of railroads for injuries to street car passenger, instruction that train crew's failure to send man to crossing in advance of moving cars would not necessarily be negligence, as they were only required to give reasonable and timely notice of car's approach, is not error as to street railway company, although not bound by admissions in complaint—Union Traction Co of Indiana v Alstadt, 143 N E 879, 195 Ind 389

(2) An instruction, authorizing recovery against bus company and owner of truck with which it collided if negligence of both defendants concurred to produce passenger's injuries, is proper—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A 4, 158 Md 424, reargument denied 149 A 565, 158 Md. 424, and appeal dismissed American Oil Co v Metz, 51 S Ct. 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed 720.

(3) In action for injuries sustained by street car passenger when street car collided with truck, the street railroad is entitled to charge that if jury found that truck was turned on to track when street car was so close that collision was inevitable in exercise of reasonable care, railroad was entitled to verdict.—Roach v Yonkers R. Co, 271 N.Y S. 289, 242 App Div. 195.

(4) In an action by a street car passenger to recover for injuries suffered in a collision between street car and freight train, where street railway strenuously contended that plaintiff was injured through the negligence of the railroad company, and submitted numerous instructions to the jury on that theory, court did not err in charging that any negligence of the railroad company did not relieve the street railway of using that degree of care for plaintiff's safety set out in the other instructions given, and that if such negligence, if any, caused or directly contributed to cause injuries to plaintiff, the latter was entitled to recover.—Bergfeld v. Dunham, Mo. App, 228 S W 891

(5) In action for taxicab passenger's injuries sustained because of alleged negligence of driver, refusal to instruct that if taxicab corporation and others combined for purpose of undertaking jointly a specific adventure for profit for purpose of conducting business of operating taxicabs for carrying passengers for hire, and if in carrying out such purpose one of them negligently caused injury to plaintiff, then jury should find against driver and corporation, is error Instructing that, unless jury found that plaintiff was entitled to verdict against both defendants, verdict should be for both defendants, is error, where defendants were charged with commission of joint tort—Gale v. Independent Taxi Owners Ass'n, 84 F 2d 249, 65 App D C. 396

Omissions

Although the petition alleged that defendant negligently and carelessly caused and permitted its street car to be moved and jerked in a sudden, violent, and unusual manner causing plaintiff to be thrown down, an instruction submitting the question whether defendant "negligently" caused the car to be moved and jerked in a sudden and violent manner was not erroneous because of the omission of the word "unusual"—Fletcher v. Kansas City Rys Co, Mo.App., 221 S.W. 1070.

Instructions as to damages

(1) In an action for injuries to a passenger when a step broke, the usual damage prayer in negligence cases of such character, requested by plaintiff, was properly granted.—Hines v. Watkins, 112 A. 299, 137 Md 211

(2) An instruction as to damages for future pain and suffering, where the question was the present worth if added to the verdict as of its date, is not reversible error—Montalini v. Pennsylvania Co, 100 A. 806, 256 Pa. 249

(3) Instruction, that if jury find for plaintiff they will assess her damages at such sum as would fairly compensate her for injury from assaults and insults of fellow passenger, was proper—Memphis, D. & G. R. Co. v. Trussell, 183 S W. 981, 122 Ark 516

(4) Where a motorman dragged a passenger from a position in the aisle of the car to the front part of the car, on the claim that he was obstructing the aisle and preventing the passage of other passengers, it is proper for the trial court, in an action by the passenger against the railway company, to instruct the jury that if they find for plaintiff they should consider the injured feelings of plaintiff, the indignity endured, the humiliation, wounded pride, mental suffering, and the like, and to allow such sum as the jury might think proper, not exceeding the amount named in the declaration.—Capital Traction Co v Morgan, 44 App D C. 237.

(5) In an action for injuries to a female passenger, who was compelled to ride in the smoker and subjected to insults therein, an instruction to find for the plaintiff such damage as the jury believed she has sustained, not exceeding the amount sued for, without furnishing to the jury any guide for determining the amount of damage that should be assessed, was erroneous—Payne v. Combs, 249 S W. 1031, 198 Ky 749.

(6) Instruction permitting passenger who was stabbed by fellow passenger to recover damages from street railroad for past and future mental and physical pain and for past and future impairment to labor and earn money, is not erroneous because permitting double recovery.—El Paso Electric Co v. Cannon, Tex Civ App, 69 S W 2d 532, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 99 S. W 2d 907.

(7) An instruction on the damages for an assault by a conductor on a passenger, was fatally defective, for failure to distinguish the effects of the wrongful acts committed by the conductor, from the effects of those which were rightful—Briggs v. Lusk, Mo App., 190 S.W. 380.

Exemplary damages

(1) In passenger's action for wanton and willful assault, it is not error to instruct that the jury could in their discretion assess punitive damages as a punishment, and as a protection to society, and a warning to others—Flynn v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co, Mo.App., 190 S.W. 371.

(2) In a passenger's action for assault by a motorman where matters of provocation are pleaded and proved, an instruction that the jury might consider any matter of provocation in mitigation of punitive dam-

ing so in definite and explicit terms,[72] defining, limiting, and explaining, when necessary, the different terms or expressions used.[73] An instruction which covers the case generally is ordinarily sufficient, in the absence of a request for more particular instructions.[74]

The instructions must correctly define and explain the duty or degree of care and skill required of the carrier to its passengers under the circumstances of the particular case.[75]

ages is proper.—Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co. v. Webb, 259 S.W. 697, 202 Ky. 341
10 C.J. p 1081 note 67 [f].

72. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Landrum, 45 So. 198, 153 Ala. 192, 127 Am.S.R. 25.
10 C.J. p 1082 note 68.

73. Mo.—Nolan v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 157 S.W. 637, 250 Mo. 602
10 C.J. p 1083 note 69.

Definitions held required

In action for passenger's injuries, definition of "negligence" and 'ordinary care," as applied to carrier's duty in transportation of passenger, is required by Rev.St.1925 art. 2189.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hitt, Tex.Civ.App., 60 S.W.2d 864.

Explanation held required

In action by passenger for injuries alleged to have been received in boarding train, instruction relating to duty of railroad, stating that steps of train were unreasonably high from ground, should have been explained by adding "so as to render them dangerous or hazardous for use of entering passengers."—Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. Ry. Co. v. Duvall, 92 S.W.2d 363, 263 Ky. 387.

Instructions defining terms or expressions held proper

(1) Instructions defining negligence as applied to a common carrier

Tenn.—Baskin & Cole v. Whitson, 8 Tenn.App. 578.

Tex.—Amberson v. Woodul, Civ.App., 108 S.W.2d 852.

(2) Instruction defining "negligence," "ordinary care," "proximate cause," and "contributory negligence."—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hitt, Tex.Civ.App., 60 S.W.2d 864.

Instructions held not erroneous

(1) Instruction on care owed plaintiff attempting to enter street car, as requiring highest degree of care but not defining "passenger," but requiring a finding of facts which were tantamount thereto.—Amos v. Fleming, 285 S.W. 134, 221 Mo.App. 559.

(2) Instruction defining vis major, as requiring carrier to exercise highest practicable care and foresight to anticipate vis major.—Whitlow v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., Mo.App., 282 S.W. 525, certiorari quashed State ex rel. St. Louis & San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Daues, 290 S.W. 425, 316 Mo. 474.

(3) Instruction failing to define the word 'passenger."—McMahon v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo.App., 233 S.W. 64

(4) Instruction in action by one injured when boarding a street car either by starting of the car or by shutting the vestibule door before plaintiff had boarded the car, not defining the word "negligently," since the facts which the jury, under the instruction, had to find before they could find for plaintiff made the starting of the car or shutting of the door negligent, and since defendant used the same term without definition and if it were deemed necessary defendant would have defined it but did not.—Vogts v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo.App., 228 S.W. 526.

(5) In an action against a street car company for injuries to passenger from collision with a truck, an instruction sending the case to the jury without telling them what acts would constitute negligence, nor in what respect defendant was negligent, is not erroneous, since negligence was presumed under the res ipsa loquitur rule.—Gibson v. Wells, Mo.App., 258 S.W. 1.

Failure to request definition

Taxicab company's failure to request definition of "highest degree of care and diligence" required of carrier precluded complaint of absence of definition, when the jury presumably understood meaning.—Bezera v. Associated Oil Co., 3 P.2d 622, 117 Cal.App. 139.

74. Ind.—Citizens' St. R. Co. v. Shepherd, 65 N.E. 765, 30 Ind.App. 193.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 70.

Instructions held proper or not erroneous

(1) In an action against a street railway company for injuries to a passenger in a collision between a street car and a motor truck, an instruction authorizing a verdict against defendant if the motorman negligently failed to exercise the highest degree of care and thereby directly contributed to cause the collision, is not erroneous as authorizing a verdict for plaintiff on a general finding of negligence on any theory evolved by it without regard to the evidence, it being defendant's duty, under the res ipsa loquitur rule, to show that the collision did not occur through any negligence on its part.—Cecil v. Wells, 259 S.W. 844, 214 Mo.App. 193

(2) An instruction in general terms that if the jury found that defendant failed to exercise the highest practicable degree of care in the maintenance of his elevator, and as a direct result thereof cables broke and the elevator fell and plaintiff was injured thereby, verdict must be for plaintiff, was not erroneous for not requiring finding on the specific acts of negligent conduct, as to which plaintiff had offered evidence.—Reel v. Consolidated Inv. Co., Mo., 236 S.W. 43.

(3) In action against railroad for injuries resulting in rupture, or hernia, in left groin of cattle caretaker riding in caboose, instruction submitting injury in the words, if caretaker "sustained an injury to his person in the region of his left groin," is not error as too general and as failing to confine jury to injury alleged.—Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Jones, Tex.Civ.App., 105 S.W. 2d 443.

75. D.C.—Francis v. Fitzpatrick, 89 F.2d 813, 67 App.D.C. 69.
Ill.—Schluraff v. Shore Line Motor Coach Co., 269 Ill.App. 569.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71.

When charge on exact degree not required

While as to appliances a carrier of passengers is bound to exercise the highest degree of care, such carrier is only required to exercise reasonable care in other matters; and where highest degree is not required, court need not charge as to exact degree required.—Thoresen v. New York State Rys., 162 N.Y.S. 397, 98 Misc. 37.

Instructions held proper and sufficient

(1) As to duty or degree of care required in general

U.S.—Pennsylvania Co. v. Clark, C.C.A.Ohio, 266 F. 182.

Cal.—Wallden v. Market St. Ry. Co., 9 P.2d 602, 121 Cal.App. 647.—Burke v. Dillingham, 258 P. 627, 84 Cal.App. 736.

Conn.—Dwyer v. Connecticut Co., 131 A. 838, 103 Conn. 678

Ga.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Bartlett, 162 S.E. 831, 44 Ga.App. 710.—Georgia R. & Banking Co. v. Brooks, 119 S.E. 424, 30 Ga.App. 692

Ill.—See Boland v. Gay, 201 Ill.App. 359.—Heineke v. Chicago Rys. Co., 199 Ill.App. 399, affirmed 116 N.E. 761, 279 Ill. 210

Iowa.—Worez v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 156 N.W. 867, 175 Iowa 1.

Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Campbell, 35 S.W.2d 26, 237 Ky. 132.

Miss.—Teche Lines v. Britt, 170 So. 294.
Mo—Scott v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 229 S.W. 178—Breen v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 204 S.W. 521—Alewel v. East St Louis & S. Ry. Co., App., 26 S.W.2d 869—Whitlow v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 282 S.W. 525, certiorari quashed State ex rel. St. Louis & San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Daues, 290 S.W. 425, 316 Mo. 474—Bergfeld v. Dunham, App., 228 S.W. 891 — Rooker v. Deering Southwestern Ry. Co., 226 S.W. 69, 206 Mo.App. 79—Cooley v. Dunham, 195 S.W. 1058, 196 Mo.App. 399
N.J.—Jones v. People's Rapid Transit Co., 153 A. 373, 9 N.J.Misc. 315
Ohio.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Baron, 3 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 633
R.I.—Keefe v. United Electric Rys. Co., 195 A. 599.
Tenn — Tennessee Coach Co. v. Young, 80 S.W.2d 107, 18 Tenn. App. 592.
Tex.—Commercial Standard Ins. Co. v. Shudde, Civ.App., 76 S.W.2d 561, error granted—Cisco & N. E. Ry. Co. v. Proctor, Civ.App., 272 S.W. 308, affirmed Proctor v. Cisco & N. E. Ry. Co., Com.App., 277 S.W. 1047.
Wash.—Duggins v. International Motor Transit Co., 280 P. 50, 153 Wash. 549.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71 [a] (1).

(2) As to passengers boarding trains or cars.
U.S.—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Harrelson, C.C.A.Mo., 14 F.2d 893—Puget Sound Electric Ry. v. Matson, Wash., 253 F. 33, 165 C.C.A. 53.
Ga.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Brewton, 99 S.E. 226, 23 Ga.App. 621, reversed on other grounds 102 S.E. 439, 150 Ga. 37, and vacated 102 S.E. 920, 25 Ga.App. 168.
Ill.—Hatcher v. Quincy Horse Ry. & Carrying Co., 111 N.E. 1005, 272 Ill. 347, affirming 193 Ill.App. 590.
Ind.—Chicago, L. S. & S. B. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 115 N.E. 368, 66 Ind.App. 126.
Mo.—Taylor v. Wells, App., 7 S.W.2d 424.

(3) As to starting of trains or cars.—Bales v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 40 S.W.2d 665, 328 Mo. 171.

(4) As to an alighting passenger.
Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Shephard, 110 So. 604, 215 Ala. 316.
Ill.—See Horst v. St. Louis Electric Terminal Ry. Co., 199 Ill.App. 169.
Ky.—Louisville Ry. Co. v. Osborne, 188 S.W. 419, 171 Ky. 348.
Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Hawkins, 140 So. 873, 163 Miss. 505.
Mo.—Roach v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 228 S.W. 520
N.J.—Williams v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 141 A. 168, 6 N.J.Misc. 337, affirmed Williams v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 143 A. 921, 9 N.J.Misc. 218, and Williams v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 151 A. 486, 105 N.J.Law 259.
Ohio.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Smith, 172 N.E. 409, 35 Ohio App. 204
Okl.—Tulsa Yellow Cab, Taxi & Baggage Co. v. Salomon, 75 P.2d 197, 181 Okl. 519—Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Elsing, 208 P. 264, 86 Okl. 286.
W.Va.—Twyman v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 191 S.E. 541.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71 [a] (2).

(5) As to duty in bringing train or car to a stop to discharge passengers.
Mo.—Carroll v. Missouri Power & Light Co., 96 S.W.2d 1074, 231 Mo. App. 265.
Wis.—Hanley v. Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., 263 N.W. 638, 220 Wis. 281, followed in 263 N.W. 641, 220 Wis. 288.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71 [a] (4).

(6) As to passengers falling or thrown from moving trains or cars.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hutcherson, 8 Tenn.App. 235.

(7) As to passengers on freight trains—Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Atkins, 234 S.W. 66, 111 Tex. 306, affirming, Civ.App., 185 S.W. 306.

(8) As to passenger on roller coaster—Pontecorvo v. Clark, 272 P. 591, 95 Cal.App. 162.

(9) As to care with respect to station premises, approaches, or platforms.—Hexamer v. Public Service Ry. Co., 132 A. 310, 4 N.J.Misc. 184.

(10) As to persons accompanying passengers.—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., Mo., 50 S.W.2d 122.

(11) As to operation of motor vehicle for carriage of passengers.
Ill.—Roberts v. Economy Cabs, 2 N.E.2d 128, 285 Ill.App. 424.
Ky.—Consolidated Coach Corporation v. Earls' Adm'r, 94 S.W.2d 6, 263 Ky. 814.
Md.—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158 Md. 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md. 424, and appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S.Ct. 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed. 720.
Mass.—Turner v. Berkshire St. Ry. Co., 198 N.E. 178.
Mich.—King v. Neller, 199 N.W. 674, 228 Mich. 15.
N.J.—Mazzei v. Bennett, 141 A. 11, 6 N.J.Misc. 317, affirmed in part Mazzei v. Nucar Forwarding Corporation, 143 A. 380, 105 N.J.Law 218.

(12) In action by customer against store company for injuries in slipping while alighting from escalator, instruction authorizing recovery, if defendant was guilty of even slight negligence under rule applicable to carriers, is proper.—S. S. Kresge Co. v. McCallion, C.C.A.Mo., 58 F.2d 931.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71 [b].

Instructions held erroneous

(1) As to the duty or degree of care required in general.
Cal.—Mudrick v. Market St. Ry. Co., App., 74 P.2d 328.
Ill.—See Todd v. Chicago Rys. Co., 210 Ill.App. 227.
Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Stephens, 157 N.E. 58, 86 Ind.App. 251—Public Utilities Co. v. Whitehead, 134 N.E. 894, 78 Ind. App. 85
Mo.—Provance v. Missouri Southern R. Co., App., 186 S.W. 955.
N.Y.—Kelly v. International Ry. Co., 212 N.Y.S. 309, 214 App.Div. 652.
N.C.—Dunn v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 784, 174 N.C. 254.
Tex.—Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Williams, Civ.App., 3 S.W.2d 141, certified questions answered 288 S.W. 425, 116 Tex. 253.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71 [b] (1).

(2) As adopting incorrect standard of care—Washington v. City of Seattle, 16 P.2d 597, 170 Wash. 371, 86 A.L.R. 113

(3) As requiring too high a degree of care.
U.S.—Payne v. Cohlmeyer, C.C.A.Ill., 275 F. 803.
Ind.—Indiana Rys. & Light Co. v. Armstrong, 138 N.E. 830, 79 Ind. App. 486.
Mo.—Walquist v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 237 S.W. 493, 292 Mo. 34—Brooks v. Illinois Terminal Co., App., 93 S.W.2d 1099—Engle v. St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co., App., 44 S.W.2d 175.
Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Conley, 260 S.W. 561, 113 Tex. 472, 32 A.L.R. 1183, affirming, Civ.App., 252 S.W. 737, which reversed 236 S.W. 521—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Ewing, Civ.App., 46 S.W.2d 398, error dismissed.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71 [b] (2)

(4) As not imposing as great a duty as the carrier was bound to bear.
Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Bowen, 103 So. 872, 212 Ala. 690.
Mo.—Weissman v. Wells, 267 S.W. 400, 306 Mo. 82—Stofer v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 41 S.W.2d 614, 226 Mo.App. 376.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71 [b] (3).

(5) As to alighting passengers.
Ill.—See Schechtman v. Chicago Rys. Co., 198 Ill.App. 23.
Kan.—Cloud v. Kansas-Oklahoma Traction Co., 173 P. 338, 103 Kan. 249, 7 A.L.R. 1671
Miss.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Compiretto, 102 So. 837, 137 Miss. 766.
Neb.—Lieb v. Omaha & C. B. St. Ry. Co., 228 N.W. 364, 119 Neb. 222
N.Y.—Calascione v. Garrison, 201 N.

An instruction must not be confusing or misleading to the jury,[76] and it must not be argumenta-

Y S. 154, 206 App.Div. 285—Weiser v. Dry Dock E. B. & B R. Co., 188 N.Y S. 856.
Tex—Galveston Electric Co v. Marangola, Com App, 283 S.W. 777, reversing, Civ App., 273 S.W 311—San Antonio & A. P. Ry Co v Wiuvar, Civ.App., 257 S W. 667.

(6) As to duty to assist passenger —Southern Ry. Co. v. Lawson, 114 So. 288, 22 Ala App 180, reversed on other grounds 114 So. 290, 217 Ala. 1, 55 A.L R. 385.

(7) As to care in assisting passenger —Southern Ry. Co. v. Lawson, supra.

(8) As to the duty or degree of care required to furnish a safe place to alight.
Ark—Davis v. Kelly, 237 S W. 698, 152 Ark. 151.
Mo—Gott v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 222 S W. 827.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71 [b] (5).

(9) As to passengers attempting to board a train or car.
Minn.—Richey v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 160 N.W. 188, 135 Minn. 54.
Or—Lawrence v. Portland Ry, Light & Power Co, 179 P. 485, 91 Or. 559.

(10) As to prospective passengers passing over the tracks—Bernier v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 213 Ill App. 530.

(11) As to care required toward passengers on a mixed train.
Ky—Kentucky & T. Ry Co v. Ball, 194 S W. 785, 175 Ky. 630.
Mo—Patterson v. Lusk, App., 196 S. W. 65.

(12) As to duty in collision cases. —Gritsch v. Pickwick Stages System, 22 P.2d 554, 131 Cal.App. 774.

(13) As to degree of care required to discover and prevent obstructions on tracks—Thomas v. Monongahela Valley Traction Co., 112 S.E. 228, 90 W.Va. 681.

(14) As to care with respect to station premises, approaches, or platforms.
N J.—Holtzman v. Hudson & M. R. Co, 128 A. 623, 101 N.J Law 255—Cooney v. Hudson & M. R Co., 138 A. 512, 5 N J Misc. 842—Pabst v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 133 A. 74, 4 N.J Misc. 414.
Tex—Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Tucker, Civ.App., 287 S W. 71.

(15) In actions for injuries resulting from acts of fellow passengers or other third persons.
Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Driver, 166 So. 701, 232 Ala. 36.
Ark—Bush v. Snow, 199 S.W. 115, 131 Ark. 341.
Mo.—Utterback v. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co., 189 S W. 1171.

(16) In action for injuries to elevator passenger.—McDermed v. Baker, Mo.App, 20 S W.2d 597.

(17) As to passenger injured on escalator.—McBride v. May Department Stores Co., 177 N.E. 773, 39 Ohio App 420, affirmed May Department Stores Co. v McBride, 178 N. E 12, 124 Ohio St. 264.
10 C.J. p 1083 note 71 [b].

Use of adjectives

Charge using merely adjectives in describing carrier's duty of care toward passengers is incorrect practice.—Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v Williams, 288 S.W. 425, 116 Tex. 253, answering certified questions, Civ. App, 3 S.W.2d 141

Incomplete instruction

Charge that carriers must exercise very high degree of care in handling passengers was incomplete, and refusal to amend was error.—Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Williams, 288 S W. 425, 116 Tex. 253, answering certified questions, Crv App., 3 S W 2d 141.

76. Fla—Motor Transit Co. v. Studstill, 176 So 769
Md.—American Stores Co. v. Herman, 171 A. 54, 166 Md. 312
Mo—Porter v. Chicago, B. & Q R. Co., 28 S.W 2d 1035, 325 Mo. 381—Parlon v. Wells, 17 S W 2d 528, 322 Mo. 1001—Unterlachner v. Wells, 278 S W. 79.
Tex.—Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Whittington, Civ.App, 292 S.W. 966.
10 C.J. p 1084 note 72.

Instructions held not misleading

(1) In general.
Cal.—Freeman v. Adams, 218 P. 600, 63 Cal App. 225.
Ill—Stanton v Chicago City Ry. Co., 119 N E. 291, 283 Ill. 256, affirming 205 Ill.App 385—Gilberts v. Rockford & L Ry. Co., 215 Ill. App. 324.
Ky—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Ashley, 183 S W 921, 169 Ky 330, L. R.A 1916E 763.
Mo—Grubb v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 230 S W. 675, 207 Mo App. 16.
Utah.—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U. R. Co., 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312
Wash—Duggins v. International Motor Transit Co., 280 P. 50, 153 Wash. 549.
10 C J. p 1084 note 72 [b] (1).

(2) As to injury to boarding passengers.—Witham v. Lusk, Mo App., 190 S.W. 403—10 C.J. p 1084 note 72 [a] (4).

(3) As to injury to alighting passengers.
Ky.—Louisville Taxicab & Transfer Co. v. Hubbard, 97 S.W.2d 411, 265 Ky. 564—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co v. Peel, 214 S.W. 874, 185 Ky. 207.
Mo—Parlon v Wells, 17 S.W 2d 528, 322 Mo. 1001—Roach v. Kansas City Rys Co, App., 228 S.W. 520.
Utah—Barlow v Salt Lake & U. R Co, 194 P 665, 57 Utah 312
10 C J p 1084 note 72 [a] (2)

(4) As to passenger injured by sudden jerks, stops, or movements of cars
U S.—Chesapeake & O. Ry Co. v. Needham, W Va., 244 F. 146, 156 C C A. 574.
Ky.—South Covington & C. St. Ry Co v Moore, 186 S W. 638, 170 Ky 760.

(5) As to passengers injured in collisions
Cal—McKinnon v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 203 P. 122, 55 Cal.App. 96.
Md.—American Stores Co. v. Herman, 171 A. 54, 166 Md 312.
Wash.—McDorman v. Dunn, 172 P 244, 101 Wash. 120.

(6) As to injuries to passengers on station premises—Martin v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., Mo.App., 253 S.W 1083

(7) As to damages—El Paso Electric Co v. Cannon, Tex Civ App, 69 S W 2d 532, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 99 S W.2d 907

(8) Charge denying recovery for street car passenger's injuries if car was operated with "due care."—Bradford v. Birmingham Electric Co., 149 So. 739, 227 Ala. 285.

(9) Instruction charging street railroad with highest degree of care —Birmingham Electric Co. v. Shephard, 110 So. 604, 215 Ala. 316.

(10) Instruction that, if death was caused by defendant's negligence as alleged, and deceased exercised ordinary care, jury should find defendant guilty.—McFarlane v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 123 N E 638, 288 Ill 476, affirming 212 Ill.App. 664.
10 C J. p 1084 note 72 [a].

Instructions held misleading

(1) In general.
Ala—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Holmes, 87 So 574, 205 Ala. 47—O'Brien v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 72 So. 343, 197 Ala. 97.
Conn—Boileau v. Williams, 135 A 429, 121 Conn. 432.
Ind—Pittsburgh, C, C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Arnott, 126 N E 13, 189 Ind 350.
Mo.—Schimmelpfenning v. Wells, 24 S W 2d 154—Laible v. Wells, 296 S W. 428, 317 Mo. 141.
N.J.—Benedetto v Hudson & M. R. Co, 156 A 37, 9 N J.Misc 758.
10 C.J p 1084 note 72 [b] (1).

(2) In actions for injuries sustained while attempting to board a train or car.
Ala—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Cleveland, 113 So. 403, 216 Ala. 455.

tive,[77] or conflicting, inconsistent, or contradictory.[78]

Instructions as a whole. An instruction must be complete in itself; but the charge is to be considered as a whole, and the fact that one part of it, considered separately, might be open to objection ordinarily does not vitiate it, if it is correct in its entirety.[79] An erroneous instruction is not cured by a subsequent contradictory instruction,[80] unless the latter makes direct reference to, and withdraws or qualifies, the erroneous instruction,[81] nor by an instruction which does not correct the fault of the erroneous instruction,[82] or which has no relation to it;[83] and it has been held that each instruction must state the law correctly as far as it goes, and that, if an instruction erroneously stating the law is given, it is reversible error, although the proper limitations are stated in other instructions.[84]

b. Requests for Instructions

In accordance with general rules, an instruction properly requested by a passenger or a carrier as to material matter must be given where not covered by other instructions.

In an action by a passenger against a carrier for personal injuries, as in other actions, it is error to refuse a properly requested instruction on a material matter which is not sufficiently covered by other instructions given.[85] A requested instruction

Mo—Erny v Wells, 293 S W. 119, 316 Mo 798
10 C.J. p 1084 note 72 [b] (3)

(3) In actions for injuries from derailments.—Sinan v. Atchison, T & S. F Ry. Co, 284 P. 1041, 103 Cal.App 703.

(4) In action for injuries from breaking of defective appliances—Mulderig v. Wells, Mo.App., 257 S W. 1060.

(5) As to necessity for assisting passenger.—Texas & P. Ry. Co v Whittington, Tex.Civ App., 292 S W. 966

(6) As to construction and maintenance of station and appurtenances—Seaboard Air Line Ry. Co. v. Pemberton, 79 So. 393, 202 Ala. 55.

(7) As to damages.
Ala—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Mealing, 108 So. 511, 214 Ala. 597.
Mo—Porter v. Chicago, B & Q R Co, 28 S W 2d 1035, 325 Mo. 381.
10 C.J. p 1084 note 72 [b] (8).

(8) Charge susceptible of construction making street railroad liable for injury to passenger, although exercising extraordinary care in furnishing safe place to alight.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Gilbert, 146 S E 33, 39 Ga.App 56, followed in 146 S.E. 34, 39 Ga.App. 58.

(9) Instruction, in stage passenger's action for injuries sustained in intersectional collision with automobile, respecting automobiles on through streets together with instruction on speed, as instructing jury that if stage driver crossed intersection in excess of fifteen miles an hour, he was negligent—Gritsch v. Pickwick Stages System, 22 P 2d 554, 131 Cal App. 774.

(10) In passenger's action for injuries when falling from street car, instruction that, if plaintiff was not thrown by a jolt of the car, but by another person pushing or crowding him, he could not recover, is misleading, in view of fore part of same instruction, telling jury that fact that car was crowded and doors permitted to remain open was not to be considered as any evidence of defendant's negligence—Carlson v. Wells, Mo, 276 S W. 26, 42 A.L R 1319.
10 C J. p 1084 note 72 [b].

77. Tex—Southern Traction Co. v. Ellis, Civ App, 198 S W. 983, dismissed for want of jurisdiction
10 C.J. p 1085 note 73.

78. Ill—See Benson v. Chicago City Ry. Co, 208 Ill App 613.
Or—Stamos v Portland Electric Power Co, 274 P. 915, 128 Or 310.
10 C.J p 1085 note 75.

Instructions held conflicting, inconsistent, or contradictory

(1) Instructions in action for injuries from sudden lurch, which threw passenger from car.—Simmons v. Wells, 20 S.W 2d 659, 323 Mo. 882

(2) An instruction allowing recovery on a passenger's injuries on a finding of negligence based either on a quick and sudden lurch of the train in stopping or on the place and manner and means provided for alighting is inconsistent with another instruction requiring the jury to find for defendant unless they believed that its servants stopped the train with a quick and sudden jerk and unless they further believed that defendant's agents were negligent in carrying plaintiff's wife past the station and having her alight where they did.—Shipley v. Missouri, K. & T Ry. Co. of Texas, 217 S W. 137, 110 Tex. 194, reversing, Civ App., 199 S W. 661.

79. Cal—Gotsch v. Market St. Ry., 265 P 268, 89 Cal.App. 477.
S C.—Jernigan v Atlantic Coast Line R Co, 86 S E. 198, 102 S C. 62.
10 C.J. p 1086 note 78.

Relation of passenger and carrier

Where one of the instructions stated that plaintiff was not a passenger while the train was standing at the station unless actually attempting to board the train or so near the train and in such a position as to indicate his intention to board it, an objection that the instructions as a whole stated that plaintiff was a passenger from the time he went on the station platform was untenable—Riley v. Southern Pac Co, 207 P 699, 57 Cal App. 477.

80. Ind—Indiana Rys. & Light Co. v. Armstrong, 138 N E 830, 79 Ind. App. 486.
10 C.J. p 1087 note 79.

81. Tex.—Missouri, etc, R. Co v. Mills, 65 S.W. 74, 27 Tex Civ App. 245

82. Ind.—Abney v. Indiana Union Tract Co., 83 N E 387, 41 Ind.App. 53.

83. N.C—Wagner v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 61 S E. 171, 147 N.C. 315, 19 L R A,N S, 1028.

84. Ill.—Rabner v. Chicago City R Co., 84 N E. 201, 233 Ill 169, reversing 133 Ill App. 628

85. Conn—Miller v. Connecticut Co., 152 A. 879, 112 Conn. 476.
Ga.—Central of Georgia Ry Co. v Hopkins, 89 S E. 186, 18 Ga.App 230
Neb—Lieb v. Omaha & C., B. St Ry Co., 228 N W. 364, 119 Neb 222.
N.Y.—McKinney v. New York Consol R Co., 129 N E. 652, 230 N.Y. 194, reversing 172 N.Y S 906, 186 App Div. 959—McNamara v New York State Rys, 230 N Y.S 751, 224 App Div. 342—Lieberman v New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 238 N. Y.S. 400, 135 Misc. 834.
Tex—Wright v Schaff, Civ.App, 228 S W. 333
W.Va.—Koon v Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 192 S E. 332.
10 C J. p 1087 note 85.

Requested instructions erroneously refused

(1) Instruction in death case as to motorman's duty to keep proper lookout.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co, 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221.

(2) Instruction, in action by passenger for injuries caused by abusive need not be given in the exact language in which it is requested; it is sufficient if it is covered in substance,[86] and, in the absence of a statute or rule of court prohibiting it, the court may modify a defective or erroneous instruction requested, and give it in its modified form,[87] provided the instruction, as modified, is not an improper statement of the law as applied to the facts of the case.[88] Where a requested instruction contradicts correct and appropriate instructions already given, it is error to give it without modification.[89]

It is not error to refuse a requested instruction on matters already substantially covered by other manner, language, and immodest conduct of an insane negro passenger in same car, that it was the carrier's duty to accept the negro as a passenger—Hines v. Minniard, 86 So. 23, 204 Ala. 514, 12 A L R 238.

(3) Instruction, in action for injuries received by passenger, shoved into position of danger and struck by approaching train, that, if accident was sole result of being forced too close to track by misconduct of other passengers, verdict should be for defendant.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So. 920, 200 Ala. 562.

(4) Instruction, in action for injuries to street car passenger ejected by a third person, that a street car motorman or conductor had no right to interfere with the city police officer in the conduct of his affairs unless it is plain to them that he is the aggressor and is abusing his authority.—Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co. v. Lipscomb, 73 So 962, 198 Ala. 653.

(5) Charge that, even if plaintiff was misled by announcement of station and attempted to get off, yet, if servants and agents of carrier were in exercise of that degree of care due plaintiff, plaintiff could not recover.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Penn, 89 S E. 489, 18 Ga App 431.

(6) Instruction, in action against street railway by girl passenger who jumped from car moving backward down incline, that, if some one other than employees on the car released brakes, plaintiff could not recover.—Delfosse v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, Mo., 201 S.W. 860.

(7) Instruction, in an action for injuries to a passenger caused by sudden jerk of car, that, unless the evidence shows that the jerk was unusual and extraordinary, the verdict must be for the defendant—Fornwalt v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 65 Pa.Super 559.

(8) Instruction, in taxicab passenger's action for injuries sustained because of alleged negligence of driver, that operator of taxicab for hire is a common carrier and is required to exercise highest degree of care for safety of persons who are carried as passengers—Gale v. Independent Taxi Owners Ass'n, 84 F.2d 249, 65 App D C 396.

(9) Instruction, in taxicab passenger's action for injuries sustained because of alleged negligence of driver, that, for a corporation to be liable as a carrier, it is sufficient if the corporation controls one of the instrumentalities essential in carrying on the business of carrying passengers for hire—Gale v. Independent Taxi Owners Ass'n, supra

(10) Instructions that owner owed passenger, injured when leaving elevator, highest degree of care and defining highest care.—McDermed v. Baker, Mo.App, 20 S W.2d 597.

(11) Instruction that carrier is not insurer of safety of passengers and is liable only for negligence—Stofer v. Kansas City Public Service Co, 41 S W.2d 614, 226 Mo.App. 376.

(12) In action for injuries sustained by plaintiff passenger in alighting from a train, the court should have given requested instruction that if, at the time the train on which plaintiff was a passenger started away from the station (plaintiff's destination), plaintiff had not reached the platform of the car in which she was riding, there is a fatal variance between the pleading and the proof, and the verdict must be for defendant.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Williams, 83 So. 63, 203 Ala. 339.

(13) In action for injuries received while boarding street car, where negligence of defendant and contributory negligence of plaintiff were measured by different standards of care, refusal to instruct that, in addition to propriety of plaintiff's conduct by test of ordinary care, defendant was under duty to exercise highest degree of care for safety of persons in transporting and receiving them for passage, was error—Stewart v. St Louis Public Service Co., Mo App, 75 S.W.2d 634.

86. Iowa—Hoffman v. Cedar Rapids, etc., R. Co, 139 N.W 165, 157 Iowa 655, Ann.Cas.1915C 905.
10 C J p 1087 note 86.

87. Mass—Moulton v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 127 N.E. 886, 236 Mass 234.
Mo—Grubb v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 230 S W 675, 207 Mo.App. 16.
10 C.J p 1087 note 87.

Instructions held properly modified

(1) The words, "by a preponderance of the evidence," are properly stricken from the requested instruction in a passenger's action for injury that, to rebut plaintiff's prima facie case from his showing that the taxicab was overturned, defendant must make a certain showing—Dowd v. Atlas Taxicab & Auto Service Co, 202 P. 870, 187 Cal. 523.

(2) Plaintiff, in an action for injury in alighting just after boarding a street car on being informed that it was going to the barn, having testified to a positive agreement with the conductor that the conductor would stop and he would get off there, defendant's requested instruction was properly modified by insertion of the quoted words, so as to read as follows: Even if plaintiff did get on the car and his bundle was kicked therefrom, "in the absence of any agreement to stop, if you so find," this did not require the crew to stop the car to permit plaintiff to alight till it had reached the next regular stopping place.—Chapman v. Kansas City Rys. Co, Mo., 233 S.W. 177.

(3) Instruction that passenger is presumed to have taken risks incidental to automobile traveling was properly modified by words "careful and prudent operation over road he traveled."—Venable v. Gulf Taxi Line, 141 S E. 622, 105 W Va. 156.

88. Mass.—Krock v. Boston El. R. Co., 101 N.E. 968, 214 Mass. 398.
10 C J. p 1087 note 88.

Instruction as modified held correct

Requested instruction, as modified to the effect that, if skidding of bus, causing passenger's injuries, occurred without negligence, passenger cannot recover was correct.—Heidt v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, Mo.App., 9 S W.2d 650

Modification rendering instruction erroneous

Where the issue under the pleadings and evidence was whether plaintiff was thrown from a street car by a sudden jerk or voluntarily stepped off the car, an instruction for defendant, if plaintiff voluntarily stepped off the car while in motion, was erroneously modified by adding "unless . . . it was moving so slowly that it was safe for him to alight," since as modified it presented neither plaintiff's nor defendant's theory of the case—Leonard v United Rys Co of St. Louis, Mo App., 239 S.W. 892.

89. Ark—Steptoe v. St Louis, etc., R. Co., 177 S.W. 417, 119 Ark. 75.

instructions,[90] or to refuse instructions which, as applied to the facts of the case, fail to state the law correctly,[91] or which request a ruling on a particular view of the evidence,[92] or, as shown in subdivision a, are so worded as to be calculated to mislead the jury, or are on immaterial or unessential matters, or on matters not in issue.[93]

90. U S—Frates v. Thomas, C C A Okl., 57 F 2d 535—Omaha & C., B St. Ry. Co. v. McKeeman, Neb, 250 F. 386, 162 C.C A. 456
Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co v Guess, 131 So 883, 222 Ala. 280—Birmingham Electric Co. v Cleveland, 113 So. 403, 216 Ala. 455.
Cal—Lawrence v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 229 P. 885, 68 Cal.App 494.
Ill—See McHatton v. Alton, Granite & St. L Traction Co, 206 Ill.App. 474.
Ind—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Alstadt, 143 N E. 879, 195 Ind. 389.
Mass.—Turner v. Berkshire St. Ry. Co, 198 N.E. 178
Miss.—Gulfport & Mississippi Coast Traction Co. v. Raymond, 128 So. 327, 157 Miss. 439.
N D—Arnold v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S S. M Ry. Co, 228 N.W. 456, 59 N.D. 59.
Tenn.—Memphis St. Ry. v. Felts, 6 Tenn Civ A 303
Tex.—Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Evans, 193 S W. 1067, 108 Tex. 356
Va—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 162 S E 18, 157 Va. 628
10 C J. p 1087 note 90.

Converse of instructions given

In an action against a street railway, where plaintiff passenger's theory was that the car was started before she was clear of it, and defendant's theory was that she fell, after safely alighting from the car, by twisting her foot on the rough edges of the brick street, and there was no evidence of contributory negligence, it was not error to refuse to give an instruction presenting the converse of one given by the court that "the jury will find for defendant, unless they believe from the evidence that when the plaintiff was leaving the car, and before she was clear of the car, the defendant's employés negligently and carelessly started said car, and by reason of such starting of said car the plaintiff was thrown," etc.—South Covington & C. Ry Co. v Goldsmith, 218 S W. 286, 187 Ky. 68

91. U S.—Virginia Public Service Co. v Silver, C C.A Va., 68 F.2d 230—Mendelson v. Davis, C.C A.Neb, 281 F. 18.
Ark.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry Co. v. Daniels, 280 S W. 354, 170 Ark. 346.
Ill.—See Todd v. Chicago City Ry. Co, 197 Ill.App. 544
Mass.—Fournier v Holyoke St. Ry. Co., 154 N E. 546, 258 Mass. 257—Dion v. Drapeau, 150 N E 14, 254 Mass. 186.
Minn.—McMurray v Twin City Motor Bus Co., 228 N W. 154, 178 Minn. 561.
Mo—Thomas v. St Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App, 293 S.W 1051—Mulderig v. Wells, App., 257 S W 1060.
Mont—Garvin v. Butte Electric Ry. Co, 169 P. 40, 54 Mont. 196.
N.J.—Hewitt v. Atlantic & S. Ry. Co, 132 A 500, 4 N J.Misc. 339.
Ohio—Mahoning Valley Ry. Co. v. De Pascale, 71 N E. 633, 70 Ohio St. 179, 65 L R.A. 860—Lake Shore Electric Ry. Co v. Ordway, 156 N. E. 235, 24 Ohio App. 317.
Tenn—Memphis St Ry. v. Felts, 6 Tenn.Civ.A 303.
Tex.—Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Kappe, Civ.App, 235 S W. 253, error refused.
Vt—Stewart v. Barre & Montpelier Traction & Power Co, 111 A. 526, 94 Vt 398.
Va—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co v. Jackson, 162 S.E. 18, 157 Va. 628
Wash—Bradley v. City of Seattle, 294 P. 554, 160 Wash. 100.
W.Va.—Venable v. Gulf Taxi Line, 141 S E 622, 105 W.Va. 156.
10 C.J p 1088 note 91.

Instructions held properly refused

(1) In actions for injuries to a boarding passenger—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Wood, 130 So. 786, 222 Ala. 103.

(2) In actions for injuries received by passenger alighting from car
U S.—Virginia Public Service Co. v. Silver, C C A.Va, 68 F.2d 230.
Ky.—Louisville Ry Co. v. Branham, 88 S.W.2d 968, 261 Ky. 748.
Mo.—Taylor v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 279 S.W. 115, 311 Mo. 604—Rogers v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 204 S.W. 595.

(3) As to duty to furnish a safe place for passengers to alight.—Checker Cab & Baggage Co. v. Harrison, 87 S.W.2d 32, 191 Ark. 564.

(4) In actions for injuries resulting from acts of fellow passengers.
Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Driver, 166 So. 701, 232 Ala. 36.
Mo—Grubb v Kansas City Rys Co., 230 S W. 675, 207 Mo App. 16

(5) Requested instructions in collision cases.
Cal—Carnahan v. Motor Transit Co., 224 P. 143, 65 Cal.App. 402.
N H.—Giguere v. Boston & M. R. R., 167 A 561, 86 N H. 294.
Okl.—Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Bolin, 232 P 105, 105 Okl. 142
Pa—Moraski v Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 142 A 276, 293 Pa. 224.

(6) In actions for injuries to elevator passenger—O'Neill & Co. v Crummitt, 190 A 763, 172 Md. 697.

(7) Prayer as to right of way at time of taxicab accident.—Stewart Taxi-Service Co v. Spencer, 132 A. 153, 149 Md. 635.

(8) In an action by a passenger injured by contact with a trolley pole, an instruction to the effect that in order to find for plaintiff the jury must find that the pole "unnecessarily and negligently imperiled the safety of passengers," was properly refused, as requiring that, in addition to negligence, the jury must find that defendant unnecessarily imperiled the safety of plaintiff.—Capital Traction Co. v. Copland, 47 App. D C. 152

(9) In action for injuries to minor while riding in defendant's automobile, with passenger who had hired vehicle, refusal of instruction that, if plaintiff was guest or gratuitous passenger, she could not recover, unless defendant was guilty of gross negligence, was not error, when, as a matter of law, on the evidence plaintiff was a passenger for hire—Dion v. Drapeau, 150 N.E. 14, 254 Mass. 186.

(10) Where injury was received when alterations were under way, it was not error to refuse to instruct that defendant was not required to give notice of space between platform and car, due to temporary condition, and that if space was only ten inches, plaintiff could not recover—Harrington v Boston Elevated Ry Co, 118 N E. 880, 229 Mass 421, 2 A.L.R 1057.

Refusal to read statute

In taxicab passenger's action for injuries sustained when taxicab was struck by overtaking automobile as passenger was alighting, based on taxicab driver's alleged negligence in stopping where it was unlikely that overtaking vehicle would be able to pass to left or to stop, refusing to read to jury statute forbidding parking of vehicles so that there was not fifteen feet free space of pavement to left is not error—Paulos v. Koelsch, 263 N W. 913, 195 Minn. 603

92. Mass—Neelon v. Hirsh & Renner, 151 N.E 302, 255 Mass. 285.

93. Iowa.—Stutsman v Des Moines City Ry Co., 163 N.W. 580, 180 Iowa 524.
N J—Rapp v. Butler-Newark Bus Line, 138 A. 377, 103 N.J.Law 512, affirmed 140 A. 921, 104 N.J.Law 444
Tex.—Eastern Texas Electric Co. v.

c. Invading Province of Jury

In an action by a passenger against a carrier for personal injuries, the instructions given must not take from the jury matters proper for their consideration and determination.

Issues of fact submitted to the jury must be by instructions which clearly and fully state and define such issues.[94] Proper evidence bearing on the liability of the carrier, introduced without objection, should not be withdrawn or excluded from the jury's consideration;[95] and an instruction is erroneous which invades the province of the jury,[96] as where it withdraws or excludes a material issue of fact from the jury,[97] as by assuming, as a matter of law, the existence or nonexistence of material facts in issue,[98] or by assuming or charging that certain facts do or do not constitute negligence.[99] An instruction is also erroneous which unduly emphasizes a particular fact in issue.[1] However, an instruction which defines the duty or degree of care required of the carrier and leaves the facts of the case to be found by the jury, and also leaves them to say whether the facts found constitute negligence as defined, is not objectionable as withdrawing that issue from the jury.[2] So, an instruction which assumes or charges that certain acts made negligence by law,[3] or on which the facts are unequivocal,[4] constitute negligence, or which assumes as a matter of law a fact which is of common knowledge[5] or which is declared by a provision of a statute or constitution,[6] is not erroneous.

d. Conformity to Pleadings and Evidence

Instructions in an action by a passenger against a carrier for personal injuries must conform and be confined to the issues made by the pleadings and the evidence.

The instructions must conform and be confined to the issues made by the pleadings and evidence, and on which the case has been tried.[7] An instruction

Kappe, Civ.App., 235 S.W. 253, error refused.
10 C J p 1088 note 93.

94. Ill.—West Chicago St. R. Co v. McCafferty, 77 N.E. 153, 220 Ill. 476.
10 C J. p 1088 note 95.

95. Ohio.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Wiesenberger, 15 Ohio App. 437.

96. Cal.—Pilcher v. Tanner Motor Livery, 33 P.2d 58, 138 Cal.App. 558.
10 C J. p 1088 note 96.

97. Wis.—Ferguson v. Truax, 110 N. W. 395, 111 N W. 657, 112 N W. 513, 132 Wis. 478, 14 L.R A.,N.S., 350, 13 Ann.Cas. 1092.
10 C J. p 1088 note 97.

Instructions held erroneous

(1) In action by passengers injured when car of livery corporation collided with automobile at street intersection, instruction that driver of car was negligent as matter of law for violating speed law was reversible error in view of evidence, excessive verdict, and statute imposing on passengers burden of establishing that violation of speed law constituted negligence.—Pilcher v. Tanner Motor Livery, 33 P.2d 58, 138 Cal. App. 558.

(2) Instruction relating to whether plaintiff was passenger and circumstances warranting recovery.—Gulf, M. & N. R Co. v. Bradley, 142 So. 493, 167 Miss. 603.

(3) Instruction, directing finding for plaintiff if defendant failed during cold and chilly weather to keep waiting room warm for one hour before arrival of train or if it so failed to furnish heat at other time while depot was kept open for accommodation of public, is error, where evidence as to necessity of heat was conflicting—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry Co v. Williams, Tex.Com App., 268 S W 149, reversing, Civ App , 251 S.W. 553.

98. Ark.—St. Louis, etc , R. Co. v. Bostic, 180 S.W. 988, 181 S W. 135, 121 Ark 295.
10 C.J. p 1089 note 98.

99. Mass.—Plummer v. Boston El. R Co , 84 N E 849, 198 Mass. 499.
10 C.J. p 1089 note 99.

1. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dunbar, 108 S W. 500, 49 Tex.Civ. App. 12.
10 C J. p 1089 note 1.

2. Iowa—McGovern v. Interurban R Co., 111 N.W. 412, 136 Iowa 13, 125 Am.S.R. 215, 13 L R.A.,N.S., 476.
10 C J. p 1089 note 2.

3. Mo—Fields v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 155 S.W. 845, 169 Mo.App. 624
10 C.J p 1089 note 3.

4. Ill.—Chicago City R. Co v. Carroll, 68 N E. 1087, 206 Ill. 318, affirming 102 Ill.App. 202.
10 C.J p 1089 note 4.

5. Mass.—Lindenbaum v. New York, etc., R. Co., 84 N.E 129, 197 Mass. 314.

6. Tex.—Duck v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co , Civ.App., 63 S W. 891.
10 C J p 1089 note 6.

7. Mo.—Collins v. Wells, 30 S W. 2d 28, 325 Mo 736
Tex.—Payne v. Kindel, Civ.App , 239 S.W. 1011.
10 C.J. p 1089 note 8.

Where a complaint fails to state a cause of action, an instruction entitling an injured passenger to recover, if proving averment in the complaint, is error—Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction Co v Scott, 150 N E 777, 197 Ind 587, 43 A L R 1029

Instructions held proper under pleadings and evidence

(1) Generally

U S.—Memphis St. Ry. Co. v. Pierce, Tenn , 257 F. 659, 168 C C.A. 609
Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Shelton, 163 So. 633, 231 Ala. 110
Cal.—Rystinki v. Central California Traction Co , 165 P. 952, 175 Cal 336—Baker v. Market St Ry. Co , 11 P 2d 912, 123 Cal App. 688.
D.C.—Washington & O D Ry. Co v Smith, 289 F. 582, 53 App.D C. 184.
Ga.—Atlanta & W. P. R Co. v. Reese, 110 S E 750, 28 Ga App. 275.
Ill.—Panor v. Northwestern Elevated R Co., 228 Ill App. 162.
Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St L Ry. Co v. Arnott, 135 N E 365, 80 Ind App. 40.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Priddy, 71 S.W.2d 39, 254 Ky. 173.
Md.—Damico v. Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co., 148 A. 821, 158 Md. 470.
Miss.—Pickwick Greyhound Lines v. Silver, 125 So. 340, 155 Miss. 765.
Mo.—Kirkpatrick v. Wells, 6 S.W.2d 591, 319 Mo. 1040—Roberts v. Schaper Stores Co., 3 S W 2d 241, 318 Mo. 1190—Hulen v. Wheelock, 300 S.W. 479, 318 Mo 502—Sugarwater v Fleming, 293 S.W. 111, 316 Mo. 742—Taylor v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 279 S.W. 115, 311 Mo. 604—Hartnett v. May Department Stores Co., App., 85 S.W.2d 644—Irby v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 82 S W 2d 118—Koenig v. St. Louis Public Service Co , App , 45 S W 2d 896—Myerson v. People's Motorbus Co. of St Louis, App , 297 S W. 455—Ownby v. Kansas City Rys.

Co., App, 228 S W 879—Paul v Dunham, App, 214 S W. 263—Witham v. Lusk, App., 190 S W. 403.
Neb—Fielding v. Publix Cars, 277 N W 331.
N J.—McClure v. Public Service Ry. Co, 132 A 236, 4 N J Misc. 177.
N C—Welch v Independent Coach Line, 150 S E 717, 198 N.C 130.
Ohio—Jones v. Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co, 12 N E 2d 279, 133 Ohio St 118—Steinman v. Cleveland Ry. Co, 155 N E 149, 23 Ohio App. 448.
Pa.—Montalini v. Pennsylvania Co., 100 A. 806, 256 Pa 249
Tex—Panhandle & S F. Ry. Co. v. Jones, Civ App, 105 S W.2d 443—El Paso Electric Co v. Cannon, Civ.App, 69 S W.2d 532, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 99 S W 2d 907—San Antonio Public Service Co. v. Wellman, Civ.App, 288 S.W 582—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co of Texas v McMichael, Civ App., 191 S W. 186, error refused Wash.—Poropat v. Olympic Peninsula Motor Coach Co, 299 P. 979, 163 Wash 78—Osborne v. Galusha, 254 P. 1086 143 Wash. 127—Hayes v Staples, 225 P. 417, 129 Wash. 436.
W Va—Venable v. Gulf Taxi Line, 141 S E 622, 105 W Va 156.
10 C J. p 1089 note 8 [a] (1).

(2) As to persons accompanying passengers—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R Co, Mo, 50 S W.2d 122.

(3) As to passengers assaulted by employees of carrier.—State ex rel. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis v. Allen, Mo, 240 S.W 117

(4) As to duty to treat passenger courteously—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v Deaton, 137 S.E. 500, 147 Va 576.

(5) As to boarding passengers
Cal—Hellman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 27 P 2d 946, 135 Cal App. 627, rehearing denied 28 P.2d 384, 135 Cal.App. 627—Lynch v. Market St. Ry. Co., 19 P.2d 1009, 130 Cal App. 433.
Mich—Sullivan v. Detroit United Ry, 182 N.W. 33, 213 Mich. 679.
Mo.—Pietzuk v. Kansas City Rys. Co, 232 S W. 987, 289 Mo 135—Paul v. Dunham, App, 214 S W. 263
N J—Nogrady v. Erie R. Co, 144 A. 803, 105 N.J.Law 396.
10 C J p 1089 note 8 [a] (2).

(6) As to alighting passengers.
Ala—Southern Ry. Co. v. Laxson, 114 So 288, 22 Ala.App. 180, reversed 114 So. 290, 217 Ala. 1, 55 A L.R. 385
Cal—Baker v Market St. Ry. Co., 11 P.2d 912, 123 Cal App. 688.
Ga.—Hines v. Hendricks, 104 S E 520, 25 Ga App. 682.
Ill.—Paris v. East St. Louis Ry. Co, 275 Ill.App. 241.
Ky—Louisville Ry. Co. v Branham, 88 S W 2d 968, 261 Ky. 748—Chesapeake & O Ry. Co. v Smith, 83 S W.2d 488, 259 Ky. 821—Louisville & N. R. Co v. Burk, 268 S.W 844, 207 Ky 1
Mo—Took v Wells, 53 S.W 2d 389, 331 Mo 249—Collins v. Wells, 30 S W 2d 28, 325 Mo. 736—Parlon v Wells, 17 S W 2d 528, 322 Mo 1001—Moss v Wells, 249 S W. 411—Gilmartin v Wells, App., 56 S.W.2d 623—Lay v Wells, App, 274 S W 933—Higbee v Fleming, App., 269 S W 673—Brooks v. Union Depot Bridge & Terminal R Co, 258 S W. 724, 215 Mo App. 643—Lass v. Kansas City Rys. Co, App., 233 S W 70—Tillery v. Harvey, App, 214 S.W 246—Bond v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co, App, 204 S W. 934
N C—Graham v. Norfolk-Southern R Co, 93 S E 428, 174 N C 1.
Okl—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry Co v. Forrester, 177 P. 593, 72 Okl. 8, 8 A.L R 163
Tex.—Texas & N. O. Ry Co. v. Rooks, Com App, 292 S.W 536, affirming, Civ App, 283 S W. 622, and rehearing denied, Com App, 293 S W. 554—Texas & N. O. R Co. v McNeill, Civ App, 270 S W 1038
Utah—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U. R Co., 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312
Va—Virginia Ry. & Power Co v. Taylor, 132 S.E. 334, 144 Va 496.
Wash—Alstead v. Kapper, 236 P 799, 135 Wash. 21.
10 C J. p 1089 note 8 [a] (3).

(7) As to whether passenger injured when alighting from street car was still a passenger—Virginia Ry & Power Co v. Taylor, supra.

(8) As to when plaintiff became a passenger.—Atlanta Northern Ry. Co v. Brown, 125 S E 465, 159 Ga 212, reversing Brown v Atlanta Northern Ry. Co, 120 S.E 677, 31 Ga App. 429, vacated 125 S.E 795, 33 Ga.App. 194.

(9) As to injury by derailment.
Ark—Fourche River Valley & I T Ry. Co. v. Camp, 214 S.W. 35, 139 Ark 406.
Iowa.—Kelly v Muscatine, B & S. R. Co, 191 N.W. 525, 195 Iowa 17.
10 C.J. p 1089 note 8 [a] (4).

(10) As to injury by collision.
Cal—McKinnon v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 203 P. 122, 55 Cal App 96.
Ind—Yellow Cab Co. v. Kruszynski, App, 196 N.E. 136.
Ky—Louisville & Interurban R. Co v. Kerr, 287 S W 926, 216 Ky 407.
Mo.—Keyes v Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co, 31 S W.2d 50, 326 Mo. 236—Morris v. Union Depot Bridge & Terminal R. Co, 8 S.W 2d 11, 320 Mo 371—Hulen v Wheelock, 300 S. W. 479, 318 Mo. 502—Varley v. Columbia Taxicab Co,, 240 S.W 218—Bergfeld v Kansas City Rys Co., 227 S.W. 106, 285 Mo. 654—McGinnis v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App, 44 S W 2d 886—Alewel v East St. Louis & S Ry. Co., App., 26 S.W.2d 869—Johnson v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App, 233 S W. 942.
R.I.—Keefe v. United Electric Rys Co, 195 A 599.

(11) As to injuries from sudden jerks, jolts or movements of cars
Ark.—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v Graves, 75 S.W.2d 57, 189 Ark 743—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry Co. v Britton, 31 S W 2d 756, 182 Ark. 437.
Ga—Georgia Ry & Power Co. v Murphy, 110 S.E. 680, 28 Ga.App 173.
Mo.—Connor v. Kansas City Rys Co., 250 S W. 574, 298 Mo. 18—Laycock v United Rys. Co of St Louis, 235 S W 91, 290 Mo. 344, answering certified questions, App, 227 S.W 883—Weise v. Harrison, App., 89 S W 2d 148—Dunn v. Alton R Co, App, 88 S.W 2d 224—Beurskens v Dunham, App., 193 S W. 855.
N J—McClure v. Public Service Ry Co, 132 A 236, 4 N J.Misc 177

(12) As to injuries on escalator—Hartnett v. May Department Stores Co, supra.

(13) As to injury from failure to heat waiting room.—Texas & P. Ry Co. v. Shaw Tex Civ App, 218 S W 814, dismissed for want of jurisdiction—Chicago, R I & G. Ry Co v. Faulkner, Tex Civ App., 194 S W 651.

(14) As to accidental injury.—Holmes v. Georgia Power Co, 162 S. E 403, 44 Ga App. 533, reversed on other grounds Georgia Power Co. v. Holmes, 165 S.E 284, 175 Ga 487, conformed to Holmes v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S E 918, 45 Ga.App 826.

(15) In an action against a carrier for injuries to a passenger in ejecting another passenger.—Frazier v. Public Service Ry Co, 123 A 867, 99 N J.Law 501, 1 N J.Misc. 361.

(16) Charge that, if alleged injury to passenger was an accident, he could not recover, was not error, where authorized by the evidence in the case.—Hill v. Chattanooga Ry & Light Co., 93 S E. 1027, 21 Ga. App. 104.

(17) Under the passenger's evidence that he knew the country around his station, and, after such station was called, went on the platform as the train slowed down, but that, without stopping, it suddenly accelerated its speed in rounding a curve past the station, and threw him off, the court should base recovery on the sudden acceleration of speed.—Louisville & N. R. Co v. Bland, 188 S.W. 468, 171 Ky. 424
10 C.J. p 1089 note 8 [a].

is erroneous or properly refused which is not confined to, and in conformity with, issues made by the pleadings and evidence,[8] as where the instruction requested or given is abstract,[9] or charges on a theory not put in issue by the pleadings,[10] or not supported by the evidence,[11] which requires a find-

8. N Y —Goodheart v. American Airlines, 1 N Y S 2d 288, 252 App Div. 660
Tex.—San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co v. Wiuvar, Civ App., 257 S W. 667
10 C J. p 1091 note 9.

Instructions held erroneous under the pleadings and evidence

(1) Generally.

Ala —Alabama Power Co v. Maddox, 151 So. 575, 227 Ala 628.
Ark.—Davis v. Kelly, 237 S.W. 698, 152 Ark. 151.
Ga.—Southern Ry. Co v. Smallwood, 99 S E. 539, 23 Ga.App. 810.
Mass.—Revsbech v Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 175 N E. 734, 275 Mass 317—Neelon v. Hirsh & Renner, 151 N.E. 302, 255 Mass. 285.
Mo.—Unterlachner v Wells, 278 S.W. 79—Thomas v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, App, 293 S.W. 1051 —Hellar v Kansas City Rys Co., App, 237 S.W. 811—Shaffer v. St. Louis & S. F Ry. Co, 208 S.W 145, 201 Mo.App. 107.
N J.—Benedetto v. Hudson & M R Co., 156 A. 37, 9 N J.Misc. 758.
N.Y.—O'Brien v. New York Rys Co, 174 N Y.S 116, 185 App.Div 867—Murphy v. Hudson & M R Co, 167 N.Y S. 895, 180 App.Div. 585—Saperstein v Schrenkeisen, 161 N. Y.S. 289, 97 Misc 363.
Ohio.—Palm v. Community Traction Co, 167 N E 604, 32 Ohio App. 89.
Or.—Perry v. Pickwick Stages of Oregon, 243 P 787, 117 Or. 598.
Tex.—Texas & P. Ry Co. v. Perkins, Civ.App, 284 S.W. 683.
10 C J. p 1091 note 9 [a] (1).

(2) As to injury to a boarding passenger.

Cal.—Wallden v. Market St. Ry. Co, 9 P.2d 602, 121 Cal App. 647—Starkey v. Market St. Ry. Co, 265 P. 839, 90 Cal.App. 249—Ginochio v. City and County of San Francisco, 206 P. 763, 57 Cal App 150.
Ga.—Jones v Western & A. R Co, 99 S.E 388, 23 Ga.App. 725.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R Co. v Kilburn, 113 S.W.2d 844, 272 Ky. 44.
Mo.—Maloney v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 237 S W. 509—Stephens v. Mobile & O. R. Co., App, 285 S.W. 151—Lairson v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App, 232 S.W. 484.
10 C.J. p 1091 note 9 [a] (2).

(3) As to injuries to an alighting passenger

Mo —Engle v. St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co, App., 44 S W. 2d 175—Green v. Chicago, B. & Q. R Co, 251 S.W. 931, 213 Mo.App. 583—Roach v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App, 228 S.W. 520—Chapman v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 217 S W. 623—Tillery v. Harvey, App., 214 S W 246.
Or.—Carlson v. Portland Ry, Light & Power Co., 254 P. 809, 121 Or. 519.
Tex —Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. v Nichols, Civ.App, 254 S W. 515.
10 C.J p 1091 note 9 [a] (3).

(4) In actions for injuries resulting from collisions.

Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Mealing, 108 So 511, 214 Ala 597
Ky.—B-Line Cab Co. v. Lake, 110 S. W.2d 1083, 270 Ky. 763—Consolidated Coach Corporation v. Garmon, 26 S W.2d 20, 233 Ky. 464—Louisville & Interurban R. Co. v. Kerr, 287 S W. 926, 216 Ky. 407.
Mo.—Lass v. Kansas City Rys Co, App, 233 S W. 70
N.Y —Roach v Yonkers R. Co, 271 N Y.S 289, 243 App Div. 195.
Ohio —Canton Motor Coach v. Hall, 189 N.E. 505, 46 Ohio App 516.

(5) Where a commuter, while standing between tracks after signaling approaching north-bound train to stop, was struck by overhang of south-bound locomotive, court properly omitted to instruct on last clear chance doctrine, since it did not necessarily appear that from plaintiff's position between tracks defendant's employees had such knowledge of plaintiff's peril as to make doctrine applicable —Ferran v. Southern Pac. Co., 44 P.2d 533, 3 Cal 2d 350.

(6) Where the petition by a female passenger, who claimed she was directed to ride in the smoker and was therein insulted by other passengers, did not claim that the smoking of the other passengers in the car was offensive, or that she so informed the conductor, it was error for the instructions to allow the jury to award damages for the smoking —Payne v. Combs, 249 S W. 1031, 198 Ky. 749.

(7) In a shopper's action against store owner for injuries sustained while leaving an elevator, refusal of prayer to effect that shopper should have anticipated likelihood of operator's suddenly lowering elevator as she was stepping out is not error, under evidence —O'Neill & Co. v. Crummitt, Md, 190 A. 763.
10 C.J. p 1091 note 9

9. N.Y.—Richardson v. Nassau Electric R Co, 180 N.Y.S. 109, 190 App. Div. 529.
10 C J. p 1085 note 74.

Instructions held not erroneous as abstract

(1) Instruction defining negligence, in suit by passenger for injury to eye by flying glass allegedly due to railroad's negligence.—Baldwin v Wingfield, 85 S.W.2d 689, 191 Ark. 129.

(2) Instruction defining carrier's duty to passengers, in action for personal injuries by intending passenger who boarded car not in service —Damico v. Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co, 148 A 821, 153 Md. 470.

(3) In an action for injuries to plaintiff while boarding a car of defendant railroad where there was evidence that he was not near the car at the time he claimed to have been injured, and did not call a doctor for four months, or notify the railroad of his injury until still later, an instruction that the fact he was injured at some time was not proof that he was injured at the time and in the manner he claimed, was not erroneous, as not supported by evidence.—Ulrich v Chicago, B & Q. R. Co, 220 S W. 682, 281 Mo. 697.

(4) It was duty of railroad conductor and its servants in charge of train to exercise highest degree of care and diligence in conserving safety of passenger, and it was responsible for slightest negligence on part of its servants proximately causing injuries to a passenger; and charge to that effect was not abstract in action for injuries to minor whose evidence showed he was commanded by conductor to put heavy suitcase in rack —Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Thomas, 104 So. 559, 20 Ala App. 617.

Illustrative instructions

An instruction on the comparative degree of care required by a carrier of goods and a carrier of persons, given for the purpose of comparison and illustration, is not erroneous although such matter was not in issue —Wilkinson v. Phoenix Ry. Co of Arizona, 236 P. 704, 28 Ariz. 216

10. Mo —Vulgamott v. Hines, App, 229 S W 394.
N.J —Gilliard v Public Service Ry. Co, 110 A. 688, 94 N J Law 288.
10 C J. p 1092 note 10.

11. Mo.—Maloney v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 237 S W. 509—Reel v Consolidated Inv Co, 236 S.W. 43 —Oesch v St. Louis Public Service Co., 59 S W.2d 758, 228 Mo. App 1055.
Neb.—Tighe v Interstate Transit Lines, 263 N.W. 483, 130 Neb 5.
Tex —El Paso Electric Co. v. Cannon, Civ App, 69 S.W.2d 532, reversed on other grounds, Com App, 99 S.W.2d 907—Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co v. Kidwell, Civ.App., 249

ing on an immaterial issue,[12] or which ignores or omits to charge on a material element or material matter in issue,[13] or disregards or ignores a material part of the evidence.[14]

An instruction is not erroneous because it fails to instruct as to immaterial matters.[15]

As a passenger suing a carrier is not obliged to go to the jury on each and every charge or theory of negligence embodied in his petition, but may abandon such as he chooses, defendant cannot complain of an instruction, otherwise proper, which omits a requirement of a finding of a particular fact alleged in the petition.[16]

e. Instructions as to Proximate Cause of Injury

The jury must be properly instructed on the necessity of the negligence or wrong of the carrier charged in the declaration or complaint being the proximate cause of the passenger's injury.

In stating the conditions authorizing a recovery, the instructions must include the condition that the negligence or wrong charged in the declaration or complaint was the proximate cause of the injury,[17]

S.W. 303, certified questions answered, Com.App., 245 S.W. 667, 112 Tex. 89—American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Nussbaum, Civ.App., 230 S.W. 1102, dismissed for want of jurisdiction—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Courtney, Civ.App., 214 S.W. 839, dismissed for want of jurisdiction—Bird v. Schaff, Civ. App., 206 S.W. 711.

10 C.J. p. 1092 note 11.

Instructions held erroneous as not supported by the evidence

(1) In an action against a railroad for assault by its employee, an instruction on assault by employee, in view of the absence of testimony of any abuse or assault by any employee of defendant in the line of his duty.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Kellogg, 262 S.W. 675, 164 Ark. 548.

(2) Instruction basing verdict for defendant bus company on finding that passenger, injured in descending from bus, alighted before driver had reasonable opportunity to offer assistance.—Mahaney v. Kansas City, Clay County & St. Joseph Auto Transit Co., 46 S.W.2d 817, 329 Mo. 793.

(3) Instruction, in substance, authorizing verdict for defendant if collision between street car and truck was result of unavoidable accident, unmixed with negligence, where the evidence negatived unavoidable accident.—American Stores Co. v. Herman, 171 A. 54, 166 Md. 312.

(4) An instruction submitting to the jury the question whether the failure to equip a street car with a rear-view mirror was negligence, and whether such negligence contributed to the injury of a passenger who fell from the moving car, was erroneous, where the evidence was insufficient to show either that the omission to install such equipment was negligence or that it contributed to plaintiff's injury.—Marovich v. Central California Traction Co., 216 P. 595, 191 Cal. 295.

(5) Instruction that if station agent or "any other employee," pushed plaintiff from car, he could recover, is prejudicially erroneous, where testimony was that he had been pushed by station agent.—Krasnicki v. Boston & M. R. R., 117 N.E. 348, 228 Mass. 354.

Instructions held not improper

(1) Instruction to find for passenger, if passenger was kicked by railroad employee, is not error because the evidence showed employee used knee in pushing passenger.—Morton v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 20 S.W.2d 34, 323 Mo. 929.

(2) Instruction to find for passenger if he was violently thrown into toilet room by railroad employee is not error, for want of evidence that plaintiff was thrown, under evidence that passenger was pushed into room.—Morton v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., supra.

12. Mo.—Chapman v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 217 S.W. 290.

13. Ala.—Tennessee, A. & G. Ry. Co. v. Rossell, 88 So. 362, 18 Ala. App. 17.
Ark.—Meeks v. Graysonia, N. & A. R. Co., 272 S.W. 360, 168 Ark. 966.
Mo.—Hellar v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 237 S.W. 811—Murdock v. Dunham, App., 206 S.W. 915.
Ohio—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Hill, 12 Ohio App. 125.
Tex.—San Antonio Public Service Co. v. Wellman, Civ.App., 288 S.W. 582—Wichita Falls, R. & Fort Worth R. Co. v. Baker, Civ.App., 242 S.W. 273—Wright v. Schaff, Civ.App., 228 S.W. 333.

10 C.J. p. 1093 note 12.

Instructions held erroneous

(1) A carrier must exercise the highest degree of practical care and diligence in the protection of its passengers from accident, but is held to only ordinary care where the person injured is not a passenger, and hence an instruction, in an action for death by accident, charging the highest degree of care, when whether deceased was in fact a passenger was an issue in the case, was erroneous.—Carr v. Fagan, 123 A. 492, 278 Pa. 587.

(2) In action against street railway for injuries received on station platform, based on theory that relation between defendant and plaintiff had been that of carrier and passenger, instruction charging defendant with duty of exercising highest degree of care, without requiring jury to find that relation of carrier to passenger must have existed at time of accident, is erroneous.—Banks v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 217 S.W. 488, 280 Mo. 227.

14. Mo.—Scheipers v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 298 S.W. 51—Blackford v. St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co., 21 S.W.2d 491, 223 Mo.App. 1194.

10 C.J. p. 1093 note 13.

15. Mo.—Stephens v. Mobile & O. R. Co., App., 285 S.W. 151—Findley v. Wells, App., 260 S.W. 506—McDermott v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 236 S.W. 1080.

10 C.J. p. 1093 note 14.

16. Mo.—Dunn v. Alton R. Co., App., 88 S.W.2d 224.

17. Cal.—Gritsch v. Pickwick Stages System, 22 P.2d 554, 131 Cal.App. 774.
Conn.—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., 160 A. 307, 115 Conn. 80.
Ky.—McGraw v. Ayers, 58 S.W.2d 378, 248 Ky. 166.
Md.—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A. 4, 158 Md. 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md. 424, and appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S.Ct. 40, 282 U.S. 801, 75 L.Ed. 720.
Mo.—Kirkpatrick v. Wells, 6 S.W.2d 591, 319 Mo. 1040—Tueteberg v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 41 S.W.2d 956—Whitlow v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 282 S.W. 525, certiorari quashed State ex rel. St. Louis & San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Daues, 290 S.W. 425, 316 Mo. 474.

10 C.J. p. 1093 note 15.

Instructions held proper

(1) An instruction, if the injuries were sustained as the proximate consequence of a mere accident, to find for the carrier, is proper, since it must be interpreted as excluding culpable negligence.—O'Brien v. Birand should define "proximate cause";[18] but it has been held that as the words "proximate cause" have a well defined meaning as being the nearest or the closest in place and time, an instruction which employs these words is not bad because it omits further to define the meaning thereof.[19] An instruction is erroneous which authorizes a recovery on a finding of negligence on the part of defendant without regard to whether such negligence was the cause of the injury complained of,[20] or without regard to the question of plaintiff's contributory negligence, where the existence of such negligence is put in issue.[21] Likewise, an instruction is erroneous which requires that plaintiff show that the carrier's negligence was one or more of the proximate causes of the injury,[22] or permits the jury to find that certain acts constituted causal negligence when they were in fact merely incidental.[23]

f. Instructions as to Presumptions and Burden of Proof

The jury must be instructed properly as to the presumptions and the burden of proof applicable to the particular case; and in a proper case appropriate instructions as to the application of the res ipsa loquitur doctrine to injuries sustained by passengers should be given.

The court must correctly instruct the jury on the law as to the presumptions and burden of proof applicable to the facts of the case.[24] When the mingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 72 So. 343, 197 Ala. 97.

(2) Instruction authorizing recovery for injury to street car passenger, unless sole proximate cause was something other than street railroad's negligence, is not prejudicially erroneous—Jenkins v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 275 P. 136, 127 Kan. 821.

In actions against carrier and others

(1) In passenger's action against proprietor of stage and driver of an automobile for injuries sustained when the stage tipped over in avoiding the automobile, instructions that, if injuries were proximate result of combination of negligent acts, it was unnecessary to inquire into their relation in period of time, or whether they were concurrent, successive, "or independent," or whether one proximately contributed to the result more than the other, might better have omitted the quoted words.—Freeman v. Adams, 218 P. 600, 63 Cal.App. 225.

(2) In trolley car passenger's action for the injuries against the carrier and a motorist, instruction that if motorist's act was proximate cause of accident verdict must be for defendant carrier is properly refused.—Miller v. Connecticut Co., 152 A. 879, 112 Conn. 476.

(3) In a taxicab passenger's action for injuries against the taxicab company and one whose automobile collided with the taxicab, instructions authorizing a verdict against each defendant if both defendants violated a speed ordinance, and as a direct result thereof the taxicab and automobile collided and plaintiff was injured, did not authorize a recovery unless the violation of the ordinance was the direct cause of the injury—Varley v. Columbia Taxicab Co., Mo., 240 S.W. 218.

(4) In action against owner of building for injuries to plaintiff when freight elevator started, in view of evidence that plaintiff or his fellow employee inadvertently started car, the court should have charged on owner's request that, if either of them, or the table they were carrying caused elevator lever to move, and car to start, verdict must be for defendant, and that, if sole proximate cause of accident was act of helper and other employee, verdict must be for owner—Courtney v. Gainsborough Studios, 174 N.Y.S. 855, 186 App.Div. 820

(5) Failure to charge that truck driver's attempt to pass street car from rear was proximate cause of collision with approaching street car, causing injuries to passenger therein, is not error, where it was at most a concurrent cause.—Riff v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 148 A. 102, 298 Pa. 256.

18. Ohio.—Kelley v. Ohio Traction Co., 157 N.E. 765, 24 Ohio App. 539.
10 C.J. p 1093 note 16.

Definition held proper or not objectionable

An instruction that "proximate cause" was one which by unbroken and continuous sequence produced a result, or from which such result might reasonably have been foreseen or anticipated "by a very careful, cautious, and prudent person," is not objectionable for use of quoted language—Dallas Ry. Co. v. Hallum, Tex.Civ.App., 276 S.W. 460.

Definition of "proximate cause" held erroneous because not applying standard of ordinary care and prudence to element of foreseeableness—South Plains Coaches v. Behringer, Tex.Civ.App., 32 S.W.2d 959, error dismissed.

Effect of criminal statute

That a driver was running bus, at time of collision injuring passenger, in excess of speed specified in criminal statutes did not affect question of propriety of charge defining proximate cause which did not apply standard of ordinary care to element of foreseeableness—South Plains Coaches v. Behringer, Tex.Civ.App., 32 S.W.2d 959, error dismissed.

19. W.Va.—Brogan v. Union Tract. Co., 86 S.E. 753.

20. Cal.—Brizzolari v. Market St. Ry. Co., 46 P.2d 783, 7 Cal.App.2d 246.
Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Arnott, 126 N.E. 13, 189 Ind. 350.
10 C.J. p 1094 note 18.

21. Ga.—West End, etc., St. R. Co. v. Mozely, 4 S.E. 324, 79 Ga. 463.

22. Or.—Stamos v. Portland Electric Power Co., 274 P. 915, 128 Or. 310.

23. Mo.—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 3 S.W.2d 371, 319 Mo. 233.

24. Ala.—Bradford v. Birmingham Electric Co., 149 So. 729, 227 Ala. 285.
Cal.—Mudrick v. Market St. Ry. Co., App., 74 P.2d 328.
10 C.J. p 1094 note 21.

Instructions held proper

(1) Generally.
Cal.—White v. Red Mountain Fruit Co., 199 P. 318, 186 Cal. 335
Kan.—Landis v. Wichita R. & Light Co., 203 P. 1109, 110 Kan. 205.
Minn.—Sullivan v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 200 N.W. 922, 161 Minn. 45.
Mo.—Lammert v. Wells, 13 S.W.2d 547, 321 Mo. 952—Scott v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 229 S.W. 178—Faulk v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 247 S.W. 253
N.C.—White v. Hines, 109 S.E. 31, 182 N.C. 275.
Tex.—Wichita Falls, R. & Fort Worth R. Co. v. Baker, Civ.App., 242 S.W. 273.
Wash.—Nollmeyer v. Tacoma Ry. & Power Co., 164 P. 229, 95 Wash. 595.

(2) Instruction that the fact that the accident happened, in absence of "preponderance" of evidence regard-circumstances of the particular case require or justify the application of the res ipsa loquitur doctrine, see supra § 764, appropriate instructions should be given the jury as to the presumption of negligence arising from the happening of the accident and the injury to the passenger;[25] and in ing cause, was some evidence of negligence—Gilchrist v. Boston Elevated Ry., 172 N.E. 349, 272 Mass. 346.

(3) Instruction that taxicab passenger's death in collision raised inference of negligence, which "throws upon the common carrier burden of showing" it, was not at fault—Bezera v. Associated Oil Co., 3 P.2d 622, 117 Cal.App. 139.

(4) Instruction that bus company injuring passenger must prove affirmative defense of third party's negligence does not place on defendant burden of proving it was not negligent—Schropshire v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 258 P. 1107, 85 Cal.App. 216, followed in Crosby v. Pickwick Stages, Northern Division, 264 P. 346, 88 Cal.App. 799.

(5) In an action for injuries to a passenger when a step broke—Hines v. Watkins, 112 A. 299, 137 Md. 211.

(6) In action against interurban railway for injuries to passenger in partial derailment—Kilroy v. Kansas City & K. V. Ry. Co., Mo.App., 195 S.W. 522.

(7) An instruction that, if plaintiff proved that while she was riding in defendant's elevator there was an accident by reason of a defect therein or in the operation thereof, she need not prove exactly the cause of the accident, was not erroneous, as removing the burden of proving negligence, it meaning simply that if plaintiff showed she was hurt by reason of such defect she need not show the exact cause of the accident.—White v. Red Mountain Fruit Co., 199 P. 318, 186 Cal. 335.

(8) Charges that, if proximate cause of injury was not defendant's negligence, but was intervening cause by third party, and if there was no direct and proximate cause because of intervening party, mere fact third party was negligent did not bar right of plaintiff to sue defendant for her injuries provided it was liable, do not place on defendant, the double burden of showing its negligence was not proximate cause and that injury was from intervening act of separate agency.—Rome Ry. & Light Co. v. King, 126 S.E. 294, 33 Ga.App. 383.

(9) In action by passenger against railway for injuries received from sudden breaking of window, instruction that mere injury raised no presumption that injury was caused by negligence of railway and that burden was on passenger to prove how accident was caused and that verdict must be for railway unless accident was result of its negligence is proper.—Tittlebaum v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 174 A. 89, 167 Md. 397, 10 C.J. p. 1094 note 21 [a].

Instructions held erroneous as to presumptions and burden of proof

(1) In general—Zimmerman v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 41 S.W.2d 579, 226 Mo.App. 369.

(2) In actions for injuries to an alighting passenger.—Gray v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 230 P. 970, 69 Cal.App. 123.

(3) Instruction requiring plaintiff to prove all allegations of negligence, in action for wrongful death of passenger struck by street car—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221.

(4) Instruction in personal injury action that burden was on carrier to prove that it did all that could be done to guard against injury to passenger—Lake Shore Electric Ry. Co. v. Shepherd, 192 N.E. 740, 48 Ohio App. 167.

(5) Instruction erroneously putting on defendant the affirmative of the issue presented by the question to the jury: Was the car in motion when plaintiff attempted to board it?—Kausch v. Chicago & Milwaukee Electric Ry. Co., 180 N.W. 808, 173 Wis. 220.

(6) In an action for death of plaintiff's intestate, where specific acts of negligence were alleged, an instruction that, if the jury believed decedent was killed while riding as a passenger on defendant's street car, defendant was called on to show either that death was occasioned by inevitable casualty or was due to contributory negligence, is erroneous as requiring defendant to exculpate itself, not only from the negligent acts and omissions charged, but also from all others conceivably applicable to the case.—Marovich v. Central California Traction Co., 216 P. 595, 191 Cal. 295.

(7) In action by passenger against railway for injuries received from sudden breaking of window, instruction that presumption was that injury resulted from railway's negligence and that passenger was entitled to recover unless jury found from evidence that injury did not result from railway's negligence is improper—Tittlebaum v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 174 A. 89, 167 Md. 397.

(8) In action for injuries sustained by thirteen year old boy passenger who was alleged to have been precipitated from cable car by sudden jerks of car, instructions stating that proof that injuries were caused by operation of car raised "presumption" of negligence of carrier were prejudicial error, as requiring jury to presume facts stated in instructions until contrary was proved.—Mudrick v. Market St. Ry. Co., Cal.App., 74 P.2d 328, 10 C.J. p. 1094 note 21 [b].

25. U.S.—Otis Elevator Co. v. Walstad, C.C.A.Fla., 37 F.2d 895.
Ariz.—Pickwick Stages Corporation v. Messinger, 36 P.2d 168, 44 Ariz. 174.
Cal.—Snyder v. Tanner Motor Livery, App., 50 P.2d 1051—Barr v. Venice Giant Dipper Co., 32 P.2d 980, 138 Cal.App. 563—Hellman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 27 P.2d 946, 135 Cal.App. 627, rehearing denied 28 P.2d 384, 135 Cal.App. 627—Lynch v. Market St. Ry. Co., 19 P.2d 1009, 130 Cal.App. 433—Holt v. Yellow Cab Co. of San Diego, 12 P.2d 472, 124 Cal.App. 385—Roher v. Leonard & Holt, 276 P. 357, 97 Cal.App. 720—Kilgore v. Brown, 266 P. 297, 90 Cal.App. 555—Burke v. Dillingham, 258 P. 627, 84 Cal.App. 736—Horney v. Dillingham, 253 P. 970, 81 Cal.App. 443.
N.Y.—Plumb v. Richmond Light & R. Co., 187 N.Y.S. 38, 195 App.Div. 254, affirmed 135 N.E. 504, 233 N.Y. 285.
Ohio—Columbus Ry., Power & Light Co. v. Lombard, 168 N.E. 619, 33 Ohio App. 47.
S.C.—Comer v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 90 S.E. 188, 105 S.C. 480.

Instructions held proper or erroneously refused

(1) In action for injuries from fall of passenger elevator resulting from breaking of cable, it was proper for court, in instructing jury as to presumption of negligence, to omit to state that the injury must have resulted from the operation of elevator in order to raise such presumption—Campbell v. Bradbury, 176 P. 685, 179 Cal. 364.

(2) A customer's action against storekeeper for injuries sustained on escalator when escalator suddenly jerked is properly submitted under res ipsa loquitur rule, notwithstanding testimony that electrical current was supplied by power company and that interruption of current by power company would cause escalator to jerk, since testimony of storekeeper's witnesses was not conclusive, as one of storekeeper's witnesses testified that interruption of current would not cause escalator to jerk, and since one operating instrumentalities as those jurisdictions where by statute the presumption of negligence arises when an injury is shown to have been caused by the running of a train or cars, supra § 764 it is proper so to instruct the jury.[26] An instruction which places the burden of producing proof from which the presumption will arise on plaintiff in the first instance is proper.[27] It is error to give an instruction which places on plaintiff the additional burden of proving defendant's negligence,[28] or to instruct that the carrier's negligence cannot be presumed;[29] but the instructions must not relieve plaintiff of the burden resting on him on the whole case to show the carrier's negligence;[30] and where the carrier has undertaken to meet the prima facie case by showing the injury was not the result of negligence, an instruction requiring plaintiff to prove negligence by a preponderance of the evidence is not erroneous.[31] No instruction on the presumption of negligence arising from the accident need be given when plaintiff has clearly proved the negligence of the carrier as alleged,[32] and in such a case, it is proper to instruct that plaintiff cannot recover unless he has proved by a preponderance of the evidence that the accident happened as claimed in his testimony.[33] No instruction on the presumption of negligence carrier of passengers cannot escape liability under res ipsa loquitur rule by procuring current from another —Hartnett v. May Department Stores, Co, Mo.App., 85 S.W.2d 644.

(3) Instruction that railroad is presumed negligent in wreck of train and injury to passenger is not erroneous.—Schulz v St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 4 S.W.2d 762, 319 Mo. 8.

(4) An instruction on the res ipsa loquitur doctrine is proper, and is erroneously refused where the carrier's negligence has been alleged generally.

Cal.—Duran v. Pickwick Stages System, 35 P.2d 148, 140 Cal.App. 103—Johnson v Pickwick Stages System, 291 P. 611, 108 Cal.App. 279—Bourguignon v. Peninsular Ry. Co, 181 P. 669, 40 Cal.App 689.

Mo.—Porter v St. Joseph Ry, Light, Heat & Power Co., 277 S.W. 913, 311 Mo. 66

Instructions held erroneous

(1) In passenger's action for injuries resulting from premature movement of an elevator, charge that application of res ipsa loquitur rule meant that defendants, because accident had happened on their elevator, were required to explain if they could why accident happened was reversible error, since it stated, in effect, that defendants as a matter of law had duty of going forward with evidence, instead of permitting jury to determine significance of proof.—Wildauer v. Rudnevitz, 197 A. 252, 119 N.J.Law 471.

(2) Where plaintiff in action for wrongful death sustained when airplane crashed into mountain pleaded and introduced evidence to establish specific acts of negligence on part of pilot in traveling along unfamiliar course over dangerous mountainous area, which allegedly resulted in accident, submission of case to jury on theory of res ipsa loquitur was error, except to charge.—Goodheart v. American Airlines, 1 N.Y.S.2d 288, 252 App.Div. 660.

"Presumption" or "inference"

In action for death of passenger, when street car in which he was riding struck a truck, use of word "presumption" in instruction on doctrine of res ipsa loquitur instead of "inference" has been held not fatal—Atkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 234 P. 863, 71 Cal.App 82.

Instruction that sudden starting of car "raises," an inference was erroneous, and should have been "warrants" or "authorizes" an inference of negligence—Williamson v. Salt Lake & O. Ry. Co., 172 P. 680, 52 Utah 84, L.R.A.1918F 588.

26. Ga.—Hill v. Chattanooga Ry. & Light Co, 93 S.E. 1027, 21 Ga.App. 104.

Injury in other jurisdiction

As the lex fori applies to all matters affecting the remedy, in passenger's action in Georgia for injury sustained in Tennessee, charge that on proof of injury by running of defendant's cars the presumption arose that allegations of negligence in petition were well founded was not error.—Hill v. Chattanooga Ry & Light Co., 93 S.E. 1027, 21 Ga.App. 104.

Instructions on statutory presumption held proper or not erroneous

(1) As permitting recovery without evidence negligence was proximate cause of injury—Western & A. R. R. v. Dobbs, 137 S.E. 407, 36 Ga.App. 516

(2) As failing to require proof of injury.—Western & A. R. R. v. Dobbs, supra.

(3) A charge that if plaintiff proved an injury while a passenger he would cast on carrier the burden showing that injury was not caused by its negligence, and that plaintiff by ordinary care could have avoided it, and that carrier must disprove its negligence by a preponderance of the testimony, was not reversible error because too general and indefinite.—Hines v Hendricks, 104 S.E. 520, 25 Ga.App 682.

Alighting passengers

A charge on statutory presumption against railroads is proper in suit by passenger injured in alighting from street car—Georgia Ry & Power Co. v. Gilbert, 146 S.E. 33, 39 Ga.App. 56, followed in 146 S.E. 34, 39 Ga.App. 58

27. Ga.—Pitner v. Southern Ry. Co, 141 S.E. 670, 37 Ga.App. 722
Mo.—Paul v St. Louis Public Service Co, App, 46 S.W.2d 910.
10 C.J. p 1095 note 24

28. Mo.—Fowlkes v. Fleming, 17 S.W.2d 511, 322 Mo. 718—Roberts v Schaper Stores Co, 3 S.W.2d 241, 318 Mo 1190.
10 C.J. p 1095 note 25.

Instruction held not to require proof of negligence

Charge placing burden of proving care on railroad after proof of injury to passenger was not objectionable as placing burden of proving railroad's negligence on passenger.—Pitner v. Southern Ry. Co., 141 S.E. 670, 37 Ga.App. 722.

29. Mo.—Carlson v. Wells, 276 S.W. 26, 42 A.L.R. 1319.

30. Colo.—Seeing Denver Co v. Morgan, 185 P. 339, 66 Colo. 565
Tex.—Lamar v. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co, Civ.App., 234 S.W. 605, reversed on other grounds, Com.App, 248 S.W. 34.

31. Miss.—Smith v. Gulf, M & N R. Co, 129 So. 599, 158 Miss. 188

32. Fla.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Hamlett, 89 So. 337, 81 Fla. 872

Evidence held not specific

(1) As to cause of collision between street car and motorbus—Stegman v. People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, Mo.App, 297 S.W. 189, 193.

(2) As to cause of collision between street cars.—Fowlkes v. Fleming, 17 S.W.2d 511, 322 Mo. 718

33. Mo.—Powell v St. Joseph Ry., Light, Heat & Power Co., 81 S.W.2d 957, 336 Mo. 1016.

need be given when the presumption has been removed by the introduction of rebuttal testimony,[34] and the giving of such an instruction has been held erroneous where the testimony in the case sufficiently explains every material fact connected with the injury, as in such case the question of negligence or no negligence is to be decided from the facts of the case.[35] When the res ipsa loquitur rule applies, the jury should be instructed that the burden is on defendant to show facts rebutting the presumption of negligence thus raised,[36] and it is error to refuse to instruct that the only duty on defendant is to show reasonable care and that there is no duty to explain how the accident happened.[37]

Instructions on presumptions and the burden of proof must be in such terms as are not calculated to confuse or mislead the jury;[38] but the instruction need not refer in express terms to the burden of proof if it is so worded that the jury cannot fail to understand the law on the subject.[39]

§ 770. Verdict, Findings, and Judgment

General rules apply to verdicts, findings, and judgments in actions by passengers against carriers for personal injuries.

The verdict, findings, and judgment, in an action against a carrier for personal injuries, are governed by the rules applicable in civil cases generally.[40]

34. Ga.—Woodall v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S.E. 311, 45 Ga.App. 526—Holmes v. Georgia Power Co., 162 S.E. 403, 44 Ga.App. 588, reversed on other grounds Georgia Power Co. v. Holmes, 165 S.E. 284, 175 Ga. 487, conformed to Holmes v. Georgia Power Co., 165 S.E. 918, 45 Ga.App. 826.

Instruction held erroneous

In action against owner of building for injuries to plaintiff when freight elevator started, instruction that jury need not determine precise cause for starting, and that mere happening of accident, unexplained, constituted prima facie evidence of negligence, is erroneous, where defendant's evidence renders inapplicable the rule of res ipsa loquitur.—Courtney v. Gainsborough Studios, 174 N.Y.S. 855, 186 App.Div. 820.

35. Ga.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. Co. v. Fountain, 160 S.E. 789, 173 Ga. 593—Georgia Power Co. v. Braswell, 173 S.E. 763, 48 Ga.App. 654.

36. U.S.—Interstate Stage Lines Co. v. Ayers, C.C.A.Mo., 42 F.2d 611.
Cal.—Hellman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 27 P.2d 946, 135 Cal.App. 627, rehearing denied 28 P.2d 384, 135 Cal.App. 627—Holt v. Yellow Cab Co. of San Diego, 12 P.2d 472, 124 Cal.App. 385—Atkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 234 P. 863, 71 Cal.App. 82.
Mo.—Whitlow v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 282 S.W. 525, certiorari quashed State ex rel. St. Louis & San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Daues, 290 S.W. 425, 316 Mo. 474.
10 C.J. p 1095 note 26.

Instructions held not erroneous

(1) As requiring carrier to disprove negligence by a preponderance of the evidence.—Lynch v. Market St. Ry. Co., 19 P.2d 1009, 130 Cal.App. 433—Atkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 234 P. 863, 71 Cal.App. 82—10 C.J. p 1095 note 26 [a].

(2) As placing excessive burden on railroad.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Gilbert, 146 S.E. 33, 39 Ga.App. 56, followed in 146 S.E. 34, 39 Ga.App. 58.

(3) An instruction that if jury found that while plaintiff was passenger thereon, escalator stopped and violently jerked, and that such happening was extraordinary, and that plaintiff was injured thereby, jury might infer that it was occasioned by some negligence of defendant storekeeper, and that storekeeper had burden of bringing forward evidence to rebut inference of negligence and to establish that injuries resulted from cause which highest degree of care would not have avoided, was not erroneous on ground that it placed on storekeeper burden of showing that jerking did not result from storekeeper's negligence.—Hartnett v. May Department Stores Co., Mo.App., 85 S.W.2d 644.

Instructions held erroneous

(1) As requiring defendant to overcome presumption of negligence by a preponderance of the evidence.
Cal.—Olinger v. Pacific Greyhound Lines, 46 P.2d 774, 7 Cal.App.2d 484.
Iowa.—Preston v. Des Moines Ry. Co., 241 N.W. 648, 214 Iowa 156.

(2) As placing too great a burden on the carrier.—Hines v. Beard, 107 S.E. 717, 130 Va. 286.

37. N.Y.—Courtney v. Gainsborough Studios, 174 N.Y.S. 855, 186 App.Div. 820.

38. Mo.—Watson v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 287 S.W. 813, 221 Mo.App. 621.
10 C.J. p 1094 note 22.

Instructions held not misleading, confusing, or prejudicial

(1) Charge on the law as to presumption of negligence and the law as to carrier's diligence in action for assault.—Bugg v. Carter, 131 S.E. 297, 34 Ga.App. 819.

(2) Instruction on presumption of negligence when vehicle is operated in excess of statutory speed limit.—Yellow Cab Co. v. Kruszynski, Ind.App., 196 N.E. 136.

(3) Instruction on burden of proof as to avoidance of negligence of motorbus driver colliding with car while on wrong side of road, injuring bus passenger.—Offerdahl v. Motor Transit Co., 252 P. 773, 80 Cal.App. 667.
10 C.J. p 1094 note 22 [a].

Instructions held not clear

In stage passenger's action against stage proprietor and owner of an automobile for injuries sustained when the stage tipped over in avoiding the automobile, instruction that plaintiff was not required to show particularly what specific act of negligence produced the injury, but only that accident could not have ordinarily occurred, had due care been employed by defendants, if not actually erroneous, as stating the rule of res ipsa loquitur, should have been omitted in interest of clarity.—Freeman v. Adams, 218 P. 600, 63 Cal.App. 225.

Instructions held erroneous

Instruction putting burden on passenger injured by derailment to prove every fact necessary for recovery is error where general instruction authorized recovery unless derailment could have been avoided by highest care.—Watson v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 287 S.W. 813, 221 Mo.App. 621.

39. N.Y.—Buck v. Manhattan R. Co., 10 N.Y.S. 107, 15 Daly 550, affirmed 31 N.E. 628 mem., 134 N.Y. 589 mem.
10 C.J. p 1094 note 23.

40. Construction of findings or verdicts

(1) In action for injuries to passenger, special finding that plaintiff signed release and received a sum as therein stated will not be construed as finding that she received such sum understandingly as satisfaction of claim, in view of rule requiring findings to be harmonized with general verdict.—Orr v. Mis-

Thus the verdict or findings must be specific and certain,[41] must be pertinent to the issues made by the pleadings and evidence,[42] and must find all facts essential to a recovery or a defense.[43]

souri Pac. Ry. Co., 157 P. 421, 98 Kan 120.

(2) Finding that acts of agents or servants were wanton and reckless does not include a finding that injury and death were caused by railroad's negligence—Cotter v. Boston, R B & L. R. Co., 129 N E. 426, 237 Mass 68.

(3) In an action against a railroad company by a passenger who was shot as a result of the alleged negligence of the conductor in handling a pistol, findings that the conductor was negligent, that such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury, that the passenger requested the conductor to show him the operation of the safety device, but did not request to see how the pistol operated, together with findings that the passenger was guilty of no negligence, etc., do not necessitate a judgment for the railroad company on the theory that, as the passenger requested to see the operation of the safety device, the conductor was outside of his duties when he discharged the pistol—Texas Midland R R. v. Monroe, Tex.Civ.App, 229 S.W. 349, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

(4) In action for injuries to bus passenger sustained in collision with a truck, a finding that the driver of the bus was negligent and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the accident necessarily involved the finding that the negligence of the driver of the truck was not the sole cause of the injury—Interstate Casualty Co. of Birmingham v Hogan, Tex.Civ App, 232 S.W. 354.
10 C J p 1095 note 27 [a].

Conclusiveness of findings

(1) The finding against plaintiff passenger on the first count of her petition against defendant street railway seeking damages for injuries when a car door closed on her wrist concluded the question of defendant street railway's liability as to the cause of action counted on—Carney v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 226 S W. 308, 205 Mo.App. 495.

(2) Finding against plaintiff passenger on the first count of her petition against defendant street railway seeking damages for injuries when a car door closed on her wrist did not conclusively establish the fact that plaintiff passenger received no blow whatever by the closing of the door, so that she was not dazed when she alighted to the street, and unable momentarily to extricate herself from danger from the swing of the rear end of the car, which struck her and inflicted the injuries for which she seeks recovery in the second count—Carney v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, supra.
10 C J p 1095 note 27 [b]

Right to findings on evidence

In bus passenger's action, where evidence showed that automobile struck defendant's bus near left front wheel, defendant was entitled to finding by jury based on such testimony.—South Plains Coaches v. Behringer, Tex Civ App., 32 S.W 2d 959, error dismissed.

41. Cal.—Frascona v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 191 P. 968, 48 Cal App. 135
10 C.J p 1095 note 28.

Answers nullifying themselves

Answers to special interrogatories whether defendant's employees willfully killed deceased, "Yes, by negligence" nullify themselves—Ft. Wayne & Wabash Valley Traction Co. v. Justus, 115 N E 585, 186 Ind. 464, reversing, App, 108 N.E. 754.

42. Cal—Frascona v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 191 P. 968, 48 Cal App. 135.
Ill.—West Chicago St. R. Co. v. McNulty, 46 N E. 784, 166 Ill. 203, affirming 64 Ill App. 549.
10 C.J. p 1095 note 29.

Findings held within issues

In action against taxicab company by passenger for injuries sustained when taxicab ran into curbing when driver attempted to avoid collision at intersection, finding of jury that driver was guilty of negligence in failing to exercise proper precautions prior to entering intersection was within issues framed by pleadings alleging that driver failed to exercise utmost prudence and foresight to avoid injury to passenger prior to, and at time of, collision—Jerobek v. Safeway Cab, Transfer & Storage Co., 73 P.2d 1097, 146 Kan. 859.

Findings not responsive to issues

Where a complaint alleged defendant's act of negligence in starting the street car before plaintiff alighted, a finding that defendant operated its car in a negligent manner, thereby injuring plaintiff, is insufficient and not responsive to the issue as tendered by the complaint.—Frascona v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 191 P. 968, 48 Cal App. 135.

Findings adopting plaintiff's theory of case

In an action for injuries sustained by a jitney bus passenger riding on the running board, from contact with a standing truck, where there was evidence that the fender on the truck was higher than that on the bus, and might strike a passenger on the running board without first striking the fender of the bus, and the court's finding did not state what part of the two machines came in contact with plaintiff's leg, it cannot be said that the court adopted the theory that plaintiff's leg protruded, rather than the theory that the injury was due to the difference in height of the two fenders—Ivancich v. Davies, 199 P. 784, 186 Cal. 520

43. Wis.—Jirachek v. Milwaukee Electric R., etc., Co, 121 N W 326, 139 Wis. 505, 131 Am.S.R. 1070.
10 C.J. p 1095 note 30.

Finding on proximate cause

In action against railroad for injury to shipper when riding in a box car, in absence of affirmative finding that injury in car, and not a subsequent injury in a wagon, was proximate cause of death, or of finding that injury in car and subsequent injury concurred as cause of death, there was no basis for judgment against the railroad.—Missouri, K & T Ry. Co. of Texas v. Norris, Tex Com.App., 222 S.W. 1097, reversing, Civ.App., 184 S.W. 261.

Findings held unnecessary

(1) In a personal injury action against a street railway company, where the allegations of the complaint charge clearly that the injuries were received as a direct result of defendant's negligence in the operation of its south-bound car, and the court having so found, the result of the action could not be changed by a finding for defendant with respect to negligence in the operation of its north-bound car which struck plaintiff subsequently, and failure to make such finding is not erroneous—Rucker v. San Diego Electric Ry Co, 183 P. 578, 41 Cal.App. 787.

(2) In a passenger's personal injury action against a street railway company, where the court sitting without a jury found that defendant was free from all the acts of negligence charged against it in the complaint, outside agencies contributing to the cause of accident were immaterial and need not be found, where the findings made adequately cover the issues pleaded.—Frederick v. San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Rys., 191 P. 1020, 48 Cal.App. 336

(3) Where a passenger's complaint against his carrier alleged carelessness, recklessness, and negligence on the part of defendant's autobus driver causing collision with another automobile, a finding of negligence following substantially the allegation of the complaint was sufficient without a specific finding that the driver of the other automobile, not mentioned in the pleadings, was negligent, although, if he was, it would be probable that the defendant was

The verdict, findings, or judgment must be supported by the weight of the evidence;[44] otherwise it should be set aside,[45] although a verdict on conflicting evidence ordinarily will not be disturbed,[46] especially where it is not manifestly against the weight of the evidence.[47]

A verdict that the carrier was not negligent, but was liable to plaintiff as a passenger for the injuries sustained, is self-contradictory,[48] as is a verdict exonerating the owner of a vehicle from negligence of the driver, while holding liable a company engaged with the owner in the joint enterprise of operating the vehicle.[49]

Where final instructions, which become the law of the case, leave no ground on which the jury can find defendant negligent, a verdict against the carrier, contrary to the law of the case, cannot stand.[50]

Where special findings, or answers to special interrogatories, are inconsistent and in irreconcilable conflict with the general verdict, the former control, and judgment should be entered on the special findings notwithstanding the general verdict;[51] but special findings which are inconsistent with, or contradictory of, each other, or which are uncertain in their meaning, will not overcome the general verdict.[52]

A judgment cannot be entered on findings inconsistent with each other.[53] It is not improper, in an action against the carrier and its employee, to render judgment against the carrier on a verdict against it when no verdict is returned as to the employee.[54]

§ 771. Damages

a. In general
b. Expenses; loss of time
c. Physical and mental suffering

a. In General

A passenger sustaining injury as a result of the carrier's negligence or breach of duty is entitled to damages.

Following the general rule of damages, a passenger who has sustained injury through the carrier's negligence or breach of duty is entitled to compensation for both the direct and the consequential results of the act or omission complained of, the consequential damages being limited to those which are the proximate results of the wrong done,[55] and not including those which are too remote, as not be-not.—Baker v. Western Auto Stage Co, 192 P. 73, 48 Cal.App. 283.

44. N.Y.—Giltman v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 113 N.Y.S. 1046, 129 App.Div. 654.

45. Me.—Lawford v. Bangor Ry. & Electric Co., 102 A. 180, 116 Me. 520.
10 C.J. p. 1095 note 32.

46. Mich.—Musliner v. Detroit United Ry., 163 N.W. 894, 197 Mich. 409.
10 C.J. p. 1095 note 33.

47. Ill.—Christ v. Chicago R. Co., 191 Ill.App. 69.

48. Pa.—Jones v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 137 A. 796, 289 Pa. 424.

49. Ind.—United Transp. Co. v. Jeffries, 5 N.E.2d 524, 211 Ind. 226

50. N.Y.—Lang v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 183 N.Y.S. 270, 193 App.Div. 56

51. Ill.—Ebsary v. Chicago City R. Co., 45 N.E. 1017, 164 Ill. 518, affirming 61 Ill.App. 265
10 C.J. p. 1096 note 35.

Special findings held inconsistent with general verdict

Where the jury returned a general verdict in favor of a passenger, who asserted that she was thrown to the floor by the sudden starting of the car and injured, but in response to a special question, as to whether the car started in the usual way, stated that they did not know, the finding is so inconsistent as to destroy the general verdict in the passenger's favor.—Wall v. Union Traction Co., 196 P. 434, 108 Kan. 531.—10 C.J. p. 1096 note 35 [a].

Special findings held not inconsistent with general verdict

(1) In action by one struck by truck on station platform.—Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. McConkey, 113 N.E. 24, 62 Ind.App. 447.

(2) In action for injuries received while boarding bus.—Stradling v. Hahn, 163 N.E. 527, 88 Ind.App. 117.

(3) In an action by a passenger, who claimed to have been thrown from a car while attempting to alight.—Fosche v. Union Traction Co., 196 P. 423, 108 Kan. 585.

(4) In an action for injuries resulting from tripping over rail at station.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Halterman, 153 N.E. 922, 22 Ohio App. 234

(5) In action by passenger injured by tripping over baggage when ordered to stand back by bus driver who was fighting fire under bus.—Greyhound Lines v. Kunze, 181 N.E. 503, 41 Ohio App. 508
10 C.J. p. 1096 note 35 [b].

52. Ind.—Louisville, etc., Tract. Co. v. Worrell, 86 N.E. 78, 44 Ind.App. 480
10 C.J. p. 1096 note 36.

53. Tex.—Stiles v. Union Terminal Co., Civ.App., 1 S.W.2d 947, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 1096 note 37.

Findings held not inconsistent

(1) In an action for injuries to a jitney bus passenger riding on the running board.—Ivancich v. Davies, 199 P. 784, 186 Cal. 520.

(2) In action by passenger falling or thrown from train.—Galveston, H. & S.A. Ry. Co. v. Easton, Tex.Civ.App., 257 S.W. 924.

(3) In taxicab passenger's action against cab company and street railway.—Dallas Railway & Terminal Co. v. Price, Tex.Civ.App., 94 S.W.2d 884, error granted.

(4) In street car passenger's action for injuries sustained while alighting.—Prellwitz v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 157 N.W. 523, 163 Wis. 84

54. Kan.—Whitesell v. Joplin & P. Ry. Co., 222 P. 133, 115 Kan. 53.

55. Minn.—Ford v. Minneapolis St. R. Co., 107 N.W. 817, 98 Minn. 96, 8 Ann.Cas. 902
10 C.J. p. 982 note 13.

Loss of property in wrongful ejection of passenger

Although a carrier is not liable on its contract for loss of a passenger's effects which the passenger keeps in her own possession, it is liable for a loss sustained as a result of the wrongful acts of its ing the legal or natural result of the negligence or wrong.[56] Where a passenger has received personal injuries by reason of the carrier's negligence, he is, as a general rule, entitled to full compensation for all damages past, present, and prospective, including the pecuniary loss, physical and mental suffering, and any incurable hurt, proximately resulting from the carrier's negligence;[57] but to recover for future consequences it must be reasonably certain that such consequences will follow from the injury.[58]

b. Expenses; Loss of Time

The damages recoverable by the passenger include reasonable expenses, and compensation for time lost from the passenger's business or profession, including diminished earning capacity.

The pecuniary loss recoverable by the injured passenger includes reasonable expenses for medical attendance and nursing,[59] even though the bills therefor have not been paid,[60] but there must be proof of the amount contracted to be paid or of the reasonable value of such services;[61] and it has been held that there can be no recovery if the services were rendered gratuitously.[62] If further expenses for a surgical operation or medical treatment or attendance will necessarily be required in the future, that fact also may be considered in estimating the damages.[63]

Loss of time. Damages for loss of time during which the injured passenger is disabled from attending to his business or profession may also be recovered,[64] including damages for such prospective loss of time, or loss of earnings, as is reasonably certain to result in the future,[65] such as from his diminished capacity to earn money, by reason of the permanent nature of his injury.[66] It is not essential to a recovery for loss of time that there is an actual deduction from the injured passenger's salary for the time lost by reason of his injuries.[67] In all cases prospective damages must be legally certain in order to be recoverable.[68]

c. Physical and Mental Suffering

Recovery may be had for mental, as well as physical, suffering, and in some jurisdictions mental suffering alone is sufficient, but in others mental suffering must be connected with bodily pain, or with circumstances of malice, insult, or inhumanity.

A passenger who has had personal injury inflicted on him through the carrier's negligence is entitled to reasonable compensation for both the physical pain and the mental anguish resulting from the injury,[69] and this includes, where the passenger has not fully recovered at the time of the trial, damages for future physical and mental suffering which is reasonably certain to result from the injury.[70] Thus, in cases of active maltreatment of the passenger, as where he has been assaulted by employees of the carrier or by fellow passengers, in the presence of the conductor in charge of the train and without interference on his part, the carrier is liable to make full compensation for the injuries inflicted, including damages for outraged feelings and mental suffering caused by such maltreatment;[71] and, where a passenger is assaulted by the carrier's employees, he is entitled to at least servants in assaulting and arresting the passenger and ejecting her from the train, as a result of which she was separated from her effects and they were lost.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mason, 251 S.W. 184, 199 Ky. 337.

56. U.S.—Haile v. Texas, etc., R. Co., La., 60 F. 557, 9 C.C.A. 134, 23 L.R.A. 774.
10 C.J. p 982 note 14.

Disability not caused by defendant
Where paralysis sustained by apoplexy victim would in any event have followed stroke, victim could not recover damages for disability from bus company which had failed to summon assistance for victim who was riding as a passenger on company's bus at time stroke was sustained.—Searcy v. Interurban Transp. Co., 179 So. 75, 189 La. 183, reversing, App., 179 So. 93, reversing 171 So. 468.

57. U.S.—Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Roller, Cal., 100 F. 738, 41 C.C.A. 22, 49 L.R.A. 77.
10 C.J. p 983 note 15.

58. Cal.—Cordiner v. Los Angeles Tract. Co., 91 P. 436, 5 Cal.App. 400.
10 C.J. p 983 note 16.

59. Ill.—Chicago City R. Co. v. Henry, 75 N.E. 758, 218 Ill. 92.
10 C.J. p 983 note 18.

60. Mo.—Wilbur v. Southwest Missouri Electric R. Co., 85 S.W. 671, 110 Mo.App. 689.

61. Iowa.—Bowsher v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 84 N.W. 958, 113 Iowa 16.
10 C.J. p 983 note 20.

62. Ill.—Malott v. Woods, 109 Ill. App. 512.
10 C.J. p 983 note 21.

63. Ill.—Chicago City R. Co. v. Henry, 75 N.E. 758, 218 Ill. 92.
10 C.J. p 983 note 22.

64. Ill.—Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. Brethauer, 79 N.E. 287, 223 Ill. 521, 114 Am.S.R. 352, affirming 125 Ill.App. 204.
10 C.J. p 983 note 23.

65. U.S.—Washington & G. R. Co. v. Harmon, D.C., 13 S.Ct. 557, 147 U.S. 571, 37 L.Ed. 284.
10 C.J. p 984 note 24.

66. Ill.—Chicago Cons. Tract. Co. v. Schritter, 78 N.E. 820, 222 Ill. 364, affirming 124 Ill.App. 578
10 C.J. p 984 note 25.

67. Ind.—Ohio, etc., R. Co. v. Dickerson, 59 Ind. 317.
10 C.J. p 984 note 26.

68. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Minogue, 14 S.W. 357, 90 Ky. 369, 29 Am.S.R. 378.
10 C.J. p 984 note 27.

69. S.C.—Medlin v. Southern Ry. Co., 141 S.E. 185, 143 S.C. 91, 56 A.L.R. 767.
10 C.J. p 984 note 29.

70. U.S.—Denver, etc., R. Co. v. Roller, Cal., 100 F. 738, 41 C.C.A. 22, 49 L.R.A. 77.
10 C.J. p 985 note 30.

71. N.Y.—Barad v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 295 N.Y.S. 901, 162 Misc. 458.
10 C.J. p 985 note 31.

nominal damages, even though the damages alleged resulted from other sources.[72]

Necessity for physical injury, insult, or malice. It is generally held, however, that mental suffering is the subject of damages only when connected with bodily pain, or with circumstances of malice, insult, or inhumanity,[73] although some authorities support the more liberal rule that mental suffering, although not itself sufficient to support an action, constitutes an element of damages whenever it naturally and proximately ensues from the injury complained of, and such injury is sufficient to give a passenger a cause of action;[74] and the rule precluding recovery for mental shock alone does not prevent recovery for an assault where, before stopping the train, the conductor took hold of the passenger to eject him for nonpayment of fare.[75]

§ 772. Exemplary Damages

a. In general
b. For acts of employees

a. In General

Exemplary damages may be recovered of a carrier guilty of willfulness, wantonness, or gross negligence toward passengers.

Where a carrier is guilty of willfulness, wantonness, or gross negligence in the selection of its employees, the establishment of regulations, or in failing to provide safe appliances, whereby a passenger is injured, exemplary damages may be awarded against it.[76] However, in order that the carrier may be held liable for exemplary damages for defects in its equipment, it must appear that it had knowledge of such defects.[77]

b. For Acts of Employees

Mere negligence on the part of its employees will not subject a carrier to liability for exemplary damages. While exemplary damages may generally be recovered for malicious, wanton, or grossly negligent acts of the carrier's employees, in some jurisdictions participation, authorization, or ratification of such acts by the carrier is essential.

Exemplary damages cannot be assessed against a carrier for injuries caused to a passenger by the acts of its employees, where they could not have been assessed against such employees; in other words, in the absence of willful misconduct or reckless indifference on the part of the carrier's employees affecting the safety of the traveling public in general, the damages must be confined to compensation, and exemplary damages cannot be assessed against the carrier for injuries caused by the merely negligent or wrongful acts of its employees.[78]

There is some conflict in the authorities as to the right of a passenger to recover exemplary damages from a carrier for injuries sustained through the malicious, wanton, or grossly negligent acts of the carrier's employees; and indeed the right to recover such damages in a civil action against the carrier, or in any civil action, has been questioned.[79] When the passenger's action for damages for an assault and battery committed on him by an employee of the carrier is based on the theory of a breach of the contract of safe transportation, no punitive damages can be recovered.[80]

72. Tex.—Fielder v. St. Louis, etc., R Co., 112 S.W. 699, 51 Tex.Civ. App. 244.

73. Mo.—Briggs v. Lusk, App., 190 S.W. 380.
10 C.J. p 985 note 33

74. Ala.—Louisville & N. R Co. v. Robinson, 105 So 874, 213 Ala 522.
N.Y.—Gillespie v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 70 N.E. 857, 178 N.Y. 347, 102 Am.S.R 503, 66 L.R.A. 618, reversing 81 N.Y.S. 1127, 80 App.Div. 640
S.C.—Lipman v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 714, 108 S.C. 151, L.R.A.1918A 596.
10 C.J. p 986 note 34.

Insulting and abusive language
Railroad passenger, abused and insulted by conductor, may recover for mental suffering without showing that acts would have caused mental suffering to person of ordinary prudence—Medlin v. Southern Ry. Co., 141 S.E. 185, 143 S.C 91, 56 A.L.R. 767—10 C.J. p 986 note 34 [c].

75. Mo.—Briggs v. Lusk, App., 190 S.W. 380.

76. W.Va.—Barker v. Ohio River R Co., 41 S.E. 148, 51 W.Va. 423, 90 Am.S.R. 808.
10 C.J. p 986 note 36.

77. Ala.—Richmond, etc., R. Co v. Vance, 9 So. 574, 93 Ala. 144, 30 Am.S.R. 41.
10 C.J. p 986 note 37.

78. Kan.—Middleton v. Missouri Pac R. Co., 212 P. 909, 112 Kan. 793.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Wilkins' Guardian, 136 S.W. 1023, 143 Ky. 572, Ann.Cas.1912D 518.
N.C.—Meeder v. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 91 S.E. 527, 173 N.C. 57.
Pa.—Gerlach v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 94 Pa.Super. 121.
W.Va.—Cooper v. Chesapeake & O Ry. Co., 132 S.E. 739, 101 W.Va. 268.
10 C.J. p 987 note 38.

Liability dependent on conduct of employee
Where an elevator was in charge of the engineer of a large building, to whom the suggestions of the inspector were referred, the owner's liability for exemplary damages for injury to a passenger was determinable by the conduct of the engineer.—Reel v. Consolidated Inv. Co., Mo., 236 S.W. 43.

Where employee's acts courteous
Where railroad conductor, upon discovering, as he thought, that plaintiff had not purchased ticket to her destination, treated her with sufficient courtesy in insisting she pay fare, etc., she could not recover punitive damages in her action against him and the road.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Farrior, 75 So. 777, 115 Miss. 96.

79. Mo.—McKeon v. Citizens' R. Co., 42 Mo. 79.
10 C.J. p 987 note 39.

80. Ark.—Missouri Pac. R Co. v. Prude, 247 S.W. 785, 156 Ark. 583, reversed on other grounds 44 S.Ct. 450, 265 U.S. 99, 68 L.Ed. 919.

In some jurisdictions, however, exemplary damages may be recovered against the carrier for injuries caused by the tortious acts of its employees, within the scope of their employment, without reference to any authorization, participation, or ratification of the torts by the carrier, where such acts are committed maliciously, wantonly, or with gross negligence.[81] Thus the carrier may be liable in exemplary damages for wanton misconduct or gross negligence of its conductor or other employees in assaulting a passenger, or in failing to protect him from assault by fellow passengers or others,[82] without regard to whether the employee previously manifested ill will or malice toward the passenger,[83] or for his malicious, willful, and wanton insulting conduct toward a passenger;[84] but, in other jurisdictions, however, the carrier is liable for exemplary damages in such cases only where it has participated in, previously authorized, or subsequently ratified its employee's willful, wanton, or malicious acts, or gross negligence,[85] or where it has been guilty of negligence in employing or retaining the employee.[86] Thus in these jurisdictions a carrier is not liable in exemplary damages for a malicious or wanton assault on a passenger by one of its employees, when it did not authorize, participate in, or ratify such assault.[87] The mere subsequent retention of the employee who has been guilty of such willful or wanton conduct does not of itself amount to such a ratification of his acts as to render the carrier liable for exemplary damages,[88] but it is evidence thereof, and when considered together with the other circumstances may be sufficient to show such ratification,[89] as where the carrier retains such employee with knowledge that he is incompetent or unfit for the position he occupies.[90]

"Gross negligence," within the above rules, has been held to consist in that entire want of care which raises a presumption of a conscious indifference to the passenger's safety,[91] or in that course of conduct which, under the particular circumstances, discloses a reckless indifference to consequences without the exertion of any substantial effort to avoid them.[92] On the other hand, however, it has been held that negligence may be gross without being willful or intentional,[93] and that the absence of slight care in the management of a train or in keeping the track in repair is such gross negligence as will authorize exemplary damages.[94]

§ 773. Amount of Damages

a. In general
b. Circumstances affecting amount
c. Excessive or inadequate damages

a. In General

The amount of damages, except exemplary damages, should be such a sum as the jury determines, under

81. S.C.—Phillips v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 158 S.E. 274, 160 S.C. 323, 76 A.L.R. 415.
10 C.J. p. 987 note 40.

Failure to take up passenger
The first duty of a train crew, in case of a wreck, is to the passengers, and a conductor failing to stop on signal and pick up a passenger who was on his train when wrecked, and whom he had promised to pick up when he overtook him, warrants punitive damages — Nelson v. Charleston & W. C. Ry. Co., 121 S.E. 198, 92 S.C. 151.

82. Ky.—Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co. v. Webb, 259 S.W. 697, 202 Ky. 341.
Mo.—Dorton v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 224 S.W. 30, 204 Mo.App. 362.
N.C.—Clark v. Bland, 106 S.E. 491, 181 N.C. 110.
10 C.J. p. 988 note 41.

83. Tex.—Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Mathews, Civ.App., 1 S.W.2d 754, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 12 S.W.2d 163.

84. Miss.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Hickman, 111 So. 588, 146 Miss. 394.
S.C.—Phillips v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 158 S.E. 274, 160 S.C. 323, 76 A.L.R. 415.
10 C.J. p. 988 note 42.

Inexcusable conduct
Evidence that a conductor, although notified that a passenger required assistance in alighting, because old and weak, refused to furnish a step box or permit a boy to get one, and was rude and rough and used insulting language, and threatened to carry her if she could not get off, tended to show inexcusable conduct justifying punitive damages.—Holmes v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 106 S.E. 567, 181 N.C. 497.

85. U.S.—Pullman Co. v. Hall, C.C.A.W.Va., 46 F.2d 399
Ohio.—Columbus Ry., Power & Light Co. v. Harrison, 143 N.E. 32, 109 Ohio St. 526—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Lesko, 177 N.E. 606, 39 Ohio App. 339.
10 C.J. p. 988 note 43.

86. Ohio.—Columbus Ry., Power & Light Co. v. Harrison, 143 N.E. 32, 109 Ohio St. 526—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Lesko, 177 N.E. 606, 39 Ohio App. 339
10 C.J. p. 989 note 44.

87. N.D.—Voves v. Great Northern R. Co., 143 N.W. 760, 26 N.D. 110, 48 L.R.A.,N.S., 30 and note.
10 C.J. p. 989 note 45.

88. U.S.—Pullman Co. v. Hall, C.C.A.W.Va., 46 F.2d 399
10 C.J. p. 989 note 46.

89. Tex.—Denison, etc., R. Co. v. Randell, 69 S.W. 1013, 29 Tex.Civ.App. 460.
10 C.J. p. 989 note 47.

90. N.Y.—Cleghorn v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 56 N.Y. 44, 15 Am.R. 375.
10 C.J. p. 989 note 48.

91. U.S.—Milwaukee & St. P. R. Co. v. Arms, Iowa, 91 U.S. 489, 23 L.Ed. 374
10 C.J. p. 990 note 49.

92. Miss.—Teche Lines v. Pope, 166 So. 539, 175 Miss. 393

Operation of bus at railroad crossing
A bus driver, who made no attempt to stop bus until within less than ten feet of railroad crossing, is "grossly negligent," entitling passenger injured in collision with train to punitive damages.—Teche Lines v. Pope, 166 So. 539, 175 Miss. 393.

93. Ill.—Jacksonville, etc., R. Co. v. Southworth, 32 Ill.App. 307, affirmed 25 N.E. 1093, 135 Ill. 250
Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. McCoy, 81 Ky. 403.

94. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. McCoy, 81 Ky. 403.
10 C.J. p. 990 note 51.

proper instructions, will fairly and reasonably compensate the passenger for his injuries.

Where the damages to a passenger are only such as are capable of direct proof and assessment at a money value, of course no question can be made as to the amount of damages to be recovered; but in all those actions of passengers against carriers that involve the consideration of physical pain or mental suffering, or both, and which constitute much the larger number of such actions, the law can, in the nature of things, furnish no definite estimate of the compensation to be awarded, and the amount is therefore committed to the judgment and sound discretion of the jury, under proper instructions from the court as to the elements to be considered, and, except where exemplary damages are proper, should be such sum as will fairly and reasonably compensate the person injured,[95] not exceeding the amount claimed.[96]

When the action is against both the carrier and an employer, a larger amount of damages may be awarded against the carrier than against its employee.[97]

A passenger may recover substantial damages from the carrier for insulting conduct of the carrier's employee, and is not limited to nominal damages.[98]

b. Circumstances Affecting Amount

(1) In general

(2) Effect of passenger's negligence or imprudence

(1) In General

The passenger's position in life, his business or profession, his means for earning money, and the extent to which they are affected may be considered in determining the amount of damages to be awarded.

In determining the amount of damages, aside from the elements heretofore considered, the jury may take into consideration the injured passenger's position in life, the business or profession in which he is engaged, the means at his disposal to earn money, and the extent to which they are affected in consequence of the injury.[99] Thus, the jury may consider the business in which he is engaged, and the extent and amount of his ordinary business,[1] and his expectation of life, where the injury is permanent.[2] However, the injured passenger cannot show the number of his family and the fact that they are dependent on him for support, for the purpose of increasing the damages.[3]

Deduction of insurance money. The carrier cannot avoid or diminish its liability to make full compensation for the injury inflicted, by showing that the passenger has received a sum from an insurance company on account of his injury.[4]

Previously existing disease or injury. Where the negligence of a carrier results in the infliction of an injury on a passenger, and the passenger's physical condition at the time of the injury is such, by reason of a previously existing injury or diseased condition, as to aggravate the injury, the carrier cannot claim immunity from the aggravated result because it did not know of the passenger's physical condition and could not foresee the special injury complained of; the passenger is entitled to full compensation for the injury inflicted.[5]

(2) Effect of Passenger's Negligence or Imprudence

It is proper to consider the passenger's negligence or imprudence in determining the amount of the award; and provocative language or conduct on his part is proper for consideration in a passenger's action for assault by an employee.

While the carrier is bound to make compensation for all the consequences resulting directly and proximately from its wrong, the passenger on the other hand is bound by law to use ordinary care and prudence to render his injury or loss no greater than is necessary under the circumstances; and, where a passenger has suffered by reason of the carrier's wrong, no aggravation of the injury or unreasonable expense incurred, attributable to the passenger's negligence or voluntary act of imprudence, may be considered in determining the compensation to which he is entitled,[6] but, if the passenger uses

95. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v Rutledge, 39 So. 338, 142 Ala. 195. 10 C.J. p. 990 note 52.

Refusal to open station

For railroad's failing negligently or willfully to open its passenger station a reasonable length of time before the arrival of a train as required by statute, an intending passenger can recover some damages, that is, actual damages, for loss of time or inconvenience.—Ginn v U. S. Railroad Administration, 103 S.E. 548, 114 S.C. 236.

96. Ky.—Louisville R. Co. v Frick, 165 S.W. 649, 158 Ky. 450. 10 C.J. p. 990 note 53.

97. S.C.—Spigener v Seaboard Air Line Ry., 98 S.E. 330, 111 S.C. 405

98. Miss.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cox, 100 So. 520, 136 Miss. 123.

99. Ind.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Miller, 37 N.E. 343, 141 Ind. 533 10 C.J. p. 990 note 55.

1. U.S.—Wade v. Leroy, N.Y., 20 How. 34, 15 L.Ed. 813. 10 C.J. p. 991 note 56.

2. Ind.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v Miller, 37 N.E. 343, 141 Ind. 533. 10 C.J. p. 991 note 57

3. Wis.—Kreuziger v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 40 N.W. 657, 73 Wis. 158. 10 C.J. p. 991 note 58

4. Md.—Baltimore City Pass. R. Co. v. Baer, 44 A. 992, 90 Md. 97. 10 C.J. p. 991 note 59

5. U.S.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Cavin, Cal., 144 F. 348, 75 C.C.A. 350. 10 C.J. p. 991 note 60.

6. U.S.—Texas & P. R. Co. v. White, ordinary care in this regard, as in employing an ordinarily careful and skillful surgeon or physician, the carrier is liable for unfavorable results.[7]

Provocative language or conduct on the part of a passenger, whereby an assault by an employee is brought on and he is injured, may be considered in mitigation of damages,[8] where the provocation and the assault are substantially coincident,[9] although there is authority to the contrary.[10] A finding that the passenger attacked or abused the employee will relieve the carrier from exemplary damages for an assault by the employee.[11] Where the employee assaults the passenger, substantial rather than merely nominal damages are recoverable even though the passenger was the aggressor.[12]

Comparative negligence. In some jurisdictions the negligence of the passenger, which is only slight as compared with that of the carrier, will not defeat a recovery, but the recovery will be apportioned according to the relative negligence,[13] unless the passenger's negligence is the sole cause of the injury.[14]

c. Excessive or Inadequate Damages

The jury's award against the carrier will not be interfered with unless excessive, in which case it may be set aside, or the excess ordered remitted. This applies to exemplary as well as compensatory damages.

Since it is the peculiar province of the jury to fix the amount of damages, where they have rendered a verdict, a court will not set it aside on the ground that it is excessive unless the amount is so obviously disproportionate to the injury proved as to justify the conclusion that the jury must have been influenced by partiality or prejudice, or misled by some mistaken view of the merits of the case; but where the verdict is thus obviously excessive it will be set aside,[15] or the amount of the excess may Tex., 101 F. 928, 42 C.C.A. 86, 62 L.R.A. 90.

10 C.J. p 991 note 62.

7. N.Y.—Hickenbottom v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 25 N.E. 379, 122 N.Y. 91
10 C.J. p 992 note 63.

8. S.C.—Lipman v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 714, 108 S.C. 151, L.R.A. 1918A 596.
10 C.J. p 992 note 64.

9. Mass.—Jackson v. Old Colony St. R. Co., 92 N.E. 725, 206 Mass. 477, 30 L.R.A.,N.S., 1046, 19 Ann.Cas. 615.
10 C.J. p 992 note 65

10. Ohio—Mahoning Valley R. Co. v. DePascale, 71 N.E. 633, 70 Ohio St. 179, 65 L.R.A. 860, 1 Ann.Cas. 896.
10 C.J. p 992 note 66.

11. Tex.—Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Mathews, Com.App., 12 S.W. 2d 163, reversing, Civ.App., 1 S.W. 2d 754.

12. N.Y.—Schwartz v. New York Rys. Co., 160 N.Y.S. 1081.

13. Fla.—Florida R. Co. v. Dorsey, 52 So. 963, 59 Fla. 260.
10 C.J. p 992 note 67.

14. Fla.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Willis, 51 So. 134, 58 Fla. 307.

15. Ind.—Ft. Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction Co. v. Ridenour, 123 N.E. 720, 71 Ind.App. 263.
10 C.J. p 992 note 70

Damages held excessive

$375, in an action for personal injuries caused by failure of railway company to stop passenger train and let plaintiff off at her station.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Currie, 73 So. 868, 113 Miss. 45—10 C.J. p 992 note 70 [a].

Damages held not excessive

(1) $100, for cursing and abuse of drunken passengers, sickness from the smoke in the car, and damage to a basket of clothes.—Butler County R. Co. v. Exum, 187 S.W. 329, 124 Ark. 229

(2) $250, to female passenger assaulted and insulted by fellow passenger.—Memphis, D. & G. R. Co. v. Trussell, 183 S.W. 981, 122 Ark. 516.

(3) $333, as damages for mental and physical suffering of plaintiff shipper in connection with boarding of caboose.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Tex.Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused

(4) $450, for business man of apparent respectability, who was assaulted by subway railroad employee while business man was passenger in subway train.—Barad v. New York Rapid Transit Corporation, 295 N.Y.S. 901, 162 Misc. 458.

(5) $500, for assault by conductor.—Ft. Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction Co. v. Ridenour, 123 N.E. 720, 71 Ind.App. 263.

(6) $500, for injuries to a passenger from the breaking of glass.—Washington Ry. & Electric Co. v. Perry, 47 App.D.C. 90.

(7) $500, to colored passenger excluded from carrier's station during cold and stormy weather.—Higgins v. Southern Kansas Stage Lines Co., 42 P.2d 599, 141 Kan. 641.

(8) $666, for injuries sustained in attempting to alight from caboose of moving train.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Tex.Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused.

(9) $700, for injuries to passenger assaulted by conductor.—Bugg v. Carter, 131 S.E. 297, 34 Ga.App. 819.

(10) $1,000, for assault and insulting conduct of fellow passenger—Hines v. Rice, 218 S.W. 851, 142 Ark. 159

(11) $1,000 to wife and $150 to husband, where woman was injured by a fall from a street car.—Buttera v. Rhode Island Co., R.I., 110 A. 71.

(12) $1,125.35, for injury to a railway passenger, resulting from her being misled by trainmen in disembarking at the wrong station.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dickson, Tex.Civ.App., 153 S.W. 933.

(13) $1,500, actual damages to passenger assaulted by conductor for pain and suffering, headaches, and loss of sleep, and for impaired earning capacity.—Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Mathews, Tex.Civ.App., 1 S.W.2d 754, reversed on other grounds, Com.App., 12 S.W.2d 163.

(14) $1,500, for injuries sustained in collision—Memphis St. Ry. v. Mitchum, 6 Tenn.Civ.A. 227.

(15) $1500, in action by woman passenger against street railway company for employees' failure to protect her from assault by two other women passengers, who were intoxicated.—Southern Traction Co. v. Coley, Tex.Civ.App., 211 S.W. 265, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

(16) $1,500, to passenger thrown down by the jerk of a street car—Fletcher v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo.App., 221 S.W. 1070.

(17) $1,700, to a passenger, willfully and maliciously assaulted by motorman.—Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co. v. Webb, 259 S.W. 697, 202 Ky. 341.

(18) $2,000, for abusive treatment by conductor in threatening to eject negro woman from train.—Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, Civ.

be ordered to be remitted.[16] This rule applies where the verdict includes exemplary damages as well as where the damages are merely compensatory.[17]

Where the amount of damages awarded is so small that it is evident that the jury must have overlooked some material element of damage, the court may grant relief by setting it aside as being inadequate under the circumstances.[18]

I. CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE OF PERSON INJURED

§ 774. General Rules

The doctrine of contributory negligence applies as between passenger and common carrier.

A passenger must exercise ordinary care, and such care only, for his own safety, that is, such care as an ordinarily prudent man would exercise for his safety and security under the same circumstances.[19] No person is ever absolved from exer-

App., 10 S.W.2d 767, reversed on other grounds 36 S.W.2d 983, 120 Tex 200.

(19) $2,000, for injuries caused by taking cold when compelled to vacate a drawing room.—Pullman Co. v. Cox, Tex.Civ.App., 220 S.W. 599, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

(20) $2,000, for injuries sustained while alighting from car.—Pawlicki v. Detroit United Ry., 158 N.W. 162, 191 Mich. 536

(21) $2,500, for pain and suffering from being thrown down in street car—Nelson v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 222 N.W. 792, 197 Wis. 513

(22) $2,500, to woman thrown from a car while alighting.—Brown v. Rhode Island Co., R.I., 102 A. 965.

(23) $2,500, to passenger who suffered an apoplectic stroke, but was deposited as a drunk in the station without medical attention for over twenty-four hours.—Searcy v. Interurban Transp. Co., 179 So. 75, 189 La 183, reversing, App., 179 So. 93, reversing 171 So. 468.

(24) $3,000, for injuries sustained in collision.—Lowder v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo.App., 221 S.W. 800.

(25) $5,000, to motorbus passenger, who sustained marked loss of hearing.—Marcus v. White Star Lines, 175 A. 490, 316 Pa. 380.

(26) $12,000, where the evidence in a personal injury suit by street car passenger tended to show that her injuries were permanent.—Houston Electric Co. v. Pearce, Tex.Civ.App., 192 S.W. 558, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

(27) $13,800, where a street car passenger, a physician earning over three hundred dollars a month, had his right forearm fractured, his right wrist stiffened, both bones of leg fractured, the ankle bones stiffened, the leg shortened one and one-half inches, he being confined to bed for eight weeks and rendered unable to resume his practice as a physician for eight and one-half months.—Rice v. Michigan Ry. Co., 175 N.W 454, 208 Mich. 123.

(28) $19,500, for injuries to a female passenger aged twenty-nine years, earning a yearly income of five thousand six hundred dollars, it being doubtful if she would ever fully recover.—Swendsen v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co, 166 P. 21, 175 Cal. 502.

10 C.J. p 992 note 70 [b].

16. Miss.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Cox, 100 So. 520, 136 Miss. 123.

10 C.J. p 994 note 71.

Damages reduced

(1) $700, reduced by $450—Central of Georgia Ry. Co v. Williams, 84 So. 633, 17 Ala App. 259.

(2) $750, reduced to $200.—Briggs v. Lusk, Mo.App., 190 S.W. 380.

(3) $2,500 reduced to $250, with interest and costs.—Spearman v. Toye Bros. Auto & Taxi-Cab Co., 114 So. 591, 164 La. 677.

(4) $5,000, reduced by remittitur to $3,750.—Schaff v. Wright, Tex.Civ. App., 251 S.W. 515.

10 C.J. p 994 note 71 [a].

17. Ky.—Louisville Southern R. Co. v. Minogue, 14 S.W 357, 90 Ky. 369, 12 Ky.L. 378, 29 Am.S.R. 378.

10 C.J. p 994 note 72.

Award held excessive

(1) $900, punitive damages for assault and abusive language used by defendant's conductor during an altercation against plaintiff, a passenger, reduced to $500.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Hagler, 254 S.W. 1071, 160 Ark. 543.

(2) A verdict in excess of $1,000 against a carrier on account of the insulting and offensive enforcement by its conductor of the separate coach law.—Illinois Cent. R Co. v. Cox, 100 So 520, 136 Miss. 123.

(3) $2,000, for insults by train porter to passenger, excessive by $1,500, and reduced under statute—Barbknecht v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 212 N.W. 776, 55 N.D. 104.

(4) $2,500, punitive damages for an assault, being five times the amount of the compensatory damages allowed.—Hunter v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 248 S.W. 998, 213 Mo.App. 233.

10 C.J. p 994 note 72 [a].

Award held not excessive

(1) $2.00 actual and $498 punitive damages, for insulting insinuation that plaintiff was attempting to obtain ticket without paying—Knoell v. Kansas City, C., C. & St. J. Ry. Co., Mo.App., 198 S.W. 79.

(2) $1,500 punitive damages, in addition to $500 compensatory damages, for a wanton and lustful assault committed by a conductor on a female passenger.—Flynn v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co, Mo.App., 190 S.W. 371.

(3) $4,500 actual damages and $1,000 punitive damages, for assault by employee.—Dorton v. Kansas City Rys. Co, 224 S.W. 30, 204 Mo.App. 262.

(4) $15,000, for injuries to bus passenger in crossing collision, where verdict included punitive damages.—Teche Lines v. Pope, 166 So. 539, 175 Miss 393.

10 C.J. p 994 note 72 [b].

18. Ill.—Hanson v. Urbana, etc., St. R. Co., 75 Ill.App. 474.

N.Y.—Tooker v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 80 N.Y.S. 969, 80 App.Div. 371.

Damages held inadequate

A verdict in favor of plaintiff for five dollars was inadequate, in action by passenger assaulted and abused by conductor.—Samuels v. New York City Ry. Co., 101 N.Y.S 534, 52 Misc. 137.

19. Cal.—McKinley v. Dalton, 17 P. 2d 160, 128 Cal.App. 298.

Ill.—See Kaber v. Borland, 201 Ill App. 516.

La.—Louviere v Southwestern Traction & Power Co., 77 So. 293, 294, 142 La. 590, quoting Corpus Juris with approval.

Mo.—Moutria v. East St. Louis Ry. Co., App, 76 S.W.2d 427.

Pa.—Klingensmith v. West Penn Rys. Co., 154 A 811, 303 Pa. 487.

Tex.—Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co. v. Travis, 78 S.W.2d 941, 125 Tex. 11, affirming, Civ.App., 46 S.W.2d 743.

10 C.J. p 1096 note 39.

Absence of contributory negligence

(1) Passenger in public carrier, as taxicab, cannot be charged with responsibility for collision.—Dawson v.

cising reasonable care for his own safety simply because he is a passenger for hire;[20] carriers of passengers have the right to assume that passengers will exercise the care of a reasonably prudent man,[21] and it is a well established rule, that, although there has been negligence on the part of the carrier contributing to the injuries, if the passenger fails to exercise ordinary care, and his failure is proximately connected with his injuries, he is guilty of contributory negligence which will defeat a recovery,[22] and a recovery will be defeated as well where the negligence of the passenger exposes him to injury as where it cooperates in causing the misfortune from which the injury results.[23] However, the negligence of a passenger or intending passenger will not bar his recovery unless it contributes to his injury,[24] and, although the conduct of a passenger has contributed to the injury sustained, yet if such conduct has not been in a legal sense imprudent or negligent, he may recover, provided the carrier is in fault.[25] Moreover, the doing of an act by a passenger of a nature which would ordinarily constitute contributory negligence barring recovery will not necessarily preclude recovery by the passenger where he was induced by the carrier to do such act.[26]

What constitutes passenger's negligence. A passenger is not to be deemed guilty of negligence unless he has, or is charged with, knowledge of a defect or peril, and then fails to use ordinary care to avoid injury,[27] and it is elementary law that a passenger is not obliged, in the exercise of ordinary care, to anticipate negligence on the part of the carrier, but may rely on the carrier's observance of its legal duty to exercise a high degree of care

Toye Bros Yellow Cab Co, 131 So 716, 15 La.App. 326.

(2) A passenger, who was injured by a trunk falling on him proximately caused by bus driver's negligence in relying on handle alone in jerking trunk onto bus, was not contributorily negligent, where driver had as much opportunity as passenger owning trunk to learn of faulty handle.—Gaines v. Teche Lines, La App., 176 So. 134.

(3) Statement by one who hired taxicab in response to driver's question that hospital to which she desired to go was out H street on B avenue, was not direction that he should return on H street, so as to preclude recovery for injuries received while so returning.—Hathaway v. Coleman, 169 P. 414, 35 Cal App. 107.

20. U.S—Pennsylvania R Co v. Rogers, N J, 244 F. 76, 156 C.C.A. 504.
Me—Chaput v. Lussier, 165 A. 573, 132 Me. 48
Md—Washington, B & A. E Ry. Co. v State, 113 A. 338, 137 Md. 538.

Rule as to guest inapplicable

Rule as to recovery for injuries by guest who rides without exercising any care for his own safety held not applicable to persons riding in taxicab as passengers—Chaput v. Lussier, 165 A. 573, 132 Me. 48.

21. U.S—The Empress of Scotland, D C.N.Y., 11 F 2d 783, affirmed, C C A, McKay v. Empress of Scotland, 24 F 2d 1018.

22. U.S.—Aschenbrenner v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 54 S Ct. 590, 292 U S 80, 78 L.Ed. 1137, reversing, C C.A., U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Aschenbrenner, 65 F 2d 976, certiorari granted Aschenbrenner v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 54 S Ct. 229, 290 U S. 622, 78 L.Ed. 543, and rehearing denied 54 S.Ct 861, 292 U S. 615, 78 L Ed. 1474—The Empress of Scotland, D. C.N Y., 11 F 2d 783, affirmed, C C A., McKay v. Empress of Scotland, 24 F.2d 1018.
Ala—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Martin, 73 So. 909, 198 Ala 540.
Ga—Hill v. Chattanooga Ry. & Light Co., 93 S.E 1027, 21 Ga App. 104
Ill—Bartz v. Chicago City Ry. Co, 116 Ill App. 554.
Kan—Senning v. Arkansas Valley Interurban Ry. Co, 165 P 863, 101 Kan. 78.
Ky—Adams v. Hilton, 110 S.W 2d 1088, 270 Ky. 818—Paducah Traction Co v. Weitlauf, 195 S W. 99, 176 Ky. 82, L R.A 1917F 353.
La—Mills v. Illinois Cent. R Co, 86 So 750, 148 La. 217—Smith v. Service Cab Co., App, 155 So. 774
N D—Dahl v. Minneapolis, St P & S S M. Ry. Co., 223 N W. 37, 57 N D. 538
Va—Pennsylvania R. Co v. Jenkins, 96 S E. 170, 123 Va. 211
W Va—Slaven v. Baltimore & O R Co, 171 S.E 818, 114 W Va. 315—Peters v. Monongahela Transport Co, 155 S E 178, 109 W.Va. 417.
10 C.J. p 1097 note 40.

Observing suitcase in aisle

Where passenger testified that she saw a suitcase protruding into aisle when she boarded car and that suitcase was not moved throughout trip, passenger could not recover, since she was contributorily negligent, having seen suitcase as she entered car.—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N.W. 112, 283 Mich. 413.

Riding with drunken driver

Although negligence of driver of vehicle is not imputable to passenger, yet the conduct of a passenger in entering an automobile and continuing to ride therein, when he knew or must have known driver was intoxicated, establishes negligence barring recovery, and rule applies to a passenger in a vehicle for hire as well as guest—Wayson v. Rainier Taxi Co, 239 P. 559, 136 Wash. 274, 45 A L R 290.

Use of narrow platform

Where one going to a ferry pier to meet an incoming passenger and passing from the train shed to the open pier, which was dark, was blinded by the lights when he reentered the shed, his attempt to use a narrow platform connecting the two main platforms while so blinded, instead of waiting until his eyes became accustomed to the light, held negligence as matter of law, where he knew the platform was elevated and that he might be injured if he walked off of it.—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md. 621.

23. Mo—Moutria v. East St. Louis Ry. Co, App, 76 S W 2d 427.
10 C J. p 1098 note 41

24. Mo—Sugarwater v. Fleming, 293 S W. 111, 316 Mo. 742.

25. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v Martin, 73 So 909, 198 Ala. 540
10 C J. p 1098 note 42.

26. W.Va—Donnally v. Payne, 109 S.E. 760, 89 W.Va. 585.

Carrier's invitation or restraint

A passenger may take a position or do an act resulting in his injury on the carrier's invitation or inducement, or in consequence of a restraining influence imposed by the carrier which otherwise would bar recovery, without incurring such negligence or contributory negligence, where involving no greater risk than an ordinarily prudent man would assume under the circumstances.—Donnally v. Payne, 109 S E. 760, 89 W.Va 585.

27. Md—United R., etc., Co. v. Riley, 71 A. 970, 109 Md. 327.
10 C.J p 1098 note 46.

for the safety of passengers.[28] In this connection it has been held that a passenger is under no duty to anticipate the presence of obstructions in the aisle of a conveyance,[29] nor to ascertain the fitness of the operator of the vehicle,[30] nor to inspect the appliances furnished by a carrier,[31] and that he may properly assume that the operator of the vehicle will exercise the care essential to safe transportation,[32] and that all parts and appliances of the vehicle are reasonably safe and fit for use.[33] Where, however, the negligence of the carrier is apparent to the passenger, he should thereafter exercise ordinary care to avoid injury which might result to him from such negligence.[34]

Assumption of risk A passenger never assumes the risk of a carrier's negligence,[35] and it has been said that, strictly speaking, the doctrine of assumed risks has no bearing on actions of this character, although the facts which would lead to its invocation in an action between master and servant may affect the issue of contributory negligence in an action between passenger and carrier.[36] The more generally accepted view is that a passenger does assume all risks not resulting from the carrier's negligence and necessarily incident to travel,[37] such as those peculiar to the particular vehicle in which he is riding,[38] and that the defense of assumption of risk may be set up in an action against a carrier.[39] It should be borne in mind, however, that the only risks assumed are those of accidents which arise after the carrier has done its full duty, that is, the ordinary incidents of travel.[40]

What law governs. The law of contributory negligence of the state where a passenger was injured while traveling between points therein governs in an action for the injury.[41] This is in conformity with the general rule, which has been discussed in § 679, that the lex loci delicti controls actions against a carrier for injuries resulting from its negligence.

§ 775. Statutory Provisions

The effect of a passenger's contributory negligence is in some instances governed by statutes specifically dealing with such subject.

Where statutes define the legal effect of a passenger's contributory negligence or the like, the rights of passenger and common carrier in such respect are controlled by the applicable statute.[42] Under statutes providing that railroads shall be li-

28. Ill.—Metz v. Yellow Cab Co., 248 Ill.App. 609
Miss.—Tri-State Transit Co. v. Martin, 179 So. 349
Mo.—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S.W.2d 25, 226 Mo.App. 934
Wis.—Naus v. Chicago & M. Electric Ry. Co., 201 N.W. 231, 185 Wis. 178.

29. Ala.—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So. 479, 198 Ala. 262

30. Ky.—Morris v. City Transfer & Yellow Taxi Co., 294 S.W. 1030, 220 Ky. 219

Cab driver
Taxicab passenger has no duty to exercise care to learn whether driver is sober or intoxicated.—Morris v. City Transfer & Yellow Taxi Co., 294 S.W. 1030, 220 Ky. 219.

31. Ark.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. McCrary, 16 S.W.2d 466, 179 Ark. 444.

Footrest in railroad coach
Ark.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. McCrary, 16 S.W.2d 466, 179 Ark. 444.

32. Ky.—Shelton Taxi Co. v. Bowling, 51 S.W.2d 468, 244 Ky. 817

33. Kan.—Jenkins v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 275 P. 136, 127 Kan. 821.

34. Ga.—Hill v. Chattanooga Ry. & Light Co., 93 S.E. 1027, 21 Ga.App. 104.
Minn.—Rau v. Smuda, 221 N.W. 232, 175 Minn. 328.

Negligence known to passenger
Duty of passenger to exercise ordinary care to avoid consequences of carrier's negligence does not arise until such negligence is apparent, or in exercise of ordinary care would be apparent, but where such negligence is known to the passenger he must use due care to avoid injury therefrom.—Hill v. Chattanooga Ry. & Light Co., 93 S.E. 1027, 21 Ga.App. 104

35. Mo.—Toroian v. Parkview Amusement Co., 56 S.W.2d 134, 331 Mo. 700
10 C.J. p. 1098 note 44.

36. Ind.—Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Helms, 121 N.E. 279, 70 Ind.App. 137
Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Christian, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 175, error refused

37. Mo.—Toroian v. Parkview Amusement Co., 56 S.W.2d 134, 331 Mo. 700.
Tex.—Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co. v. Travis, Civ.App., 46 S.W.2d 743, affirmed 78 S.W.2d 941, 125 Tex. 11
Va.—Richmond-Ashland Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 162 S.E. 18, 157 Va. 628.
W.Va.—Koon v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 192 S.E. 332.

38. Tex.—Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hawley, Civ.App., 235 S.W. 659.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused.

Caboose
One riding on the caboose of a freight train, although as a passenger, assumes the increased risk incident to such mode of travel, and cannot recover for injuries resulting, in the absence of negligence of the railway.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Hopper, 217 S.W. 661, 142 Tenn. 200.

39. Mo.—Toroian v. Parkview Amusement Co., 56 S.W.2d 134, 331 Mo. 700.

40. Fla.—Florida East Coast R. Co. v. Carter, 65 So. 254, 67 Fla. 335, Ann.Cas.1916E 1299.
10 C.J. p. 1098 note 45.

Unavoidable risks
"And, also while it is undoubtedly true that a passenger must take the risks incident to the mode of travel and the character of the means of conveyance which he adopts, such risks are only those which cannot be avoided by the carrier by the use of the utmost degree of care and skill in the preparation and management of the means of conveyance."—Matteson v. Teche Greyhound Lines, La.App., 178 So. 272, 273.

41. U.S.—Long v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., S.C., 238 F. 919, 151 C.C.A. 653.

42. U.S.—Jones v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., C.C.A.Neb., 260 F. 929.
10 C.J. p. 1098 note 43.

able for all damages to passengers except where arising from the passenger's "criminal negligence," the term "criminal negligence" means gross negligence.[43]

Statutes dealing with specific instances of contributory negligence, such as a passenger's violation of regulations or his jumping from a moving vehicle, are considered in subsequent sections.

§ 776. Persons under Disability

a. In general
b. Children
c. Intoxicated passengers

a. In General

Acts which would amount to contributory negligence if done by a normal person may not constitute negligence where performed by one physically or mentally impaired, although such a person should exercise the care reasonably to be expected of one in such condition.

What will constitute failure to exercise ordinary care on the part of the passenger may depend on the mental and physical capacity of the passenger himself, and acts which might be negligent in a normal person may not be contributory negligence in view of the passenger's disability, such as will defeat his recovery for injury where the carrier has been negligent, as no greater care can be required of him than his ability will allow him to exercise.[44] A passenger suffering from a physical disability should take such care as may be required and feasible in view of his condition,[45] and it has been held that, if a passenger is laboring under a disability, increasing his liability to accident, he will be guilty of negligence and cannot recover for an injury sustained if he does not make known his infirmity to the carrier's agent.[46] The fact that the carrier does know of the passenger's impaired condition will not, however, relieve the latter of the duty of exercising such care as may be reasonable and possible for one of such condition.[47]

Duty to have attendant. It has been held that if a passenger is incapable of taking care of himself he should have an attendant along to render him such assistance as he may require,[48] but, as shown infra § 803, a failure to provide such an attendant or protector does not amount to contributory negligence as a matter of law. Where a passenger incapable of taking proper care of himself is accompanied by an attendant, the negligence of the latter will be regarded in law as the negligence of the passenger attended, when he has been injured in consequence of such negligence.[49]

b. Children

The age, intelligence, and experience of a child passenger should be considered in determining whether or not he was guilty of contributory negligence. While the negligence of an accompanying parent may not be imputed to the child passenger, the presence of the parent may operate to relieve the carrier from the duty of observing extra precautions in respect of the child.

The same care, discretion, and foresight cannot be required of a child of immature years as of an ordinary adult, but he is required to exercise such care and judgment as may reasonably be expected of a child of the same age and mental development as the one in question, and to that extent he is responsible for acts or omissions contributing to his own injury.[50] Age is not the only element for consideration, but there should also be taken into account the intelligence, capacity, and experience of the child.[51]

Negligence of parent. The negligence of the parent will not, in general, be imputed to the child so as to defeat recovery by the child for an injury received;[52] but if the child is in charge of the par-

43. U.S.—Jones v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry., supra.
Neb.—Union Pac. R. Co. v. Roeser, 95 N.W. 68, 69 Neb. 62—Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Hyatt, 67 N.W 8, 48 Neb. 161, 167—Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Hague, 66 N.W. 1000, 48 Neb. 97—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Baier, 55 N.W. 913, 37 Neb. 235, error dismissed 14 S.Ct. 1149, 154 U.S. 510, 38 L.Ed. 1083—Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Landauer, 54 N.W. 976, 36 Neb. 642—Omaha & R. V. R. Co. v. Chollette, 49 N.W. 1114, 33 Neb. 143.

44. Mont.—Gohn v. Butte Hotel Co., 295 P. 262, 265, 88 Mont. 599, quoting Corpus Juris.
Or.—Watts v. Spokane, P. & S. Ry. Co., 171 P. 901, 88 Or. 192.
10 C.J. p 1098 note 47.

45. Ill.—Bushman v. Calumet & South Chicago Ry. Co., 214 Ill. App. 435.
Duty of deaf man to use his eyes
Where a passenger had been deaf for a number of years, and on alighting from a street car failed to hear another car approaching and by which he was struck, his negligence in failing to look for other cars barred recovery.—Bushman v. Calumet & South Chicago Ry. Co., 214 Ill. App. 435.

46. N.H.—Foss v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 21 A. 222, 66 N.H. 256, 49 Am. S.R. 607, 11 L.R.A. 367.
10 C.J. p 1099 note 48.

47. Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343.

48. Miss.—New Orleans, etc., R. Co. v. Statham, 42 Miss. 607, 97 Am.D. 478.

49. Ill.—Ohio, etc., R. Co. v. Stratton, 78 Ill. 88.
N.Y.—Morrison v. Erie R. Co., 56 N.Y. 302—Willetts v. Buffalo, etc., R. Co., 14 Barb. 585.

50. N.J.—Heinige v. Little Ferry Bus Line, 171 A. 135, 12 N.J.Misc. 213
10 C.J. p 1099 note 52.
Five year old boarding street car
Child of five could not be contributorily negligent in boarding street car, so as to prevent recovery for leg injury received when motorman allegedly closed door and raised step too soon.—Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co. v. Curtis, Tex.Civ.App., 53 S.W.2d 85, error refused.

51. W.Va.—Trippett v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 130 S.E. 483, 100 W.Va. 319.

52. Vt.—Ploof v. Burlington Tract. Co., 41 A. 1017, 70 Vt. 509, 43 L.R.A. 103.

ent the carrier may be relieved by that fact from any extra caution with reference to the child on account of its immature years, and the negligence of the parent or person in charge of the child may therefore tend to rebut negligence of the carrier.[53]

c. Intoxicated Passengers

The intoxication of a passenger is one circumstance to be considered on the issue of contributory negligence, and may or may not bar his recovery for injuries sustained while intoxicated.

The voluntary intoxication of a passenger does not relieve him of the duty of exercising ordinary care for his own safety;[54] and is a circumstance to be considered as bearing on the question whether by his own conduct he brought the injury on himself, and, if so, may be sufficient to defeat a recovery.[55] It has been held that a drunken passenger should exercise such care for his safety as may usually be expected of a sober passenger of ordinary prudence under like circumstances.[56] On the other hand, the mere fact that a passenger is intoxicated at the time of receiving an injury caused by the negligence of the carrier will not, as a matter of law, defeat a recovery,[57] and where the intoxication of the passenger is not a direct and proximate cause of his injury such intoxication cannot be classified as contributory negligence barring recovery.[58] Where a common carrier owes to a passenger a special duty to protect him because of his intoxication, his intoxication is considered as only a condition under which the problem of liability must be solved, and a remote and not a proximate cause of injury, even though intoxication may have been present and have affected the conduct of the passenger.[59]

§ 777. Acts in Emergencies

A passenger is not contributorily negligent in acting erroneously in the face of apparent imminent peril where the situation arises from the carrier's fault and the passenger lacks time for deliberation.

In determining whether the passenger has exercised ordinary care to avoid the injury which he has received as a result of the carrier's negligence, it sometimes becomes a question whether he has been negligent in doing an act which would in itself have been presumptively negligent, but for the circumstances which, it is claimed, justified it in the attempt to escape a threatened injury, such as a collision, and the rule is well established that, if the passenger acts as a reasonably prudent person would have done in view of the danger as it appeared to him, he is not guilty of contributory negligence so as to bar his right of recovery against the carrier, although, if he had not acted thus in the attempt to avoid injury, he would have been safe.[60] The same rule is applicable to the failure of the Iowa.—Wymore v. Mahaska County, 43 N.W. 264, 78 Iowa 396, 16 Am.S.R. 449, 6 L.R.A. 545.

53. U.S.—The Burgundia, D.C.N.Y., 29 F. 464.
Ill.—Savage v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 164 Ill.App. 634.
Ky.—Sandifer v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 89 S.W. 528, 28 Ky.L. 464.
N.Y.—Morrison v. Erie R. Co., 56 N.Y. 302.

54. Ill.—Wilcke v. Henrotin, 89 N.E. 329, 241 Ill. 169.

55. Ill.—O'Rourke v. Louisville & N.R. Co., 197 Ill.App. 45.
Ky.—Cincinnati, N. O & T. P. Ry. Co. v. Francis, 220 S.W. 739, 187 Ky. 703.
Me.—Mahan v. Hines, 115 A. 132, 120 Me. 371.
10 C.J. p 1100 note 57.

Intoxication resulting in reckless conduct

"The rule is that an intoxicated passenger who becomes indifferent or reckless, and in consequence fails to exercise ordinary care to protect himself from danger, and is injured, will be denied a recovery, and he cannot rely upon intoxication as an excuse for failure to exercise care for his own safety"—McDermott v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 206 S.W. 6, 8, 182 Ky. 22.

Where no special duty on carrier

"In cases where there is no special duty resting upon the defendant to protect the plaintiff from the results of his own intoxication, the fact that plaintiff was intoxicated, if it was a contributing cause of the injury, is a bar to the action."—Fardette v. New York & S Ry. Co., 180 N.Y.S. 179, 181, 190 App.Div. 543.

56. Iowa.—Hughes v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 129 N.W. 956, 150 Iowa 232.
10 C.J. p 1100 note 55.

57. Kan.—O'Keefe v. Kansas City Western R. Co., 124 P. 416, 87 Kan. 322, 48 L.R.A.,N.S., 135.
10 C.J. p 1100 note 56.

58. N.Y.—Fagan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 115 N.E. 704, 220 N.Y. 301, L.R.A.1917E 663, reversing 155 N.Y.S. 609, 170 App.Div. 47.

Drunken passenger left in dangerous place

Where a railroad accepted an intoxicated passenger for transportation, the passenger's intoxication, when he was assisted from the train at destination and negligently left in a dangerous situation, was not contributory negligence, although he was negligent in becoming intoxicated, since his intoxication previous to and at the time the road unlawfully placed him in a hazardous situation was not a direct and proximate cause of his injury later by a train.—Fagan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 115 N.E. 704, 220 N.Y. 301 reversing 155 N.Y.S. 609, 170 App.Div. 47.

59. N.Y.—Fardette v. New York & S. Ry. Co., 180 N.Y.S. 179, 190 App. Div. 543.

60. Cal.—Drury v. Los Angeles Ry Corporation, 282 P. 525, 102 Cal. App. 58.
La.—Guidry v. Morgan's Louisiana & T. R. & S. S. Co., 74 So. 534, 140 La. 1007, L.R.A.1917D 962.
10 C.J. p 1101 note 58.

Falling passenger clinging to handlebar

Although passenger of street car falling off rear platform while rounding curve could have saved herself from serious injury by not clinging to handlebar, if ordinarily prudent person would have so acted under similar circumstances, passenger will nevertheless be excused from penalty of what might otherwise amount to contributory negligence.—Drury v Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 282 P. 525, 102 Cal.App. 58.

No duty to calculate chances

"This court has uniformly held that on occasions where a passenger is suddenly confronted by imminent danger he cannot reasonably be ex-

passenger to attempt to avoid or escape threatened injury.[61] The danger need only be apparent in order to relieve the passenger from the charge of contributory negligence,[62] but the appearances must be such as would reasonably cause alarm to a person of ordinary prudence under the same circumstances; it will not be sufficient that the passenger became alarmed by reason of appearances produced wholly or in part by the carrier, if these appearances were not such as reasonably to cause alarm,[63] and it is also necessary that the alarm arise from the carrier's negligence and that the appearance of danger was imminent, so as to leave no time for deliberation.[64]

Alighting from moving vehicle to avoid impending danger. Where a passenger, as the result of the misconduct or negligence of the carrier, is placed in such a perilous position as to render his jumping from a moving vehicle an act of reasonable precaution, such as to avoid an apparent collision or overturning, and he leaps therefrom and thereby sustains an injury, he is not guilty of contributory negligence, and the carrier will be answerable in damages,[65] and recovery has been allowed where the passenger was in no real danger but was induced through misconduct attributable to the carrier to believe that he was in danger.[66]

However, if a passenger induced by a groundless fear jumps from a moving vehicle and is injured in consequence he cannot recover.[67]

The matter of a passenger's alighting from a moving vehicle is further considered infra § 793.

§ 778. Acts to Avoid Inconvenience

A passenger may be guilty of contributory negligence where he incurs danger voluntarily and for the mere purpose of avoiding inconvenience.

Where a passenger, to avoid suffering some inconvenience only, voluntarily runs into an obvious danger and injury ensues, he will be held guilty of contributory negligence and cannot recover.[68] However, it has been held that, if the inconvenience is very great, and the danger run in avoiding it is very slight, it may not be unreasonable to incur that danger.[69]

§ 779. Violations of Regulations or Directions

A passenger may be guilty of contributory negligence where he acts in disregard of reasonable regulations or directions of the carrier, provided that he has timely notice thereof. In some jurisdictions there are statutes governing such matters.

It will in general constitute negligence on the part of a passenger to violate the reasonable regulations made by the carrier with reference to the safety of passengers, and for an injury resulting from such violation he cannot recover, although the injury is attributable in part to the negligence of pected to calculate chances, or to deliberate upon the means of escape, but that he must of necessity judge of the danger by the circumstances as they at the instant appear to him, and not by the result. Immediate action and decision are required of him, and if he acts as a man of ordinary prudence placed in similar circumstances, and in doing so makes an effort to escape injury and is injured, the railroad company is responsible to him for his damages"—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Hill, 216 S. W. 1054, 1057, 141 Ark. 378

61. Colo.—Montgomery v. Colorado Springs, etc., R. Co., 114 P. 659, 50 Colo. 210.
10 C.J. p. 1101 note 59.

Failure to warn driver

Passengers held not contributorily negligent in failing to warn taxicab driver of impending danger when driver suddenly made left turn in front of rapidly approaching truck, and an automobile passenger is not obliged to protest manner of operating automobile, where danger arises so unexpectedly that statement or act of passenger would not change situation or might increase danger—Zmuda v. McFarland, 165 A. 446, 53 R.I. 210.

62. Ala.—Selma St., etc., R. Co. v. Owen, 31 So. 598, 132 Ala. 420
Mo.—Moore v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 176 S.W. 1120, 189 Mo. App. 555
10 C.J. p. 1101 note 60

63. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Murray, 18 S.W. 50, 55 Ark. 248, 29 Am.S.R. 32, 16 L.R.A. 787.
10 C.J. p. 1102 note 61

64. Mo.—Delfosse v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 201 S.W. 860.
10 C.J. p. 1102 note 62

65. Pa.—Lehner v. Pittsburg R. Co., 72 A. 525, 223 Pa. 208, 132 Am.S.R. 729, 16 Ann.Cas. 83
10 C.J. p. 1102 note 63

Jumping under threat of being shot

Conduct of passenger in jumping from moving street car when conductor curses whole bunch and threatens to shoot is not inexcusable, he not being required to weigh nicely chances between which he chooses—Hendrix v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, Mo., 193 S.W. 812.

Motorbus passenger

Ky.—McGraw v. Ayers, 58 S.W.2d 378, 248 Ky. 166.

66. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Hunt, 86 So. 97, 17 Ala. App. 566, certiorari granted Ex parte Alabama Great Southern R. Co., 86 So. 100, 204 Ala. 504.

Victim of practical joke

Whenever a common carrier by direct action or negligent connivance threatens a passenger with summary execution as a spy, besides mutilation of his valuable organs, and thereby produces such terror in his mind as to induce him to alight from a rapidly moving train to escape injury, the carrier is liable, under the sudden emergency doctrine, "be the passenger a Solomon or a simpleton"—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Hunt, 86 So. 97, 100, 17 Ala. App. 566, certiorari granted Ex parte Alabama Great Southern R. Co., 86 So. 100, 204 Ala. 504, and cause remanded for further consideration on ground that instructions imposed too broad a duty on the carrier in respect of protecting him from threats of fellow passengers.

67. Mo.—Delfosse v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 201 S.W. 860
10 C.J. p. 1102 note 64.

68. Wash.—Kroeger v. Seattle Electric Co., 79 P. 1115, 37 Wash. 544

69. Md.—Western Maryland R. Co. v. Stanley, 61 Md. 266, 48 Am.R. 96
10 C.J. p. 1102 note 66.

the carrier;[70] but, in order to charge a passenger with contributory negligence for such a violation, he must have had notice of the rule or regulation at the time, or must have been charged with notice thereof.[71] A breach of the carrier's rule will not amount to contributory negligence where it appears that the carrier has waived or abrogated the rule, as by permitting it to be disregarded.[72]

Disregarding directions or warnings. The passenger should be guided by the directions of the employees in charge, with reference to his own safety, and may be guilty of contributory negligence in failing to observe warnings or cautions thus given,[73] although the act done by him is one customarily done by others.[74] However, to charge a passenger with negligence in disobeying such a warning, the warning must be timely,[75] must reasonably come to his notice,[76] and he must have reason to know that it is intended for his safety.[77]

To make a warning effectual, it is not essential that the employees in charge should enforce compliance with it.[78]

§ 780. Acts by Permission or Direction of Employees

The fact that a passenger acts in conformity to the permission or direction of the carrier may absolve him from contributory negligence in doing acts which would otherwise constitute such negligence, although even where he acts pursuant to such permission or direction the passenger must exercise reasonable care for his own safety.

Where a passenger acts in conformity to a permission or direction given by a conductor or other agent of the carrier, acting within the scope of his employment, and such conduct on his part will not expose him to a known or apparent danger which a prudent man would not incur, he will not be guilty of contributory negligence, although his conduct may result in bringing injury on him.[79] Misdirec-

70. U S —Houston v Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., C C A.N.J., 274 F. 599
Ga —Bailey v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 124 S E 907, 32 Ga App 793.
Pa —Tiers v Pennsylvania R. Co., 141 A. 487, 292 Pa 522
10 C J p 1103 note 68.
"Where a railroad company undertakes the transportation of passengers for an agreed price, the contract includes many things. The passenger agrees to be bound by all the company's reasonable rules and regulations for entering, occupying and leaving trains, and if injury befalls him by reason of disregard of the regulations which are necessary to the conduct of the business, the company will not be liable even though the negligence of one of its servants concurred in causing the mischief."—Seltzer v. Philadelphia & R Co., 69 Pa.Super. 309, 315

71. Ill —Harley v. Aurora, etc, R. Co, 182 Ill App 643
Md.—United R, etc., Co. v Hertel, 55 A. 428, 97 Md. 382
Mass.—Cutts v. Boston El R Co., 89 N.E. 211, 202 Mass 450
10 C J. p 1103 note 69.

72. Ga —Bailey v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co, 124 S E. 907, 32 Ga App. 793.
10 C J. p 1103 note 70.

Waiver not shown

Where caretaker in charge of stock was told by a railway employee that the train would stop, so he could get on board, the employee's subsequent query as to whether he could not board the train while it was moving slowly, without any express or implied threat that he would miss the train, if he refused to board it while moving, was not a waiver of requirement of contract, under which he was carried, that he should remain in the caboose while the train was in motion.—Hulet v. Payne, C.C.A N.D, 282 F 401—10 C J. p 1103 note 70 [a].

73. La —La Rosa v. New Orleans Public Service, 121 So. 379, 10 La. App. 324.
10 C J. p 1103 note 71.

Standing on platform

For a passenger on fast-moving train operated outside of municipality to stand on platform, particularly after warning not to do so, is "contributory negligence" defeating recovery for injuries resulting therefrom, although there is negligence of carrier's employees.—Louviere v Southwestern Traction & Power Co., 77 So. 293, 142 La. 590, L R.A 1918C 169.

74. Ill —Raymond v Chicago, etc., R. Co., 126 Ill.App 240.

75. Ind.—Louisville, etc, R. Co. v. Bean, 36 N.E. 443, 9 Ind App. 240.

76. Cal —Lynn v. Southern Pac. Co., 36 P 1018, 103 Cal. 7, 24 L.R.A. 710.
10 C.J p 1104 note 74

77. Ill.—West Chicago St. R. Co. v. Johnson, 54 N E 334, 180 Ill. 285, affirming 77 Ill App. 142.
10 C J. p 1104 note 75.

78. Mo.—Aufdenberg v St. Louis, etc, R. Co, 34 S.W 485, 132 Mo. 565—Sherman v. Hannibal, etc, R. Co, 72 Mo. 62, 37 Am R. 423.

79. Ark.—Ft. Smith Traction Co. v. Oliver, 46 S W.2d 647, 185 Ark 227
Cal —Gornstein v. Priver, 221 P. 396, 64 Cal.App. 249.
Del —Clayton v. Philadelphia, B & W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343
10 C.J. p 1104 note 78.

Matter for consideration of jury

While instruction of a carrier's employee in the line of his authority will not excuse or justify an act by a passenger which is obviously dangerous, such instruction or invitation where the act is not obviously dangerous may be considered by the jury in connection with other facts in determining whether the passenger was negligent and the degree of negligence —Southern Ry Co v. Whitehead, 120 S.E. 700, 31 Ga App. 398

Riding on steps or platform

(1) A passenger may rely on the invitation of a brakeman to occupy a place on car steps preparatory to getting off when the train stops or slows at a station —Shelton v. Chicago, M & St. P. Ry. Co., Mo App., 190 S.W. 46.

(2) The mere fact that a person rides on a crowded car or the platform of such a car on the invitation of the carrier cannot be regarded as contributory negligence per se.—Sand Springs Ry Co. v. Smith, 203 P. 207, 84 Okl 211.

Seated with legs dangling over edge of truck

One of several passengers on a truck, rented for the carriage of passengers, permitted to seat themselves with their legs dangling over the end, from which the staves were taken out, with the knowledge of the driver, who gave no warning of danger, was not guilty of negligence contributing to her injury, when another rented truck which was following collided with that on which she was riding.—Gornstein v. Priver, 221 P. 396, 64 Cal.App. 249.

tions by persons in charge of a train as to the proper place for passengers to get off will render the carrier liable to one who, acting in reasonable reliance on the directions given, is injured,[80] and an alighting passenger may properly rely on information given him by a brakeman relative to the movement of trains.[81] However, a passenger's duty to obey directions of a carrier's agent does not extend to cases where the passenger has knowledge that obedience will lead to apparent danger,[82] and where he does so may assume the risk involved,[83] and the fact that a passenger acts in conformity to the permission or direction of the carrier's agent or employee does not absolve him from the duty of using reasonable care under existing circumstances to protect himself from injury.[84]

Where an agent of the carrier undertakes to escort a passenger or prospective passenger across a highway in connection with travel or proposed travel on the vehicles of the carrier, the passenger is not relieved of the duty to exercise ordinary care for his own safety, although he may to some extent rely on the protection of such escort and need not exercise the same degree of care as if proceeding alone.[85]

Getting on or off moving vehicle. An illustration of rule just stated is furnished by cases with reference to injuries received by a passenger who attempts to get on board of, or alight from, a vehicle while moving. Such an act is generally regarded as contrary to reasonable prudence, as shown infra § 793; but, if it is done in response to the invitation or direction of the person in charge of the train, the passenger may thereby be exonerated from fault.[86] However, the passenger is not exonerated if the act is manifestly, to the judgment

Opening elevator door as invitation to step out

Relative to contributory negligence of passenger, injured in alighting from passenger elevator when its floor was several inches below that of the hall, opening of elevator door by operator could be considered as substantial assurance of safety.—Bemis v. Plant, 106 A. 764, 93 Conn. 554.

80. Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343.
10 C.J. p 1104 note 79.

Direction implied from call of "all out"

Train conductor's calling out "all out for Atlanta," passenger's destination, indicated that conductor was ready for passenger to disembark, and gave passenger right to assume that railroad had furnished safe place for her to alight.—Metts v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 182 S.E. 531, 52 Ga.App. 115.

81. Ark.—Missouri Pac. R. Co v. Kennedy, 239 S.W. 376, 153 Ark. 77.

Temporary departure from train

A passenger, in temporarily alighting from a railroad train at an intermediate station, was entitled to rely on information as to prospective movements of the train given him on his request by the railroad company's brakeman, based on the customary movements of that train or on the orders under which it was operating.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v Kennedy, 239 S.W. 376, 153 Ark. 77.

82. Ind.—Hudnut v. Indiana De Luxe Cab Co., 182 N.E. 711, 98 Ind. App. 44.

83. N.J.—McGrath v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., Sup., 100 A. 753.

Passing from coach to coach of moving train

Passenger thrown from platform of coach of moving train, while passing from one coach to another in obedience to command of member of train crew, which involved manifest danger under existing circumstances, held to have assumed risk.—McGrath v. Delaware L. & W. R. Co., Sup., 100 A. 753.

84. Conn.—Cohen v. Eastern Stages, 164 A. 383, 116 Conn. 210.
Ga.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Whitehead, 120 S.E. 700, 31 Ga.App. 398
Tex.—Texas & N. O Ry. Co. v. Rooks, Com.App., 293 S.W. 554, denying rehearing 292 S.W. 536, which affirmed, Civ.App., 283 S.W. 622.
Va.—Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Jenkins, 89 S.E. 96, 119 Va. 186.

Negligent signal by bus driver

Negligence of bus driver in signaling to passenger to cross road to board another vehicle does not absolve passenger from using reasonable care to protect himself from injury.—Cohen v. Eastern Stages, 164 A. 383, 116 Conn. 210.

Stepping off street car and into path of auto

A passenger who goes to the front door as a street car approaches his stop and stands there waiting for the doors to be opened by the motorman, and the motorman does open them while the car is in motion, cannot say that the motorman invites him to alight, or that he has a right to assume that the motorman has exercised the highest degree of care for his protection, and that it is safe to attempt to alight; and, assuming that opening door of vestibule of street car is an invitation to alight, a passenger stepping through the open door in broad daylight, while the car was moving very slowly, with the result that he was struck by the rear fender of an automobile traveling in the same direction, was guilty of contributory negligence; the danger being obvious and apparent.—Twaddell's Adm'r v. South Covington & C. St. Ry. Co., 255 S.W. 1027, 201 Ky. 97.

85. Cal.—Sanchez v. Pacific Auto Stages, 2 P.2d 845, 116 Cal.App. 392.

86. Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343, citing Corpus Juris with approval.
Mo.—Gunn v. United Ry. Co of St. Louis, 193 S.W. 814, 270 Mo. 517, L.R.A. 1917D 1131.
10 C.J. p 1105 note 81.

Opening door of moving street car

(1) A passenger on a street car is entitled to rely on a well-established custom that the motorman will not open the doors to allow passengers to alight until the car comes to a full stop, and, where the motorman opens the doors, his act may be considered as a direction for passengers to alight then and there.—Tillery v. Harvey, Mo.App., 214 S.W. 246.

(2) If, as claimed, a street car conductor opened the door and told a passenger to alight, while the car was moving, and while standing on the step, the car increased its speed with a sudden jerk, injuring him, the company was not exonerated because the conductor opened the door at the passenger's request.—Leonard v. United Rys. Co of St. Louis, Mo. App., 239 S.W. 892

Contract provisions as not controlling

Although the transportation contract of an owner accompanying a shipment of live stock provided that of a reasonable person, imprudent, or contrary to the authority of the employee who gives the direction.[87] The mere advice or counsel of those in charge of the train as to getting on or off while the train is in motion will not be enough to excuse the passenger in doing a negligent or wrongful act.[88]

§ 781. Proximate Cause

To bar recovery, the negligence of a passenger must be the proximate cause of his injury. It has been held that the concurring negligence of the carrier and the passenger will bar a recovery, although the concurring negligence of the carrier and a stranger will not.

Carriers are not responsible for injuries resulting from the contributory negligence of the passenger, as shown supra § 774; in other words, the carrier is not responsible where the injury was the proximate result of the negligence or willful act of the passenger.[89] It has been held that the passenger's negligence, in order to prevent a recovery, he was to remain in the caboose and not to get on and off the caboose while in motion, the owner could nevertheless sue for personal injuries sustained in alighting from the train while in motion on the advice of the conductor, the suit not being one for breach of contract, but for an injury resulting from the negligent act of defendant's employee under the maxim respondeat superior, imputing liability to a master for the negligent act of a servant within the servant's employment, irrespective of any contract.—Missouri Pac R. Co v. Hanna, 247 S.W. 1044, 157 Ark. 32, certiorari granted 43 S. Ct. 702, 262 U.S. 740, 67 L.Ed. 1209, and error dismissed 45 S.Ct. 36, 266 U.S. 184, 69 L.Ed. 235.

87. Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B & W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343.
10 C.J. p 1105 note 82.

88. Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R Co., supra.
10 C.J p 1105 note 83.

89. Ala.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Pruett, 77 So. 49, 200 Ala. 675.
Cal.—Metzler v. Los Angeles Railway Corporation, 279 P. 190, 99 Cal.App 656.
Ga.—Atlanta Northern Ry. Co. v Goode, 91 S.E. 886, 19 Ga.App. 555
Ill.—See Kaber v. Borland, 201 Ill. App. 516.
La.—Crettet v. New Orleans City R Co., 98 So. 657, 154 La. 1034.
Miss.—Dantzler Shipbuilding & Drydocks Co. v. Hurley, 81 So. 163, 119 Miss. 473, 4 A.L.R. 1487, suggestion of error denied 81 So 406.
Mo.—Smuzynski v. East St. Louis Ry. Co., App., 93 S.W.2d 1058.
Pa.—Shade v. Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist. 34; 20 Pa.Co. 292.
Tex.—Crow v. Southwestern Transp. Co., Civ.App., 73 S.W.2d 607, error refused—St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gibson, Civ.App., 211 S.W. 263.
W.Va.—Twyman v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 191 S.E. 541—Slaven v. Baltimore & O. R. Co, 171 S.E. 818, 114 W.Va. 315—Nutter v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., 166 S.E. 815, 113 W.Va. 94.
10 C.J. p 1105 note 85.

Assuming perilous position

Negligence of intending passenger, struck while attempting to board moving train by train on parallel track, in placing himself in perilous position on narrow space between tracks, held proximate cause of his injury.—Matthews v. Central of Georgia Ry. Co., 169 S.E. 41, 46 Ga. App. 699.

Resting hand on gate as proximate cause of fall

Any fault of carrier's machinery or employees in only partially opening gates of street car when stopped for passengers was not a proximate cause of fall of a passenger, who, in alighting while the car was standing still, put her hand on a gate for support or to widen the space, whereupon they suddenly opened, causing her to fall; her fall was attributable to her own act.—Smith v. Bradley, 89 So. 273, 206 Ala. 128.

Riding with leg over door of auto

Where, in an action for injury to a passenger in an automobile, resulting in his death, the jury could reasonably have found that deceased rode with one leg protruding from the car, which was driven slowly near a water tank without sufficient force to damage the fender coming in contact therewith, or throw him from the car, and that he fell from the car, due to his leg being caught between the car and the tank, thereby pulling him from his car as it passed forward, they could have found that he was negligent, and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury.—Guilfoile v. Smith, 116 A. 237, 97 Conn. 271.

Misuse of appliance

Where a passenger is injured in attempting to use a step box, in boarding or alighting from a train, without looking at it, and stumbles over or against it when he should have stepped on it, his injuries are attributable to his misuse of the appliance, and not to its inadequacy, and the carrier is not liable for his injuries.—Scott v. Vicksburg, S & P. Ry. Co, 90 So. 840, 150 La. 537, 20 A.L.R. 903.

Standing too close to track

(1) Prospective passenger's negligence in standing so close to tracks as to be struck by overhang of trolley extending twenty-three inches beyond rail held proximate cause of injury, barring his recovery.—Sawyer v. Androscoggin Electric Co., 159 A. 119, 131 Me. 60.

(2) Where person awaiting train crossed track in front of it, but remained so close as to be struck by the train, the position she assumed, and not speed of train or brilliancy of headlight, was the cause of the injury.—Kent v. Ogden, L. & I Ry. Co., 167 P. 666, 50 Utah 328.

Other acts constituting proximate cause

(1) Employer, who transported employees to and from their homes in an automobile truck for a small consideration, was not liable for death of employee, who jumped from moving truck upon truck driver's failure to stop directly opposite his gate, the proximate cause of the injury causing death being the voluntary act of employee in jumping from truck, and not the negligence of the driver.—Dantzler Shipbuilding & Dry Docks Co. v. Hurley, 81 So. 163, 119 Miss 473, 4 A.L.R. 1487, suggestion of error denied 81 So. 406.

(2) Passenger's action in jumping from moving train constituted intervening cause of injury for which he alone was responsible.—Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Armitage, Tex. Civ.App., 39 S.W.2d 108, error refused.

(3) Where a street car contained a sign inviting passengers to leave by the front exit, and plaintiff went to the rear platform to alight, although defendant did not allow her time to alight safely, and failed to close the vestibule door before starting the car according to its custom, its acts were not the proximate cause of the injury where plaintiff voluntarily alighted from the moving car while it was running at the rate of eighteen miles an hour.—Kirby v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, Mo., 242 S.W. 79.

(4) Proximate cause shown where plaintiff stepped off the wrong side of the train in the dark.—Fort must have been such as materially contributed to the injury.[90] Negligence of the passenger having no proximate connection with his injury will not bar a recovery,[91] as where the passenger's injury was not caused by his intoxication,[92] or by his violation of regulations or directions of the carrier,[93] or by his negligence in mounting or alighting from a moving vehicle,[94] or in riding on the platform or steps of the vehicle,[95] or in leaving a vehicle from or at the wrong place.[96]

If the injured passenger and the carrier are equally negligent, or, in other words, if their negligence concurs in causing the injury, there can be no recovery.[97]

The concurring negligence of the carrier and a stranger will not defeat a recovery.[98]

§ 782. Injury Avoidable Notwithstanding Contributory Negligence

Where a carrier has the last clear chance to prevent the injury to a negligent passenger, it will be liable in damages for its failure to do so.

The doctrine of the preceding section that contributory negligence to defeat recovery must be the proximate cause of the injury leads to a well recognized rule that, if the negligence of the passenger is known to the employees of the carrier, or in the exercise of proper care might have been known to them, and by the exercise of the degree of care required of carriers for the protection of their passengers the injury likely to result from such negligence might have been avoided, then the carrier is liable for the fault of its employees in not avoiding such injury, such fault being deemed the proximate cause thereof, while the negligence of the passenger becomes the remote cause.[99] This rule

Worth & D. C Ry. Co v. Armitage, supra.
10 C.J. p 1105 note 85 [c].

90. Miss—Yazoo, etc, R. Co. v. Byrd, 42 So. 286 89 Miss. 308.
10 C J. p 1107 note 87

91. U S.—Fish v. Ball, C C A Utah, 93 F.2d 853—Harmon v. Barber, Ohio, 247 F 1, 159 C.C.A. 219, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct 335, 246 U. S 666, 62 L.Ed. 929
Ind—Heed v. Gummere, 136 N.E. 5, 192 Ind 227.
S C.—Comer v Atlantic Coast Line R. Co, 90 S E. 188, 105 S C. 480.
Tex.—Texas & N O. R. Co. v. Parry, Civ.App, 1 S.W 2d 760, reversed on other grounds, Com.App, 12 S. W 2d 997—Houston E & W. T. Ry. Co v. Lynch, Civ.App., 208 S. W. 714—Ablon v. Electric Express & Baggage Co., Civ App, 206 S.W. 717, affirmed Electric Express & Baggage Co v. Ablon, 218 S.W 1030, 110 Tex. 235.
10 C J. p 1105 note 85.

Failure to act

The negligence of a passenger on a private carrier in doing nothing for his own safety must be shown to be the proximate, efficient, and essential cause of his injury, to constitute contributory negligence—Duffy v J. W Bishop Co., 122 A. 121, 99 Conn. 573

Failure to ask station agent for key to toilet

Where plaintiff elderly lady who had been waiting in station while local mixed freight train on which she was traveling switched, desiring to use toilet and seeing none about station, returned to caboose, and after using toilet there was injured, while standing in aisle, by alleged violent jerking of train, held, failure of plaintiff to ask station agent for information concerning station toilet or for key was not proximate cause of injury.—Meeks v Graysonia, N. & A. R. Co., 272 S W. 360, 168 Ark 966.

Riding with leg over door of auto

If a passenger while riding in an automobile with a part of his leg over the car door was injured at the time of a collision of the car with some fixed or moving object in the highway caused by the negligent operation of the car, it does not follow that the proximate cause of the injury was due to the passenger's negligence, even though passenger would not have been injured if he had kept his leg in the car, and in an action by a passenger against a carrier to recover for personal injuries, recovery will not be barred by reason of negligence of the plaintiff unless the evidence establishes that such negligence was the proximate cause of his injuries—Guilfoiel v. Smith, 111 A. 593, 95 Conn 442.

92. La.—Grennon v. New Orleans Public Service, 120 So. 801, 10 La App. 641
10 C.J. p 1105 note 85 [f].

93. Minn—Gerin v. Chicago, M. & St P Ry. Co., 158 N W. 630, 133 Minn 395

Contract regulations

Railroad could not escape liability for death of stock caretaker, caused by derailment simply because he violated shipping contract requirement that he remain in caboose, it not being shown that violation of contract had anything to do with causing injury—Heed v. Gummere, 136 N E. 5, 192 Ind 227.

94. N.Y.—Van Ostran v. New York Central, etc, R. Co, 35 Hun 590, affirmed 104 N Y 683
10 C.J. p 1105 note 85 [b], [c].

95. S.C.—Talbert v Charleston, etc., R. Co., 81 S E 182, 97 S C. 465
10 C J. p 1105 note 85 [a].

Injury occurring on restarting of train

The fact that plaintiff had been riding on the platform of the train did not bar his recovery where the train had come to a full stop, plaintiff was on his way down the steps to alight at a station, and his injury was proximately due to the sudden restarting of the train which threw him to the ground.—Comer v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 90 S E. 188, 105 S C. 480

96. S C—Whitworth v. Columbia, etc, R. Co., 85 S E. 402, 101 S C. 213.
10 C J. p 1105 note 85 [g].

Wrong station

Leaving train at wrong station held not direct and proximate cause of injury to passenger in alighting thereat, where injury resulted from brakeman's misplacing of box or stool on to which plaintiff stepped—Texas & N O R. Co. v. Rooks, Tex Civ.App., 283 S W 622, affirmed, Com App., 292 S W. 536, and rehearing denied 293 S W. 554.

97. Ga.—Pickett v Central of Georgia R. Co, 74 S E 1027, 138 Ga. 177, Ann.Cas 1913C 1380.
10 C.J. p 1107 note 86.

98. Ala—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So 479, 198 Ala 262.

Baggage blocking aisle

Action against carrier for injuries to passenger caused by falling over baggage left in aisles of car by other passengers may be defeated if passenger was guilty of contributory negligence, but negligence of stranger in obstructing aisle concurring with that of carrier will not defeat action—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So. 479, 198 Ala. 262.

99. Cal.—Lorry v. Englander Drayage & Warehouse Co., 291 P. 467, 108 Cal App. 116.

applies when, and only when, the carrier has actual or constructive knowledge of the passenger's danger,[1] when the situation of the passenger is in fact one of peril,[2] when the carrier realizes, or should realize, that the passenger cannot or will not avail himself of any opportunity for escape,[3] and

Conn.—Pond v Connecticut Co., 114 A. 532, 96 Conn 451

Ga.—Bailey v Georgia Ry & Power Co 124 S.E 907, 32 Ga App. 793.

Mich.—Schnurr v. Detroit United Ry., 193 N.W. 772, 222 Mich 591

Mo.—Took v Wells, 53 S W 2d 389, 331 Mo 249—Bode v. Wells, 15 S W 2d 335, 322 Mo 386.

N Y.—Johnson v Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 183 N Y S. 224, 192 App Div 639.

Ohio.—McGinn v Columbus Ry. & Light Co., 4 Ohio App 398

Va.—Meanley v Petersburg, H. & C P Ry. Co, 112 S E. 800, 133 Va 173

Wash.—Switzer v City of Seattle, 294 P. 225, 159 Wash. 540, modified in other respects 298 P 347.

10 C.J. p 1107 note 89

Duty of carrier generally

Trainmen observing plaintiff in a position of peril while attempting to board a moving train were bound to do nothing to increase his hazard and were required to exercise reasonable care to diminish it and to avoid injury.—Webb v Missouri O & G Ry Co., 179 P. 17, 74 Okl 223

Danger zone

Danger zone, under humanitarian doctrine, is reached at moment plaintiff approaches so near point of collision and under such circumstances that it is or reasonably should be apparent to defendant carrier or its servants that plaintiff cannot or will not stop before coming into defendant's path.—Kent v Kiel, Mo App., 97 S W 2d 885.

Intoxicated passenger

Street railroad held not to have discharged full duty, after discovering dangerous position of prospective passenger in intoxicated condition within few feet of rails.—Grennon v. New Orleans Public Service, 120 So. 801, 10 La App. 641.—10 C J p 1107 note 89 [h].

Prospective passenger obviously oblivious to danger

While an engineer may ordinarily presume that pedestrians near tracks will observe an approaching train and avoid injury, yet if a passenger so standing appears oblivious of his danger and apparently will not save himself, the engineer, when he discovers that fact, should do all in his power to avoid injury.—Gordon v. Director General of Railroads, 104 S.E 796, 128 Va. 426

Riding on running board in violation of ordinance

Negligence of plaintiff, who was injured while violating an ordinance, like his negligence in any other form, must proximately contribute to the injury in order to constitute a bar to recovery, and it does not so contribute in contemplation of law if, after plaintiff's peril is or ought to be discovered, defendant has a last clear chance to avoid the injury; and, where the motorman of a street car knew that plaintiff passenger was riding on the running board of the car in violation of ordinance, the street railway was liable for negligence of such motorman in failing to stop his car when he saw or should have seen that a standing truck would throw plaintiff from the running board.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co v Cherry, 105 S E. 657, 129 Va 262

Running over same man twice

Where pedestrian, crossing in front of approaching street car at street intersection preparatory to boarding street car, was struck and in attempting to release him motorman backed car and ran over pedestrian's leg again, street railroad held liable for second injury irrespective of whether pedestrian was negligent in first instance.—Tennessee Electric Power Co v. Bainbridge, Tenn App., 95 S.W 2d 1261.

In Wisconsin

(1) The last clear chance doctrine was expressly repudiated by a decision holding that any change in the Wisconsin law must come from legislative action, the decision being that a person who had negligently stepped into elevator shaft and was precipitated to bottom of shaft by negligent operation of elevator was properly nonsuited, in absence of showing of gross negligence on part of operator, the doctrine of last clear chance or supervening negligence not obtaining in state.—Switzer v. Detroit Inv. Co, 206 N W 407, 188 Wis 330

(2) Another case holds that, in action against street railroad by prospective passenger who walked in front of approaching street car without looking, plaintiff's negligence was not excused by negligence of motorman who failed to stop after acknowledging plaintiff's signal to stop.—Peters v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co, 259 N W 724, 217 Wis. 481.

1. Cal.—Tucker v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co, 161 P. 1147, 174 Cal. 42

Conn.—Tardieu v. Connecticut Co., 154 A. 173, 113 Conn 94.—Pond v Connecticut Co., 111 A. 621, 95 Conn. 437.

Ind.—Mulvaney v. Terre Haute, I. & E. Traction Co., 124 N.E. 682, 71 Ind.App 270.—Evansville Rys. Co. v Miller, 111 N.E 1031, 64 Ind. App 206

Mo.—Higgins v Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, App., 97 S W 2d 892

N.H.—Robinson v Boston & M. R. R, 160 A 473, 85 N H 474

Tex.—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry Co v Hawley, Civ App., 235 S W. 659, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

Attempt to board car

Last clear chance doctrine did not apply in absence of motorman's knowledge of peril of plaintiff attempting to board another car.—Mulvaney v. Terre Haute, I. & E. Traction Co., 124 N E 682, 71 Ind. App 270.

2. Riding in separate compartment of car containing horses

Where plaintiff, in violation of his contract with defendant which contemplated that he ride in the caboose, rode in an emigrant car with two other persons and his horses, which were separated from the remainder of the car by a strong partition, held that while plaintiff's position was not a safe place to ride, it was not so perilous as to bring it within the humanitarian doctrine, the word "peril" as used in that doctrine meaning something more than a bare possibility of an injury occurring.—State ex rel. Vulgamott v Trimble, 253 S W 1014, 300 Mo 92, quashing opinion Vulgamott v Payne, App., 245 S.W. 592

3. Conn.—Tardieu v. Connecticut Co, 154 A. 173, 113 Conn 94

Mo.—Butler v. United Rys. Co. of St Louis, 238 S W 1077, 293 Mo. 259.—Tuck v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, 268 S.W 682, 217 Mo.App 442.

Passenger's duty to step out of danger

(1) Where prospective passenger stood so near track in using flag that train could not pass without hitting him, engineer had right to assume that deceased would act as ordinarily prudent man in regard to his own safety and would step out of danger before train could strike him, even though it did not slacken its speed.—Tuck v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 268 S W. 682, 217 Mo App 442.

(2) The motorman of a car, approaching prospective passenger standing near track waiting for it to stop, would have been justified, if he saw her, in assuming that she would move to a place of safety on the approach of the car, if she was standing too close.—Butler v United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 238 S.W. 1077, 293 Mo. 259.

when the carrier's opportunity of preventing the injury by the exercise of due care is later in point of time than that of the passenger.[4] Where the carrier does in fact do everything reasonably possible to save the passenger from injury as soon as his peril is perceived, the doctrine of the last clear chance may not be invoked against the carrier.[5]

Constructive knowledge on the part of the carrier gives rise to an opportunity to prevent injury where an employee of the carrier actually sees the passenger and the passenger's situation is such as to indicate to a man of ordinary prudence that he is in danger of being injured,[6] or where the passenger is in a situation of peril from which he cannot extricate himself and it is the duty of the carrier to keep a lookout;[7] but where there is not sufficient time after the discovery of plaintiff's peril for the employees of defendant to prevent the injury, there is no room for the application of the rule,[8] as where the injury to the passenger results from his own unexpected and not reasonably to be anticipated act in moving from a position of safety into one of peril and the carrier lacks time to take any effective steps to prevent injury.[9]

There is authority, however, to the effect that it is a misuse of terms to speak of the passenger's conduct in such case as contributory negligence, and that the rule in question is but the statement in another form of the proposition that antecedent misconduct or negligence on the part of the passenger, such as could not have had any influence on the conduct of the carrier, will not defeat a recovery for injuries inflicted by the immediate negligence of the carrier.[10]

§ 783. Willful or Wanton Injury; Gross Negligence

The willful and wanton misconduct or gross negligence of a carrier may preclude it from relying on the defense of a passenger's contributory negligence.

Contributory negligence will not be a defense to an action by a passenger against the carrier where the latter has willfully or wantonly inflicted injury on the former,[11] or has been guilty of gross neg-

4. Conn.—Pond v. Connecticut Co., 111 A. 621, 95 Conn. 437.
Ind.—Evansville Rys Co. v. Miller, 111 N.E 1031, 64 Ind.App. 206.
Me.—Sawyer v. Androscoggin Electric Co, 159 A. 119, 131 Me. 60
Mo.—Tuck v St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 268 S.W. 682, 217 Mo. App 442.
Ohio.—Steinman v. Cleveland Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 149, 23 Ohio App. 448.
Tex.—Lee v. Baker, Civ.App, 251 S. W. 580.
10 C.J. p 1108 note 90.

Passenger's opportunity to retire

An intending passenger, who took a position so near the track that he was liable to be injured, and had knowledge of the approach of the car, and could have retired from his dangerous position at any time before being struck, cannot recover under the doctrine of last clear chance, as the opportunity of the motorman to prevent the accident was not later in point of time than that of the intending passenger.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Smith, 127 N.E. 308, 74 Ind App 345.

5. La.—Cox v. Ardis Building Co., 7 La.App. 125.
Tex.—Lee v. Baker, Civ.App., 251 S. W. 580

6. Ind.—Evansville Rys. Co. v. Miller, 111 N.E. 1031, 64 Ind.App. 206.

7. Ky.—Louisville R. Co. v. Hudgins, 98 S.W. 275, 124 Ky. 79, 30 Ky.L. 316, 7 L.R.A.,N.S., 152.
10 C.J. p 1108 note 92.

8. Mo.—Butler v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 238 S.W. 1077, 293 Mo 259.
10 C.J. p 1108 note 93.

Danger apparent only when too late to stop train

Last clear chance doctrine held inapplicable in action by forty-five year old prospective passenger of intelligence who knew electric train was approaching, and who continued to walk along platform eighteen inches from outer edge of thirteen and one-half-inch third rail cover, for injuries sustained when struck by train with thirteen and one-half to fourteen and one-half-inch overhang, where engineer first saw passenger when train was about two hundred sixteen feet away, realized her position of danger when train was about thirty-six feet from her, gave repeated signals, and applied emergency brakes and brought train to a stop about thirty-six feet beyond point where she was struck.—McKeown v. Northwestern Pac. R. Co, Cal.App., 66 P.2d 1250.

9. Md.—Washington, B & A. E. Ry. Co. v. State, 113 A. 338, 137 Md. 538.
Mo.—Schall v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 212 S.W. 890—McMiens v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 202 S.W. 1082, 274 Mo. 326
Va.—Derring's Adm'r v. Virginia Ry. & Power Co., 95 S.E. 405, 122 Va. 517.

Stepping into path of car only four feet distant

In action for death of plaintiff's intestate struck by interurban car at crossing, where plaintiff's own testimony showed that deceased stepped from door of shelter house, only four feet away from track, upon the track immediately in front of the car, so that it was impossible for the motorman to check speed to an effectual extent before car struck deceased, the doctrine of the last clear chance held inapplicable.—Van Sickle v. Grand Rapids, G. H. & M. Ry Co., 182 N.W. 132, 213 Mich 261.

10. U.S.—Pennsylvania R. Co. v Reed, N.Y., 60 F. 694, 9 C.C.A. 219
Cal.—Tobin v. Omnibus Cable Co., 34 P. 124, 4 Cal.Unrep.Cas. 214.
10 C.J. p 1108 note 94.

11. Kan.—Harbert v. Kansas City El. R. Co., 138 P. 641, 91 Kan. 605, 50 L.R.A.,N.S., 850
10 C.J. p 1108 note 95.

What not wanton misconduct

A motorman, operating a car in a country district, was not guilty of wanton misconduct in running down and killing an intending passenger, who was standing two feet from the track, signaling the car, and was struck by the overhang of the steps, being entitled to anticipate, for a time at least, that decedent would remove herself from her position of peril, where there was nothing to indicate that passengers were accustomed to stand within such zone of danger when cars were approaching, or, that being there, they were not accustomed to withdraw as cars approached beyond the danger point, and that the motorman knew, or ought to have known, this.
Conn.—Pond v. Connecticut Co., 111 A. 621, 95 Conn. 437.

ligence in so doing.[12] However, in some jurisdictions gross negligence on the part of the carrier does not of itself preclude defendant from relying on the contributory negligence of plaintiff.[13]

§ 784. While on Premises or Approaches; Going on Track

A passenger must exercise ordinary care to protect himself from injury by vehicles or other instrumentalities while at or approaching a railroad station, although he may properly assume in the first instance that the carrier will observe its duty relative to maintenance and operation of station facilities and vehicles. So, too, where the passenger goes onto the track his duty of care is commensurate with existing circumstances, but he may rely on the carrier to observe proper precautions to protect him from injury by passing trains or cars.

A person, who goes about the station and premises or car step, or passes along the approaches to railroad trains or cars in connection with waiting for, going on board of, or alighting from, a train or car must take reasonable care for his own safety; otherwise he is guilty of contributory negligence which may preclude him from recovering for the resulting injuries.[14] Thus it is his duty to occupy the premises provided for his use while waiting for trains, and in going to and from the carrier's depot, offices, platforms, and trains, and to use the ways and means provided for that purpose, and if instead of so doing he negligently uses a way which is dangerous the carrier is not liable,[15] unless the safe approaches are not sufficiently indicated, and the passenger without any negligence on his part takes the unsafe way,[16] or unless, as it has been held, the injury was caused by the carrier's gross negligence.[17] A passenger may use the station platform for any lawful purpose connected with his journey, and for which it was manifestly intended, but he must exercise reasonable care in so doing.[18] The passenger may, however, rely on the carrier's adoption of all necessary and reasonable precautions in respect of the maintenance and operation of the station and its facilities and appurtenances,[19] and, where he is himself in the exercise of due care, may hold the carrier responsible for injuries arising from its negligent maintenance or operation of a station or its facilities or appurtenances.[20]

Ill.—See Louden v. Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 206 Ill.App. 87

12. Miss.—Reed v. Yazoo, etc., R. Co., 47 So. 670, 94 Miss. 639—Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Humphrey, 36 So. 154, 83 Miss. 721

13. Ky.—Newport News, etc., R. Co. v. Boles, 13 Ky.L. 208

14. Ky.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Sanderson, 192 S.W. 869, 175 Ky. 11, L.R.A.1917D 890

La.—Mills v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 86 So. 750, 148 La. 217.

Pa.—Martin v. Steen, 167 A. 609, 109 Pa.Super. 263.

R.I.—Villa v. United Electric Rys. Co., 155 A. 366, 51 R.I. 384, 75 A.L.R. 282.

10 C.J. p 1109 note 98.

Turnstile

It is duty of passenger, in attempting to pass through turnstile to board cars, not to run against it with such force as to injure herself, and if she does so she is guilty of contributory negligence.—South Covington & C. St. Ry. Co. v. Elder, 266 S.W. 1088, 206 Ky. 178, 40 A.L.R. 826.

Walking into hole

Intending passenger who, while looking for street car, stepped into obvious hole about six inches from rail and fell, held contributorily negligent.—Baudry v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc.App., 145 So. 36.

Shelter as "station"

A shelter or structure having three sides but no windows, provided by carrier and used by passengers when awaiting the arrival of cars, held a "station" as respected degree of care to be used by passengers.—Wilkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 232 P. 131, 195 Cal. 135.

15. Ala.—Montgomery & E. R. Co. v. Thompson, 77 Ala. 448, 54 Am.R. 72.

Wash.—Clark v. City of Seattle, 252 P. 100, 141 Wash. 634.

10 C.J. p 1109 note 99.

Headlong rush in dark

A passenger who without looking rushes through a door partly open into a dark hallway leading to basement in depot, thinking it a door to toilet, and by stepping across a three-foot landing falls down the stairs and is injured, is guilty of contributory negligence.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Sanderson, 192 S.W. 869, 175 Ky. 11, L.R.A.1917D 890.

16. Tex.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Long, 16 S.W. 1016, 81 Tex. 253, 26 Am.S.R. 811.

10 C.J. p 1110 note 1.

17. Mich.—Peregre v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 122 N.W. 535, 158 Mich. 225.

18. Or.—Abbot v. Oregon R. Co., 80 P. 1012, 46 Or. 549, 114 Am.S.R. 885, 1 L.R.A.,N.S., 851, 7 Ann.Cas. 961.

10 C.J. p 1110 note 3.

Walking off platform in dark

Where a passenger walked out of the station on a dark night onto a platform which she knew was raised above the ground, and after the door was closed behind her cutting off all light she started in a direction opposite to that intended and walked off the platform without paying particular attention to where she was going, she was contributorily negligent as a matter of law, and could not recover.—Hines v. Hadnot, Tex.Civ.App., 220 S.W. 186.

19. Va.—Burr v. Virginia Railway & Power Co., 145 S.E. 833, 151 Va. 934.

Gate

In going through gate in picket fence maintained by street railroad about its loop, it was not duty of plaintiff, a prospective passenger, to watch the gate lest it close suddenly without warning and injure her.—Earley v. Rhode Island Co., R.I., 100 A. 405.

Means of access generally

Passengers have right to assume that means of access to stations and trains are reasonably safe.—Bradley v. Erie R. Co., 147 A. 572, 106 N.J.Law 51, reversing 143 A. 743, 105 N.J.Law 1.

20. N.J.—Bradley v. Erie R. Co., supra.

Passenger not using regular approach

Even if prospective passenger taking unofficial pathway to station platform, was wrongdoer until reaching it, such would not relieve railroad of duty thereafter, and that passenger, falling on station platform, reached it from a path, and was not traveling direct route from station to train, did not relieve the carrier from liability.—Byron v. Boston & M. R. R., 136 A. 250, 82 N.H. 434.

Selection of uncovered platform

That intended passenger, who fell

A passenger or prospective passenger waiting at a station or other regular stopping place for a train, car, or bus is required to exercise ordinary care to protect himself from injury by approaching vehicles,[21] although he need exercise only ordinary care as measured by the circumstances surrounding the situation,[22] and may properly assume that the carrier will itself exercise due care for his safety in respect both of the operation of vehicles[23] and conditions at the station or other stopping place which might lead to injury from trains or cars.[24]

The passenger must exercise reasonable care not to pass or to stand too near the track, and if he fails to exercise such care, whereby he is struck by an ordinary train or car, he cannot recover;[25] but this duty exists as to cars of ordinary width only,[26] and a person who is on a station platform waiting to board an approaching car or train may, in the absence of knowledge that his position is perilous, assume that he may occupy any part of the platform without danger of being struck by a passing train or car;[27] nor will a passenger be held guilty on ice on station platform, proceeded by uncovered platform, rather than by more distant covered platform, held not conclusively to show negligence—Byron v. Boston & M. R. R., 136 A. 250, 82 N.H. 434.

21. Pa.—Coyle v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa. 496.

Holding arm in front of approaching bus

Fifty-two year old man standing near highway in evening with one foot on tarvia shoulder and other on concrete roadbed, signaling approaching bus with headlights burning to stop by holding out arm, and struck on arm by bus, held contributorily negligent—Baryluk v. United Electric Rys. Co., 166 A. 356, 55 R.I. 306.

22. Mo.—Willi v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 274 S.W. 24.

23. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Jones, 176 So. 203, 234 Ala. 590

Pa.—Coyle v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa. 496

Headlight and warning whistle

Passenger waiting at station on car platform not only has right to expect headlight on approaching car, but also has right to expect that warning bell or whistle will be sounded, and that car will stop at platform.—Willi v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, Mo., 274 S.W. 24.

24. Pa.—Coyle v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa. 496.

Controlling crowd at station

Deceased, as an intending passenger, had a right to assume that defendant would perform its duty and take reasonable precautions to protect him from danger while waiting with a crowd to board its train, and might assume that defendant's train would approach station with such care as the circumstances required, and that its employees would prevent him from being pushed against moving train by the crowd attempting to board it.—Coyle v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 100 A. 1005, 256 Pa. 496

25. Ala.—McWilliams v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 115 So. 246, 217 Ala. 192.

Cal.—McKeown v. Northwestern Pac. R. Co., App., 66 P.2d 1250.

D.C.—Edgerton v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 6 App.D.C. 516.

Ill.—Covert v. Rockford & I. Ry. Co., 132 N.E. 504, 299 Ill. 288—Foreman Trust & Savings Bank v. Chicago Rapid Transit Co., 252 Ill.App. 151 See McCausland v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 198 Ill.App. 200.

Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Smith, 127 N.E. 308, 74 Ind.App. 345.

Kan.—Kern v. Kansas City, L. & W. Ry. Co., 264 P. 1067, 125 Kan. 506.

La.—Grennon v. New Orleans Public Service, 120 So. 801, 10 La.App. 641.

Me.—Sawyer v. Androscoggin Electric Co., 159 A. 119, 131 Me. 60.

Mass.—Notaro v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 173 N.E. 431, 273 Mass. 296—Mann v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 152 N.E. 741, 256 Mass. 236.

Mich.—Devore v. Rapid Ry. Co., 209 N.W. 111, 235 Mich. 405

Wis.—Schildt v. Johnson, 159 N.W. 805, 164 Wis. 102.

10 C.J. p. 1110 note 4.

Duty to step back

Ordinary prudence required an intending passenger, standing on a platform within two feet of the track and signaling the approaching car, to step back so that she would not be struck by the overhang of a stop—Pond v. Connecticut Co., 111 A. 621, 95 Conn. 437

Slight movement by crowd

Where person, waiting for car, stood too near track, fact that crowd moved her a little was no excuse, where she did not change position—Notaro v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 173 N.E. 431, 273 Mass. 296.

Swaying car

Pedestrian, standing between car tracks waiting for street car, who was familiar with scene of accident, had boarded cars at that place numerous times and who failed to step out of path of approaching car after having had opportunity to notice that car was swaying held contributorily negligent when struck by car as it passed.—Elliott v. Market St. Ry. Co., 40 P.2d 547, 4 Cal.App.2d 292.

Thirteen and one half to fourteen and one half inch overhang

Forty-five year old prospective passenger of intelligence who knew electric train was approaching, and who continued to walk along platform eighteen inches from outer edge of thirteen and one-half-inch third rail cover flush with platform, held contributorily negligent and not entitled to recover for injuries sustained when struck by train with overhang of thirteen and one half to fourteen and one half inches even though she thought she was safe—McKeown v. Northwestern Pac. R. Co., Cal.App., 66 P.2d 1250.

Taking child through station window close to track

Where it appeared that plaintiff suing for personal injuries was standing on a platform of an electric railway station not intended for the use or accommodation of the public, which was warned against its use at this place by signs, and that when about to take a child through a rear window from a woman there with him to meet an incoming passenger, he was struck by the rear door of one of defendant's passing cars, proceeding around the station very close to the wall, held that he was guilty of contributory negligence, although he testified no alarm signals were given, and he did not know the car was passing until he was struck.—Meanley v. Petersburg, H. & C. P. Ry. Co., 112 S.E. 800, 133 Va. 173.

Track as itself warning of danger

Railroad track on which trains are constantly running is itself a warning to any passenger who has reached years of discretion, and who is possessed of ordinary intelligence, that it is not safe to walk on track or near enough to be struck by passing train without exercise of constant vigilance, and failure of such person to exercise such care and watchfulness and to make use of all his senses to avoid danger incident to such situation is "negligence per se."—McKeown v. Northwestern Pac. R. Co., Cal.App., 66 P.2d 1250.

26. Tex.—Denison, etc., R. Co. v. Craig, 80 S.W. 865, 35 Tex.Civ.App. 548.

27. Ind.—Evansville Rys. Co. v. Miller, 111 N.E. 1031, 64 Ind.App. 206.

10 C.J. p. 1111 note 6.

of contributory negligence where without fault of his own he is pushed by a waiting crowd into a position of danger on or near the track.[28]

Going on or crossing track; duty to stop, look, and listen. Reasonable care is required of a passenger or prospective passenger in going on or crossing a railroad track for the purpose of reaching or leaving his train or car, and if he fails to exercise such care, whereby he is injured, he is guilty of contributory negligence;[29] and if he unnecessarily or without valid cause goes onto the track or steps against or in front of an approaching car or train, he may not recover for resultant injury.[30] Ordinarily on approaching railroad tracks

28. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R Co. v. Bell, 76 So. 920, 200 Ala 562.

29. U S.—Twyman v. Baltimore & O. R. Co, C.C.A.W.Va., 295 F 639.
Ark.—Reed v. Baldwin, 92 S.W.2d 392.
Cal.—Anderson v Market St. Ry. Co., 2 P 2d 529, 116 Cal App. 282—Lewis v Pacific Electric Ry. Co, 272 P 346, 94 Cal.App. 748.
Conn.—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., 160 A 307, 115 Conn. 80.
Ill.—Mortell v. Richardson, App., 2 N E.2d 567.
Mo.—State ex rel. Peters v. Reynolds, 214 S W 121—Peters v. Lusk, 206 S W. 250, 200 Mo App 372.
Ohio.—Lake Shore & M S R Co. v Hotchkiss, 24 Ohio Cir Ct 431.
Va.—Barksdale v Southern Ry Co., 148 S E 683, 152 Va. 604.
Wis.—Jacky v. McAdoo, 177 N.W. 885, 172 Wis. 262.
10 C J p 1111 note 7.

Measure of passenger's duty generally

Although an intending passenger going to a railroad station may rely on the railroad company to use ordinary care to protect her against injury by its trains, the passenger owes the corresponding duty to use ordinary care to protect herself, and the failure to use such care on her part is negligence.—Washington-Virginia Ry Co v. Struder, 111 S E 239, 132 Va 368.

Full use of senses

Due care required of prospective passenger approaching a railway track can be satisfied only by full use of senses of sight and hearing at the last moment of opportunity before passing line between safety and peril and injured passenger who fails to use common prudence before stepping on track cannot recover.—Peters v. Milwaukee Electric Ry & Light Co, 259 N.W. 724, 217 Wis 481.

Inviting motorman to back car

Intending passenger struck by street car, backed off trestle on his call that he could not enter car, held contributorily negligent in not having stepped aside to an available place of safety before calling to the motorman.—Tomey v. West Penn Rys. Co., 150 A 612, 300 Pa. 189.

30. Kan.—Grisham v. Union Traction Co, 181 P. 119, 121, 104 Kan 712, quoting Corpus Juris.
La.—Blanco v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co, 73 So. 774, 140 La. 693.
Mass.—Fitzpatrick v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 144 N.E. 75, 249 Mass 140
Mo.—State ex rel. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry Co. v. Reynolds, 233 S.W. 219, 289 Mo 479, quashing Martin v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry Co, App., 227 S.W. 129—Branstetter v. Chicago & A R Co., App., 225 S.W. 1035
Pa.—Dahl v. Pennsylvania R Co, 119 A 656, 275 Pa 554—Goller v Baltimore & O. R Co., 78 A. 929, 229 Pa 412.
Va.—Barksdale v. Southern Ry Co, 148 S E 683, 152 Va 604—Derring's Adm'r v. Virginia Ry. & Power Co, 95 S E. 405, 122 Va 517.
10 C J. p 1111 note 8.

Changing direction of travel

Where an intending passenger was in a position of safety when the carrier's train rounded a curve, and from this position his own act in changing his direction of travel brought him into contact with the train, and he was killed, his act amounted to contributory negligence, and the carrier is not responsible.—Washington, B. & A. E Ry Co v State, 113 A 338, 137 Md 538

Cloudy day

Where plaintiff, intending to take a train shortly due, crossed a railroad track toward a point where it was customary for passengers to await the arrival of trains, and was struck by a train which she could have seen approaching for a distance of three miles if she had looked, the view being wholly unobstructed, although it appeared that she carried an umbrella and a pocketbook and held her hat on with one hand, the day being cloudy, with perhaps a trace of rain, plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence, justifying direction of a verdict for defendant.—Bradley v. Davis, 193 N W. 819, 223 Mich. 275.

Crossing at prepared place

One who crosses a railroad track at a place prepared for such purposes to become a passenger on a railroad train must exercise reasonable care not to be struck by other trains on parallel tracks, and if he fails to look and is struck while in the act of stepping in front of a moving train, he will be held guilty of contributory negligence.—Lynn v. Pittsburgh & L E R Co., 110 A. 271, 267 Pa. 41

Failure to look

(1) Where there was no evidence that there was a train immediately preceding the interurban train which killed decedent, and no other unusual circumstances to warrant a belief that no train was approaching, it was contributory negligence for an intending passenger to attempt to cross the track without looking for an approaching train.—Washington-Virginia Ry. Co. v. Struder, 111 S E. 239, 132 Va. 368.

(2) Prospective passenger who when within seven and three-fourths feet of car tracks failed to look toward approaching street car to see whether he could cross in safety, held contributorily negligent as matter of law when struck by street car, notwithstanding pedestrian had signaled motorman that he wanted to board street car, and that motorman had nodded his head in response to signal.—Peters v. Milwaukee Electric Ry & Light Co, 259 N.W. 724, 217 Wis. 481.

Mistake as to which train was approaching

That an intending passenger, struck by a train when crossing a railroad track to reach a platform from which to board a passenger train, thought that train approaching was the one he was to take, and that it would slow up before reaching the station, does not furnish a legal excuse for failure to exercise reasonable care.—Lynn v. Pittsburgh & L. E. R Co., 110 A 271, 267 Pa. 41

Running directly into path of car

Pedestrian running directly into path of approaching street car while crossing street on pedestrian lane, intending to board car, held contributorily negligent as matter of law.—Anderson v. Market St Ry. Co., 2 P. 2d 529, 116 Cal.App 282.

Sleep-dazed passenger

Decedent, waiting at station to take a train, who was dozing, and who on being apprised that train was coming, rushed out on platform, and, while in a dazed condition was struck by pilot beam, when train had been visible for six hundred feet and headlight was burning and there were lights about station, was guilty of contributory negligence.—Leard v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 99 A. 798, 255 Pa. 289.

a passenger should stop, look, and listen,[31] and especially is this true where there is no invitation or inducement to cross,[32] as where the car or train is not standing at a place appointed by the carrier for the exit or entrance of passengers,[33] or where the passenger alights from the wrong side of a train,[34] or where the passenger is warned of an approaching train, such as by the closing of platform gates,[35] or the lowering of crossing gates,[36] or where in disregard of the warnings of others he attempts to cross in front of an approaching train clearly visible and close at hand.[37] Where a passenger, after alighting from a street car, goes behind the car and attempts to cross a parallel track without taking proper precautions as to looking and listening for an approaching car, he is guilty of contributory negligence.[38]

However, a passenger who is in the act of going to or leaving the train or car at a place where there is an express or implied invitation for him so to do, as where it is necessary for him to cross the tracks, may assume that the railroad company will so operate its other trains, or otherwise perform its duty, as not to put him in peril,[39] and he is not un-

Stepping from platform to signal car

Where a prospective passenger is in a place of safety on a station platform, and needlessly steps onto the track to signal an approaching car which he has reason to believe will pass the point where he is standing before coming to a stop, and because of misjudging the speed of the car fails to get off the track in time and is hit, he is guilty of contributory negligence barring recovery.—Keller v. Stark Electric R. Co., 12 Ohio App. 326.

31. Ala.—McWilliams v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 115 So. 246, 217 Ala. 192.

32. Mass.—Wheelwright v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 135 Mass. 225.
10 C.J. p 1113 note 12.

Invitation not implied

Invitation to intending passenger to take train from wrong side could not be implied from open gates of car platform where crossing gates were lowered.—Kelley v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. R., 180 N.E. 229, 278 Mass. 469.

Signal station

Prospective passenger of interurban car, who waited for car at crossing which was not a regular stopping place and at which cars stopped only on signal, was required in the exercise of reasonable care to look and to see whether approaching car was in dangerous proximity before stepping on track, and where he had traveled on such cars almost daily for two years from crossing at which rules giving meaning of whistles were posted, and who signaled approaching car to stop and stepped from shelter house on track immediately in front of car after car had blown two blasts in reply to signal to stop, signifying that it would not stop in accordance with posted rules, held contributorily negligent.—Van Sickle v. Grand Rapids, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 182 N.W. 132, 213 Mich. 261.

33. Minn.—DeKay v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 43 N.W. 182, 41 Minn. 178, 16 Am.S.R. 687, 4 L.R.A. 632.
10 C.J. p 1113 note 13.

34. U.S.—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Lowell, Minn., 14 S.Ct. 281, 151 U.S. 209, 38 L.Ed. 131.
10 C.J. p 1113 note 14.

35. Mass.—Debbins v. Old Colony R. Co., 28 N.E. 274, 154 Mass. 402.

36. Mass.—Kelley v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. R., 180 N.E. 229, 278 Mass. 469.

Duty of care commensurate with danger

One walking upon crossing in disregard of warning gates must exercise care commensurate with danger.—Kelley v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. R., 180 N.E. 229, 278 Mass. 469.

37. U.S.—Twyman v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., C.C.A.W.Va., 295 F. 639.

Facing with death

While a railroad company owes a higher degree of care for the safety of an intending passenger at a station than to a traveler at a highway crossing, the distinction does not extend to exempting the passenger from responsibility for attempting to cross in front of an approaching train, plainly visible and very near, and where he loses his race with death the railroad cannot be held responsible.—Twyman v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., C.C.A.W.Va., 295 F. 639.

38. N.J.—Eagen v. Jersey City, etc., St. R. Co., 67 A. 24, 74 N.J.Law 699, 11 L.R.A.,N.S., 1058, 12 Ann.Cas. 911.
10 C.J. p 1114 note 17.

39. Cal.—Ferran v. Southern Pac. Co., 44 P.2d 533, 3 Cal.2d 350.—Wilkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 232 P. 131, 195 Cal. 185.
Mo.—Schimmelpfenning v. Wells, 24 S.W.2d 154.—Sugarwater v. Fleming, 293 S.W. 111, 316 Mo. 742.
Pa.—Kissinger v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 180 A. 137, 119 Pa.Super. 110.
Wash.—Hohman v. City of Seattle, 38 P.2d 242, 179 Wash. 663.
10 C.J. p 1112 note 9.

Assumption that car will stop at appointed place

In determining whether prospective passenger, killed by car on which she desired to take passage, was guilty of contributory negligence, every act of hers must be considered with her assumption that car would stop, point being place where passengers were received. Prospective passenger clearly visible with suitcase in hand hurrying to pole marked "stopping place" is entitled to assume car will be stopped.—Brott v. Auburn & S. Electric R. Co., 115 N.E. 273, 220 N.Y. 92, reversing 154 N.Y.S. 1113, 169 App.Div. 913.

Assumption that car will stop on schedule

Intending passenger crossing track to board approaching interurban car traveling on schedule time of regular car could assume car would stop.—Klingensmith v. West Penn Rys. Co., 154 A. 811, 303 Pa. 487.

No duty to wait

Intending passenger seeing interurban car approaching at sufficient distance for him to cross tracks if operated in reasonable manner was not bound to wait.—Klingensmith v. West Penn Rys. Co., 154 A. 811, 303 Pa. 487.

Signaling motorman

(1) Where intending passenger at regular stopping place timely signaled motorman and was required to cross tracks to enter car, she was entitled to assume that motorman would control car accordingly and stop at usual place.—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., 160 A. 307, 115 Conn. 80.

(2) Prospective passenger had right to assume interurban car would obey municipal ordinance requiring it to stop in response to signals, and to cross track in light thereof.—Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Helms, 121 N.E. 279, 70 Ind.App. 137.

(3) Intending passenger had right to assume that street car motorman was keeping watch ahead, that he saw passenger's signal of intention to become passenger and would stop, and that motorman would approach crossing at reasonable rate of speed.—Hohman v. City of Seattle, 38 P.2d 242, 179 Wash. 663.

Speed and control

Woman killed while crossing street

der the same obligation to look out for his own safety by looking and listening as is incumbent in general on a person who approaches a railroad track with intent to cross it.[40] In case the circumstances are such that a person crossing a track at a station is not bound to look for trains, the fact that he does look but does not look effectually so as to see an approaching train does not of itself make him guilty of contributory negligence.[41]

The question of contributory negligence is ordinarily one to be resolved by examination of all the circumstances involved;[42] in some cases the circumstances have been such that the conduct of plaintiff was held not to constitute negligence per se,[43] and in other cases that if there was reasonable cause to believe that there was no danger, failure to stop, look, and listen was not negligence per se.[44]

§ 785. Boarding Train or Car

One boarding a car, elevator, or other vehicle of a carrier may properly assume that the carrier has observed its duty in respect of providing for the safe entrance and exit of passengers, but must exercise such care for his own safety as the circumstances require or be barred by contributory negligence from recovery for resultant injury.

While it is the duty of a carrier to provide safe and reasonable means of ingress to its cars or other vehicles employed for the carriage of passengers, on the performance of which duty the passenger has a right to rely,[45] it is equally the duty of a passenger in boarding the same to use the means provided with reasonable circumspection and care, what is such care depending on the circumstances of the particular case;[46] and the foregoing rules apply with respect to passengers entering or leavcar tracks to board car at station in sparsely settled district need only guard against injury from car approaching with reasonable speed and under control.—Dickun v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 161 A. 739, 308 Pa. 20.

40. Cal.—Ferran v. Southern Pac. Co., 44 P.2d 533, 3 Cal.2d 350—Anderson v. San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Rys., 214 P. 289, 61 Cal. App. 21, citing Corpus Juris.
Md.—Washington, B. & A. E. Ry. Co. v. State, 113 A. 338, 339–340, 137 Md. 538, quoting this Corpus Juris statement with approval.
Pa.—Dickun v. Pittsburg Rys. Co., 161 A. 739, 308 Pa. 20—Klingensmith v. West Penn Rys. Co., 154 A. 811, 303 Pa. 487.
10 C.J. p 1112 note 10.

Strict rule inapplicable

(1) In such cases the strict rule as to looking and listening which is in general applicable to persons crossing the tracks of railroad companies does not apply, the passenger having a right to suppose that the place where he is allowed to get on board, or alight from, a train or car is a safe place.—Shutt v. Cumberland Valley R. Co., 24 A. 305, 149 Pa. 266—10 C.J. p 929 note 48.

(2) He also has the right to assume that all trains will comply with the law by giving warning, displaying lights, etc.
Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Doan, 93 Ill.App. 247, affirmed 62 N.E. 826, 195 Ill. 168.
Mass.—Sonier v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 6 N.E. 84, 141 Mass. 10.

41. U.S.—Delaware, etc., R. Co. v. Price, N.J., 221 F. 848, 137 C.C.A. 406, certiorari denied 35 S.Ct. 939, 238 U.S. 636, 59 L.Ed. 1500.
10 C.J. p 1113 note 16.

42. Cal.—Ferran v. Southern Pac. Co., 44 P.2d 533, 3 Cal.2d 350—Lewis v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 272 P. 346, 94 Cal.App. 748.
10 C.J. p 1114 note 19.

43. Ga.—Atlanta Cons. St. R. Co. v. Bates, 30 S.E. 41, 103 Ga. 333.
Kan.—Stuckey v. Dunham, 151 P. 1107, 96 Kan. 427.

Negligence per se

Where passenger, who was waiting to board train, proceeded to walk from station with forty other passengers, between two trackbeds to the place where passengers usually boarded train, and while so doing was struck by locomotive of arriving train, passenger who claimed she was either unable to see headlight of train because it was so dim, or was blinded because it was so bright, was contributorily negligent as a matter of law.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kilburn, 113 S.W.2d 844, 272 Ky. 44.

44. Pa.—Dahl v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 119 A. 656, 275 Pa. 554—Lynn v. Pittsburgh & L. E. R. Co., 110 A. 271, 267 Pa. 41.
10 C.J. p 1113 note 11.

Injury at place provided for taking on passengers

A passenger, lawfully on premises of an interurban railroad at place provided for stopping of cars to take on passengers, is not negligent per se in failing to stop, look, and listen before crossing intervening track to board car, and a passenger killed by one interurban car while stepping across tracks to board car approaching in opposite direction, held not negligent as a matter of law in failing to stop, look, and listen.—Wilkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 232 P. 131, 195 Cal. 185.

45. Kan.—Jenkins v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 275 P. 136, 127 Kan. 821.
N.J.—Bradley v. Erie R. Co., 147 A. 572, 106 N.J.Law 51, reversing 143 A. 743, 105 N.J.Law 1.
10 C.J. p 1114 note 20

Assumption as to approaches to car

Passenger entering a car may assume that the carrier has performed its duty in making the approach to the car safe.—Bickley v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 101 A. 654, 257 Pa. 369.

Passageway

Passengers going to trains have right to presume that apparent passageway from stations and trains is reasonably safe.—Bradley v. Erie R. Co., 147 A. 572, 106 N.J.Law 51, reversing 143 A. 743, 105 N.J.Law 1.

46. Ky.—Burnett v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 281 S.W. 510, 213 Ky. 540.
Mo.—May v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 225 S.W. 660, 284 Mo. 508.
Pa.—Murray v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 140 A. 522, 292 Pa. 72—Gardner v. West Penn Rys. Co., 106 A. 302, 263 Pa. 284.
10 C.J. p 1114 note 21.

Attempt to board in face of closed vestibule door

Passenger attempting to enter car by opening closed vestibule door and stepping off after train had attained speed, held contributorily negligent.—Robinson v. Boston & M. R. R., 160 A. 473, 85 N.H. 474.

Entering from "wrong" side

One attempting to board on west side of north-bound street car was guilty of contributory negligence.—Mulvaney v. Terre Haute, I. & E. Traction Co., 124 N.E. 632, 71 Ind. App. 270—10 C.J. p 1114 note 21 [c].

High car steps

That injured passenger attempted to board interurban car knowing that steps were unreasonably high did not constitute contributory negligence.—Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern ing elevators.[47] It is not negligence in itself to attempt to get on the front platform of a street car, although the rear platform is the usual place for boarding,[48] particularly where there has been an invitation to get on in that way.[49]

After signal to start. It has been held that it is not contributory negligence as a matter of law for a person to board a train or car after a signal to start is given, but before the train or car is put in motion.[50]

Direction of employee. The direction of the conductor or other employee in charge of a train or car to an intending passenger, as to his method of getting on the same, is within the scope of his authority, and in complying with this direction the passenger is not guilty of negligence unless he exposes himself to open and apparent danger.[51]

§ 786. At Place Other than Station or Platform

Whether or not it is contributory negligence for one to attempt to board a car or train at other than its regular stopping place will depend on the particular circumstances involved.

With reference both to steam and street cars it is not negligence per se to attempt to get on board at a place other than a regular stopping place, the question being one of fact under the circumstances,[52] unless under the circumstances of the partic-

Traction Co. v. Angelo, 169 N.E. 478, 95 Ind.App. 476—10 C.J. p. 1114 note 21 [g]

Knowledge of conditions

Passenger boarding train must be held to knowledge of physical conditions before her eyes—Davis v. Olson, C.C.A.Minn., 298 F. 921.

Reentering train

A passenger after a temporary absence from train was not required to enter another car adjacent to the platform, where her own car was not so adjacent.—Sellars v. Southern Pac. Co., 166 P. 599, 33 Cal.App. 701—10 C.J. p. 1114 note 21 [f].

Stumbling over step box

A carrier is not the insurer of a passenger against the consequences of his own negligence in using a step box furnished for use in boarding trains, as where his negligence consisted in attempting to use such appliance without looking at it and in stumbling over or against it when he should have stepped on it.—Scott v. Vicksburg, S. & P. Ry. Co., 90 So. 840, 150 La. 537, 20 A.L.R. 908.

Subway car

A subway operator was not liable for injuries sustained by woman who fell into twelve-inch space between car platform and station platform of subway station when woman attempted to board train, where there was no crowding, light situation was normal, and ordinary use of her eyesight would have enabled woman to avoid the accident.—Dunn v. Murray, 1 N.Y.S.2d 708, 166 Misc. 294.

Contributory negligence not shown

(1) Generally.—Little v. Peoria Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 385.

(2) Where plaintiff passenger was injured by the sudden starting of defendant's street railways company's car which she was boarding, caused to lose her balance, and was dragged and thrown upon the pavement, plaintiff was not negligent because she held to the upright rod or stanchion instead of letting go at once.—Baldwin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo.App., 214 S.W. 274.

(3) Where passenger on a platform was moving toward the electric car with other passengers and was not bound to anticipate that the car, apparently having come to a stop, would start forward with a sudden jerk and throw the passengers nearest the train against him, thereby pushing him off the platform, a charge of contributory negligence cannot be urged against him in an action for resulting injuries—Litwinavage v. Schuylkill Ry. Co., 124 A. 293, 280 Pa. 53.

(4) It is not want of ordinary prudence for minor to attempt to board street car, standing at station waiting for passengers, without assistance of an escort although such escort was at hand—Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Crouch, Tex.Civ.App., 202 S.W. 781.

47. Mich.—Blankertz v. Mack & Co., 248 N.W. 889, 263 Mich. 527.
Wash.—Davis v. Burke, 156 P. 525, 90 Wash. 495.
10 C.J. p. 1114 note 21 [l].

Defective door

That decedent stepped through the doorway of an automatic, or passenger operated, elevator shaft without looking to see whether the cage was in place, held not contributory negligence precluding recovery for her death where the customary use of the elevator justified her in assuming that the door could not be opened unless the cage was in place.—Jacobi v. Builders' Realty Co., 164 P. 394, 174 Cal. 708, L.R.A.1917E 696.

Open door as invitation to enter

(1) Open door of passenger elevator constitutes invitation to enter without special investigation, and where darkness prevents the discovery of the absence of the elevator cage the question of contributory negligence is one for the jury.—Gohn v. Butte Hotel Co., 295 P. 262, 88 Mont. 599.

(2) Where, however, there is no insufficiency of light, person who, on finding elevator door partially open, opened door and stepped into shaft, was held to have failed to exercise ordinary care for his own safety—Switzer v. Detroit Inv. Co., 206 N.W. 407, 188 Wis. 330.

48. N.Y.—Dixon v. Brooklyn City, etc., R. Co., 3 N.E. 65, 100 N.Y. 170.
10 C.J. p. 1115 note 22.

49. N.Y.—De Rozas v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 43 N.Y.S. 27, 13 App.Div. 296.

50. Mass.—Dawson v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 30 N.E. 466, 156 Mass. 127.
10 C.J. p. 1116 note 25.

51. Wash.—Irish v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 29 P. 845, 4 Wash. 48, 31 Am.S.R. 899.
10 C.J. p. 1116 note 24.

Conductor's order to stand back from car step

An intending passenger about to board a street car on a middle track in a street containing three tracks was not bound to assume that the conductor would direct her to do an act which under the circumstances was dangerous, and was not bound to assume that on account of other cars it was dangerous to step back from the step when directed to do so to permit passengers to descend.—Montgomery Light & Traction Co. v. O'Connor, 85 So. 334, 204 Ala. 24.

52. Kan.—Haas v. Wichita R., etc., Co., 132 P. 195, 89 Kan. 613, 48 L.R.A.,N.S., 974.
10 C.J. p. 1116 note 26.

Car stopped at unusual place expressly to receive passengers

Where a street car is temporarily stopped at a place other than a regular stopping place, and not to receive or discharge passengers, if one attempts to get on or off and is injured by the starting of the car the company cannot be charged with negligence, unless the conductor or motorman knew, or had reason to know, that an attempt to get on or off was being made, although such rule is inapplicable where the car ular case the attempt is so fraught with danger as to make it negligence as a matter of law,[53] or unless the attempt is made in violation of a reasonable regulation as to the place of entering cars, known to the passenger.[54] Where a carrier has been in the habit of receiving passengers at another place without objection, it is not negligence per se for a passenger to get on at that place while the train is standing still and there is no apparent danger in so doing.[55] Where the rule of a railroad company requires passengers of a combined freight and passenger train to get on wherever it is convenient to stop, it is not negligence for a passenger to board the train while it is standing a short distance from the station platform.[56]

§ 787. Moving Train or Car

It is ordinarily regarded as contributory negligence for a passenger to board or attempt to board a moving train, car or elevator, although the circumstances may be such as to preclude such act from being properly held negligent.

It may be stated, as a general rule, that attempting to board a moving train is presumably a negligent act, and, in the absence of evidence of circumstances tending to excuse the act, no recovery can be had for an injury thereby sustained,[57] particularly where such act is in violation of an ordinance or statute,[58] or where the passenger has been warned against making the attempt,[59] or where the gates or doors of the cars are closed at the time of the attempt.[60] Even though the carrier fails to stop the train in order for passengers to get on at the proper place, or does not stop it for a reasonable length of time, this will not in itself excuse the passenger in negligently attempting to get on the train while moving.[61] Nevertheless, it is not in all cases negligence per se to make such an attempt, as the circumstances surrounding the passenger at the time must be considered in determining whether he was negligent;[62] and, unless the circumstances are so unequivocal as to make the matter a question of law for the court, the issue had stopped for the express purpose of receiving passengers.—Elliott v. United Rys Co. of St. Louis, 214 S.W. 234, 201 Mo.App. 662

Entering car from wrong side

Railroad company held not liable for loss of leg, through sudden movement of its train, of one who claimed he came to its depot to meet a brother coming in on a train, where the injured man was hurt by an outgoing train while seeking to enter it, not from the side where passengers were boarding it, where there was a platform, but from the other side, where there was no platform, no lights, and the doors to the train were closed.—Magee v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. of Texas, Tex.Civ.App., 222 S.W. 636, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.—10 C.J. p. 1116 note 26 [a].

Mail clerk

Where postal clerk, injured while boarding a mail car, had for many years boarded the car while the engine was stopped to take water, it was his duty to ascertain whether the engine was in position to take in water, where it would be for a period sufficient to enable him to board the car.—Lambert v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 125 A. 765, 145 Md. 662

53. W.Va.—Raines v. Chesapeake, etc., R. Co., 70 S.E. 711, 68 W.Va. 694, 33 L.R.A.,N.S., 583.
10 C.J. p. 1116 note 27.

54. Iowa.—McDonald v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 26 Iowa 124, 96 Am.D. 114.

55. N.Y.—Keating v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 49 N.Y. 673.
10 C.J. p. 1116 note 29.

56. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Long, 22 S.W. 747, 94 Ky. 410, 15 Ky.L. 199.

57. U.S.—Aschenbrenner v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., Cal., 54 S.Ct. 590, 292 U.S. 80, 78 L.Ed. 1137, reversing, C.C.A., U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Aschenbrenner, 65 F.2d 976, certiorari granted Aschenbrenner v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 54 S.Ct. 229, 290 U.S. 622, 78 L.Ed. 543, and rehearing denied 54 S.Ct. 861, 292 U.S. 615, 78 L.Ed. 1474.
N.C.—Wallace v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 93 S.E. 731, 174 N.C. 171.
Okl.—Webb v. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co., 179 P. 17, 74 Okl. 223.
10 C.J. p. 1116 note 32

Brakeman's signal no excuse

For a passenger to attempt to board a freight box car, with no platform and steps, but merely an iron grabrod and crossbars, when it is going six miles an hour, is negligence, and invitation by signal of brakeman to board train held not to prevent passenger's attempt to board freight box car moving six miles an hour being negligence.—Travis v. Alabama Great Southern R. Co., 73 So. 983, 199 Ala. 38.

Through train

The danger of attempting to board a through passenger train at a place where it is not scheduled to stop and at a time when it is traveling at a speed of from twelve to fifteen miles per hour is so obvious that it should be known to all rational men, and the act of voluntarily risking it must be deemed negligence per se.—Lee v. Baker, Tex.Civ.App., 251 S.W. 580.

58. Iowa.—Young v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 69 N.W. 682, 100 Iowa 357
10 C.J. p. 1117 note 33.

59. Mass.—Gallagher v. West End St. R. Co., 30 N.E. 486, 156 Mass. 157.
Mo.—Fulks v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 19 S.W. 818, 111 Mo. 335.

60. Wis.—Sigl v. Green Bay Tract. Co., 135 N.W. 506, 149 Wis. 112, 39 L.R.A.,N.S., 65.
10 C.J. p. 1117 note 35

Trap door shut

Undertaking to board train in motion with trap door closed down over steps is negligent act per se, in absence of circumstances excusing act.—Palen v. Wheelock, C.C.A.Mo., 13 F.2d 34.

61. Ga.—Ricks v. Georgia Southern, etc., R. Co., 45 S.E. 268, 118 Ga. 259
10 C.J. p. 1117 note 36.

62. N.C.—Wallace v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 93 S.E. 731, 174 N.C. 171.
Okl.—Webb v. Missouri, O. & G. Ry. Co., 179 P. 17, 74 Okl. 223.
10 C.J. p. 1117 note 37.

Unusual conditions

Whether conduct of passenger, injured while attempting to board train leaving station prior to time told him on alighting, was reasonably careful must be judged by natural and actual effect on passenger of such unusual condition.—Redfield v. New York Cent. R. Co., C.C.A.Mo., 83 F.2d 62.

of contributory negligence in boarding a moving train is ordinarily one of fact for the jury, as shown infra § 803. In this connection, a distinction, founded on the rapidity of the train's motion, has been made by some of the decisions, it being held that a person who attempts to get on a train while it is moving slowly is not, as a matter of law, guilty of contributory negligence.[63]

Street cars. As to street cars, the general doctrine that it indicates negligence to attempt to get on board a car while it is moving is not so strictly applied,[64] and it has been announced in a majority of cases in which the subject has been passed on that in the absence of special circumstances it is not negligence per se so to do,[65] particularly where it is moving slowly,[66] as where it has been slowed up in response to the signal of one desiring to get on board, although it has not come to a full stop,[67] although other authorities take the view that attempting to board a moving street car constitutes negligence per se,[68] as where the attempt is made in violation of an ordinance on the subject.[69]

Where the attempt to board a moving street car is attended with unusual and extraordinary dangers, such conduct is ordinarily regarded as contributory negligence, barring recovery by an injured passenger.[70]

Elevator. It has been held negligence to board a moving elevator.[71]

§ 788. Alighting from Train or Car

An alighting passenger may properly proceed on the assumption of the carrier's due observance of its legal duties in respect of measures essential to his protection, but must nevertheless take reasonable care for his own safety, and he will be barred from recovery for injuries resulting from his own contributory negligence, as in failing to look where he is stepping or proceeding in careless disregard of other and approaching vehicles.

It is the duty of a passenger, in alighting from a train or other vehicle, to exercise reasonable care for his safety, and if he fails to exercise such care, whereby he is injured, he is guilty of contributory negligence precluding a recovery,[72] as where the

63. Kan.—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Holloway, 80 P. 31, 71 Kan. 1, 114 Am.S.R. 462.
10 C.J. p 1118 note 39.

64. Ind.—Citizens' St. R. Co. v. Spahr, 33 N.E. 446, 7 Ind.App 23.
N.Y.—Lobsenz v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 76 N.Y.S. 411, 72 App.Div. 181.

65. S.C.—Wise v. Columbia R., etc., Co., 77 S.E. 924, 94 S.C. 254.
10 C.J. p 1118 note 41.

Circumstances as controlling

Attempt to board moving street car does not necessarily constitute contributory negligence, but whether it does depends on circumstances.—Morrissey v. City and County of San Francisco, 286 P. 433, 104 Cal. App. 536.

66. Mass.—Payne v. Springfield St. R. Co., 89 N.E. 586, 203 Mass. 425.
10 C.J. p 1118 note 42.

Question of fact

Where intending passenger is injured in attempting to board slowly moving street car, railway will be liable, although act of passenger was immediate cause of injury, if his act should not be imputed to him as fault, a question of fact.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Arnold, 92 S.E. 925, 121 Va. 204.

67. Minn.—Sahlgaard v. St Paul City R. Co., 51 N.W. 111, 48 Minn. 232.
10 C.J. p 1119 note 43.

68. Pa.—Sang v. Pittsburgh, H., B. & N. C. Ry. Co., 80 Pa.Super 524.—Lawrence v. Union Traction Co., 12 Pa.Dist. 301.
10 C.J. p 1118 note 41 [a].

Dictum to the effect that a passenger getting on street car must anticipate that it may start with abrupt movement.—Laub v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 97 Pa. Super. 323.

69. Cal.—Schultheiss v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 54 P.2d 49, 11 Cal. App.2d 525.

70. Mo.—Mathews v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 137 S.W. 1003, 156 Mo. App. 715.
10 C.J. p 1119 note 44

71. La.—Cox v. Ardis Building Co., 7 La.App. 125.

Closing door

Where, at the time of plaintiff's approach to an elevator, the door was closing and the car moving upward, and in his haste to enter plaintiff caught hold of the door and prevented it from closing and fell or climbed into the moving elevator and lay on the floor thereof with his legs protruding so that he was injured when one leg came into contact with the top of the door frame as the elevator ascended, plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence barring recovery.—Cox v. Ardis Building Co., 7 La.App. 125.

72. U.S.—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Youngers, C.C.A.S.D., 5 F.2d 784.
Ark.—Missouri Pac. Transp. Co. v. Robinson, 86 S.W.2d 913, 191 Ark. 428.
Cal.—Trulsson v. Southern Pac. Co., 183 P. 686, 42 Cal.App. 404.
Ill.—Feeney v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 220 Ill.App. 400.—Bushman v. Calumet & South Chicago Ry. Co., 214 Ill.App. 435.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Harrington, 87 S.W.2d 379, 261 Ky. 212
La.—Betts v. Shreveport Rys. Co., 137 So. 615, 18 La.App. 282.
Mich.—Davis v. Saginaw-Bay City Ry. Co., 157 N.W. 390, 191 Mich. 131.
Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Skaggs, 179 So. 274, 278, citing Corpus Juris for this rule and refers to cases there cited as authority therefor.
Mo.—Lacks v. Wells, 44 S.W.2d 154, 329 Mo. 327.—Smuzynski v. East St. Louis Ry. Co., 93 S.W.2d 1058, 230 Mo.App. 1095.
N.Y.—Wilson v. International Ry. Co., 199 N.Y.S. 562, 205 App.Div. 275
Ohio.—Manville v. Indiana, C. & E. Ry. Co., 9 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 510.
Pa.—Mulford v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 165 A. 837, 310 Pa. 521.—Dahl v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 119 A. 656, 275 Pa. 554.—Twersky v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 104 A. 63, 261 Pa. 6.—Fittipaldi v. Philadelphia Rural Transit Co., 163 A. 397, 107 Pa.Super 385.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Lenz, 164 S.E. 572, 158 Va. 732
W.Va.—Twyman v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 191 S.E. 541.
10 C.J. p 1119 note 47.

Assumption of risk

Passenger undertaking to alight from train by jumping from vestibule floor fifty-one inches above station platform assumed risk, precluding recovery for injury proximately resulting from such conduct.—Slaven v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 171 S.E. 818, 114 W.Va. 315.

passenger is negligent in alighting backward,[73] or in the manner in which he uses a step box or stool.[74] However, an alighting passenger may act on the assumption that the carrier will take proper precautions for his safety,[75] such as that of exercising care to see that the platform, steps, or running boards are in a reasonably safe condition,[76] unless the passenger knows, or by the exercise of ordinary care could know, that they are defective or in an unsafe condition,[77] and where the passenger acts on the assumption that the carrier has or will perform its duty and without disregard of factors indicating danger, he will not be held guilty of contributory negligence.[78] Where, in alighting, a pas-

Degree of care required

Relative to contributory negligence of a passenger, who after alighting on crowded station platform was struck by the train moving up, he was not required to exercise, with reference to the tracks, as high a degree of care as a pedestrian at grade crossing—Windle v. Davis, 118 A. 503, 275 Pa. 23.

Bus

(1) Generally.

Ark.—Missouri Pac. Transp. Co. v Robinson, 86 S.W.2d 913, 191 Ark. 428.

Pa.—Fordyce v. White Star Bus Lines, 155 A. 98, 304 Pa. 106.

(2) Bus driver's negligence in creating dangerous situation did not relieve passenger of duty to use ordinary care for her own safety in alighting.—Curtis v. Capitol Stage Lines Co., Mo.App., 27 S.W.2d 747.

(3) Aged woman in possession of all her faculties was obliged to use them to discover her surroundings, if unknown to her, before alighting from mired bus.—Curtis v. Capitol Stage Lines Co., supra.

Street car

(1) Street car passenger, placing foot on step when exit door was only partly open and step not completely down, was guilty of negligence causing injuries sued for.—Wylie v. Shreveport Rys. Co., App., 140 So. 715, affirmed 145 So. 513, 176 La. 193.

(2) The rule imposing duty on pedestrians to keep out of danger of outswing from ordinary movements of street car applies to alighting passengers after they have reasonable time and opportunity to alight and remove themselves from zone of danger and to intending passengers as regards passing of car while coming to a stop.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Jones, 176 So. 203, 234 Ala. 590.

(3) Street car passenger, stepping into visible depression in pavement after alighting from street car, was contributorily negligent, notwithstanding alleged obstruction of view by passengers preceding her.—Mulford v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 165 A. 837, 310 Pa. 521.

(4) Street car passenger who, after alighting in daylight, caught foot in obvious hole near rail and fell, was guilty of contributory negligence.—Vincent v New Orleans Public Service, 138 So. 129, 18 La.App. 704.

Taxi

Passenger alighting from taxi cannot close his eyes to obvious danger or to danger as easily seen by, or as well known to, him as to driver, and intrust his safety absolutely to driver, but must exercise ordinary care for his own safety and must see and hear that which ordinarily prudent person, in similar circumstances, should see and hear.—Hensley v. Braden, 91 S.W.2d 34, 262 Ky. 672.

Train

(1) A passenger, forced to alight next to a track, cannot be excused from remaining thereon, or in such close proximity thereto as to be struck by a passing train, when it appears she had ample opportunity to get to a position of safety.—Gordon v. Director General of Railroads, 104 S.E. 796, 128 Va. 426.

(2) Carrier's failure to announce arrival of train at passenger's destination does not justify passenger in attempting to alight from vestibule floor fifty-one inches above station platform, and passenger jumping from vestibule floor of railroad coach fifty-one inches above station platform is guilty of contributory negligence, precluding recovery for injuries—Slaven v Baltimore & O. R. Co., 171 S.E. 818, 114 W.Va. 315.

73. Mo.—Curtis v. Capitol Stage Lines Co., App., 27 S.W.2d 747.
10 C.J. p 1119 note 47 [c].

74. La.—Scott v. Vicksburg, S. & P. Ry. Co., 90 So. 840, 150 La. 537, 20 A.L.R. 908.
Pa.—Dixon v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 98 Pa.Super. 557.
Tex.—St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gibson, Civ.App., 211 S.W. 263.

Stepping on side of stool

La.—Deblanck v. Texas & P. R. Co., 6 La.App. 433.

Use of handrail

It is the obligation of an alighting passenger, and particularly an aged and infirm man, to go down steps without hurry, to look where he is going, to look for the step box and see that he steps on it, and, to enable him to more certainly do this, to use the handrail.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Skaggs, Miss., 179 So. 274.

Absence of step; failure to look

Passenger's testimony that she failed to look before alighting from train, and was injured because of absence of portable step, established her own negligence, precluding recovery.—Dahl v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 223 N.W. 37, 57 N.D. 538.

Cripple's descent without step as not negligent

A crippled passenger injured by alighting from defendant's train without assistance after defendant's servants had abandoned him was not deprived of his right of recovery merely because he knew there was no portable step present at the bottom of the car steps, but nevertheless attempted to alight without assistance, providing he used ordinary care.—Turner v. Wabash R. Co., Mo.App., 211 S.W. 101.

75. Cal.—Harrell v. Fresno Traction Co., 163 P. 504, 32 Cal.App. 510.
10 C.J. p 1120 note 48.

Defect in vestibule floor

Passenger could assume that street railroad had taken precautions for safety of passengers in leaving car, and her failure to look for defects in floor of vestibule, when passing out of street car, was not contributory negligence.—Jenkins v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 275 P. 136, 127 Kan. 821.

76. Or.—Goodson v. Portland Electric Power Co., 279 P. 559, 130 Or. 145.
10 C.J. p 1120 note 49.

77. Del.—Smithers v. Wilmington City R. Co., 167 A. 167, 22 Del. 422.
10 C.J. p 1120 note 50.

Tilting of steps

If plaintiff appreciated danger of alighting when door was not entirely open and steps were therefore tilted up about two inches, defense of contributory negligence was established—Peters v. Chicago Rys. Co., 138 N.E. 629, 307 Ill. 202.

78. Ill.—Thomason v. Chicago Motor Coach Co., 10 N.E.2d 714, 292 Ill.App. 104.
La.—Shally v. New Orleans Public Service, Sewerage & Water Board, 1 La.App. 770, affirmed 105 So. 606, 159 La. 519.

senger without knowledge of actual danger assumes a position which is apparently free from danger, he is not guilty of contributory negligence.[79]

Injuries from traffic, as in crossing other tracks. A passenger alighting from a train, car, or other vehicle should exercise ordinary care in avoiding injury from passing traffic,[80] and in crossing tracks,[81] and is guilty of contributory negligence barring recovery where he heedlessly crosses or walks on another track in front of an approaching train or car,[82] or heedlessly runs into the side of

"Jerking" of train

(1) Passenger alighting from train is under no obligation to use care to protect herself against danger arising from sudden jerk of train.—Galamb v. Erie R. Co., 156 A. 128, 108 N.J.Law 7.

(2) Where a train had come to a stop at a station where plaintiff's minor son, who was a passenger, was to have alighted, he was acting on an implied invitation of defendant to get off there, by the stopping of the train, and where his foot was caught between the bumpers and mashed through the negligent jerking of the train and the negligent failure to cover the bumpers with a steel plate, it was held that there was no contributory negligence on the part of the child or of his grandfather, in whose charge he was at the time.—Scarborough v. Louisiana Ry. & Nav. Co., 82 So. 286, 145 La. 323.

Unfolding of trolley step

Where trolley car was standing still, and door, which operated in conjunction with folding step, was sufficiently open for a passenger to pass through, and as she placed her foot on the step it unfolded beneath her and threw her to the ground, such circumstances alone did not constitute contributory negligence by passenger.—Micklin v. Union Ry. Co. of New York City, 212 N.Y.S. 291, 125 Misc. 863.

Rounding curve

Passengers leaving street car were not bound to anticipate that motorman would so negligently proceed forward around curve as to cause injury.—Lyons v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 152 A. 687, 301 Pa. 499.

Elevator cases

(1) Elevator passenger who tried to leave the elevator when it was stopped and opened on the fifth floor of the building, under the mistaken belief that he had reached the ground floor, was not guilty of negligence contributing to his injuries when the operator shut the door on his foot and leg, catching and holding him while the elevator descended.—American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Nussbaum, Tex.Civ.App., 230 S.W. 1102, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

(2) Passenger, who sustained injuries while leaving elevator, was not required to warn operator that she was about to leave car.—City Nat. Bank v. Pigott, Tex.Civ.App., 270 S.W. 234.

Passenger not under duty of close inspection

Stopping of street car constitutes assurance to passenger of safety of alighting place, on which passenger may rely without making close inspection.—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S.W.2d 25, 226 Mo.App. 934.

79. Conn.—White v. Connecticut Co., 92 A. 411, 88 Conn. 614, L.R.A. 1915C 609.

80. Ill.—Jaroszewski v. Chicago Rys. Co., 241 Ill.App. 1.

Duty to look

Passenger leaving street car where vehicular traffic is not held up by regulations or light must look for approaching traffic, and where he fails to do so, his contributory negligence will preclude recovery for injury by automobile, avoidable by exercise of care.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v. Sebesta, 166 N.E. 898, 121 Ohio St. 26.

Mistake as to location

Stage passenger struck by automobile while crossing highway after discharge across road from usual stopping place was contributorily negligent, where after walking around to rear of stage he paid no attention to traffic because he thought he was on opposite side of pavement.—Lewis v. Pacific Greyhound Lines, 34 P.2d 616, 147 Or. 588, 96 A.L.R. 718.

Squeezed between cars

An alighting passenger who was squeezed between two cars when one of them started moving was guilty of contributory negligence in having unnecessarily attempted to pass or stand between such cars during rush hour.—Jaroszewski v. Chicago Rys. Co., 241 Ill.App. 1.

Two-way traffic

Alighting street car passenger was bound to govern action by knowledge that two-way traffic was permitted on paved half of street.—Jones v. City of Seattle, 257 P. 393, 144 Wash. 188.

81. Pa.—Richards v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 184 A. 854, 122 Pa.Super. 88.

Within single step of safety

Passenger alighting from street car has duty to exercise care while crossing tracks and until reaching position of safety, and where she alighted from southbound car, crossed tracks, heard and saw approaching northbound street car, did not step away from track although one step would have carried her to safety, and was struck by the northbound car several seconds thereafter, such passenger was contributorily negligent, barring recovery for injuries received.—Richards v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 184 A. 854, 122 Pa.Super. 88.

82. Cal.—Klusman v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 213 P. 38, 190 Cal. 441.—Locke v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 51 P.2d 1111, 10 Cal.App.2d 478.—Finn v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 6 P.2d 548, 119 Cal.App. 513.—Trulsson v. Southern Pac. Co., 183 P. 686, 43 Cal.App. 404.

Ill.—Bushman v. Calumet & South Chicago Ry. Co., 214 Ill.App. 435.

Mo.—Zlotnikoff v. Wells, 295 S.W. 129, 220 Mo.App. 869.

N.Y.—Schasel v. International Ry. Co., 173 N.Y.S. 571, 185 App.Div. 194.

Pa.—Walker v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 117 A. 680, 274 Pa. 121.

Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Kelly, 159 S.E. 75, 156 Va. 916.—Gordon v. Director General of Railroads, 104 S.E. 796, 128 Va. 426.

Wash.—Woodruff v. City of Seattle, 251 P. 559, 141 Wash. 360.

Passing to front of car

In administrator's action for death of intestate, who after having alighted from and passed around in front of street car was struck by car coming from opposite direction, it was held that physical facts were such that motorman, no matter how negligent, incompetent, or malicious, could not have run down intestate if intestate had exercised due care in stepping on track.—Goodman v. Detroit United Ry., 175 N.W. 146, 208 Mich. 279.

Passing to rear of car

Alighting passenger crossing tracks in rear of car and struck by car on parallel track where he could see it approaching one thousand seven hundred feet is guilty of contributory negligence barring recovery for injuries.—Davis v. Saginaw-Bay City Ry. Co., 157 N.W. 390, 191 Mich. 131.

Priority of right as to crossing

No question as to priority of right as to crossing between an alighting passenger and a street car approaching on a different track can arise where the passenger got off a moving street car twenty-five feet away a train or car.[83]

A passenger alighting from a street car at a regular station or stop may, however, assume that tracks intervening between him and the station or street will be kept safe while he is crossing, as the ordinary rule requiring one to stop, look, and listen before crossing tracks does not apply in all its strictness to such a situation, and the fact that the passenger under these circumstances attempts to cross without looking or listening will not necessarily render him guilty of contributory negligence.[84] A passenger may also assume, in the absence of notice to the contrary, that when he is changing cars at an intersection, a car standing on an adjacent track will not be started without warning,[85] that cars at an intersection point will not travel in excess of the legal speed limit,[86] that cars approaching a standing car which is discharging passengers will signal their approach and proceed at a reasonable rate of speed,[87] that trains near the regular place of egress from a railroad station will be operated with due regard for the safety of alighting and departing passengers,[88] and that the safe passage of other transferring passengers ahead of him is an indication that he may cross the tracks at the same point without danger.[89]

Time of, and time consumed in, alighting. One who goes aboard a train to assist other passengers is under no duty to depart until such time as may be necessary to enable the train to leave on schedule.[90] Although it is the duty of a departing passenger to alight with reasonable promptness,[91] he may act on the assumption that he will be given a reasonable opportunity to alight in safety.[92]

Directions or suggestions of carriers' agents. Alighting from a train or other vehicle as directed or suggested by the conductor, brakeman, or other employee in charge is not necessarily negligence,[93] although it may amount to such.[94]

§ 789. Preparing to Leave Conveyance before It Stops

The fact that a passenger leaves his seat and approaches the door of a moving vehicle preparatory to from the crossing—Bushman v Calumet & South Chicago Ry Co, 214 Ill.App. 435.

Not customary stopping place

A passenger alighting from a moving street car where it does not usually discharge passengers, and, without stopping to look or listen, immediately passing behind it and suddenly emerging and struck by a car passing in opposite direction, is negligent, as he could not assume that motorman of colliding car could make an immediate stop in anticipation of discharge of passengers at that place.—Dodds v Omaha & C. B. St Ry Co, 178 N.W. 258, 104 Neb. 693.

83. La.—McKernan v. New Orleans Ry & Light Co, 81 So. 601, 144 La. 997

Vision obscured by umbrella

Where plaintiff left street car and started across street in a hurry because it was raining, and so did not take time to go to regular crossing, and in holding her umbrella she obstructed her vision and did not see an approaching street car and ran into it from the side, she was negligent barring recovery—McKernan v New Orleans Ry & Light Co, 81 So 601, 144 La 997.

84. Conn—Cecil v. Connecticut Co., 123 A. 443, 100 Conn 286.
Mich—Terrill v Michigan United Traction Co., 183 N W. 46, 214 Mich 478—Terrill v. Michigan United Traction Co. 171 N W 340, 204 Mich 652.
Ohio.—Mahoning Valley Ry. Co. v. Kazanecka, 7 Ohio App. 289.

85. Mo—Wilson v. Wells, 13 S W. 2d 541, 321 Mo 929.

86. Mo.—Wilson v. Wells, supra—Kent v Kiel, App., 97 S.W 2d 885.

87. N.Y.—Wall v. International Ry. Co., 135 N.E 512, 233 N Y. 309, reversing 188 N.Y S. 550, 195 App. Div 685.

88. W.Va—Pierce's Ex'x v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 128 S.E. 832, 99 W.Va. 313.

Respecting degree of care required of passenger

Passenger leaving railroad station by way across track, using means of egress which company has provided, or which is customarily used with its knowledge and consent, while not absolved from duty to exercise care, may be justified in presuming, in absence of warning, that trains will not be so operated as to impose on him high degree of care required of traveler at public railroad crossing—Pierce's Ex'x v Baltimore & O R Co., 128 S.E 832, 99 W Va 313.

89. Mo—Kent v. Kiel, App, 97 S. W 2d 885

Court's consideration of passage by others

In action for injuries received by street car passenger when struck by street car after walking between street car on which he had been riding and car behind which it had stopped at intersection, court would consider fact that other passengers transferring from street car had passed between two cars with safety, in determining whether passenger exercised reasonable care.—Kent v. Kiel, Mo App., 97 S.W.2d 885.

90. Ala.—Mobile & O R Co. v Davis, 137 So. 525, 223 Ala 600

91. Wyo—Chicago, etc., R Co v. Lampman, 104 P 533, 18 Wyo 106 25 L R A,N S., 217, Ann.Cas.1912C 788.
10 C.J p 1120 note 52.

92. Cal.—Harrell v Fresno Traction Co, 163 P. 504, 32 Cal App. 510
Colo.—Denver Tramway Co v. Johnson, 179 P 143, 66 Colo. 50.
10 C J. p 1120 note 53.

Alighting in usual way

In an action for personal injury to a passenger by a failure to stop a street car a reasonably sufficient time to allow him to safely alight evidence that he was getting off in the usual way tends to prove that he was alighting with reasonable dispatch.—Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Cooper, 193 P 39, 79 Okl. 271

93. N J.—Watson v. Camden, etc, R. Co, 26 A. 136, 55 N J Law 125, 39 Am S R 624, 19 L.R A 487.
10 C J p 1120 note 54.

94. Flagman's suggestion

Passenger alighting from train has duty to exercise reasonable care for his own safety, notwithstanding suggestion of flagman to get off—Louisville & N. R Co v. Harrington, 87 S.W.2d 379, 261 Ky 212

Urging of cab driver

Passenger who, on urging of taxicab driver unable to drive flush with curb because of parked automobiles, jumped from cab to curb could not recover for injuries sustained.—Hudnut v. Indiana De Luxe Cab Co., 182 N.E. 711, 98 Ind App. 44.

alighting does not necessarily render him guilty of contributory negligence, but the question of his negligence must be solved in the light of the surrounding circumstances.

It is not necessarily negligence for a passenger to leave his seat as the train or car approaches his destination, but before it comes to a stop; whether or not it is negligence is dependent on the circumstances, and is generally a question of fact.[95] Where a passenger leaves his seat and approaches or goes onto the platform at the invitation of the carrier's employees, ordinarily he will not be deemed negligent,[96] but it has been held that the announcement of a station by the conductor does not constitute an invitation to passengers bound for such station to leave their seats.[97] Although going onto the platform or steps before the car stops is not necessarily negligence per se, there are authorities holding that such rule applies only where the passenger has given notice of his intention to alight.[98] It has been held that the rule that going onto a platform of a moving train or car is not necessarily negligence applies only where the passenger has given notice of his intention to alight,[99] that a passenger going into the vestibule of a moving train assumes the risks incidental to its running and stopping in the usual way,[1] that the circumstances may be such as to render the act of the passenger in going to the threshold of or on the platform or steps of a train or car an act of negligence,[2] and that it is negligence to go on the platform or steps where the circumstances within the passenger's knowledge are such as to render the act dangerous.[3]

Injuries from doors. Where a passenger is injured by the door of a vehicle while alighting or preparing to alight, he may or may not be guilty of contributory negligence in accordance with the particular circumstances involved.[4]

95. Ark.—Lashlee v. Bush, 195 S.W. 375, 129 Ark. 257.
Mo.—Modrell v. Dunham, App., 187 S.W. 561, 564.
10 C.J. p 1120 note 55.

96. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Roebuck, 31 So. 611, 132 Ala. 412.
10 C.J. p 1121 note 57.

Calling street
Where, after a street car passenger had been told by conductor that she would be let off at a street, the conductor called the street and the car slowed up, it was not negligence to arise and approach door.—Modrell v. Dunham, Mo.App., 187 S.W. 561, 564.

Opening of doors
Passenger having no knowledge to contrary may assume, when doors of street car are open, that street car has stopped, but opening of street car doors is not invitation to alight to passenger who knows that street car has not stopped.—Simmons v. Wells, 20 S.W.2d 659, 323 Mo. 882

97. Station announced several times while train slowing down
Where name of next station was called two or three times by conductor while train was slowing down for station, it was not a request to passenger to get up and go to door while train was moving.—Lashlee v. Bush, 195 S.W. 375, 129 Ark. 257.

98. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Spears' Adm'r, 232 S.W. 60, 192 Ky. 64.
La.—Shalley v. New Orleans Public Service, 105 So. 606, 159 La. 519, affirming 1 La.App. 770.
Ohio.—Grubbs v. Cincinnati, L. & A. St. Ry. Co., 17 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 356
10 C.J. p 1121 note 56.

99. Wash.—Caywood v. Seattle Electric Co., 110 P. 420, 59 Wash. 566
10 C.J. p 1121 note 58.

1. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Spears' Adm'r, 232 S.W. 60, 192 Ky. 64

2. Ark.—Lashlee v. Bush, 195 S.W. 375, 129 Ark. 257.

Jerked off lower step of car
Passenger, who voluntarily passed onto platform of train approaching station and was standing on lower car step grasping grabiron with one hand, was negligent as matter of law and could not recover for injuries resulting from sudden jerk of train before it came to full stop, where accident would not have happened if passenger had remained in safe place.—Randall v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. Co., 193 N.E. 329, 289 Mass. 241.

Passenger opening door
Passenger voluntarily and without invitation or necessity opening door as train approached station, and standing on threshold with one hand on door casing and other on door knob, was negligent as matter of law.—Locke v. Hines, 135 N.E. 138, 241 Mass. 284.

3. Cal.—Clark v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 128 P. 1032, 164 Cal. 363.
10 C.J. p 1122 note 59.

Standing in open exit pit while rounding curve at thirty to thirty five miles an hour
Passenger, standing at exit of street car having vacant seats, and thrown from it by its motion, was guilty of contributory negligence.—Stenger v. Arnold, 253 P. 392, 81 Colo. 33, 50 A.L.R. 1361.

4. N.J.—Agry v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 150 A. 401, 106 N.J.Law 476, reversing 146 A. 587, 7 N.J.Misc. 579
Pa.—L'Hommedieu v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 101 A. 933, 258 Pa. 115.
10 C.J. p 1122 note 60.

Free swinging door
A railway carrier is not liable for injuries sustained by a passenger of mature years, who on leaving the car at her destination places her fingers in the door jamb of the passenger coach, and the door is blown shut by a gust of wind, when she knew that the door was not fastened and knew it had been swinging freely "all the time" during her railway journey of sixty-five miles.—Brehm v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 206 P. 868, 111 Kan. 242, 25 A.L.R. 1056.

Steadying self while alighting
(1) Passenger who, in alighting from taxicab, was injured when he placed fingers in opening at hinges of open front door to steady himself and driver closed front door was not entitled to recover for resulting injuries in absence of showing that driver willfully caused injury, since passenger was guilty of contributory negligence, irrespective of whether driver sometimes looked to see that passengers did not have their fingers in such openings.—Abent v. Michigan Cab Co., 273 N.W. 289, 279 Mich. 617.

(2) A passenger on an interurban car having a vestibule in the center, with swinging doors communicating with back and forward compartments, was not guilty of contributory negligence, as a matter of law, in placing her hand against the door jamb and immediately behind the rear of the door to steady herself while alighting, preventing a recov-

Passenger in elevator. It is not necessarily contributory negligence for a passenger on an elevator to step forward when the operator slows down the car and reaches out as if to open the door.[5]

§ 790. Dangers on Station Platform; Safe Exit

While a passenger may ordinarily assume that he is being provided with a safe place for alighting, he must nevertheless exercise due care for his own safety, as by avoiding obvious dangers in or about a station platform.

A passenger must exercise reasonable care to avoid danger on or about the platform or other place for alighting, but he has the right to assume that a place which is safe from hidden dangers is provided, and, unless the danger is such as would naturally suggest itself to one of ordinary understanding and prudence, he will not be guilty of contributory negligence in acting on that assumption.[6]

§ 791. Mode of Exit in General

Passengers may assume in the first instance that the means of exit provided by the carrier are safe, but should exercise ordinary care for their own protection and should not follow an obviously unsafe route where a safe route is available.

Where the carrier has provided a safe way of egress from its cars or other vehicles used for the transportation of passengers, and the passenger knows, or has means of ascertaining it, it is the duty of the latter, as a general rule, to use the way provided, with due care and prudence;[7] and, although a passenger may act on the assumption that the usual exit from the train or station is a safe one, he may be negligent in taking a way which is not the usual one, or one not indicated by the carrier in some way as proper.[8] A passenger let off at a point beyond the station is negligent in following an unsafe way back to the station instead of an available safe route.[9] It does not follow, however, that, because a safe way is provided, a passenger is bound, at his peril, to ascertain the fact and to avail himself of that way, when he sees that another way, apparently safe, is in general use by the passengers with the tacit permission of the employees of the company. Such use and such permission are calculated to induce the belief that the way is provided, in part at least, for the egress of passengers, and that a passenger is expected to make use of it should he elect to do so; and, under such circumstances, it cannot be declared, as a matter of law, that it is negligence to adopt this plan of exit.[10] A passenger may assume that the carrier has provided a safe exit from its station, and, where put off in the dark, cannot be held responsible for mistakenly following a wrong path.[11]

§ 792. Alighting at Improper Place

While a passenger may ordinarily proceed on the assumption that a carrier has performed its duty in respect of stopping vehicles at places safe for the alighting of passengers, he must use due care in getting off, and may be guilty of contributory negligence barring recovery where he alights at an improper place, as between stations or on the wrong side of the vehicle.

As a general rule, although a train or car has come to a full stop, it is the duty of a passenger to exercise reasonable care to ascertain whether it is a stop for the purpose of discharging passengers, and, in alighting thereat, if it is his destination,[12] although the passenger may act on the assumption that the carrier will perform its duty as ery for injuries to her hand from the closing of the door—Anderson v. Kansas City Rys Co., 233 S.W. 203, 290 Mo. 1.

5. U.S—National L. Ins. Co. v McKenna, Iowa, 226 F. 165, 141 C.C.A. 163.

6. U.S—Young v. Baldwin, C.C.A. Ark., 84 F.2d 841.
Or.—Abbott v. Oregon R. Co, 80 P. 1012, 46 Or. 549, 114 Am.S.R. 885, 1 L.R.A.,N.S., 851, 7 Ann.Cas. 961.
10 C.J. p 1122 note 62.

Duty of self care
A passenger on leaving a train must use ordinary care for her own safety on the depot platform.—Roussell v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., Mo.App., 257 S.W. 516.

Loose gravel
Unless a railroad platform was obviously dangerous, an alighting passenger had a right to assume it to be safe, and was under no obligation to search for loose gravel or articles on which she might step and fall.—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U. R. Co, 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312.

Stepping into switch point
Passenger, injured when she stepped into switch point and fell, after alighting from train in dark, some distance from platform, was not chargeable with knowledge of safe way or that way she took was dangerous, and hence was not contributorily negligent so as to authorize directed verdict for railroad.—Young v. Baldwin, C.C.A.Ark., 84 F. 2d 841.

7. Pa.—Flanagai v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 37 A. 341, 181 Pa. 237.
10 C.J. p 1122 note 63.

8. Vt.—Sullivan v. Delaware, etc., Canal Co., 47 A. 1084, 72 Vt. 353.
10 C.J. p 1122 note 64

9. Pa.—Griffin v. Baltimore & O. R. Co, 67 Pa Super. 392.

Use of trestle
Pa.—Griffin v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 67 Pa Super. 392.

10. Tex.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Long, 16 S.W. 1016, 81 Tex. 253, 26 Am.S.R. 811.
10 C.J. p 1123 note 65.

11. Wis.—Pleva v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 246 N.W. 694, 210 Wis. 568—Zilles v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 246 N.W. 693, 210 Wis. 564.

Not a trespasser
Passenger who mistook whereabouts and directions after getting off train at dark railroad station was not trespasser as matter of law, because, while searching for exit, he continued across cattle guard on right of way.—Pleva v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 246 N.W. 694, 210 Wis. 568—Zilles v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 246 N.W. 693, 210 Wis. 564.

12. U.S.—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Youngers, C.C.A.S.D., 5 F. 2d 784.
Me.—Mahan v. Hines, 115 A. 132, 120 Me. 371.

to stopping the train or car at a proper place for him to alight;[13] but whether it constitutes negligence on the part of a passenger to get off the train at any other place than the usual and recognized place for passengers to alight will depend largely on whether there has been an invitation, express or implied, to alight at the unusual place.[14] To alight at a place which is in fact dangerous, and without an express or implied invitation, may be contributory negligence;[15] but, although the place may be dangerous, or other than a regular stopping place, if it is indicated by the carrier in any way as a proper place for alighting, as where the passenger is invited by the conductor or other agent to alight, the question of whether the passenger used proper precautions is one of fact, and he will not be guilty of negligence as a matter of law unless there was obvious danger in alighting.[16] Where a passenger is put off at a place other than his destination, he has a right to assume that the place selected for him to alight is reasonably safe for that purpose;[17] but he must exercise reasonable care on his part in alighting,[18] as in selecting the proper part of the train from which to alight,[19] and in proceeding to the place of his destination.[20] A passenger voluntarily selecting an exit from a train or car other than that designated by the carrier assumes the risk of injury, and, if the carrier is not chargeable with notice that passengers are using a different exit than it has selected, it may not be held responsible for their protection in so doing.[21]

A passenger on a street car has a right to assume that the place where the car stops for him to alight is a safe place unless it is obviously dangerous,[22] and a failure on his part to look down when

Pa.—Seltzer v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 69 Pa.Super. 309.
10 C.J. p 1124 note 75

13. Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused
10 C.J. p 1124 note 76.

Invitation to alight between regular stations

A passenger who, because train did not regularly stop at his station, had ticket for station beyond could rightfully assume that conductor was not exceeding his authority in inviting him to alight, on train being required, on account of freight train, to stop a few yards short of his station, and, being invited to alight when train at night was required to stop a short distance from station could rightfully assume conductor was not inviting him to alight at an unsafe place.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Woodall, Tex.Com.App., 207 S.W. 84, reversing, Civ.App., 159 S.W. 1012.

14. Va.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 49 S.E. 487, 103 Va. 326.
10 C.J. p 1124 note 77.

15. Me.—Ouellette v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 76 A. 280, 106 Me. 153, 138 Am.S.R. 340
10 C.J. p 1124 note 79.

Hurrying in the dark

Plaintiff, a passenger in a day coach at night, was asleep when the train stopped at his station, but awoke after the train started, and a brakeman offered to stop it and did so, opening the vestibule doors while it was still moving, then going inside to signal. Plaintiff went to the lower step, and when the train stopped was holding to the handrail and reaching for the ground with his foot, when, as he testified, the train started, throwing him off, and he fell through a trestle and was injured. He was not seen by the brakeman after signaling. Plaintiff lived in the town, and knew the location of the trestle. It was held that there was no invitation to him to alight at that place, that it was his duty to wait until the trainmen could ascertain its safety, and that in failing to do so and in hastening to alight he was chargeable with contributory negligence.—Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co. v. Youngers, C.C.A. S.D., 5 F.2d 784.

Semaphore stop

In an action for death of a passenger who negligently jumped off or fell from the train at a semaphore stop and was run over on the track, his negligence must be regarded as continuing and precludes recovery unless some independent negligence of defendant intervened.—Mahan v. Hines, 115 A. 132, 120 Me. 371.

16. Del.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce 343.
10 C.J. p 1125 note 80.

17. Ala.—Melton v. Birmingham R., etc., Co., 45 So. 151, 153 Ala. 95, 16 L.R.A.,N.S., 467.
10 C.J. p 1125 note 81.

18. Kan.—Miller v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 15 P.2d 453, 136 Kan. 283.
10 C.J. p 1125 note 82.

Alighting at water tank near bridge

Where a passenger chose not to alight at a station, but at a water tank near a bridge, such choice and his knowledge of the location require him to use reasonable care to see that he alighted at the only safe place to alight from the train.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Quinette, Okl., 251 F. 773, 164 C.C.A. 7.

19. U.S.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Quinette, Okl., 251 F. 773, 164 C.C.A. 7.

Choosing wrong car

A passenger familiar with the conditions at a station, and knowing that he might safely alight from forward end of a smoking car opposite a water tank, who chose to alight from the forward end of a Pullman behind the smoking car, and failed to look where he might have seen the spans of a bridge, and alighted without waiting for the porter to place a step, and before discovering a secure footing, and fell from a bridge, was guilty of contributory negligence.—St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Quinette, Okl., 251 F. 773, 164 C.C.A. 7.

20. Pa.—Crawford v. Shenango Valley Traction Co., 157 A. 40, 102 Pa. Super. 440
10 C.J. p 1125 note 83.

Leaving car between regular stops

In action against street railroad, passenger leaving car between regular stops and crossing cartway in face of approaching automobile plainly visible, which struck her, was contributorily negligent.—Crawford v. Shenango Valley Traction Co., 157 A. 40, 102 Pa.Super. 440.

21. N.Y.—Trudnowski v. New York Cent. R. Co., 221 N.Y.S. 686, 220 App.Div. 503.

22. Conn.—Powers v. Connecticut Co., 74 A. 931, 82 Conn. 665, 26 L.R.A.,N.S., 405
10 C.J. p 1125 note 84.

Regular stop

Passenger, until told otherwise, had right to assume that street car would stop only at regular stop, and it was not negligence on his part to proceed to alight on this assumption.—Johnston v. City of Monroe, La.App., 147 So. 519.

alighting is not of itself negligence;[23] but, where such a passenger knows of dangers at the place at which he desires to alight, and voluntarily attempts to alight there, he is guilty of contributory negligence.[24]

Alighting from wrong end of car. There may be regulations requiring passengers to get off at the rear platform, so as to render it negligent to get off at the front platform, defeating recovery for any injury resulting therefrom,[25] unless some existing necessity requires a violation of such regulation.[26] It is not, however, as a rule, negligence per se to get off at the front platform.[27] Where it is the usual custom of passengers to alight at the front platform, it may be negligence for a passenger who knows of this custom to alight at the rear platform;[28] but, although it may be better to leave a car by the front end, leaving by the rear platform cannot, in the absence of a rule prohibiting it, be said to be negligence per se.[29] In the absence of a regulation to the contrary, a passenger has the right to alight from either end of a car; he has the right to assume that there is a safe means of egress from both ends, and he can be convicted of negligence only when he attempts to make his exit after he discovers, or by the exercise of proper care should have discovered, that the place is unsafe.[30]

Alighting on wrong side. It may be negligent to get off on the wrong side of the car, as where there is a platform or other conveniences provided for the alighting of the passenger at one side of the car and not at the other; and, if this is contrary to the regulation or plain intent of the carrier, or is manifestly dangerous, it will constitute contributory negligence.[31] In general, however, unless there is some indication that only one side is a safe place to alight, as by providing a platform or other conveniences, it is not negligence per se for a passenger to alight on either side,[32] especially where the carrier has either expressly or impliedly invited passengers to alight on either side.[33]

Act in emergency. In the event of an emergency arising through no fault of the carrier, the act of a passenger in leaving the vehicle by an emergency exit without necessity may constitute contributory negligence barring recovery for resultant injury.[34]

§ 793. Alighting from Moving Train or Car

a. In general
b. Failure to stop at proper place for sufficient time
c. Advice, permission, or direction of carrier's agents
d. Warnings

23. N.H.—Bass v. Concord St. R. Co., 46 A. 1056, 70 N.H. 170.

24. La.—Serio v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 91 So. 70, 150 La. 632.
10 C.J. p. 1126 note 86

25. Md.—Baltimore City Pass. R. Co. v. Wilkinson, 30 Md. 224

26. Md.—Baltimore City Pass. R. Co. v. Wilkinson, supra
10 C.J. p. 1123 note 70.

27. Mo.—Rearden v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 114 S.W. 961, 215 Mo. 105.
10 C.J. p. 1123 note 71

28. Ind.—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Aldridge, 61 N.E. 741, 27 Ind.App. 498
10 C.J. p. 1123 note 72.

29. Mich.—Cartwright v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 18 N.W. 380, 52 Mich. 606, 50 Am.R. 274.
10 C.J. p. 1123 note 73.

30. Pa.—Fern v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 95 A. 590, 250 Pa. 487

No exit announced by trainmen

A railroad passenger is not negligent, precluding his recovery for injuries while alighting from a train, merely because he failed to leave train through a particular door of car, where selection of that exit had not been announced by trainmen.—Atlanta & St. A. B. Ry. Co. v. Kelly, 82 So. 57, 77 Fla. 479.

Unlocked door without attendant

Alleged contributory negligence of a passenger cannot be predicated on his act in leaving the car at a door where there was no attendant, when the door was left unlocked, although there was another door, which was open, at which an attendant was stationed.—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis, Tex.Civ.App., 185 S.W. 969, error refused.

31. Pa.—Seltzer v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 69 Pa.Super. 309.
Tex.—Armitage v. Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 65 S.W.2d 376, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 1123 note 66.

Disregard of regulations

"When a railroad has provided safe and convenient means of ingress and egress to and from its trains upon one side of its track, it has in this particular discharged its whole duty to passengers, and it is not bound to anticipate that, in disregard of its reasonable and known regulations, they will alight from the opposite side."—Seltzer v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 69 Pa.Super. 309, 315.

32. Pa.—Chamberlain v. Director General of Railroads, 118 A. 550, 275 Pa. 47.
10 C.J. p. 1123 note 67.

33. N.J.—Atlantic City R. Co. v. Goodin, 42 A. 333, 62 N.J.Law 394, 72 Am.S.R. 652, 45 L.R.A. 671
10 C.J. p. 1123 note 68.

Occasional alighting as not establishing custom

"An occasional alighting and discharging of passengers on the wrong side will not establish a custom permitting passengers to leave on the side opposite to where they are required to leave, or on the nonplatform side. There should be evidence of such continuous use for a period of time that the company's assent to such use may be lawfully inferred."—Seltzer v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 69 Pa.Super. 309, 316.

34. Pa.—Mackowski v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 108 A. 168, 265 Pa. 34.

Collision

In view of a verdict for defendant, establishing for purposes of appeal that it was not negligent, and that plaintiff was negligent, defendant was not liable for injury to plaintiff, a passenger, who, after a collision and in the excitement, was injured by stepping from an emergency rear door, because there was no step, whereas, if she had kept her seat, she would not have been injured.—Mackowski v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 108 A. 168, 265 Pa. 34.

a. In General

While a passenger's act in alighting from a moving vehicle may be contributory negligence per se, as where it is moving at a rapid rate or where he descends in the dark, ordinarily the negligent or nonnegligent character of such conduct is an issue of fact to be determined from consideration of all the circumstances involved.

There may be circumstances attending an attempt to alight from a moving train or car which will justify the court in declaring such conduct negligence per se;[35] under statutes expressly declaring such conduct to be contributory negligence there can be no recovery,[36] and even where the mere act of a passenger's jumping from a train in motion is not considered negligence per se, if the act is obviously dangerous and without reasonable necessity, real or apparent, it constitutes contributory negligence as a matter of law, and will defeat a recovery for injury caused thereby.[37] However, ordinarily it is not contributory negligence per se for a passenger voluntarily to alight from a moving train; ordinarily it is a question of fact for the jury to determine whether the passenger, under the circumstances, acted as a reasonably cautious and prudent man would have acted under like circumstances.[38]

Street cars. In the absence of special circumstances, it is not negligence per se for a passenger to alight from a moving street car, as where it has not come to a full stop or is moving slowly, but the question is one of fact dependent on the circumstances of the particular case;[39] but an attempt to alight from a street car while in motion, without any effort to cause a stoppage or slowing up of the car, or under circumstances which make the attempt obviously dangerous, constitutes contributory negligence per se.[40] It has also been held that a

35. U.S.—Murray v. Southern Pac Co., Cal., 236 F. 704, 150 C.C.A. 36.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, 280 S.W. 89, 212 Ky. 723—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Derrickson, 185 S.W. 1114, 170 Ky. 334.
La.—Butler v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 173 So. 209.
Minn.—Leonczak v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 201 N.W. 551, 161 Minn. 304.
Mo.—Kirby v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 242 S.W. 79.
Ohio—Wehrenberg v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 2 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 271.
W.Va.—Bartley v. Western Maryland Ry. Co., 95 S.E. 443, 81 W.Va. 795.
10 C.J. p. 1126 note 88

Assumption of risk

(1) A passenger who does not wait for train to stop or sees that it is not going to stop, and gets off and is injured, assumes risk of getting hurt on alighting, and can recover only where some negligent act such as a defective platform or unusual motion of train accompanies act of stepping from train.—Rooker v. Deering Southwestern Ry. Co., Mo.App., 204 S.W. 556.

(2) Passenger jumping from moving train took dark side of track as he found it, railway having no duty to light that side which was opposite depot.—Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Armitage, Tex.Civ.App., 39 S.W.2d 108, error refused.

(3) Where train fails to stop at station of destination of passenger and passenger is not directed or induced at the time by act or word of railroad company's agent to get off, passenger who gets off while train is moving at rapid rate of speed does so at his own risk.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Harrell, Tenn.App., 110 S.W.2d 1032.

Duty of awaiting complete stop

Passenger in motor bus has duty of remaining therein until it comes to complete stop before attempting to alight.—George v. Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co., 119 So. 880, 9 La.App. 202.

36. Killed by jump

Under Railroads and Canals Act § 55, providing that one injured by jumping from a car while in motion shall be deemed to have contributed to the injury sustained, and shall not recover therefor from the company owning or operating the railroad, there can be no recovery for the death of one jumping off the train while moving.—Houston v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., C.C.A.N.J., 274 F. 599

Recovery denied despite acts of trainmen who invite alighting

Passenger on railroad operated under General Railroad Act, who when train slowed down and when trainmen called "Park Place, last stop, Newark," walked to front of car following another passenger and finding door open stepped off moving train mistakenly believing that it had stopped, could not recover for injury, as no act or direction of trainmen interfered with her free agency or diverted her attention.—Zelman v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 107 A. 442, 93 N.J.Law 57.

37. Ga.—Walker v. Georgia R., etc., Co., 50 S.E. 121, 122 Ga. 368.
10 C.J. p. 1130 note 3

38. Colo.—Denver Tramway Co. v. Johnson, 179 P. 143, 66 Colo. 50.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, 280 S.W. 89, 212 Ky. 723.
Minn.—Rauscher v. Payne, 188 N.W. 1017, 152 Minn. 368.
Pa.—Hawkins v. Director General of Railroads, 121 A. 46, 277 Pa. 213—Montalini v. Pennsylvania Co., 100 A. 806, 256 Pa. 249.
Vt.—Amidon v. Twin State Gas & Electric Co., 147 A. 694, 102 Vt. 267
10 C.J. p. 1126 note 89.

The test of a passenger's negligence in alighting from a moving train is not whether he knew, or should have known, that it was dangerous for him to alight, but whether his act in jumping from a moving train amounted to want of that degree of care which an ordinarily careful and prudent man would use under the same or similar circumstances.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Tillman, Tex.Civ.App., 197 S.W. 1128, error refused.

Violation of city ordinance

Passenger in autobus who saw door open, and, thinking bus had stopped, stepped out and was injured, was not guilty of negligence per se, because of city ordinance prohibiting entering or leaving motorbusses when moving.—Alstead v. Kapper, 236 P. 799, 135 Wash. 21.

39. Mo.—Hibler v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 237 S.W. 1014, 292 Mo. 14.
N.H.—Wright v. Boston & M. R. R., 139 A. 370, 83 N.H. 136, 56 A.L.R. 975
N.J.—Trimboli v. Public Service Coordinated Transport, 168 A. 572, 111 N.J.Law 481
Ohio.—Grubbs v. Cincinnati, L. & A. St. Ry. Co., 17 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 356
Wash.—Nollmeyer v. Tacoma Ry. & Power Co., 164 P. 229, 95 Wash. 595
10 C.J. p. 1128 note 95.

40. La.—Butler v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 173 So. 209.
Mo.—Delegarder v. Wells, App., 258 S.W. 7.
10 C.J. p. 1129 note 96.

passenger assumes the risk of injury where he alights from a moving street car.[41]

Particular factors for consideration. Whether alighting from a moving vehicle is culpable or excusable will depend on a variety of circumstances, such as the rapidity of the motion of the car or train,[42] whether the passenger reasonably believed the vehicle to be at a standstill,[43] whether it was night or day,[44] the distance from the car to the ground or other surface on which the passenger proposed to alight,[45] the circumstances limiting the free agency of the person alighting,[46] such as emergencies considered supra § 777, the age and vigor of the passenger,[47] his condition as to being encumbered with baggage[48] or clothing,[49] the manner in which he attempted to alight,[50] and whether or not he alighted to escape from a position of peril.[51] It has been held negligence per se where a passenger voluntarily jumps from a moving train in the dark,[52] or where at the time of taking the leap he is encumbered with luggage,[53] or where the train or car is moving at a dangerous rate of speed,[54] or even where the train is moving slowly, if he is in a weak physical condition or of an advanced age.[55]

Utterly heedless act

Where plaintiff, a young woman eighteen years of age, familiar with the movements of street cars, and in full possession of her faculties, stepped from a street car while it was running at the rate of eighteen miles per hour, she was guilty of such contributory negligence as precludes a recovery where it does not appear that she was excited, or was confronted with any emergency or peril, or that her attention was diverted.—Kirby v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, Mo., 242 S.W. 79.

Without looking

A street car passenger who undertakes to alight while the street car is in motion, with the door half open, at night, at or near the middle of the street, without looking for approaching automobiles, is barred from recovering from the street car company for injuries sustained on being struck by passing automobile, because of his own negligence.—Hevell v. Baltimore Transit Co., Md., 196 A. 103.

41. La.—Gipson v. Shreveport Traction Co., 77 So. 129, 142 La. 497, L.R.A. 1918B 1130.

Car slowing down

Man sixty years of age and apparently in full possession of faculties, who stepped off street car when it had slowed down within few feet of its regular stopping place, assumed risk of danger, which was as apparent to him as to conductor.—Gipson v. Shreveport Traction Co., 77 So. 129, 142 La. 497, L.R.A. 1918B 1130.

42. Ark.—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Duffey, 183 S.W. 748, 122 Ark. 429.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Derrickson, 185 S.W. 1114, 170 Ky. 334.
Minn.—Rauscher v. Payne, 188 N.W. 1017, 152 Minn. 368.
Mo.—Kirby v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 242 S.W. 79.
10 C.J. p. 1128 note 90.

Slowly moving train

It is not negligence per se for a passenger to alight at his station from a slowly moving train.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, 280 S.W. 89, 212 Ky. 723.

43. N.H.—Wright v. Boston & M. R. R., 139 A. 370, 83 N.H. 136, 56 A.L.R. 975.
Vt.—Amidon v. Twin State Gas & Electric Co., 147 A. 694, 102 Vt. 267.

Justification for believing bus at standstill

Whether a passenger, killed in alighting from a moving bus, was justified in believing it at a standstill when she alighted "depends upon the attending circumstances, the actual speed of the bus at the time, whether it was running smoothly or otherwise, the deceased's position in it, what could be seen outside from any viewpoint reasonably available to her before she alighted, had it reached the place where she was accustomed to leave it, etc."—Amidon v. Twin State Gas & Electric Co., 147 A. 694, 696, 102 Vt. 267.

Mistake respecting stoppage of street car

Passenger, undertaking to leave open street car before it stops under mistaken belief that it has stopped, is not necessarily negligent, where the accident occurred at night when the visibility of objects and conditions might be affected.—Wright v. Boston, & M. R. R., 139 A. 370, 83 N.H. 136, 56 A.L.R. 975.

44. Ark.—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Duffey, 183 S.W. 748, 122 Ark. 429.
10 C.J. p. 1128 note 91.

45. Ark.—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Duffey, supra.
10 C.J. p. 1128 note 92.

46. Minn.—Rauscher v. Payne, 188 N.W. 1017, 152 Minn. 368.

47. Ark.—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Duffey, 183 S.W. 748, 122 Ark. 429.
10 C.J. p. 1128 note 93.

Recovering from illness

A woman of forty four who was just recovering from a spell of sickness was negligent in attempting to alight from a train moving in excess of five miles an hour.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, 280 S.W. 89, 212 Ky. 723.

48. U.S.—Murray v. Southern Pac. Co., Cal., 236 F. 704, 150 C.C.A. 36.
10 C.J. p. 1128 note 94.

49. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, 280 S.W. 89, 212 Ky. 723.

Woman impeded by clothing of a character precluding free movement held negligent under existing circumstances in alighting from a train moving at least in excess of five miles an hour.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, 280 S.W. 89, 212 Ky. 723.

50. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, supra.

Back toward front of moving train

Where deceased, carrying a grip in his left hand, started down the steps of a moving train grasping a handhold with his right hand so that he was turned with his back toward the forward motion of the train and while in this position either stepped down or was thrown, with fatal results, his conduct constituted contributory negligence as matter of law barring recovery.—Murray v. Southern Pac. Co., Cal., 236 F. 704, 150 C.C.A. 36.

Stepping off at right angles to the motion of the train is an indication of contributory negligence.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, 280 S.W. 89, 212 Ky. 723.

51. Minn.—Rauscher v. Payne, 188 N.W. 1017, 152 Minn. 368.

52. Ala.—Hunter v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 43 So. 802, 150 Ala. 594, 9 L.R.A.,N.S., 848.
10 C.J. p. 1131 note 4.

53. Ala.—Hunter v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., supra.
10 C.J. p. 1131 note 5.

54. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Chadwell's Adm'r, 280 S.W. 89, 212 Ky. 723.
10 C.J. p. 1131 note 6.

55. Md.—Cumberland Valley R. Co. v. Maugans, 61 Md. 53, 48 Am.R. 88.
10 C.J. p. 1131 note 7.

A presumption of negligence in alighting from a moving train may be overcome by proof of the fact that the starting of the train or car and the alighting from it were simultaneous acts.[56] Even where a passenger has only partly descended the steps of a car when it starts without allowing sufficient time for him to alight, the suddenness of the situation presented and the excitement caused thereby may be such as to free him from the charge of contributory negligence in nevertheless attempting to alight.[57]

b. Failure to Stop at Proper Place for Sufficient Time

The carrier's failure to stop its vehicle at the proper place or for the proper length of time does not in itself relieve a passenger from contributory negligence in attempting to alight in the face of danger from motion of the vehicle, although such fault on the part of the carrier is a factor for consideration and, in conjunction with other circumstances, may operate to excuse the alighting passenger for what would otherwise be deemed negligence.

In general with reference to either trains or street cars it may be said that the fact that the train or car is not stopped at the proper alighting place, or moves on without stopping long enough to enable the passenger to alight, will be no excuse for his incurring danger, in attempting to get off, even if it is to avoid being carried beyond his destination;[58] but the passenger may be excused for what would otherwise be deemed negligence barring recovery where through fault of the carrier in failing to stop,[59] or in stopping for an insufficient length of time,[60] he is placed in a position of emergency. If the speed has been checked so as to indicate an intention that he shall alight, or so as to render it not hazardous so to do, the act of alighting before the train or car has come to a full stop will not necessarily be negligent, unless the danger attending the attempt is obvious to a person of ordinary prudence and intelligence.[61] Thus, if a street car has failed to stop or slow up on the signal of the passenger indicating his desire to alight, he is not justified in attempting to get off while it is in rapid motion;[62] but, if the speed of the car is reduced in apparent response to the passenger's signal, it is not necessarily negligent to attempt to alight before it has come to a full stop.[63]

Where the carrier does stop its vehicle long enough to permit a passenger to alight, and he steps from the vehicle after it has started, he is ordinarily guilty of contributory negligence per se barring recovery for resultant injuries.[64]

A passenger is not guilty of negligence in failing to protect himself from movement of a street car occurring after a stop, such as a stop for the purpose of letting him alight.[65]

56. Ill.—North Chicago St. R. Co. v. Brown, 52 N.E. 864, 178 Ill. 187, affirming 76 Ill. App. 654
10 C.J. p. 1133 note 13.

57. Mich.—Smalley v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 91 N.W. 1027, 131 Mich. 560
10 C.J. p. 1133 note 14

58. N.C.—Moore v. Southern Ry. Co., 182 S.E. 131, 208 N.C. 670.—Stamey v. Southern Ry. Co., 182 S.E. 130, 208 N.C. 668
10 C.J. p. 1129 note 97.

Flag station

Sixty-one-year old man, injured in alighting from train picking up speed in passing flag station to which he had purchased ticket not yet taken up by conductor, was held contributorily negligent as matter of law.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Whitaker, 300 S.W. 912, 222 Ky. 302.

59. Cal.—Vietti v. Hines, 192 P. 80, 48 Cal. App. 266.
10 C.J. p. 1129 note 97.

Danger of missing important engagement

Where a passenger was placed in a difficult position, so that he was compelled to decide in an instant of time whether he would jump from a moving train or miss an important engagement, by reason of refusal of carrier to stop the train, he could not be expected to act with the highest degree of prudence, and, if it happened that he did not exercise the best judgment with that degree of prudence which he would have shown under ordinary circumstances, he would not be held to have been guilty of such negligence as would preclude him from recovery, where injury resulted to him from jumping.—Vietti v. Hines, 192 P. 80, 48 Cal. App. 266

60. La.—Guidry v. Morgan's Louisiana & T. R. & S. S. Co., 74 So. 534, 140 La. 1007, L.R.A.1917D 962.
10 C.J. p. 1129 note 97.

61. Conn.—Elwood v. Connecticut R., etc., Co., 58 A. 751, 77 Conn. 145, 1 Ann.Cas. 779.
N.C.—Moore v. Southern Ry. Co., 182 S.E. 131, 208 N.C. 670.
Tenn.—Tennessee R. Co. v. Kingsley, 10 Tenn.App. 637.
10 C.J. p. 1130 note 98.

"Pick-up" of train indicating danger

Passenger alighting from train, which had slowed down for her station but had not stopped, and was going a "tiny bit faster" when she and her companions jumped, was contributorily negligent as a matter of law.—Moore v. Southern Ry. Co., 182 S.E. 131, 208 N.C. 670.—Stamey v. Southern Ry. Co., 182 S.E. 130, 208 N.C. 668.

62. Ga.—Outen v. North, etc., R. Co., 21 S.E. 710, 94 Ga. 662.
10 C.J. p. 1130 note 99.

63. Mo.—Dawson v. St. Louis Transit Co., 76 S.W. 689, 102 Mo. App. 277
10 C.J. p. 1130 note 1.

64. Ky.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 270 S.W. 464, 208 Ky. 32.—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Daniel, 251 S.W. 1007, 199 Ky. 817.—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Mollett, 251 S.W. 1005, 199 Ky. 813

65. Ohio.—Mansfield Public Utilities & Service Co. v. Wolfe, 14 Ohio App. 39.

No duty to anticipate movement

Duty of passenger to protect himself against natural movements of street car applies to movements which passenger has reasonable grounds to anticipate, and not to movements when car is stopped to permit passenger to alight.—Virginia Public Service Co. v. Silver, C.C.A.Va., 68 F.2d 230

Stop for railroad crossing

Where a car had stopped before crossing an intersecting railroad, and, while the conductor was ahead near the railroad track, a passenger started to alight, when the conductor signaled the motorman to come ahead and the passenger was thrown by the sudden forward movement of

c. Advice, Permission, or Direction of Carrier's Agents

While it is ordinarily not regarded as negligence for a passenger to alight from a moving vehicle on the advice, permission, or direction of a trainman or similar employee, nevertheless, where the circumstances are such as to render such conduct clearly imprudent, the order or suggestion of the trainman will not excuse the passenger for alighting

A passenger is not guilty of negligence per se in jumping from a moving train or car by the advice, direction, invitation, or order of the conductor or other authorized employee of the carrier, on whose opinion or judgment in the matter he has a right to rely, if the danger of such an act would not be apparent to a prudent man, as where the train at the time is moving slowly; and in such case it becomes the province of the jury to say how far the passenger's act may be excused, and whether or not it was negligent.[66] If, however, the danger attending such conduct on the part of the passenger is so obvious that a prudent man would not encounter it, as where, at the time that he jumped, the train was moving at a rapid rate of speed, he is, as a matter of law, guilty of contributory negligence and cannot recover for an injury sustained thereby,[67] and recovery will be denied where the conduct of the carrier claimed to constitute an invitation to alight did not legally amount to such an invitation and where the act of the passenger in alighting from the moving vehicle was negligent.[68]

d. Warnings

To alight from a moving vehicle in the face of warnings by the carrier or its agents is ordinarily negligence, although the circumstances may be such as to rebut any inference of imprudent conduct. Failure of a trainman to warn a passenger against his obvious design to descend from a moving train will not excuse the passenger's contributory negligence in so doing.

Where a passenger alights from a moving train or car, contrary to the warning of the carrier through its known regulations or its employees, he is guilty of contributory negligence and cannot recover for an injury received in such attempt,[69] unless an ordinarily careful and prudent person might have made the attempt under the same circumstances.[70]

Failure to warn. The fact that the carrier's agent fails to warn a passenger of the danger of alighting while the vehicle is in motion, even though such agent knew or might have known of the pasthe car, it was held that he was not guilty of contributory negligence.—Mansfield Public Utilities & Service Co v Wolfe, 14 Ohio App. 39.

66. Cal.—Vietti v Hines, 192 P. 80, 82, 48 Cal App 266, quoting Corpus Juris with approval.
Ill.—Wood v. Illinois Cent R Co., 201 Ill App. 439
La.—George v. Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co, 119 So. 880, 9 La. App 202.
10 C J. p 1131 note 9.

Assurances of safety
In determining whether passenger alighting from moving train was negligent, it is proper to consider that trainmen advised alighting, and gave assurances of safety.—Leonczak v. Minneapolis, St. P & S. S M. Ry. Co, 201 N W 551, 161 Minn 304.

67. Ga.—Southern R. Co v. Bandy, 47 S E 923, 120 Ga. 463, 102 Am S R. 112
10 C J. p 1132 note 10.

At night
Passenger, who was injured when thrown to ground while alighting from moving railway train near depot at midnight, was contributorily negligent, notwithstanding suggestion of flagman that he alight from train at time he did.—Louisville & N R. Co. v. Harrington, 87 S W 2d 379, 261 Ky. 212.

Threat of arrest
Passenger was not justified in alighting from rapidly moving train by command of trainmen or threat of arrest, unaccompanied by force or threat of immediate bodily harm.—St Louis, I. M & S. Ry. Co. v. Duffey, 183 S.W. 748, 122 Ark. 429

68. Vt.—Amidon v. Twin State Gas & Electric Co., 147 A. 694, 102 Vt 267.

Mere announcement of station cannot ordinarily be construed as an invitation to alight from a moving train.—Wood v. Illinois Cent. R Co., 201 Ill App. 439—10 C J. p 1131 note 9 [c] (1), (2).

Open door on unused side of train
Where a passenger had just come aboard a through train bound for a distant station, and the vestibule doors on the side of the train used for exit and entrance of passengers had been closed, the fact that a door was left open on the unused side of the train, where the station platform was in darkness, could not be construed as an invitation to a passenger bound for a distant station to alight from the train after it had started, and he was contributorily negligent in doing so.—Fort Worth & D C. Ry. Co v. Armitage, Tex Civ App, 39 S W 2d 108, error refused.

Opening bus door
Bus passenger is not justified in attempting to alight before bus has stopped because of fact that porter had opened door.—George v. Caddo Transfer & Warehouse Co., 119 So. 880, 9 La.App. 202.

Public conveyance of any character
"The mere opening of the exit door of a public conveyance of whatever character following a request by a passenger to be let off at the next stop does not constitute an invitation to him to alight when the vehicle is in motion if he knows, or in the exercise of the care of a prudent person ought to have known, that fact . . . It is a matter of common knowledge to all persons of ordinary intelligence that the act of alighting from moving vehicles is attended with danger, and the fact that many do it does not lessen the element of chance or afford relief to one who is injured through his own folly"—Amidon v. Twin State Gas & Electric Co., 147 A. 694, 695, 102 Vt. 267.

69. Pa.—New York, etc., R. Co. v Enches, 17 A. 991, 127 Pa. 316, 14 Am S R. 848, 4 L R A. 432—Pennsylvania R. Co. v Aspell, 23 Pa. 147, 62 Am D 323.
Wis.—Jewell v. Chicago, etc., R Co., 12 N W 83, 54 Wis. 610, 41 Am R 63
10 C J p 1133 note 11.

Preoccupation
A woman passenger on a street car, who through preoccupation, and while unmindful of conductor's attempt to warn her of danger, attempted to alight while the car was in motion, was not entitled to recover damages from operating company for injury sustained.—Boulden v Shreveport Rys. Co, 83 So 211, 145 La 976.

70. Mo.—Bond v. Chicago, etc., R Co., 99 S W. 30, 122 Mo App. 207.

senger's intention, does not relieve the passenger of the legal results of his contributory negligence [71]

§ 794. Conduct While in Transit

Generally speaking, a passenger in transit may rely on the carrier's fulfillment of its duty to protect him without being guilty of contributory negligence, although where he fails to use his own senses to avoid obvious danger he may be contributorily negligent.

The duty of the carrier to look out for the safety of the passenger justifies a passenger, while in transit, in assuming that it will use the degree of care for his protection which the law requires, and he is not bound to take precautions against dangers which are not apparent or brought to his knowledge,[72] and is not contributorily negligent in taking a seat beside an intoxicated passenger,[73] nor in carrying packages while in transit,[74] nor is a passenger, having no control over the operator of the vehicle, guilty of contributory negligence in failing to take steps to prevent dangerous operation thereof,[75] nor, aside from the question of control, need

71. W Va—Bartley v. Western Maryland Ry. Co, 95 S E 443, 81 W.Va 795.

On steps in presence of brakeman

Where a passenger stood on the steps of a moving train preparatory to alighting therefrom, the failure of a nearby brakeman to warn him against his apparent design to alight did not excuse the passenger's negligence in stepping down from the moving train—Bartley v. Western Maryland Ry. Co., 95 S.E. 443, 81 W. Va. 795.

72. Ill—Metz v. Yellow Cab Co., 248 Ill.App 609.

Ky.—Shelton Taxi Co. v. Bowling, 51 S.W.2d 468, 244 Ky. 817

La—Landix v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co, 73 So. 668, 140 La 529.

Minn.—McKellar v. Yellow Cab Co, 181 N.W. 348, 148 Minn. 247.

Pa.—Diffenderfer v Pennsylvania R Co, 67 Pa Super. 187.

Tenn.—Louisville & N. R Co. v. Hutcherson, 8 Tenn.App. 235.

10 C J. p 1133 note 16.

Invitation to cross bridge

Where bridge across canal was open because of trouble with its mechanism, and conductor on street car issued transfers and invited passengers to cross on a steam railroad bridge to reach cars on the other side, it was held that a passenger who was caught by a train while crossing the bridge was not guilty of contributory negligence in acting on the invitation—Thompson v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 87 So. 716, 148 La. 698.

Lack of heat

Although there was fuel and a stove in the car in which plaintiff and his wife were riding, plaintiff's failure to build a fire, the car becoming cold, is not contributory negligence precluding recovery for injuries to his wife from cold.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rutherford, Tex Civ App, 184 S W. 700, error refused—10 C.J. p 1134 note 18 [b].

Obstruction in aisle

A carrier of passengers being bound to exercise a high degree of care, a passenger who fell on stepping on a round piece of wood left in the aisle of a railroad car cannot be held guilty of contributory negligence in failing to discover it, because the servants of the carrier who failed to discover the piece of wood were negligent, for the passenger might proceed on the assumption that the carrier had performed its duty.—Texas & Pacific Ry Co. v. Hanson, Tex.Civ.App, 189 S.W. 289.

Unheeded warning

Taxicab passengers who requested driver to reduce high rate of speed while traveling on slippery roadway when it was snowing were not precluded from recovery for injuries sustained when thrown to floor of taxicab by sudden stop made to avoid collision on ground of negligence in not requesting driver to stop and allow passengers to leave taxicab, since passengers could reasonably assume that driver would heed warnings and reduce speed—Mendler v. Town Taxi, Mass., 3 N E 2d 15.

73. Woman passenger, no other seat available

A woman passenger, who, on entering a chair car found all seats taken except one beside a drunken man, asleep, which she took, was not guilty of negligence contributing to her injuries and shock when insulted and touched by such drunken man, the conductor not having endeavored to secure her another seat—Hines v. Rice, 218 S W 851, 142 Ark. 159

74. Bundles in lap

That street car passenger was carrying packages in lap and attempted to hold to seat to resist sudden jolt was not negligence—Cooper v Georgia Power Co, 162 S E. 302, 44 Ga. App. 581.

75. Ark—Arkansas Power & Light Co. v Boyd, 65 S W.2d 919, 188 Ark. 254.

Conn.—Duffy v. J. W. Bishop Co., 122 A. 121, 99 Conn 573.

Minn—McKellar v. Yellow Cab Co., 181 N W 348, 148 Minn. 247.

Wash—Garrow v. Seattle Taxicab Co, 238 P 623, 135 Wash. 630, 45 A.L R. 293.

Directions respecting destination

Taxicab passenger's control over driver is restricted to giving directions as to destination, and does not extend to manner of operating cab—Chaput v. Lussier, 165 A. 573, 132 Me. 48

Failing lights

Passenger was under no duty, after taxicab headlights had failed, to warn driver of taxi company engaged in business of transporting passengers for hire.—Shelton Taxi Co. v Bowling, 51 S.W 2d 468, 244 Ky. 817

Fast driving of motor vehicles

(1) A passenger in a motorcar provided by defendants to transfer their passengers to the line of another company is not guilty of contributory negligence, because he took no steps to lessen the speed of the motorcar, the passenger having no control over the driver.—Harmon v Barber, Ohio, 247 F. 1, 159 C C A. 219, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 335, 246 U.S. 666, 62 L.Ed 929.

(2) Passenger's failure to warn bus driver that he was driving too fast did not render passenger injured when bus overturned contributorily negligent—Nevin Bus Lines v Ritenour, C.C.A Ohio, 61 F.2d 637.

(3) A passenger in taxicab, which passenger had hired to perform transportation service, was not contributorily negligent in failing to leave vehicle because driver had operated taxicab at greater rate of speed than one ordinarily drives, especially where driver had assured passenger that he would take care of passenger—Adams v Hilton, 110 S W 2d 1088, 270 Ky. 818.

Hole in street

Irrespective of her ability to look through opaque and frost covered cab windows, a woman passenger riding in a taxi owed no duty to warn the driver of a hole in the street, and in her suit for damages arising from a miscarriage brought about when the cab struck the hole at a rapid rate of speed, the defense of contributory negligence could not be based on the passenger's failure to warn the driver of the hole—Reitz v. Yellow Cab Co, 248 Ill App. 287

Imminent collision of trolley car

Street car passenger was not contributorily negligent, as regards intersectional collision with truck, be-the passenger protest the manner of operation of a vehicle where not chargeable with knowledge of impending danger,[76] although where the passenger does have some control over the conduct of the operator of a vehicle,[a] it has been held that he is obligated to warn such operator, on discovery thereof, against careless driving.[77]

A passenger is bound to take notice of the usual conditions and hazards of travel,[78] and to exercise a degree of care commensurate with obvious dangers or with such as are within the comprehension of persons of ordinary foresight and prudence,[79] and may be guilty of contributory negligence where he distracts the attention of the operator of the vehicle,[80] and is not relieved of the duty of using his own senses of sight, hearing, and perception;[81] and if he fails to exercise due care to protect himself against a known danger, or one reasonably to be expected, he is guilty of contributory negligence.[82] These rules apply in case of an injury from a defective window[83] or door,[84] and to cases involving elevators.[85] cause she did not warn motorman that truck was not going to make required stop, since passenger had no right to interfere with motorman, and could assume that he would take whatever precaution was necessary.—Arkansas Power & Light Co v. Boyd, 65 S.W.2d 919, 188 Ark. 254.

One-way street

Passenger's failure to protest or prevent taxicab driver from proceeding in wrong direction along one-way street did not require finding of her contributory negligence, nor render her a trespasser as against the driver.—Rea v. Checker Taxi Co., 172 N.E. 612, 272 Mass. 510.

Wrong side of street

Taxicab passengers' presence in cab at time law of road was violated by going on the wrong side of the street, would not prevent their recovery against cab owner for injuries, if such violation was without their fault.—Chaput v. Lussier, 165 A. 573, 132 Me. 48.

76. R.I.—Zmuda v. McFarland, 165 A. 446, 53 R.I. 210.
Wash.—Garrow v. Seattle Taxicab Co, 238 P. 623, 135 Wash. 630, 45 A.L.R. 293.
Wis.—Scales v. Boynton Cab Co, 223 N.W. 836, 198 Wis. 293, 69 A.L.R. 978.

77. Ohio—Wiley v. Green Cab Co., 179 N.E. 419, 41 Ohio App. 88.

Taxi

When a passenger engages a taxicab for hire, the driver is within reasonable limitations subject to the instructions of such passenger, and when the passenger discovers that the driver is operating the cab in a dangerous manner a duty devolves on the passenger to remonstrate and to demand more care in the operation of the taxicab.—Wiley v. Green Cab Co, 179 N.E. 419, 41 Ohio App. 88.

Speed

Although mere speed at which taxicab is driven is not matter with which passenger need ordinarily concern himself, his conduct, as to warning driver against excessive speed, must be that of reasonably prudent person under similar circumstances.—Garrow v. Seattle Taxicab Co., 238 P. 623, 135 Wash. 630, 45 A.L.R. 293.

78. U.S.—Mareiniss v. Sheeran, C.C.A.N.Y., 31 F.2d 976.
Conn.—Cavanaugh v. Connecticut Co., 149 A. 131, 110 Conn. 698.—Belledeau v Connecticut Co., 149 A. 127, 110 Conn. 625.
Ga.—Hicks v. Southern Ry. Co, 99 S.E. 218, 23 Ga.App. 594, affirmed 101 S.E. 798, 149 Ga. 713.

Jolting of street car

That some jolting is usual when street car rounds curve is fact of which passengers are bound to take notice and guard against.—Mareiniss v. Sheeran, C.C.A.N.Y., 31 F.2d 976.

Natural movement of electric bus

A passenger must be held to anticipate the natural movements of the type of vehicle he boards, and in the case of an electric bus running over streets must expect and guard against the uneven movements to be expected, which differ from the smoother running of a trolley on rails, and one injured by a fall sustained while passing down the aisle of an electric bus has been denied recovery where no unusual motion nor sudden stop was revealed by the evidence.—Baptiste v. New Orleans Public Service, La.App., 161 So. 783

79. Mich.—Kutchai v. Moreton, 187 N.W. 339, 218 Mich. 242.

80. Making driver tipsy and abusing him

Passenger of taxicab who gave driver several drinks of whisky, and distracted driver's attention by verbally abusing and threatening him, was not entitled to recover for injuries sustained in accident.—Smith v. Service Cab Co, La.App., 155 So. 774

81. N.Y.—Piper v New York Cent., etc., R. Co, 50 N.E. 851, 156 N.Y. 224, 66 Am.S.R. 560, 41 L.R.A. 724, reversing 34 N.Y.S. 1072, 89 Hun 75

82. Ga.—Hicks v. Southern Ry. Co, 99 S.E. 218, 23 Ga.App. 594, affirmed 101 S.E. 798, 149 Ga. 713
Mich.—Amyot v. Duluth, S. S. & A. Ry. Co, 214 N.W. 140, 238 Mich. 663.
W.Va.—Peters v. Monongahela Transport Co., 155 S.E. 178, 109 W.Va. 417.
10 C.J. p 1134 note 18.

Knowledge that safety bar had been removed

If plaintiff railway mail clerk in performance of his duties went to door of poorly lighted mail car while train was in motion, knowing that safety bar had been removed, and was thrown out of car door because he failed to take proper precautions, his contributory negligence would bar recovery.—Carter v. Washington & O. D. Ry., 95 S.E. 464, 122 Va. 458

83. Pa.—Paynter v. Atlantic City R Co, 62 Pa.Super. 455.
10 C.J. p 1134 note 19.

84. Utah.—Christensen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co, 99 P. 676, 35 Utah 137, 20 L.R.A.,N.S., 255, 18 Ann.Cas. 1159.
10 C.J. p 1134 note 20.

Door jerked shut

Where railroad used baggage car for buffet car attaching heavy bars inside car across door openings without any warning to passengers of danger involved in coming into contact with bars, passenger was, as matter of law, not guilty of contributory negligence in resting his arm on crossbar, but such position of passenger was mere incident or condition of injury sustained when car stopped with jerk causing door to close, and it was no defense to railroad that its negligence would have been harmless but for passenger's location in particular position where passengers were expected.—Shafer v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., 14 S.W.2d 780, 228 Ky. 219.

85. Ala.—O'Rourke v Woodward, 77 So. 679, 201 Ala. 265.

Sitting on elevator trucks

If an accident to plaintiff while riding on a freight elevator in an office building was the result of plaintiff's sitting down on trucks on the elevator, causing them to move and carry him into the open space between the floor of the elevator and the ceiling of the floor above, he could not recover.—O'Rourke v Woodward, 77 So. 679, 201 Ala. 265

Overcrowded car. It has been held that a passenger riding on an overcrowded car assumes the resulting inconvenience[86] and increased risk;[87] but there is authority to the contrary.[88]

Passengers on freight or mixed trains must exercise care and prudence commensurate with the increased dangers ordinarily incident to the operation of such trains.[89] Such a passenger assumes the inconveniences and additional risks that are usually and reasonably incident to transportation on such a train;[90] but he does not assume any risks which arise from a lack of proper care on the part of the carrier,[91] and hence is not required to anticipate extraordinary dangers incident to the carrier's negligence.[92] Thus, drovers and persons accompanying stock on a freight train assume all inconveniences and risks that are usually and reasonably incident to the operation of such a train and to taking care of the stock,[93] and will be denied recovery where injury resulted from their own contributory negligence,[94] as in the case of a violation of contract requirements.[95] Although derailment is more liable to happen to a freight train than to a regular passenger train, yet, as to the condition of the ties and roadway for moving trains safely, a passenger on such a train assumes no greater risk than does a passenger on an ordinary passenger train.[96]

§ 795. Standing in Car

A passenger may be guilty of contributory negligence by standing in a moving train or car while in transit, although whether or not such conduct constitutes negligence is ordinarily to be determined from the circumstances of the particular case.

A passenger is not justified in incurring the risk incident to standing in a car, and thus subjecting himself to injury from jerks and jars which would not imperil his safety if he were properly seated, and this may constitute contributory negligence,[97] particularly where he does so in violation of a warning posted in a prominent place in the car or given by an employee in charge thereof.[98] In as much, however, as it is not generally practicable or usual in the course of the business to require passengers to remain in a seat without moving, from the beginning to the end of a journey, the circumstances of the particular case must deter-

86. Kan.—Lobner v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 101 P. 463, 79 Kan. 811, 21 L.R.A.,N.S., 972.

87. Mass.—McCumber v. Boston El R. Co., 93 N.E. 698, 207 Mass. 559, 32 L.R.A.,N.S., 475
10 C.J. p. 1136 note 28.

88. Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Tittle, Civ.App., 115 S.W. 640.
Wis.—Ward v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 78 N.W. 442, 102 Wis. 215.
10 C.J. p. 1136 note 29.

89. Mo.—Harris v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 1 S.W. 325, 89 Mo. 233, 58 Am.R. 111.
N.C.—Suttle v. Southern R. Co., 64 S.E. 778, 150 N.C. 668.
10 C.J. p. 1135 note 21.

90. Ky.—Millers Creek R. Co. v. Blevins, 205 S.W. 911, 181 Ky. 800.
N.C.—Coon v. Southern Ry. Co., 88 S.E. 510, 171 N.C. 759.
10 C.J. p. 1135 note 22.

91. N.C.—Coon v. Southern Ry. Co., supra.
10 C.J. p. 1135 note 23.

92. N.D.—McGregor v. Great Northern R. Co., 154 N.W. 261, 31 N.D. 471.
10 C.J. p. 1135 note 24.

93. Ind.—Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Teeters, 77 N.E. 599, 166 Ind. 335, 5 L.R.A.,N.S., 425, affirming, App., 74 N.E. 1014.
10 C.J. p. 1135 note 25.

94. Kan.—Shore v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 171 P. 612, 102 Kan. 542.
Mo.—Lincoln v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 7 S.W.2d 460, 223 Mo.App. 46.

Leaning on brake wheel

A live stock shipper accompanying shipment, who, while standing on ladder at end of car, grasped brake wheel and leaned over to cross to other side, was guilty of negligence barring recovery for injuries from fall caused by turn of brake wheel.—Eiler v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 157 P. 261, 98 Kan. 150.

95. Mo.—State ex rel. Vulgamott v. Trimble, 253 S.W. 1014, 300 Mo. 92, quashing Vulgamott v. Payne, App., 245 S.W. 592.

Failure to ride in caboose

Where plaintiff's contract of shipment of household goods, implements, and horses contemplated that he ride in the caboose, but instead he rode in the emigrant car, and was injured from being struck by a horse when the car suddenly stopped while being spotted at a stockyard, it was held that he was guilty of contributory negligence precluding recovery unless the facts came within the humanitarian doctrine.—State ex rel. Vulgamott v. Trimble, 253 S.W. 1014, 300 Mo. 92, quashing Vulgamott v. Payne, App., 245 S.W. 592.

Violation not shown

(1) Provision of cattle caretaker's contract reading, "will not walk or stand on any track at stations or other places at night without lantern," applied only when caretaker was on track, and did not apply where caretaker fell into ditch while walking along side of train toward caboose.—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., Mo.App., 8 S.W.2d 103.

(2) A shipper of live stock, given free transportation in consideration of caring for the stock, had a right to enter the car at a station in the morning to feed and care for the stock, and having no control of the movement of the cars or train, violated no valid term of his contract by being in the car at a station to feed and care for the stock.—Lusk v. McBride, 175 P. 747, 73 Okl. 283.

96. U.S.—Reber v. Bond, C.C.Miss., 38 F. 822.
Ky.—Ohio Valley R. Co. v. Watson, 21 S.W. 244, 93 Ky. 654, 14 Ky.L. 611, 40 Am.S.R. 211, 19 L.R.A. 310.

97. Ark.—Meeks v. Graysonia, N. & R. Co., 272 S.W. 360, 168 Ark. 966.
10 C.J. p. 1136 note 31.

Speeding street car

A passenger, fifty-seven years old, who voluntarily abandoned his seat in an open street car which was running rapidly, and was voluntarily standing without holding to anything, although handholds were available, while the efforts of the motorman to stop the car within a few feet caused it to wabble and sway, failed to exercise ordinary care.—Columbus R. Co. v. Hammett, 110 S.E. 220, 27 Ga.App. 785.

98. Ark.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Wyman, 178 S.W. 423, 119 Ark. 530.
10 C.J. p. 1136 note 32.

mine whether a passenger is negligent in standing in a car while it is in motion.[99] At any rate when the car is crowded so that passengers cannot all be accommodated with seats, it is not negligent for a passenger to stand, if he takes proper precautions in doing so.[1]

Failure to take seat before starting of vehicle. It has been held that, if a train stops a reasonable time at the station to allow passengers to enter the cars, and a reasonable time thereafter for them to be seated, a passenger who fails to sit down and is thrown down and injured by the starting of the train after the usual signal is sounded is guilty of contributory negligence;[2] but the passenger may act on the presumption that he will have a reasonable opportunity to take a seat before the car is moved.[3]

Standing near door. Where the circumstances are such as to indicate danger in so doing, it may be contributory negligence for a passenger voluntarily to stand near the door of the car, whereby he is injured by reason of his being thrown through the door and from the car.[4]

§ 796. Changing Position

Passengers are not necessarily negligent in changing their positions while on a moving vehicle, although they may be deemed negligent where failing to exercise due care in walking about on such a vehicle.

It is not negligence per se for a passenger to move from one part of the car to another while it is in motion, but whether or not it is negligence depends on the circumstances of the particular case.[5] If, however, a passenger leaves the place provided for him and unnecessarily goes to a place of greater danger, he assumes the risk, and cannot excuse himself on the plea that he or others believed it to be safe;[6] and if he fails to exercise such care and prudence as is required by the additional risk which he incurs in moving about, he is guilty of contributory negligence.[7] Passengers walking about on traveling trains assume the risk of injury from ordinary movements of the trains in starting, running, or stopping, although they do not assume the risk arising from negligent jerking to and fro of the train in a violent and unusual manner.[8]

Passing from one car to another. Whether a passenger is guilty of contributory negligence in passing from one car of a moving train to another depends on the circumstances of the particular case, and it is not negligence per se for him so to do,[9] particularly where the cars are vestibuled.[10] A passenger while voluntarily passing from one car to another assumes the risk of injury caused by the ordinary movement of a train of good construction and repair over a track in good condition,[11] and

99. Ark.—Louisiana, etc., R. Co. v. Willis, 158 S.W. 114, 108 Ark. 477, 50 L.R.A.,N.S., 441.
10 C.J. p 1136 note 33.

Freight train
It is common knowledge that a good deal of switching is necessary when local freight trains stop at a station, and such fact, together with age and experience of passenger injured during switching operations, are to be considered in determining question of contributory negligence of such passenger in standing in aisle talking to fellow traveler.—Meeks v. Graysonia, N. & A. R. Co., 272 S.W. 360, 163 Ark. 966—10 C.J. p 1136 note 33 [b].

Passing to more distant seat
A street car passenger was not negligent as a matter of law simply because she did not seat herself at the very first opportunity, but passed to a seat more distant from the door.—Shafer v. Kansas City Rys. Co., Mo., 201 S.W. 611.

1. U.S. — Trumbull v. Erickson, Colo., 97 F. 891, 38 C.C.A. 536.
10 C.J. p 1136 note 34.

2. Ga.—Macon, etc., R. Co. v. Moore, 33 S.E. 889, 108 Ga. 84.
Tex.—International, etc., R. Co. v. Copeland, 60 Tex. 325.
10 C.J. p 1137 note 35.

3. Mich.—Moore v. Saginaw, etc., R. Co., 78 N.W. 666, 119 Mich. 613.
10 C.J. p 1137 note 36.

4. Ala.—Thompson v. Duncan, 76 Ala. 334.
Mass.—Foley v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 79 N.E. 765, 193 Mass. 332, 7 L.R.A.,N.S., 1076.
10 C.J. p 1137 note 37.

5. Ill.—North Chicago St. R. Co. v. Baur, 79 Ill. App. 121, affirmed 53 N.E. 568, 179 Ill. 126, 45 L.R.A. 108.
10 C.J. p 1137 note 38.

Seeking better seat
Passenger is not guilty of contributory negligence in leaving car in search of more commodious seat or more agreeable surroundings in another car.—Oliver v. New York Cent. R. Co., 173 N.E. 543, 273 Mass. 216.

Voluntarily leaving direct car seat
Passenger voluntarily leaving seat could not recover for injuries received in fall as result of sudden stopping of street car.—Bogart v. City of Detroit, 233 N.W. 406, 252 Mich. 534.

6. U.S.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Myers, Minn., 80 F. 361, 25 C.C.A. 486.

7. N.J.—Hodler v. Public Service R. Co., 88 A. 1071, 85 N.J.Law 346.
10 C.J. p 1138 note 41.

Oiling engine at wrong time
In action for injuries by plaintiff, who had fare paid as passenger, and was riding in one of two engines being transported for his employer, it was held that plaintiff was guilty of negligence, where he got off to oil his engine after train had stopped for about one minute on automatic block signal.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 92 S.E. 820, 120 Va. 784.

Swinging out from running board
Plaintiff, in attempting to pass outside of passenger standing on running board of car, was guilty of contributory negligence, barring recovery for injuries received when he was struck by pole close to track.—Milliken v. Rhode Island Co., 99 A. 1023, 40 R.I. 82.

8. Ark.—Lashlee v. Bush, 195 S.W. 375, 129 Ark. 257.

9. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Pollock, 123 S.W. 790, 93 Ark. 420.
10 C.J. p 1138 note 43.

10. N.J.—Rivers v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 83 A. 883, 83 N.J.Law 513, reversing 76 A. 455, 80 N.J.Law 217.
10 C.J. p 1138 note 44.

11. Ga.—Auld v. Southern R. Co., 71 S.E. 426, 136 Ga. 266, 37 L.R.A., N.S., 518.
10 C.J. p 1138 note 45.

will be guilty of contributory negligence if he fails to exercise ordinary care and prudence in the attempt,[12] as where he voluntarily attempts to pass at a time when, or a place where, it is unusually dangerous for him so to do;[13] but he does not assume any risk of injury resulting from the carrier's negligence.[14]

Temporarily leaving car. A passenger is not required to remain aboard a train until he reaches his destination, but may at regular stopping places leave the train for refreshment, exercise, or for any other purpose not inconsistent with his character as a passenger, provided he exercises due care and prudence in doing so.[15]

By direction of carrier's employees. Where a passenger in passing from one car to another while a train is in motion acts under the direction of the conductor or other servant of the carrier, and the danger in so passing is not obvious, he is not guilty of contributory negligence per se.[16]

§ 797. Projecting Body or Limb from Car

Although it is ordinarily negligent for a passenger to ride with part of his body protruding from the vehicle, this does not always follow as matter of law and the question ultimately resolves itself into one of fact to be determined in the light of the type of vehicle and other circumstances of the particular case.

Riding with any part of the body protruding through a car window and extending beyond the outer surface of the window or car is ordinarily regarded as contributory negligence of the passenger barring recovery against the carrier for resultant injury,[17] although in the final analysis the issue of whether such conduct constitutes contributory negligence in any given case is one to be determined in the light of the circumstances involved,[18] and as to street cars there is less strictness in the rule with reference to the elbow or arm projecting, or holding on to the posts of an open car, or the like, than in the case of ordinary railroads, and it is generally held not to be negligence per se so to do.[19] It is not negligence for the passenger to sit with his elbow on the window sill, the window being open, but without protruding it beyond the car, although by reason of some sudden jolt or jar his arm is thrown outside and he is injured.[20]

A passenger on a motor vehicle sitting with part of his body protruding from such vehicle assumes the risks ordinarily incident to his position,[21] and where his position proximately contributes to his injury he may be guilty of negligence barring recovery,[22] although where the injury sustained was not the proximate result of the position assumed, there 12. S.C.—Hunter v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 51 S.E. 860, 72 S.C. 336, 110 Am.S.R. 605.

10 C.J. p 1138 note 46.

13. Miss.—Dougherty v. Yazoo, etc., R. Co., 36 So. 699, 84 Miss. 502.
10 C.J. p 1138 note 47.

Open door in vestibule
A passenger who went through vestibule in train and saw trapdoor open, assumed the risk of attempting to return through the vestibule while such trapdoor was open, and court properly refused plaintiff's request to instruct that "a passenger does not assume acts of negligence on the part of carrier's servants."—Mendelson v. Davis, C.C.A. Neb., 281 F. 18.

14. Mo.—Johnston v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 130 S.W. 413, 150 Mo.App. 304.
10 C.J. p 1138 note 48.

15. Va.—Southern R. Co. v. Smith, 28 S.E. 173, 95 Va. 187.
10 C.J. p 1138 note 42.

16. Miss.—Davis v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 10 So. 450, 69 Miss. 136.
10 C.J. p 1139 note 49.

17. R.I.—Malakia v. Rhode Island, 89 A. 337, 36 R.I. 149, 50 L.R.A., N.S., 42.
10 C.J. p 1139 note 50.

Clear knowledge of danger
"A passenger on a street car, who knows that the windows are screened and barred in order to prevent those who ride in it from putting their heads, arms, and elbows out and receiving injuries from cars upon an adjacent track, trees, or other objects from which such injury may be threatened, who has also observed the posted notices giving warning upon that subject, and who, nevertheless, standing upon the platform, leans upon the closed grill, or gate, and projects his elbow beyond the side line of the car, is not entitled to recover damages for an injury sustained from a car passing upon the adjacent track, since such injury must be attributed to the want of ordinary care on his part which his information requires."—Babin v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 72 So. 288, 139 La. 822

18. Ill.—Gilberts v. Rockford & I. Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 324
Mo.—Leister v. Wells, 254 S.W. 75, 300 Mo. 262.
Wis.—Spencer v. Milwaukee, etc., R. Co., 17 Wis. 503, 84 Am.D. 758.
10 C.J. p 1139 note 51.

19. D.C.—Chapman v. Capital Tract Co., 37 App. 479—Georgetown, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 25 App. 259, 5 L.R.A.,N.S., 274.
10 C.J. p 1140 note 53.

Arm projecting two or three inches
It is not negligence per se for street car passenger to sit with arm projecting two or three inches out of window on side next to car approaching on parallel track at curve, even though bars on window suggest danger.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Ogletree, 134 S.E. 830, 35 Ga.App. 765

20. Or.—Moakler v. Willamette Valley R. Co., 22 P. 948, 18 Or. 189, 17 Am.S.R. 717, 6 L.R.A. 656.
10 C.J. p 1140 note 52.

21. Cal.—Gornstein v. Priver, 221 P. 396, 64 Cal.App. 249.

22. Conn.—Guilfoile v. Smith, 116 A. 237, 97 Conn. 271.

Leg protruding from door
A passenger riding in an automobile on the street of a populous community, with one leg protruding from one of the doors in such a way as to make it liable to come in contact with passing objects, is negligent.—Guilfoile v. Smith, 111 A. 593, 95 Conn. 442.

is no basis for a finding of contributory negligence.[23] A statute prohibiting any person from riding on the rear of any vehicle without the consent of the driver and from riding with any part of his body protruding and from hanging on to any street car or vehicle whatever, has been held inapplicable to a bus passenger riding with his elbow extending over the window sill and injured when his arm brushed against a trolley pole.[24]

Projecting body from step or platform. It may be negligence, depending on the circumstances, for a passenger in either a railroad or a street car to stand on the side of the car or on the platform and to swing or project his body out so as to come in contact with obstacles.[25]

§ 798. Riding in Dangerous or Improper Place

a. In general
b. Cars not intended for passengers
c. Platform, running board, or steps

a. In General

Riding in a dangerous place on the vehicle is ordinarily contributory negligence, although the circumstances may be such that the passenger's conduct in so riding will not preclude recovery.

A passenger who, without some reasonable necessity or excuse therefor, rides in a place not intended for passengers, and which is more dangerous than the places where passengers are permitted to ride, is thereby chargeable with contributory negligence, and cannot recover for injuries resulting to him by reason of his assuming such extra hazard, although the question is one of fact as to whether the hazard was increased and the injury resulted by reason thereof;[26] and, if the dangerous character of the position is known to the passenger, it is no excuse for his placing himself there that the trainmen know that it is unsafe and do not prevent him from occupying it.[27] However, riding in an unsafe place does not forfeit the passenger's right to care,[28] and, where the nature of the accident was such that the danger of injury was not enhanced in consequence of the position occupied by the passenger, or where the accident was of such a nature that it was as likely to occur in one portion of the vehicle of transportation as in another, his right of recovery will not be affected by the fact that he was occupying an improper place.[29] For some purposes it is necessary for one who is being transported as a passenger, such as a drover on a freight train accompanying cattle, to ride in a more hazardous place than that provided for the transportation of passengers, and the assumption of any necessary hazard of this kind will not be contributory negligence.[30] A drover or other person accompanying property being transported may, however, be negligent in assuming unnecessary hazards so as to defeat his right to recover for injuries resulting therefrom.[31]

Riding on top of car. In the absence of some

23. Conn—Guilfoile v. Smith, 111 A. 593, 95 Conn. 442.
Ill—Rowan v. Bartonville Bus Line, 242 Ill.App. 451.

Collision

One seating herself on a truck, on which she was a passenger, with her legs hanging over the end, with the owner's tacit approval and consent, did not assume the risk of danger created by the negligence of the owner's drivers in a collision; and she was not contributorily negligent in permitting her attention to be diverted while conversing with a fellow passenger, with the result that she did not see the imminence of a collision with the other truck in time to draw her legs up out of harm's way, she not being required to exercise extraordinary precaution to anticipate negligence, but only such ordinary precaution as persons of reasonable care and prudence usually exercise—Gornstein v. Priver, 221 P. 396, 64 Cal.App. 249.

24. N.Y.—Connor v. Western New York Motor Lines, 164 N.E. 892, 250 N.Y. 165, affirming 228 N.Y.S. 771, 224 App.Div. 696.

25. Wash—Rose v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 143 P. 145, 81 Wash. 684, L.R.A.1915B 166.
10 C.J. p. 1140 note 54.

26. Ill—Blair v. Chicago, O. & P. R. Co., 205 Ill.App. 160.
10 C.J. p. 1141 note 55.

Riding on fender

Bus passenger riding on fender, and thereby obstructing driver's view, was guilty of contributory negligence proximately causing injury in collision with tar kiln used in repairing streets—Kuykendall v. Independent Coach Line, 145 S.E. 770, 196 N.C. 423.

27. Mass—Files v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 21 N.E. 311, 149 Mass. 204, 14 Am.S.R. 411.
10 C.J. p. 1141 note 56.

28. Mo.—Willmott v. Corrigan Cons. St. R. Co., 16 S.W. 500, 17 S.W. 490, 106 Mo. 535.

29. U.S.—Florida Cent., etc., R. Co. v. Sullivan, Fla., 120 F. 799, 57 C.C.A. 167, 61 L.R.A. 410.
10 C.J. p. 1141 note 58.

Riding on top of crates on express wagon

Son of consignee of express, injured by being thrown when driver ran horse-drawn express wagon into telephone pole, was not negligent in riding on top of crates of turkeys, he being strong and heavy and having firm grasp on the wagon; and contributory negligence of the son of consignee of express, who, having assisted the driver load the turkey crates on the express wagon, was, while riding, thrown off when wagon was run into telephone pole, could not be predicated on his not passing a rope around the crates, or not raising the rear end gate, it not having been his duty to do so—Ablon v. Electric Express & Baggage Co., Tex.Civ.App., 206 S.W. 717, affirmed Electric Express & Baggage Co. v. Ablon, 218 S.W. 1030, 110 Tex. 235.

30. Ind—Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Teeters, 77 N.E. 599, 166 Ind. 335, 5 L.R.A.,N.S., 425, affirming, App., 74 N.E. 1014
10 C.J. p. 1142 note 59.

31. N.D.—Wahlen v. Great Northern R. Co., 137 N.W. 576, 23 N.D. 607.
10 C.J. p. 1142 note 60.

reasonable necessity therefor, it is contributory negligence for a passenger to ride on top of a car, such as a freight car or a caboose,[32] even though he does so with the permission, or on the suggestion, of one of the trainmen[33] or of a station agent.[34]

Riding on the bumper of a street car has been held to be contributory negligence,[35] although passengers have been in the habit of so riding,[36] and to ride so against the warning of the conductor is contributory negligence per se.[37] Where, however, a passenger is permitted to ride on the bumper he is not necessarily negligent in doing so.[38]

b. Cars Not Intended for Passengers

Whether riding in cars not intended for passengers constitutes contributory negligence will depend on the circumstances of the particular case.

The question whether or not a passenger is guilty of contributory negligence in riding in a car not intended for passengers, such as a baggage, mail, or express car, is generally one of fact dependent on the circumstances of the case;[39] but to ride in such a car without the consent of the carrier's employees is usually considered negligence per se so far as absolutely to defeat recovery for injuries which are caused by anything likely to happen by reason of the construction or use of the car for its appropriate purpose, or which would not have been sustained had the passenger been in a proper place, since from the usual proximity of the baggage or express car to the engine it is the first car to give way to a shock in case of a collision, and is hence a more perilous position than a passenger car.[40] If the passenger takes such a position with the knowledge or permission of the conductor or other employee in charge of the train, it is not of itself such contributory negligence as will exonerate the carrier,[41] and one riding on a vehicle not designed for carrying passengers assumes only such risks as are incident to the particular mode of conveyance, and will not be held guilty of contributory negligence barring recovery where the proximate cause of injury was a collision.[42] If, however a passenger rides in a baggage or express car in violation of a known regulation of the carrier, and receives an injury in consequence of such violation, he cannot recover against the company,[43] even though he so rides with the knowledge or permission of the conductor, for the conductor cannot, in violation of a known rule of the company, license a passenger to occupy a place of danger so as to make the company responsible;[44] but in some jurisdictions it is not contributory negligence for a passenger to remain in a baggage car with the permission of the conductor or other employees of the carrier in disregard of a rule of the carrier.[45] Where a statute provides that a railroad company shall not be liable for any injury to a person riding in the mail or ex-

32. Ky.—Patterson v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 128 S.W. 1068, 138 Ky. 648, 137 Am.S.R. 405, 30 L.R.A.,N.S., 425.
10 C.J. p. 1142 note 61.

33. S.C.—McLean v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 61 S.E. 900, 1071, 81 S.C. 100, 128 Am.S.R. 892, 18 L.R.A.,N.S., 763.

34. Ark.—Little Rock, etc., R. Co. v. Miles, 40 Ark. 298, 48 Am.R. 10.

35. N.Y.—Feldheim v. Brooklyn, etc., R. Co., 107 N.Y.S. 413, 122 App.Div. 883.
10 C.J. p. 1150 note 12.

Place of notorious danger

The bumper of a street car is a place so notoriously dangerous that to ride thereon is negligence per se, which will ordinarily prevent a recovery, and the fact that the carrier has established its custom of accepting passengers who do ride on the bumper will not excuse the passenger for taking the chance, so that one who rides standing partly on the bumper and partly on the chain supporting the car fender and is injured when the chain breaks and throws him to the ground is precluded by his contributory negligence from recovery for resultant injuries.—Ward v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 63 Pa.Super. 139.

36. Ohio.—Columbus R. Co. v. Muns, 27 Ohio Cir.Ct. 277.

37. Mich.—Nieboer v. Detroit Electric R. Co., 87 N.W. 626, 128 Mich. 486.

38. Tex.—Beaumont Tract. Co. v. Happ, 122 S.W. 610, 57 Tex.Civ.App. 427.

39. Md.—Dawson v. Maryland Electric R. Co., 86 A. 1041, 119 Md. 373.—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. State, 18 A. 1107, 72 Md. 36, 20 Am.S.R. 454, 6 L.R.A. 706.
10 C.J. p. 1142 note 65.

Failure to ride in caboose

Owner authorized to accompany property in box car was not barred from recovering for injury by negligent operation of train because he could have ridden in caboose.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Britton, 31 S.W.2d 756, 182 Ark. 437.

40. Fla.—Florida Southern R. Co. v. Hirst, 11 So. 506, 30 Fla. 1, 32 Am.S.R. 17, 16 L.R.A. 631.
10 C.J. p. 1143 notes 66, 67.

41. Or.—Harvey v. Deep River Logging Co., 90 P. 501, 49 Or. 583, 12 L.R.A.,N.S., 131.
10 C.J. p. 1143 note 68.

Sick passenger carried into baggage car

Where a baggageman directed the brother and husband of a sick passenger to place her cot near a pile of trunks in the baggage car, although there was other room, and that was the place designated for the carrying of such passengers, the passenger cannot be deemed guilty of negligence, contributing to the accident, resulting from the falling of the trunks, because her cot was placed in a position of danger, nor can she be deemed to have assumed the risks involved.—Tozer v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 162 N.W. 280, 195 Mich. 662.

42. W.Va.—Hodge v. Sycamore Coal Co., 95 S.E. 808, 82 W.Va. 106.

43. U.S.—Hulet v. Payne, C.C.A.N.D., 282 F. 401.
10 C.J. p. 1143 note 69.

44. Fla.—Florida Southern R. Co. v. Hirst, 11 So. 506, 30 Fla. 1, 32 Am.S.R. 17, 16 L.R.A. 631.
10 C.J. p. 1143 note 70.

45. Minn.—Jones v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 45 N.W. 444, 43 Minn. 279.
N.J.—New York, etc., R. Co. v. Ball, 21 A. 1052, 53 N.J.Law 283, 286.
10 C.J. p. 1143 note 71.

press cars or on the engine, it is not necessary, in order to prevent recovery, that such statute should also in express terms prohibit a recovery by the person injured.[46]

Riding on engine. A locomotive engine is obviously not intended for passengers, and it has been held that, if a passenger takes a place on an engine without being assigned thereto by the conductor or some other authorized person, he will assume the risk involved,[47] and will be guilty of negligence; and, if this negligence proximately contributes to an injury received by him in that position, he cannot recover unless wanton or intentional misconduct on the part of the carrier or its employees is shown,[48] although it is held not to be negligence per se for a shipper of live stock to ride on the engine.[49] Where, however, a passenger rides on the engine under the permission or direction of the conductor or engineer, he is not necessarily guilty of negligence, unless the danger of so doing is obvious,[50] or unless his so doing is in violation of a known regulation of the carrier.[51]

c. Platform, Running Board, or Steps

Riding on the platform, running board, or steps of a train, street car, or other vehicle is not necessarily negligence, but may constitute contributory negligence where the facts are such that a person of ordinary prudence would not so ride.

Whether or not the act of riding on the platform or steps of a railroad car is negligent is generally a question of fact dependent on the circumstances of the particular case.[52] Where the danger is so obvious that a person of ordinary prudence would not subject himself to it,[53] as where a passenger rides on the platform or steps of a railroad car while the train is in rapid motion, without any reasonable necessity or excuse therefor, there being room for him inside the car,[54] or where his condition is such as to make his presence on the platform dangerous while the train is moving at any rate of speed,[55] he is generally regarded as assuming the risks of his position, which are incident to a proper and ordinary operation of the train,[56] and as being guilty of contributory negligence per se, so as to defeat a recovery for injuries received by reason of his riding in such position,[57] particularly where he does so in violation of a regulation of the carrier,[58] or of statutes prohibiting passengers from riding on platforms, or providing that railroads shall not be liable for injuries sustained by a passenger while so riding in violation of posted regulations,[59] or of a warning given by the conductor or other employee in charge.[60] Where the statute does not

46. Cal.—Cullen v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 2 Cal.Unrep.Cas 9.

47. La.—Welch v. Natchez, U. & R. Ry Co., 82 So. 196, 145 La. 206

48. Ala.—Brown v. Scarboro, 12 So. 239, 97 Ala. 316
10 C.J. p 1143 note 73.

49. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Avis, 91 S.W. 877, 41 Tex.Civ.App. 72, affirmed 93 S.W. 424, 100 Tex 33.

50. Or.—Radley v. Columbia R. Co., 75 P. 212, 44 Or. 332, 1 Ann.Cas 447
10 C.J. p 1143 note 75.

51. Ga.—Dixon v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 80 S.E. 512, 14 Ga.App 216
10 C.J. p 1144 note 76.

52. Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Grace, 159 P. 1011, 61 Okl 12.
10 C.J. p 1144 note 78.

53. Ga.—Myrick v. Macon R., etc., Co., 64 S.E. 296, 6 Ga.App. 38

54. Ill.—Blair v. Chicago, O. & P. R. Co., 205 Ill.App. 160
10 C.J. p 1144 note 80

Failure to enter crowded coach

Where plaintiff's intestate was the only passenger who sat on the platform of a car, and was killed when his knees came in contact with a bridge where the side clearance was only six and one-half inches, the intestate must be deemed guilty of negligence where the other passengers boarding the train after intestate were able to enter the coaches although they were crowded.—Wagner v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 109 A. 635, 266 Pa. 326.

55. Ga.—Augusta Southern R. Co. v. Snider, 44 S.E. 1005, 118 Ga. 146.

56. U.S.—Griggs v. Erie R. Co., C.C.A.N.J., 71 F.2d 966.
Pa.—Hildebrand v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 192 A. 111, 326 Pa. 161.
10 C.J. p 1144 note 82.

57. U.S.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Leftwich, Ark., 117 F. 127, 54 C.C.A. 1.
Pa.—Hildebrand v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 192 A. 111, 326 Pa. 161.
10 C.J. p 1144 note 83.

58. N.Y.—Higgins v. New York, etc., R. Co., 15 N.Y.Super. 132.
10 C.J. p 1145 note 84.

59. U.S.—Griggs v. Erie R. Co., C.C.A.N.J., 71 F.2d 966.—Houston v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., C.C.A. N.J., 274 F. 599, applying New Jersey statute.
N.Y.—Kettell v. Erie R. Co., 163 N.Y.S. 640, 176 App.Div. 430, applying New Jersey statute.
10 C.J. p 1145 note 85

Collision

A passenger, who is injured by the shock of a collision while standing on the platform of a moving train, in violation of a rule of the carrier promulgated under Revisal 1905 § 2628, cannot recover, where he would not have received the injury, had he remained in his seat in the coach.—Bane v. Norfolk & S. R. Co., 97 S.E. 11, 176 N.C. 247, 2 A.L.R. 90.

Need not force way

Under a statute prohibiting a passenger from riding on the platform, contrary to posted notice, or verbal instructions if there is available room inside, it is the duty of a passenger to go inside if he can reasonably do so, but he is not required to force his way through a crowd of men and women in order to determine whether or not there is a seat.—Fish v. Ball, C.C.A.Utah, 93 F.2d 853.

Strict construction unnecessary

The courts must enforce the Utah statute prohibiting passengers from riding on the platform when there is available room inside, but should bear in mind that the reason for the statute in the main no longer exists and avoid the injustice of too strict a construction.—Fish v. Ball, C.C.A.Utah, 93 F.2d 853.

60. W.Va.—Fisher v. West Virginia, etc., R. Co., 24 S.E. 570, 42 W.Va. 183, 33 L.R.A. 69.
10 C.J. p 1145 note 86.

require the warning or notice to be printed in any other language than English, it is immaterial that the passenger was unable to read English.[61]

Where, however, a passenger is compelled by necessity to ride on the platform,[62] as where the car is so crowded that there is no reasonable accommodation inside, the act of riding on the platform is not necessarily negligent, if ordinary care is exercised by the passenger in so doing, but such negligence ordinarily depends on the circumstances,[63] nor is such act ordinarily negligent where the passenger so rides by the express or implied direction or consent of the employees in charge of the train,[64] nor where other special facts indicate that the passenger was in the exercise of ordinary care in riding on the platform.[65] Nevertheless, it has been held that the fact that there are no seats in the car does not justify a passenger in riding on the platform, if, by reasonable effort, he can find standing room on the inside,[66] particularly where he has been warned of the danger of standing on the platform and ordered to go inside.[67]

On street cars in general. The rule as to street cars is more liberal than as to ordinary railroad cars, and it is generally said not to be negligence per se to ride on the platform of a street car, but the question is one of fact depending on the circumstances of the particular case,[68] and ordinarily the passenger is not negligent, particularly where he so rides by the express or implied direction or consent of the employees in charge of the car,[69] although his so riding may be negligent where it is in violation of a known regulation of the carrier,[70] or of an ordinance;[71] and it has been held not to be negligence per se in such cases, even though the passenger fails to hold on to railings or other convenient supports.[72]

In many cases, however, it is said to be negligent to ride on the platform or steps of a street car in rapid motion,[73] unless the crowded condition of the car makes it necessary,[74] or unless the carrier has, by an established custom, permitted passengers to 61. N.C.—Bane v. Norfolk & S. R Co., 97 S.E. 11, 176 N.C. 247, 2 A.L.R. 90.

62. S.C.—Brice v. Southern R. Co., 67 S.E. 243, 85 S.C. 216, 27 L.R.A.,N.S., 768.
10 C.J. p 1145 note 87.

Nausea

Passenger suffering sudden attack of nausea on suburban train was not contributorily negligent in being on platform with open gate from which he was thrown.—Dunn v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 248 Ill.App. 26.

63. Ill.—Blair v. Chicago, O. & P. R. Co., 205 Ill.App. 160.
Minn.—Rolette v. Great Northern R. Co., 97 N.W. 431, 91 Minn. 16, 1 Ann.Cas. 313.
10 C.J. p 1145 note 88.

Idle gesture

If there were no vacant seats in an electric railroad car and a passenger was compelled to ride in the rear vestibule, a direction of the conductor to the passenger to go inside and take a seat was an idle gesture and did not render applicable the statute prohibiting a passenger from riding on the platform contrary to verbal instructions of the trainmen if available room is furnished inside.—Fish v. Ball, C.C.A.Utah, 93 F.2d 853.

64. Tenn.—Louisville & N.R.R. Co. v. Hutcherson, 8 Tenn.App. 235.
W.Va.—Norvell v. Kanawha, etc., R. Co., 68 S.E. 288, 67 W.Va. 467, 29 L.R.A.,N.S., 325.
10 C.J. p 1146 note 89.

65. Mistake as to stopping place

Despite general rules as to contributory negligence and Rev.L.1910, § 1423, excusing the carrier from liability for injury to a passenger riding on the platform contrary to posted regulations, a passenger who believed when a freight train stopped that it had reached its destination and went on caboose platform to alight is not guilty of negligence in remaining thereon, when he finds the train has to go a short distance, if he holds securely to guard rail.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Grace, 159 P. 1011, 61 Okl. 12.

66. N.Y.—Graville v. Manhattan R. Co., 12 N.E. 51, 105 N.Y. 525, 59 Am.R. 516.
10 C.J. p 1146 note 90.

67. Minn.—Rolette v. Great Northern R. Co., 97 N.W. 431, 91 Minn. 16, 1 Ann.Cas. 313.

68. Ill.—Blair v. Chicago, O. & P. R. Co., 205 Ill.App. 160.
Mich.—Larskowski v. Detroit United Ry., 159 N.W. 530, 193 Mich. 409.
10 C.J. p 1146 note 92.

69. N.Y.—Fardette v. New York & S. Ry. Co., 180 N.Y.S. 179, 190 App.Div. 543.
10 C.J. p 1147 note 93.

70. Ill.—Blair v. Chicago, O. & P. R. Co., 205 Ill.App. 160.
10 C.J. p 1147 note 94.

71. Cal.—Schultheiss v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 54 P.2d 49, 11 Cal.App.2d 525.

72. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Girod, 51 So. 242, 164 Ala. 10, 137 Am.S.R. 17.
10 C.J. p 1147 note 95.

73. Pa.—Elmer v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 96 A. 1054, 251 Pa. 505.
10 C.J. p 1147 note 96.

Duty to go inside

"It is the duty of a passenger to go inside of the car, and if he is injured while standing upon the platform the burden is upon him to show that there was no unoccupied room inside of the car, or, if there was such room, that it was impracticable for him to reach it because of the crowded condition of the passageway leading thereto. Failing to meet that burden, he is chargeable with contributory negligence and cannot recover."—Panek v. Scranton Ry. Co., 102 A. 274, 275, 258 Pa. 589.

Riding on platform for personal convenience

Where a passenger chose to stand near the open door of an interurban car, to smoke a cigar, after being requested to step inside, the railway company was not liable for his death by being thrown from the car running around a curve at a speed not excessive.—Hagerstown & F. Ry. Co. v. State, 99 A. 376, 129 Md. 318.

74. Pa.—Elmer v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 96 A. 1054, 251 Pa. 505.—Little v. West Penn Railways Co., 29 Pa.Dist. 826.
10 C.J. p 1147 note 96.

Collision

Passenger compelled to stand on platform because of crowded condition of street car is not contributorily negligent, as regards right to recover for injuries sustained in collision.—Bacon v. New Orleans Public Service, 137 So. 213, 18 La.App. 96, rehearing denied 137 So. 866, 18 La.App. 96.

ride on the platform;[75] and it is has been held that in case of a crowd on the platform it may be negligence to ride in such a position.[76]

The passenger, however, assumes the additional risks necessarily incident to his position, arising from the proper operation of the car,[77] but not those arising from the negligence of the carrier;[78] and it is his duty to exercise reasonable care to protect himself from injury, commensurate with the additional risk assumed,[79] and hence, under the circumstances a failure to hold on may constitute such negligence as to defeat recovery for resulting injury,[80] or there may be contributory negligence barring recovery where the passenger was under the influence of liquor when riding on the platform.[81]

Running board or steps of vehicle. The question of negligence in riding on the running board or steps of a street car or other vehicle is usually one of fact depending on the circumstances of the particular case.[82] It has been held under some circumstances to be negligence per se to ride in such position,[83] as where so riding is in violation of an ordinance.[84] In such a case, the passenger assumes the ordinary risks of danger arising from such position,[85] such as that of being struck by

75. D.C.—Hart v. Capital Tract. Co., 35 App.D.C. 502.
10 C.J. p. 1148 note 97.

76. N.Y.—Mullane v. New York City R. Co., 99 N.Y.S. 798, 51 Misc. 24—Tregear v. Dry Dock, etc., R. Co., 14 Abb.Pr.N.S., 49.
10 C.J. p. 1148 note 98.

77. N.J.—Raeuber v. Public Service Ry. Co., 98 A. 192, 89 N.J.Law 366.
10 C.J. p. 1148 note 99.

78. D.C.—Capital Tract. Co. v. Brown, 29 App.D.C. 473, 12 L.R.A., N.S., 831, 10 Ann.Cas. 813.
La.—McMahon v. New Orleans R., etc., Co., 53 So. 857, 127 La. 544, 32 L.R.A.,N.S., 346.
10 C.J. p. 1148 note 1.

Unbalancing car

Rule that one voluntarily boarding crowded train and standing on platform without effort to obtain a seat cannot assign overcrowding as negligence, does not prevent recovery by street railway passenger injured when car jumped tracks owing to overbalance of load.—Landix v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 73 So. 668, 140 La. 529.

79. N.C.—Wagner v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 61 S.E. 171, 147 N.C. 315, 19 L.R.A.,N.S., 1028.
10 C.J. p. 1148 note 2.

80. Ky.—South Covington, etc., R. Co. v. Physioc, 92 S.W. 305, 124 Ky. 153, 29 Ky.L. 14.
10 C.J. p. 1148 note 3.

81. Ill.—Berner v. East St. Louis & S. Ry. Co., 207 Ill.App. 544.

82. Cal.—Ivancich v. Davies, 199 P. 784, 186 Cal. 520.
Ga.—Bailey v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 124 S.E. 907, 32 Ga.App. 793.
Pa.—Little v. West Penn Railways Co., 29 Pa.Dist. 826.
R.I.—Capuono v. Rhode Island Co., 102 A. 721.
10 C.J. p. 1148 note 4.

To gain relief from nausea

A railroad was not liable for injuries sustained by passenger who, to relieve himself of nausea, got on lower back step of car on side away from station, which was not passenger's destination, and fell when train was started with a violent jerk, where passenger made no effort to make use of toilet which was temporarily occupied, nor to find an unoccupied toilet in another car, and passenger was not generally obliged to leave train to relieve himself of his nausea.—Savell v. Southern Ry. Co., C.C.A.Ga., 93 F.2d 377, 114 A.L.R. 1261.

83. La.—Matthews v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 8 La.App. 463.
Mass.—Daley v. Boston, R. B. & L. R. Co., 134 N.E. 376, 241 Mass. 78.
Ohio.—Martin v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 11 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 479.
10 C.J. p. 1144 note 83 [a], p. 1149 note 5.

Choosing crowded running board in preference to smoke filled car

A passenger on an electric train, who to avoid heat and smoke in a smoking car, where he had standing room, left it and boarded an overcrowded open car having a side step the whole length of it by forcing and wedging himself between persons already standing on the step, was contributorily negligent as matter of law, so as to preclude recovery for injuries sustained when he lost his balance and fell as the car lurched in passing over a crossing.—Taylor v. Bamberger Electric R. Co., 220 P. 695, 62 Utah 552.

Excursion train

Although train on which he was riding was the last one on which his excursion ticket was good, it was negligence for a passenger to ride on the steps of the coach, unless his doing so was absolutely unavoidable.—Hogg v. Kansas City, S. & G. Ry. Co., 72 So. 705, 139 La. 972.

Fast moving street car

Passenger who attempts to stand on step of fast moving street car, which is wet with rain, and falls and is injured, cannot recover from railway, being negligent.—Viator v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 71 So. 733, 139 La. 439.

In face of warnings

Where a passenger, after warning from conductor on other occasions that such act was dangerous, stood on the lower step and was thrown, he was, as matter of law, guilty of contributory negligence precluding recovery.—Callis v. United Rys. & Electric Co., 97 A. 715, 128 Md. 406.

Intoxication

Intoxicated passenger riding on running board of taxicab, who fell off and was run over by another car, was guilty of contributory negligence as matter of law.—Bergsrud v. Maryland Casualty Co., 229 N.W. 655, 201 Wis. 141.

Room inside

"Riding outside of the car on the step is unusual, dangerous, and negligent if there is room inside."—Matthews v. New Orleans Public Service, Inc., 8 La.App. 463.

Six-inch clearance

A boy eighteen years of age boarding a crowded street car, which he could not enter, and standing on a step where he knew that there was only six inches clearance between the car and any other car that would pass on the next track, was guilty of contributory negligence.—Schmidt v. West Penn Rys. Co., 112 A. 22, 269 Pa. 72.

84. Cal.—Schultheiss v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 54 P.2d 49, 11 Cal.App.2d 525.

Proximate cause of injury

Where violation of ordinance in riding on running board of autobus approximately contributed to passengers' injuries, passengers were guilty of negligence as matter of law.—Lorry v. Englander Drayage & Warehouse Co., 291 P. 467, 108 Cal.App. 116.

85. N.J.—Brennan v. Public Service Ry. Co., 148 A. 775, 106 N.J.Law 464—Raeuber v. Public Service Ry. Co., 98 A. 192.
Pa.—Little v. West Penn Railways Co., 29 Pa.Dist. 826.
10 C.J. p. 1149 note 6.

Must exercise care

Passenger who was thrown from passing cars or objects near the track,[86] but he does not assume extraordinary risks resulting from the carrier's negligence.[87]

However, it is not negligence per se to ride on the steps or running board, where the vehicle is crowded;[88] and in such cases the passenger may assume that the carrier will take reasonable precautions to protect him;[89] although he himself must exercise care commensurate to the situation.[90] Where a passenger ran for a train and then remained on the steps to catch his breath and was struck by an object near the track, it was held that his action was not barred by a statute relating to a railroad's nonliability for injuries resulting from a passenger's going on or remaining on a platform in violation of regulations, nor by a statute relating to trespassers on tracks and declaring the rule as to persons jumping on or off car while in motion.[91]

§ 799. Pleading

General rules control as to the sufficiency of pleading contributory negligence of a passenger, and as to the issues, proof, and variance in cases involving such matter.

As already stated in § 761 supra, the rule in some states is that plaintiff must aver freedom from contributory negligence, while in others such negligence is to be pleaded by defendant to defeat plaintiff's recovery.

Sufficiency of pleading. According to some authorities a general averment of contributory negligence without specifying the acts constituting it is sufficient.[92] Other authorities, however, hold that all the facts constituting the contributory negligence must be set out,[93] including the causal connection between such negligence and the injury complained of;[94] and a mere general statement that the injury resulted from contributory negligence is not sufficient.[95] A plea of contributory negligence should, it has been held, concede the negligence of defendant, since the plea is by way of confession and avoidance,[96] and the plea of contributory negligence need not deny, and may even step of car by sudden jerk of train was required to exercise ordinary care for his own safety.—Savell v. Southern Ry. Co., C.C.A.Ga., 93 F.2d 377, 114 A.L.R. 1261.

86. Ohio—Martin v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 11 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 479
10 C.J. p 1149 note 7.

87. Ohio.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Bachman, 16 Ohio App. 129.
10 C.J. p 1149 note 8.

88. Ind.—Frank Bird Transfer Co. v. Morrow, 72 N.E. 189, 36 Ind.App. 305
Mich.—Morris v. Detroit United Ry., 193 N.W. 871, 223 Mich. 264, citing Corpus Juris with approval.
Pa.—Little v. West Penn Railways Co., 29 Pa.Dist. 826.
10 C.J. p 1149 note 9.

Jitney

It was not negligence as a matter of law to ride on the running board of an inclosed jitney bus, where the bus was crowded and the passenger could not get inside the entrance.—Ivancich v. Davies, 199 P. 784, 186 Cal. 520.

89. Ohio—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Bachman, 16 Ohio App. 129.
Pa.—Little v. West Penn Railways Co., 29 Pa.Dist. 826.
10 C.J. p 1150 note 10.

90. N.Y.—Ward v. International R. Co., 99 N.E. 262, 206 N.Y. 83, Ann.Cas.1914A 1170.
10 C.J. p 1150 note 11.

Permission of carrier

A passenger who rides on footboard of open street car by permission of carrier must exercise care commensurate with the danger of his position.—Capuono v. Rhode Island Co., R.I., 102 A. 721.

Riding backward

A jitney bus passenger must use ordinary care, but whether, in a given case, it was a want of ordinary care to ride backward on the running board, instead of facing in the direction in which the bus was traveling, must be determined by the circumstances of the case.—Ivancich v. Davies, 199 P. 784, 186 Cal. 520.

91. U.S.—Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Stevenson, C.C.A.N.J., 17 F.2d 748.

92. Ky.—Louisville & N.R. Co. v. Bland, 188 S.W. 468, 171 Ky. 424.
10 C.J. p 1150 note 18.

93. Ala.—Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co. v. Hunt, 76 So. 918, 200 Ala. 560.
10 C.J. p 1150 note 19.

Pleading held sufficient

(1) In passenger's action for injuries, plea that plaintiff negligently stepped from the street car into the way of a rapidly approaching motorcycle, without looking or listening, was sufficient.—Hammett v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 81 So. 22, 202 Ala. 520.

(2) Allegations of fact showing that plaintiff passenger's negligence was sole cause of her injury would amount to a specific denial of allegation that defendant's negligence was the proximate cause, and might amount to a plea of contributory negligence.—Haight v. Omaha & C.B. St. Ry. Co., 166 N.W. 248, 101 Neb. 841.
10 C.J. p 1150 note 19 [a].

Pleading held insufficient

(1) In action for injuries to passenger by falling over baggage placed in aisle of car by passenger, plea of contributory negligence, alleging that plaintiff negligently failed to look out for a suitcase while walking in said aisle, but not showing a duty to look, was bad on demurrer because failing to aver facts sufficient to show the particular contributory negligence set up as a defense.—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So. 479, 198 Ala. 262.

(2) In action for passenger's death, where it was claimed railroad company was negligent in exposing him to draft when ill, it was held that answer did not raise question of negligence of passenger in making, and of his medical adviser in advising, the trip.—Chicago, B. & Q.R. Co. v. Schrimpf, Minn., 236 F. 200, 149 C.C.A. 390.

(3) Plea alleging passenger was negligent in undertaking to leave train after failing to do so while train stopped, was insufficient to show contributory negligence.—St. Louis & S.F. Ry. Co. v. Mills, 124 So. 231, 220 Ala. 107.
10 C.J. p 1150 note 19 [b].

94. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Girod, 51 So. 242, 164 Ala. 10, 137 Am.S.R. 17.
10 C.J. p 1151 note 20.

95. Ala.—Birmingham R. Light, etc., Co. v. Lee, 45 So. 292, 153 Ala. 79.

96. Cal.—Harrell v. Fresno Traction Co., 163 P. 504, 32 Cal.App. 510.

Use of general denial

An answer consisting of a general denial, with allegation that plaintiff was injured after he had alighted expressly admit, the negligence charged by plaintiff,[97] although it has also been held that under progressive precedent and a fair and liberal construction of pleadings the doctrine that a plea of contributory negligence of a passenger is one in confession and avoidance should be discarded, and that the carrier may properly deny his own negligence and at the same time aver that the passenger's negligence was the sole cause of his injuries.[98] Where a count charges simple negligence, a plea setting up contributory negligence is not demurrable, although the count contains language indicating willfulness or wantonness.[99] A plea that plaintiff assumed the risk of injury in doing certain acts is improper, where such acts are covered by a general denial,[1] or by a plea of contributory negligence;[2] and if it is the intention of such a plea to set up that the injury to the passenger could not have been avoided by the exercise of the care incumbent on the carrier, and that the danger was obvious or known to the passenger, such facts should be alleged.[3]

A replication or reply denying the passenger's contributory negligence generally without denying the particular facts alleged in the answer is sufficient.[4]

Issues, proof, and variance. Under general rules the matters to be considered and the evidence offered on the issue of contributory negligence must be limited to the issues made by the pleadings.[5] Where the burden with reference to contributory negligence is regarded as resting on plaintiff, then defendant may introduce evidence of such negligence under a general denial;[6] but where contributory negligence is treated as an affirmative defense, it should be pleaded specially,[7] unless it appears from plaintiff's own pleading or proof.[8]

§ 800. Presumptions and Burden of Proof

Although there is contrary authority, it is generally held that a passenger is, in the absence of countervailing evidence, presumed to have been in the exercise of due care for his own safety, and that the burden rests on the carrier to prove contributory negligence.

In some jurisdictions, in order to recover for an injury alleged to have been caused to a passenger by the negligence of the carrier, plaintiff must show that he was in the exercise of due care with respect to the occurrence from which the injury arose; in other words, the burden rests on plaintiff to show that he was not guilty of contributory negligence,[9] unless the action is for a willful or intentional injury;[10] but where plaintiff rebuts any presumption of negligence on his part, it is then incumbent on defendant to show contributory negligence.[11]

In other jurisdictions, and in some cases under the influence of statutory provisions changing the former rule, contributory negligence on the part of the passenger is regarded as a matter of defense, and where negligence on the part of the carrier resulting in injury to the passenger is shown, and contributory negligence is not involved in the facts alleged and proved by the passenger, the burden of proving contributory negligence is on the carrier;[12] from street car, does not put in issue contributory negligence, it not being a plea in confession and avoidance—Harrell v. Fresno Traction Co., 163 P. 504, 32 Cal.App. 510

97. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Yates, 53 So. 915, 168 Ala. 381

98. Or.—Wallace v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 204 P. 147, 103 Or. 68.

99. Ala.—Birmingham R. Light, etc., Co. v. Wright, 44 So. 1037, 153 Ala. 99.

1. Mo.—Parks v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 77 S.W. 70, 178 Mo. 108, 101 Am.S.R. 425.
10 C.J. p. 1151 note 24.

2. Mo.—Parks v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., supra.

3. Mo.—Parks v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., supra.

4. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Wolfe, 80 Ky. 82, 3 Ky.L. 576.

5. Ga.—Macon, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson, 49 S.E. 791, 121 Ga. 666—Savannah Electric Co. v. Fosterling, 84 S.E. 976, 16 Ga.App. 196.
10 C.J. p. 1151 note 29.

Discovered peril

Allegations that railroad employees negligently failed to stop train when they discovered passenger, having alighted to retrieve hat, was in position of peril in trying to reboard train, were sufficient to raise issue of discovered peril as against general demurrer.—Teal v. Southern Pac. Ry. Co., Tex.Civ.App., 31 S.W.2d 337, error refused—10 C.J. p. 1151 note 29 [a].

Evidence of attempt to board train at regular stop

Evidence that plaintiff, injured by defendant railroad, was attempting to board the train at a regular stopping place, was admissible as to care exercised by her in view of defendant's plea of the general issue with leave to give in evidence any matter that would be a good defense if specially pleaded, and contending that plaintiff was negligent.—Louisville & N.R. Co. v. Holmes, 87 So. 574, 205 Ala. 47.

6. S.C.—Kennedy v. Southern R. Co., 38 S.E. 169, 59 S.C. 535.
10 C.J. p. 1151 note 30.

7. Mo.—Zimmerman v. Kansas City Public Service Co., 41 S.W.2d 579, 226 Mo.App. 369.
10 C.J. p. 1151 note 31.

8. Mo.—Allen v. St. Louis Transit Co., 81 S.W. 1142, 183 Mo. 411.
10 C.J. p. 1151 note 32.

9. Mass.—Hurley v. New York, N.H. & H.R. Co., 146 N.E. 235, 251 Mass. 53.
Mich.—Selman v. City of Detroit, 278 N.W. 112, 283 Mich. 413.
N.Y.—Meyers v. Hines, 191 N.Y.S. 773, 199 App.Div. 594—Griffith v. Long Island R. Co., 132 N.Y.S. 641, 147 App.Div. 693, appeal granted 133 N.Y.S. 1124, 148 App.Div. 929.
10 C.J. p. 1151 note 34.

10. Ind.—Conner v. Citizens' St. R. Co., 45 N.E. 662, 146 Ind. 430.

11. Iowa.—Raymond v. Burlington, etc., R. Co., 21 N.W. 495, 65 Iowa 152.

12. U.S.—Young v. Baldwin, C.C.A. Ark., 84 F.2d 841—Harmon v. Barber, Ohio, 247 F. 1, 159 C.C.A. 219, certiorari denied 38 S.Ct. 335, 246 U.S. 666, 62 L.Ed. 929.
Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co.

and this rule applies, although the passenger in his complaint negatives contributory negligence,[13] although where plaintiff's own pleadings or proof raise a presumption of the passenger's contributory negligence, the burden then rests on him to remove such presumption by showing his freedom from contributory negligence.[14] Where a passenger sustains injury while riding on the platform of a car, the burden rests on him to prove that it was not reasonably practicable for him to go inside.[15]

Presumptions. There is a presumption against the negligence[16] or suicide[17] of a passenger, and in the absence of evidence to the contrary the law presumes that he exercised reasonable care and caution to avoid injury,[18] although the presumption against contributory negligence of the passenger will not take the place of affirmative proof of the negligence of the carrier.[19] Where it is necessary, customary, or convenient for passengers to cross tracks at railroad stations, the mere crossing of the track will not raise a presumption of the passenger's negligence;[20] nor will a presumption of the passenger's negligence arise from the fact that he fell from a street car.[21] On the other hand, where the various trainmen have all climbed aboard a waiting train, to the prospective passenger's knowledge, and where the latter is familiar with the usual conditions preliminary to starting, it has been held that a presumption arises that he knows the signal to start has been given,[22] and under statutes providing that any person injured while jumping on or off a moving train shall be deemed to have contributed to the accident, the boarding or alighting from a moving train raises a presumption of the passenger's negligence.[23]

Rules of carrier and functions of officers. A passenger is presumed to have knowledge of the rules of the carrier which have properly been posted or v Hunt, 86 So. 97, 17 Ala.App 566, certiorari granted Ex parte Alabama Great Southern R. Co., 86 So. 100, 204 Ala. 504.

Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St L. Ry. Co. v Friend, 142 N E 709, 194 Ind. 579, rehearing overruled 143 N.E. 879, 194 Ind. 579—Louisville & Southern Indiana Traction Co. v. Miller, 142 N E. 410, 82 Ind.App. 344—Public Utilities Co v. Whitehead, 134 N.E. 894, 78 Ind App. 85.

La.—Cusimano v. New Orleans Public Service, 127 So. 376, 170 La 95, reversing 122 So. 903, 12 La.App. 586—Hopkins v New Orleans Ry & Light Co., 90 So. 512, 150 La. 61, 19 A.L.R. 1362—Gaines v. Teche Lines, App., 176 So 134—Rizzo v. New Orleans Ry & Light Co., 7 La App. 686.

Md.—Baltimore & O. R Co. v. Davis, 137 A. 30, 152 Md. 427.

Mo.—Gurtman v. Lusk, 208 S W. 61.

Neb—Haight v. Omaha & C B St Ry. Co., 166 N W. 248, 101 Neb 841.

Tex.—Texas Electric Ry. v. Hooks, Civ.App., 211 S.W. 654, dismissed for want of jurisdiction—Wells Fargo & Co. v. Lowery, Civ.App., 197 S.W 605, error refused.

But in Texas it has also been held that plaintiff, suing for death of iceman from fall on customer's defective elevator, had burden of proof as to contributory negligence.—Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Chocolate Shop, Tex.Civ App., 30 S.W.2d 416, affirmed, Com.App., 44 S W.2d 989—10 C J p 1152 notes 37, 40.

Alighting passenger

(1) Burden is on street railway carrier to establish affirmatively contributory negligence of passenger injured on alighting from street car.—Thomas v Shreveport Rys. Co., 127 So 119, 13 La.App. 212

(2) Street railway had burden of proving contributory negligence of passenger who stepped off car into rut of ice—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry., 149 A 602, 84 N.H 285.

Defective approach to station

In action for injuries sustained by prospective passenger because of defects in approach to station platform, defendant had the burden of showing contributory negligence—Gurtman v. Lusk, Mo., 208 S W. 61.

Defective car door

Burden was on railway company to prove fault of injured postal clerk, relieving it of liability for negligence in furnishing mail car with defective door.—Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Davis, 137 A. 30, 152 Md 427.

Falling glass

In street railway passenger's action for injury from glass falling while closing window, company had burden of showing contributory negligence—Russell v. Public Service Ry Co., 139 A. 322, 104 N.J Law 34.

Unheated waiting room

Burden of proving contributory negligence was properly placed on railroad failing to heat waiting room, petition and evidence not establishing prima facie plaintiffs' negligence as matter of law.—Gulf, C & S F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, Tex.Civ App., 290 S W. 846

Use of street car straps or holds

In action for injuries sustained by street car passenger because of car's sudden jerk, street railroad company had burden to prove that passenger did not hold onto handholds in car—Dallas Railway & Terminal Co. v. Harris, Tex.Civ.App., 81 S.W. 2d 716.

13. U.S.—Fitchburg R Co. v. Nichols, Mass., 85 F. 945, 29 C.C.A 500 10 C J. p 1152 note 39.

14. Ohio.—Friedberger v. Baltimore & O S. W. R. Co., 9 Ohio App. 173 10 C J p 1152 note 41.

15. Pa.—Elmer v. Pittsburgh Rys Co., 96 A. 1054, 251 Pa. 505.

16. N.J—Jackson v. Delaware, L & W. R. Co., 170 A. 22, 111 N.J. Law 487.

17. Mo—Daly v. Pryor, 198 S.W. 91, 197 Mo App. 583.
N J.—Jackson v. Delaware, L. & W. R Co., 170 A. 22, 111 N J Law 487.

18. Mo—Daly v. Pryor, 198 S W 91, 197 Mo.App. 583.
10 C J. p 1152 note 38.

19. Mo.—Daly v. Pryor, supra.

20. Cal.—Wilkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 232 P. 131, 195 Cal. 185.

21. Cal—Goldstein v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 202 P. 155, 54 Cal.App. 322.

Proper management of car as very fact in issue

Where a passenger was injured by a fall from a street car which she alleged was caused by a sudden start or jerk of the car, which defendant denied, defendant was not entitled to inference of negligence on the part of plaintiff from the mere fact of injury and on the assumption that the car was properly managed, that being a fact in issue.—Goldstein v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 202 P. 155, 54 Cal.App. 322

22. Ill.—Foote v. Chicago, N. S. & M. R. Co., 256 Ill App. 581.

23. N.J—Zelman v Pennsylvania R Co., 107 A. 442, 93 N J.Law 57.

otherwise published, and the burden of proving ignorance thereof devolves on plaintiff,[24] as does also the burden of proving a waiver of such rules.[25] He is also presumed to have knowledge of the functions of the usual officers employed by railroad companies.[26]

Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence. The burden of proving that the carrier by reasonable care could have avoided injury to the passenger after the peril to him was discovered, and notwithstanding that he was guilty of contributory negligence, is on plaintiff.[27]

§ 801. Admissibility of Evidence

Subject to general rules governing the admissibility of evidence, it is ordinarily proper to introduce on the issue of a passenger's contributory negligence evidence of the circumstances and surroundings attending the accident, such as the failure of others to apprehend the approach of danger and the age and sex of the injured passenger.

General rules controlling admissibility of evidence in civil cases govern the admissibility of evidence bearing on a passenger's contributory negligence in actions for injuries brought against a carrier.[28] In respect of the issue of contributory negligence, evidence is admissible relative to the circumstances attending the injury,[29] such as the age and sex of the injured passenger,[30] his knowledge of signals given,[31] failure of others to apprehend the approach of danger,[32] the rocking of the vehicle,[33] and the surroundings at the place of the injury, and the passenger's familiarity, or lack of it, therewith.[34]

24. Miss.—Southern R. Co. v. Kendrick, 40 Miss. 374, 90 Am.D. 332. 10 C.J. p 1153 note 42.

25. Iowa.—Young v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 69 N.W. 682, 100 Iowa 357.

26. D.C.—Dye v. Virginia Midland R. Co., 20 D.C. 63.

27. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Watson, 134 S.W. 949, 97 Ark. 560.
Va.—Richmond Passenger, etc., Co. v. Allen, 43 S.E. 356, 101 Va. 200.

28. Ala.—Dixie Stage Lines v. Anderson, 134 So. 23, 222 Ala. 673. 10 C.J. p 1153 note 48.

City ordinance

In action for injuries sustained when passenger was attempting to board street car, ordinances making it unlawful to board moving street cars or ride on car steps was admissible, in view of uncontradicted testimony that street car was in motion when passenger attempted to board it.—Schultheiss v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 54 P.2d 49, 11 Cal. App. 2d 525.—10 C.J. p 1153 note 48 [d]

Company rule

Unless rule of company excluding passengers from motorman's cab was to promote the safety of passengers, and its existence brought to the knowledge of plaintiff, injured by collision while riding in cab, rule was inadmissible.—Bassett v. Milwaukee Northern Ry. Co., 170 N.W. 944, 169 Wis. 152.

29. Cal.—Sellars v. Southern Pac. Co., 166 P. 599, 33 Cal.App. 701.
Mass.—Poppel v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 267, 258 Mass. 389.
Mo.—Van Leer v. Wells, App., 263 S.W. 493.
10 C.J. p 1153 note 49.

Catching fingers in elevator door

In action for injuries sustained by fall into elevator shaft, plaintiff's testimony that his fingers caught in door, causing him to be precipitated into elevator shaft due to defective condition of automatic elevator, which permitted door to be opened when cab was at another floor, should have been considered by jury as bearing on the question of contributory negligence and as tending to rebut a presumption of contributory negligence of plaintiff.—Cramer v. Mergard, 11 N.E.2d 108, 56 Ohio App. 493.

Intoxication

While voluntary intoxication of a passenger is not per se contributory negligence, it may be considered, with other facts contributing to the injury, in determining whether, without the passenger's negligence, the accident would not have happened.—McDermott v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 206 S.W. 6, 182 Ky. 22.

Remonstrance to driver

Remonstrances directed to driver of bus shortly before accident and remarks of driver that he was doing the driving, were admissible.—Dixie Stage Lines v. Anderson, 134 So. 23, 222 Ala. 673.

30. Cal.—Sellars v. Southern Pac. Co., 166 P. 599, 33 Cal.App. 701.

31. Mich.—Van Sickle v. Grand Rapids, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 182 N.W. 132, 213 Mich. 261.

Decedent's knowledge of meaning of whistles

In action for death of plaintiff's intestate struck by interurban car at crossing on failure of car to stop notwithstanding stop signal given car by deceased, where there was testimony that the car, following such signal, had blown two blasts of its whistle, and where there was testimony that deceased had boarded interurban car from such crossing almost daily for two years, testimony as to notice of rules giving meaning of whistles being posted at such crossing, was admissible to show that deceased should have known what the two blasts signified.—Van Sickle v. Grand Rapids, G. H. & M. Ry. Co., 182 N.W. 132, 213 Mich. 261.

32. Mass.—Poppel v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 267, 250 Mass. 389.

Failure of others to see approaching car

Evidence that others, with decedent and motorman on out-bound car, did not see in-bound car which struck decedent, was material on question of due care.—Poppel v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 267, 250 Mass. 389.

33. Mo.—Van Leer v. Wells, App., 263 S.W. 493.

Street car

In action for injuries to passenger struck by projecting roof of station building as street car passed with plaintiff and others standing on footboard, testimony that car, because of speed, rocked from side to side, was admissible as tending to acquit plaintiff of contributory negligence in leaning out from car.—Van Leer v. Wells, Mo.App., 263 S.W. 493.

34. Conn.—Hesse v. Meriden, etc., Tramway Co., 54 A. 299, 75 Conn. 571.
10 C.J. p 1154 note 50.

Crowded back platform

In action against carrier for personal injury, evidence as to number of passengers on the car, and that the back platform was crowded, was admissible to show why plaintiff attempted to board front platform instead of the rear end.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Freeney, 96 S.E. 575, 22 Ga.App. 457.

Sign

In street car passenger's action for injuries, evidence regarding sign requesting passengers to be at place where plaintiff was when injured when they desired to leave, was admissible.—Pickard v. Boston Elevat-

It has been held that evidence is admissible as to the custom or habits of other passengers under the same or similar circumstances,[35] but in some cases evidence of this character has been held inadmissible.[36] Evidence of the injured passenger's habit or usual conduct on other occasions is not admissible as to his conduct at the time of the injury.[37]

§ 802. Weight and Sufficiency of Evidence

General rules governing the weight and sufficiency of evidence apply to evidence of a passenger's contributory negligence, as where such negligence is claimed with respect to the conduct of a passenger entering or leaving a conveyance or to his actions thereon while it is in transit.

The rules respecting weight and sufficiency of evidence as to contributory negligence generally apply in actions by a passenger against a carrier.[38] The evidence in particular cases has been held sufficient[39] or insufficient[40] to show contributory negligence of a passenger, or sufficient[41] or insufficient[42] affirmatively to show that the passenger was in the exercise of due care, as where evidence was held sufficient or insufficient to show contributory negligence in crossing tracks[43] or a highway,[44] or in respect of an injury from a door,[45] or in the use of a station or its approaches,[46] or to show that the

ed Ry. Co., 166 N.E. 561, 267 Mass. 133

35. Ga.—Auld v. Southern R. Co., 71 S.E. 426, 136 Ga. 266, 37 L.R.A., N.S., 518
10 C.J. p. 1154 note 51.

36. Ky.—Hayden v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 170 S.W. 200, 160 Ky. 836, L.R.A. 1915C 181.
10 C.J. p. 1154 note 52.

37. N.H.—Eaton v. Boston, etc., R. Co. 40 A. 112, 67 N.H. 422.
10 C.J. p. 1154 note 53.

38. Conn.—Kruck v. Connecticut Co., 80 A. 162, 84 Conn. 401.
10 C.J. p. 1155 note 57.

Testimony of eyewitnesses as controlling

Evidence as to surroundings at crossing are important in case of conflict in evidence, or where there are no eyewitnesses, but where there are eyewitnesses of an accident to a person waiting for the train, their testimony is necessarily controlling. —Kent v. Ogden, L. & I. Ry. Co., 167 P. 666, 50 Utah 328.

39. Cal.—Gore v. Market Street Ry. Co., 48 P.2d 2, 4 Cal.2d 154.
Mass.—Notaro v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 173 N.E. 431, 273 Mass. 296.
Okl.—St. Louis & S.F. Ry. Co. v. Manley, 189 P. 177, 78 Okl. 59.
Pa.—Lynn v. Pittsburgh & L.E.R. Co., 110 A. 271, 267 Pa. 41. See Moss v. Blue Ridge Transportation Co., 30 Pa.Dist. & Co. 154.
Tex.—Stiles v. Union Terminal Co., 1 S.W.2d 947, error refused.
W.Va.—Nutter v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., 166 S.E. 815, 113 W.Va. 94.
Wis.—Karshan v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 212 N.W. 643, 192 Wis. 269.
10 C.J. p. 1155 note 57 [a].

40. U.S.—Chicago, B. & Q.R. Co. v. Schrimpf, Minn., 236 F. 200, 149 C.C.A. 390.
Cal.—Hammond v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 164 P. 50, 32 Cal.App. 756.
Mich.—Rice v. Michigan Ry. Co., 175 N.W. 454, 208 Mich. 123.
Minn.—Falk v. Chicago & N.W. Ry. Co., 157 N.W. 904, 133 Minn. 41.
N.Y.—Keilt v. Staten Island Rapid Transit Co., 27 N.Y.S. 847, 75 Hun 579, 58 N.Y.St. 738.
10 C.J. p. 1155 note 57 [b].

Condition to make trip

In action against railroad company for death of passenger, who was in weakened condition when he started on journey, evidence was insufficient to show that passenger, who was exposed and chilled through negligence of company, was not in condition to make the trip.—Chicago, B. & Q.R. Co. v. Schrimpf, Minn., 236 F. 200, 149 C.C.A. 390.

41. Cal.—Hartje v. Olcott, 3 P.2d 340, 116 Cal.App. 712.
Ill.—White v. Chicago P. & St. L.R. Co., 196 Ill.App. 459.
Ky.—Louisville & N.R. Co. v. Priddy, 71 S.W.2d 39, 254 Ky. 173.

Signaling in prescribed manner

In an action for the death of a man who was intending to board an interurban car at night, evidence which tended to show that he attempted to signal the car in the prescribed manner and was killed before he could reach safety, was sufficient to warrant the jury in finding that he was not contributorily negligent.—Carlisle v. Davenport & M. Ry. Co., 176 N.W. 699, 188 Iowa 676.

42. N.Y.—Ruppenthal v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 181 N.Y.S. 617, 191 App.Div. 487.

Absence of nurse's negligence not shown

In action against street railway for injuries to boy of five and one half years, on car with his brother and in charge of a nurse, when he jumped from front platform after his brother and had his leg run over, evidence was insufficient to sustain finding of negligence of motorman and conductor, and of absence of contributory negligence of the nurse.—Longacre v. Yonkers R. Co., 182 N.Y.S. 373, 191 App.Div. 770.

43. Mo.—Sugarwater v. Fleming, 293 S.W. 111, 316 Mo. 742.
N.Y.—Ruppenthal v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 181 N.Y.S. 617, 191 App.Div. 487.
Va.—Hendricks v. Virginia Electric & Power Co., 172 S.E. 160, 161 Va. 793.—Washington-Virginia Ry. Co. v. Struder, 111 S.E. 239, 132 Va. 368.
W.Va.—Nutter v. Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co., 166 S.E. 815, 113 W.Va. 94.

Stepping in front of approaching car

Evidence that prospective passenger was watching approaching car at all times and that, although cars had frequently not stopped for her on signal, she proceeded across track in front of on-coming car, which did not slacken speed, in order that she might board it at safety station, showed such contributory negligence as to bar recovery against street car company.—Gore v. Market Street Ry. Co., 48 P.2d 2, 4 Cal.2d 154.

44. Cal.—Sanchez v. Pacific Auto Stages, 2 P.2d 845, 116 Cal.App. 392.

Accompanied by carrier's agent

Evidence sustained the verdict that a passenger who, having started across highway accompanied by bus company's agent for purpose of reaching bus, did not look to left or right, was not contributorily negligent.—Sanchez v. Pacific Auto Stages, 2 P.2d 845, 116 Cal.App. 392.

45. Cal.—Hartje v. Olcott, 3 P.2d 340, 116 Cal.App. 712.
Ky.—Louisville & N.R. Co. v. Priddy, 71 S.W.2d 39, 254 Ky. 173.

46. Mo.—Gurtman v. Lusk, 208 S.W. 61.
Tex.—Stiles v. Union Terminal Co., Civ.App., 1 S.W.2d 947, error refused.—Fort Worth & D.C. Ry. Co. v. Kidwell, Civ.App., 249 S.W. 303, certified questions answered 245 S.W. 667, 112 Tex. 89.

Disobeying instructions

In action for injuries sustained when bus passenger, seeking rest room in bus station, entered wrong door and fell down basement stairway, evidence was held to sustain finding that passenger was negligent passenger's negligence was the proximate cause of his injury.[47]

Entering conveyance. A preponderance of the evidence is necessary to prove or disprove contributory negligence in entering or boarding a car or conveyance,[48] and in the notes below will be found reference to cases wherein the evidence was held sufficient[49] or insufficient[50] to show the passenger's contributory negligence in boarding or entering a vehicle, as in the case of a moving vehicle,[51] or one with ice-coated steps,[52] or wherein the evidence has been held insufficient to bring the case of a boarding passenger within the last clear chance doctrine.[53]

Contributory negligence while in transit. Where there is a claim of contributory negligence of the passenger while in transit, such claim should be proved by a preponderance of the evidence,[54] and the evidence in particular cases has been held sufficient[55] or insufficient[56] to show the contributory in entering basement door, and in failing to follow directions of bus driver.—Crow v. Southwestern Transp Co, Tex Civ App., 73 S.W.2d 607, error refused.

Failure to see hole

Evidence did not show conclusively that plaintiff was negligent in not seeing a hole in the approach to the station platform, or in not looking for it—Gurtman v. Lusk, Mo, 208 S W 61.

Icy platform

Evidence did not conclusively show negligence of passenger, falling on icy platform in proceeding to train. —Byron v. Boston & M. R. R., 136 A. 250, 82 N.H 434.

47. N Y—Hoffman v. Ellis, 174 N Y.S 362, 106 Misc. 283.
10 C J. p 1155 note 58.

Sole proximate cause

Evidence showing prospective passenger crossed car line directly in front of approaching street car, and was run over, established contributory negligence as sole proximate cause of injuries.—Hendricks v. Virginia Electric & Power Co., 172 S.E 160, 161 Va. 793.

48. Mo—New v. St. Louis, etc., R Co, 89 S W. 1043, 114 Mo.App 379.
N Y.—Wallace v. Third Ave. R. Co., 55 N Y S 132, 36 App.Div. 57.
10 C.J p 1155 note 59.

49. Cal—Gaskill v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 159 P. 200, 30 Cal App. 593.
Ill.—Foote v. Chicago, N S & M R. Co, 256 Ill.App. 581. See Baitty v Toledo, P. & W. Ry. Co, 196 Ill. App 225
La.—Murtes v. New Orleans Public Service, App, 158 So 260
Mass—Gerber v New York Cent R R, 192 N E. 837, 288 Mass. 318
Va—Washington-Virginia Ry. Co v. Struder, 111 S.E. 239, 132 Va. 368
10 C J p 1155 note 59 [a].

Street car

La.—Murtes v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 158 So. 260.

Train

Cal—Gaskill v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co, 159 P. 200, 30 Cal App 593.
Mass.—Gerber v. New York Cent. R. R., 192 N.E 837, 288 Mass. 318.
N J.—Lozier v. Delaware, L & W. R. Co, 130 A. 454, 3 N J.Misc 988.

Wearing oversize shoes

In an action for injuries to a street car passenger dressed in clown's costume by the sudden stopping of a street car, evidence was sufficient to warrant a finding that in wearing a pair of heavy shoes, several sizes too large, he was guilty of negligence which proximately contributed to the injury.—Neal v. Northern Texas Traction Co, Tex Civ.App, 258 S.W. 877.

Wet step

Evidence that step of train was wet, unknown to passenger slipping thereon in daytime, authorized inference that passenger could have avoided slipping by exercising care —Pitner v Southern Ry. Co, 141 S E 670, 37 Ga App. 722.

Street car

Cal.—Morrissey v. City and County of San Francisco, 286 P. 433, 104 Cal App. 536

50. Cal.—White v Red Mountain Fruit Co, 199 P. 318, 186 Cal 335.
Ill.—Sage v. Johnson, 205 Ill.App. 85.
Mo—Hayward v People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, App, 1 S.W 2d 252.
N Y—Altberger v. New York Consol. R Co, 162 N.Y.S. 739
Tex—Texas Midland R Co v. Truss, Civ.App, 186 S.W. 249, error refused.
10 C J p 1155 note 59 [b].

Bus

Evidence was held to eliminate question of contributory negligence as showing injury by premature starting of bus, not in attempt to board moving bus—Hayward v People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis, Mo. App., 1 S.W.2d 252.

Elevator

Evidence was insufficient to show that plaintiff, injured by an elevator starting up as she stepped into it, was guilty of contributory negligence.—White v Red Mountain Fruit Co, 199 P. 318, 186 Cal. 335

51. Cal.—Morrissey v. City and County of San Francisco, 286 P. 433, 104 Cal App. 536—Gaskill v. Pacific Electric Ry Co., 159 P 200, 30 Cal App 593
La—Murtes v. New Orleans Public Service, App., 158 So 260.
Mass—Gerber v New York Cent. R R, 192 N E 837, 288 Mass 318.
N J—Lozier v Delaware, L & W. R Co, 130 A 454, 3 N J.Misc. 988
10 C J. p 1155 note 59 [a] (2), [b] (2)

52. N Y—Furiati v Brooklyn & Queens Transit Corporation, 296 N Y S 913, 251 App Div. 858.

53. Ala—Travis v Alabama Great Southern R. Co., 73 So 983, 199 Ala 38.

Freight car

Evidence did not bring within the last chance doctrine the case of injury to a passenger when attempting to board freight box car going six miles an hour—Travis v Alabama Great Southern R. Co, 73 So 983, 199 Ala 38

54. Ohio.—Cincinnati, L. & A. Elec St. Ry v Lohe, 27 Ohio Cir Ct R. 138.
10 C J p 1155 note 61

Prima facie evidence

Failure of live stock caretaker to ride in caboose while train by which stock was shipped was in motion, as required by shipping contract, was not prima facie evidence of contributory negligence, where derailment was caused by wreck—Heed v. Gummere, 136 N E. 5, 192 Ind. 227.

55. La—Nee v New Orleans Public Service, 123 So. 135, 11 La App. 1.
Mich—Smith v Peets, 186 N W 397, 217 Mich 255
10 C J. p 1155 note 61 [a].

Unused flashlight

Evidence that experienced caretaker of live stock, in climbing out of freight caboose at night to inspect stock, did not use flashlight and fell from bridge over which caboose had stopped and was injured, was held to show contributory negligence barring recovery by him.—Gartner v. Chicago & N W. Ry. Co, 207 N.W. 937, 114 Neb. 458.

56. Colo.—Colorado Springs & Interurban Ry Co v. Reese, 169 P. 572, 69 Colo. 1.

negligence of a passenger in transit, as in the case of a passenger riding in an elevator,[57] or traveling on the platform, running board, or steps of a bus, car, or train.[58]

Leaving conveyance. The carrier should prove by a preponderance of the evidence the contributory negligence of a passenger in leaving the conveyance,[59] and in the notes below reference is made to cases wherein the evidence was held sufficient[60] or insufficient[61] to show the contributory negligence of a departing passenger, as in the use of a stool or alighting step,[62] or of a grab handle,[63] or in an attempt to alight from a moving vehicle,[64]

Ill—Rowan v. Bartonville Bus Line, 242 Ill App 451.
Minn—Johnson v. Evans, 170 N.W. 220, 141 Minn. 356—Gerin v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co, 158 N.W. 630, 133 Minn. 395.
N H.—Flaherty v. Manchester St. Ry., 99 A 89, 78 N.H. 254.
N J—Gottlieb v. Uzzolino, 167 A. 26, 11 N J.Misc. 567
10 C J. p 1155 note 61 [b].

Burned on lurching of car

In mail clerk's action against railroad for injuries received from burn when thrown by lurch of car against uncovered pipe carrying live steam, it was held that neither contributory negligence nor assumption of risk were conclusively shown—Bulin v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 201 N W. 307, 161 Minn 226

Seated in car at time of collision

Evidence that injured passenger while sitting in street car was thrown on floor, by collision, justified finding that passenger was exercising due care—Cohen v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co., 165 N.E. 113, 266 Mass. 283.

57. Heel extending beyond platform

In an action for injuries to a wholesaler's customer riding in an unlighted elevator on a dark day, evidence was sufficient to warrant a finding that he was not guilty of contributory negligence in allowing his heel to extend beyond the platform of the elevator.—Williams-Echols Dry Goods Co v. Wallace, 219 S.W. 732, 142 Ark. 363.

58. Mich—Murphy v. Manistee Ry. Co, 161 N.W. 876, 194 Mich 595.
Okl—Chicago, R. I & P. Ry Co. v. Warren, 269 P. 368, 132 Okl. 107.

Jitney

In an action for injuries to a jitney bus passenger riding on the running board, evidence was held to warrant a finding that the accident was caused by the driver's negligence in driving too close to an ice wagon, and an implied finding that plaintiff was not guilty of a want of ordinary care in the position he assumed on the running board.—Ivancich v Davies, 199 P. 784, 186 Cal 520

Respecting crowded character of vehicle

(1) Evidence was insufficient to show that a train on which decedent was riding was so crowded as to make absolutely unavoidable his riding on the steps and absolve him from contributory negligence—Hogg v. Kansas City, S & G Ry. Co, 72 So 705, 139 La 972.

(2) Evidence established that street car was crowded and that injured passenger was on platform at time of collision with motortruck.—Bacon v. New Orleans Public Service, 137 So. 213, 18 La App 96, rehearing denied 137 So. 866, 18 La. App. 96.

Respecting proximate cause

Evidence established passengers' conduct in riding on running board of autobus was proximate cause of their injuries when bus collided with truck—Lorry v. Englander Drayage & Warehouse Co, 291 P 467, 108 Cal App. 116

59. Pa.—Lehner v Pittsburg R Co., 72 A. 525 223 Pa. 208, 132 Am.S R 729, 16 Ann.Cas. 83
10 C J p 1155 note 60

60. Conn—Cohen v. Eastern Stages, 164 A 383, 116 Conn 210.
Ill.—Wood v. Illinois Cent. R Co, 201 Ill App. 439. See Kelly v. Chicago City Ry. Co, 202 Ill App 239—Winters v Aurora, E. & C Rys Co, 198 Ill App. 52—Murten v. Chicago City Ry. Co, 198 Ill App 28.
La—Delhomer v. St. John the Baptist Parish School Board, 126 So 272, 12 La App. 580.
Mass.—Hurley v New York, N. H. & H. R. Co, 146 N.E. 235, 251 Mass 53.
Miss.—Yazoo & M. V R. Co. v Skaggs, 179 So. 274.
N Y—Trudnowski v. New York Cent. R. Co, 221 N.Y.S. 686, 220 App Div. 503.
Ohio—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Keil, 26 Ohio Cir Ct, N.S, 445.
Pa—Fordyce v White Star Bus Lines, 155 A. 98, 304 Pa 106.
10 C J p 1155 note 60 [a].

Failure to look

Evidence that decedent, struck by automobile on alighting from car, failed to look, was held to establish contributory negligence as matter of law.—Jones v City of Seattle, 257 P. 393, 144 Wash. 188.

61. Ill.—See Cannon v Chicago Rys. Co, 205 Ill.App. 423
La—Thomas v. Shreveport Rys. Co, 127 So 119, 13 La App 212.
Mass—Guinevan v. Checker Taxi Co, 194 N.E. 100, 289 Mass. 295.
Mich—Boyle v. Waters, 166 N W 114, 199 Mich 478.
Minn—Leonczak v. Minneapolis, St P & S S M. Ry Co, 201 N W 551, 161 Minn 304
Mo.—Took v. Wells, 53 S W 2d 389, 331 Mo. 249—Stakebake v. Union Pac R Co, App, 185 S W 1166
Tex—International-Great Northern R. Co. v Oehler, Civ App, 262 S W 785—Texas & N. O R. Co. v. Tillman, Civ App, 197 S W. 1128, error refused.
10 C J p 1155 note 60 [b].

Catching foot on switch box

In action by plaintiff passenger for injuries sustained when stepping from lower step of passenger coach to platform, as result of her foot catching on the edge of a board or box covering certain wires or switching apparatus running along the platform just beneath the lower step of the coach, it was held jury was warranted in finding that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence—Galveston, H & S A Ry Co. v Williams, Tex.Civ.App., 217 S. W. 420.

62. Stepping on side of stool

In passenger's suit for injuries, while alighting from train, evidence showed she was not without fault, having placed her foot at side of stool railroad furnished for alighting, so that it slipped off and she fell—Nicholls v Texas & P Ry Co, 80 So. 252, 144 La. 197

63. Icy steps

In an action by a passenger to recover for personal injuries sustained as a result of slipping on, and falling from, the icy step of a trolley car when alighting, the evidence was held to support the jury's conclusion that plaintiff did take hold of the grab handle or bar on the trolley before she slipped, and that she was not guilty of contributory negligence—Connelly v Connecticut Co., 140 A. 121, 107 Conn 236

64. Ill—Wood v. Illinois Cent. R. Co, 201 Ill App. 439 See Palm v. Rockford City Traction Co, 200 Ill App. 115.
La.—Christie v. New Orleans Public Service, App, 152 So. 131
Minn.—Leonczak v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co, 201 N.W. 551, 161 Minn 304—Van House v. Canadian Northern Ry. Co, 192 N W 493, 155 Minn 57, 28 A.L.R. 357.

or to show facts warranting application of the doctrine of discovered peril or the last clear chance.[65]

§ 803. Questions of Law and Fact

a. In general
b. Entering conveyance
c. Conduct while in transit
d. Leaving conveyance
e. Permission or direction of carrier's employee
f. Acts in emergencies
g. Persons under disability
h. Elevator and escalator cases

a. In General

Questions of law respecting the contributory negligence of a passenger are for the court and on conflicting evidence questions of fact are for the jury.

The contributory negligence of a passenger is a question of law for the court, where there is no substantial controversy as to the facts which are such that but one reasonable conclusion can be drawn therefrom, and in such a case the court may dispose of the question by dismissal, nonsuit, or a peremptory instruction.[66] It is well settled, however, that the question of the passenger's contributory negligence is one for the determination of the jury where the material facts of the case are disputed, and even where the facts are undisputed, if the evidence is of such a character that different conclusions can be reasonably drawn therefrom.[67] Whether the carrier's employees were guilty of Mo—Sivicek v. Dunham, 219 S.W. 594.

Descending steps

Testimony that passenger was in act of stepping down on lower step of street car while doors thereof were open and before car came to complete stop, was held to establish passenger's contributory negligence, in action for injuries sustained when sudden stop caused passenger to be thrown into street.—Waldov v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 182 A. 129, 120 Pa Super. 304.

Slow moving train

In action against defendant railroad, evidence was insufficient to show that plaintiff shipper, riding on drover's pass, was negligent in alighting from moving train as it slowly climbed hill, after passing his station—Texas & N. O. R. Co v Tillman, Tex Civ.App, 197 S.W 1128, error refused.

Knowledge that vehicle was moving

Evidence was held to show that passenger knew or should have known that bus was moving when she alighted.—Amidon v Twin State Gas & Electric Co., 147 A 694, 102 Vt. 267.

65. U S—Houston v Delaware, L & & W R. Co, C C A N.J, 274 F. 599

66. Ala—Williford v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co, 113 So. 44, 216 Ala 309.
Cal.—Starr v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 201 P. 599—Williams v. East Bay Motor Coach Lines, 60 P 2d 320, 16 Cal.App. 169.
Kan—Cross v. Chicago, R I & P. R Co, 242 P. 469, 120 Kan. 58.
Tex.—Hail v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R Co. of Texas, Civ App., 30 S W. 2d 1062, affirmed Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co. of Texas v Hail, Com App, 48 S.W.2d 589
Wash.—Luckkart v. Director General of Railroads, 200 P. 564.
10 C.J. p 1156 note 63.

Crossing tracks

N.Y.—Ricciardell v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 150 N Y.S. 593, 165 App Div. 152.
10 C J. p 1156 note 63.

Failure to watch approaching car

Where at time intending passenger was injured he was waiting to board car, which he could see approaching, and which he had signaled to stop, and, thinking it would stop when it reached usual place and that he was far enough from track for car to pass, he took his eyes off it when it was about fifty feet from him, and about this time was hit, there was no error in granting nonsuit.—Lee v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co, 127 S E. 150, 33 Ga.App. 543.

Obviously too close to track

Where person awaiting train stood so near track as to be struck and it appeared that the tracks were visible to persons on the train, it was held that the court should have granted a nonsuit or directed a verdict—Kent v. Ogden, L. & I. Ry. Co., 167 P. 666, 50 Utah 328.

Evidence held insufficient to show contributory negligence as matter of law

(1) Generally.
Iowa—Mangan v. Des Moines City Ry Co., 203 N.W. 705, 41 A L R 368
Ky—Davis v Allen, 251 S W. 194, 199 Ky 442
Md—United Rys & Electric Co of Baltimore v. Perkins, 136 A. 50, 152 Md. 105—Western Maryland Ry Co v. Shatzer, 120 A 840, 142 Md 274.
Mass—Gerhart v. Holyoke St. Ry. Co., 128 N.E 421, 236 Mass. 392.
Mo—Sugarwater v. Fleming, 293 S. W. 111, 316 Mo 742.
R I.—Capuono v. Rhode Island Co, 102 A. 721
Tex—Texas Electric Ry v. Stewart, Civ App, 217 S.W 1081, error refused.
Wis.—Himstreet v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 166 N W. 665, 167 Wis. 71.

(2) In action for death of one struck by passenger coach, decedent was not negligent as matter of law in walking into yards to board coach—Curtis v. Mauger, 114 N E 408, 186 Ind 118.

(3) One going to a ferry pier to meet an incoming passenger was not negligent as matter of law in going from the train shed on the open pier, with others, as the boat came in, in remaining there until the door was closed, in reëntering the shed through another door, or in using a narrow platform in returning to the part of the shed where passengers were being discharged.—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md. 621.

67. U S.—St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal Ry. Co. v. Munger, C C.A.Mo, 246 F. 938.
Ala—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Jones, 176 So. 203, 234 Ala. 590
Conn—Boileau v Williams, 185 A. 429, 121 Conn. 432.
Ill—Gilberts v. Rockford & I Ry. Co, 215 Ill App 324. See Healy v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 196 Ill App 1
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Sinclair, 188 S.W. 648, 171 Ky. 562.
Md—Baltimore & O R Co. v Davis, 137 A 30, 152 Md. 427.
Mass—Bilodeau v. Fitchburg & L. St Ry Co, 128 N.E. 872, 236 Mass 526
Mo.—Schimmelpfenning v. Wells, 24 S W 2d 154—Higgins v. Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, App, 97 S W 2d 892.
N.J—Agry v. Pennsylvania R Co, 150 A. 401, 106 N.J.Law 476, reversing 146 A 587, 7 N J.Misc. 579.
Pa.—Hager v. Philadelphia & R Ry. Co, 104 A. 599, 261 Pa. 359—Little v. West Penn Railways Co, 29 Pa.

such willful and wanton conduct as to excuse contributory negligence on the part of the passenger is ordinarily a question of fact for the jury,[68] as is also the question whether the passenger was justified in believing that a particular rule or regulation of the carrier had been permitted to fall into disuse,[69] or questions involving the humanitarian or last clear chance doctrine.[70]

On conflicting evidence, it is a question of fact for the jury whether a passenger was guilty of contributory negligence while using the premises, platforms, or station approaches of the carrier,[71] as in stumbling over or into an obstruction,[72] such

Dist. 826—Lindsay v Beaver Valley Traction Co, 83 Pa Super. 274
Tenn—Union Bus Terminal v. Mennen, 14 Tenn App. 551
Tex.—Texas Midland R R. v. Monroe, 216 S W. 388, 110 Tex. 97, reversing, Civ.App., 155 S W. 973
W.Va—Koon v Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 192 S.E. 332
10 C.J. p 1156 note 64.

Sleeping passenger

That passenger is asleep just before or at time he is injured by reason of defect in conveyance or driver's negligence does not make him contributorily negligent as a matter of law; but contributory negligence of passenger in being asleep in automobile which turned over was a question for the jury—Jesse v. Dunn, 51 S W 2d 918, 244 Ky. 613.

Evidence held sufficient to take question to jury

Minn—Rau v Smuda, 221 N.W. 232, 175 Minn 328.
Tex.—Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co v Jones, Civ App., 105 S.W.2d 443.

68. Ark—Rodgers v. Choctaw, etc, R. Co., 89 S W 468, 76 Ark. 520, 113 Am S.R. 102, L R.A.,N S., 1145.
10 C J p 1156 note 65.

69. Tex—San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Lynch, Civ.App., 55 S.W. 517.

70. Conn—Pond v. Connecticut Co., 114 A. 532, 96 Conn. 451.
Ga—Lacy v Georgia Ry & Power Co, 141 S E. 816, 37 Ga.App 724.
Mo.—Bode v. Wells, 15 S W.2d 335, 322 Mo. 386—Griffin v. Missouri Power & Light Co., App., 99 S W. 2d 474—Kent v. Kiel, App., 97 S W 2d 885—Anderson v. Pryor, App, 209 S.W 122
Okl—Missouri, K. & T. Ry Co v. Smith, 223 P. 373, 97 Okl 152
Va—Meanley v. Petersburg, H & C P Ry. Co., 112 S E. 800, 133 Va 173—Gordon v. Director General of Railroads, 104 S E 796, 128 Va. 426

Baggage truck

In action against terminal association for injuries sustained by salesman when seeing company representative off on train when hand-propelled baggage truck was run over salesman's foot, whether truckman propelling baggage truck could have seen that salesman was in position of peril, as regards salesman's right to recover under humanitarian rule, truckman having called out a warning before moving truck past salesman, was for jury.—Higgins v Terminal R Ass'n of St. Louis, Mo App, 97 S W 2d 892.

Fall on elevated tracks

Evidence in an action for death of a boy killed by an oncoming train after he fell on the tracks of an elevated railroad in attempting to board a train after the gates were closed, was held to present a question for the jury as to whether defendant's employees exercised ordinary care after discovery of his peril.—Johnson v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co., 183 N.Y S. 224, 192 App. Div. 639.

Evidence held insufficient to take question to jury

(1) Generally.

Mo—State ex rel St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co v. Reynolds, 233 S.W 219, 289 Mo. 479, quashing Martin v. St Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, App., 237 S.W. 129—De Lorme v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App, 61 S W.2d 247.

(2) Where deceased approaching a station to board a train stepped upon a switch track immediately in front of moving locomotive, and where there was no evidence that trainmen saw deceased in his perilous position, or that train could have been stopped if they had seen him, court's refusal to submit the last clear chance doctrine was proper.—Branstetter v. Chicago & A. R. Co., Mo App, 225 S W. 1035.

(3) Evidence was insufficient to warrant the submission of an action against street railroad, for death of prospective passenger who lost balance on car step and fell backward to pavement, to jury on the theory of discovered peril.—San Antonio Public Service Co. v. Fraser, Tex. Civ.App, 91 S W 2d 948.

(4) Evidence was insufficient to raise issue of discovered peril by railroad employees of passenger, who had alighted to retrieve hat, in attempting to reboard train.—Teal v. Southern Pac. Ry Co, Tex Civ App, 31 S W 2d 337, error refused

(5) Evidence, in action for injuries to plaintiff, swept from car step by girder, was insufficient for jury, under New Jersey last clear chance doctrine.—Lehigh Valley R Co v. Stevenson, C.C.A.N J., 17 F 2d 748.

71. Cal.—MacGregor v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co, 59 P 2d 123, 6 Cal 2d 596
Mass—Klein v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 200 N E. 6
Pa.—Norris v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 177 A 785, 317 Pa. 586.
Tex.—Stiles v Union Terminal Co, Civ App., 1 S W 2d 947, error refused—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry Co. v. Brown, Civ.App, 205 S.W. 378—Texas Midland R. Co. v. Truss, Civ App., 186 S W. 249, error refused.
10 C J. p 1157 note 75.

Catching foot in switch

Where a street railroad impliedly invited its patrons to cross tracks to a landing at a street intersection, a pedestrian whose foot was caught in a switch was not contributorily negligent as a matter of law because he deviated from the path provided, where the lights established to guide patrons were not lighted—Brooks v Union Depot Bridge & Terminal R. Co, 258 S W. 724, 215 Mo.App. 643

Cold waiting room

The failure of a woman accompanied by her husband and little children to seek a warm room when she discovered the waiting room was cold, which would have required her to cross the tracks and go some distance and might have rendered it impossible for her to cross back ahead of the train when it came, and her failure to seek a warmer coach when the first one she entered was cold, were not held questions of contributory negligence as a matter of law—Davis v. Allen, 251 S.W. 194, 199 Ky 442

Rolling gate

In action against street railroad for injuries to plaintiff when she was struck by gate operating on rollers in picket fence erected by road about its loop, question whether plaintiff was negligent in not seeing gate approaching her before it struck her was for jury—Earley v Rhode Island Co, R I, 100 A 405

Walking off unguarded platform

Question of contributory negligence of person waiting for train in walking off end of unlighted and unguarded platform into ditch is for jury.—Wolf v. Smith, 97 A. 853, 252 Pa. 562.

72. Mass.—Regan v. Boston & M. R Co, 113 N.E. 200, 224 Mass 418
Ohio—Cleveland Ry. Co. v Halterman, 153 N.E. 922, 22 Ohio App 234.

as a defect in the tracks,[73] or a car fender,[74] or being struck by a vehicle while standing[75] or walking[76] too close to the tracks, or while standing on the tracks,[77] or crossing the same,[78] as in the

Banana skin

Pa.—Deegan v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 160 A. 858, 307 Pa. 207.

Broom

Where a passenger leaving carrier's ladies' room at station fell over broom allegedly left by carrier's servant at the point of accident, the passenger's contributory negligence was a question for the jury.—Portley v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 168 A. 184, 111 N.J.Law 204, affirmed 172 A. 384, 113 N.J.Law 13.

Dirt pile

Contributory negligence of a passenger for failure to see pile of dirt into which she stepped, causing her to fall down steps leading from railroad station to street, was a question for the jury.—Norris v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 177 A. 785, 317 Pa. 586.

Hole

Whether an intending passenger was guilty of contributory negligence in stepping into a hole in the floor in a waiting room in course of being repaired was for the jury.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Minnix, 260 S.W. 15, 202 Ky. 472.

Notch in station platform

In action against railroad for injuries sustained by plaintiff while running to catch train when he caught his heel in notch in edge of station platform and fell between two cars of train, whether plaintiff was contributorily negligent was for jury, where different conclusions could have been drawn from evidence on that issue.—Swallow v. Hudson & M. R. Co., 191 A. 775, 118 N.J.Law 157.

Wire on grass plot

Whether passenger, tripping over wire on grass plot, was negligent, was for jury.—Heffron v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 119 N.E. 1024, 223 N.Y. 473, reversing 161 N.Y.S. 1128, 175 App.Div. 962.

73. N.J.—Bradley v. Erie R. Co., 147 A. 572, 106 N.J.Law 51, reversing 143 A. 743, 105 N.J.Law 1.

74. N.H.—Guevin v. Manchester St. Ry., 99 A. 298, 78 N.H. 289, L.R.A.1917C 410.

75. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Bell, 76 So. 920, 200 Ala. 562.—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Laney, 75 So. 15, 199 Ala. 654.
Mass.—Gerhart v. Holyoke St. Ry. Co., 128 N.E. 421, 236 Mass. 392.
Mo.—Laurent v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 191 S.W. 992.—Rabushka v. Wells, App., 22 S.W.2d 870.—Flynn v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 226 S.W. 974.
N.J.—Munroe v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 90 A. 254, 85 N.J.Law 688, Ann.Cas. 1916A 140.
N.Y.—Hoffman v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 177 N.Y.S. 140, 188 App.Div. 414.
Wash.—Switzer v. City of Seattle, 294 P. 225, 159 Wash. 540, opinion modified on rehearing 298 P. 347.

Car catching umbrella

Whether passenger, waiting for east-bound car and thrown to ground by west-bound car catching her umbrella, was guilty of negligence, was for jury.—Campbell v. Richmond Light & R. Co., 127 N.E. 271, 228 N.Y. 383, reversing 168 N.Y.S. 813, 181 App.Div. 320, reargument denied 129 N.E. 906, 229 N.Y. 537.

Use of safety zone

Where plaintiff, while standing in safety zone maintained by street railroad for safety of its passengers, was struck by rear end of street car rounding a curve, as plaintiff had right to rely on safety zone as a safe place to stop, and in view of fact that she did not know that car was about to turn corner, it was held that it cannot be said as matter of law that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence.—Mangan v. Des Moines City Ry. Co., 203 N.W. 705, 200 Iowa 597, 41 A.L.R. 368.

Waiting between tracks

Where commuter, while standing between north and south-bound tracks in front of station after signaling north-bound train to stop, was struck by overhang of locomotive of a later south-bound train, question of commuter's contributory negligence was for jury under evidence.—Ferran v. Southern Pac. Co., 44 P.2d 533, 3 Cal.2d 350.

76. Wash.—Hohman v. City of Seattle, 38 P.2d 242, 179 Wash. 663.

Car swinging on curve

In prospective passenger's action for injuries sustained when struck by rear end of street car swinging on curve, when street car beside which he was walking started up without warning, question of contributory negligence of prospective passenger was for jury.—Mardorf v. Duluth-Superior Transit Co., 261 N.W. 177, 194 Minn. 537.

Side swiped by trolley

Contributory negligence of intending passenger caught by side swing of trolley car while passing along narrow passageway at terminal station was a question for the jury.—Burr v. Virginia Railway & Power Co., 145 S.E. 833, 151 Va. 934.

77. Mont.—Mihelich v. Butte Electric Ry. Co., 281 P. 540, 85 Mont. 604.

Signaling

Whether passenger on track signaling and injured by unlighted cinder trucks in front of car was negligent, was for jury.—Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Hardwick, 123 N.E. 249, 70 Ind.App. 192.

78. U.S.—McLaughlin v. Pennsylvania Co., Ohio, 257 F. 545, 168 C.C.A. 529.—St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal Ry. Co. v. Munger, Mo., 246 F. 938, 159 C.C.A. 210.—Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Rogers, N.J., 244 F. 76, 156 C.C.A. 504.
Cal.—Rucker v. San Diego Electric Ry. Co., 183 P. 578, 41 Cal.App. 787.
Ind.—Indiana Union Traction Co. v. Hiatt, 114 N.E. 478, 65 Ind.App. 233, rehearing denied 115 N.E. 101, 65 Ind.App. 233.
Md.—Washington, B. & A. R. Co. v. State, 116 A. 911, 140 Md. 115.
Mass.—Reardon v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 136 N.E. 153, 242 Mass. 383.
Mo.—Schimmelpfenning v. Wells, 24 S.W.2d 154.—Unterlachner v. Wells, 296 S.W. 755, 317 Mo. 181.—Unterlachner v. Wells, 278 S.W. 79.—Willi v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 274 S.W. 24.
N.J.—Bergmann v. Public Service Ry. Co., 120 A. 193, 98 N.J.Law 487.—Courtney v. Public Service Ry. Co., 115 A. 740, 96 N.J.Law 308, affirmed 117 A. 925, 97 N.J.Law 564.—Rhodehouse v. Director General of Railroads, 111 A. 662, 95 N.J.Law 355.—Van Keuren v. Erie R. Co., 157 A. 545, 10 N.J.Misc. 6.
N.Y.—Brott v. Auburn & S. Electric R. Co., 115 N.E. 273, 220 N.Y. 92, reversing 154 N.Y.S. 1113, 169 App.Div. 913.
Ohio.—Lake Shore Electric Ry. Co. v. Ordway, 156 N.E. 235, 24 Ohio App. 317.
Pa.—Dickun v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 161 A. 739, 308 Pa. 20.—Klingensmith v. West Penn Rys. Co., 154 A. 811, 303 Pa. 487.—Lynn v. Pittsburgh & L.E. R. Co., 110 A. 271, 267 Pa. 41.—Kissinger v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 180 A. 137, 119 Pa.Super. 110.
R.I.—Grimes v. United Electric Rys. Co., 193 A. 740.
Tex.—Texas Electric Ry. v. Rowell, Civ.App., 211 S.W. 788, dismissed by agreement.
Wash.—Johnson v. City of Seattle, 250 P. 409, 141 Wash. 385.
10 C.J. p. 1157 note 76.

Failure to look and listen

(1) In action for death of pedestrian from injuries sustained when struck by street car while crossing in front of street car preparatory to boarding it at intersection, whether case of a passenger crossing the tracks in connection with boarding[79] or alighting from[80] a car or train.

b. Entering Conveyance

A passenger's conduct in entering a vehicle, as in boarding one in motion, may constitute contributory negligence or its absence as matter of law, although as a general rule such issue is a question of fact addressed to the jury.

Where the evidence is undisputed, or, if disputed, is of such a nature that reasonable minds can come to but one conclusion therefrom, it is a question of law for the court as to whether a passenger was guilty of contributory negligence in boarding a train or car,[81] although on conflicting evidence the question of a passenger's contributory negligence in boarding a train, car, or other vehicle is one of fact for the jury,[82] as where he boards it at a pedestrian was negligent in failing to look again after entering on track was for jury—Tennessee Electric Power Co. v Bainbridge, Tenn.App., 95 S.W.2d 1261.

(2) Pedestrian's failure to look and listen before crossing tracks of an electric railway in public street, where street cars have not exclusive right of way, is not negligence, as matter of law.—Tennessee Electric Power Co. v. Bainbridge, supra.

Misjudgment of speed

Negligence of intending passenger in misjudging speed of approaching car was a question for the jury, and intending passenger was not negligent, as matter of law, for attempting to pass before approaching car with reasonable belief that he could do so.—Sugarwater v. Fleming, 293 S.W. 111, 316 Mo. 742.

Regular car stop

Contributory negligence of intending passenger at regular stopping place, who timely signaled street car and was required to cross tracks to enter car, as regards injuries received when struck by car at point beyond regular stopping place, was a fact question for jury.—Moyles v. Connecticut Co., 160 A. 307, 115 Conn 80.

More than one conclusion reasonably possible

Whether an intending passenger, struck on railroad tracks while attempting to cross to board a train, was negligent, is a question for the jury, unless it is clear that reasonable minds can reach only the conclusion that a person of ordinary prudence would not have made the attempt under the circumstances.—McLaughlin v. Pennsylvania Co., Ohio, 257 F. 545, 168 C.C.A. 529.

Evidence held sufficient to take question to jury

Cal.—Wilkinson v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 232 P. 131, 195 Cal. 185.

79. Crossing ahead of approaching train

In action by passenger struck by train while boarding another train which had stopped at station, contributory negligence of plaintiff in crossing tracks ahead of approaching train was a question for jury—Somerville v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 189 N.E. 592, 285 Mass 539.

80. Conn.—Cecil v. Connecticut Co., 123 A. 443, 100 Conn 286.

Ill.—Eilers v. Peoria Ry. Co., 200 Ill.App. 487. See Louden v. Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 206 Ill App. 87.

Mass.—Hayes v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 169 N.E. 483, 269 Mass 448—Lipski v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 143 N.E. 335, 248 Mass. 508.

Mich.—Terrill v. Michigan United Traction Co., 183 N.W. 46, 214 Mich. 478.

Mo.—Wilson v. Wells, 13 S.W.2d 541, 321 Mo. 929—Kent v. Kiel, App., 97 S.W.2d 885.

N.Y.—Wall v. International Ry. Co., 135 N.E. 512, 233 N.Y. 309, reversing 188 N.Y.S. 550, 195 App.Div. 685

Leaving car at irregular stopping place

Mass.—Poppel v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 155 N.E. 267, 258 Mass 389.

Struck by unlighted car

In action for injuries from being struck by electric railway car, claimed to have been running without lights, as plaintiff crossed the tracks after alighting from a car going in the opposite direction, the issues of negligence and contributory negligence were questions for the jury.—Washington & R. Ry. Co. of Montgomery County v. Sullivan, 110 A. 478, 136 Md 202.

Stop, look, and listen rule

(1) Where a passenger is struck by train while leaving railroad premises at conclusion of journey, the stop, look, and listen rule does not apply in all strictness, and it is for jury to say whether passenger exercised ordinary care for his own safety.—MacGregor v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 59 P.2d 123, 6 Cal.2d 596.

(2) Whether passenger on westbound electric train who was carried to a point some distance from pedestrian crosswalk and who after detraining walked back toward crosswalk and after looking to rear walked with her back toward approaching eastbound train, without noticing it until too late to avoid injury, was guilty of contributory negligence was for the jury.—MacGregor v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., supra.

(3) Where street car company has regular stations at which cars habitually stop for persons to get on and off, the mere fact that a passenger fails to look and listen before crossing tracks intervening between the place where he alights and the station does not constitute contributory negligence as a matter of law.—Terrill v. Michigan United Traction Co., 171 N.W. 340, 204 Mich. 652.

(4) Whether a passenger, who had alighted from a standing train at a station and was crossing railway tracks by a planked way provided for that purpose, must look and listen was a question for the jury.—Spofford v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 98 A. 246, 89 N.J.Law 273

(5) Failure of passenger to look or listen as he necessarily crosses tracks in leaving train, is not necessarily contributory negligence as matter of law, negligence depending on peculiar facts of case.—Dunn v Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 784, 174 N.C. 254.

81. Ala.—Smith v. Birmingham R. Light, etc., Co., 41 So. 307, 147 Ala. 702.

10 C.J. p 1117 note 38.

Evidence held insufficient to show contributory negligence as matter of law

Evidence was insufficient to show as a matter of law that a passenger in reentering a train after temporary absence was guilty of contributory negligence — Sellars v Southern Pac. Co., 166 P. 599, 33 Cal.App. 701.

82. U.S.—Davis v. Olson, C.C.A. Minn., 298 F. 921.

Ark.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Henry, 269 S.W. 51, 168 Ark. 146.

Ga.—Hill v. Chattanooga Ry. & Light Co., 93 S.E. 1027, 21 Ga.App 104.

Ill.—Garlinski v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 257 Ill.App. 414

Ky.—Burnett v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 281 S.W. 510, 213 Ky. 540

Mass.—Coyle v. Worcester Consol St. Ry. Co., 173 N.E. 586, 273 Mass 475—Threlkeld v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 146 N.E. 367, 251 Mass. 141—Nuttall v. Worcester Consol place other than a station platform, or other regular stopping place.[83]

Moving vehicle. The circumstances may be such that it constitutes contributory negligence as a matter of law for a passenger to board a moving vehicle;[84] but the mere act of boarding a moving vehicle does not of itself constitute negligence per se, and the question of whether or not a passenger was guilty of contributory negligence in entering or attempting to enter a vehicle while it was in motion ordinarily resolves itself into one of fact,[85] as in the case of a slowly moving car, train, or bus,[86] and it is also for the jury to say as matter of fact whether the passenger did attempt to board the moving vehicle,[87] or whether the vehicle was actually in motion at the time of the attempt to board it.[88]

St Ry. Co., 114 N.E. 291, 225 Mass 167.

Mich.—Sullivan v. Detroit United Ry., 182 N.W. 33, 213 Mich. 679—Sibert v. Detroit United Ry, 164 N.W. 370, 198 Mich. 117

N.J.—Gross v. Hudson & Manhattan R. R., 185 A. 365, 14 N.J.Misc. 374.

N.Y.—Johnson v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co, 183 N.Y.S. 224, 192 App.Div. 639—Feldman v. New York Rys. Co, 158 N.Y.S. 698.

Okl.—Muskogee Electric Traction Co. v. Latty, 187 P. 491, 77 Okl. 156.

Pa.—Lasater v. Conestoga Traction Co, 160 A. 447, 306 Pa. 500—Bickley v. Philadelphia & R. Ry Co, 101 A. 654, 257 Pa. 369

S.C. — Anderson v. Hampton & Branchville R. & Lumber Co., 132 S.E. 47, 134 S.C. 185

Tex.—Dallas Ry & Terminal Co. v Travis, 78 S.W.2d 941, 125 Tex. 11, affirming, Civ.App., 46 S.W.2d 743

Wash.—Tobin v. City of Seattle, 242 P. 2, 137 Wash. 177.

10 C.J. p 1117 note 38–p 1119 note 45–p 1158 note 77.

Bundle laden passenger

(1) Where plaintiff was carrying large bundle making it necessary to enter sideways, and her hand was caught by door which closed suddenly after she had boarded train, issue of contributory negligence was for the jury in an action against the railroad.—Gross v. Hudson & Manhattan R.R., 185 A. 365, 14 N.J.Misc. 374.

(2) Contributory negligence of passenger, who was encumbered with bundles which demanded her attention, and which occupied her arms as she was getting in taxicab without assistance, and who slipped and fell due to icy running board of defendant's taxicab, was a question for the jury.—Finney v. Norwood, 270 N.W. 592.

Ice-coated platform

Whether an injured passenger was guilty of contributory negligence in entering a car platform on the carrier's invitation, without warning that the platform was covered with ice, is a question of fact.—Altberger v. New York Consol. R. Co., 162 N.Y.S. 739.

Jostling crowd

Question of passenger's contributory negligence in attempting to board car in jostling crowd at terminal station was for jury.—South Covington & C St. Ry. v. Vanice, 278 S.W. 116, 211 Ky. 774.

Boisterers

Whether plaintiff, injured due to boisterous, violent, and disorderly conduct of other persons, was in exercise of due care in boarding car, was for the jury.—Franz v. Holyoke St Ry. Co, 132 N.E. 270, 239 Mass 565

Worn and slippery step

In action for injuries sustained by slipping on a worn and slippery bus step, whether passenger was guilty of contributory negligence was for jury.—Sickmund v Connecticut Co, 189 A. 876, 122 Conn. 375

83. Mo.—Vrooman v. Harvey, 197 S.W. 118.
10 C.J. p 1158 note 79.

84. Ga.—Meeks v. Atlantic, etc, R. Co, 50 S.E. 99, 122 Ga. 266.
Ill.—Chicago, etc, R. Co. v. Gore, 96 Ill.App 553.

85. U.S.—Redfield v. New York Cent. R. Co, C.C.A.Mo, 83 F.2d 62
Cal.—Hart v. Fresno Traction Co., 167 P. 885, 175 Cal. 489
Ill.—Little v. Peoria Ry. Co, 215 Ill.App. 385.
Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C & St L. Ry. Co v. Friend, 142 N.E. 709, 194 Ind. 579, rehearing overruled 143 N.E. 879, 194 Ind 579
N.J.—Nogrady v. Erie R. Co., 144 A. 803, 105 N.J.Law 396.
Tex.—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hawley, Civ.App., 235 S.W. 659, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.
10 C.J. p 1158 note 78.

Child in arms

Whether one with part of family on train was guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to board moving train with child in arms, was for jury.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry Co. v Friend, 118 N.E. 598, 70 Ind.App. 366.

Delay in boarding

In passenger's action for injuries sustained while boarding moving train, whether passenger negligently delayed getting aboard train was for jury.—Missouri-Kansas-Texas R Co of Texas v. Hail, Tex.Com.App, 48 S.W.2d 589, affirming Hail v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co of Texas, Civ.App., 30 S.W.2d 1062.

Rate of speed in doubt

Whether passenger was contributorily negligent in attempting to board moving train was for jury, on conflicting testimony as to whether it was moving slowly or rapidly —Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Henry, 269 S.W. 51, 168 Ark. 146.

Slackening of speed

Whether slackening of speed by moving street car is invitation to board car while in motion is question of fact.—Morrissey v City and County of San Francisco, 286 P. 433, 104 Cal.App. 536.

Trains

A passenger, who has temporarily left his train at an intermediate station, in attempting to reboard the train, when it is in motion, is not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Kennedy, 239 S.W. 376, 153 Ark 77.

86. Ga.—Haynie v. Central of Georgia Ry. Co, 93 S.E. 258, 20 Ga.App. 599.
N.Y.—Wiener v. Fifth Avenue Coach Co, 164 N.Y.S. 667.
Va.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v Arnold, 92 S.E. 925, 121 Va. 204

Sudden jerk

Where plaintiff, desiring to take passage on street car, attempted to board the same as it was moving slowly at a point where it was scheduled to stop to receive passengers, it was held that the car having started with a sudden jerk, which threw plaintiff to the pavement, etc, he could not be deemed negligent as a matter of law.—Millar v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 179 N.Y.S. 293, 189 App.Div. 748.

87. N.Y.—Meyers v. Hines, 191 N.Y.S. 773, 199 App.Div. 594.

May have been pushed

Whether an intending passenger on a station platform was pushed against the side of a slowly moving train, and by reason thereof fell, or fell in attempting to board the moving train, was for the jury.—Meyers v. Hines, 191 N.Y.S. 773, 199 App. Div. 594.

88. Mass.—Gerber v. New York Cent. R. R., 192 N.E. 837, 288 Mass. 318.

c. Conduct While in Transit

It is ordinarily for the jury to decide whether the conduct of a passenger injured while in transit, as in riding on the platform or steps of a vehicle, constituted contributory negligence, although the circumstances may be such as to render the question one of law for the court.

The conduct of a passenger while in transit may be such as to constitute contributory negligence or its absence as a matter of law,[89] as, for example, whether he exercised due care in riding on the platform, or steps, or running board of a car.[90] Where the evidence is conflicting or doubtful, it is, however, a question of fact for the jury to determine whether a passenger who was injured while in transit was at the time guilty of contributory negligence,[91] as in remaining on the steps or platform

Train at station

Whether one injured while attempting to board train at station exercised due care was for the jury on conflicting evidence as to whether he made attempt before or after train started.—Gerber v. New York Cent. R. R., 192 N.E 837, 288 Mass. 318.

89. Mo.—Perkins v. United Rys. Co of St. Louis, App., 243 S W. 224.

Position not contributing to injury

Where the evidence of plaintiff and the other witnesses to the accident showed that plaintiff's injury was caused by a stake on a wagon, which the street car in which she was riding was then passing, being thrust in the window by her seat, and pinning her arm against the back of the seat, there was no necessity to submit the issue of contributory negligence even if there were some evidence that her arm was a little bit outside of the window just before the accident, since that position did not contribute to the injury.—Perkins v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, Mo App., 243 S W 224.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant direction of verdict for carrier

Ill.—Dunn v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co, 248 Ill App. 26.

Iowa—McDonald v. Yellow Taxicab Co., 184 N.W. 291, 192 Iowa 1183.

90. Pa.—Germantown Pass. R. Co. v. Walling, 97 Pa 55, 39 Am.R. 796.

Nonsuit unwarranted

In action by taxicab passenger for injuries sustained when taxicab struck pole, refusal to nonsuit because evidence showed passenger did not get out when driver speeded was proper.—Baker v. Turano, 152 A. 446, 8 N.J.Misc. 919.

91. U.S—Frates v. Thomas, C.C.A. Okl., 57 F.2d 535.

Cal.—Horney v. Dillingham, 253 P. 970, 81 Cal.App. 443

Conn.—Duffy v J. W. Bishop Co, 122 A. 121, 99 Conn. 573—Montambault v. Waterbury & Milldale Tramway Co, 120 A. 145, 98 Conn 584.

D.C—Capital Traction Co. v. Copland, 47 App D.C 152.

Ga—Davis v. Jones, 129 S.E 892, 34 Ga App 7.

Ill.—Hoffman v. Yellow Cab Co, 238 Ill App. 269—Gilberts v. Rockford & I. Ry. Co., 215 Ill App. 324 See Roberts v. Chicago City Ry. Co, 205 Ill App. 594.

Iowa—Adams v Chicago, R I & P. Ry. Co., 161 N W. 295, 179 Iowa 1334.

Kan—Fike v Huguenin, 28 P 2d 721, 138 Kan. 866.

Ky.—Reo Bus Lines Co v. Dickey, 292 S W. 791, 219 Ky. 307

Md—Cumberland & Westernport Transit Co. v. Metz, 149 A 4, 158 Md 424, reargument denied 149 A. 565, 158 Md 424, appeal dismissed American Oil Co. v. Metz, 51 S Ct. 40, 282 U S 801, 75 L.Ed. 720.

Mass—Pickard v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 166 N E. 561, 267 Mass. 133.

Minn—Doody v. St. Paul City Ry. Co., 270 N.W. 583.

Mo.—Lincoln v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co, 7 S W.2d 460, 223 Mo App. 46

Mont.—Jepsen v Gallatin Valley Ry. Co, 195 P. 550, 59 Mont 125.

N J—Colletto v Hudson & M. R. Co, 100 A 200, 90 N J Law 315.

N Y.—Goldweber v. New York Consol R Co, 173 N Y S. 470.

N D—Wall v. Great Northern Ry. Co, 175 N.W 705, 43 N D. 422.

Ohio—Beirla v. Hockenedel, 157 N. E 573, 25 Ohio App. 186.

Okl—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co v. Warren, 269 P. 368, 132 Okl. 107.

Or.—Perry v. Pickwick Stages of Oregon, 243 P. 787, 117 Or. 598.

Pa—De Marchi v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 107 A. 703, 264 Pa. 321.

S.C—Pearson v. Piedmont & N. Ry. Co, 99 S E. 811, 112 S.C 220

Tex—Yoes v Texas & P. Ry Co., Civ App, 211 S W. 311, error refused.

Wash.—Garrow v. Seattle Taxicab Co, 238 P. 623, 135 Wash 630, 45 A L R. 293.

Wis—Scales v Boynton Cab Co., 223 N W. 836, 198 Wis. 293, 69 A.L R. 978.

10 C J. p 1159 note 84.

Failure to warn motorman

In action by street railroad passenger injured in collision between street car and backing train, whether passenger was contributorily negligent in failing to warn motorman of approaching train was for jury.—Moutria v East St Louis Ry. Co, Mo App, 76 S.W 2d 427.

Falling over baggage

(1) In action for personal injuries to passenger caused by falling over baggage placed in aisle by other passengers, evidence on issue of contributory negligence was held to present jury question—Atkinson v. Dean, 73 So. 479, 198 Ala. 262.

(2) Woman, carrying small baby, injured by sudden jerk of street car causing her to stumble over baggage, was not guilty of contributory negligence as matter of law in not seeing baggage.—Heineke v. Chicago Rys Co., 116 N E 761, 279 Ill. 210, affirming 199 Ill App 339.

Feet under footrest

Passenger on railroad coach extending his feet under footrest was held not as a matter of law contributorily negligent, where he did not know rest was improperly turned upward—Chicago, R I & P Ry. Co. v McCrary, 16 S W.2d 466, 179 Ark. 444.

Fire

In passenger's action against motor carrier for injuries sustained when he dived through window on bus catching fire while gas tank with intake inside bus was being filled, whether passenger was contributorily negligent in supplying another passenger with match which caused fire when it was lit was for jury—Williams v Safe Bus, 186 S. E. 482, 210 N.C. 400.

Riding in cold coach

Ky—Davis v. Allen, 251 S W. 194, 199 Ky. 442

Utah.—Zoccolillo v. Oregon Short Line R. Co, 177 P. 201, 53 Utah 39.

Taxi passenger's failure to remonstrate

(1) Taxicab passenger, injured in collision with truck, was not contributorily negligent as matter of law in failing to warn taxicab driver when blocks away from scene of accident to remove his hand from back of seat in front of plaintiff, as he did when passenger sitting beside him protested, nor in failing to protest against conversation between him and latter passenger—Zeller v. Mayson, 179 A. 179, 168 Md. 663.

(2) Whether passenger, failing to remonstrate with driver when taxicab, as passenger claimed, was driven thirty or thirty-five miles an hour on city street, was contributorily temporarily after boarding a vehicle,[92] or failing to find a seat forthwith;[93] or in going to the platform or steps,[94] or otherwise preparing to leave the vehicle[95] before it stopped; or in subjecting himself to possible injury by a door or window;[96] or in standing in the vehicle;[97] or in changing his position,[98] or walking down the aisle of a vehicle;[99] or in passing from one car to another;[1] or in transferring from one vehicle to another,[2] or in projecting his arm, head, or other parts of his negligent, was for jury.—Ramsdell v. Frederick, 285 P 219, 132 Or. 161

Evidence held sufficient to carry issue to jury

Ark.—Hunter v. Mullins, 203 S.W 590, 136 Ark. 520.

Evidence held insufficient to carry question to jury

(1) Evidence in action for injury to minor son of consignee of express from being thrown from top of load, when driver ran express wagon into telephone pole, was insufficient to go to jury on issue of contributory negligence in not having hold on wagon —Ablon v. Electric Express & Baggage Co, Civ App, 206 S W. 717, affirmed Electric Express & Baggage Co. v. Ablon, 218 S W. 1030, 110 Tex. 235

(2) Evidence that plaintiff had set her grip down in the aisle of defendant's railway car, and that, when the collision occurred, she fell forward, striking her feet against the grip, was not sufficient to raise the issue of contributory negligence—Schaff v. Beale, Tex Civ.App., 250 S. W. 757.

92. Hesitating because of crowd

Where plaintiff had boarded a crowded car, the doors of which could not be closed while he stood on the steps, and he did not attempt to enter therein immediately, because he did not want to push his way through the crowd, but when he started to go inside the car suddenly lurched and he fell out, sustaining injuries, it was held that, although it was his duty to board the car and reach a place of safety with reasonable celerity, he was not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law merely because he hesitated as he did—Morris v. Detroit United Ry., 193 N.W. 871, 223 Mich. 264.

93. Cal.—Karsey v. City and County of San Francisco, 20 P.2d 751, 130 Cal App. 655.

First available seat

Passenger is not under duty as matter of law to take first available seat, nor to anticipate, as matter of law, a sudden and violent jerk of train, and whether circumstances require passenger to take first available seat is ordinarily a question for jury.—Burnett v Louisville & N R. Co., 281 S W. 510, 213 Ky. 540

94. U.S.—Spiesberger v. Michigan Cent R Co, Ill., 235 F. 864, 149 C.C.A. 176.

Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Spears' Adm'r, 232 S W 60, 192 Ky 64—Louisville & N. R Co v Bland, 188 S W 468, 171 Ky. 424

Tex.—Vick v Schaff, Civ App., 260 S.W 916—Burkes v Northern Texas Traction Co., Civ App., 185 S W. 428, error refused

10 C J. p 1159 note 85.

Sudden jerk

In an action by a passenger thrown from the steps of a car when the train which had practically stopped was started with a sudden jerk, question of contributory negligence was for the jury.—Spiesberger v. Michigan Cent R Co., Ill, 235 F. 864, 149 C C.A 176.

95. Mass.—Randall v. Boston, R. B & L. R. Co, 193 N E. 829, 289 Mass 241.

Minn.—Underdahl v Minneapolis St. Ry. Co., 259 N.W. 78, 193 Minn 548

S C.—Valentine v. Seaboard Air Line Ry. Co, 127 S E. 724, 131 S C. 382

10 C J. p 1159 note 86.

Going between coaches to request stopping of train

Passenger who by reason of failure to announce station did not learn of arrival until after train had started was not, as matter of law, guilty of negligence in going between coaches to request employee to stop train, resulting in his being thrown by sudden jerk, although person to whom he spoke was not in fact employee but news butch—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Burk, 268 S.W. 844, 207 Ky. 1.

Leaning against sliding subway door

Whether passenger was negligent in leaning against sliding door of subway car while waiting for train to stop at station was for jury.—Chasn v. Interborough-Rapid Transit Co, 227 N.Y.S. 279, 222 App.Div. 642.

Leaving seat

Whether passenger on street car used ordinary care, if, with bundles in her arms, she arose to alight before car had come to stop, was for jury.—Doody v. St. Paul City Ry. Co, Minn, 270 N.W. 583.

96. N J.—Colletto v Hudson & M R. Co., 100 A 200, 90 N.J Law 315—Paling v New York Cent. R. Co, 146 A. 788, 7 N J Misc 554, affirmed 150 A. 920, 106 N.J Law 586.

N Y.—Goldweber v New York Consol. R Co, 173 N Y S 470.

Tex.—Schaff v. Gordon, Civ App., 214 S W. 638.

Closing window

Street railway passenger, injured by glass when closing window, was not contributorily negligent per se for not calling motorman to close window—Russell v. Public Service Ry Co, 139 A. 322, 104 N.J Law 34.

Hand on door jamb

Passenger's possible negligence in placing hand on jamb of door opened by brakeman, and injured when door closed as train slowed down, was a question for the jury—Agry v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 150 A. 401, 106 N J Law 476, reversing 146 A. 587, 7 N.J Misc. 579.

97. Ark.—Meeks v. Graysonia, N. & A. R. Co, 272 S.W. 360, 168 Ark 966.

Cal.—Graff v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 172 P. 603, 178 Cal 171.

Ohio.—Beierla v. Hockenedel, 157 N E. 573, 25 Ohio App. 186.

10 C J. p 1159 note 87.

Failure to use handholds

Whether passenger who was injured by falling to floor of street car which jerked suddenly was contributorily negligent in failing to hold onto handholds was for jury —Dallas Railway & Terminal Co v Harris, Tex Civ.App., 81 S.W 2d 716

98. Mo. — Provance v. Missouri Southern R. Co., App, 186 S.W. 955

10 C J. p 1159 note 88.

99. Mass.—Convery v. Eastern Massachusetts St. Ry. Co, 147 N E. 824, 252 Mass. 418.

1. Ark.—Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Teater, 186 S W. 294, 124 Ark. 1.

Pa.—De Marchi v. Central R Co. of New Jersey, 107 A. 703, 264 Pa. 321.

10 C.J. p 1160 note 89.

Thrown while rounding curve

In action for death of plaintiff's husband, who was thrown from open platform of a car while going forward to a smoking car, when a fast train without diminution of speed was rounding a curve, it was held that whether deceased, being ignorant of condition of roadbed, was required to anticipate an unusual jerk caused by condition, was for jury—De Marchi v Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 107 A. 703, 264 Pa. 321.

2. Changing busses

In action against bus company for injuries received when passenger fell into hole on road while transferring from one bus to another, passenger's contributory negligence was a ques-body beyond the side of the vehicle;[3] or in riding with some part of his person on a window sill or the like without projecting it beyond the side of the vehicle,[4] or in riding in a dangerous or improper place,[5] such as in a car not intended for passengers,[6] or riding on the platform,[7] or on the steps or footboard,[8] of the vehicle.

tion for the jury—Damm v East Penn Transp. Co., 182 A. 720, 120 Pa Super. 381.

3. Ill.—Gilberts v. Rockford & I. Ry. Co., 215 Ill App 324
Kan.—Fike v. Huguenin, 28 P.2d 721, 138 Kan. 866.
Mo.—Crone v United Rys Co. of St. Louis, 236 S.W. 654.
N.J.—Thibodeau v. Hamley, 112 A. 320, 95 N.J Law 180.
10 C.J. p 1160 note 90.

Bars as warning

Whether iron bars, three inches apart, guarding open windows of an electric railway car, give a warning to a passenger to keep all portions of his body within the car, and, if they do, whether the warning is sufficient, are questions of fact.—Capital Traction Co. v. Copland, 47 App.D.C. 152.

4. Elbow on window sill of bus

Bus passenger who rested his elbow on window sill of bus and whose arm was not outside outer edge of sill was not as matter of law contributorily negligent, so as to bar recovery from bus company for injury to arm resulting when bus and automobile sideswiped—Ross v. Bay City Transit Co., 56 P.2d 247, 12 Cal.App.2d 639.

5. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Kitchen, 136 S.W. 970, 98 Ark. 507, 50 L.R.A.,N.S., 828
10 C.J. p 1160 note 91.

Bus fender

In action for injuries received by passenger of automobile bus, evidence showing that plaintiff had been riding outside on fender, although there were vacant seats inside of bus, was properly submitted to jury on question of plaintiff's contributory negligence.—Strong v. Olsen, 241 P. 107, 74 Cal.App. 518.

Doubt respecting position

Conflicting evidence as to whether deceased was on a pilot in front of engine or was standing on a platform between cars of defendant's interurban railway, when killed, was held to make his contributory negligence a jury question—Pearson v. Piedmont & N. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 811, 112 S.C. 220.

6. Ga.—Gardner v. Waycross Air-Line R. Co., 25 S.E. 334, 97 Ga. 432, 54 Am.S.R. 435.
10 C.J. p 1160 note 92.

Baggage car

Passenger, leaving passenger coach and going into baggage car ahead on personal matter, and injured therein when train was derailed, was not as matter of law guilty of negligence preventing recovery, conclusion not being altered by fact that passengers remaining in their coach were not injured nor that notices were posted that passengers were not allowed therein, especially where passenger did not see such notice on account of position in which it was posted, the question being for the jury.—Davis v. Jones, 129 S.E. 892, 34 Ga.App. 7.

Stock car

(1) A caretaker of live stock was not contributorily negligent as a matter of law in riding in the stock car instead of, as required by the contract, in the caboose, which had been attached after the train started, and of which he was not shown to have been notified.—Adams v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 161 N.W. 295, 179 Iowa 1334.

(2) Where a passenger on a freight train, who was accompanying a horse, on the suggestion of the conductor rode in the car with the animal for the purpose of putting out any fire which might be lighted in the bedding, the car being next to the engine, it was held that the question of his contributory negligence in so riding was for the jury.—Jepsen v. Gallatin Valley Ry. Co., 195 P. 550, 59 Mont. 125

7. Ark.—Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Teater, 186 S.W. 294, 124 Ark. 1.
D.C.—Washington Ry. & Electric Co. v. Kramer, 44 App.D.C. 154 b.
Mass.—Oliver v. New York Cent. R. Co., 173 N.E. 543, 273 Mass. 216.
Ohio—Stark Electric R. Co. v. Brooks, 114 N.E. 245, 94 Ohio St. 324
Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Warren, 269 P. 368, 132 Okl. 107.
Pa.—Elmer v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 96 A. 1054, 251 Pa. 505—Ward v. Southern Pennsylvania Traction Co., 80 Pa.Super. 394.
Tex.—Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Easton, Civ.App., 257 S.W. 924.
Wis.—Griebenow v. Chicago & M. E. Ry. Co., 171 N.W. 664, 169 Wis. 12—Bassett v. Milwaukee Northern Ry. Co., 170 N.W. 944, 169 Wis. 152.
10 C.J. p 1160 note 93.

Ordinarily question of fact

Ordinarily it is a question of fact whether the mere circumstance that a passenger injured was riding on the platform of the car, instead of taking a seat within, was contributory negligence.—Fardette v New York & S. Ry. Co., 180 N.Y.S. 179, 190 App.Div. 543.

Crowded platform

Whether a person, who enters a car of a street railway company which is already crowded and rides on a crowded platform and is injured, is guilty of contributory negligence is a question to be determined by the jury under all the circumstances—Sand Springs Ry. Co. v Smith, 203 P. 207, 84 Okl. 211

Fingers pinched by sliding plates

Conflicting evidence as to whether passenger in vestibule train was passing through cars to find more commodious seat or loitering on platform between cars made issue for jury of passenger's contributory negligence when his fingers were caught between unprotected sliding plates.—Oliver v. New York Cent. R. Co., 173 N.E. 543, 273 Mass. 216.

Front platform of electric car

Independently of statute, it is not negligence per se for passenger to stand on front platform of moving electric car, and in passenger's action for personal injury when thrown from front platform of electric car while rounding curve, plaintiff's contributory negligence was a question for jury—Graff v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 172 P. 603, 178 Cal. 171.

Rear platform

In an action for injury from being thrown from the rear platform of a street car while rounding a curve, it was held, on the evidence, that plaintiff's contributory negligence was a question for the jury—Gumpel v. San Diego Electric Ry. Co., 172 P. 605, 178 Cal. 166

Vacant seats

In an action for injuries to a passenger riding on the platform of an electric car, evidence was held to make a question for the jury as to whether there were any vacant seats so as to render applicable a statute prohibiting passengers from riding on the platform, when there is available room inside—Fish v. Ball, C.C.A. Utah, 93 F.2d 853.

Vestibuled platform

There is no rule which makes it negligence as matter of law for a passenger to pass over or stand on vestibuled platforms connecting passenger cars, and in an action for injury to a passenger while standing temporarily on the vestibuled platform between two cars, the question of contributory negligence was for the jury—New York, N. H. & H. Ry. Co v Kilby, Mass., 233 F. 252, 147 C.C.A. 258.

Not negligence per se

A passenger is not contributorily negligent as a matter of law in standing on the inclosed platform of an electric railroad car when there are no seats available.—Fish v. Ball, C.C.A. Utah, 93 F.2d 853

8. Ga.—Bailey v. Georgia Ry. &

d. Leaving Conveyance

It is ordinarily a question of fact for the jury whether or not a passenger was guilty of contributory negligence when leaving a conveyance, such as a moving vehicle, although where the rate of speed or other matters indicate alighting was in the face of obvious danger the issue becomes one of law for the court.

While the circumstances may be such as to render the question of an alighting passenger's contributory negligence or the absence thereof a question of law[9] as where he alighted at an improper place,[10] on conflicting evidence it is for the jury to decide as a question of fact whether or not the passenger's conduct when leaving the vehicle constituted contributory negligence,[11] as in alighting

Power Co., 124 S.E. 907, 32 Ga.App 793

Md.—Hines v. Watkins, 112 A. 299, 137 Md. 211.

Mo.—Shelton v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., App., 190 S.W. 46.

Ohio.—Stark Electric R. Co. v. Brooks, 114 N.E. 245, 94 Ohio St. 324.

10 C.J. p. 1160 note 93.

Crowded car

A street car passenger is not conclusively guilty of contributory negligence in remaining on the step after finding that he could not get inside the car, owing to the crowded condition thereof.—Smith v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 204 S.W. 575.

Prior to statute

Riding on running board of automobile was not contributory negligence as matter of law prior to statute.—Bergsrud v. Maryland Casualty Co., 229 N.W. 655, 201 Wis. 141.

9. Md.—Hevell v. Baltimore Transit Co., 196 A. 103.

Pa.—Shade v. Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist. 34, 20 Pa.Co. 292.

10 C.J. p. 1157 note 70.

Compulsory nonsuit proper

Evidence that passenger, after alighting on curve of track, walked near track, and was struck by overhang of street car, held to render compulsory nonsuit proper.—Duffy v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 140 A. 496, 291 Pa. 564.

Direction of verdict for defendant unwarranted

(1) Where a passenger, after seeing others alight by means of a stool placed below the car step, returned to the car on an errand, and then stepped off without looking again for the stool, which in the meantime had been removed, and was injured by a resulting fall, he was not criminally negligent as a matter of law, so as to lose his right to recover, under Rev.St.Neb. 1913 § 6052, and it was error to direct a verdict for the railroad.—Maple v. Union Pac. R. Co., C.C.A.Neb., 264 F. 89.

(2) In an action for injuries to a passenger who stepped from a street car onto a stake and thereby severely sprained his ankle, evidence that the stake was one of a row which had been placed there by the city engineer and had been there for some time, that the passenger knew generally of the presence of the row of stakes, but not of the location of the particular stake, and that the car stopped at night with the step directly over the stake, held sufficient to take to the jury the issue of the street car company's negligence and of the passenger's contributory negligence, so that it was error to direct a verdict for defendant.—Mayhew v. Ohio Valley Electric Ry. Co., 254 S.W. 202, 200 Ky. 105.

Evidence held insufficient to establish contributory negligence as matter of law

(1) Generally.—Payne v. Davis, 252 S.W. 57, 298 Mo. 645.—Green v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 251 S.W. 931, 213 Mo.App. 583.—Turner v. Wabash Ry. Co., Mo.App., 211 S.W. 101.

(2) That passenger continued to alight after noticing that doors were not fully opened and that step was tilted up, held insufficient to establish contributory negligence as a matter of law.—Peters v. Chicago Rys. Co., 138 N.E. 629, 307 Ill. 202.

10. Pa.—Scanlon v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., 57 A. 521, 208 Pa. 195.

11. Ala.—Smith v. Southern Ry. Co., 164 So. 903, 231 Ala. 381.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 638.

Ark.—Missouri Pac. Transp. Co. v. Robinson, 86 S.W.2d 913, 191 Ark. 428.

Cal.—Duffield v. Payne, 227 P. 217, 66 Cal.App. 767.

Conn.—Spiro v. Bridgeport Auto Transit Co., 155 A. 416, 113 Conn. 773.

Ill.—Griswold v. Chicago Rys. Co., 170 N.E. 845, 339 Ill. 94, affirming 253 Ill.App. 498.—Thomason v. Chicago Motor Coach Co., 10 N.E.2d 714, 292 Ill.App. 104.—Davis v. East St. Louis & S. Ry. Co., 9 N.E.2d 254, 290 Ill.App. 540.—See Appel v. Alton, G. & St. L. Traction Co., 207 Ill.App. 562.—Louden v. Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 206 Ill.App. 87.

Ky.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Clarke, 189 S.W. 882, 172 Ky. 811.

Md.—Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co. v. Fitch, 136 A. 529, 152 Md. 137.

Mass.—McNeil v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 185 N.E. 471, 282 Mass. 575.—McManus v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 160 N.E. 529, 262 Mass. 519.—Mucci v. Roston Elevated Ry. Co., 159 N.E. 513, 262 Mass. 308.

Mich.—Steketee v. Waters, 159 N.W. 368, 193 Mich. 177.

Mo.—Carney v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 236 S.W. 308, 205 Mo.App. 495.—Turner v. Wabash Ry. Co., App., 211 S.W. 101.

N.H.—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry., 149 A. 602, 84 N.H. 285.

N.J.—Kinder v. Erie R. Co., 162 A. 387, 109 N.J.Law 469, reversing 146 A. 923, 7 N.J.Misc. 637, followed in 137 A. 88, 103 N.J.Law 316.—Malzer v. Koll Transp. Co., 156 A. 639, 108 N.J.Law 296.—Galamb v. Erie R. Co., 156 A. 128, 108 N.J.Law 7.—Pabst v. Public Service Ry. Co., 141 A. 773, 104 N.J.Law 537.—Alexander v. Matteucci, 135 A. 820, 5 N.J.Misc. 183.

N.Y.—Krupnick v. Branikowski, 3 N.E.2d 210, 271 N.Y. 612, reversing 284 N.Y.S. 407, 246 App.Div. 782.—Wilson v. International Ry. Co., 199 N.Y.S. 562, 205 App.Div. 275.

N.D.—Arnold v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 228 N.W. 456, 59 N.D. 59.

Ohio.—Mahoning & S. Ry. & Light Co. v. Leedy, 136 N.E. 198, 104 Ohio St. 487.—Grubbs v. Cincinnati, L. & A. Electric St. R. Co., 17 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N.S., 425, appeal dismissed 13 Ohio Law 64, 60 Wkly. Law Bul. 200.

Okl.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Loftus, 234 P. 607, 109 Okl. 141.

Or.—Goodson v. Portland Electric Power Co., 279 P. 559, 130 Or. 145.—Watts v. Spokane, P. & S. Ry. Co., 171 P. 901, 88 Or. 192.

Pa.—Hager v. Philadelphia & R. Ry. Co., 104 A. 599, 261 Pa. 359.—Jenkins v. Beyer, 180 A. 135, 118 Pa.Super. 527.

R.I.—Tomei v. United Electric Rys. Co., 163 A. 479.

Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Watts, 216 S.W. 391, 110 Tex. 106, reversing, Civ.App., 173 S.W. 909.—Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Rooks, Com.App., 292 S.W. 536, affirming, Civ.App., 283 S.W. 622, and rehearing denied, Com.App., 293 S.W. 554.

Utah.—Barlow v. Salt Lake & U. R. Co., 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312.

Va.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Tinsley, 89 S.E. 860, 119 Va. 423.

Wash.—Anderson v. Grandy, 283 P. 186, 154 Wash. 547.

W.Va.—Kaufman v. Charleston Transit Co., 186 S.E. 617, 117 W.Va. 591.—Donnally v. Payne, 109 S.E. 760, 89 W.Va. 585.

Wis.—Pleva v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 246 N.W. 694, at a place other than the station or platform,[12] or on the wrong side of the vehicle,[13] or by means of slippery steps,[14] or when transferring from one vehicle to another,[15] or when stumbling over an obstruction,[16] or slipping on loose gravel,[17] or stepping into a hole[18] or rut.[19]

Moving vehicle. The circumstances may be such as to render it a question of law whether a passenger was contributorily negligent in leaving a vehicle while it was in motion.[20] Ordinarily, however, 210 Wis 568—Zilles v. Milwaukee Electric Ry & Light Co, 246 N.W. 693, 210 Wis. 564.

10 C J p 1158 note 80.

Assisting another

In an action for injuries to a passenger thrown to the ground while assisting his daughter to alight, evidence held sufficient to take the case to the jury.—Capital Traction Co. v. Hoover, 45 App.D C 247.

Bus door striking hand

In action by passenger on motorbus for injury to hand while alighting, from closing of door from contact with another automobile, evidence held to make plaintiff's contributory negligence question for jury.—Leban v. Range Rapid Transit Co., 208 N.W. 533, 167 Minn. 40.

Crowd

Contributory negligence of passenger in crowded train in attempting to alight with crowd, instead of waiting, held question for jury—Morey v. New York Cent. R. Co, 254 N.Y.S 531, 234 App.Div 210, affirmed 184 N E. 148, 260 N.Y. 691.

Familiarity with conditions

Whether plaintiff was so familiar with the condition of the ground that it was contributory negligence on her part to alight at a place of alleged obvious danger held for the jury—Beach v. Eureka Traction Co, 203 S.W. 834, 135 Ark. 542.

Struck by passing auto

In action by plaintiff for injuries from being struck by passing automobile while she was alighting from defendant's street car, question of contributory negligence held for jury.—Woods v. North Carolina Public Service Co., 94 S E. 459, 174 N.C. 697, 1 A L R. 942.

Use of handholds

Passenger, who was thrown against brake handle when in act of alighting from street car which suddenly started and stopped, held not contributorily negligent as matter of law because she did not make use of handholds to steady herself.—Virginia Public Service Co. v. Silver, C C.A.,Va., 68 F 2d 230.

Evidence held sufficient to take question to jury

N.Y.—Creasy v. Eastern Greyhound Lines of New York, 291 N.Y.S. 746, 249 App Div. 59.

Evidence held insufficient to take question to jury

(1) Street car.—Bakkensen v. Minneapolis St Ry. Co., 238 N.W. 489, 184 Minn. 274.

(2) Taxi—Paulos v. Koelsch, 263 N W. 913, 195 Minn 603.

12. Ill—See Aur v. East St. Louis Ry Co, 194 Ill App. 193.
Mo.—Payne v. Davis, 252 S W. 57, 298 Mo. 645.
Ohio.—Cleverdon v. Lake Shore Electric Ry Co, 20 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N S, 550, affirmed Lake Shore Electric Ry. Co. v. Cleverdon, 80 N.E. 1128, 75 Ohio St. 618.
Pa.—Miller v. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 138 A. 89, 290 Pa. 130
Tex—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Churchill, Com App., 212 S W 155, affirming, Civ App, 171 S W. 517, rehearing denied, Com. App., 213 S W 253—Waters v. Texas Electric Ry, Civ.App, 267 S W 1005—Fort Worth & D. C. Ry. Co v. Lovett, Civ App, 243 S W. 519
10 C J. p 1159 note 82.

Custom

Where, through previous custom, street car passengers had the implied permission of the street railway to alight at a point where the car was stopped for switching, a passenger who knew of the custom was not, as matter of law, negligent in attempting to leave the car when it was so stopped, so that she was injured when it started, the question being for the jury—Stahl v. Southern Michigan Ry. Co., 178 N W. 710, 211 Mich. 350.

Failure to await brakeman's assistance

Evidence in action for injury to passenger in alighting from car, which, at night, had stopped away from station platform, held to call for submission of contributory negligence in not waiting for brakeman to assist, and in otherwise not exercising proper care—Missouri Pac R Co. v. Crawford, 270 S W. 517, 168 Ark. 430.

13. Pa—Roberts v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 86 A. 284, 238 Pa. 404, Ann.Cas. 1914C 502.
10 C J. p 1159 note 83.

14. Conn.—Connelly v. Connecticut Co., 140 A 121, 107 Conn 236.
Md.—Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co. v. Fitch, 136 A. 529, 152 Md 137.
Mass.—Bagnell v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co, 142 N.E. 63, 247 Mass 235
R I—Tomei v. United Electric Rys Co., 163 A. 479.

Ice

In passenger's action against street railway company for injuries received in alighting from street car, whether passenger was guilty of contributory negligence in descending from car by way of known icy step was for jury—Rickabaugh v Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co., 9 N E.2d 900, 55 Ohio App 431.

15. Attempting jump to boat

In an action by plaintiff for damages for the death of her husband, caused by his attempting to jump from a stage plank provided by the defendant railroad for him and other passengers being transferred from coaches to transfer boat, question of contributory negligence held for the jury.—Yazoo & M. V R Co. v. Hill, 216 S W. 1054, 141 Ark. 378.

16. Mo.—Roussell v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 257 S.W 516

17. Gravel hidden by dress

Whether a passenger who was injured when gravel on a platform slipped under her foot as she was alighting was negligent was a question of fact for the jury, although she had bundles in her arms, stepped down without asking for help, and did not take hold of the railing, where she testified that, because of her dress, she could not see the loose gravel on the platform—Barlow v Salt Lake & U. R. Co., 194 P. 665, 57 Utah 312.

18. Mo—Caley v. Kansas City, 48 S W.2d 25, 226 Mo App 934.
Ohio—Poehl v. Cincinnati Traction Co, 151 N E. 806, 20 Ohio App 148
Pa—Gourlay v. Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co, 100 Pa Super. 419—Fissell v. Hines, 78 Pa Super 179—Hall v Lehigh Valley R. Co, 74 Pa Super. 52.

19. N H—Wilson v. Berlin St. Ry, 149 A. 602, 84 N H 285.

20. Cal.—Fitzgerald v Southern Pac. Co., 173 P. 91, 36 Cal.App. 660.
10 C.J. p 1157 note 71.

Obviously dangerous speed

(1) Where the uncontradicted testimony shows that plaintiff left the train when it was moving at a rate of speed that made it probably unsafe to a reasonably prudent man to undertake to alight, he was negligent as a matter of law—Louisville & N R. Co v. Derrickson, 185 S.W. 1114, 170 Ky. 334.

(2) Where plaintiff stepped from a street car while it was running at the rate of eighteen miles per hour, such act was negligence per se, and the court may direct a verdict for defendant.—Kirby v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, Mo., 242 S.W. 79.

it is not negligence as matter of law to leave a vehicle in motion, and as a rule the question is one of fact addressed to the jury.[21] The question of whether or not the passenger did attempt to alight from a vehicle while it was moving is also ordinarily one of fact for the jury.[22]

e. Permission or Direction of Carrier's Employee

Where the mere fact that a passenger acted in accordance with the permission or direction of the carrier's agents does not as a matter of law absolve him from a charge of contributory negligence, such permission or direction ordinarily raises an issue of fact for the jury.

Where the evidence tends to prove an invitation, inducement, or constraint of the carrier's agent causing the passenger to take a reasonable risk, he is not guilty of contributory negligence as matter of law,[23] but the issue as to such negligence is one of fact for the jury.[24]

The mere fact that the passenger acted with the permission of the carrier's agent does not absolve the passenger from a charge of contributory negligence in doing an obviously dangerous act.[25]

21. Ala.—Mobile & O R. Co v Davis, 137 So. 525, 223 Ala. 600—St Louis & S. F. Ry. Co v. Mills, 124 So. 231, 220 Ala. 107—Central of Georgia Ry. Co v. Mathis, 71 So. 674, 196 Ala. 32—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Williams, 84 So. 633, 17 Ala App. 259.
Cal.—Poak v Pacific Electric Ry. Co, 170 P. 159, 177 Cal 190—Fitzgerald v. Southern Pac Co, 173 P. 91, 36 Cal App 660.
Ga.—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Weathers, 108 S.E. 556, 27 Ga App. 375—Southern Ry Co. v. Williams, 91 S E. 894, 19 Ga App. 462.
Ill.—Wood v. Illinois Cent. R. Co, 201 Ill App 439.
Ind.—Pittsburgh, C., C & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Boys, 123 N.E. 482, 71 Ind. App. 102
Iowa —Bersie v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co, 211 N.W. 250, 202 Iowa 1090.
Ky.—Chesapeake & O R. Co v. Mollett, 251 S W. 1007, 199 Ky. 817—Chesapeake & O R Co. v. Mollett, 251 S W. 1005, 199 Ky. 813—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v Peel, 214 S W. 874, 185 Ky. 207—Louisville & N. R. Co v. Derrickson, 185 S.W. 1114, 170 Ky. 334.
Mo.—Sivicek v. Dunham, 219 S.W. 594—Bogrees v Wabash Ry. Co, App., 266 S.W. 333—Williams v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., App., 243 S. W. 188—Bond v. Chicago, B. & Q Ry Co, 99 S.W. 30, 122 Mo App. 207.
N D.—Faubion v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S S. M Ry. Co., 177 N W 371, 45 N D. 269.
Ohio.—Cleveland Ry. Co. v Hill, 12 Ohio App 125.
Tenn —Tennessee R Co. v. Kingsley, 10 Tenn App 637.
Tex.—Fort Worth & D C Ry. Co v. Lovett, Civ.App, 243 S W. 519.
Va —Virginia Ry & Power Co. v. Arnold, 92 S.E. 925, 121 Va. 204.
Wash —Alstead v. Kapper, 236 P 799, 135 Wash 21—Yenney v Pacific Northwest Traction Co., 215 P. 38, 124 Wash. 660
10 C J. p 1158 note 81.

Elements for consideration
It is not under all circumstances a negligent act to alight from a moving train, the rate of speed, the circumstances which limit the free agency of the person alighting, and his position, if one of peril, being elements to be considered, and, within reasonable limits, his negligence is a question for the jury.—Rauscher v Payne, 188 N W. 1017, 152 Minn 368

At night
Where a passenger fell and was injured in alighting from a moving train in the nighttime after being told by its operatives that his station had been reached and opened the door for him to alight, the question as to whether he was negligent in his failure to examine where he was going to alight was for the jury.—Williams v Missouri Pac R. Co., Mo. App, 243 S W. 188.

Belief that car had stopped
Whether street car passenger was negligent in starting to alight under belief that car had stopped, held a question for the jury—Drake v. Northern Texas Traction Co, Tex Civ. App, 197 S W. 610, error refused.

Slowly moving street car
Whether passenger is guilty of negligence in attempting to alight from slowly moving street car is ordinarily a question of fact for jury—Fitzgerald v Des Moines City Ry. Co., 207 N W. 602, 201 Iowa 1302.

Thrown by sudden jerk
It is not negligence as a matter of law for the passenger to alight from a moving train, where his testimony was that he was caused to alight by its sudden and unanticipated jerk.—Chicago, R I. & G Ry. Co. v. Comstock, Tex.Civ.App, 189 S.W. 109, error refused.

Train slowing down for station
In an action against a carrier for damages for personal injuries, whether plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to alight from a moving train, which simply slowed down for the station, held for the jury—Vietti v Hines, 192 P 80, 48 Cal.App. 266.

Train stopping for insufficient time
If a train does not stop a reasonably sufficient time to enable a passenger to alight with safety, it is not negligence per se for the latter to attempt to do so after the train starts, providing it is not traveling at such a rate of speed as to make it apparent to an ordinarily prudent man that it would be dangerous to attempt it.—Cincinnati, N. O. & T P. Ry Co v Francis, 220 S.W. 739, 187 Ky. 703.

22. Pa.—Hawkins v. Director General of Railroads, 121 A 46, 277 Pa 213.
S C.—Comer v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co, 90 S.E. 188, 105 S.C 480.

23. Ga.—Southern Ry. Co v. Whitehead, 120 S.E. 700, 31 Ga App 398
W.Va —Donnally v. Payne, 109 S.E 760, 89 W.Va. 585

24. Ark —Tri-State Transit Co of Louisiana v. Miller, 65 S W.2d 9, 188 Ark 149, 90 A L R. 1389.
Cal —Sanchez v. Pacific Auto Stages, 2 P.2d 845, 116 Cal.App 392.
Minn.—Joseph v. Chicago, B & Q. R. Co, 160 N W 689, 135 Minn. 239.
Mo.—Bogrees v. Wabash Ry. Co, App, 266 S W. 333.
W.Va.—Donnally v. Payne, 109 S.E. 760, 89 W.Va. 585

Alighting at direction of conductor
In an action by a passenger against a carrier for injuries sustained in alighting from a moving train, alleged at the direction and invitation of the conductor, the defense of contributory negligence held for the jury.—Fullerton v. Chicago Great Western R. Co, 199 N W. 93, 159 Minn. 475.

25. N.J.—Karnitsky v Machanic, 109 A. 303, 94 N.J.Law 127.

Riding on step
The fact that the driver of a jitney bus operating as a common carrier permitted a passenger to ride on the step, which was a place of danger, does not disprove that it was negligence per se for plaintiff to ride there, unless the bus was crowded.—Karnitsky v. Machanic, 109 A. 303, 94 N.J Law 127.

f. Acts in Emergencies

The existence of an emergency and the conduct of the passenger confronted therewith as respects a charge of contributory negligence are ordinarily questions of fact addressed to the jury.

Whether in a case of emergency the apprehension of danger was such as reasonably to cause alarm to the passenger,[26] or to justify the conduct he pursued,[27] and whether or not he acted with due care in the emergency,[28] are ordinarily not matters of law but questions of fact for the jury.

g. Persons under Disability

The claimed contributory negligence of a passenger suffering under a disability, such as age or intoxication, is ordinarily a question of fact for the jury's decision.

Whether a person under disability, such as a child, an enfeebled person, or an intoxicated person, was guilty of contributory negligence relative to his injuries is ordinarily a question for the jury under the evidence,[29] and it is not contributory negligence as matter of law for a passenger unable to take care of himself to fail to provide an attendant.[30]

h. Elevator and Escalator Cases

The contributory negligence of a passenger in an elevator or on an escalator is ordinarily a question of fact, although circumstances may reduce the issue to one of law.

In an action to recover damages for injury or death occasioned by the use of defective machinery

26. Md.—Western Maryland R. Co. v. Herold, 22 A. 323, 74 Md. 510, 14 L.R.A. 75.
10 C.J. p 1160 note 94.

Under threat of death

Where a passenger jumped from a moving train to escape other passengers who were pursuing and threatening to kill him, his contributory negligence is not a question of law, but one of fact for the jury.—Utterback v. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co., Mo, 189 S.W. 1171.

27. Cal.—Drury v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 282 P. 525, 102 Cal. App. 58.

Clinging to handlebar

Whether danger confronting street car passenger falling off rear platform justified clinging to handlebar held for jury.—Drury v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 282 P. 525, 102 Cal. App. 58.

28. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Martin, 73 So. 909, 198 Ala. 540.
Ill.—Jensen v East St. Louis Ry. Co., 202 Ill.App. 583.
Ky.—McGraw v. Ayers, 58 S.W.2d 378, 248 Ky. 166—Kentucky Traction & Terminal Co. v. Roman's Guardian, 23 S.W.2d 272, 232 Ky. 285.
Wash.—Heva v. City of Seattle, 272 P. 41, 150 Wash. 61.
10 C.J. p 1160 note 95.

Attempt to rescue companion thrown onto trestle

Where passenger on crowded car was thrown off into darkness by violent lurch on a bridge and went on trestle of overhead crossing, and his companion alighted and walked back along trestle from which he fell, whether rescuer's fall was due to railway's negligence, and whether he was foolhardy, were for jury.—Wagner v. International Ry. Co., 133 N.E. 437, 232 N.Y. 176, 19 A.L.R. 1, reversing 180 N.Y.S. 957, 189 App. Div. 925.

Confusion on crossing tracks

Where a passenger alighting from a street car waited until the car had gone a distance of seventy five feet or more and then, in obedience to an apparent signal from the motorman of the car following, she crossed the tracks, and, seeing a car approaching on the other track, became confused and hesitated and was struck, it could not be said as a matter of law that she was guilty of negligence in attempting to cross, since one suddenly put in peril will not be held negligent for choosing the alternative which proved the more dangerous.—Schnurr v. Detroit United Ry., 193 N.W. 772, 222 Mich. 591.

Jumping in wrong direction

That result showed that deceased, whose death resulted from injury caused by his attempt, when emergency arose, to jump from stage plank to transfer boat provided by defendant company for him and other passengers could have escaped mortal injury by jumping on the sand, did not make his act negligent as a matter of law.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Hill, 216 S.W. 1054, 141 Ark. 378.

29. Ga.—Madden v. S. L. Mitchell Automobile Co., 94 S.E. 92, 21 Ga. App. 108.
W.Va.—Trippett v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 130 S.E. 483, 100 W.Va. 319.
10 C.J. p 1157 note 67.

Age

(1) Whether an old woman defective of sight and hearing was guilty of contributory negligence in stepping off of a moving street car, held a question of fact.—Poak v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 170 P. 159, 177 Cal. 190.

(2) In an action against a railroad for injuries to an aged female passenger in leaving the train at destination, if the jury found the trainman announced all out for the station, and followed it by telling plaintiff to get off, it is for them to say whether plaintiff was warranted in believing she was to get off before reaching the station, taking into consideration her physical and mental condition.—Clayton v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co., 106 A. 577, 7 Boyce, Del., 343.

Childhood

Negligence of eight year old girl killed by defendant's train is question of fact to be determined from age capacity, intelligence, and experience of deceased.—Molloy v. Chicago Rapid Transit Co., 166 N.E. 530, 335 Ill. 164.

Intoxication

(1) Whether passenger who fell into railroad cut after alighting from street car was intoxicated at all, or to what extent, held for jury, on issue of his contributory negligence.—Alabama Power Co. v. Hall, 103 So. 867, 212 Ala. 638.

(2) Whether deceased passenger, compelled to ride on rear platform of a car by conductor by reason of intoxication and the fact that he was carrying a sack of clams and fish poles, was negligent, having fallen from the car while rounding a bend, held for the jury.—Fardette v. New York & S. Ry. Co., 180 N.Y.S. 179, 190 App.Div. 543.

Evidence held insufficient to take issue to jury

In passenger's action for personal injuries sustained as result of negligent operation of taxicab, evidence regarding intoxication of passenger held insufficient to take issue of contributory negligence to jury, there being no evidence showing causal connection between intoxication and injury.—Yellow Taxicab & Baggage Co. v. Cooke, 42 P.2d 826, 171 Okl. 269.

30. Mont.—Gohn v. Butte Hotel Co., 295 P. 262, 88 Mont. 599.
10 C.J. p 1099 note 50
The duty to have an attendant is considered generally supra § 776.

in an elevator, or by the negligence of the conductor thereof in its operation, the question whether or not the passenger was guilty of negligence which contributed to his injury or death is usually one of fact for the determination of the jury, under the court's instructions as to what constitutes contributory negligence,[31] although under some circumstances it becomes solely a question of law, as where there is no dispute as to the facts, and where the passenger pursued a course of conduct contributing to his injury which, under the circumstances, evinced such a careless disregard for his safety as to constitute contributory negligence per se.[32] The foregoing principles apply also to injuries sustained on a moving stairway or escalator.[33]

§ 804. Instructions

a. In general
b. Conformity to pleadings and issues
c. As to presumptions and burden of proof

a. In General

General rules govern instructions relative to contributory negligence of a passenger, such as one entering, traveling in, or alighting from, a vehicle.

General rules apply to instructions relative to the contributory negligence of a passenger in his action against the carrier,[34] and in accordance therewith the courts have held particular instructions

31. Ala.—Johnson v. Hopkins, 105 So. 663, 213 Ala. 492.
Cal.—McKeon v. Lissner, 262 P. 459, 87 Cal.App. 371.
Ky.—Otis Hidden Co. v. Newhouse, 264 S.W. 731, 204 Ky. 324.
Mich.—Sikora v. Fellowcraft Club, 161 N.W. 826, 195 Mich. 49.
Nev.—Smith v. Odd Fellows Bldg. Ass'n, 205 P. 796, 46 Nev. 48, 23 A.L.R. 38.
N.Y.—Zucker v. Ephraim Realty Corporation, 275 N.Y.S. 593, 243 App. Div. 543—Hoffman v. Ellis, 174 N.Y.S. 362, 106 Misc. 283—Teich v. Seidman's Garage, 188 N.Y.S. 488
Pa.—McKnight v. S. S. Kresge Co., 132 A. 575, 285 Pa. 489.
Tex.—City Nat. Bank v. Pigott, Civ. App., 270 S.W. 234.
10 C.J. p 1160 note 96.

Automatic elevator

In prospective tenant's action against operators of apartment building for injuries caused by defective condition of automatic elevator when she walked into elevator shaft, thinking elevator in place, in which there was evidence that the door would not have been open if the elevator had been in good condition, the question of the prospective tenant's contributory negligence was one for the jury.—McKeon v. Lissner, 223 P. 965, 193 Cal. 297.

Entering elevator not level with floor

It is not negligence, as a matter of law, for one invited to enter an elevator by the opening of the door to step down a foot, nor to step into it without observing whether the platform is exactly even with the floor, the care required being for the jury.—White v. Red Mountain Fruit Co., 199 P. 318, 186 Cal. 335.

Foot over edge of moving elevator

Negligence of plaintiff, aged fifteen years, in allowing his foot to project over the edge of a moving elevator floor, and question whether he had sufficient intelligence to appreciate the danger held a jury question.—Citizens' Bank v. Fairweather, 191 S.W. 911, 126 Ark. 63.

Poking head into shaft

In an action against a power company for injuries to plaintiff when in attempting to signal an elevator he put his head into the shaft, case held for jury under the evidence on the issue of plaintiff's contributory negligence.—Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Co. v. Green, 113 A. 103, 137 Md. 503.

Walking into shaft

Where plaintiff, injured in elevator shaft on the premises of defendant, with whom he had been transacting business, walked through an open door into the shaft in a poorly lighted portion of the building, past defendant's employee, who stood with back to opening, indicating that passengers could enter if they desired, the question whether plaintiff was contributorily negligent was for the jury.—Grote v. Hussmann, 223 S.W. 129, 204 Mo.App. 466.

32. Ill.—Beidler v. Branshaw, 65 N.E. 1086, 200 Ill. 425, reversing 102 Ill.App. 187.
10 C.J. p 1161 note 97.

33. Escalator not in motion

In an action by passenger for injuries received on escalator at station, trial judge erred in holding as matter of law that plaintiff was not in the exercise of due care in using an escalator not in motion, it being in evidence that she started up the escalator before she knew that it was not in motion.—Cook v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 142 N.E. 824, 248 Mass. 142

34. Ala.—Montgomery Light & Traction Co. v. O'Connor, 85 So. 384, 204 Ala. 24.
Cal.—Graff v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 172 P. 603, 178 Cal. 171—Riley v. Southern Pac. Co., 207 P. 699, 57 Cal.App. 477.
Conn.—Montambault v. Waterbury & Milldale Tramway Co., 120 A. 145, 98 Conn. 584.
Ill.—Eilers v. Peoria Ry. Co., 200 Ill. App. 487.
Mass.—Bilodeau v. Fitchburg & L. St. Ry. Co., 128 N.E. 872, 236 Mass. 526.
Ohio.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Burkhardt, 4 Ohio App. 103.
Pa.—Klingensmith v. West Penn Rys. Co., 123 A. 787, 279 Pa. 336.
Tex.—Texas Electric Ry. v. Stewart, Civ.App., 217 S.W. 1081, error refused—Texas & P. R. Co. v. Pierce, 30 S.W. 1122, 10 Tex.Civ.App. 429.
Wash.—Calhoun v. Portland Ry., Light & Power Co., 178 P. 805, 105 Wash. 592.
W.Va.—Trippett v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 130 S.E. 483, 100 W.Va. 319.
10 C.J. p 1161 note 2—p 1162 note 4, p 1163 note 9—p 1164 note 18, p 1167 notes 25–28.

Confusing character of instructions

(1) An instruction that plaintiff was contributorily negligent in alighting from a moving train unless the carrier failed to stop its train a sufficient length of time to enable her to alight therefrom in safety, and she was compelled to choose between leaving the car while it was moving slowly or being carried beyond her destination, provided she did not act when a reasonably prudent person in the exercise of ordinary care and caution would have refrained from alighting under the circumstances, was confusing under the facts, where there was no testimony she was compelled to make the choice referred to, and the evidence was conflicting as to whether the train stopped long enough to enable her to alight.—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Daniel, 251 S.W. 1007, 199 Ky. 817—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Mollett, 251 S.W. 1005, 199 Ky. 813.

(2) Instructions held not confusing.—Giguere v. Boston & M. R. R., 167 A. 561, 86 N.H. 294.
10 C.J. p 1163 note 11.

Misleading character of instructions

(1) In an action by a crippled pas-

given or requested proper[35] or improper,[36] such as instructions relative to the care required of children and others under disability,[37] or of a person faced with an emergency,[38] or instructions respecting the care or negligence of a passenger awaiting and seeking transportation,[39] entering a conveyance,[40] or in course of transit,[41] or leaving a conveyance.

senger against a railroad company for injuries sustained in being compelled to alight from a passenger train without assistance, an instruction that plaintiff was negligent if he stepped down without looking to see if there was a portable step in place was misleading.—Turner v. Wabash Ry. Co., Mo.App., 211 S.W. 101.

(2) An instruction to effect that plaintiff could not recover if she attempted to alight while train was moving was misleading in that jury might infer that she could not recover if train was moving at any time after she left her seat.—Rooker v. Deering Southwestern Ry. Co., Mo. App., 204 S.W 556.

(3) In an action for injuries to a passenger when thrown from defendant's street car, an instruction on negligence of plaintiff in attempting to alight while car was in motion held not misleading—Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Evans, 193 S.W. 1067, 108 Tex. 356.
10 C.J. p 1163 note 11.

Evidence held sufficient to warrant instruction

(1) Generally.—Harris v. Bush, 196 S.W. 471, 129 Ark. 369.

(2) Slight evidence of a passenger's contributory negligence is sufficient to warrant an instruction thereon.—McDermott v. Louisville & N R. Co., 206 S.W. 6, 182 Ky. 22.

35. Ga.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Bartlett, 162 S.E. 831, 44 Ga.App. 710.
Mo.—Sparks v. Harvey, App., 214 S.W. 249.
Ohio.—Rudin v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 18 Ohio N.P.,N.S., 260
Tex.—Wells Fargo & Co. v. Lowery, Civ.App., 197 S.W. 605, error refused.

36. Ga.—Cooper v. Georgia Power Co., 162 S.E. 302, 44 Ga.App. 581—Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Cooper, 93 S.E. 281, 20 Ga.App. 550.
Ill.—Eilers v. Peoria Ry. Co., 200 Ill.App. 487.
Mass.—Bilodeau v. Fitchburg & L. St Ry. Co., 128 N.E. 872, 236 Mass. 526.

37. Cal.—Mudrick v. Market St. Ry. Co., App., 74 P.2d 328.
Ky.—Fields v. Cannon Ball Cab & Bus Co., 25 S.W.2d 1046, 233 Ky. 383
Ohio.—Cincinnati Traction Co. v. Burkhardt, 4 Ohio App. 103.
Tex.—San Antonio Public Service Co. v. Fraser, Civ.App., 91 S.W.2d 948.
W.Va.—Trippett v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 130 S.E. 483, 100 W.Va. 319.

Boy on steps of moving train

In an action for the death of plaintiff's fourteen-year old son by falling through an open vestibule door of a train on which he was a passenger, an instruction defining "contributory negligence," as the failure to exercise such care for his own safety as would be used by a boy of the same age, capacity, and experience under the same or similar circumstances, held not erroneous without proof of his want of discretion, there being no presumption that he possessed sufficient intelligence to have known and appreciated the danger incident to going on the platform and steps while the train was in motion.—Galveston, H. & S.A. Ry. Co. v. Henry, Tex.Civ.App., 252 S.W. 210.

Contributory negligence and carrier as insurer

In action for injuries to eight year old boy from falling or jumping off platform of moving passenger car, where evidence justified defense of contributory negligence, instruction making carrier absolute insurer of safety of passengers, was reversible error.—Trippett v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., 130 S.E. 483, 100 W.Va. 319.

38. Ala.—Alabama Great Southern R. Co. v. Hunt, 86 So. 97, 17 Ala.App. 566, certiorari granted Ex parte Alabama Great Southern R. Co., 86 So. 100, 204 Ala. 504.

39. U.S.—St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal Ry. Co. v. Munger, Mo., 254 F. 298, 165 C.C.A. 586
Ala.—Montgomery Light & Traction Co. v. O'Connor, 85 So. 384, 204 Ala. 24.
Mo.—Sugarwater v. Fleming, 293 S.W. 111, 316 Mo. 742—Willi v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 274 S.W. 24—Gurtman v. Lusk, 208 S.W. 61
Pa.—Klingensmith v. West Penn Rys. Co., 123 A. 787, 279 Pa. 336.
Tex.—Texas Electric Ry. v. Stewart, Civ.App., 217 S.W. 1081, error refused—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. McMichael, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 186, error refused.

Assumptions on signalling street car

Omission to charge that, if decedent signaled car of desire to become passenger, she was entitled to assume that motorman would see signal and control progress of car, was error, and omission to charge that decedent was entitled to assume that car would approach stopping point under control, and that assumption should be considered on question of contributory negligence, was error.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn. 221.

40. Cal.—Ginochio v. City and County of San Francisco, 228 P. 428, 194 Cal. 159—Riley v. Southern Pac. Co., 207 P. 699, 57 Cal.App. 477
Ga.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Freeney, 96 S.E. 575, 22 Ga.App. 457.
Ill.—Little v. Peoria Ry. Co., 215 Ill.App. 385.
Mass.—Gerber v. New York Cent. R.R., 192 N.E. 837, 288 Mass. 318.
Minn.—Van House v. Canadian Northern Ry. Co., 192 N.W. 493, 155 Minn. 57.
Mo.—Vrooman v. Harvey, 197 S.W. 118—Sparks v. Harvey, App., 214 S.W. 249
Or.—Kuniholm v. Portland Electric Power Co., 289 P. 1055, 133 Or. 246
Tex.—San Antonio Public Service Co. v. Fraser, Civ.App., 91 S.W.2d 948.

Attempt to board in narrow space

Where deceased went into narrow and obviously dangerous place in attempt to board a street car and was crushed, instruction that if deceased had full time to board car and attempted to board moving car railroad was not liable held erroneous, and refusing to instruct that deceased was bound to exercise reasonable care and that railroad employees could assume that he would exercise senses held error.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v. Burr, 133 S.E. 776, 145 Va. 338.

Boarding moving car

In action for injuries while attempting to board car, after motorman had slowed down in response to signal given, instruction for defendant company that plaintiff had no right to attempt to board car while in motion held erroneous.—Vrooman v. Harvey, Mo., 197 S.W. 118.

Holding with one hand only

In action by passenger for injuries alleged to have been received in boarding train, contributory negligence instruction should have been given where passenger had used only right hand in gripping railing to steps without also grasping opposite railing with left hand.—Cincinnati, N.O. & P. Ry. Co. v. Duvall, 92 S.W.2d 363, 263 Ky. 387.

41. Cal.—Strong v. Olsen, 241 P. 107, 74 Cal.App. 518.
Conn.—Montambault v. Waterbury & Milldale Tramway Co., 120 A. 145, 98 Conn. 584.
D.C.—Capital Traction Co. v. Copland, 47 App.D.C. 152
Ga.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Ogletree, 134 S.E. 830, 35 Ga.App. 765.
Ky.—Adams v. Hilton, 110 S.W.2d 1088, 270 Ky. 818—Shelton Taxi

ance,[42] as in the case of one alighting from a moving vehicle,[43] or instructions relative to care or negligence of a passenger in an elevator.[44] The instruction should include a proper charge as to the degree of care required of the passenger under the circumstances,[45] his right to rely on the exercise of due care on the part of the carrier,[46] as to his neg-

Co. v. Bowling, 51 S.W.2d 468, 244 Ky. 817.
Mich.—Herter v. City of Detroit, 222 N.W. 774, 245 Mich. 425.
N.J.—Thibodeau v. Hamley, 112 A. 320, 95 N.J.Law 180.
Pa.—Panek v. Scranton Ry. Co., 102 A. 274, 258 Pa. 589.
Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Christian, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 175, error refused.
Wis.—Naus v. Chicago & M. Electric Ry. Co., 201 N.W. 281, 185 Wis. 178.

Assumption of risk while on platform or steps

(1) In passenger's action for injury when thrown from front platform of electric car, requested instruction as to his assumption of risk while standing there was properly refused, where it included risk from motorman's negligent operation of car.—Graff v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 172 P. 603, 178 Cal. 171.

(2) Instruction that passenger assumed ordinary risk incident to riding on street car steps held proper.—Simmons v. Wells, 20 S.W.2d 659, 323 Mo. 882.

Duty to caution driver

In action by taxicab passenger for injuries, where owing to storm, there was considerable danger, and plaintiff realized that driver was not exercising proper caution, and was driving too fast, and had opportunity to warn him, but did not, instructing jury, that if ordinarily prudent person would have cautioned driver, and plaintiff's failure to do so, contributed to accident, he was guilty of contributory negligence and could not recover, was proper.—Garrow v. Seattle Taxicab Co., 238 P. 623, 135 Wash. 630, 45 A.L.R. 293.

Leaving seat

(1) In an action for injuries to a passenger, it is error to refuse an instruction to the effect that, if the plaintiff left his seat on the rear platform of the car and stepped on the running board, while the car was in motion and traveling twenty-five miles an hour, he was guilty of contributory negligence.—Washington Ry. & Electric Co. v. Kramer, 44 App. D.C. 154 b.

(2) Instructions in passenger's action against street railroad, in effect stating that leaving seat while car was moving constituted contributory negligence, held properly denied.—Capital Traction Co. v. Lyon, 24 F.2d 262, 57 App.D.C. 396.

Riding with leg protruding

Certain conduct may be so obviously negligent as to justify a court in so describing it, and hence there was no error in a charge that "a passenger riding in an automobile in the street of a populous community with one leg protruding from one of the doors of the car in such way as to make it liable to come in contact with passing objects is negligent in conduct, and defendant would not be liable if this negligence was a proximate cause of his injury"—Guilfoile v. Smith, 116 A. 237, 97 Conn. 271.

42. D.C.—Capital Traction Co. v. Hoover, 45 App.D.C. 247.
Ga.—Savannah Electric Co. v. Johnson, 103 S.E. 798, 25 Ga.App. 517.
Ill.—See Louden v. Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 206 Ill.App. 87.
Mich.—Kirkpatrick v. Muskegon Traction & Lighting Co., 162 N.W. 99, 195 Mich. 519.
Mo.—Hereford v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 220 S.W. 899—Turner v. Wabash Ry. Co., App., 211 S.W. 101.
Pa.—Baron v. Wilkes-Barre Ry. Co., 71 Pa.Super. 103.
Tex.—Drake v. Northern Texas Traction Co., Civ.App., 197 S.W. 610, error refused—Galveston, H. & S.A. Ry. Co. v. Brassell, Civ.App., 186 S.W. 428, error refused—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis, Civ.App., 185 S.W. 969, error refused.

Knowledge that car was approaching

Instruction that if plaintiff knew that car which struck him was approaching, or in exercise of reasonable observation and care might have known it, he could not recover, was correct.—Laws v. Hammond, W. & E. C. Ry. Co., 128 N.E. 52, 79 Ind.App. 650.

43. U.S.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Douglas, C.C.A.Tenn., 289 F. 325.
Ala.—Van Tinder v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 80 So. 858, 202 Ala. 474.
Ark.—St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Duffey, 133 S.W. 748, 122 Ark. 429.
Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Andrews, 93 S.E. 261, 20 Ga.App. 605.
Ill.—See Stanton v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 205 Ill.App. 385, affirmed 119 N.E. 291, 283 Ill. 256.
Ky.—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Daniel, 251 S.W. 1007, 199 Ky. 817—Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Mollett, 251 S.W. 1005, 199 Ky. 813.
Minn.—Leonczak v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 201 N.W. 551, 161 Minn. 304—Van House v. Canadian Northern Ry. Co., 192 N.W. 493, 155 Minn. 57, 28 A.L.R. 357.
Mo.—Keppler v. Wells, 238 S.W. 425—Rooker v. Deering Southwestern Ry. Co. App., 204 S.W. 556.
Tex.—Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Evans, 193 S.W. 1067, 108 Tex. 356.

44. Cal.—White v. Red Mountain Fruit Co., 199 P. 318, 186 Cal. 335.

45. Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Christian, Civ. App., 191 S.W. 175, error refused.
10 C.J. p. 1162 note 5.

Care as affected by passenger's intoxication

Where street railroad defended action, for death of prospective passenger who lost balance on car step and fell backward to pavement, on ground that he was intoxicated, conventional definition of ordinary care, as used in contributory negligence instruction, as that degree of care that person of ordinary prudence would use under same or similar circumstances held objectionable as not including element of intoxication.—San Antonio Public Service Co. v. Fraser, Tex.Civ.App., 91 S.W.2d 948.

"Ordinary" and "high" degrees of care

In street car passenger's personal injury action against street car company, court having defined term "ordinary care" as applied to passenger was required to define term "high degree of care" as applied to company.—Dallas Ry. & Terminal Co. v. Travis, 78 S.W.2d 941, 125 Tex. 11, affirming, Civ.App., 46 S.W.2d 743.

Charge held sufficient

Charge that, if passenger could have anticipated that protruding arm out of window would result in its breaking, he was guilty of contributory negligence, held equivalent to instruction that standard of care chargeable to him was that of ordinarily prudent man.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Ogletree, 134 S.E. 830, 35 Ga.App. 765.

46. Ind.—Bird Transfer Co. v. Krug, 65 N.E. 309, 30 Ind.App. 602.

Charge relieving passenger of duty of self-care

A charge, in a passenger's action for injuries alleged to have been received when he stepped on a banana peel on the car sill and fell to the platform, that the passenger could rely on the carrier keeping its floor, doorsill, and platform free and clear of banana peeling and other slippery substance is erroneous, as relieving the passenger from any obligation to watch out for his own safety.—Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Yantis, Tex. Civ.App., 185 S.W. 969, error refused.

Instruction sufficient

In action by passenger for inju-ligence being the proximate cause of his injuries,[17] as to comparative negligence, where such doctrine prevails;[48] and where the facts make the doctrine of the last clear chance or humanitarian rule applicable, but not otherwise, the court should give proper instructions covering such doctrine.[49]

b. Conformity to Pleadings and Issues

Instructions relative to a passenger's contributory negligence should be given only where such issue has been properly raised, and should conform to the pleadings and issues.

Where defendant pleads contributory negligence on the part of plaintiff, and there is evidence tending to show it, a charge submitting the question to the jury may and should be given[50] Where, however, the issue of contributory negligence is not raised by either the pleadings or the evidence, the court need not and should not instruct the jury on that question,[51] and, where the evidence is such that contributory negligence must be inferred therefrom, the court may and should draw the inference and instruct the jury accordingly.[52] The court, in submitting the issue of contributory negligence, should confine the charge strictly to the acts pleaded and relied on as evidence;[53] and hence an in-ries from collision between street car and truck, an instruction as to passenger's right to rely on employees exercising high degree of care, although involved and lacking clearness, held not prejudicial error. —Naus v. Chicago & M. Electric Ry. Co., 201 N.W. 281, 185 Wis. 178.

47. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Morgan, 59 So. 432, 178 Ala. 590.
10 C.J. p 1162 note 7.

Construction and propriety of instructions as to proximate cause generally

Cal.—Graff v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 172 P. 603, 178 Cal. 171.
Kan.—Hopson v. Union Traction Co., 167 P. 1059, 101 Kan. 499.
N.C.—Dunn v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 734, 174 N.C 254
Tex.—Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Evans, 193 S.W. 1067, 108 Tex. 356.
Wash.—Calhoun v. Portland Ry, Light & Power Co, 178 P. 805, 105 Wash. 593.

Riding on bumper as condition and not cause of injury

Where a passenger told by his conductor to take the car ahead was crushed by such car and the one following because of the release of the brakes on the front car, which thereupon backed into the rear car, an instruction that, if plaintiff was attempting to ride on the bumper, he was not in the exercise of due care, held erroneous, plaintiff's stand on the bumper being a condition, and not the proximate cause of the injury.—Montambault v. Waterbury & Milldale Tramway Co., 120 A. 145, 98 Conn. 584.

48. Ga.—Southern R. Co. v. Gore, 58 S.E. 180, 128 Ga. 627.
Tex.—Missouri, etc, R Co. v. Cannady, 82 S.W. 1069, 36 Tex.Civ.App. 646.
10 C.J. p 1163 note 8.

49. U.S.—Houston v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co, C.C.A.N.J., 274 F. 599.
Ark.—Ft Smith Light & Traction Co. v. Phillips, 206 S.W. 453, 136 Ark 310.
Cal.—Hellman v. Los Angeles Ry Corporation, 27 P.2d 946, 135 Cal. App 627, rehearing denied 28 P.2d 384, 135 Cal.App 627.
Conn.—Sacks v. Connecticut Co., 146 A. 494, 109 Conn 221.
Md.—United Rys. & Electric Co. of Baltimore v Perkins, 136 A 50, 152 Md. 105.
Mo.—Gott v. Kansas City Rys. Co, 222 S.W. 827—Higgins v. Terminal R Ass'n of St. Louis, App., 97 S.W.2d 892—Edmondson v. Missouri Pac. R Co, App, 8 S.W.2d 103—Flynn v. Kansas City Rys. Co., App., 226 S.W. 974.
N.H.—Giguere v. Boston & M. R. R., 167 A 561, 86 N.H 294.
Va.—Virginia Ry. & Power Co. v Burr, 133 S.E. 776, 145 Va. 338—Gordon v. Director General of Railroads, 104 S.E. 796, 128 Va 426.

As to burden of care on carrier

In an action against a railroad for personal injuries by being struck on the station platform by an incoming train instructions on the doctrine of the last clear chance held not erroneous as imposing on defendant a greater burden than that of using ordinary care to avoid injuring plaintiff after the discovery of his peril.—Missouri, K. & T Ry. Co. v. Smith, 223 P. 373, 97 Okl 152.

Sufficiency of evidence to warrant instruction

In an action for injuries to a street car passenger, struck by the rear fender as the car rounded a curve after the passenger alighted, evidence held sufficient to warrant an instruction on the doctrine of last clear chance—Virginia Trust Co v. Raymond, 91 S.E. 613, 120 Va. 674.

50. Ill.—See Louden v. Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 206 Ill App. 87.
Kan.—Hunter v. Joplin & P Ry. Co., 197 P. 1092, 109 Kan. 169—Binder v. Union Pac. R. Co., 194 P. 314, 108 Kan. 47.
10 C.J. p 1165 note 19.

Frozen feet

In an action by a passenger for damages for frozen feet, where carrier set up failure of plaintiff to complain or notify the conductor that the car was cold, as constituting contributory negligence, it was error to refuse to instruct respecting plaintiff's duty in such respect.—Zoccolillo v Oregon Short Line R Co., 177 P. 201, 53 Utah 39.

Instructions construed as not excluding contributory negligence

Instructions in action by passenger who fell off platform of street car held not to exclude contributory negligence in attempting to board car while in motion.—Drury v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 282 P. 525, 102 Cal App. 58.

51. Mass.—Gerber v. New York Cent. R. R., 192 N.E. 837, 288 Mass. 318.
Mo.—Scott v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 229 S.W. 178.
Ohio.—James v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 146 N.E. 211, 111 Ohio St. 710.
Pa.—Patterson v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 185 A 283, 322 Pa. 125.
10 C.J. p 1165 note 20.

Standing in taxi

In an action for injuries to a passenger in a taxicab, where the only evidence of alleged contributory negligence in standing up in the cab while intoxicated, as a result of which he staggered through a glass partition, was the testimony of driver that a companion of plaintiff made a statement in the latter's presence that if he had been seated he would not have gone through the glass, defendant was not entitled to have the jury instructed on the question. —Ramlo v. 500 Taxicab Co., 206 P. 20, 119 Wash 379.

Struck by mail sack

Evidence, in action for injuries to one waiting on station platform to board train when struck by mail sack thrown therefrom, held not to warrant instruction on contributory negligence.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Angus, 65 S.W.2d 543, 188 Ark. 300.

52. Md.—Jackson v. Hines, 113 A. 129, 137 Md. 621.

53. Mo.—Keppler v. Wells, 238 S.W. 425.
10 C.J. p 1165 note 21.

struction is erroneous which is not applicable to the pleadings and the evidence,[54] as where it ignores or omits to charge on a material matter in issue,[55] or on a material part of the evidence,[56] although where the issue is raised by the evidence, an instruction thereon may be proper even though it has not been raised by the pleadings.[57]

c. As to Presumptions and Burden of Proof

The court should instruct the jury properly as respects presumptions affecting the issue of a passenger's contributory negligence and relative to the burden of proof on such question.

The court should duly instruct the jury relative to presumptions affecting the issue of a passenger's contributory negligence,[58] and as to the burden of proof.[59] In jurisdictions where the burden is on plaintiff to negative contributory negligence, an instruction to this effect should be given;[60] but in jurisdictions which require defendant to show con-

Alighting passenger

In action for injuries to a passenger received while alighting, the charge on contributory negligence should be confined to such acts or omissions as are alleged and supported by evidence.—Payne v. Kindel, Tex.Civ.App., 239 S.W. 1011.

Cold waiting room

Separate charge as to husband's contributory negligence held not warranted in action against railroad for failure to heat waiting room.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, Tex. Civ.App., 290 S.W. 846.

Standing or moving car

Instruction that plaintiff was not contributorily negligent in going on street car steps preparatory to boarding car held improperly given as submitting plaintiff's contributory negligence even if she tried to board moving street car, although pleadings were limited to her boarding standing car.—Hellman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 27 P.2d 946, 135 Cal.App. 627, rehearing denied 28 P.2d 334, 135 Cal.App. 627.

Instructions sufficiently supported by pleading and evidence

(1) Generally.

Ga.—Georgia Power Co. v. Holmes, 165 S.E. 284, 175 Ga. 487, reversing Holmes v. Georgia Power Co., 162 S.E. 403, 44 Ga.App. 588, and conformed to 165 S.E. 918, 45 Ga.App. 826.

Ind.—Laws v. Hammond, W. & E. C. Ry. Co., 128 N.E. 52, 79 Ind.App. 650.

Mo.—Sugarwater v. Fleming, 293 S.W. 111, 316 Mo. 742.

N.J.—Ploeser v. Central R. Co. of New Jersey, 105 A. 228, 92 N.J.Law 490.

(2) Humanitarian doctrine.

Ark.—Reed v. Baldwin, 92 S.W.2d 392, 192 Ark. 491.

Mo.—Schimmelpfenning v. Wells, 24 S.W.2d 154.—Amos v. Fleming, 285 S.W. 134, 221 Mo.App. 559.

10 C.J. p 1165 note 21 [a].

54. Cal.—Gainer v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 208 P. 1013, 58 Cal.App. 459.
Ga.—Hill v. Chattanooga Ry. & Light Co., 93 S.E. 1027, 21 Ga.App. 104.
Ill.—See Louden v. Terminal R. Ass'n of St. Louis, 206 Ill.App. 87.
Ky.—Payne v. Simmons, 255 S.W. 863, 201 Ky. 33, 33 A.L.R. 814.
Wash.—Johnson v. City of Seattle, 250 P. 409, 141 Wash. 385.
10 C.J. p 1166 note 22.

Assumption of risk

In action for injuries sustained by plaintiff on street car step not based on ordinary movement of car, instruction on assumption of risk held properly refused.—Amos v. Fleming, 285 S.W. 134, 221 Mo.App. 559.

55. Mass.—Krock v. Boston El. R. Co., 101 N.E. 968, 214 Mass. 398.
10 C.J. p 1166 note 23.

56. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Shaw, 125 S.W. 654, 94 Ark. 45, 140 Am.S.R. 98.
10 C.J. p 1167 note 24.

57. Ohio.—Rickabaugh v. Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co., 9 N.E.2d 900, 55 Ohio App. 431.

Alighting by way of known icy step

In passenger's action for injuries received in alighting from street car, charge on issue whether passenger was contributorily negligent in descending from car by way of known icy step was not error, where issue arose from evidence, notwithstanding it was not raised by the pleading.—Rickabaugh v. Youngstown Municipal Ry. Co., 9 N.E.2d 900, 55 Ohio App. 431.

58. Ga.—Hill v. Chattanooga Ry. & Light Co., 93 S.E. 1027, 21 Ga.App. 104.
Mo.—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 3 S.W.2d 371, 319 Mo. 233.
Tex.—Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Rooks, Com.App., 292 S.W. 536, affirming, Civ.App., 283 S.W. 622, and rehearing denied, Com.App., 293 S.W. 554.—Drake v. Northern Texas Traction Co., Civ.App., 197 S.W. 610 error refused.
Wash.—Alstead v. Kapper, 236 P. 799, 135 Wash. 21.

Assumption of risk

In action against street car company for injuries sustained by passenger on car which collided with automobile, refusal to instruct that passenger was presumed to have taken upon himself risks incident to traveling while car was being carefully operated held error where not substantially covered by any other instruction.—Koon v. Monongahela West Penn Public Service Co., W.Va., 192 S.E. 332.

Riding on platform

In passenger's action for injury, instruction that as matter of law, notwithstanding his place of added peril on front platform legal presumption of negligence arose against carrier from fact of injury was erroneous.—Graff v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 172 P. 603, 178 Cal. 171.

Change of presumption

The presumption established by Gen.L. c 231 § 85, that a person injured or killed was in the exercise of due care, etc., disappears when evidence is introduced showing the facts bearing on the question of care, and court erred, in passenger's action for injuries, in charging that, unless defendant satisfied them that plaintiff was not exercising due care, "then the presumption remains with her."—Bagnell v. Boston Elevated Ry. Co., 142 N.E. 63, 247 Mass. 235.

59. Ga.—Rome Ry. & Light Co. v. King, 126 S.E. 294, 33 Ga.App. 383.

Proper instruction

In an action for injuries to a passenger when a step broke, defendant's granted prayer that the burden was on plaintiff to establish by the weight of evidence that his injuries were caused by defendant's negligence, etc., properly submitted the issue of contributory negligence.—Hines v. Watkins, 112 A. 299, 137 Md. 211.

Improper instruction

Instruction that railroad must prove passenger's contributory negligence by preponderance of evidence held erroneous as limiting source from which evidence must come.—Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Stephens, 157 N.E. 58, 86 Ind.App. 251.

Degree of passenger's intoxication

Instruction that defendant had the burden of proving that degree of plaintiff's intoxication was the cause of injury was erroneous.—Lewis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 3 S.W.2d 371, 319 Mo. 233.

60. Iowa.—Hutchens v. Cedar Rapids, etc., R. Co., 103 N.W. 779, 128 Iowa 279.

tributory negligence on the part of plaintiff, an instruction to this effect is proper,[61] and a charge which in effect instructs the jury that the burden is on plaintiff to prove want of contributory negligence is erroneous.[62] Where, however, the issue of contributory negligence is raised by plaintiff's own evidence, it has been held error to instruct that the burden of proving contributory negligence is on defendant.[63]

§ 805. Verdict and Findings

General rules control the verdict and findings in actions involving the contributory negligence of a passenger.

General rules apply to the verdict and findings relative to the contributory negligence of a passenger.[64] The court may refuse to submit for special findings questions which cannot control or affect the general verdict.[65] In the absence of statute no particular form is required in a submission of a special interrogatory as to contributory negligence; it is sufficient if it substantially presents the issue.[66] Where the special findings can be reconciled with the general verdict, the latter will control and judgment must be entered accordingly;[67] but if the special findings are in irreconcilable conflict with the general verdict, they will control such verdict and judgment must be entered on them notwithstanding the general verdict.[68] In order to support a judgment thereon the findings must not be inconsistent.[69] A general verdict or finding must be supported by the weight of the evidence; otherwise it may be set aside,[70] or a judgment thereon reversed,[71] and a new trial granted.[72]

J. EJECTION OF PASSENGERS AND INTRUDERS

§ 806. Right to Eject and Grounds Therefor in General

A person rightfully on a carrier's vehicle as a passenger may not be ejected without good cause.

While a person who is rightfully on a carrier's vehicle may not be lawfully ejected without good cause,[73] yet, as will appear in §§ 808–829 infra, a carrier may properly eject a person from its vehicle for various reasons. Even when lawful, however, the ejection must be in a proper manner, see infra §§ 822–824, and at a proper time and place, see infra § 821.

61. Cal.—Hellman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 27 P.2d 946, 135 Cal.App. 627, rehearing denied 28 P.2d 384, 135 Cal.App. 627.
Tex.—Smith v. Dallas Ry. Co., Civ. App., 8 S.W.2d 548, error dismissed —Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Rooks, Civ.App., 283 S.W. 622, affirmed, Com.App., 292 S.W. 536, rehearing denied 293 S.W. 554
10 C.J. p 1167 note 31

62. Cal.—Riley v. Southern Pac. Co., 207 P. 699, 57 Cal.App. 477.
10 C.J. p 1167 note 32.

63. Md.—United R., etc., Co. v. Riley, 71 A. 970, 109 Md. 327.
10 C.J. p 1167 note 33.

64. Ind.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Miller, 37 N.E. 343, 141 Ind. 533
Tex.—Darden v. Southern Tract. Co., Civ.App., 172 S.W. 200—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Gray, Civ.App., 71 S.W. 316.
10 C.J. p 1167 note 34.

Findings as to passenger's negligence requiring judgment for carrier

In an action by plaintiff who was injured in jumping from a moving train which he had boarded for the purpose of assisting passengers, special findings showing that he jumped from the train held to necessitate judgment for defendant showing plaintiff's contributory negligence—Cannon v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 167 P. 1050, 101 Kan. 363, L.R.A. 1918A 559.

Construction of finding, where passenger stood on platform

In an action for injuries to a passenger from the shock of a collision while standing on the platform of a moving train, contrary to Revisal 1905 § 2628, and a posted rule of the carrier a finding of the jury that plaintiff was not injured by the negligence of defendant held equivalent to a finding that defendant's negligence in causing the collision was not the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury.—Bane v. Norfolk & S. R. Co., 97 S.E. 11, 176 N.C. 247, 2 A.L.R. 90.

Verdict justified

In action against taxicab company for conscious suffering of passenger who was fatally injured when taxicab driver attempted to pass between bus and automobile, verdict for plaintiff was justified under allegation that negligence of company's servant resulted in pain and suffering of passenger—Finnegan v. Checker Taxi Co., Mass., 14 N.E.2d 127.

65. Mich.—Dykstra v. Grand Rapids, etc., R. Co., 130 N.W. 320, 165 Mich. 13.
10 C.J. p 1168 note 35.

66. Wis.—Ward v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 78 N.W. 442, 102 Wis. 215.

67. Ind.—Indiana R. Co. v. Maurer, 66 N.E. 156, 160 Ind. 25—Southern R. Co. v. Roach, 78 N.E. 201, 38 Ind.App. 211.

68. Ky.—Adams v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 32 Ky. 603, 6 Ky.L. 686.

69. Tex.—St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gibson, Civ.App., 211 S.W. 263
10 C.J. p 1168 note 39.

Findings not inconsistent

(1) Findings held not affirmatively to show contributory negligence in crossing track to get on right side to board so as to be inconsistent with general verdict for plaintiff.—Indiana Union Traction Co. v. Hiatt, 114 N.E. 478, 65 Ind.App. 233, rehearing denied 115 N.E. 101, 65 Ind.App. 233.

(2) Affirmative findings in answer to questions whether passenger's failure to use ordinary care contributed to cause the accident when he fell down basement stairway held merely to establish that passenger's negligence was a contributing cause, and not that it was a proximate cause.—Crow v. Southwestern Transp. Co., Tex.Civ.App., 73 S.W.2d 607, error refused

70. N.Y.—Wolf v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 81 N.Y.S. 257, 82 App.Div. 629
Ohio.—Cincinnati, etc., Electric R. Co. v. Lohe, 27 Ohio Cir.Ct. 138.
10 C.J. p 1168 note 40.

71. N.Y.—Maloney v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 88 N.Y.S. 638, 95 App. Div. 393—Clancy v. Yonkers R. Co., 84 N.Y.S. 789, 88 App.Div. 612.

72. Mich.—Crowe v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 106 N.W. 395, 142 Mich. 692.

73. Iowa.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co., 180 N.W. 738, 190 Iowa 693.
10 C.J. p 727 note 81.

Ejection from palace and sleeping cars is considered in § 913 infra.

§ 807. Statutory Regulations

Statutory regulations and provisions with respect to the ejection of passengers and intruders are treated in the sections to the subject matter of which they relate infra §§ 808–829.

§ 808. Persons Objectionable as Passengers

A carrier not only has the right, but may have the duty, to eject a person who is objectionable, offensive, dangerous, or annoying, or who may reasonably be expected to become so, even though such person has paid his fare or another passenger has promised to look after him.

It is not only the right of a carrier to eject from the vehicle a person who is objectionable, offensive, dangerous, or annoying to other passengers,[74] or who so conducts himself, even without any overt act of disturbance, as reasonably to warrant the inference that he may become a source of annoyance,[75] but under certain circumstances it may become the duty of the carrier to eject such a person,[76] as where his conduct or condition is such as to cause serious annoyance, discomfort, or danger to other passengers.[77] The fact that the passenger has paid his fare,[78] or that another passenger has promised to look after him,[79] does not affect the right or duty.

The same right of control or ejection may be exercised with reference to the station or office of the carrier.[80]

Persons who may be objectionable include an intoxicated passenger who is causing, or threatening to cause, annoyance, danger, or discomfort to other passengers;[81] a person who is sick and in a helpless

74. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky. 818.
N.J.—Spalt v. Eaton, 192 A. 576, 118 N.J.Law 327—Frazier v. Public Service Ry. Co., 116 A. 769, 97 N.J. Law 37.
Pa.—Gerlach v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 94 Pa.Super. 121.
10 C.J. p 727 note 82, p 729 note 92.

Corpus Juris cited
Mo.—Parris v. Deering Southwestern Ry. Co., 208 S.W. 97, 98, 203 Mo.App. 182.

Rude and profane conduct
Pa.—Gerlach v Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 94 Pa Super. 121.

Violent and insulting conduct
N.J.—Frazier v. Public Service Ry. Co, 116 A. 769, 97 N.J.Law 37.

Under statutes
(1) In Alabama under a statute providing that conductors of trains may eject passengers when disorderly, or when using profane, vulgar, or obscene language, it is immaterial to the right of a conductor to eject a passenger for using obscene language whether his conduct is in fact offensive to other passengers.—Nashville, etc, R. Co., v. Moore, 41 So. 984, 148 Ala. 63.

(2) In Kentucky under the express provisions of a statute it is the duty of the conductor to put off a passenger who shall, in the hearing of persons or other passengers and to their annoyance, utter obscene or profane language, or behave in a boisterous or riotous manner, and the conductor need not wait until he reaches the next station.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Setser, 128 S. W. 341, 138 Ky 476.

(3) In West Virginia the right of ejection authorized by a statute giving officers of common carriers the right to eject disorderly persons from trains, is not dependent on the personal safety, or reasonable comfort or convenience of other passengers.—Wilhelm v. Parkersburg, etc, R. Co, 82 S.E. 1089, 74 W.Va 678.

Assistance of other passengers
The conductor may call to his aid, in ejecting an offender, such passengers as are willing to assist him—Spalt v. Eaton, 192 A. 576, 118 N.J Law 327.
What persons may be refused transportation see supra § 538.

75. N.J.—Spalt v. Eaton, supra.
10 C.J. p 728 note 88, p 729 note 92.

Female of notorious reputation
A railroad company may rightfully exclude from the women's car a female passenger whose reputation is so notoriously bad as to furnish reasonable grounds to believe that her conduct will be offensive, or whose demeanor at the time is annoying to other passengers; but she cannot be excluded for unchastity not affecting her conduct nor furnishing reasonable grounds to believe that she will misbehave in the car, when her conduct at the time is ladylike and unexceptionable—Brown v. Memphis & C R. Co, C.C Tenn., 7 F. 51.

76. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky 818.
Mo.—Liljegren v. United Rys. of St. Louis, App., 227 S.W. 925
N.J.—Falzarano v. Delaware, L & W. R. Co, 194 A. 75, 119 N.J Law 76—Spalt v. Eaton, 192 A 576, 118 N.J.Law 327—Frazier v. Public Service Ry. Co., 116 A. 769, 97 N J Law 37.

77. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky 818
Mo.—Liljegren v United Rys. of St Louis, App., 227 S.W. 925.
N.J.—Falzarano v. Delaware, L. & W. R Co, 194 A. 75, 119 N.J.Law 76.
10 C.J. p 729 notes 89, 92.
Protection against injuries from fellow passengers, see supra § 695.

Likelihood of staging holdup
Conductor and other members of train crew had right and duty to eject passenger "when they became apprehensive that he was liable to stage a holdup and had a gun."—Falzarano v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co., 194 A. 75, 79, 119 N.J Law 76.

78. Ind.—Indianapolis Tract., etc., Co v. Lockman, 96 N.E. 970, 49 Ind.App. 143.
Mo.—Leonard v. St Louis Transit Co., 91 S.W. 452, 115 Mo App. 349.
10 C.J p 728 note 85, p 729 note 96.

79. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Setser, 128 S.W. 341, 138 Ky. 476.

80. Grounds for ejection
The traveling public are not bound to govern their behavior by the whims of an obstinate station keeper, or to leave the room whenever he thinks proper to drive them out; they are invited by the railroad company and are entitled to remain there so long as they have occasion so to do, and commit no offense against the good order of the place and the reasonable regulations made to govern it.—People v McKay, 9 N. W 486, 46 Mich 439, 41 Am.R. 169—10 C.J p 728 note 87.

81. Mo.—Liljegren v. United Rys. Co. of St Louis, App, 227 S.W. 925.
N.J.—Spalt v. Eaton, 192 A. 576, 118 N.J Law 327.
10 C.J. p 729 note 92.

Corpus Juris is quoted as possibly the best statement of the law on this subject in Abernathy v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., Mo App, 217 S.W. 568, 570.

condition,[82] or who has a contagious disease;[83] an insane person;[84] one who annoys and disturbs other passengers by the use of unseemly or insulting language;[85] one who is unruly or boisterous, or interferes with the carrier's business,[86] and one who places himself in such a position of danger that the carrier is unwilling to assume the duty of carrying him in such position.[87] On the other hand, no regulation of the carrier will justify the ejection of a passenger on account of color or race by its employee.[88]

§ 809. Intruders and Trespassers in General

A carrier has the right and duty to eject a trespasser, but may not inflict injury upon him because of his trespassing.

Where a person comes upon a railroad train or car as a trespasser, the railroad company has the right[89] and duty[90] to eject him therefrom. However, the fact that a person is a trespasser on a train does not forfeit him his legal rights;[91] a trespasser is not to be regarded as an outlaw, and a carrier has no right to inflict injury upon him because of his trespassing.[92]

Particular matters relating to the ejection of intruders and trespassers are considered in connection with the ejection of passengers under the appropriate headings infra §§ 810-854.

§ 810. Failure or Refusal to Pay Fare or Produce Ticket

a. In general

b. Fare of child

Corpus Juris cited

Mo.—Koenig v. St. Louis Public Service Co., App., 45 S.W.2d 896, 898.

Slight intoxication early in a trip does not justify ejection later on where there is no misconduct on the part of the ejected person.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Moore, 205 S.W. 594, 181 Ky. 550.

Degree and effect of intoxication; rule limited

(1) "The fact that an individual may have drunk to excess will not, in every case, justify his ejection from a public conveyance. It is rather the degree of intoxication, and its effect upon the individual, and the fact that, by reason of the intoxication he is dangerous or annoying to the other passengers, that gives the right and imposes the duty of expulsion."

Mo.—Abernathy v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., App., 217 S.W. 568, 570.

N.Y.—Putnam v. Broadway, etc., R. Co., 55 N.Y. 108, 114, 14 Am.R. 190.

(2) But a person need not be so much under the influence of liquor as to render him mentally and physically incapable of taking care of himself to warrant his ejection.

Ky.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Crank, 108 S.W. 276, 128 Ky. 329, 32 Ky.L. 1202, 16 L.R.A.,N.S., 197.

Miss.—Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Davidson, 63 So. 340, 106 Miss. 108.

Vomiting

It is the duty of a conductor of a street car to remove at once an intoxicated passenger who is vomiting to the discomfort of other passengers

Ky.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Crank, 108 S.W. 276, 128 Ky. 329, 32 Ky.L. 1202, 16 L.R.A.,N.S., 197.

Mass.—Cobb v. Boston Electric R. Co., 60 N.E. 476, 179 Mass. 212.

82. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky. 818.

83. U.S.—Paddock v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., C.C.Mo., 37 F. 841, 4 L.R.A. 231.

84. Ala.—Hines v. Miniard, 86 So. 23, 204 Ala. 514, 12 A.L.R. 238.

An unattended insane person may be removed, if necessary to the reasonable safety and comfort of other passengers, at the first station where he may be properly cared for.—Hines v. Miniard, 86 So. 23, 204 Ala. 514, 12 A.L.R. 238.

85. N.J.—Spalt v. Eaton, 192 A. 576, 118 N.J.Law 327.

10 C.J. p 727 note 83, p 729 note 93.

Loudness of tone

Objectionable language, in order to constitute ground for ejection, must be used in a tone sufficiently loud to annoy and disturb other passengers.—Chicago City R. Co. v. Pelletier, 24 N.E. 770, 134 Ill. 120.

86. Neb.—Sorenson v. Lincoln Tract. Co., 142 N.W. 702, 94 Neb. 91.

10 C.J. p 728 note 84, p 729 note 94.

Particular acts held grounds for ejection

(1) Willful interference with the apparatus of the car, and disorderly conduct.—Dobbins v. Little Rock R., etc., Co., 95 S.W. 794, 79 Ark. 85, 9 Ann.Cas. 84

(2) Attempting to obtain money or property from any person by any game or device in violation of statute.—Com. v. Marcum, 132 S.W. 215, 135 Ky. 1, 24 L.R.A.,N.S., 1194.

Particular acts held not grounds for ejection

(1) One who protests with the conductor against what he considers unnecessary roughness in handling an intoxicated person does not thereby subject himself to ejection.—Weber v. Brooklyn, etc., R. Co., 62 N.Y.S. 1, 47 App.Div. 306.

(2) The vomiting of a sick person, not under the influence of liquor, held not to subject him to ejection within the meaning of a statute requiring ejection of a person who annoys other passengers.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Crank, 108 S.W. 276, 32 Ky.L. 1202.

87. Mo.—Parks v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 77 S.W. 70, 178 Mo. 108, 101 Am.S.R. 425.

88. Pa.—Derry v. Lowry, 6 Phila. 30.

89. Ala.—Ashworth v. Alabama, etc., R. Co., 99 So. 191, 211 Ala. 20.

10 C.J. p 731 note 22—52 C.J. p 637 note 32.

Failure to produce ticket or pay fare as trespassing see infra § 810 a.

Person boarding train at unauthorized place

Common carriers by rail need not receive passengers at place not station, junction, or transfer point, where it stops at crossing with another railroad, and one who gets on at such place contrary to orders of trainmen may be ejected.—Carpenter v. Minneapolis, St. P., R. & D. Electric Traction Co., 157 N.W. 902, 133 Minn. 46.

Boarding car by force

A person not permitted to board a car because of certain regulations with respect to urban traffic may be ejected if he attempts to do so by force.—Campbell v. Milwaukee Electric Ry. & Light Co., 170 N.W. 937, 169 Wis. 171, 6 A.L.R. 628.

90. Mo.—Swift v. St. Louis-San Francisco R. Co., App., 15 S.W.2d 964.

91. Ohio.—Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Boyer, 18 Ohio Cir.Ct. 327, 10 Ohio Cir.Dec. 199.

92. Kan.—Lampkin v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 44 P.2d 210, 141 Kan. 763.

Liability for wrongful ejection see infra §§ 828, 829

Manner of ejection see infra §§ 822-824.

c. Passenger carried past or short of destination
d. Time or opportunity to produce ticket or pay fare
e. Offer, tender, or payment of cash fare
f. Payment of back fare
g. When failure or refusal is justified
h. Failure to procure ticket or permit for freight train

a. In General

A passenger who fails or refuses, on demand, to present a proper ticket or other evidence of right to transportation, or to pay fare, may be ejected, even though he may have purchased a ticket and lost it; and it has been held, with some dissent, immaterial that the conductor saw the ticket or knew of its purchase.

A person traveling as a passenger on a carrier's vehicle may be ejected for his failure or refusal, on demand to present or produce a proper ticket, or other evidence of his right to transportation, or to pay the required fare,[93] such persons being declared by some authorities to become trespassers;[94] and statutes in effect so prescribing have been applied or construed in several cases.[95] In other words, it is a reasonable regulation of a carrier that the passenger not only shall have a ticket or other evidence of his right to transportation, but also shall present it when required by the conductor, or surrender it on demand, and for a refusal so to do he may be ejected.[96]

One who changes cars and upon entering the second car fails or refuses to pay a second fare or present a transfer[97] which is good on its

93. Ark.—Ft. Smith & Van Buren Dist. v. Kidd, 241 S.W. 374, 153 Ark. 489.
Ill.—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 88.
Kan.—Lampkin v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 44 P.2d 210, 141 Kan. 763.
La.—Lichtenstein v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 103 So. 769, 158 La. 284.
Miss.—Gulf, M. & N. R. Co. v. Mason, 163 So. 825, 174 Miss. 43.
Mo.—Boettler v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 300 S.W. 528—Green v. United Rys. Co of St. Louis, 206 S.W. 237, 200 Mo.App. 303.
Pa.—Anderson v. Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist. 41.
S.C.—Ashe v. Southern Ry. Co., 89 S.E. 482, 104 S.C. 414.
Tenn.—Howell v. Nashville Interurban Ry., 4 Tenn.App. 304.
Tex.—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Edwards, Civ.App., 232 S.W. 356—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386.
10 C.J. p 731 note 22, p 743 note 8 [c].

Corpus Juris quoted

Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hamby, 93 So. 698, 699, 208 Ala. 75.

Presentation of a foreign token, that is, a token issued by a company other than the one on whose car the person presenting it was riding, is not a proper payment of fare—Howell v. Nashville Interurban Ry., 4 Tenn.App. 304.

Canadian coin

One who refuses to pay fare except with a Canadian coin may not recover damages for his ejection—Lichtenstein v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 103 So. 769, 158 La. 284.

A check given by a conductor as evidence of a party's right to passage must be produced for a succeeding conductor.

Vt.—Jerome v. Smith, 48 Vt. 230, 21 Am.R. 125.
W.Va.—Price v. Chesapeake, etc., R. Co., 33 S.E. 255, 46 W.Va. 538.

A person who was refused a return ticket, upon arriving at his destination, may be ejected for attempting to make the return trip without a ticket, even though he had a contract entitling him to a return ticket—Wilt v. Wabash R. Co., 21 Ohio Cir. Ct. 579, 11 Ohio Cir.Dec. 589.

Baggage check

(1) The fact that a passenger has a baggage check does not prevent his being ejected from a train on his refusal to present a ticket or to pay fare.
Idaho.—Tarr v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 93 P. 957, 14 Idaho 192, 125 Am.S.R. 151.
Mo.—Bolles v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., 115 S.W. 459, 134 Mo.App. 696.
Tex.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, 84 S.W. 852, 38 Tex.Civ.App. 4.

(2) But under a statute so providing it has been held that a passenger need not surrender his ticket or pay the fare until his baggage check has been delivered up to him or he has reached the station to which the baggage was to be checked.—Tarr v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., supra.

94. Kan.—Lampkin v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 44 P.2d 210, 141 Kan. 763.
Mich.—Willett v. King, 168 N.W. 986, 203 Mich. 295.
10 C.J. p 731 note 22.
Ejection of trespassers generally see supra § 809.

95. Cal.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 193 P. 130, 184 Cal. 202.
10 C.J. p 732 note 23.

96. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hamby, 93 So. 698, 700, 208 Ala. 75, quoting Corpus Juris.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Wynne, 141 S.E. 829, 149 Va. 882.
10 C.J. p 732 note 24.
Exhibition and surrender of tickets generally see supra § 609.

Refusal to present mileage book with exchange ticket, as required by the terms of the mileage book, makes one liable to ejection—Mason v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 75 S.E. 25, 159 N.C. 183, Ann.Cas 1914B 911.

97. Wash.—Kirk v. Seattle Electric Co., 108 P. 604, 58 Wash. 283, 31 L.R.A.,N.S., 991.
10 C.J. p 733 note 29.

Conversely, a passenger cannot be ejected for refusal to pay fare where he presents a transfer entitling him to transportation.
Ill.—Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. Brethauer, 125 Ill.App. 204, affirmed 79 N.E. 287, 223 Ill. 521, 114 Am.S.R. 352.
Mo.—Carmody v. St. Louis Transit Co., 99 S.W. 495, 122 Mo.App. 338.

Conductor's knowledge of payment of fare

(1) A conductor may eject a passenger for violation of a company rule that one transferring from one line to another must present a transfer or pay fare on the second line, even though the conductor of the first line shouted to the former that the party in question had paid the first fare and should be passed.—Crowley v. Fitchburg, etc. R. Co., 70 N.E. 56, 185 Mass. 279

(2) But where, owing to his inability to procure a ticket before starting, a passenger pays cash fare to a conductor who fails to give him a receipt, it has been held that he may not be ejected by the conductor of another train to which it was necessary for him to transfer for refusing to pay a second time, where the second conductor had actual knowledge of the payment to the first conductor.—Homiston v.

face[98] may be ejected, unless his failure to have a valid transfer check is due to fault of some employee of carrier having authority in such matters.[99]

The fact that a passenger has actually purchased a ticket, which he is unable to produce upon demand, does not relieve him of the consequences of failure to do so.[1] Thus, where his ticket has been lost or misplaced, a passenger may be ejected if he refuses to pay fare;[2] and, although there is authority to the contrary,[3] it has been held immaterial that the conductor of the train had seen the ticket or had knowledge of its purchase.[4]

Presenting detached coupon. Where, under a rule of the carrier, a passenger is not entitled to transportation upon presenting a detached coupon, he may be ejected if he presents such a coupon and refuses to pay fare,[5] especially if he also refuses to exhibit the book to the conductor.[6]

b. Fare of Child

Under most authorities, if a child's custodian fails to pay its fare, both may be ejected, even though the custodian has paid or tendered his own fare; under others, a custodian paying or tendering his own fare may not be ejected, even though the child is.

Under most authorities, failure or refusal to pay the fare required for a young child will justify the ejection of both the child and the accompanying parent or other custodian,[7] even though the fare of the person in whose custody the child is has been paid or tendered.[8] There is authority, however, that where a person accompanying a minor child

Long Island R. Co., 22 N.Y.S. 738, 3 Misc 342

Attached cars

Where a passenger boards one car and pays his fare and then decides to change to a car attached to the rear, he must pay his fare in the latter car or he may be ejected therefrom.—Lasker v. Third Ave. R. Co., 57 N.Y.S. 395, 27 Misc. 824—10 C.J. p 733 note 29 [g].

98. Pa.—Anderson v. Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist. 41.

Ordinance granting right to transfer

One riding on a traction car by virtue of a transfer the right to which exists under a valid ordinance cannot lawfully be ejected even though the ordinance is being made the subject of test litigation.—Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. Brethauer, 125 Ill.App. 204, affirmed 79 N.E. 287, 223 Ill. 521, 114 Am.S.R. 352.

99. Ga.—Hornesby v. Georgia R., etc., Co., 48 S.E. 339, 120 Ga. 913, 1 Ann.Cas. 391.

1. Ga.—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., 92 S.E. 34, 19 Ga.App. 670.

Mo.—Boettler v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 300 S.W. 528.

10 C.J. p 732 note 26.

2. Miss.—Gulf, M. & N. R. Co. v. Mason, 163 So. 825, 174 Miss. 43

Tex.—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386.

10 C.J. p 732 note 26.

Exhibition and surrender of ticket where ticket is lost see supra § 613.

"The reason is obvious. Passage tickets, in the absence of restrictive conditions, are assignable, and good in the hands of anyone. If the loss of a ticket were a sufficient excuse for nonpayment of fare, the carrier might be subjected to the burden of carrying two or more persons for a single fare."—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Tex.Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386, 389—10 C.J. p 732 note 26 [b].

Offer to prove loss

A passenger has no right to be carried on an offer to prove that he has lost his ticket.—Harp v. Southern R. Co., 47 S.E. 206, 119 Ga. 927, 100 Am.S.R. 212.

3. Okl.—Dickinson v. Bryant, 172 P. 432, 69 Okl. 297, L.R.A.1918E 978.

Ticket recovered by agent

Where a passenger lost her ticket and the ticket agent recovered it and notified the conductor of that fact, it was wrongful to eject the passenger.—Dickinson v. Bryant, 172 P. 432, 69 Okl. 297, L.R.A.1918E 978.

Duty to accept passenger's explanation

(1) Where conductor is in doubt regarding ticket, he can refuse to accept passenger's explanation of absence of ticket only at peril of liability of carrier, in case jury finds that explanation was reasonable and in fact true.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Mullen, 131 So. 101, 158 Miss. 774.

(2) But a conductor need not accept explanation regarding passenger's failure to produce ticket which is untrue although apparently reasonable.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Mullen, supra.

4. Ga.—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., 92 S.E. 34, 19 Ga.App. 670.

Tex.—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386

10 C.J. p 732 note 25.

A passenger's statement that he purchased a ticket need not be accepted by the conductor.—Gulf, M. & N. R. Co. v. Mason, 163 So. 825, 174 Miss. 43

5. Ark.—Ft. Smith & Van Buren Dist. v. Kidd, 241 S.W. 374, 153 Ark. 489

10 C.J. p 734 note 36.

6. Md.—United R., etc., Co. v. Hardesty, 51 A. 406, 94 Md. 661, 57 L.R.A. 275.

Tenn.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Harris, 9 Lea 180, 42 Am.R. 668.

7. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539, citing Corpus Juris.

Ark.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Smith, 244 S.W. 741, 155 Ark. 519.

Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Watson, 255 S.W. 1056, 1057, 201 Ky. 108, citing Corpus Juris.

Tex.—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386.

10 C.J. p 733 note 30.

So under statute

Ark.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Smith, 244 S.W. 741, 155 Ark. 519

Payment not waived

A conductor does not waive the right to require payment of a child's fare by passing the child without demanding the fare, where he returns later to inquire of the accompanying grandmother as to the child's age.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539

That the custodian is a minor does not affect the operation of the rule.—Warfield v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 55 S.W. 304, 104 Tenn. 74, 78 Am.S.R. 911.

But a parent accompanying an adult child may not be ejected if he has complied with the rules.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Maybin, 5 So. 401, 66 Miss. 83.

8. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539.

Ark.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Smith, 244 S.W. 741, 155 Ark. 519.

has paid or tendered his own fare he may not be required to leave the train, although the carrier is not liable if he voluntarily chooses to do so;[9] under this view the child may be ejected without the ejection of the accompanying parent or custodian.[10]

If, through mistake of a conductor in judging a child's age, the child is wrongfully ejected, the parent may leave the train and recover damages for the ejection.[11]

c. Passenger Carried Past or Short of Destination

A passenger carried beyond his destination through his own fault may be ejected in default of payment for further transportation; but when not at fault he may not, under some authorities, be ejected for refusal to pay additional fare, although he may under others; and if he offers fare to a farther stop, he may not be ejected. A passenger on a car which turns back short of his destination may not remain for the return journey without payment.

Where a passenger's own neglect causes him to be carried beyond his destination, he is not entitled to free passage to the next station, and may be put off in default of payment;[12] likewise, he is not entitled to a return trip to his destination, and may be put off on refusal to pay.[13] While it has been held that, even where a passenger is carried past his destination through the failure of the conductor or other proper employee to call the station or street, he has no right to remain on such train or car without the payment of another fare,[14] other authority is to the effect that where the passenger is not at fault he may not be ejected for refusal to pay the additional fare.[15] If the passenger offers to pay his fare to a regular stop farther on, he may not be ejected.[16] It is unnecessary that the passenger tender the unpaid fare for the distance he has already traveled beyond his destination at the time he tenders it to the next station, in the absence of a demand therefor.[17]

Where a street car company breaks its contract with a passenger by turning back the car at a point short of the passenger's destination, the passenger's right of action for a breach of the contract is complete, but he is not entitled to remain on the car for its return journey without payment of another fare.[18]

d. Time or Opportunity to Produce Ticket or Pay Fare

A passenger acting in good faith is entitled to a reasonable opportunity and time to produce his ticket or pay his fare, after which, on failure to do either, he may be ejected. What is a reasonable opportunity or time depends largely on the circumstances of each case.

A passenger is entitled, on demand, to a reason-

Tex.—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386.

10 C.J. p. 733 note 30

9. Cal.—Cox v. Los Angeles Terminal R. Co., 41 P. 794, 109 Cal. 100

Ill.—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Dewin, 86 Ill. 296.

Infant child accompanying younger sisters

Cal.—Cox v. Los Angeles Terminal R. Co., 41 P. 794, 109 Cal. 100

Infant for whom no fare was required

There can be no recovery in behalf of one of several children accompanying their parents on a train because such child, being under the age at which fare was required, left the train upon the ejection of some of the other children for whom the required fare was not paid.—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Dewin, 86 Ill. 296

10. Mass.—Beckwith v. Cheshire R. Co., 8 N.E. 875, 143 Mass. 68.

11. U.S.—Gibson v. East Tennessee, V. & G. R. Co., C.C.Tenn., 30 F. 904.

12. Tex.—Texas Pac. R. Co. v. James, 18 S.W. 589, 82 Tex. 306, 15 L.R.A. 347.

10 C.J. p. 739 note 75.

Tender of fare not required

However, such a passenger is under no duty to seek out the conductor to tender fare, and may not be ejected for failure to tender fare before a demand therefor, where he has not lost his rights as a passenger by evidencing an intent not to pay.—Vanderbeck v. Chicago, M., St. P. & P. Ry. Co., 230 S.W. 390, 210 Iowa 230.

13. N.Y.—Markowitz v. New York Rys. Co., 176 N.Y.S. 778, 188 App. Div. 482

14. Minn.—Willard v. St. Paul City R. Co., 133 N.W. 465, 116 Minn. 183.

Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Richardson, Civ.App., 131 S.W. 1139.

10 C.J. p. 739 note 76.

15. Ark.—Hines v. Smith, 224 S.W. 612, 145 Ark. 218.

Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Summerall, 139 S.E. 923, 37 Ga. App. 294

N.Y.—Markowitz v. New York Rys. Co., 176 N.Y.S. 778, 188 App. Div. 482.

10 C.J. p. 754 note 96

Failure to give opportunity to alight

If defendant failed in its duty to give plaintiff passenger a reasonable opportunity to alight at destination, and carried him beyond destination against his will, and the car was to return immediately to the point of plaintiff's destination, it is not unreasonable to hold that defendant was under a duty to permit plaintiff to make the short return journey without molestation, and without exacting an additional fare.—Markowitz v. New York Rys. Co., 176 N.Y.S. 778, 188 App.Div. 482.

16. Ark.—Hines v. Smith, 224 S.W. 612, 145 Ark. 218.

Ga.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Williams, 91 S.E. 46, 146 Ga. 200.

Okl.—Lusk v. Land, 178 P. 93, 74 Okl. 212

Passenger asleep

(1) The fact that a passenger was sleeping when the train stopped at his station is immaterial.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Williams, 91 S.E. 46, 146 Ga. 200.

(2) Even though the carrier may have had no duty to awake a passenger when he arrived at his station, he may not be ejected upon offering fare to the next station.—Lusk v. Land, 178 P. 93, 74 Okl. 212

(3) However, in such a case a mere willingness to pay the fare, not communicated to the conductor, will not be sufficient.—Texas Pac. R. Co. v. James, 18 S.W. 589, 82 Tex. 306, 15 L.R.A. 347.

17. Ga.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Williams, 91 S.E. 46, 146 Ga. 200.

18. N.J.—Wright v. Orange, etc., R. Co., 73 A. 517, 77 N.J.Law 774, 23 L.R.A.,N.S., 571.

able opportunity to produce his ticket or pay the cash fare,[19] but it is necessary that he be acting in good faith,[20] and that he make a request for a reasonable time if he cannot readily produce his ticket.[21] The passenger has a duty to keep the ticket where it can be readily found,[22] and if he is unable to produce it within a reasonable time, and does not pay,[23] or offer to pay,[24] the cash fare, he may be ejected, even though he believes in good faith that he may yet be able to find it.[25]

What is a reasonable opportunity or time to allow a passenger to produce his ticket or pay his fare must depend largely on the facts and circumstances of each particular case.[26] It has been held that a passenger should be permitted to go to another part of the train to obtain funds from a friend who is willing to supply them.[27]

e. Offer, Tender, or Payment of Cash Fare

A person on a train or car in good faith without a ticket may not be ejected if he, or a third person with his assent, offers to pay the proper amount of cash fare on a demand therefor; but no further tender need be made after the conductor has refused to accept payment or a ticket, or after payment has once been made or tendered. A tender of a larger denomination of money than is permitted is not a proper tender.

The mere fact that one enters a train or car without a ticket does not furnish an excuse for putting him off; if he offers to pay cash fare, the carrier ejects him at its peril,[28] at least if he has entered in good faith.[29] Although one having the status of a passenger is under no duty to tender his fare before a demand by the conductor,[30] after there has been a demand he is bound to tender payment unconditionally.[31]

19. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson, 66 So. 905, 11 Ala.App. 621.
10 C.J. p 732 note 26 [a], p 735 note 46, p 749 note 52.
Opportunity to pay fare to avoid ejection see infra § 812.

Corpus Juris quoted

Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hamby, 93 So. 698, 701, 208 Ala. 75

If a conductor withdraws his acceptance of a pass, as he is bound by statute to do when it is presented by one not entitled to ride thereon, he may not eject such person until he has given him a reasonable opportunity to pay his fare.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson, 66 So. 905, 11 Ala.App. 621.

20. Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346.
10 C.J. p 735 note 46.

Depositing money with conductor

The fact that a passenger hands some money to the conductor for him to hold while such passenger searches for his ticket does not constitute a payment of his fare, but should only be considered on the question of his good faith in attempting to gain time to find his ticket.—Anderson v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 120 S.W. 298, 134 Ky. 343, 20 Ann.Cas. 920.

21. Miss.—Gulf, M. & N. R. Co. v. Mason, 163 So. 825, 174 Miss. 43

If there is no request for additional time to search for his ticket, a passenger may be ejected at once.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Mason, 58 So. 963, 4 Ala.App. 353, 357.

22. Miss.—Gulf, M. & N. R. Co. v. Mason, 163 So. 825, 174 Miss. 43.

23. D.C.—Capital Tract. Co. v. Brinley, 43 App.D.C. 430.

Miss.—Gulf, M. & N. R. Co. v. Mason, 163 So. 825, 174 Miss. 43.

Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346.

24. Ga.—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., 92 S.E. 34, 35, 19 Ga.App. 670.

25. Ga.—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., supra.

"One might search for a ticket, either in good or bad faith, from the beginning to the end of his journey. Certainly his mere belief that he may yet be able to find the ticket will not entitle one to remain on the train. The railroad company in the discharge of its duties to the public, cannot stop and wait until the passenger has satisfied himself that the ticket is lost beyond recall. If the train continue to run as long as the passenger is willing to search for his ticket, he may thereby have his ride without paying his fare. His misfortune, if he has in fact lost his ticket, cannot prejudice the right of the railroad company to eject him from its train upon the failure to surrender his ticket after he has been given a reasonable opportunity to find and present the ticket."—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., supra.

26. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hamby, 93 So. 698, 701, 208 Ala. 75, quoting Corpus Juris.
10 C.J. p 735 note 48.

The time it takes a street car to go a quarter of a mile cannot be said, as a matter of law, to be a reasonable time, in the absence of evidence as to the speed at which the car was traveling—Huba v. Schenectady R. Co., 83 N.Y.S. 157, 85 App.Div. 199.

Ticket with companion

Where a passenger leaves his ticket in the custody of another passenger in the farthest part of a crowded street car, and the conductor forcibly ejects him within a minute or two after having first demanded his fare, he is not given a reasonable opportunity to secure and present his ticket, and the carrier is liable in damages.—Northern Ohio Tract., etc., Co. v. Wieland, 23 Ohio Cir.Ct.,N.S., 123.

27. N.C.—Clark v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 91 N.C. 506, 49 Am.R. 647
Ohio—Guy v. Pittsburgh etc., R. Co., 9 Ohio S. & C.P. 23, 6 Ohio N.P. 3.

28. La.—Ford v. East Louisiana R. Co., 34 So. 585, 110 La. 414.

29. Tenn.—Allen v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 185 S.W. 713, 135 Tenn. 6, L.R.A.1916E 1092.

Reason for rule

"The place to turn him back is at the car steps or entrance, and if, by reason of the company's failure to have its employe at such place to supervise the traffic, the offeror thus enters one of the cars, it is not reasonable that he should be ejected, at least after the train starts."—Allen v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 185 S.W. 713, 715, 135 Tenn. 6, L.R.A.1916E 1092

30. Iowa.—Vanderbeck v. Chicago, M., St. P. & P. Ry. Co., 230 N.W. 390, 392, 210 Iowa 230.

"Passengers on a train do not seek out the conductor to tender fares. On the contrary, the conductor invariably visits the passenger and calls for the fare."—Vanderbeck v. Chicago, M., St. P. & P. Ry. Co., supra 31. Mo.—Green v. United Rys. of St. Louis, 206 S.W. 237, 200 Mo.App. 303.

10 C.J. p 733 note 28.

Tender conditioned on issuance of transfer

A tender of fare upon the condition that the conductor issue a

However, a further tender or payment is not necessary, in order to make an ejection wrongful, where the conductor indicates that he cannot, or will not, accept a payment of fare,[32] or has refused a ticket tendered by the passenger and entitling him to transportation,[33] or if the passenger has already paid or tendered the proper fare.[34]

Tender or payment of fare to avoid ejection after a prior failure or refusal to produce a ticket or pay fare is considered in § 812 infra.

Amount and denomination of tender. A passenger may be ejected if the amount tendered is less than that which the carrier is bound by law to collect,[35] but where the conductor demands more fare from a passenger than he should be required to pay, the passenger need not tender the right amount, but may refuse to pay the amount demanded, and, if ejected, may recover damages.[36] A tender of a larger denomination of money to a street railway conductor than he is permitted by the rules of the company to accept in payment of the fare is not a proper tender.[37]

Tender by another. A tender of fare made by another person on behalf of a passenger is just as effective as though made by the passenger himself, provided the latter assents to it;[38] but where a passenger is being wrongfully ejected for nonpayment of fare, the fact that he refuses to permit another to pay his fare does not preclude him from recovering for all injuries and damages suffered from the wrongful ejection.[39]

f. Payment of Back Fare

A passenger who has traveled part of his journey without paying fare or presenting a proper ticket must pay for the whole journey or be ejected.

Where a passenger has traveled part of his journey without paying fare[40] or presenting a proper transfer is not such a tender as will entitle a person to remain on a street car, even though such person would be entitled to the transfer after first paying the fare, and even though the conductor refused to issue the transfer in any event, thus making an unconditional tender unavailing—Green v. United Rys. Co of St Louis, 206 S.W 237, 200 Mo App. 303—10 C.J. p 733 note 28 [a].

32. Tex.—Southern Kansas R. Co v. Wallace, Civ.App., 152 S W 873

33. R I—Arnold v Rhode Island Co 66 A. 60 28 R I. 118, 163, 125 Am S R. 721.
10 C.J. p 749 notes 57, 58.

Courses open to passenger

Where a passenger has a right to be carried on his ticket, he may insist on being so carried, and if he is ejected he is entitled to recover the damages sustained thereby, although he might take the other course and pay his fare, rather than be ejected, and then recover such damages as he sustains in that event—Pennsylvania County v Bray, 25 N E. 439, 125 Ind 229.

Belief that ticket is valid

Where, before boarding a train, an ejected passenger presented his ticket to the brakeman whose duty it was to inspect it, and was passed into the train as if he held valid transportation, and the ticket itself did not suggest otherwise, he was justified in believing that it was good on the portion of the road on which he was traveling, and, so believing, he was within his legal rights when he parleyed with the conductor about the validity of his ticket, and did not tender the money for his fare on the first demand—Short v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 130 S W. 488, 150 Mo App. 359

34. Mich.—Burnham v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 133 N W 952, 168 Mich. 55, Ann.Cas.1913B 1204.
10 C J. p 749 note 58.

35. Ga.—Central of Georgia Ry Co. v. Britt, 94 S.E. 283, 21 Ga.App. 314.

A tender of the customary fare which is less than the amount fixed by the railroad commission is insufficient.—Central of Georgia Ry Co v. Britt, 94 S.E. 283, 21 Ga App 314.

Fare to intermediate station taken out

Where a passenger tenders an insufficient amount, stating that he will not pay more, and the conductor takes out the fare to an intermediate station and returns the balance, the passenger is entitled, on reaching such station, to pay the fare demanded from that point to his destination and to continue his journey—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Bryan, 90 Ill. 126.

Passenger not ascertaining fare rules

If the fare called for is more than the passenger supposes it should be, and he is at fault for not ascertaining the rules with regard to payment of fare, he should pay the amount demanded and investigate later—Sage v. Evansville, etc., R. Co., 33 N E. 771, 134 Ind. 100—Toledo, etc., R. Co. v. Wright, 68 Ind. 586, 34 Am.R. 277.

36. Ind.—Chicago St., etc., R. Co. v. Graham, 29 N.E. 170, 3 Ind.App. 28, 50 Am S.R. 256.
10 C J. p 750 note 60

37. Ga.—Burge v. Georgia R., etc., Co., 65 S E. 879, 133 Ga. 423, 18 Ann.Cas. 42.

Tenn.—Knoxville Tract. Co v Wilkerson, 99 S W. 992, 117 Tenn. 482, 9 L.R.A.,N.S., 579, 10 Ann Cas. 641.
Amount of tender generally see supra § 593.

Amounts held too large

(1) A five-dollar bill.—Burge v. Georgia R., etc., Co., 65 S E. 879, 133 Ga. 423, 18 Ann.Cas. 42.

(2) A ten-dollar bill—Knoxville Tract. Co v. Wilkerson, 99 S W. 992, 117 Tenn. 482, 9 L.R.A.,N S., 579, 10 Ann.Cas. 641.

38. U.S.—Missouri, etc., R Co. v. Smith, Ind.T., 152 F. 608, 81 C.C.A. 598 10 Ann.Cas. 939
Ky.—Kentucky Cent. R. Co. v. Houston, 7 Ky.Op. 96
Mo.—Gates v. Quincy, etc., R. Co., 102 S.W 50, 125 Mo.App. 334.
Tenn.—Louisville, etc., R Co. v. Garrett, 8 Lea 438, 41 Am.R. 640.

A passenger's silence when a tender is made in his behalf may be construed as an acceptance or acquiescence.—Gates v Quincy, etc., R. Co., 102 S.W 50, 125 Mo App 334.

If a passenger repudiates the offer of a bystander, the conductor need not accept it.—Muldowney v. Pittsburg, etc., Tract. Co., 8 Pa Super. 335

39. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co v. Lee, 45 So 164, 153 Ala. 386.

40. Ala.—Manning v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 11 So 8 95 Ala. 392, 36 Am.S.R. 225, 16 L R A. 55
Ill.—Chicago etc., R. Co. v Adams, 60 Ill.App. 571.
Mo.—Davis v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 53 Mo. 317, 14 Am R. 457.

Ticket from station not yet reached

A passenger who boards a train with a ticket between two stations, neither of which has yet been reached, may be ejected if he refuses to ticket[41] he may not continue his journey to his destination unless he pays fare for the distance already traveled as well as for the balance of the trip.

g. When Failure or Refusal Is Justified

If a carrier is at fault for a passenger's inability to procure a proper ticket, or if the passenger has surrendered his ticket to a proper employee, his ejection is wrongful, but he may be ejected if he declines to pay because he is not furnished a seat.

It has been held that if a conductor has been notified of a passenger's inability, through the fault of the carrier, to procure a ticket,[42] or if, through the mistake of the carrier's agent, one has failed to receive a ticket to the destination called for,[43] such passenger may not properly be ejected for failure to produce a ticket; nor is a conductor justified in ejecting a person who has purchased a ticket and surrendered it to a brakeman or other proper employee.[44]

A passenger who, in accordance with the posted rules of the company, drops his fare into a box used for that purpose, may not be removed for nonpayment of fare because of private directions to the employees, of which he had no knowledge, that when the car was crowded they were to collect the fares.[45]

Carrier's failure to furnish seat. Although, as appears in § 645 supra, it is the duty of a carrier to furnish seats as well as transportation to those taking passage on its cars, a passenger declining to pay fare because all of the seats are already occupied, may rightfully be ejected, since he has no right to insist on transportation free of charge because not furnished with a seat; in such a case, he should either pay his fare or leave the car immediately upon being afforded a reasonable opportunity to do so.[46]

h. Failure to Procure Ticket or Permit for Freight Train

A passenger who has had a reasonable opportunity to procure a ticket or permit for passage on a freight train may be ejected for failure to do so, except, according to some authorities, where he has acted in good faith and the ticket agent is at fault. Where there has been a custom of accepting cash fares on freight trains, a passenger is entitled to reasonable notice of a change of rule.

One who insists on transportation on a freight train in violation of conditions attached to the privilege of transportation on such trains that the passenger shall have procured a ticket, or, in addition thereto, a permit to ride on such train, may be ejected;[47] but the carrier cannot enforce such a condition unless a reasonable opportunity to procure a ticket or permit has been afforded the passenger.[48]

While it has been held that a conductor is not bound by any agreement which the passenger has, or claims to have, made with the ticket agent before entering the car, and that a passenger may be ejected, notwithstanding he was told by the ticket agent that he might ride on that train,[49] under other authorities a passenger who has endeavored in good faith to comply with the conditions, but, through the fault of the ticket agent was rendered unable to do so, cannot rightfully be ejected.[50] Thus a carrier has been held liable for the ejection of a passenger for failure to have a permit, where he had asked the ticket agent for one and had been told that the conductor would give him one,[51] where the ticket agent had agreed to deliver a permit to the conductor but had failed to do so,[52] and where such agent had told the passenger that his ticket en-pay fare for the whole journey.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Adams, 60 Ill. App. 571

Readmission after ejection see infra §.826.

41. Ala.—Manning v Louisville, etc., R. Co., 11 So. 8, 95 Ala. 392, 36 Am.S.R. 225, 16 L.R.A. 55

Forfeited ticket

Where the conductor discovers, after the journey is partially completed, that the passenger is traveling on a forfeited ticket, such passenger may be ejected if he fails to pay fare for the entire journey.—Manning v Louisville, etc., R. Co., 11 So. 8, 95 Ala. 392, 36 Am.S.R. 225, 16 L.R.A. 55.

42. Ark.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Hammett, 136 S.W. 191, 98 Ark. 418.

Ind.—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v Street, 59 N.E. 404, 26 Ind.App. 224.

Mo.—Harkless v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 132 S.W. 29, 151 Mo.App. 463

10 C.J. p 734 note 40.

43. Ill.—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 88.

44. Tex.—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Short, Civ.App. 173 S.W. 615—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Short, Civ. App., 163 S.W. 601.

10 C.J. p 734 note 41.

But if delivery is to an unauthorized employee, the passenger is not excused for failure to produce the ticket, and if the employee does not have the prescribed badge on his cap the passenger takes the risk as to whether he is authorized to receive it.—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v Short, Tex.Civ.App., 163 S.W. 601

45. Pa.—Perry v. Pittsburgh Union Pass. R. Co., 25 A. 772, 153 Pa. 236.

46. Ga.—Rossman v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 91 S.E. 90, 146 Ga. 264, L.R.A.1917C 483.

10 C.J. p 734 note 44.

47. Mich.—Thomas v Chicago, etc., R. Co., 40 N.W. 463, 72 Mich. 355.

10 C.J. p 735 note 50.

48. Mo.—Gardner v. St. Louis etc., R. Co., 93 S.W. 917, 117 Mo.App. 138.

10 C.J. p 735 note 51.

49. Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Stell, 67 S.W. 537, 28 Tex.Civ.App. 280.

10 C.J. p 736 note 52.

50. Wash.—Olson v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 96 P. 150, 49 Wash. 626, 18 L.R.A.,N.S., 209.

10 C.J. p 736 note 53.

51. Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. White, Civ.App., 61 S.W. 436

52. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Hine, 25 So. 857, 121 Ala. 234.

titled him to ride without a permit.[53]

Notice of change of rule. Where the carrier has been in the habit of receiving payment of fare in cash on freight trains, and changes its rules so as to require the purchase of a ticket by the passenger before entering the car, he is entitled to reasonable notice of such change; and where he has not had reasonable notice, and takes passage in ignorance of the change, the railroad company is liable for his ejection by the conductor.[54]

§ 811. Extra Fares or Charges

A passenger without a ticket may be ejected for refusal to pay an authorized extra fare, unless he has not been afforded a reasonable opportunity to purchase a ticket or has been refused one without just cause, and a passenger may be ejected for not paying for extra accommodations, or, where attempting to use tickets to successive intermediate points, for refusing to pay the extra amount necessary to equal the required through rate.

A passenger who enters a carrier's vehicle without a ticket and refuses to pay an extra fare or charge, as required by the reasonable regulations of the carrier in such cases, may be ejected,[55] provided the carrier has afforded a reasonable opportunity for passengers to purchase tickets.[56] If such an opportunity is not afforded a passenger,[57] or if the carrier has refused, without just cause, to sell a passenger a ticket,[58] or if the extra fare demanded is a greater amount than the carrier has authority to exact,[59] the passenger is entitled to transportation upon the payment or tender of the regular fare. The fact that a passenger had purchased a ticket, but lost it, does not justify his refusal to pay extra fare.[60]

It has been said that a conductor or agent who passes on the merits of an excuse offered by a passenger for not having provided himself with a ticket, or who refuses to hear such excuse when offered, does so at the peril of the carrier.[61]

Through fare. Where the fare to a certain destination is higher when a through ticket is purchased than when tickets to successive intermediate points are purchased, a passenger attempting to make the trip by the latter method in violation of a statute requiring the higher fare may be ejected, unless he complies with the conductor's demand for the extra fare necessary to equal the higher rate;[62] thus a passenger making an interstate journey may

53. Ill.—Illinois Cent. R Co. v. Davenport, 52 N.E. 266, 177 Ill. 110

54. Tenn.—Lane v. East Tennessee, etc., R. Co., 5 Lea 124

55. Ala.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Blackwell, 100 So. 215, 211 Ala. 216
Ky.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Hill, 284 S.W. 1047, 215 Ky. 222, 48 A.L.R. 327.
Tenn.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Pickle, 197 S.W. 675, 138 Tenn. 238
10 C.J. p. 690 note 45, p. 736 note 55
Extra charge on failure to purchase ticket generally see supra § 601.

The parent or custodian of an infant, who is responsible for its fare, may be ejected on failure or refusal to pay it together with the extra charge.—Lankford v. Southern R. Co., 81 S.E. 998, 165 N.C. 653.

Explanation of extra fare
A passenger is entitled to receive information, upon request, as to why an extra charge is made in a particular case.—Briggs v. Lusk, Mo. App., 190 S.W. 380.

Effect of accepting regular fare
However, if a conductor accepts an offer of fare at the regular rate, he may not thereafter eject the passenger for refusal to pay the additional amount which he originally had a right to demand.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Joplin, 55 S.W. 206, 21 Ky.L. 1380.—10 C.J. p. 736 note 58.

56. Ala.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Blackwell, 100 So. 215, 211 Ala. 216.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Harper, 83 So. 142, 203 Ala. 398.
Ky.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Hill, 284 S.W. 1047, 215 Ky. 222, 48 A.L.R. 327
10 C.J. p. 736 note 60.

Absence of ticket agent
(1) Will justify a passenger's refusal to pay extra fare.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Harper, 83 So. 142, 203 Ala. 398

(2) But there is authority to the effect that such absence does not excuse a passenger from paying the additional fare, and that if he does refuse to pay such fare he has no right to resist ejection.—Monnier v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 67 N.E. 569, 175 N.Y. 281, 96 Am.S.R. 619, 62 L.R.A. 357, reversing 75 N.Y.S. 521, 70 App.Div. 405.

Application for ticket after office is closed
Where the ticket office is kept open until the advertised time for the departure of the train, and the passenger is unable to obtain a ticket because he does not apply until after that time, when the office is closed, he cannot complain that an opportunity has not been furnished him to buy a ticket, and on his refusal to pay the train fare he may be ejected.
Ill.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. South, 43 Ill. 176, 92 Am.D. 103
Mass.—Swan v. Manchester, etc., R. Co., 132 Mass. 116, 42 Am.R. 432

Failure to maintain a ticket office at a place where passengers are permitted to board a train will justify a refusal, by a passenger boarding at such a place, to pay an extra fare; maintenance of an office at a distance of one-eighth of a mile from such a point is not sufficient.—Chesapeake & O. Ry. Co. v. Hill, 284 S.W. 1047, 215 Ky. 222, 48 A.L.R. 327.

57. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Harper, 83 So. 142, 203 Ala. 398.
10 C.J. p. 736 note 60.

A conductor's ignorance of the fact that a passenger did not have a reasonable opportunity to purchase a ticket does not excuse the carrier.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Blackwell, 100 So. 215, 211 Ala. 216.

58. Ind.—Indianapolis, etc. R. Co. v. Rinard, 46 Ind. 293.—Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Beckett, 39 N.E. 429, 11 Ind.App. 547.—Lake Erie etc., R. Co. v. Close, 32 N.E. 588, 5 Ind.App. 444

59. Kan.—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Dickerson, 45 P. 975, 4 Kan.App. 345
Mich.—Chamberlain v. Lake Shore etc., R. Co., 68 N.W. 423, 110 Mich. 614
N.C.—Williams v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 69 S.E. 402, 153 N.C. 360
10 C.J. p. 737 note 62.

60. Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Faulkner, Civ.App., 63 S.W. 655.

61. Ga.—Southern R. Co. v. Jones, 68 S.E. 1011, 8 Ga.App. 225.

62. Ind.—Arbuckle v. State, 124 N.E. 395, 188 Ind. 444.
Miss.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Holman, 64 So. 7, 106 Miss. 449
Okl.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v.

be compelled to pay the interstate rate as prescribed by the interstate commerce commission.[63]

Extra accommodations. A passenger may be ejected from a car in which are provided special accommodations for which he has not paid.[64]

§ 812. Tender or Payment to Avoid Ejection

a. Before steps taken for ejection
b. After steps taken for ejection

a. Before Steps Taken for Ejection

A passenger who has previously failed, on demand or within a reasonable time, to produce a ticket or pay fare, may not be ejected if, before any steps are taken to eject him, he, or, a third person in his behalf, offers to pay.

Although a passenger has failed, on demand or within a reasonable time, to produce a proper ticket or pay the fare, yet he may not be rightfully ejected if, before any steps are taken to eject him, he offers to pay the fare,[65] at least if he was acting in good faith in his prior refusal to pay.[66] This right of a passenger to tender his fare and continue his journey continues only until the conductor has given the signal to stop the train for the purpose of ejecting him;[67] but a stop made at a regular station is not such a stop as will justify the conductor's refusal to accept a proper tender.[68]

Tender by third person. If the tender to avoid ejection is made by a third person in behalf of the passenger about to be ejected, it should be accepted by the conductor the same as though it were made by the party himself,[69] unless the latter has repudiated the offer.[70]

b. After Steps Taken for Ejection

A tender of fare made after steps have been taken to eject a passenger at a place where the train or car does not regularly stop need not be accepted, at least if the passenger is not in good faith; but in the case of a train stopped at a regular station, a tender made at any time before the ejection is complete should be accepted.

If a passenger, having failed to produce a proper ticket or pay fare, makes an offer or tender of fare after steps have been taken to eject him at a place which is not a regular stopping place for the vehicle on which he is traveling, it is generally held that the tender comes too late and that the ejection may be lawfully completed;[71] thus, if a conductor has

Ashinger, 162 P 814, 63 Okl. 120, L.R.A.1917D 1180.
Tex.—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Edwards, Civ.App., 232 S.W. 356.

63. Miss.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v Holman, 64 So. 7, 106 Miss. 449.
Okl.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry Co. v. Ashinger, 162 P 814, 63 Okl. 120, L.R.A.1917D 1180.
Tex.—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Edwards, Civ.App., 232 S.W. 356.

64. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Ashley, 183 S.W. 921, 169 Ky. 330, L.R.A.1916E 763.
Mont.—Doherty v. Northern Pac. R Co., 115 P. 401, 43 Mont. 294, 36 L.R.A.,N.S., 1139.

65. Ga.—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., 92 S.E. 34, 19 Ga.App. 670
Ind.—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Norris, 46 N.E. 554, 17 Ind.App. 189, 60 Am.S.R. 166.
Tex.—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386.
Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346
10 C.J. p 748 note 49.

Offer, tender, or payment of cash fare generally see supra § 810 e.

That a passenger engaged in an altercation with the conductor was not sufficient provocation for the conductor to eject him after a tender of fare to the first regular station.—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Norris 46 N.E. 554, 17 Ind.App. 189, 60 Am.S.R. 166.

Necessity of second demand

The duty of tendering fare in such a case is on the passenger and there need not be a new demand by the conductor for the passenger's fare before the ejection.—United R., etc. Co. v. Hardesty, 51 A. 406, 94 Md. 661, 57 L.R.A. 275.

66. Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346

67. Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., supra.

Pulling the bell rope once is not a sufficient step taken toward the ejection of a passenger to justify a conductor's refusal to accept a tender of fare, when the signal for stopping the train properly consists of two pulls.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244 5 A.L.R. 346.

68. N.Y.—O'Brien v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 80 N.Y. 236.

69. Ind.—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Norris, 46 N.E. 554, 17 Ind.App. 189, 60 Am.S.R. 166.
10 C.J. p 751 note 71.

70. Wash.—Kirk v. Seattle Electric Co., 108 P. 604, 58 Wash. 283, 31 L.R.A.,N.S., 991

71. N.C.—Norman v. East Carolina R. Co., 77 S.E. 345, 161 N.C. 330, Ann.Cas 1914D 917.
Tex.—Fleck v Missouri, K. & T Ry Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386
Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346.
10 C.J. p 750 note 62, p 751 note 64

Reasons for rule

(1) "The reason assigned in support of the rule is that if one passenger might, by his unjustifiable conduct, delay the train to put him off, another might do the same thing, thus producing the utmost irregularity in the running of the trains and jeopardizing the safety of the carrier's property and the lives of other passengers."—Fleck v. Missouri, K & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Tex.Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386, 390.

(2) "Having invited an appeal to force, the passenger cannot at his option, reserve the privilege of shielding himself from its application, by invoking the protection of a contract, the implied conditions of which he has violated."—Pease v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 5 N.E 37, 101 N.Y. 367, 371, 54 Am.R. 699.

Discretion of conductor

Where the conductor has begun to remove an intruder for refusal to pay his fare, an offer to pay may be accepted or not, at the discretion of the conductor.—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Turner, Tex.Civ.App., 23 S.W. 83.

Overdue transfer

Where a passenger holding an overdue transfer, which the conductor refuses to accept, persists in declining to pay his fare until after the conductor has rung his bell and called on the motorman to assist given the signal to stop a train or car for the purpose of ejecting a passenger, a tender then made need not be accepted.[72] However, there is authority to the effect that, if a passenger has acted in good faith in his refusal to pay the proper fare, and if he did not enter the train with any intention of avoiding payment, then his offer to pay,[73] or the offer of another to pay for him,[74] when made before the train has actually stopped, should be accepted; conversely, if his refusal to pay proceeded from a fraudulent purpose, his offer,[75] or the offer of a third person,[76] made after the process of ejection has begun, need not be accepted by the conductor, nor need his offer if his conduct was violent and abusive.[77]

Where steps are taken to eject a passenger from a train which has stopped at a regular station, an offer by the passenger[78] or a third person[79] to pay the required fare, made before the ejection has been completed, should be accepted, as the reason assigned for the first stated rule, namely, delay of the train, is not applicable in such a case.[80]

§ 813. Defective or Invalid Ticket

A passenger presenting a defective or invalid ticket or transfer may, as a general rule, be ejected if he refuses to pay fare Authorities conflict as to whether the face of a ticket is conclusive as to the passenger's right to transportation.

As a general rule, where the ticket offered by a passenger is void or otherwise not such as to entitle him to transportation at the time and on the train or car for which it is offered, and he refuses to pay fare or otherwise show himself entitled to transportation, he may be ejected,[81] particularly where he knows that his ticket is worthless[82] The fact that a passenger acted in good faith in seeking to ride on an insufficient ticket, believing it valid, does not relieve him of the consequences of its insufficiency;[83] but a passenger who acts in good faith is entitled to a proper demand for fare before he may be ejected because of the invalidity of his ticket,[84] and after the conductor's refusal to accept his ticket he is entitled to a reasonable parley with the conductor to determine whether he should pay in ejecting him, the passenger becomes a trespasser, and his ejection may be completed, even if he then offers to pay his fare.—Capital Tract Co. v Brinley, 43 App.D.C. 430.

In Kentucky

(1) The general rule as above stated has been applied—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Friend, 169 S.W. 509, 159 Ky 778, L.R.A.1915C 148

(2) But there is earlier authority indicating that if an actual tender of the fare is made, even after steps have been taken to eject a passenger, the conductor's act in refusing the fare and in completing the ejection is wrongful—Louisville, etc. R. Co v. Cottongim, 119 S.W 751—Louisville etc. R Co v Cottongim, 104 S.W. 280, 31 Ky L. 871, 13 L.R.A.,N.S., 624

In Missouri

(1) Under a statute providing that a passenger may be ejected, for refusal to pay fare, at any usual stopping place, it has been held that an ejection at any other place is wrongful if the passenger makes an actual tender of the money, even though such tender is made after the conductor has given the signal to stop the train—Holt v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 74 S.W 631, 174 Mo 524, affirming 87 Mo App 203—Short v. St. Louis, etc, R Co., 130 S.W. 488, 150 Mo.App 359.

(2) But a person who has acted in bad faith in refusing to pay fare and had no intention of paying when he entered the train is a trespasser and may be ejected, under such circumstances, even though he made an actual tender—Beck v Quincy, etc., R. Co., 108 S.W. 132, 129 Mo App. 7.

72. D.C—Capital Tract. Co. v. Brinley, 43 App D.C 430
Va—Mangum v. Norfolk & W Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346.
10 C.J. p 750 note 62.

Tender before stop signal completed

Where the signal to stop a train was two pulls of the bell rope, and after the conductor had given one pull the passenger who was to be ejected offered to pay the fare, the subsequent ejection was wrongful, as the offer was made before the signal was completed.—Mangum v Norfolk & W. Ry Co 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346

73. Ind.T—Missouri, etc., R Co v Smith, 89 S.W 668, 6 Ind.T 99, reversed on other grounds 152 F 608, 81 C.C.A. 598, 10 Ann.Cas 939
Tex—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Bond, 62 Tex. 442, 50 Am.R. 532

74. Tenn.—Louisville, etc., R. Co v Garrett, 8 Lea 438, 41 Am.R. 640

75. U.S.—Missouri etc, R. Co v Smith, 152 F 608, 81 C.C.A. 598, 10 Ann.Cas 939, reversing 89 S.W 663, 6 Ind.T. 99.

76. U.S.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Smith, supra
10 C.J. p 752 note 75.

77. U.S.—Gould v Chicago, etc., R Co., Minn., 18 F. 155, 5 McCrary 502

78. Tex.—Fleck v Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386
Readmission after ejection see infra § 826.

79. Mo—Randell v. Chicago, etc., R Co., 76 S.W 493, 102 Mo App 342.

80. Tex.—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386.

81. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co v. Putman, 109 So 890 21 Ala App 431, petition dismissed 109 So 891, 215 Ala. 107.
Mo—Woods v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 48 Mo App 125.
N.Y.—Caffrey v United Traction Co., 192 N.Y.S. 95, 199 App.Div. 208
Tex.—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Edwards, Civ.App 232 S.W. 356
Va—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R 346.
10 C.J. p 739 note 78.

Corpus Juris cited

Iowa—Foley v. Chicago Great Western R Co., 217 N.W. 563, 564

Mileage book not good for interstate journey

Where a passenger left a town in Texas to go to a town in Oklahoma, and on his return paid cash across the state line to a point where he intended to stop, but did not do so, the conductor has a right to eject him when on continuing his return trip he refused to pay other fare than mileage from a Texas mileage book, not good for "an interstate journey or any portion thereof" and tender of which the conductor refused—Chicago, R. I. & G Ry Co. v. Edwards, Tex.Civ.App., 232 S.W. 356.

82. N.H.—Whittemore v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 83 A. 125, 76 N.H. 338.
10 C.J. p 740 note 79.

83. Tex.—Freeman v. Costley, 124 S.W 458, 58 Tex.Civ.App. 388.
10 C.J. p 740 note 80.

84. Miss.—Jones v Mobile & O. R. Co., 72 So. 1009, 112 Miss. 283.

fare or leave the train.[85]

It has been said that the conductor is the sole judge of the validity of a ticket.[86]

Transfers. In conformity with the general rule stated above, a street car passenger may be ejected on presenting an invalid transfer and refusing to pay the regular fare.[87] Thus, where a passenger attempts to use a transfer at a different point[88] or on a different route[89] from that indicated, he may be ejected if he refuses to pay the cash fare; and it is immaterial that the conductor at first accepted the transfer.[90]

Conclusiveness of ticket. When a defective or invalid ticket or transfer is presented to a conductor, it is, according to one view, the conductor's duty to listen to a reasonable explanation by the passenger as to the defect or invalidity;[91] the opposing view is that the face of the ticket or transfer is conclusive as to whether or not the passenger presenting it is entitled to transportation thereon.[92] Particular applications of these conflicting views will be considered in §§ 814-818 infra.

§ 814. Failure to Comply with Conditions of Ticket in General

Ordinarily, a passenger may be ejected for failure to comply with conditions of his ticket; and, although there is contrary authority, this rule has been held applicable where lack of compliance is due to the carrier's fault. In varying circumstances, ejection for noncompliance with conditions as to stop-over, signing of tickets, and identification has been held or held not proper.

Ordinarily, a passenger who fails or refuses to comply with the conditions of his ticket may be ejected.[93] However, if a passenger's failure to comply with such a condition precedent to his right to transportation is due to the fault of the carrier or an employee, he is, according to some authorities, entitled to ride on the ticket without such compliance, and the carrier will be liable for his ejection,[94] as where the passenger was not notified of a condition upon the validity of the ticket;[95] but, according to other authorities, the rule is held to be otherwise, under the doctrine that as between the conductor and the passenger the face of the ticket is conclusive as to the passenger's right to trans-

Order for a ticket

An ignorant negro woman who boarded a train under the belief, in good faith, that an order for a ticket was a ticket may not be ejected by a conductor without a demand for the fare.—Jones v. Mobile & O. R Co., 72 So. 1009, 112 Miss 383.

85. Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry Co, 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va 244, 5 A.L.R. 346.

86. Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co, supra.

87. Cal.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry Corporation, 193 P 130, 184 Cal. 202.
N.Y.—Caffrey v. United Traction Co., 192 N.Y.S. 95, 199 App.Div. 208.
Pa.—Anderson v. Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist 41.
10 C.J. p 740 note 83.

88. Mo.—Percy v. Metropolitan St R Co, 58 Mo.App. 75.
N.Y.—Rubinger v. New York R Co., 144 N.Y.S. 765, 83 Misc 37.
S.C.—Taylor v Spartanburg R., etc., Co., 82 S.E. 404, 98 S.C. 206, 52 L.R.A.,N.S., 908, Ann.Cas.1916D 585.

89. Pa.—Anderson v. Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist. 41.
10 C.J. p 740 note 85.

90. N.Y.—Rubinger v. New York R. Co 144 N.Y.S. 765, 83 Misc. 37.

91. Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Mullen 131 So. 101, 158 Miss 774.
Tenn.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hadley, 11 Tenn App. 642.

92. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co v. Putman, 109 So. 890, 21 Ala App 431, petition dismissed 109 So. 891, 215 Ala 107.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Wynne, 141 S.E. 829, 833, 149 Va. 882
"As between the conductor of the street car and a passenger, the face of the passenger's transfer ticket is conclusive evidence as to the extent of his right to ride, and it is the duty of a passenger . . . if he has not the required ticket or token evidencing his right to travel on that car, to pay his fare or quietly leave the car, when requested, and resort to his appropriate remedy for the damages he has sustained"—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Wynne, supra.

93. U.S.—Central Trust Co. of New York v. East Tennessee, V. & G. R. Co, C.C.Ga., 65 F. 332.
Tenn.—Louisville etc., R. Co. v. Blair, 55 S.W. 154 104 Tenn. 212.
10 C.J. p 740 note 87

Condition as to stamping

Where round trip tickets are sold with the condition that they are to be stamped by an agent on identification of the person presenting the ticket as the purchaser or otherwise, one who insists on being transported under the return portion of the ticket without compliance with the condition may be ejected.
U.S.—Central Trust Co. of New York v. East Tennessee, V. & G. R. Co., C.C.Ga., 65 F. 332.
Tenn.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Blair 55 S.W. 154, 104 Tenn. 212.
10 C.J. p 741 note 96.

94. Ind.—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Street, 59 N.E. 404, 26 Ind.App. 224.
Tenn.—Louisville, etc., R Co. v. Blair, 55 S.W. 154, 104 Tenn. 212.
10 C.J. p 741 notes 95, 98.
Defect in ticket due to agent's mistake generally see infra § 816.

Exchange of mileage ticket

Where a passenger was prevented from exchanging a mileage ticket for an exchange ticket, as required, by the fact that the agent's supply of exchange tickets was exhausted his ejection for attempting to ride on the mileage ticket was wrongful.—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co v. Street, 59 N.E. 404, 26 Ind.App. 224.

Unstamped ticket

(1) A passenger may not be rightfully ejected because his ticket is unstamped where he presented it to the conductor upon boarding a train and was told by him that it was all right.—Louisville, etc., R Co. v. Blair, 55 S.W. 154, 104 Tenn. 212.

(2) Other cases in which carrier was at fault see 10 C.J. p 741 note 98.

(3) Interstate commerce rules do not so peremptorily require validation of return tickets at a terminal point as to authorize the ejection of passengers because their tickets are not validated, where the want of validation is due to a refusal by the agent at the terminal point.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Wharton, Tex.Civ.App., 145 S.W. 282.

95. N.C.—Norman v. East Carolina R. Co, 77 S.E. 345, 161 N.C. 330, Ann.Cas.1914D 917.

portation.[96]

Condition prohibiting stop-over. A passenger traveling on a ticket or pass which is good only for a continuous trip may be ejected if he stops over and then resumes his journey without paying fare.[97] On the other hand, ejection was held unlawful where permission to stop over was secured from an authorized train agent.[98]

Conditions as to signing and identification. There is authority holding that the mere absence of a purchaser's signature on a ticket requiring it does not of itself invalidate the ticket so as to subject him to ejection.[99]

Where a ticket provides that only the person to whom it was issued may use it, a passenger who presents such a ticket and does not fit the description thereon may be ejected,[1] unless the conductor to whom it is presented knows such person to be the real owner.[2] It has been both held[3] and denied[4] that a passenger may offer further proof of his identity where it appears on the face of the ticket that he is not entitled to transportation thereon.

§ 815. Where Time Limit Has Expired

A passenger riding on an expired ticket may be ejected, unless the time limit has been waived, or the failure to use the ticket within the time limit was due to the act of the carrier or its agent, or the limitation is not made apparent to the passenger.

If a ticket or transfer contains a valid limitation as to the time within which it may be used, one who insists on transportation thereunder, without paying fare, after the expiration of the limit may be ejected,[5] unless such limitation has been waived,[6] or the failure to use the ticket or transfer within the time limit is caused by some act of the carrier,[7] such as the fault of its agent in giving a mis-

96. U S.—Central Trust Co. of New York v East Tennessee, V. & G R. Co, C.C.Ga., 65 F. 332.
10 C J p 742 note 99.

Agent's refusal to countersign ticket
The fact that an agent told a passenger, upon the latter's presenting a ticket for countersignature, that it was unnecessary does not excuse a noncompliance with that condition—Central Trust Co of New York v East Tennessee, V. & G R. Co., C.C Ga, 65 F 332

97. Mo—Petty v St. Louis, etc R. Co. 130 S W. 85, 149 Mo App 360, 10 C J p 740 note 88

Indorsement of stop-over privilege on ticket
Where a carrier's regulation requires that the privilege of stopping over must be indorsed on the ticket by the conductor, one who has stopped over may be ejected upon attempting to continue his journey without such indorsement—Beebe v Ayres, 28 Barb, N Y, 275—Dunphy v Erie R. Co., 42 N.Y Super 123—Denny v New York Cent, etc, R. Co., 5 Daly, N Y, 50.

98. N Y—Tarbell v Northern Cent R. Co, 24 Hun 51

Permission from a conductor was held insufficient where authority to give it was vested exclusively in the train agent.—Petrie v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 42 N J Law 449

99. Okl—Chicago, etc, R. Co v Newburn, 110 P. 1065, 27 Okl. 9, 30 L R.A,N S, 432
10 C J. p 741 note 94.

Reason for rule
"The requirement of the signature was for the benefit of the company. It was beneficial to it that no one but the purchaser should use the ticket, and the time when that fact was intended to be made manifest was at the time of its purchase. It may be said to be a matter of common knowledge that passengers purchasing tickets state to ticket agents their route and destination and rely largely on the agents to supply them with tickets meeting their requirements. And certainly it cannot be said to be a reasonable and just rule which would permit the agent of a company to sell and deliver to a passenger a ticket in such condition that the same will be refused and the passenger ejected on its presentation."—Chicago, etc, R Co v Newburn, 110 P 1065, 1066, 27 Okl. 9, 30 L R A,N.S, 432

Waiver by agent's failure to procure signature
Even if such absence did have the effect of invalidating the ticket, a ticket agent's failure to procure the signature at the time he sold the ticket would be considered as a waiver of the requirement.—Chicago, etc., R. Co v Newburn, 110 P 1065, 27 Okl. 9, 30 L R A,N S, 432

1. N Y—Parish v. Ulster, etc., R. Co, 90 N Y S. 1000, 99 App.Div. 10.

Difference in sex
(1) Where the ticket indicates that the owner is a "Mr." and the passenger presenting it is a woman, she may be ejected, though she is in fact the true owner and the "Mr" was inserted by mistake on the part of the selling agent—Parish v Ulster, etc., R. Co, 90 N Y.S. 1000, 99 App Div. 10.

(2) But it has been held that, where a passenger was otherwise perfectly described, he may not be ejected by a conductor because the punch marks erroneously made by the selling agent indicated that the passenger was a female instead of a male.—Illinois Cent R. Co v. Gortikov, 45 So. 363, 90 Miss 787, 122 Am S R 324, 14 L R.A,N.S, 464.

2. N Y—Parish v Ulster etc., R. Co., 85 N E 153, 192 N.Y. 353, reversing 98 N Y S. 1109, 113 App Div. 894

3. Miss—Illinois Cent. R. Co v Gortikov 45 So. 363, 90 Miss. 787 122 Am.S.R. 324, 14 L.R.A.,N S., 464.

4. Ga.—Central of Georgia R. Co v. Cannon, 32 S E. 874, 106 Ga. 828.

5. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Putman, 109 So 890, 21 Ala App. 431, petition dismissed 109 So 891, 215 Ala 107.
N.Y.—Caffrey v United Traction Co, 192 N.Y.S 95, 199 App.Div 208.
10 C.J p 742 note 2
Time limit generally see supra § 618.

6. Ill—Pennington v. Illinois Cent R Co, 69 Ill.App 628
Iowa.—Trezona v Chicago, etc, R Co, 77 N W. 486, 107 Iowa 22, 43 L R.A 136

Permitting part of journey
The fact that a passenger was permitted to ride part of his journey on an expired ticket does not constitute a waiver of the time limitation—Hill v Syracuse, etc., R Co, 63 N. Y 101

7. Ohio—Diehl v Cincinnati Traction Co, 6 Ohio App 151
Okl—Atchison, T & S. F. Ry Co. v Vosburg, 270 P. 58, 132 Okl. 196.
10 C J. p 742 note 4

Absence of car at transfer point during time limit
Mich—Heffron v Detroit City R. Co, 52 N W 802, 92 Mich. 406, 31 Am.S R. 601, 16 L R.A. 345
N.Y—Daniel v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 121 N.Y.S 577, 67 Misc 78.

dated ticket,[8] or one which has expired or will expire before the journey can be completed.[9] If the limitation does not appear on the face of the ticket, but is based on some rule not known to him, a passenger who in good faith attempts to use the ticket in violation of such a rule may not be ejected.[10]

However, it has been held that a conductor must rely entirely on the face of the ticket in determining its validity, and that he need not accept a passenger's statement as to why he has an expired ticket.[11]

§ 816. Where Defect Is Due to Agent's Mistake

a. Rule that ticket is conclusive evidence as to right to transportation
b. Rule that ticket is not conclusive evidence as to right to transportation
c. Reliance on representations of agent

a. Rule That Ticket Is Conclusive Evidence as to Right to Transportation

In several jurisdictions, the face of a ticket is held conclusive as to the passenger's right to transportation, so that if, because of the fault of the carrier's agent, it is defective or invalid, the passenger may be ejected without a hearing of his account of the transaction.

In contrast to the rule stated in subdivision b of this section, it is held in several jurisdictions that, even though the defect or invalidity appearing on a ticket or transfer is due to the fault or mistake of an agent of the carrier, yet a conductor may eject a passenger presenting such a ticket or transfer, on the ground that, as between the conductor and passenger, the face of the ticket is conclusive as to the passenger's right or lack of right, to transportation,[12] and that, in such a case, the conductor need not listen to or believe the passenger's account of the transaction, but the passenger should either pay his fare or walk quietly off the train, and then resort to an action against the company for breach of contract.[13] This is particularly true where the passenger by using ordinary diligence could have discovered the mistake.[14]

b. Rule That Ticket Is Not Conclusive Evidence as to Right to Transportation

In some jurisdictions, the rule is that, where the fault of a carrier's agent is the cause of a passenger's having a defective or invalid ticket, the conductor should listen to the passenger's explanation, if reasonable, and that the carrier is liable if the passenger is ejected; but if the passenger fails to exercise ordinary prudence in accepting a defective ticket, ejection may be justifiable.

Although a different rule has considerable support, as shown in subdivision a of this section, authorities in a number of jurisdictions support the rule that a carrier may not rightfully eject a passenger who, without fault on his own part, presents a ticket or transfer which is defective or invalid, when the defect in, or the invalidity of, the ticket is due to the fault, mistake, or negligence of one of the carrier's agents,[15] as where such agent issues

Incorrectly punched transfer

(1) Where a conductor punched an erroneous time on a passenger's transfer, the carrier is liable if it ejects the passenger for presenting an invalid transfer.—Diehl v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 6 Ohio App. 151.

(2) Where the time on a transfer is punched in two different places, the one indicating an earlier time and the other a later time, the one which would indicate that the transfer is valid should be accepted as the correct punch—Laird v. Pittsburg Traction Co., 31 A. 51, 166 Pa. 4

Wrong time limit on round trip ticket

Tex.—Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Halbrook, 33 S.W. 1028, 12 Tex.Civ.App. 475.

8. Okl.—Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vosburg, 270 P. 58, 132 Okl. 196. 10 C.J. p. 743 note 5.

9. Ark.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Furlow, 99 S.W. 689, 81 Ark. 496. 10 C.J. p. 743 note 5.

10. Ga.—Georgia R. Co. v. Baldoni, 12 S.E. 364, 115 Ga. 1013.
Mass.—Maroney v. Old Colony, etc., R. Co., 106 Mass. 153, 8 Am.R. 305
Mich.—Carvey v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 95 N.W. 716, 133 Mich. 659.

11. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Putman, 109 So. 890, 21 Ala. App. 431, petition dismissed 109 So. 891; 215 Ala. 107.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Brown, 144 S.E. 708, 151 Va. 686.

12. Cal.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 193 P. 130, 184 Cal. 202.
Contra Elser v. Southern Pac. Co., 94 P. 852, 7 Cal.App. 493.
Ill.—Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Connell, 112 Ill. 295, 54 Am.R. 238
Contra Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 88.
Pa.—Anderson v. Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist. 41.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Brown, 144 S.E. 708, 151 Va. 686—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Wynne, 141 S.E. 829, 149 Va. 882.
10 C.J. p. 743 note 8.
Nature and effect of ticket generally see supra § 603.

So under statute

Cal.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 193 P. 130, 184 Cal. 202.

Street car and steam railroad distinguished

'The conclusion . . . [is not warranted] that the conductor of a street passenger railway car stands in the same position to his employer as an agent whose assurances when selling a ticket bind his employer as does the ticket agent of a steam railroad company."—Anderson v. Union Traction Company, 7 Pa.Dist. 41, 47.

13. Cal.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 193 P. 130, 184 Cal. 202.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Brown, 144 S.E. 708, 151 Va. 686 10 C.J. p. 743 note 8.

14. N.Y.—Wiggins v. King, 36 N.Y.S. 768, 91 Hun 340

15. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Smith, 123 N.E. 4, 70 Ind. App. 40.
Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Mullen, 131 So. 101, 158 Miss. 774.
Mo.—Ferguson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 177 S.W. 616—Ferguson v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., App., 186 S.W. 1134.
N.C.—Creech v. Atlantic Coast Line

a ticket which is not for the route or destination designated by the passenger.[16] In such a case, it is the duty of the conductor to listen to a reasonable explanation by the passenger as to why his ticket or transfer apparently does not entitle him to the desired transportation;[17] but it is not a conductor's duty to accept an explanation which is untrue in fact, although apparently reasonable.[18]

The rule first stated is particularly applicable where, from the ticket itself, or from surrounding circumstances known to the conductor, the probability of a mistake on the part of the agent in issuing the ticket is so strong as to reasonably require further investigation before the passenger is ejected.[19] Conversely, an ejection may be justifiable if the passenger himself is mainly at fault with regard to the mistake, as where he accepts and attempts to use a ticket which he knows or by the use of ordinary prudence or diligence could know is defective.[20] On his part, it is the passenger's duty to heed the reasonable explanations and warnings of the conductor or other agents of the carrier.[21]

A conductor need not carry out a ticket agent's agreement, or allow a passenger to ride on a ticket, when to do so would result in a violation of law,[22] although the carrier might be liable for the agent's wrongful act in furnishing the ticket[23]

c. Reliance on Representations of Agent

According to some authorities, a passenger has a right to rely on the representations of a carrier's agent with respect to the validity of his ticket, even as against the terms of the ticket itself, if the agent has apparent authority to make such representations, and ejection in such circumstances is improper; but other authorities hold to the contrary.

In conformity with the rule set out in subdivision b of this section supra, that ejection is improper where the defect in a ticket is due to the fault of the carrier's agent, authorities in several jurisdictions hold that where a passenger is not reasonably chargeable with knowledge as to the nature of the ticket furnished him by the agent, he is not bound as a matter of law to read his ticket, but has a right to rely on the agent's representations, and may recover for being ejected from a train on which he supposed that he had a right to be transported, although, so far as the conductor ejecting him is concerned, the ticket was not good on that train under the carrier's rules.[24] Even as against

R Co, 93 S E 453, 174 N C. 61, L R A.1918D 1030.
Ohio—Diehl v. Cincinnati Traction Co, 6 Ohio App 151.
Okl—Atchison, T & S. F Ry. Co v Vosburg, 270 P 58, 60 132 Okl. 196, citing Corpus Juris.
Tenn—Louisville & N R. Co v. Hadley, 11 Tenn.App 642.
10 C J. p 744 note 11, p 745 note 14.

Improper transfer ticket given by conductor
Ind.—Union Traction Co of Indiana v. Smith, 123 N E. 4, 70 Ind.App 40
Ohio—Diehl v. Cincinnati Traction Co, 6 Ohio App. 151.

Mutilated ticket
(1) A carrier is liable for the refusal of the conductor to accept a valid ticket and for ejecting the passenger, even though the ticket was mutilated and difficult to decipher, unless the condition of the ticket which rendered it defective was the fault of the passenger—Houston, etc., R Co. v. Crone, Tex Civ App., 37 S.W. 1074.

(2) That a ticket in two parts, the upper of which entitled a holder to travel on a connecting line, was so torn by the conductor that part of the upper half was missing did not justify an ejection by the connecting carrier because of the mutilation of the ticket—Rouser v North Park St R. Co, 56 N W 937, 97 Mich 565.

An agent's failure to issue a going coupon along with the return coupon of a round trip ticket does not give a conductor the right to eject a person presenting such ticket.—Ferguson v Missouri Pac. Ry Co, Mo.App, 186 S W. 1134

An agent's act in changing the point of destination designated in a ticket creates liability on the carrier for a subsequent ejection by a conductor, especially where the latter is not entirely free from blame because of his refusal to send a telegram, at the passenger's expense, to ascertain the facts—Creech v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co, 93 S E. 453, 174 N.C 61, L R A.1918D 1030.

Where a conductor has actual knowledge that a ticket entitles the person presenting it to transportation, he may not rightfully eject such person, even though the face of the ticket apparently indicates otherwise. —Parish v. Ulster, etc, R. Co, 85 N E 153, 192 N.Y 353 reversing 98 N.Y S 1109, 113 App Div. 894.

16. Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co v. Parker, 139 S E. 581, 37 Ga App. 218.
Tenn—Louisville & N R Co v Hadley, 11 Tenn App 642.

The passenger's failure to examine the ticket is not negligence; he "has the right to assume that the agent has issued him the ticket applied for."—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Parker, 139 S.E. 581, 583, 37 Ga.App 218.

17. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Smith, 123 N.E. 4, 70 Ind App. 40.

Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R Co v. Mullen, 131 So. 101, 158 Miss. 774.
Tenn.—Louisville & N R. Co v. Hadley, 11 Tenn.App 642.
10 C.J. p 744 note 11, p 745 note 13

18. Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co v. Mullen, 131 So 101, 158 Miss 774.

If a conductor is in doubt as to the truth of a reasonable explanation of a defect in a ticket, his refusal to accept the explanation is at the peril of liability on the part of his company.—Yazoo & M. V R Co v Mullen, 131 So. 101, 158 Miss. 774.

19. U S—Baltimore & O. R. Co. v Thornton, Va., 188 F. 868, 110 C C A. 502
10 C J. p 745 note 12.

20. Ohio.—Diehl v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 6 Ohio App. 151.
10 C J. p 744 note 11, p 745 note 15.

21. S C—Saunders v Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 85 S E 167, 101 S C 11.

22. S C—Saunders v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., supra.

23. S C—Saunders v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co, supra.

24. S C—Smith v. Southern R. Co, 70 S E. 1057, 88 S.C. 421, 34 L.R A., N S., 708
10 C J. p 745 note 19.
Representations and acts of agent relative to tickets generally see supra § 602.

Defect not apparent on face of ticket
If the defect in a ticket is not apparent on its face to the purchaser, the terms of the ticket itself it has been held that the passenger may rely on representations of the agent as to the sufficiency of the ticket which is furnished him,[25] or which he presents as evidence of his right to transportation,[26] provided the agent has apparent authority to make such representations,[27] and provided the passenger to whom they are made does not have actual knowledge that the agent is acting without authority and in violation of a company rule or limitation in the ticket.[28] A passenger is not presumed to know that the agent is acting without authority.[29]

On the other hand, on the theory, set out in subdivision a of this section supra, that a conductor need not accept a passenger's explanation as against the face of the ticket, it has been held by some authorities that a passenger may be ejected when his ticket affirmatively shows that he has no right to transportation, even though he was told by an employee that it would be good.[30]

§ 817. Taking Wrong Train

If a passenger is at fault for taking the wrong train, such as one that does not stop at his destination, he may be ejected unless he pays fare, if the carrier, through its agents, is at fault, the passenger may, under some authorities, but not under others, be ejected on his failure to pay fare.

In general it is the duty of the passenger to ascertain what train will take him to his destination, and if, through his own carelessness or mistake and without being misled by those authorized to act for the carrier in the matter, he takes the wrong train, or one which does not stop at his point of destination, and does not pay the fare, he may properly be ejected therefrom.[31] Thus, where a passenger boards a train which does not, under the rules of the company, stop at the station for which he is bound, he may be required to pay fare to the first station beyond, where the train does stop, and, on his refusal so to do, he may be put off the train at and he relies on the agent's representation that it is good for passage, his subsequent ejection by a conductor for failure to have a proper ticket is wrongful.—Murdock v Boston, etc., R Co., 137 Mass 293, 50 Am R. 307.

Limitation on back of pass

A person holding a pass is not bound by a limitation which appears on the reverse side rather than the face, in the absence of proof that he had actually read it.—San Antonio, etc., P. R. Co. v. Newman, 43 S.W. 915, 17 Tex.Civ.App. 606.

25. U.S.—New York, L. E. & W. R. Co v. Winter, Mass., 12 S.Ct. 356, 143 U.S. 60, 36 L.Ed. 71.
S.C.—Smith v. Southern R. Co., 70 S.E. 1057, 88 S.C. 421 34 L.R.A., N.S., 708
Tenn.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hadley, 11 Tenn.App. 642.
10 C.J. p 746 note 21.

Reason for rule

The ticket is not conclusive of the right of a passenger to transportation, but he may stand on his contract with the agent.—Gulf etc., R. Co v. Rather, 21 S.W. 951, 3 Tex.Civ. App. 72.

Written extension of time indorsed on ticket

La.—Randall v New Orleans, etc., R. Co., 13 So. 166, 45 La.Ann. 778.

Ticket for wrong destination

Where the ticket agent himself erroneously issues a ticket for the wrong destination and, on this fact being called to his attention assures the purchaser that it is good to the desired destination, an ejection by a conductor, to whom these facts are explained, is wrongful.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hadley, 11 Tenn.App. 642.

Agent's failure to correct wrong impression

Where a ticket was good for a certain number of days and the purchaser gave his interpretation of what day was intended as the expiration date and the ticket agent did not correct him, the purchaser was held to be entitled to transportation until the day named by him without being subject to ejection—Nelson v. Long Island R. R. Co., 7 Hun, N.Y., 140.

Where two railroads have a joint agent and use the same track the passenger may rely on the representations of such agent that a ticket sold for one will be good on the train of the other—Texas, etc., R Co v Dye, Tex Civ App., 33 S.W. 551

26. Ind.—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co v. Street, 59 N.E. 404, 26 Ind.App. 224.

A mileage ticket providing that it must be exchanged for a regular transportation ticket may nevertheless entitle one to transportation without having been so exchanged where it was presented to a ticket agent who was out of regular tickets and who represented that it would be good for the desired transportation.—Pittsburgh, etc., R Co. v. Street, 59 N.E 404, 26 Ind.App. 224.

27. S.C.—Smith v Southern R. Co., 70 S.E. 1057, 88 S.C. 421
Tex.—San Antonio, etc., P. R Co v Newman, 43 S.W. 915, 17 Tex Civ App. 606, 34 L.R.A.,N.S., 708.

28. Tex.—San Antonio, etc., P. R Co. v. Newman, supra.

29. S.C.—Smith v Southern R. Co., 70 S.E. 1057, 88 S.C. 421, 34 L.R.A., N.S., 708.
10 C.J. p 746 note 22.

30. Cal.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry Corporation, 193 P. 130, 184 Cal 202.
10 C.J. p 746 note 23.

Statement by street car conductor

Cal.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry Corporation, 193 P. 130, 184 Cal 202.

31. Ala.—Louisville & N. R Co v Copeland, 117 So 176, 217 Ala. 556—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547
Iowa.—Wilkes v Chicago, R. I. & P Ry. Co., 198 N.W. 44, 198 Iowa 832, 36 A.L.R. 1012
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co v. Hawkins, 293 S.W. 972, 219 Ky. 400, citing Corpus Juris.
N.Y.—Fagan v Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 115 N.E. 704, 220 N.Y. 301, L.R.A 1917E 663, reversing 155 N.Y.S 609, 170 App.Div. 47.
10 C.J. p 737 note 64.
Payment of fare by passenger on wrong train see supra § 596

Passenger as trespasser

Railroad may consider one taking passage on train not scheduled to stop at his destination as a trespasser.—Fagan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 115 N.E. 704, 220 N.Y. 301, L.R.A 1917E 663, reversing 155 N.Y.S 609, 170 App.Div. 47.

Going in wrong direction

Ind.—Godfrey v. Ohio, etc., R. Co., 18 N.E. 61, 116 Ind. 30.
Tex.—England v International, etc., R Co., 73 S.W. 24, 32 Tex.Civ.App 86.

Ticket invalid under interstate commerce schedule

Iowa.—Foley v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 217 N.W. 563, 205 Iowa 72.

a point short of his destination,[32] such as the preceding stopping place,[33] unless the rule prohibiting the train from stopping at his station has been waived or has become obsolete by its continued nonenforcement.[34]

Where carrier is at fault If the carrier is responsible for the mistake of a passenger in taking the wrong train,[35] as where the passenger was misled by the acts or statements of the carrier's agents,[36] such passenger, according to some authorities, may not rightfully be ejected. It has been said to be the carrier's duty to give the passenger such information or instruction as is reasonably necessary to enable him to pursue his journey with safety and dispatch,[37] and the passenger may rely on such information or instruction given him by the carrier's agents when they are acting within the apparent scope of their authority[38] Further, in the absence of information to the contrary, a passenger may rely on a custom of the carrier to carry passengers on a particular train on like tickets.[39] However, if the passenger knows, or has reason to believe, that the information given him by an employee is incorrect,[40] as where it is manifestly erroneous,[41] or that there is a rule or regulation of the carrier making the agent incompetent to give such information[42] or prohibiting the conductor from stopping the train at the station at which the passenger wishes to stop,[43] ejection is not wrongful.

On the other hand, other authorities hold that, even though a carrier through its agents, is at fault, it is the passenger's duty, when informed that he is on the wrong train, to get off and wait for the proper train or to tender the proper fare, and that he cannot recover damages for an ejection, his remedy being to recover for the damages caused by the servant's misdirection.[44] Thus a passenger who boards a train that does not stop at his destination may be required to leave the train at the first regular stopping place, if there is one, or, if not, to pay fare to the next station beyond his destination and, on refusal to do so, may suffer ejection.[45] Further, it has been held that infor-

32. Ky—Flood v Chesapeake, etc, R. Co., 80 S W. 184, 25 Ky L. 2135.
10 C J p 737 note 65

33. Tex.—Missouri, etc, R. Co v Dice, Civ.App., 168 S.W. 478
10 C J p 737 note 66.

34. Tex—Missouri, etc., R. Co v Herring 127 S W. 1155 130 S W 1039, 61 Tex Civ.App 543
10 C J p 738 note 67

35. Ill.—Davis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co, 233 Ill.App 539
Iowa—Wilkes v Chicago, R I & P Ry Co, 198 N W 44, 198 Iowa 832, 36 A.L R. 1012.
Pa.—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R Co, 94 Pa Super 50.
10 C J p 738 note 68
Rule that ticket is not conclusive as to passenger's right to transportation see supra § 816 b

Conductor's and carrier's wrong distinguished

"The conflict in the cases arises, in some instances, from the fact that the court has looked alone to the act of the conductor in ejecting a traveler presenting a ticket entitling him to be transported to a station at which the train did not stop, and, finding it to be one he was authorized or required to do by instructions or regulations the carrier was entitled to promulgate, has reached the conclusion that his act was not wrongful . . . This reasoning ignores the fact that the question is not between the complaining party and the conductor, but between such party and the company, and that the conductor's act may be one required of him by the company, and yet one that the company itself, in the situation presented, had no right to do . . . The act of the conductor in ejecting the passenger may be rightful from his standpoint, and yet wrongful from the standpoint of the company where, acting through another authorized agent, it had directed the passenger to take the train."—Wilkes v Chicago, R I & P Ry. Co., 198 N.W 44, 46, 197 Iowa 832.

A conductor must listen to the explanation of a passenger on the wrong train, to the effect that the ticket agent who sold her her ticket and the conductor on the previous train had told her that her ticket entitled her to travel over that route.—Illinois Cent. R. Co v. Harper, 35 So. 764, 83 Miss. 560, 102 Am.S R 469, 64 L R.A 283.

36. Ill—Davis v. Illinois Cent. R Co, 233 Ill.App 539
Ky—Louisville & N R Co. v. Hawkins, 293 S W 972, 219 Ky 400
Pa—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R. Co, 94 Pa Super. 50, 54, citing Corpus Juris.
Tex—Southern Pac. Co v Ulmer, Civ.App, 282 S W. 305, affirmed, Com App., 286 S W. 193
10 C J p 738 note 68

Passenger directed to train by gatekeeper to whom ticket was presented—Louisville & N. R. Co v Hawkins, 293 S.W 972, 219 Ky. 400

"Where two roads jointly maintain a Union Station and run into and out of that station, and a party holding a ticket over one of the roads, by misdirection of their joint employés or the employés of the wrong train, takes passage on the wrong train, the true rule is that she is not a trespasser . . but is entitled to ride on the wrong train to the reasonably safe and convenient point from which she can reach a train on the proper road . . . and her ejection at . . . [such a] point . . . [is] proper"—Mobile & O R. Co. v. Dill, 191 S W. 80, 81, 173 Ky 412.

37. Pa.—Weathers v Pennsylvania R Co, 94 Pa.Super. 50.

38. Pa—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R Co, supra.
Tex.—Missouri, etc. R Co. v. Carlisle, Civ App, 145 S W. 653.
10 C.J p 738 note 68 [b]
Reliance on agent's representations when ticket is defective see supra § 816 c.

39. Cal.—Delmonte v. Southern Pac. Co, 83 P. 269, 2 Cal.App. 211

40. Ga—Atkinson v. Southern R. Co, 39 S.E. 888, 114 Ga. 146, 55 L R.A. 223
Md.—Johnson v. Philadelphia, etc, R Co, 63 Md. 106

41. Pa.—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R Co, 94 Pa Super 50.

42. Ga—Atkinson v. Southern R Co 39 S.E. 888, 114 Ga. 146, 55 L R A 223.

43. Ga.—Atkinson v. Southern R. Co, supra.

44. Mo—Drew v Wabash R. Co, 107 S W. 478, 129 Mo App 459
10 C J p 738 note 72.
Rule that ticket is conclusive of a passenger's right to transportation see supra § 816 a.

45. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co v Copeland, 117 So 176, 217 Ala 556
—Louisville & N R Co v Crick, 117 So 167, 217 Ala. 547

mation as to the train upon which a passenger's ticket entitles him to transportation, or as to the time of the train's departure, need be furnished by the ticket agent only upon a due request therefor;[46] accordingly, the failure of a ticket agent voluntarily to tell a passenger over which of two roads his ticket is good is not such negligence as to authorize a recovery from the company for the passenger's ejection from a train on which the ticket is not good, particularly where the ticket shows plainly over which road it is good.[47]

§ 818. Mistake of Conductor as to Right to Transportation

a. In general

b. First conductor's failure to give proper evidence of right to continue journey

a. In General

A carrier is liable for a passenger's ejection resulting from the mistake or lack of judgment of the conductor to whom such passenger presents a ticket or transfer which should entitle him to transportation, even though the conductor acts in good faith; but where the latter has mistakenly exacted less than the proper fare and requests the balance, the passenger may be ejected for refusal to pay.

Where the passenger has done what is necessary under the rules of the carrier to entitle him to transportation, the carrier will be liable for his ejection from the vehicle by reason of mistake or want of judgment on the part of the conductor ejecting him, although the conductor acts in good faith,[48] as the conductor's good faith in such cases will be material only on the question of punitive damages.[49] If a conductor knows, or has good reason to know, that a passenger is entitled to transportation, the carrier will be liable for the latter's ejection, although the evidence of the right to ride which the passenger produces is technically irregular or insufficient.[50] A carrier is liable for the ejection of a passenger for failure to pay fare after the conductor has accepted and retained the ticket,[51] or refused to honor a valid ticket[52] or transfer,[53] it being unnecessary in such a case, for the passenger to pay his fare and then resort to an action to recover it back.[54]

If a conductor has by mistake taken less than the required fare, and he subsequently demands the balance, the passenger may be ejected if he refuses

Reason for rule

The ticket "is the sole and conclusive evidence of the contract for transportation between a passenger who boards a train that does not stop at his destination, and the conductor."—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 171, 217 Ala. 547.

46. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547.
10 C.J. p 739 note 73.

47. Ky.—McKinley v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 127 S.W. 483, 137 Ky. 845, 28 L.R.A.,N.S., 611.
10 C.J. p 739 notes 73, 74.

48. Ohio.—Cincinnati Northern Tract. Co. v. Rosnagle, 95 N.E. 884, 84 Ohio St. 310, 35 L.R.A.,N.S., 1030, Ann.Cas.1912C 639.
10 C.J. p 746 note 24.

Refusal to receive genuine, although worn coin

Ill.—Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. McClevey, 126 Ill.App. 21.
Mo.—Ruth v. St. Louis Transit Co., 71 S.W. 1055, 98 Mo.App. 1.
Ohio.—Cincinnati Northern Tract. Co. v. Rosnagle, 95 N.E. 884, 84 Ohio St. 310, 35 L.R.A.,N.S., 1030, Ann.Cas.1912C 639.
10 C.J. p 746 note 24 [a].

A conductor's refusal to accept mileage coupons for a passenger's fare and his ejection of the passenger are wrongful where the passenger had attempted to comply with the requirement that the coupons be exchanged for a ticket but had been refused such an exchange by the ticket agent.—Dorsett v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 72 S.E. 491, 156 N.C. 439.

49. N.C.—Edwards v. Southern R. Co., 78 S.E. 219, 162 N.C. 278.

50. Minn.—Krueger v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 71 N.W. 683, 68 Minn. 445, 64 Am.S.R. 487.
10 C.J. p 747 note 37.
Probability of agent's mistake see supra § 816 b.

Transfer with correct and incorrect punches

Where a transfer has two punches, one correct and the other showing it to be invalid, as being too old, the conductor has no right to treat the transfer as old and ignore the correct time punched thereon, and the company is liable for the passenger's ejection.—Laird v. Pittsburgh Tract. Co., 31 A. 51, 166 Pa. 4.

Rule or practice as to transfers

(1) A transfer designating a different line from the one on which the holder is traveling, but which is valid according to the rule and practice of the carrier, may not be rejected by a conductor, even though a statute requiring the carrier to issue transfers did not require that such a rule and practice be adopted by the carrier.—Arnold v. Rhode Island Co., 66 A. 60, 28 R.I. 118, 163, 125 Am.S.R. 721—10 C.J. p 746 note 30.

(2) A conductor may not refuse to accept a transfer issued at a certain point on the ground that the carrier did not issue transfers at that point, when such a transfer had in fact been issued and the company was bound by law to issue transfers at such point.—Chiert v. Interurban St. R. Co., 92 N.Y.S. 781.

51. N.C.—Mott v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 79 S.E. 867, 164 N.C. 367—Edwards v. Southern R. Co., 78 S.E. 219, 162 N.C. 278.
Pa.—Case v. Delaware, etc., R. Co., 43 A. 319, 191 Pa. 450.
10 C.J. p 746 note 26.

52. Ky.—Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Carson, 140 S.W. 71, 145 Ky. 81.
Mo.—Ferguson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 128 S.W. 799, 144 Mo.App. 262.
Tex.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Lynch, 94 S.W. 1093, 43 Tex.Civ.App. 121.

Where a ticket is apparently genuine, a conductor is bound to ascertain that it was not purchased from the company's agent, as stated by the passenger, before he may eject him.—Ferguson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 128 S.W. 799, 144 Mo.App. 262.

53. R.I.—Arnold v. Rhode Island Co., 66 A. 60, 28 R.I. 118, 163, 125 Am.S.R. 721.

54. R.I.—Arnold v. Rhode Island Co., supra.
10 C.J. p 746 note 29.

to pay the additional fare and attempts to ride further than the distance for which he has paid.[55]

b. First Conductor's Failure to Give Proper Evidence of Right to Continue Journey

Where one conductor is at fault in failing to give a passenger proper evidence of his right to transportation to present to a succeeding conductor, the passenger, according to some authorities, may not be ejected by the latter if he makes explanation and is without fault and in good faith, but, according to other authorities, the passenger may be ejected in such a case if he refuses to pay fare.

Where one conductor is required to furnish a passenger with proper evidence to be presented to a succeeding conductor showing the passenger's right to be transported and continue his journey on the second conductor's car or train, and the first conductor, through mistake or negligence, fails to furnish proper evidence and in consequence the passenger is ejected by the second conductor for refusal to pay fare, the carrier, according to some authorities is liable for the ejection,[56] in such a case the second conductor should heed the passenger's explanation as to why he could not produce proper evidence of his right to continue his journey.[57] Thus a carrier is liable for a passenger's ejection resulting from the first conductor's taking up the passenger's ticket,[58] or the "hat check" given in lieu of the ticket,[59] and leaving the latter with nothing to show his right to continue his journey on a succeeding train; and the same result is reached where a conductor or other authorized employee tears off and returns to a passenger the wrong part of his ticket.[60] A passenger ejected for lack of proper evidence of his right to transportation must not be at fault himself if he is to recover, as for wrongful ejection, on the ground that such lack was due to a conductor's mistake,[61] thus he cannot knowingly board a car with a ticket which on its face does not entitle him to ride.[62] A passenger accepting a transfer in good faith is not bound to stop and examine it to see that no mistake has been made as he may assume that the conductor has given him a proper transfer.[63]

On the other hand, there are authorities holding that a succeeding conductor is not required to heed a passenger's explanation as to the first conductor's mistake, and may eject him upon his failure to present proper evidence of his right to transportation and his refusal to pay fare,[64] and that the passenger, in such a case, should pay fare or leave the

55. Ind.—Lake Erie, etc., R. Co v. Mayo, 30 N.E. 1106, 4 Ind.App. 413
10 C.J. p 747 note 32

56. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Smith, 123 N.E. 4, 70 Ind App 40.
Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co v. Mullen, 131 So 101, 158 Miss 774.
Ohio—Diehl v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 6 Ohio App. 151.
10 C.J. p 747 note 34—p 748 note 45.
Defect due to mistake of agent generally see supra § 816.

Defective or invalid transfer
Ind.—Union Traction Co of Indiana v. Smith, 123 N.E. 4, 70 Ind.App. 40.
Ohio—Diehl v Cincinnati Traction Co., 6 Ohio App 151
10 C.J. p 748 note 45

57. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v Smith, 123 N.E. 4, 70 Ind App 40
Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Mullen, 131 So. 101, 158 Miss 774
10 C.J. p 748 note 45.

Explanation must be reasonable and true
Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co v. Mullen, 131 So 101, 158 Miss. 774.

Passenger's failure to make any explanation before he is put off the car will not defeat recovery, but may be considered as bearing on the question of his good faith.—Cleveland City R. Co. v. Conner, 78 N.E. 376, 74 Ohio St. 225, 6 Ann.Cas. 941.

58. Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Mullen, 131 So 101, 158 Miss. 774
10 C.J. p 747 note 35.

Passengers stopping over
U.S.—Scofield v. Pennsylvania Co., Ohio, 112 F. 855, 50 C.C.A. 553, 56 L.R.A. 224.

Passenger changing trains
N.C.—Sawyer v Norfolk Southern R. Co., 86 S.E. 166, 171 N.C. 13
10 C.J. p 747 note 35.

59. Miss.—Yazoo & M. V. R. Co v. Mullen, 131 So. 101, 158 Miss. 774

60. N.Y.—Cohen v Erie R. Co., 160 N.Y.S. 1091, 97 Misc. 1.
10 C.J. p 747 note 36

Return part of round-trip ticket
(1) Where a passenger on his return journey presents the going part of a round-trip ticket and is ejected because of that fact, the carrier is liable if the conductor on the going trip by mistake tore off and retained the return part of the ticket.—Cohen v. Erie R. Co., 160 N.Y.S. 1091, 97 Misc. 1—10 C.J. p 747 note 39.

(2) In such a case however, there may be no recovery for a wrongful ejection unless the passenger was ignorant of the conductor's mistake and his ignorance was due to no negligence of his own.—Wiggins v King, 36 N.Y.S. 768, 91 Hun 340—10 C.J. p 748 note 40 [a].

(3) If the action is brought for a breach of contract, there may be a recovery of compensatory damages resulting from the failure, because of the first conductor's negligence, to carry the passenger.—Harrison v Pennsylvania R. Co., 118 N.Y.S. 1022.

61. Ohio.—Diehl v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 6 Ohio App. 151.

62. N.Y.—Nicholson v Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 103 N.Y.S. 310, 118 App.Div. 13

63. Ohio.—Diehl v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 6 Ohio App. 151.
10 C.J. p 748 note 46.

64. Cal.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 193 P. 130, 184 Cal. 202.
10 C.J. p 747 note 38—p 748 notes 41, 43.

Reason for rule
"To make the conductor the judge of the truth of the passenger's statements against the conditions printed on the transfer itself would tend to demoralize the orderly conduct of the business of the carrier, and give rise to disputes and breaches of the peace."—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry Corporation, 193 P. 130, 131, 184 Cal. 202

Transfer invalid at point where offered
Cal.—Wasserman v Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 193 P. 130, 184 Cal. 202

Evidence corroborating passenger's explanation
The conductor on a train, to which a passenger making the first half of a round trip had changed, need not accept the statement that the first car,[65] and seek redress against the carrier for breach of its contract to give a proper transfer.[66]

§ 819. Failure or Refusal to Comply with Regulations

a. In general
b. Riding on freight trains

a. In General

A carrier may enforce its reasonable rules and regulations, such as those pertaining to the reservation of cars for women, the separation of races, and the conducting of business in its vehicle or premises, by ejecting from its vehicle or premises a person violating such rules; but the enforcement must be reasonable and in good faith.

A passenger is bound to conform to the reasonable rules and proper regulations of the carrier on whose vehicle he is traveling,[67] and upon his failure to do so may be ejected from the vehicle or premises.[68]

The enforcement of regulations must be reasonable and in good faith, and a passenger should not be ejected if it appears to the employee acting for the company that the failure to comply has been without fault on the part of the passenger;[69] and a conductor has no right to discriminate against a passenger in enforcing a company rule.[70] While a rule requiring the exhibition of tickets before entering a train,[71] or prohibiting the entrance to a train in a certain manner, as by leaping on to the rear platform,[72] may be enforced by preventing the forbidden act, the violation of such rule should not be made the ground for a subsequent ejection from the train when the occasion for enforcing the rule has passed.[73]

Apart from the particular rules and regulations considered in this section, the effect of a passenger's failure to comply with the reasonable rules or regulations of a carrier is considered in other connections in §§ 810, 811, and 815–818 supra, and §§ 821, 824–826, 828 and 829 infra.

Reservation of cars for women. A male passenger who enters a car in violation of a reasonable regulation reserving it for the accommodation of women and their male escorts may be ejected therefrom if he enters it with knowledge of such regulation or refuses to leave it after being informed thereof;[74] but it has been held that, since a carrier is bound to furnish seats to passengers, if practicable, see supra § 645, a male passenger who peaceably enters the "ladies' car" because he conductor had taken up the going coupon and failed to issue a check evidencing the passenger's right to continue that part of his journey, even though such passenger could show his return trip coupons, as such coupons were not conclusive of the fact that he had purchased a round-trip ticket.—Van Dusan v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 56 N.W. 848, 97 Mich. 439, 37 Am.S.R. 354.

65. Neb.—Jones v. Omaha, etc., R. Co., 146 N.W. 959, 95 Neb. 798.
10 C.J. p. 748 note 43.

66. Ark.—Little Rock R., etc., Co. v. Goerner, 95 S.W. 1007, 80 Ark. 158, 7 L.R.A.,N.S., 97, 10 Ann.Cas. 273, distinguished in St. Louis etc., R. Co. v. Baty, 114 S.W. 218, 88 Ark. 282.
10 C.J. p. 748 note 43.

67. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547.
N.Y.—Caffrey v. United Traction Co., 192 N.Y.S. 95, 199 App.Div. 208.
10 C.J. p. 730 note 1.
Power of carrier to make regulations generally see supra § 570

The Corpus Juris text is cited in Davis v. Kirklen, Tex.Civ.App., 253 S.W. 330, 331.

68. Cal.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 193 P. 130, 131, 184 Cal. 203, quoting Corpus Juris statement.
N.Y.—Caffrey v. United Traction Co., 192 N.Y.S. 95, 199 App.Div. 208.
10 C.J. p. 729 note 95–p. 730 note 1.

Intoxicated passenger
Ky.—Stringfield v. Louisville R. Co., 105 S.W. 1190, 32 Ky.Law 578.

Dogs accompanying passengers
(1) A passenger may be ejected for failure to comply with a regulation prohibiting dogs in a passenger coach.
Iowa.—Gregory v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 69 N.W. 532, 100 Iowa 345
Mass.—Hull v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 96 N.E. 58, 210 Mass. 159, 36 L.R.A.,N.S., 406, Ann.Cas.1912C 1147.

(2) But it has been held that a passenger's ejection from a street car is not justified by his failure to comply with a rule requiring all dogs, when carried on the cars, to be tied in the front vestibule.—Little Rock R. etc., Co. v. Bracy, 165 S.W. 450, 111 Ark. 613.

Standing on platform
(1) A passenger may be ejected for violation of a regulation against riding on the platform of a car.
Ark.—Dobbins v. Little Rock R., etc., Co., 95 S.W. 794, 79 Ark. 85, 9 Ann.Cas. 84
N.Y.—Montgomery v. Buffalo R. Co., 58 N.E. 770, 165 N.Y. 139, affirming 48 N.Y.S. 849, 24 App.Div. 454.
Wis.—Coombs v. Southern Wisconsin R. Co., 155 N.W. 922, 162 Wis. 111, L.R.A.1916D 539.

(2) And it is immaterial that a carrier customarily permitted passengers to ride in such a place.—Liversidge v. Berkshire St. R. Co., 96 N.E. 665, 210 Mass. 234, 36 L.R.A.,N.S., 993.

Getting on at wrong place
Minn.—Carpenter v. Minneapolis, etc., Tract. Co., 157 N.W. 902, 133 Minn. 46.

69. Mass.—Hall v. Power, 12 Metc. 382, 46 Am.D. 698.
N.Y.—Penfield v. Cleveland, etc., R. Co., 50 N.Y.S. 79, 26 App.Div. 413
Wis.—Wightman v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 40 N.W. 689, 73 Wis. 169, 9 Am.S.R. 778, 2 L.R.A. 185.

70. Ga.—Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Lindsey, 79 S.E. 361, 13 Ga.App. 461.

71. Ill.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Louthan, 80 Ill.App. 579

72. N.Y.—Smith v. Manhattan R. Co., 18 N.Y.S. 759 affirmed 33 N.E. 1083, 138 N.Y. 623.

73. N.Y.—Smith v. Manhattan R. Co., supra.

74. N.Y.—Peck v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 70 N.Y. 587
10 C.J. p. 731 note 18.
Reasonableness of rules setting apart particular cars for particular classes see supra § 571.

is unable to find a seat elsewhere may recover damages if he is forcibly ejected therefrom by the officials.[75]

Separation of races. A passenger may be ejected from a train for refusing to obey a regulation requiring passengers of a particular race to occupy a car set aside for them.[76] Likewise, a passenger may be ejected from a car or compartment set apart for passengers of another race, and be compelled to go into another car or compartment set apart for passengers of his own race, under regulations of the carrier providing for such separation,[77] and such regulations may be made and enforced by virtue of a statute requiring carriers to provide separate accommodations for the white and colored races;[78] but a passenger should not be compelled to make a change from one coach to another at a time when it is dangerous for him so to do.[79]

In the absence of a federal statute regulating the matter, a carrier is not justified in evicting an interstate passenger for refusal to occupy that part of a car set apart for his race unless it is shown that a rule or regulation of the carrier requiring the segregation of races is in fact in existence and in force, and that such rule is a reasonable one.[80]

Conducting business in carrier's vehicle or depot. A public conveyance is not intended as a place for the conducting of business by a passenger, and, unless there is a general custom to the contrary,[81] the carrier may eject from its vehicle of carriage a person who persists in carrying on a business therein against its rules.[82] Similarly, a carrier may eject a person from its depot premises for violating a reasonable rule prohibiting the pursuit of a certain business on the premises,[83] or regulating the manner in which a permitted business may be conducted.[84]

b. Riding on Freight Trains

One riding on a freight train in violation of the carrier's rule may be ejected, but a railroad accustomed to carrying passengers on freight trains is liable for ejection therefrom as from passenger trains, unless it notifies prospective passengers of the discontinuance of the custom.

The conductor of a freight train may eject a person violating a rule of the carrier prohibiting the carriage of passengers on such trains.[85] The fact that the station agent promised such person that he would give the conductor authority to carry him as a passenger on such a train will not make a subsequent ejection unlawful.[86]

75. Wis.—Bass v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 36 Wis. 450, 17 Am. R. 495

76. Tenn.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Wells, 4 S.W. 5, 85 Tenn. 613

77. Ala.—Mobile, etc., R. Co. v. Spenny, 67 So. 740, 12 Ala. App. 375, certiorari denied 68 So. 870
Ark.—St. Louis, etc. R. Co. v. Mynott, 102 S.W. 380, 83 Ark. 6
Miss.—Waldauer v. Vicksburg R., etc., Co., 40 So. 751, 88 Miss. 200
10 C.J. p. 730 note 6.
Separate accommodations for races generally see supra § 645.

Ejection of negro from colored compartment

Where a negro passenger on the train of defendant railway company entered the compartment of a coach designated as the negro smoker, in which were several white men, and the conductor in charge forcibly ejected the negro therefrom on account of the presence of the white men, his removal there was unlawful, and the carrier was liable.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Sharp, 209 P. 646, 87 Okl. 98

78. Ark.—Bradford v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 124 S.W. 516, 93 Ark. 244
Miss.—Waldauer v. Vicksburg etc., R. Co., 40 So. 751, 88 Miss. 200
10 C.J. p. 730 note 6 [a] (1).

The carrier itself must comply with the statute in order to justify an ejection, and merely posting a sign in the car indicating in which part of the car members of each race shall sit is not sufficient compliance with a provision that cars shall be divided by a partition or adjustable screen.—Waldauer v. Vicksburg, etc., R. Co., 40 So. 751, 88 Miss. 200.

79. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Carleton, 51 So. 27, 163 Ala. 62—Carleton v. Central of Georgia R. Co., 46 So. 495, 155 Ala. 326, 16 Ann. Cas. 445

80. D.C.—Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co. v. Waller, 289 F. 598, 53 App. D.C. 200, 30 A.L.R. 50

An oral regulation, in order to be binding and justify an eviction, must be more than an oral instruction to conductors, there must be such notice given that a passenger will have actual knowledge of the regulation, or such notice that knowledge may be imputed to him.—Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co. v. Waller, 289 F. 598, 53 App. D.C. 200, 30 A.L.R. 50

81. Ind.—Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Hockett, 67 N.E. 106, 161 Ind. 196, affirming 64 N.E. 633
10 C.J. p. 731 note 8

82. U.S.—Barney v. The D. R. Martin, N.Y., 2 F.Cas.No.1,030, 11 Blatchf. 233, dismissing appeal 91 U.S. 365, 23 L.Ed. 439.
Mass.—Com. v. Power, 7 Metc. 596, 41 Am.D. 465
N.Y.—Barney v. Oyster Bay, etc., Steamboat Co., 67 N.Y. 301, 23 Am. R. 115

83. Ga.—Fluker v. Georgia R., etc., Co., 8 S.E. 529, 81 Ga. 461, 12 Am. S.R. 328, 2 L.R.A. 843.
10 C.J. p. 731 note 10
Soliciting
(1) For a hotel.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Osborn, 55 S.W. 142, 67 Ark. 399

(2) One who habitually solicits business for an inn may properly be ejected, even though on the particular occasion he was on the depot premises with a ticket and a bona fide intention of boarding a train, but did not disclose his purpose to the servant ejecting him.—Com. v. Power, 7 Metc., Mass., 596, 41 Am.D. 465

84. Mich.—Cole v. Rowen, 50 N.W. 138, 88 Mich. 219, 13 L.R.A. 848

85. Ga.—Higgins v. Southern R. Co., 25 S.E. 837, 98 Ga. 751
Mich.—Thomas v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 40 N.W. 463, 72 Mich. 355.
Tex.—Grahn v. International, etc., R. Co., 93 S.W. 104, 100 Tex. 27, 123 Am.S.R. 767, 5 L.R.A.,N.S., 1025
Carrier's right to refuse or regulate transportation of passengers on freight trains see supra § 539
Ejection from freight train for failure to have ticket or permit see supra § 810 h.

86. Ind.—Indianapolis, etc., R. Co. v. Kennedy, 77 Ind. 507.

However, as a railroad which is accustomed to carry passengers on freight trains is under a duty to receive and to carry such persons as offer themselves, see supra § 539, such a railroad is liable for an ejection to the same extent as for ejection from a passenger train,[87] unless it has discontinued such custom and notified prospective passengers of that fact.[88]

Release of liability on mixed train. A statute requiring railroad companies to carry passengers upon "freight trains to which a caboose is attached," but permitting a limitation of liability except for willful negligence, is not applicable to a passenger on a mixed train, so that an ejection of a passenger on such a train for his refusal to sign a release of liability is wrongful.[89]

§ 820. What Constitutes Ejection

To constitute an ejection, it is not necessary that violence be used; so ejection may occur where a passenger is informed that he must leave the vehicle at a designated time and place. A carrier is not liable for an ejection if the passenger leaves voluntarily or is removed by a law officer.

In determining the liability of the carrier, where it is claimed that the ejection has been either without cause, or in an improper manner, it is not necessary, in order that an ejection may be said to have occurred, that any violence shall have been used,[90] as an ejection may occur where a passenger is informed by the conductor or other authorized employee of the carrier that he must leave the vehicle at a designated time and place.[91] This is particularly true where it is made apparent to the passenger that force will be used unless the order to get off is obeyed,[92] as where a command to get off is followed by threats to throw the passenger off, even though the carrier's employee does not actually touch the passenger;[93] and it is immaterial that there is nothing insulting in the conductor's words or manner in making such a threat.[94] However, a person will not be justified in getting off at a dangerous place or time at the mere requirement or command of a conductor or other employee of the carrier, if such command is not attended with force, threats, or overpowering intimidation.[95]

A carrier is not liable for an ejection if the passenger leaves the vehicle voluntarily,[96] as where Mo.—Marshall v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 78 Mo. 610.

87. Wis.—Boehm v. Duluth, etc., R. Co., 65 N.W. 506, 91 Wis. 592.
10 C.J. p. 731 note 14

88. Cal.—Wieland v. Southern Pac. Co., 82 P. 226, 1 Cal.App. 343

89. Kan.—Schwartz v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 109 P. 767, 83 Kan. 30.

What constitutes mixed train

(1) A train which has freight cars, a combination mail, baggage, and express car, and a passenger coach, and which runs on a regular schedule and stops at passenger platforms to receive and discharge passengers, is a mixed train.—Schwartz v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 109 P. 767, 83 Kan. 30.

(2) Mixed train generally see Mixed Train, 40 C.J. p. 1231 notes 45, 46.

90. Tex.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Ulmer, Civ.App., 282 S.W. 305, 308, citing Corpus Juris affirmed, Com.App., 286 S.W. 193.
10 C.J. p. 752 note 79.

A passenger need not be "compelled" to leave a train in the sense that irresistible force is used, in order that there be a wrongful ejection.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Ulmer, Tex.Civ.App., 282 S.W. 305, affirmed, Com.App., 286 S.W. 193.

91. Ill.—Wilson v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 245 Ill.App. 72.—Davis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 233 Ill.App. 539.

Ky.—Guy v. Interstate Transit, 51 S.W.2d 455, 244 Ky. 479

Mo.—Ferguson v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. App., 186 S.W. 1134.

Tex.—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Carroll, 193 S.W. 1068, 108 Tex. 378.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Ulmer, Civ.App., 282 S.W. 305, affirmed, Com.App., 286 S.W. 193.
10 C.J. p. 752 note 79.

Passenger on wrong train because of misdirection by the carrier's agent.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Ulmer, Tex.Civ.App., 282 S.W. 305, affirmed, Com.App., 286 S.W. 193

Passenger told to leave train at the wrong station through the mistake of the conductor suffers ejection.—Wilson v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 245 Ill.App. 72.

Leaving train after change of carriers

If a change of carriers operating a train intervenes between the time a conductor informs a passenger that she must leave the train at a certain stop and the time when that stop is reached, so that the conductor so directing the passenger is not on the train at the time of arrival at that stop, the first carrier is liable for the ejection of such passenger if she leaves in consequence of that conductor's order.—Chicago, R. I. & Gulf Ry. Co. v. Carroll, 193 S.W. 1068, 108 Tex. 378.

Coercion by fear

The fact that a conductor told a passenger that he would rather she got off at a certain station, as it was dangerous for her with her infant children to proceed on the train to her destination may be sufficient to show that she was coerced by the conductor to leave the train, for coercion may result from fear.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Quinn, 39 So. 616, 145 Ala. 657

92. Minn.—Morrill v. Minneapolis St. R. Co., 115 N.W. 395, 103 Minn. 362, 123 Am.S.R. 341

N.Y.—Ray v. Cortland, etc., Tract. Co., 46 N.Y.S. 521, 19 App.Div. 530.
10 C.J. p. 752 note 81.

93. Indiana, etc., R. Co. v. Ditto, 64 N.E. 222, 158 Ind. 669.
10 C.J. p. 752 note 81.

94. Ga.—Georgia R., etc., Co. v. Baker, 54 S.E. 639, 125 Ga. 562, 114 Am.S.R. 246, 7 L.R.A.,N.S., 103, 5 Ann.Cas. 484
10 C.J. p. 753 note 82.

95. U.S.—Bosworth v. Walker, Ill., 83 F. 58, 27 C.C.A. 402.

Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Moran, 129 Ill.App. 38
10 C.J. p. 753 note 83.

96. La.—Cady v. New Orleans, T. & M. Ry. Co., 145 So. 680, 176 La. 341

Tex.—Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wallace, Com.App., 206 S.W. 505, reversing, Civ.App., 152 S.W. 873.

Particular facts held not to constitute ejection

Where a passenger entered one of several cars waiting for passengers

a passenger, upon discovering that she does not have her tickets, leaves the train under the advice and suggestion of but without compulsion by, the conductor,[97] or where a passenger who fails to get off at the station of his destination requests that the train be stopped and, upon a compliance with this request, alights and walks back to the station,[98] or where a passenger leaves a train against the advice of the conductor, who has offered to keep the baggage check as security for payment of the fare pending a determination as to whether the ticket presented is a valid one.[99]

The removal of a passenger from one car to another in enforcing a regulation, such as that requiring the separation of races, is not an ejection,[1] unless it is done wrongfully, or in a negligent or insulting manner.[2]

Removal by law or health officer. A removal of a passenger by a law officer on a charge of disorderly conduct does not create liability on the part of the carrier for wrongful ejection where its employee did not assist in or request the removal.[3]

A passenger's obedience to the order of a quarantine or health officer that he leave the train has been held not to be a wrongful ejection for which the carrier is liable, although the carrier's employee does not interfere to prevent the ejection;[4] but there is also authority to other effect.[5]

§ 821. Place or Time of Ejection

a. In general
b. Statutory designation of place

a. In General

When a person is rightfully ejected from a carrier's vehicle, the ejection need not, apart from statute, be at a regular stopping place. It must be at such a time and place, and in such circumstances, that the person ejected is not exposed to danger or injury, and an employee is chargeable with knowledge of the perils of a dangerous place of ejection.

Where there is proper occasion for ejecting a person from a carrier's vehicle, as when he refuses or fails to pay the required fare or produce a proper ticket,[6] or when he refuses to comply with the proper rules and regulations of the carrier, or is guilty of improper conduct,[7] the ejection, in the absence of a statute providing otherwise, need not be at a regular station or stopping place, but may be made at any safe point. However, whether or not a person may be ejected only at a regular station, rather than at a point between stations, has been held to depend largely on the circumstances of each particular case.[8] The carrier has been required to afford the passenger a reasonable opportunity to leave the vehicle in safety,[9] so, in any event, the ejection must be at such and, after becoming involved in a controversy with the conductor, voluntarily left that car and then was told by the conductor that he could not ride on that car, but should take passage on one of the others, there was no ejection—Dobbins v. Little Rock R., etc., Co., 95 S.W. 794, 79 Ark. 85, 9 Ann.Cas. 84.

97. Tex.—Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wallace, Com.App., 206 S.W. 505, reversing, Civ.App., 152 S.W. 873.

98. La.—Cady v. New Orleans, T. & M. Ry. Co., 145 So. 680, 176 La. 341.

A train need not be backed up to the station where there was no demand or request that it be done—Cady v. New Orleans, T. & M. Ry. Co., 145 So. 680, 176 La. 341.

99. Mo.—Boling v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 88 S.W. 35, 189 Mo. 219.

1. Ark.—Bradford v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 124 S.W. 516, 93 Ark. 244
Ky.—Southern R. Co. v. Thurman, 90 S.W. 240, 121 Ky. 716, 28 Ky.L. 699, 2 L.R.A.,N.S., 1108
Failure to comply with regulation as to separation of races see supra § 819 a.

2. Ky.—Southern R. Co. v. Thurman, supra.
10 C.J. p. 753 note 87.

3. U.S.—Kinchlow v. Peoples Rapid Transit Co., App.D.C., 88 F.2d 764
Where a colored passenger refused to exchange seats at the request of a bus driver, which request was in conformity with the segregation law, and a policeman was called in to compel compliance therewith and arrested the passenger upon her persistent refusal to comply with, and resistance to, the demand, the carrier was held not liable for an ejection.—Kinchlow v. Peoples Rapid Transit Co., App.D.C., 88 F.2d 764

4. Ga.—Baldwin v. Seaboard Air-Line R. Co., 58 S.E. 35, 128 Ga. 567, 13 L.R.A.N.S., 360.
10 C.J. p. 753 note 89

5. Miss.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Roane, 46 So. 711, 93 Miss. 7.

6. D.C.—Burch v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 3 App.D.C. 346, 26 L.R.A. 129.
Ga.—Rossman v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 91 S.E. 90, 146 Ga. 264, L.R.A.1917C 483
Mich.—Willett v. King, 168 N.W. 986, 203 Mich. 295.
10 C.J. p. 753 note 91.

Reason for rule
"If persons intent on defrauding railroad companies may lawfully insist upon being carried from station to station before being ejected, it is not apparent why they would not thereby be enabled, by re-embarking upon subsequent trains, to ride the whole length of a road and all the time without payment of fare."—Burch v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 3 App.D.C., 346, 350, 26 L.R.A. 129.

Ejection of passenger
D.C.—Burch v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 3 App.D.C. 346, 26 L.R.A. 129.
Mich.—Willett v. King, 168 N.W. 986, 203 Mich. 295

Sleeping passenger carried by station
Tex.—Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Green, Civ.App., 141 S.W. 341.

7. Ky.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Crank, 108 S.W. 276, 128 Ky. 329, 32 Ky.L. 1202, 16 L.R.A.,N.S., 197.
10 C.J. p. 753 note 91.

8. S.C.—Paul v. Southern Ry. Co., 155 S.E. 884, 158 S.C. 550.

9. Ga.—Rossman v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 91 S.E. 90, 146 Ga. 264, L.R.A.1917C 483.

a time[10] and place,[11] and under such circumstances,[12] that the person ejected will not be exposed to peril, danger, or serious personal injury, particularly if he is manifestly incapacitated for looking out for himself;[13] but, subject to these limitations, the time, place, and circumstances under which a person may be ejected have been held to be largely within the conductor's discretion.[14]

An employee of a carrier who ejects a passenger at a dangerous place is chargeable with knowledge of the perils of such place;[15] and an ejected passenger, acting in good faith, has been held entitled to assume that the place selected by the conductor for him to alight is safe.[16]

b. Statutory Designation of Place

A carrier must comply with a statute designating the places where ejection may be made; but where such a statute refers to ejection for failure to pay fare, its application has been limited thereto.

Where there is a statute limiting the exercise of a carrier's right of ejection to specified places, such as a usual stopping place,[17] a regular station,[18]

10. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co v Maze, 166 So. 50 231 Ala. 539.
N.C.—Ledford v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 125 S.E 540, 188 N C 808
10 C.J p 754 note 1.

An ejection at nine o'clock at night and at an improper place is wrongful.—McNairy v. Norfolk & W R. Co, 90 S.E 497, 172 N C. 505.

Pending storm

A trespasser who is capable of taking care of himself need not be put off at a regular station because, at the time of ejection, there is a storm pending, and a possibility that he may be caught in it.—Burch v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co, 3 App D C. 346, 26 L R A. 129.

11. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co v. Maze, 166 So. 50 231 Ala. 539
D.C.—Burch v Baltimore, etc, R Co, 3 App.D C. 346 26 L R A. 129
Ga.—Rossman v. Georgia Ry & Power Co, 91 S E 90, 146 Ga. 364, L.R A 1917C 483.
La.—Gates v Bisso Ferry Co, App, 172 So 829
Mich.—Willett v. King, 168 N W 986, 203 Mich 295.
N C—Ledford v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 125 S E. 540, 188 N C. 808.
Tenn.—Louisville & N R Co v Hadley, 11 Tenn App. 642.
10 C J p 753 note 91, p 754 note 1

Dark surroundings

Evidence of forcible ejection of passenger from train into dark surroundings after passing destination showed that ejection was made without reference to passenger's comfort —Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Summerall, 139 S E 923, 37 Ga.App 294.

Train crossing trestle

Where an employee of a railroad company compelled a trespasser to jump from the train when it was passing over a trestle during the nighttime, his act was wanton and cruel, and damages should be awarded for injuries resulting therefrom — Louisville & N. R Co v. Marlin, 186 S.W. 595, 135 Tenn 435, L R A 1917A 417

A regular station is not an improper place to eject a passenger, although there is no hotel for public accommodation at that place — Hall v Memphis, etc, R. Co, C C. Tenn, 15 F. 57.

12. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539 —Johnson v. Louisville, etc, R Co, 16 So. 75, 104 Ala. 241, 53 Am. S R 39.
N.C.—Ledford v. Louisville & N R. Co., 125 S E. 540, 188 N C 808

13. D C—Burch v. Baltimore, etc, R. Co, 3 App D.C 346, 351 26 L. R.A 129.
Mich.—Willett v King, 168 N W 986, 203 Mich. 295.
10 C J p 755 notes 4, 6 p 756 note 7.
Carrier's liability for injuries to helpless person ejected in dangerous place see infra § 830

"When . . . a trespasser is a person more or less incapable of taking care of himself—a child, a lunatic, an imbecile, a person under the influence of intoxicating liquor—considerations of humanity will demand that he receive different treatment from that awarded to the ordinary adult man in the full possession of all his faculties"—Burch v Baltimore, etc, R. Co, supra

14. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co v Maze, 166 So 50, 231 Ala 539

15. Ala.—Central of Georgia R. Co v Bagley, 55 So 894, 173 Ala. 611
Tex.—Gulf, etc, R Co v. Green, Civ App, 141 S.W 341

16. Ala.—Central of Georgia R Co v. Bagley, 55 So 894, 173 Ala. 611

17. N C—McNairy v. Norfolk & W. R. Co, 90 S E 497, 172 N C. 505.
10 C J p 753 note 92.

What constitutes

(1) A "usual stopping place" does not mean a "station or passenger station," but rather a place reasonably safe for the discharge of passengers, thus, the ejection of a passenger is at a proper place where it is at a point at which a large number of employees engaged in mills are received and discharged by the carrier in going to and coming from a city, accessible dwelling houses being not more than five hundred or six hundred feet away, and a hotel within sixty rods—Habeck v Chicago, etc., R. Co, 132 N W 618, 146 Wis 645, Ann.Cas 1912C 485.

(2) But a side track at which there is no shelter is not a usual stopping place within the meaning of the statute.—McNairy v. Norfolk & W R. Co, 90 S E 497, 172 N C 505

Although a passenger could have prevented his ejection by paying an extra charge demanded, he may complain of his ejection at a place not permitted by statute—McNairy v Norfolk & W R. Co, 90 S.E. 497, 172 N C 505

Statute construed as permissive

A statute providing that a conductor "may" put off a passenger, who refuses to pay fare, at any usual stopping place "is permissive, and not prohibitory, in its terms . . the law does not prohibit the railroad company . . from doing the same thing for the same or any other valid reason, or at any other place"—Toledo, etc., R Co v Wright, 68 Ind. 586, 594, 34 Am R 277

18. Ill.—Illinois Cent. R. Co v Latimer, 21 N E 7, 128 Ill. 163.
10 C J. p 753 note 92.

What constitutes

(1) A regular station is a place on a railroad where passenger trains usually stop to have persons get on and off—Illinois Cent R. Co v. Latimer, 21 N E 7, 128 Ill. 163

(2) A passenger station must be a stopping place at which tickets are ordinarily sold—Baldwin v. Grand Trunk R. Co, 15 A. 411, 64 N H 596

(3) But a water tank is not a regular station, within the meaning of this law, although it may be a regular stopping place—Chicago, etc, R. Co v Flagg, 43 Ill. 364, 92 Am.D 133

Ejection in a town must be at the place where the railroad has its depot—Illinois Cent. R Co. v. Latimer, 21 N E. 7, 128 Ill. 163.

or near[19] or opposite[20] a dwelling house, the carrier will be liable if the ejection is not at a place of the class or classes specified, even though, it has been held, ejection of a passenger at a usual stopping place would, in the particular circumstances, take him to his destination.[21]

Statutes designating the place where a person may be ejected for refusal to pay fare have been restricted in their application to cases in which ejection was for that reason,[22] an ejection for other reasons being permissible at any convenient or safe point selected by the officer in charge of the vehicle.[23] Thus, such a statute has been held inapplicable to the ejection of a mere trespasser who has entered the train with no intention of paying his fare,[24] or to the ejection of a passenger who has failed to alight at his station after being given an opportunity so to do.[25]

§ 822. Manner of Ejection

a. In general
b. Trespassers

a. In General

Even though a carrier has a right to eject a person, it must not do so in an improper manner. In ejecting a passenger, it must exercise at least reasonable and ordinary care, and, if he is under physical disability, care as demanded by such disability.

The fact that a carrier has a right, in a particular instance, to eject a person does not justify an ejection in an improper,[26] unlawful,[27] or negligent[28] manner, or without regard for the safety[29] or rights[30] of the ejected person. Thus a passenger may not be ejected under circumstances which may result in serious,[31] wanton, or unnecessary[32] injury to him.

In ejecting a passenger, a carrier has been held bound to exercise reasonable[33] or ordinary[34] care,

19. Mo.—Boettler v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., App., 300 S.W. 528
N.C.—McNairy v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 S.E. 497, 172 N.C. 505.
10 C.J. p. 753 note 92

What is "near"

(1) An ejection at a point where a person can see a dwelling house "across the field" is a sufficient compliance with the statute.—Petty v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 130 S.W. 85, 149 Mo.App. 360.

(2) An ejection at a point one hundred feet from a dwelling house is a sufficient compliance.—Boettler v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., Mo. App., 300 S.W. 528.

(3) But a point three-quarters of a mile from a dwelling is not sufficient.—McNairy v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 S.E. 497, 172 N.C. 505

20. Mich.—Willett v. King, 168 N.W. 986, 203 Mich. 295.

What is "opposite"

"Opposite," within the meaning of the statute, may be defined as "placed over against, standing or situated over against or in front; facing," thus a person ejected from a train at a point about two city blocks from a dwelling house facing the right of way is ejected "opposite" the dwelling house.—Willett v. King, 168 N.W. 986, 989, 203 Mich. 295.

21. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Branch, 45 Ark. 524.

22. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Lewis, 61 S.W. 163, 69 Ark. 81
10 C.J. p. 754 note 94.

The common-law right to eject a person without reference to stations is not impaired beyond the statutory restriction in the case of ejection for refusal to pay fare.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Lewis, 61 S.W. 163, 69 Ark. 81.—McCook v. Northup, 45 S.W. 547, 65 Ark. 225

What constitutes refusal to pay fare

(1) Neglect to purchase a ticket before entering the train, when required by a rule of the company, amounts to a refusal to pay fare, and justifies an ejection only at a regular station.
Ark.—McCook v. Northup, 45 S.W. 547, 65 Ark. 225.
Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Flagg, 43 Ill. 364, 92 Am.D. 133.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Sutton, 42 Ill. 438, 92 Am.D. 81.

(2) But a passenger's refusal to surrender his ticket does not constitute the same offense as nonpayment of fare, so that the statute does not apply in such a case.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Whittemore, 43 Ill. 420, 12 Am.D. 138.

23. Fla.—South Florida R. Co. v. Rhodes, 5 So. 633, 25 Fla. 40, 23 Am.S.R. 506, 3 L.R.A. 733

24. Mo.—Short v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 130 S.W. 488, 150 Mo.App. 359
10 C.J. p. 754 note 97.

25. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Lewis, 61 S.W. 163, 69 Ark. 81.

26. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539.
Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky. 818

Special circumstances as to the manner of making an ejection otherwise lawful may render it wrongful.—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., 92 S.E. 34, 19 Ga.App. 670.

27. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539.

Duty imposed by law

Cause of action for street railway conductor's expulsion in unlawful manner of person who refuses to pay fare does not rest on carrier-passenger relationship, but on duty imposed by law.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539.

28. N.J.—Spalt v. Eaton, 192 A. 576, 118 N.J.Law 327.

Welfare of other passengers for whose protection the removal of an objectionable passenger is undertaken, cannot be disregarded in the removal.—Spalt v. Eaton, 192 A. 576, 118 N.J.Law 327.

29. La.—Horsthemke v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 84 So. 210, 146 La. 931
N.C.—Ledford v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 125 S.E. 540, 188 N.C. 808

30. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky. 818.

31. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539.
N.C.—Ledford v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 125 S.E. 540, 188 N.C. 808.
10 C.J. p. 756 note 11

"Menace of substantial injury"

N.C.—Ledford v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 125 S.E. 540, 541, 188 N.C. 808.

32. Wash.—Backlund v. Puget Sound Tract., etc., Co., 150 P. 3, 86 Wash. 257.
10 C.J. p. 756 note 11.

33. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky. 818.
10 C.J. p. 756 note 11.

34. Iowa.—Hobbs v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 152 N.W. 40, 171 Iowa 624.
Tex.—Williamson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 122 S.W. 897, 57 Tex.Civ.App. 502.—Ft. Worth, etc., R. Co. v. Gribble, 102 S.W. 157, 46 Tex.Civ.App. 78.
10 C.J. p. 756 note 11.

although the highest degree of care has been required by other authority.[35]

The use of abusive, insulting, or threatening language in ejecting a passenger is an ejection in an improper manner for which a carrier may be liable,[36] the duty of treating a passenger respectfully continuing until actual expulsion.[37]

Passenger under physical disability. Where a passenger is ejected because of his illness, infirmity, or helplessness, a higher degree of prudence and care for his safety must be observed;[38] and, after a passenger so afflicted has been removed, the duty to use reasonable care and diligence for his safety still continues,[39] at least to the extent of making temporary provision for him.[40]

If a passenger is in such an intoxicated condition that his ability to take care of himself is interfered with, it is particularly true that due regard for his safety must be exercised in expelling him.[41]

b. Trespassers

In removing a trespasser, a carrier must exercise ordinary care for his safety, and not unnecessarily or intentionally injure him; by some authorities it is liable only for wanton or willful injury to him. In ejecting a trespasser of tender years, greater care is required than in the case of more mature persons.

In removing a trespasser, a carrier is bound to exercise ordinary care for his safety,[42] as contrasted, by some decisions, with the duty to exercise the highest degree of care in ejecting a passenger.[43] Other statements are that a carrier is liable only for inflicting wanton, willful, or reckless injury upon a trespasser,[44] and that the carrier owes a trespasser the duty of not unnecessarily and intentionally injuring him.[45] The carrier is not required to consider his mere convenience.[46]

Ejection of trespassers from moving trains or cars is considered in § 823 infra, and the use of force against, and resistance by, trespassers in § 824.

If the trespasser is an infant of tender years, it is the duty of a carrier to use ordinary care in removing him,[47] or to see that he is not ejected in such a manner as to imperil his life or limb,[48] the test being the use of due care under the circumstances;[49] but a greater degree of care is required in removing an infant trespasser of tender years than in the case of an adult or more mature person.[50] There is no duty on the part of railroad

Statements of degree of care required generally see supra § 678.

Ordinarily prudent person

A carrier is liable for the acts of its employee in ejecting a passenger if injury results therefrom and the acts are such as an ordinarily prudent person would not do under like circumstances.—Bettis v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 108 N.W. 103, 131 Iowa 46.

35. Ky.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Copley, 197 S.W. 648, 177 Ky. 171.
10 C.J. p 757 note 15.

36. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 52, 231 Ala. 539, citing Corpus Juris.
10 C.J. p 758 note 25.

A threat to a passenger to "slap her off" is such language.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 52, 231 Ala. 539.

37. Ga.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Forrest, 65 S.E. 808, 6 Ga.App. 766.

38. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky. 818.
10 C.J. p 757 note 12.

39. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, supra.
10 C.J. p 757 note 19.

40. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, supra.

41. La.—Horsthemke v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 84 So. 210, 146 La. 931.

Protection from passing trains

It is negligence to eject a passenger when he is known to be too intoxicated to protect himself from trains passing the place of ejection.—Lee v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 97 S.E. 158, 176 N.C. 95.

42. Ky.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Copley, 197 S.W. 648, 177 Ky. 171.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Ashley, 183 S.W. 921, 169 Ky. 330, L.R.A.1916E 763.
10 C.J. p 757 note 16—52 C.J. p 637 note 37.

43. Ky.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Copley, 197 S.W. 648, 177 Ky. 171.
10 C.J. p 757 note 15.

44. Mo.—Drogmund v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 98 S.W. 1091, 122 Mo. App. 154.
Porto Rico.—Ramirez v. American R. Co., 23 Porto Rico 298.
52 C.J. p 638 note 38.
Liability for willful, wanton, and reckless acts generally see infra § 828 b.

Insult and abuse

"It was . . . [the conductor's] duty, even toward this trespasser, not to willfully and maliciously wrong him by insulting and abusing him when he put him off."—Alabama, etc., R. Co. v. Livingston, 36 So. 256, 84 Miss. 1.

45. Mo.—Drogmund v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 98 S.W. 1091, 122 Mo. App. 154.
Porto Rico.—Ramirez v. American R. Co., 23 Porto Rico 298.
10 C.J. p 757 note 17.

46. Kan.—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Gants, 17 P. 54, 38 Kan. 608, 5 Am.S.R. 780.

47. Mo.—Quirk v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 210 S.W. 103, 200 Mo.App. 585.

Reckless conduct or gross negligence on the part of the carrier's servants is not essential to justify a recovery.—Petrowski v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 107 A. 331, 263 Pa. 531.

48. Pa.—Stephanik v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 89 A. 827, 243 Pa. 43.

Duty to afford reasonable protection

Where it is the duty of a brakeman to keep trespassers off the train and a young boy boards the train, he should afford him reasonable protection, and not put him off or attempt to put him off in a negligent manner.—Southard v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., Mo.App., 191 S.W. 1101.

49. Pa.—Petrowski v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 107 A. 331, 263 Pa. 531.

50. U.S.—Southern R. Co. v. Shaw, Ga., 86 F. 865, 31 C.C.A. 70.
Porto Rico.—Ramirez v. American R. Co., 23 Porto Rico 298, 300.
"In other words . . . the conduct of the carrier might, depending upon circumstances, be wanton with regard to a child of tender years employees to search trains for and remove infant trespassers.[51]

§ 823. From Moving Train or Car

a. In general
b. Trespassers

a. In General

A carrier may be liable for the ejection of a person from a train or car moving at a dangerous speed even though no special injury results.

In general, it is negligence to expel a person from a train or a car while it is moving at a dangerous rate of speed, and the carrier will be liable for the resulting injury if the negligent employee is acting within the scope of his employment,[52] notwithstanding a rule of the carrier prohibits the ejection of persons while trains are in motion;[53] and a statute in effect prescribing such rule has been applied.[54] A passenger may recover damages for being ejected from the vehicle of a carrier while it is in motion, although no special injury results to him.[55]

b. Trespassers

A carrier may be liable for the willful or forcible ejection of a trespasser, by its employee, from a train or car moving at a dangerous speed, or for acts by him causing the trespasser to jump from or leave such train or car. A moving train should be stopped, or its speed reduced, so as to render it safe for a trespasser to alight.

While it has been held that a railroad company is not liable for ejecting a trespasser from a moving train where its speed is not so great that an injury to him would reasonably be expected to occur,[56] yet where the train is moving there may be liability for the ejection or injuries resulting therefrom.[57] Thus, if a trespasser is willfully or forcibly ejected while the train or car is moving at a dangerous rate of speed, the carrier is liable.[58] It is also liable if its employee forces a trespasser to jump from or leave a moving train at a dangerous place,[59] or while it is running at a dangerous rate of speed;[60] so, throwing missiles at him,[61] or using threatening language or acts toward him,[62] may create liability in the carrier if such act results in his jumping from the vehicle, at least when it causes him to lose his presence of mind or self-control,[63] or so terrifies him as to when it would not be so with a youth in command of his physical forces or a healthy adult."—Ramirez v. American R. Co., supra.

51. Pa.—Osalek v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 145 A. 582, 295 Pa. 553—Petrowski v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 107 A. 381, 263 Pa. 531.

52. Tex.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson, Civ.App., 198 S.W. 795.
10 C.J. p 759 note 37.
Contributory negligence in alighting from moving train or car see supra § 793 and infra § 832.
Liability for willful or malicious acts of employees within scope of employment generally see infra § 828 b.

Intoxicated passenger
Where it is necessary to eject a passenger from a street car because he is drunk, he should not be ejected while the car is in motion, unless it is absolutely necessary to save the life of the conductor or of a passenger, or to prevent great bodily harm.—Stringfield v. Louisville R. Co., 105 S.W. 1190, 32 Ky.L. 578.

53. Mo.—Curtis v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 73 S.W. 1133, 99 Mo.App. 508—Curtis v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 73 S.W. 1103, 99 Mo.App. 502.

54. Mo.—Holt v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 74 S.W. 631, 174 Mo. 524—Harkless v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 132 S.W. 29, 151 Mo.App. 463.
10 C.J. p 760 note 39.

55. N.Y.—Oppenheimer v. Manhattan R. Co., 18 N.Y.S. 411.

So under statute
Mo.—Holt v. Hannibal etc., R. Co., 87 Mo.App. 203, reversed on other grounds 74 S.W. 631, 174 Mo. 524.

56. Wis.—Bolin v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 84 N.W. 446, 108 Wis. 333, 81 Am.S.R. 911
52 C.J. p 637 note 34.

Attempt to board train
(1) A trespasser detected while climbing on rapidly moving train may be ordered off or his attempt be resisted with reasonable force while the train is still in motion, and he cannot by merely gaining a foothold on the train compel the company to permit him to ascend, or to stop the train for his convenience.—Powell v. Erie R. Co., 58 A. 930, 70 N.J. Law 290.

(2) Where trespasser persists in boarding moving train notwithstanding repeated warnings to desist, and he is finally forced to drop from the train by the brakeman and receives injuries, the railroad company is not liable.—Johnson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., C.C.Iowa, 94 F. 473.

(3) But it has been held that a trespasser who is injured while trying to climb on a slowly moving train which he was prevented from doing by a brakeman may recover damages from the railroad company for an injury caused by the use of unnecessary force by the brakeman.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Bernard, 37 S.W. 841, 18 Ky.L. 672.

57. Tex.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson, Civ.App., 198 S.W. 795.
Liability to trespassers for injuries generally see supra § 700.

Train moving fifteen miles per hour
Tex.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson, Civ.App., 198 S.W. 795

58. Ky.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Copley, 197 S.W. 648, 177 Ky. 171.
52 C.J. p 638 note 52.
Ejection of trespasser by use of unnecessary force generally see infra § 824 a.
Willful acts of employees in ejecting persons generally see infra § 828 b.

59. Tenn.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Marlin, 186 S.W. 595, 135 Tenn. 435, L.R.A. 1917A, 417.
52 C.J. p 639 note 53

60. Ind.—Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Hockett, 67 N.E. 106, 161 Ind. 196.
52 C.J. p 639 note 54.

61. S.C.—Polatty v. Charleston, etc., R. Co., 45 S.E. 932, 67 S.C. 391, 100 Am.S.R. 750.
52 C.J. p 639 note 55.

62. Okl.—Folley v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 84 P. 1090, 16 Okl. 32.
52 C.J. p 639 note 56.

63. Mass.—Mugford v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 52 N.E. 1078, 173 Mass. 10.
N.J.—Powell v. Erie R. Co., 58 A. 930, 70 N.J. Law 290, 1 Ann.Cas. 774.

cause him to believe that he can save himself from bodily hurt only by jumping off.[64]

It has been declared that a railway can properly discharge a trespasser upon its train only when it is brought to a standstill;[65] under other authority a trespasser, before being forcibly ejected from a moving train, should be given a reasonable opportunity to alight without being exposed to unnecessary danger,[66] and it should be stopped, or its speed so checked as to render it safe for him to alight.[67] The fact that an employee discharged his duty with reference to ejecting trespassers from the train in an improper manner, as by ejecting them while it was in rapid motion, does not relieve the carrier from liability.[68]

§ 824. Use of Force and Resistance

a. Use of force
b. Resistance

a. Use of Force

A carrier is liable for an unlawful ejection even though no unnecessary force is used; but where the ejection is lawful the carrier's employees, or police called by them, may use only necessary force, and it is liable for the use of unnecessary force. The amount of force that may be used may depend on the resistance.

A passenger unlawfully ejected from a carrier's vehicle may recover damages even though no unnecessary force was used in ejecting him;[69] the use of violence in accomplishing a wrongful ejection aggravates the tort.[70] It has been held that if excessive force is used in an ejection, it is unnecessary to determine whether the person ejected was rightfully on the train.[71] When there exist lawful grounds for ejection, the carrier's employees, although entitled to use such force as is reasonably necessary to accomplish the ejection,[72] may use no more than that, the carrier being liable for an ejection in which unnecessary force or violence is used, or for injuries sustained, by the person ejected, because of the use of unnecessary force or violence;[73] but in this connection should be noted the holdings, stated in § 828, as to the scope of the employee's authority as affecting the

64. Tex.—Baker v. Cobb, Civ.App., 221 S.W. 314.

65. S.C.—Polatty v. Charleston, etc., R. Co., 45 S.E. 932, 67 S.C. 391, 100 Am.S.R. 750
Utah.—Morgan v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 74 P. 523, 27 Utah 92.

Young boy ordered off moving street car

(1) Where the conductor of a street railway car orders a young trespassing boy off the car and he is discovered by the motorman to be in a position of peril on the steps, the failure of the motorman to stop the car or draw the boy back constitutes negligence.—Quirk v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 210 S.W. 106, 200 Mo.App. 593, certiorari quashed State ex rel. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. v. Ellison, Sup., 224 S.W. 820.

(2) In such a case the carrier is liable for injuries received by the boy if he slips under the wheels in attempting to alight while the car is still in motion.—Quirk v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 210 S.W. 103, 200 Mo.App. 585.

66. Tex.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Mother, 24 S.W. 79, 5 Tex.Civ.App. 87.
Va.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson, 25 S.E. 947, 93 Va. 650.

67. Ky.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. McManus, 67 S.W. 1000, 24 Ky.L. 31.

68. Tex.—St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Zamora, Civ.App., 110 S.W. 2d 1242.

69. Ill.—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 88.
10 C.J. p 757 note 22.

70. La.—Johnson v. New Orleans Great Northern Ry. Co., 75 So. 731, 141 La. 807.

71. N.J.—Bottstein v. Erie R. Co., 87 A. 94, 84 N.J.Law 404

72. Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 51 Cal.App. 575.
Ga.—Rossman v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 91 S.E. 90, 146 Ga. 264, L.R.A.1917C 483
Ill.—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 88.
Mo.—Green v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 206 S.W. 237, 200 Mo.App. 303—Curran v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 196 S.W. 56, 197 Mo.App. 397.
N.Y.—Lasker v. Third Ave. R. Co., 57 N.Y.S. 395, 27 Misc. 824.
Tex.—Samaritano v. Galveston, H. & S.A. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 230 S.W. 1049, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.
Va.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Brown, 144 S.E. 708, 151 Va. 686
10 C.J. p 757 note 21.

Import of "ejected"

The word "ejected," as applied to the ejection of passengers, imports the idea of being forcibly expelled or thrust from the train.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Ogles, 83 S.E. 631, 142 Ga. 720.

73. U.S.—Pendleton v. Kinsley, C.C.R.I., 19 F.Cas.No.10 922, 3 Cliff. 416
Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539—Bates v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 82 So. 14, 203 Ala. 54
Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 51 Cal.App. 575
Ga.—Rossman v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 91 S.E. 90, 146 Ga. 264, L.R.A.1917C 483.
Ill.—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 88.
Ky.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Copley, 197 S.W. 648, 177 Ky. 171.
La.—Lichtenstein v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 103 So. 769, 158 La. 284.
Mass.—Ramsden v. Boston & A. R. Co., 104 Mass. 117, 6 Am.R. 200—Holmes v. Wakefield, 12 Allen 580, 90 Am.D. 171.
Minn.—Carpenter v. Minneapolis, St. P., R. & D. Electric Traction Co., 157 N.W. 902, 133 Minn. 46.
Mo.—Green v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, 206 S.W. 237, 200 Mo.App. 303
10 C.J. p 758 note 24.
Liability for willful, wanton, reckless, or malicious acts of employees in ejecting see infra § 828 b.

In enforcing a reasonable regulation providing for the expulsion of one who fails to produce a transfer or pay fare, a carrier may not inflict wrongs and injuries upon a passenger.—Virginia Electric & Power Co. v. Wynne, 141 S.E. 829, 149 Va. 882.

Applying foot

Such an application of force by a street railway conductor as "applying his foot to . . . [a female passenger's] posterior part," held to be unjustified, especially when it was done as she undertook to alight from the car.—Bates v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 82 So. 14, 203 Ala. 54.

Taking hold of passenger before stopping train

A conductor who takes hold of a carrier's liability. Thus a carrier may be held liable for an assault by its employee on a passenger,[74] unless the assault is incited by the passenger's violence or aggressive conduct;[75] but indecent, insulting, and provoking language, unaccompanied by threats or violence, does not justify an assault by an employee.[76]

The amount of force that may be used in an ejection may depend on the resistance offered;[77] but the courts will not weigh with exact nicety the amount of force necessary to overcome the resistance.[78]

Persons not passengers; trespassers. A carrier is entitled to use such force or show of violence as is reasonably necessary, having regard to the attendant circumstances, to accomplish the ejection of a trespasser;[79] but, as a passenger relationship need not exist in order to create liability on the part of a carrier,[80] the rule, subject to qualifications as to the scope of the employee's authority, infra § 828, is that no unnecessary force may be used in ejecting even a person, including a trespasser, who is not a passenger, and that the carrier is liable for injuries received as a result of the use of unnecessary force in effecting the removal of such person,[81] or for a wrongful assault upon him.[82]

Anticipating resistance; assistance by police. If a passenger gives the conductor to understand that he will resist ejection, the conductor is justified in using force in putting him off, especially after having repeatedly told him that he must pay his fare or get off.[83]

When a conductor has a right to eject a person, he may call in a police officer to eject him,[84] as where there is reason to anticipate resistance by a trespasser,[85] and the officer may use necessary force to eject.[86] In such a case the police have been held to act as agents of the carrier, so that the latter is liable for any excessive force used by them.[87]

b. Resistance

Generally a passenger may resist a wrongful ejection and recover for injuries received while doing so; but female passenger, before stopping the train, for the avowed purpose of ejecting her for failure to pay a sufficient fare, renders the company liable because of the use of unnecessary force.—Briggs v. Lusk, Mo.App., 190 S.W. 380.

Liability for ill treatment

Tenn.—Springer Transp. Co. v. Smith, 1 S.W. 280, 16 Lea 498.

Although a passenger could have prevented his ejection by paying the extra charge demanded, he may complain of an ejection with violence and unnecessary force and in a manner humiliating to him before a car full of other passengers.—McNairy v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 S.E. 497, 172 N.C. 505

74. Mass.—Bryant v. Rich, 106 Mass. 180, 8 Am.R. 311, affirmed 21 Wall., U.S. 41, 22 L.Ed. 476.
Mo.—Malecek v. Tower Grove, etc., R. Co., 57 Mo. 17.
10 C.J. p. 758 note 24 [e].

75. Ga.—City Electric R. Co. v. Shropshire, 28 S.E. 503, 101 Ga. 33.
Mo.—Garrett v. St. Louis Transit Co., 118 S.W. 68, 219 Mo. 65, 16 Ann.Cas. 678.
10 C.J. p. 757 note 21 [c], p. 759 note 28.

76. Ark.—Little Rock R., etc., Co. v. Bracy, 165 S.W. 450, 111 Ark. 613.
N.Y.—Weber v. Brooklyn, etc., R. Co., 62 N.Y.S. 1, 47 App.Div. 306

77. Wash.—Kirk v. Seattle Electric Co., 108 P. 604, 58 Wash. 283, 31 L.R.A.,N.S., 991.
10 C.J. p. 757 note 21, p. 758 note 24 [b]—52 C.J. p. 637 note 36

78. U.S.—Hall v. Memphis, etc., R. Co., C.C.Tenn., 15 F. 57.
10 C.J. p. 757 note 21 [b], p. 761 note 47 [a].

79. Tex.—Samaritano v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., Civ.App., 230 S.W. 1049, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.
52 C.J. p. 637 note 36.

80. Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 666, 51 Cal.App. 575.
10 C.J. p. 758 note 26
"It is the duty of every one, whether he is a motorman on the street car or not, to refrain from committing any assault upon any person, whether such person be a passenger or not."—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, supra.

81. Ky.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Copley, 197 S.W. 648, 177 Ky. 171.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Ashley, 183 S.W. 921, 169 Ky. 330, L.R.A. 1916E 763.
10 C.J. p. 757 note 16 [a], p. 758 notes 24, 26—52 C.J. p. 638 note 51.

82. Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 51 Cal.App. 575.

But throwing rocks at a minor trespasser while on top of a coach, and firing a shot in the air for the purpose of scaring him, has been held not to show an unlawful assault in accomplishing his ejection.—Samaritano v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., Tex.Civ.App., 230 S.W. 1049, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

83. Mass.—McGarry v. Holyoke St. R. Co., 65 N.E. 45, 182 Mass. 123

84. La.—Lichtenstein v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 103 So. 769, 770, 158 La. 284.
Right to arrest or detain passenger see infra § 827.
"What a conductor may do himself in this respect he may cause to be done by an officer of the law."—Lichtenstein v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., supra.

85. U.S.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Diefenbach, Tex., 167 F. 39, 92 C.C.A. 501
Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Ritter, 41 S.W. 753, 16 Tex.Civ.App. 482.
10 C.J. p. 759 note 30.

86. Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Ritter, supra.

87. U.S.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Diefenbach, Tex., 167 F. 39, 92 C.C.A. 501.

Ejection from waiting room

Tex.—Texas Midland R. Co. v. Geraldon, 117 S.W. 1004, 54 Tex.Civ.App. 71.
Wash.—Whitlock v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 109 P. 188, 59 Wash. 15
10 C.J. p. 759 note 32.

Mistreatment in arrest

Where a passenger's misconduct justified his arrest the carrier was held not liable for his mistreatment by police officers who were arresting him at the request of the conductor.—Carver v. Carolina, etc., R. Co., 85 S.E. 293, 165 N.C. 204.

he should not resist a lawful ejection, and if he does he cannot recover for injuries received, unless resistance is necessary for defense against injury, or the force applied in ejecting is unreasonable, unnecessary, wanton, or malicious.

Although there is authority indicating the contrary,[88] generally, a person who is rightfully on the vehicle of a carrier may resist a wrongful ejection therefrom[89] to a reasonable extent,[90] or to such an extent as may be necessary to make it appear that he is being ejected by compulsion and against his will,[91] so long as the resistance does not amount to a criminal disturbance of the peace.[92] Similarly, where the carrier's employees, without authority, attempt to eject a person in an improper manner or at an improper place, he may resist to such an extent as is necessary to maintain his rights.[93]

On the other hand, if an employee of a carrier is acting lawfully in ejecting a person, as where the latter is violating a reasonable rule or regulation of the company, then the ejected person has no right to resist, but should peaceably leave the vehicle upon request.[94] The question whether an ejection is or is not lawful is determined by the principles stated in §§ 806-823 supra.

Resistance to increase or decrease damages. Resistance otherwise improper is not justified by the ejected person's purpose of increasing the damages which he may recover;[95] but one need not submit to a wrongful ejection in order to economize the damages.[96]

Injuries during ejection. A passenger rightfully subject to ejection,[97] or a trespasser,[98] who resists a conductor's attempt to expel him is not entitled to damages for injuries received during the ejection, unless resistance is necessary for defense against impending personal injury,[99] or unless the force applied in ejecting him is unreasonable or unnecessary,[1] or willful or wanton, or malicious.[2] On the other hand, a carrier is liable for injuries received by one while resisting an unlawful ejection.[3]

88. Ill.—Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. Brethauer, 125 Ill.App. 204, affirmed 79 N.E. 287, 223 Ill. 521—Schaefer v. North Chicago St. R. Co., 82 Ill.App. 473—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson, 23 Ill.App. 63.

89. U.S.—New York, etc., R. Co. v. Winter, Mass., 12 S.Ct. 356, 143 U.S. 60, 36 L.Ed. 71.
10 C.J. p 760 note 43, p 762 note 48.

90. U.S.—Brown v. Memphis & C. R. Co., C.C.Tenn., 7 F. 51.
Ind.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Wolfe, 27 N.E. 606, 128 Ind. 347, 25 Am.S.R. 436.

91. U.S.—New York, etc., R. Co. v. Winter, Mass., 12 S.Ct. 356, 143 U.S. 60, 73, 36 L.Ed. 71.
10 C.J. p 760 note 44.

92. Iowa.—Ellsworth v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 63 N.W. 584, 95 Iowa 98, 29 L.R.A. 173.

93. Ind.—Indianapolis Tract., etc., Co. v. Lockman, 96 N.E. 970, 49 Ind.App. 143.
10 C.J. p 760 note 45.

94. U.S.—Hall v. Memphis, etc., R. Co., C.C.Tenn., 15 F. 57.
Cal.—Wright v. California Cent. R. Co., 20 P. 740, 78 Cal. 360.
Conn.—Norton v. Consolidated R. Co., 63 A. 1087, 79 Conn. 109, 118 Am.S.R. 132, 6 Ann.Cas. 943.
Ill.—Kiley v. Chicago City R. Co., 59 N.E. 794, 189 Ill. 384, 82 Am.S.R. 460, 52 L.R.A. 626—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Louthan, 80 Ill.App. 579.
Kan.—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Gants, 17 P. 54, 38 Kan. 608, 5 Am.S.R. 780.
N.Y.—Monnier v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 67 N.E. 569, 175 N.Y. 281, 96 Am.S.R. 619, 62 L.R.A. 357, reversing 75 N.Y.S. 521, 70 App Div. 405—Taylor v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 53 N.Y.S. 5, 32 App.Div. 486.
Or.—Peabody v. Oregon R., etc., Co., 26 P. 1053, 21 Or. 121, 12 L.R.A. 823.
Wash.—Loy v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 122 P. 372, 68 Wash. 33.

95. U.S.—Hall v. Memphis, etc., R. Co., C.C.Tenn., 15 F. 57.
Wash.—Loy v. Northern Pac. Ry Co., 122 P. 372, 68 Wash. 33.
10 C.J. p 761 note 47 [d].
Aggravation, mitigation, and reduction of damages generally see infra § 852.

96. Iowa.—Ellsworth v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 63 N.W. 584, 95 Iowa 98, 29 L.R.A. 173.

97. Ill.—Kiley v. Chicago City R. Co., 59 N.E. 794, 189 Ill. 384, 82 Am.S.R. 460, 52 L.R.A. 626—Devine v. Chicago City R. Co., 141 Ill.App. 583, affirmed 86 N.E. 689, 237 Ill. 278—Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. Brethauer, 125 Ill.App. 204, affirmed 79 N.E. 287, 223 Ill. 521—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Cosgrove, 83 Ill.App. 421—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Louthan, 80 Ill.App. 579—North Chicago St. R. Co. v. Olds, 40 Ill. App. 421—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson, 23 Ill.App. 63.
Mo.—Randell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 76 S.W. 493, 102 Mo.App. 342.
N.Y.—Taylor v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 53 N.Y.S. 5, 32 App.Div. 486.
Or.—Peabody v. Oregon R., etc., Co., 26 P. 1053, 21 Or. 121, 12 L.R.A. 823.
10 C.J. p 761 note 47 [f].

98. Ill.—North Chicago St. R. Co v. Olds, 40 Ill.App. 421.
Kan.—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Brown, 42 P. 588, 2 Kan.App. 604.

99. U.S.—Hall v. Memphis, etc., R. Co., C.C.Tenn., 15 F. 57.
Resisting a dangerous ejection from a moving train does not constitute negligence defeating a recovery for death resulting from such ejection.—English v. Delaware, etc., Canal Co., 66 N.Y. 454, 23 Am.R. 69—Sanford v. Eighth Ave. R. Co., 23 N.Y. 343, 80 Am.D. 286.
Efforts to cling to train to prevent falling under the wheels cannot be considered as a resistance by a trespasser to those attempting to remove him while the train is in motion.—Southern R. Co. v. Shaw, Ga., 86 F. 865, 31 C.C.A. 70.

1. Ill.—Devine v. Chicago City R. Co., 141 Ill.App. 583, affirmed 86 N.E. 689, 237 Ill. 278—Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. Brethauer, 125 Ill.App. 204, affirmed 79 N.E. 287, 223 Ill. 521—North Chicago St. R. Co. v. Olds, 40 Ill.App. 421.

2. Ill.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Louthan, 80 Ill.App. 579—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Wilson, 23 Ill.App. 63.
Kan.—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Brown, 42 P. 588, 2 Kan.App. 604.
Mo.—Randell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 76 S.W. 493, 102 Mo.App. 342.
Or.—Peabody v. Oregon R., etc., Co., 26 P. 1053, 21 Or. 121, 12 L.R.A. 823.
Liability for willful, wanton, or malicious acts of employees in general see infra § 328 b.

3. Ind.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Wolfe, 27 N.E. 606, 128 Ind. 347, 25 Am.S.R. 436.
Iowa.—Ellsworth v. Chicago, etc., R.

§ 825. Return of Fare or Ticket

While the conduct of the passenger leading to his ejection may under some circumstances be such as to forfeit his rights in any sum paid by him for transportation, ordinarily the carrier cannot eject a passenger and retain a fare paid by him in excess of the proper fare to the place of ejection.

In general, a carrier which has accepted money in payment of fare or for the purchase of a ticket cannot eject the passenger for failure to pay a proper fare, without returning to him the amount paid after deducting the proper fare to the place of ejection.[4] This rule has been applied where the ejection is because of a refusal of the passenger to pay an extra sum demanded because of not having purchased a ticket before getting on the train,[5] or where a passenger is ejected for riding on the platform of a car although there was no room inside, where his fare has been accepted or his ticket retained,[6] or where a ticket is refused when presented after a stop-over on the ground that it has expired.[7] So, where a passenger who has paid full fare is accompanying a child and is ejected for failure to pay an additional fare demanded for the child, his own fare or the unearned part thereof, after deducting the fare of himself and the child to the place of ejection, must be returned.[8] A passenger who is ejected because he is too ill to complete the journey,[9] or because he is intoxicated and guilty of disorderly conduct,[10] has been held to be entitled to have returned to him the unearned portion of his fare.

The conductor has the right to retain out of the money paid by the passenger the proper fare for transporting him to the place where he is ejected,[11] even though the passenger had no desire and expressed no intention to secure transportation to that place.[12]

On the other hand, it has been held that failure to comply with a reasonable regulation results in a forfeiture of the full amount paid for the ticket,[13] and that a passenger who has surrendered a ticket which is void and worthless because the time limit has expired is not wrongfully ejected, even though the conductor improperly retains the worthless ticket, at least where such passenger did not promise to pay fare on the condition that the ticket be returned.[14] A passenger who is ejected from an extra fare car on his refusal to pay the extra fare is not entitled to the return of his ticket when he is invited to ride in a car for which he has paid transportation.[15]

Time and necessity for tender. A tender of the unearned portion of the fare, where a passenger is entitled to the same, may be at any time up to the time of ejection;[16] but not after ejection.[17] A Co., 63 N.W. 584, 95 Iowa 98, 29 L.R.A. 173.

10 C.J. p 760 note 43.

4. Ind.—Brown v. Terre Haute, I. & E. Traction Co., 110 N.E. 703, 113 N.E. 313, 63 Ind.App. 327.

10 C.J. p 762 notes 50, 54.

5. Cal.—Bland v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 55 Cal. 570, 36 Am.R. 50

Minn.—Wardwell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 49 N.W. 206, 46 Minn. 514, 24 Am.S.R. 246, 13 L.R.A. 596.

6. N.Y.—Hanna v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 45 N.Y.S. 437, 18 App.Div. 137.

7. Me.—Burnham v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 63 Me. 298, 18 Am.R. 220

Stop-over

Where defendant's ticket agent represented to plaintiff that it was necessary to purchase but one ticket to enable him to pass over the road, stopping over night at an intervening station, and plaintiff purchased a ticket, paying the fare demanded for the whole distance, the conductor, having been informed of the representations of the ticket agent, was not authorized to expel plaintiff from the train on refusing the ticket on the second day on the ground that it was indorsed, "Good for this day only," without first offering to return the excessive fare paid or to deduct it from the fare demanded, although the rules of the company prohibited passengers from stopping over on such tickets.—Burnham v. Grand Trunk R. Co., 63 Me. 298, 18 Am.R. 220.

8. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Watson, 255 S.W. 1056, 201 Ky. 108.

10 C.J. p 762 note 50 [b].

Tender of stop-over check

Where the ticket is such that a stop-over may be had thereon, the conductor may tender a stop-over check instead of money, but to retain the ticket and eject the parties from the train renders the company liable in damages.—Lake Shore, etc., R. Co. v. Orndorff, 45 N.E. 447, 55 Ohio St. 589, 60 Am.S.R. 716, 38 L.R.A. 140.

9. Ky.—Casteel v. American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky. 818

10. Ind.—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. McDonald, 68 Ind. 316

Under a statute authorizing the ejection of an intoxicated passenger, the conductor may, after tendering him such "proportion of the fare he has paid, as the distance he then is from the place to which he has paid his fare bears to the whole distance for which he has paid his fare," remove such a passenger from the train.—Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. McDonald, 68 Ind. 316.

11. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Watson, 255 S.W. 1056, 201 Ky. 108

10 C.J. p 762 note 53.

12. Minn.—Wardwell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 49 N.W. 206, 46 Minn. 514, 24 Am.S.R. 246, 13 L.R.A. 596, overruling on this point Du Laurans v. First Div. St. Paul, etc., R. Co., 15 Minn. 49, 2 Am.R. 102.

10 C.J. p 762 note 53.

13. Iowa.—Gregory v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 69 N.W. 532, 100 Iowa 345.

Rule prohibiting dogs in a coach

Iowa.—Gregory v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 69 N.W. 532, 100 Iowa 345.

14. Cal.—Elliott v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 79 P. 420, 145 Cal. 441, 68 L.R.A. 393.

15. Cal.—Wright v. Central R. Co., 20 P. 740, 78 Cal. 360.

16. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Watson, 255 S.W. 1056, 201 Ky. 108.

17. Cal.—Bland v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 55 Cal. 570, 36 Am.R. 50

Minn.—Wardwell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 49 N.W. 206, 46 Minn. 514, 24 Am.S.R. 246, 13 L.R.A. 596.

A duty to carry the passenger is reimposed on the railroad when the passenger makes a tender of the full amount after ejection.—Bland v.

conductor is not required to make an actual tender of the return fare until a time just preceding the ejection, and, if a passenger voluntarily leaves the train in the absence of and without the knowledge of the conductor, he waives the necessity of such a tender.[18]

§ 826. Readmission after Ejection

A passenger who has been ejected for nonpayment of fare at a point other than a regular stopping place is not entitled to reënter the train on a tender of the fare nor, where he has been ejected at a regular stopping place, on tender of the fare from such place to his destination. One who has been wrongfully ejected is entitled to reenter on tender of the fare.

As a general rule the carrier is not required to permit a passenger who has been rightfully ejected to reënter its train;[19] so, where a passenger has been rightfully ejected at a place other than a regular station or stopping place because of his failure or refusal to produce a proper ticket or to pay his fare, he is not entitled to reënter the train on a tender of the required fare.[20] Where he has been ejected at a regular stopping place, he is not as a rule regarded as having a right to reënter the same train on a tender of a ticket or the fare from the point of ejection to his destination, and he must tender the full fare from the point where he first boarded the train to his destination;[21] and this is true, although he purchases a ticket from the station of ejection to that of his destination and attempts to board the train in good faith and belief of his legal rights.[22] Further, even in case of a tender of the full fare, it has been intimated that the carrier is under no further duty to transport the passenger on the same train.[23] On the other hand, if a passenger boards a train in good faith, believing that his ticket entitles him to ride to his destination, and is ejected at an intermediate station, he may at such station purchase a ticket to his destination and board the same train with a right to be carried thereon,[24] although he cannot do so if his refusal to pay fare before his original ejection was any part of a scheme to obtain transportation for less than the regular rate.[25] So, where a passenger has quietly submitted to expulsion from a train after a dispute as to the route over which his ticket entitled him to be carried, he is entitled to be carried to his destination on the

Southern Pac. R. Co., 55 Cal. 570, 36 Am.R. 50

Ejection for violation of a reasonable rule

One who is ejected for violation of a reasonable rule requiring a permit to ride on a freight train is not damaged by the ejection, even though the fare is not returned to him until after the ejection, there having been no previous demand by the passenger for the return of the fare—Ellis v. Houston, etc., R. Co., 70 S.W. 114, 30 Tex.Civ.App. 172.

18. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Watson, 255 S.W. 1056, 201 Ky. 108.

A conductor is entitled to an opportunity to perform the condition precedent to the exercise of his right to eject.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Watson, 255 S.W. 1056, 201 Ky. 108.

Specific command

Where the conductor has given the passenger a specific command to leave the train at a certain place, then no further notice to him is necessary in order to place the burden on him to make the tender before such passenger leaves.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Watson, 255 S.W. 1056, 201 Ky. 108.

19. S.C.—Phillips v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 73 S.E. 75, 90 S.C. 187, 38 L.R.A.,N.S., 1151, Ann.Cas.1913C 1244

Tex.—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 336

Violation of rules

Where a passenger has been ejected because he has violated valid rules of the company, he cannot demand as a matter of right, even upon complying with the rule violated, to be taken back at once unless he is put off at a regular stopping station and unless at least he then and there obtains a ticket or tenders his fare. —Nelson v. Long Island R. Co., 7 Hun, N.Y., 140.

Willful refusal to pay fare

While at common law a carrier must accept passengers who present themselves in a proper manner, and are ready and willing to comply with the reasonable rules of the company, the carrier may enforce a reasonable rule preventing a passenger who has willfully refused to pay his fare and provoked ejection from reëntering the train from which he was ejected.—Phillips v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 73 S.E. 75, 90 S.C. 187, 38 L.R.A., N.S., 1151, Ann.Cas.1913C 1244.

A statute which makes it the duty of a carrier to stop at advertised stations a sufficient time for receiving and letting off passengers refers merely to passengers beginning or ending passage at such stations, and cannot be construed as requiring a carrier to receive as a passenger one who had been ejected for misconduct affording ground for ejection from the train which he is seeking to reenter—Phillips v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 73 S.E. 75, 90 S.C. 187, 38 L.R.A.,N.S., 1151, Ann.Cas.1913C 1244.

20. Conn.—Crocker v. New London, etc., R. Co., 24 Conn. 249.

Ga.—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., 92 S.E. 34, 19 Ga.App 670.

Mass.—O'Brien v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 15 Gray 20, 77 Am.D. 347.

N.C.—Pickens v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 10 S.E. 556, 104 N.C. 312

Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346

10 C.J. p 751 note 65.

Tender or payment of fare to avoid ejection after steps have been taken to eject a passenger see supra § 812 b.

21. Ga.—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., 92 S.E. 34, 19 Ga.App 670.

N.C.—Pickens v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 10 S.E. 556, 104 N.C. 312.

10 C.J. p 752 note 76.

Under an Arkansas statute, one found without pass or ticket may be ejected where he refuses to pay fare from the point of embarkation to his destination, although he tenders his fare from the point where the train then is to his destination—Chicago etc., R. Co. v. Watkins, 175 S.W. 1157, 117 Ark. 488, L.R.A.1915E 311.

22. Iowa—Stone v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co., 47 Iowa 82, 29 Am.R. 458

23. Ga.—Coyle v. Southern R. Co., 37 S.E. 163, 112 Ga. 121.

24. N.H.—Whittemore v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 83 A. 125, 76 N.H. 388.

N.Y.—Ward v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 9 N.Y.S. 377, 56 Hun 268.

25. N.H.—Whittemore v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 83 A. 125, 76 N.H. 388.

same train after he has offered to pay his fare.[26] Where a passenger has been wrongfully ejected at a station, he does not forfeit his right to reënter the train and to proceed as a passenger on the payment of fare.[27] Further, one who has been illegally ejected from a train does not lose his rights as a passenger and has the right to reënter it, although not put off at a regular station, and to continue his journey on tender of the regular fare from the point at which he boarded the train to his destination;[28] and it has been held that a passenger who is wrongfully ejected has a right to reënter, and if, in his endeavor so to do, he receives an injury, he may recover therefor unless there was on his part a want of reasonable care or prudence which produced or essentially contributed to produce such injury.[29]

Reëntry to procure fare. A passenger who has been given an opportunity to procure money to pay his fare before he is ejected either at a station or at a place other than a station at which the train is stopped for the purpose of ejecting him has no right to demand that he be allowed to reënter the train for the purpose of procuring money to pay his fare,[30] although, where he has been given no opportunity before ejection to procure money to pay his fare from a friend who is on the train with him; his request to reënter the train to procure the money has been held to be improperly refused.[31]

§ 827. Right to Arrest or Detain Passenger

In the absence of a statutory authority the carrier has no right to arrest or detain a passenger, but may do so under statutory authority.

The carrier, in the absence of statutory authority, has no right to cause the arrest of a passenger ejected for nonpayment of fare,[32] nor to detain or imprison him,[33] and, if the ejection for refusal to pay fare is illegal, the subsequent arrest and detention of a passenger is, of course, wrongful.[34]

However, under some statutes a railroad conductor is authorized to act as a peace officer, and may arrest a passenger if he has reasonable ground for believing him intoxicated,[35] even though it may afterward appear that he was not intoxicated,[36] or if the passenger fraudulently evades, or attempts to evade, the payment of fare, or refuses to pay fare.[37]

§ 828. Liability for Wrongful Ejection

a. Acts of employees or agents generally
b. Willful, wanton, reckless, or malicious acts
c. Liability for acts subsequent to ejection

a. Acts of Employees or Agents Generally

Generally the carrier is liable for the acts of its serv-

26. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co v. Breckenridge, 34 S.W. 702, 99 Ky. 1, 17 Ky L. 1303.

27. Tenn.—Choctaw, etc., R. Co v. Hill, 75 S.W. 963, 110 Tenn. 396.

A discharged employee, whose ejection was wrongful because made without a demand for fare, could reenter the train on a tender of the amount necessary to take him from the point of ejection to his destination.—Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Hill, 75 S.W. 963, 110 Tenn. 396.

28. Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346.

29. Conn.—Crocker v. New London, etc., R. Co., 24 Conn. 249.

30. Tex.—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386

31. Tex.—Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co v. Bunn, 95 S.W. 640, 41 Tex.Civ. App. 503.

32. Ark.—Ft. Smith & Van Buren Dist. v. Kidd, 241 S.W. 374, 153 Ark. 489.

Carrier's liability for passenger's wrongful arrest or detention caused by act of agent or employee see C.J.S. title False Imprisonment § 40, also 25 C.J. p 507 note 44—p 510 note 72.

33. N.Y.—Lynch v. Metropolitan El. R. Co., 90 N.Y. 77, 43 Am.R. 141

Tex.—San Antonio, etc., R. Co. v. Nappier, Civ.App., 141 S.W. 564.

10 C.J. p 762 notes 59, 60.

Liability for fare, a debt

A carrier may not detain or imprison a passenger who, after the trip is completed, is unable to produce his ticket, as the charge for carriage is a debt which must be enforced by the same remedies that any creditor has against his debtor. —Lynch v. Metropolitan El. R. Co., 90 N.Y. 77, 43 Am.R. 141.

Liability not dependent on negligence

The liability of a carrier for the misconduct of its agent at a station in confining in the station room a passenger ejected from the train for his failure to pay fare or to produce a ticket does not depend on negligence.—San Antonio, etc., R. Co v. Nappier, Tex.Civ.App., 141 S.W. 564

34. Pa.—Richards v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 70 Pa.Super. 257.

Va.—Mangum v Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346.

Imprisonment in baggage car

Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346.

A passenger's refusal to converse with a conductor on the question of where he had boarded the train and what his destination was, the conductor's questions being directed for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the passenger had paid his fare, does not justify the arrest of such passenger where it was a fact that he had surrendered his ticket.—Richards v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 70 Pa.Super. 257.

35. Ark.—Memphis, etc., R. Co. v. Trussell, 183 S.W. 981, 122 Ark. 516—St. Louis, etc., R. Co v. Waters, 152 S.W. 137, 105 Ark. 619—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Hudson, 130 S.W. 534, 95 Ark. 506

Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Bell 179 S.W. 400, 166 Ky. 400

10 C.J. p 762 note 61.

Liability of carrier for acts of employee as police officer in general see supra § 693.

36. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Waters, 152 S.W. 137, 105 Ark. 619 —St. Louis, etc., R. Co v. Hudson, 130 S.W. 534, 95 Ark. 506.

37. Mass.—Krulevitz v. Eastern R. Co., 9 N.E. 613, 143 Mass. 228—Beckwith v. Cheshire R. Co., 8 N.E. 875, 143 Mass. 68.

10 C.J. p 763 note 62.

ants or agents in wrongfully ejecting a person from its vehicles or waiting rooms when such acts are within the course or scope of their employment.

A carrier is generally held liable for the wrongful acts of an employee or agent in ejecting a person from its conveyances[38] or waiting rooms[39] so far as the employee or agent is acting within the course or scope of his employment. This is true where the employee is acting within the general scope of his employment, although his wrongful acts were an abuse of his authority and were not within the performance of his prescribed duties,[40] but it has been held that the wrongful act of a special agent must have been within his capacity as an agent.[41] Where the ejection of a passenger is wrongful, the carrier is liable for the acts of its servants or agents although the ejection is done through an error of judgment,[42] and although the carrier's employee acted in good faith,[43] and without regard to the care exercised.[44]

A distinction is sometimes drawn between cases relating to the ejection of passengers and those relating to the ejection of trespassers, under which it is held that in the case of a passenger it is immaterial whether or not the employee was acting within the scope of his employment since the carrier must afford protection to its passengers.[45]

Acts of particular employee. Not all employees of a carrier will be held to have been acting within the scope of their employment in ejecting persons from trains or cars.[46] Since it is within the scope and course of employment of a conductor to determine who is entitled to transportation on his train or car, the carrier will be held liable for his wrongful acts in ejecting a person therefrom,[47]

38. U.S.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Burns, Tenn., 242 F. 411, 155 C.C.A. 187.
N.Y.—Higgins v. Watervliet Turnpike & R. Co., 46 N.Y. 23, 7 Am.R. 293.
Pa.—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 94 Pa.Super. 50.
10 C.J. p 763 note 67.

A violation of instructions does not take a servant's act outside the scope of his employment.—Higgins v. Waterlviet Turnpike & R. Co., 46 N.Y. 23, 7 Am.R. 293.

Liability founded on law of agency

The liability of a railroad company for the improper conduct of its employees in removing a trespasser from its trains or cars is founded on the law of agency, and not on the duty imposed by law on common carriers.—Farber v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 22 S.W. 631, 116 Mo. 81, 20 L.R.A. 350.

39. Ga.—Mooneyham v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 126 S.E. 736, 33 Ga.App. 406.
Iowa.—Johnson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 12 N.W. 329, 58 Iowa 348.
10 C.J. p 763 note 69.

Exclusion of colored person from a waiting room set apart for his race.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Green, 139 S.W. 307, 99 Ark. 572.

Passenger waiting for train on another road

Where agent in charge of a station wrongfully ejects a passenger while the latter is waiting for the train of another railroad, the agent is acting within the scope of his employment.—Johnson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 12 N.W. 329, 58 Iowa 348.

Although a carrier is under no duty to maintain a waiting room, where it actually does so a passenger is entitled to use it and may recover for the act of an agent in unjustifiably ejecting him.—Mooneyham v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 126 S.E. 736, 33 Ga.App. 406.

40. U.S.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Burns, Tenn., 242 F. 411, 155 C.C.A. 187—Pendleton v. Kinsley, C.C.R.I., 19 Fed.Cas.No.10,922, 3 Cliff. 416.
Tenn.—Springer Transp. Co. v. Smith, 1 S.W. 280, 16 Lea 498.

Rules of carrier

A passenger's right to recover cannot be affected by any rule of the carrier prescribing the duties of its agents or conductors.—Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Thornton, Va., 188 Fed. 868, 110 C.C.A. 502.

41. W.Va.—Clark v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 100 S.E. 480, 84 W.Va. 526, 7 A.L.R. 117.

Special agent deputized by prohibition officers

One who is a special agent of a carrier does not create liability on the company by his act of assisting in the expulsion of a passenger when he is acting as a deputy prohibition officer engaged in searching the train at the time of his wrongful act, such act being outside of his duty to the carrier.—Clark v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 100 S.E. 480, 84 W.Va. 526, 7 A.L.R. 117.

42. N.Y.—Rowe v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 81 N.Y.S. 106, 80 App.Div. 477.
10 C.J. p 764 note 76.

43. Ga.—Seaboard Air-Line R. Co. v. O'Quin, 52 S.E. 427, 124 Ga. 357, 2 L.R.A.,N.S., 472.
10 C.J. p 764 note 84.
Obviating liability for exemplary damages see infra § 852.

44. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Osborn, 55 S.W. 142, 67 Ark. 399.
Md.—Maryland, etc., R. Co. v. Knight, 89 A. 1091, 122 Md. 576.

45. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Brown, Civ.App., 135 S.W. 1076.
10 C.J. p 764 note 75
Removal of trespassers from trains generally see C.J.S. title Railroads § 930, also 52 C.J. p 641 note 77—p 642 note 91.

46. Mo.—Griffin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 204 S.W. 826, 199 Mo.App. 682

Ejectment of trespassers

(1) As a general rule, authority or duty to remove trespassers from a train or cars is in the employee in charge thereof.—Swift v. St. Louis-San Francisco R. Co., Mo.App., 15 S.W.2d 964—52 C.J. p 641 note 77.

(2) With respect to particular trains or cars, authority to eject trespassers may be vested in other employees, such as the engineer with respect to his engine.
Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. McCoy, 197 S.W. 801, 177 Ky. 415
Tex.—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Zantzinger, 53 S.W. 379, 93 Tex. 64, 77 Am.S.R. 829, 47 L.R.A. 282, affirming, Civ.App., 49 S.W. 677.

(3) A fireman has been held to act within the scope of his employment in compelling a boy to get off a freight train.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Matukas, 147 P. 1038, 47 Okl. 302, L.R.A.1917C 1066.

(4) A fireman employed to coal the engine and do such other incidental work in and about the engine and tender as is necessary to operate the engine has been held to be without authority, and to be acting beyond the scope of his employment, in leaving the engine and going back over the train to eject a trespasser.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Green, 94 So. 793, 130 Miss. 622.

47. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Harper, 83 So. 142, 203 Ala. 398
Mass.—Ramsden v. Boston & A. R. Co., 104 Mass. 117, 6 Am.R. 200.

even though in so doing he is violating instructions[48] or although his act was motivated by personal spite or ill will.[49] Such liability extends also to the acts of persons employed by the conductor to assist him in the ejection.[50]

A brakeman on a railroad does not necessarily have the authority, in consequence of his general employment, to determine who is entitled to transportation, or to eject persons not so entitled, and, if he acts without such authority, his acts are not chargeable to the carrier;[51] but, where it is within the scope of his duty to eject, then for his wrongful or negligent acts the carrier is liable, although he violates his instructions or the rules of the company.[52] In some jurisdictions a brakeman is held to have implied authority to remove trespassers, by virtue of his employment,[53] but in others he is held to have no such implied authority, so that his authority must be shown to have been given, or acquiesced in, by the company.[54] Such authority may be shown by a custom of brakemen to eject trespassers, of which custom the company has, or should have, knowledge,[55] or by the fact that he has been placed in charge of the train or cars.[56] A distinction has been made, in regard to a brakeman's authority, between passenger and freight trains, a brakeman on a passenger train being held under more of a duty to remove trespassers than a brakeman on a freight train,[57] but this distinction has been denied,[58] or disregarded.[59] A brakeman's authority to put trespassers off a freight train necessarily includes the right to keep them off, and to forbid and prevent their getting on again.[60] It has been held that, even though the conductor is the only one authorized to eject a trespasser, the company is liable for the assault of a brakeman or flagman, causing a person to jump from a moving train, on the ground that it is the duty of the conductor

Mo.—Griffin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 204 S.W. 826, 199 Mo.App. 682
10 C.J. p 764 note 76 [a], p 765 note 89

A conductor is a carrier's vice principal in the matter of collecting fares, and may subject the carrier to liability for his acts while engaged in those duties.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Harper, 83 So. 142, 203 Ala. 398.

Abuse of authority

A carrier is liable for any abuse of authority by a conductor in his act of ejecting a person.—Hamilton v. Third Ave. R. Co., 35 N.Y.Super. 118, reversed on other grounds 53 N.Y. 25

Conductor's act caused by another agent

When train conductor is betrayed by authorized agent of carrier into injuring passenger, passenger may count on conductor's act as against defendant railroad for act of defendant's alter ego.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547, followed in Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556.

Error in judgment

A carrier is responsible for an ejection by its conductor, made through an error in judgment.—Chicago Union Tract. Co. v. McClevey, 126 Ill.App. 21.

Trespassers

Ordinarily authority is vested in the conductor of the train to eject trespassers.—Folley v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 84 P. 1090, 16 Okl. 32—52 C.J. p 641 note 73.

48. Tex.—Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Conder, 58 S.W. 58, 23 Tex.Civ.App. 488.
10 C.J. p 765 note 89.

Respondeat superior will not lie unless the particular injury was done by his command or with his assent.—Allegheny Valley R. Co. v. McCain, 91 Pa. 442.

49. Mo.—Griffin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 204 S.W. 826, 199 Mo.App. 682

50. Mass.—Hull v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 96 N.E. 58, 210 Mass. 159, 36 L.R.A.,N.S., 406, Ann.Cas.1912C 1147—Coleman v. New York, etc., R. Co., 106 Mass. 160.
N.J.—Jardine v. Cornell, 14 A. 590, 50 N.J.Law 485.
Wash.—Mills v. Seattle, etc., R. Co., 96 P. 520, 50 Wash. 20, 19 L.R.A., N.S., 704.
10 C.J. p 765 note 90.

51. Iowa.—Marion v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 13 N.W. 415, 59 Iowa 428.
10 C.J. p 765 note 93

52. Mass.—McKeon v. New York, etc., R. Co., 67 N.E. 329, 183 Mass. 271, 97 Am.S.R. 437.
10 C.J. p 765 note 95.

53. Ga.—Georgia Southern & F. Ry. Co. v. Thomas, 90 S.E. 80, 18 Ga.App. 511.
52 C.J. p 641 note 81.

Effect of express authority in conductor

The fact that the conductor has express authority to eject a trespasser does not mean that it is exclusive, so as to deprive the brakeman of implied authority.—West Jersey, etc., R. Co. v. Welsh, 42 A. 736, 62 N.J.Law 655, 72 Am.S.R. 659.

Rules of company

A brakeman on a passenger train has authority to remove in a lawful manner a trespasser upon the train, whether or not the authority is conferred by the rules of the company.—Hoffman v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 87 N.Y. 25, 41 Am.R. 337, affirmed 46 N.Y.Super. 526.

54. Mass.—Harrington v. Boston, etc., R., 100 N.E. 606, 213 Mass. 338, 45 L.R.A.,N.S., 813, Ann.Cas. 1914A 597.
52 C.J. p 641 note 83.

55. Mo.—Marcum v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 122 S.W. 1148, 139 Mo.App. 217.
Tex.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Mother, 24 S.W. 79, 5 Tex.Civ.App. 87
Va.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson, 25 S.E. 947, 93 Va. 650

That company rules prohibit a brakeman from interfering with trespassers except under the direction of the conductor is immaterial.
Mo.—Marcum v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 122 S.W. 1148, 139 Mo.App. 217.
Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Rutherford, Civ.App., 62 S.W. 1069, affirmed 62 S.W. 1056, 94 Tex. 518.

56. Mass.—Bjornquist v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 70 N.E. 53, 185 Mass. 130, 102 Am.S.R. 332.

57. Mass.—McKeon v. New York, etc., R. Co., 67 N.E. 329, 183 Mass. 271, 97 Am.S.R. 437.

58. Or.—Newkirk v. Oregon-Washington R., etc., Co., 273 P. 707, 128 Or. 28, 35, 72 A.L.R. 530

59. Ga.—Georgia Southern & F. Ry. Co. v. Thomas, 90 S.E. 80, 18 Ga.App. 511.

60. Mo.—Barnes v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., Mo.App., 192 S.W. 1040

Assault under mistake as to return to train

The fact that a brakeman assaulting trespassers is mistaken in thinking that they are going to get back on the train will not relieve the company from liability, although the act is one of the brakeman's ill will.—Barnes v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., Mo.App., 192 S.W. 1040.

to restrain those under him from assaulting even a trespasser.[61]

Where the driver of a street car has authority to eject from the car those not entitled to transportation, the carrier will be liable for his wrongful or negligent acts in so doing,[62] but not where he is not intrusted with the general management and control of the car but has specific duties such as a gripman or motorman.[63]

Statutory duty. Where a conductor in ejecting a passenger does so in the discharge of a specific duty imposed on him by statute, and not in enforcing any private right or rule of the carrier, the carrier is not liable for damages in an action by a passenger for wrongful ejection.[64]

Ejection by colluding employee. Where an employee on a train collusively agrees to carry a person without requiring the payment of fare, the company is not liable for injuries caused by such employee in forcing such person to leave the train while it is in motion, since, being a joint trespasser with such person, he does not represent the carrier in the transaction.[65]

What law governs. The law governing an ejection of a passenger, and the rights and liabilities arising therefrom, is the law of the place where the ejection was made.[66]

b. Willful, Wanton, Reckless, or Malicious Acts

A carrier, under the more generally accepted rule, is liable for willful, wanton, reckless, or malicious acts of its employees in the ejection of a passenger so far as the acts are committed within the course of their employment.

A carrier is ordinarily held liable for the damages resulting from a wrongful ejection by its employees, even though they act recklessly, willfully, or maliciously, if their acts are done in the discharge of their duties as employees or in the course of their employment,[67] and this rule has been applied, even though the person ejected is a trespasser,[68] as the carrier owes a duty to a trespasser not to injure him willfully or wantonly.[69] This rule is applied in some jurisdictions in fixing the liability for exemplary damages, which is considered infra § 853. According to some authorities, however, the carrier is not liable for the wanton or willful acts of its employees in making an ejection.[70]

Acts of particular employees. In accordance with these rules, where such servant or employee is at 61. N.C.—Cook v. Southern R. Co., 38 S.E. 925, 128 N.C. 333.

10 C.J. p 759 note 37 [b].

62. Ky.—Louisville City R. Co. v. Mercer, 11 Ky.L. 810.
10 C.J. p 765 note 91.

63. Mo.—Drolshagen v. Union Depot R. Co., 85 S.W. 344, 186 Mo. 258.
10 C.J. p 765 note 92.

64. Okl.—Stratford v. Midland Valley R. Co., 128 P. 98, 36 Okl. 127.
10 C.J. p 764 note 87.

65. Tex.—Grahn v. International, etc., R. Co., 93 S.W. 104, 100 Tex. 27, 123 Am.S.R. 767, 5 L.R.A.,N.S., 1025.
10 C.J. p 760 note 41.

66. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Southern Ry. Co., 36 S.W.2d 20, 237 Ky. 618.
10 C.J. p 764 note 88.

Agent's act in misrouting ticket

Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Southern Ry. Co., 36 S.W.2d 20, 237 Ky. 618.

67. Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 51 Cal.App. 575.
Ill.—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 83.
Ind.—Terre Haute & I. R. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 47 Ind. 79
Iowa.—McKinley v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 44 Iowa 314, 24 Am.R. 748, affirmed 25 L.Ed. 272, 99 U.S. 147.
Kan.—Lampkin v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 44 P.2d 210, 141 Kan. 763.
Ky.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Copley, 197 S.W. 648, 177 Ky. 171.
Mo.—Tanger v. Southwest Missouri Electric R. Co., 85 Mo.App. 28.
Wis.—Herschman v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 186 N.W. 613, 176 Wis. 209—Lugner v. Milwaukee Electric R., etc., Co., 131 N.W. 342, 146 Wis. 175.
10 C.J. p 763 note 70, p 764 note 74—52 C.J. p 639 note 63.

A malicious motive by a conductor in wrongfully ejecting a passenger does not excuse a carrier from liability.—Passenger R. Co. v. Young, 21 Ohio St. 518, 8 Am.R. 78.

Criminal or willful acts

Iowa.—McKinley v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 44 Iowa 314, 24 Am.R. 748, affirmed 25 L.Ed. 272, 99 U.S. 147.

Kicking one from moving train, held to be a willful assault.—Moore v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 110 P. 1059, 26 Okl. 682.

If the employees act for their own ends, and not for the purpose of exercising their authority and of performing their duties as employees, the carrier is not liable.
Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Randolph, 65 Ill.App. 208.
Iowa.—Marion v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 13 N.W. 415, 59 Iowa 428.
Miss.—Yazoo, etc., R. Co. v. Anderson, 25 So. 865, 77 Miss. 28.
N.Y.—Murphy v. Central Park, etc., R. Co. 48 N.Y.Super. 96.
10 C.J. p 764 note 74—52 C.J. p 640 note 64.

Line of service

A carrier is responsible for the malicious and wanton acts of its servant in ejecting a passenger, whether done in the line of its service or not, if done during the course of the discharge of its duty to the master which relates to the passenger.—Tanger v. Southwest Missouri Electric R. Co., 85 Mo.App. 28.

68. Kan.—Lampkin v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 44 P.2d 210, 141 Kan. 763.
10 C.J. p 758 notes 24, 26—52 C.J. p 639 note 63.
Use of force generally see supra § 824 a.
Removing trespasser from moving train see § 823 b supra.

Shooting trespasser

Kan.—Lampkin v. Chicago Great Western R. Co., 44 P.2d 210, 141 Kan. 763.

69. Ga.—Georgia Southern & F. Ry. Co. v. Thomas, 90 S.E. 80, 18 Ga.App. 511.

70. N.Y.—Hibbard v. New York, etc., R. Co., 15 N.Y. 455.
Pa.—Pennsylvania Co. v. Toomey, 91 Pa. 256.

the time acting within the scope of his employment in removing a trespasser, a railroad company will be liable for injuries caused by the willful, wanton, or reckless acts of a conductor,[71] a flagman on a train,[72] a crossing flagman or tender,[73] an engineer,[74] a motorman,[75] or a brakeman.[76] While it has been held that a brakeman's act in seizing and placing a boy in the cab of an engine, and the act of the enginemen in detaining him there for a while, are not within the scope of their employment, yet, the boy's presence there being contrary to the rules of the company, the act of the enginemen in frightening the boy so as to cause him to jump in front of an engine passing on another track is within the scope of their employment and the railroad company is liable for the boy's injuries.[77]

Joint trespassers Where a person bribes an employee to permit him to ride on a train or car, such employee and person thereby become joint trespassers, and the employee's authority to represent the company in ejecting such person, if he had such authority, thereby ceases, so that the railroad company is not thereafter liable for his acts, although willful or wanton, in ejecting him, unless he afterward receives express authority to make the ejection;[78] and this is also true as to a person who is ejected because he refuses to pay, for the privilege of riding, an employee who has no authority to collect fares.[79]

c. Liability for Acts Subsequent to Ejection

A carrier may be liable for an assault committed by its employees on a passenger after his ejection if the employees were within the course of their employment in commencing the assault; but the carrier is not liable for an assault brought on by the passenger's own conduct, nor for assaults by persons not its employees.

A carrier has been held liable for the wrongful acts of its employees, toward a passenger, committed subsequent to the latter's ejection.[80] Thus, where a carrier's employees failed to use ordinary care in ejecting a passenger, it is liable for an assault on him by such employees after the ejection, provided the employees commenced the assault while acting within the scope of their employment.[81] However, the carrier is not liable if the assault is a separate transaction brought on by the passenger's conduct.[82]

The carrier is not liable for the failure of its employees to use ordinary care to protect from the assaults of others a passenger whom they have ejected.[83]

§ 829. Companies and Persons Liable

A carrier may be held liable for a wrongful ejection of a passenger by another carrier where the first carrier

71. Tex.—Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Kennedy, 29 S.W. 394, 9 Tex.Civ. App. 232
52 C.J. p. 640 note 69.

Striking boy
It is within the line of a conductor's duty to eject licensees and trespassers, and a conductor's act in striking a newsboy and ejecting him creates liability on the part of the company.—Griffin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 204 S.W. 826, 199 Mo.App. 682.

No liability for an unauthorized act of a conductor—Samaritano v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., Tex. Civ.App., 230 S.W. 1049, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

Shooting
(1) A railroad company is liable for the act of a conductor in shooting a trespasser while he is in the act of alighting, unless the shooting is not done for the purpose of forcing the trespasser to get off, but merely from personal resentment.—Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Kennedy, 29 S.W. 394, 9 Tex.Civ.App. 232
Right of particular employees to remove trespassers generally see supra § 809 b.

(2) The act of firing a shot into the air for the purpose of frightening boys off a train is not a wrongful exercise of authority on the part of a conductor.—Samaritano v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., Tex.Civ App., 230 S.W. 1049, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

72. Ky.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Copley, 197 S.W. 648, 177 Ky. 171.
52 C.J. p. 640 note 70.

73. Mo.—Winn v. Kansas City Belt R. Co., 151 S.W. 98, 245 Mo. 406.
N.H.—Patenaude v. Boston, etc., R., 87 A. 249, 77 N.H. 74.

74. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. West, 17 N.E. 788, 125 Ill. 320, 8 Am.S.R. 380, affirming 24 Ill.App. 44.
52 C.J. p. 640 note 72.

75. Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 51 Cal.App. 575.

76. Ga.—Georgia Southern & F. Ry. Co. v. Thomas, 90 S.E. 80, 18 Ga. App. 511
52 C.J. p. 640 note 73, p. 641 notes 81, 83.

77. Pa.—Stephanik v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 89 A. 827, 243 Pa. 43.

78. Minn.—Brevig v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 66 N.W. 401, 64 Minn. 168.
52 C.J. p. 640 note 66

79. Miss.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Latham, 16 So. 757, 72 Miss. 32.

80. Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346

Arrest and imprisonment of a passenger in the baggage car of a train.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A.L.R. 346.

81. Mo.—McDonald v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 146 S.W. 83, 165 Mo.App. 75.
10 C.J. p. 759 note 33.

82. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Stratton, 111 Ill.App. 142.

Conduct justifying assault
If a disorderly passenger defies the conductor, draws a pistol, and thereby induces the conductor to arm himself in order to expel him from the train; and if after expulsion he still uses grossly obscene and profane language, reeking with insult, on which a mutual combat with pistols ensues, the railroad company is not liable for the consequences, although the expelled passenger is wounded in the conflict, even if the conductor, excited by danger and irritated by insult, is not fully excusable for the shooting. It is unjust to a master wrongfully to unfit his servant for exercising the care and prudence which are essential in guarding the master's interest and performing the servant's duty.—Peavy v. Georgia R. Co., 8 S.E. 70, 81 Ga. 485, 12 Am.S.R. 334.

83. Mo.—McDonald v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 146 S.W. 83, 165 Mo.App. 75.

contracted with the passenger on behalf of the second, or where the ejection was due to the fault of an employee of the second carrier when he was also acting as agent for the first; but a sleeping car company and a railroad company have each been held not liable for an ejection by the other.

One carrier may be held liable for a wrongful ejection by another carrier,[84] as where a passenger contracts for transportation for a certain journey with one carrier and is ejected by a connecting carrier; in such a case the initial carrier may be held liable.[85] Where a ticket agent of one carrier acts as the agent of another carrier, the latter company is liable for ejecting a passenger for the reason that he presented an improper or defective ticket, the defect in which was caused by the fault or mistake of the ticket agent[86] or the validating agent.[87] However, it has been held that a carrier whose agent issues a defective ticket is not liable for the passenger's wrongful ejection by a connecting carrier, where the mistake in the ticket and its explanation were apparent to the latter's conductor,[88] or where the agent who sold the ticket had no knowledge of a rule of the connecting carrier to the effect that the ticket sold would not be good on the train from which the passenger was ejected.[89]

A wrongful ejection by a railroad conductor will not render a sleeping car company liable; and it has also been held that such an ejection by a sleeping car conductor will not render the railroad company liable,[90] but, with respect to the latter proposition, there is authority indicating a different rule in the case of the ejection of passengers.[91]

An express company that contracted with a shipper of stock to carry him in the car used for his stock is not liable as a joint tort-feasor with the railroad company which ejected him from a passenger coach in which he was riding, there being no room for him in the stock car.[92]

Ejection from waiting room. Where two carriers maintain jointly a waiting room at a junction point of both roads, an eviction from the room by an agent of both carriers acting within the scope of his authority creates liability on the part of both carriers.[93] Further, where two railroad companies

84. Ky.—Guy v. Interstate Transit, 51 S.W.2d 455, 244 Ky. 479.
N.C.—Creech v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 453, 174 N.C. 61, L.R.A.1918D 1030

85. Ky.—Guy v. Interstate Transit, 51 S.W.2d 455, 244 Ky. 479.

86. N.C.—Creech v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 453, 174 N.C. 61, L.R.A.1918D 1030
10 C.J. p. 765 note 96.

Creation of agency

When carrier recognizes tickets sold over its line by connecting carrier, agent of latter becomes agent of road contracting for transportation. In other words, where there exists a reciprocal relationship between the two carriers for the carrying of passengers, the agent of the one road is also the agent for the other when he sells a ticket for transportation over the latter.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547.

Point of destination on ticket changed

Where a ticket agent of a connecting carrier makes a change in the point of destination indicated on a passenger's ticket, so that he is ejected from the carrier on which he later continues his journey, the latter company is liable inasmuch as the ticket agent was acting as its agent in making such change.—Creech v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 93 S.E. 453, 174 N.C. 61, L.R.A.1918D 1030.

Return coupon of round trip ticket

(1) Railroad ejecting passenger presenting return coupon of ticket, sold by connecting carrier, on which coupon return route was not designated, is liable where railroad had accepted ticket for initial trip.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547.

(2) Return coupon on ticket not designating routing over connecting carrier is not void.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, supra—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, supra.

Stipulation in ticket limiting liability

If a carrier, in selling a ticket over a connecting line, does so only as an agent of the connecting carrier, and the ticket provides that the former shall not be responsible for the acts or negligence of the latter, then there may be no liability for a wrongful ejection by the connecting carrier.—Guy v. Interstate Transit, 51 S.W.2d 455, 244 Ky. 479.

87. Ind.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Allbright, 100 N.E. 885, 54 Ind.App. 203.
Tex.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Wharton, Civ.App., 145 S.W. 282.

Mistake in validating

Ind.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Allbright, 100 N.E. 885, 54 Ind.App. 203.

Refusal to validate

Tex.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Wharton, Civ.App., 145 S.W. 282

88. Miss.—Alabama, etc., R. Co. v. Holmes, 23 So. 187, 75 Miss. 371.

89. Tex.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Carroll, Civ.App., 151 S.W. 1116.

90. U.S.—Paddock v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., C.C.Mo., 37 F. 841, 4 L.R.A. 231.
Ejection of passengers from palace or sleeping cars generally see infra § 913.

91. Tex.—Blake v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., 85 S.W. 430, 38 Tex.Civ.App. 337.

Passengers and trespassers distinguished

While the conductor of a Pullman car forming part of a railroad company's train is, in his dealings with its passengers, to be regarded as its servant, making it responsible for his acts as if he were directly employed by it, this is not so as respects his dealings with a trespasser on the train and car.—Blake v. Kansas City Southern R. Co., 85 S.W. 430, 38 Tex.Civ.App. 337.

92. N.C.—Teeter v. Southern Express Co., 90 S.E. 761, 172 N.C. 616, reargument denied 90 S.E. 927, 172 N.C. 620.

93. Ga.—Mooneyham v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 126 S.E. 736, 33 Ga.App. 406.

Statements by agent without authority

Statements made by the agent of one of two such carriers at the initial point of a passenger's journey, which journey contemplated transportation over both lines, to the effect that the waiting room would remain open all night, are not binding on the other carrier as an agreement to keep the room open, where it appears that the agent making the state-use the same depot, one of them owning it, both may be held liable to a passenger for an assault on him in, and for his ejection from, the waiting room, notwithstanding an agreement between them providing otherwise.[94]

§ 830. Proximate Cause of Injury

For a carrier to be liable for damages or injuries to an ejected person, they must, in general, be the proximate or natural consequence of the ejection; and this is true of persons ejected while in a helpless condition.

A carrier is liable for such damages as proximately result from a wrongful ejection,[95] or for such injuries as are the natural and probable consequence thereof;[96] further, even though a carrier has a right to expel a person,[97] it should not do so at such a time and place, or under such circumstances, that serious injury will probably and naturally result.[98] Conversely, a carrier may not be held liable for injuries sustained by a person in immediate connection with his ejection,[99] or for injuries received subsequent thereto,[1] if the ejection is not the proximate cause of the injuries received, or, as otherwise stated, if the injury received is not the natural and probable consequence thereof; and this is true, even though the act of ejection is itself wrongful[2] or negligent.[3]

Helpless condition of person ejected. Even though a person is in a helpless condition and is negligently ejected, the carrier is not liable for injuries received subsequent to the ejection if it was not the proximate cause of the injuries;[4] but, if a ments had no authority over, or duties to perform in connection with, the waiting room.—Mooneyham v Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 126 S. E. 736, 33 Ga.App. 406.

94. Ky.—Ashland Coal & Iron Ry. Co v Elswick, 225 S.W. 244, 189 Ky. 507.

95. Ky.—Casteel v American Airways, 88 S.W.2d 976, 261 Ky. 818. 10 C.J. p 755 note 3.

Injuries from exposure

Where a passenger is wrongfully ejected on a cold night, and as a result thereof freezes parts of his body, the carrier is liable for such injuries.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co., 180 N.W. 733, 190 Iowa 693.

96. Pa.—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 94 Pa.Super. 50

Proximate and remote damages see infra § 851.

97. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539 10 C.J. p 755 note 3.

98. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v Maze, supra.
10 C.J. p 755 note 3.
Time and place of ejection generally see supra § 821.

99. N.J.—Justesen v Pennsylvania R. Co., 106 A. 137, 92 N.J.Law 257
Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bass, Civ.App., 54 S.W.2d 172.
Utah.—Bergman v Denver & R. G. R. Co., 178 P. 68, 53 Utah 213.
10 C.J. p 756 note 8

Stepping into hole

Injuries sustained from stepping into a hole on alighting from a train, held not proximately caused by the conductor's wrongful order to the injured person to leave the train.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bass, Tex.Civ.App., 54 S.W.2d 172.

Intervening agency

Where defendant railroad company's information bureau wrongly informed plaintiff that a quarantine in another state had been lifted, whereupon plaintiff with her baby traveled over defendant's line in a Pullman car and was removed therefrom after the car had been taken over by another railroad company because of such quarantine, the conductor of the other road was the culpable and efficient agency intervening between defendant's dereliction and plaintiff's injury, and defendant was not liable. —Justesen v Pennsylvania R. Co., 106 A. 137, 92 N.J.Law 257.

1. Cal.—Lammers v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 199 P. 523, 186 Cal. 379
Iowa.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co., 180 N.W. 733, 190 Iowa 693
Md.—State v Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co., 101 A. 546, 130 Md. 603
Pa.—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 94 Pa.Super. 50.
10 C.J. p 756 note 8

Ejected person struck by another train

(1) Where an ejected passenger was struck at a point about a mile distant from the place of ejection by a different train from that from which he was expelled, his death resulting therefrom was not the natural and probable consequence of the ejection.—State v Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co., 101 A. 546, 130 Md. 603.

(2) Ejection held not the proximate cause of injuries received from another train at a distance of three-fourths of a mile from the point of ejection and six hours later, where the injured party had once left the place of danger.—Lammers v Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 199 P. 523, 186 Cal. 379.

(3) Passenger ejected from car, who thereafter walks along defendant's tracks, assumes risk of its perils.—State v. Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co., supra.

Illness resulting from exposure

Pa.—Weathers v Pennsylvania R. Co., 94 Pa.Super. 50.

2. Iowa.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co., 180 N.W. 733, 190 Iowa 693.
Md.—State v. Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co., 101 A. 546, 130 Md. 603
Pa.—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 94 Pa.Super. 50
Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bass, Civ.App., 54 S.W.2d 172.

3. Cal.—Lammers v Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 199 P. 523, 186 Cal. 379.
Pa.—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 94 Pa.Super. 50.
Utah.—Bergman v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 178 P. 68, 53 Utah 213.
10 C.J. p 756 note 9.

Rule applied to trespasser

Trespasser suing for injuries from falling under wheels while stealing ride under passenger car could not recover on ground that railroad employee negligently ordered him to jump off while train was moving, unless such order was cause of trespasser's attempt to leave train.—Bergman v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 178 P. 68, 53 Utah 213.

4. Cal.—Lammers v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 199 P. 523, 186 Cal. 379.
10 C.J. p 756 notes 8, 10

Subsequent injury to intoxicated person

(1) A railroad was not liable for injuries to person on track, on theory that it had negligently ejected him for failure to produce ticket or fare, although he was in a helpless condition as a result of intoxication or other causes, where injuries were sustained three fourths of a mile from the place of the ejectment, the ejectment in such case not being the proximate cause of the injuries.—Lammers v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co., 199 P. 523, 186 Cal. 379.

person's condition is such that he is incapable of taking care of himself, then the carrier may be liable for injuries resulting from his ejection,[5] at least if the conductor knows,[6] or has reason to believe,[7] that he is in such a condition.

§ 831. Defenses

Matters of defense which are peculiar to an action ex contractu cannot be availed of in an action in tort for ejection. Such a cause of action will not be regarded as waived by subsequent conduct on the part of the passenger not inconsistent therewith.

In a tort action for ejection, matters of defense going only to a contractual liability are not available.[8]

A refusal of a passenger who has been wrongfully ejected to reënter the train will not forfeit his right of action for the ejection;[9] on the other hand, where a passenger has been wrongfully ejected, he does not waive his cause of action therefor by subsequently obtaining transportation after a compliance with the conditions imposed by the carrier.[10] Where a passenger is ejected because a ticket is not validated, the carrier's agent having erroneously refused to do so, he does not waive his right to recovery by reason of the fact that he procured access to the train from which he is ejected by the purchase and presentation of a local ticket.[11]

Where a carrier ejects a passenger on a specified ground, it is doubtful whether it can set up a subsequently discovered ground as a justification.[12]

Effect of penalty. A passenger may have a remedy by way of an action for damages notwithstanding a penalty is imposed by statute on the carrier for its wrongful act.[13]

§ 832. Contributory Act or Negligence

A carrier is not liable for injuries sustained by an ejected person as the proximate result of his own negligence; but the doctrine of contributory negligence does not apply where the ejection is willful, wanton, or reckless.

A person ejected from a train, car, or waiting room cannot, as a general rule, recover therefor

(2) Even though the ejected person is drunk, if he is able to take care of himself and can walk and talk intelligently, the carrier is not liable for his injuries or death occurring after the ejection.—Simms v. Stark Electric Ry. Co., 6 Ohio App. 264.
10 C.J. p. 756 note 10.

5. Mich.—Willett v. King, 168 N.W. 986, 203 Mich. 295.
N.C.—Lee v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 97 S.E. 158, 176 N.C. 95.
10 C.J. p 755 notes 4, 5—52 C.J. p 638 note 43.

Injury by another train

(1) A carrier may be held liable for injuries resulting from being run over by another train.—Lee v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 97 S.E. 158, 176 N.C. 95.

(2) This is true, even though the employees in charge of the second train used all ordinary care and diligence to avoid the accident.
Ga.—Macon, etc., R. Co. v. Moore, 54 S.E. 700, 125 Ga. 810.
Tex.—Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Rose, Civ.App., 172 S.W. 756.

Intoxicated person

(1) A carrier is liable for injuries resulting to one who is ejected when he is intoxicated to such a degree that he cannot properly take care of himself, where the conductor ejecting him has reason to know he is in such a condition.—Lee v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 97 S.E. 158, 176 N.C. 95—10 C.J. p 755 note 6.

(2) It is immaterial that he was ejected at the same place at which he entered the train.—Fagg v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 63 S.W. 580, 111 Ky. 30, 23 Ky.L. 383, 54 L.R.A. 919.

6. Mich.—Willett v. King, 168 N.W. 986, 203 Mich. 295.
10 C.J. p 755 notes 4, 6, p 756 note 7.

Station agent's knowledge not imputed to company

U.S.—Korn v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., Ohio, 125 F. 897, 62 C.C.A. 417, 63 L.R.A. 872

7. N.C.—Lee v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 97 S.E. 158, 176 N.C. 95.

8. Mo.—Spry v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 73 Mo.App. 203

A rescission of the contract of carriage after a wrongful ejection will not constitute a defense in the absence of a release of the damages for such wrongful ejection in the contract of rescission.—Spry v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 73 Mo.App. 203.

Return of fare

If the passenger is wrongfully ejected, the fact that his fare is returned will not preclude a recovery by him for the injury which he sustains.—Whittemore v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 36 A. 824, 77 N.H. 61.

Ticket purchased on Sunday

The fact that a passenger was riding on a ticket purchased on Sunday is no defense to an action for ejection at a place prohibited by statute, since such an action is ex delicto for the tortious ejection, and not ex contractu for a breach of a Sunday contract.—Masterson v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 73 N.W. 757, 102 Wis 571.

Condition in pass

A carrier which has refused to recognize any contractual relations existing by virtue of a pass under which a person was claiming a right to transportation cannot invoke a condition therein providing for the release of liability for the carrier's negligence toward a person using the pass, even if such a provision is valid.—Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Mullen, Tex.Civ.App., 198 S.W. 409, error refused.

9. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Hine, 25 So. 857, 121 Ala. 234

10. Ga.—Southern R. Co. v. Wood, 39 S.E. 894, 114 Ga. 140, 55 L.R.A. 536.
10 C.J. p 764 note 79.

Securing proper validation of ticket
Ga.—Southern R. Co. v. Wood, 39 S.E. 894, 114 Ga. 140, 55 L.R.A. 536.

Paying additional fare demanded, because of passenger not having procured ticket on reboarding train after ejection, wrongful because at a place not permitted by statute—McNairy v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 S.E. 497, 172 N.C. 505.

11. Tex.—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Lucas, 144 S.W. 1126, 105 Tex. 82, 39 L.R.A.,N.S., 512.
10 C.J. p 764 note 80.

12. Ga.—Georgia R. Co. v. Baldoni, 42 S.E. 364, 115 Ga. 1013.
10 C.J. p 764 note 81.

13. N.Y.—Charbonneau v. Nassau Electric R. Co., 108 N.Y.S. 105, 123 App.Div. 531.
10 C.J. p 764 note 83.

where he has himself been guilty of contributory negligence, as a proximate result of which he is injured;[14] and the fact that he was intoxicated at the time does not exempt him from responsibility for such negligence;[15] but negligence on the part of the person ejected will not preclude a recovery where it is merely a remote cause of the injury,[16] or where his injury was avoidable notwithstanding his act of negligence.[17]

Contributory negligence of passengers generally is considered in §§ 774-805 supra.

Particular acts of a passenger which have been held not to constitute contributory negligence include the attempt of a passenger, entitled to a stop-over, to resume his journey without a ticket, where his ticket was wrongfully taken up by the first conductor;[18] a passenger's failure to observe the mistake of a conductor in returning to him the wrong portion of his ticket,[19] or in giving him a defective transfer;[20] and a passenger's failure to examine his ticket to ascertain mistakes of the ticket agent,[21] at least where there is nothing suspicious to put him on inquiry;[22] and a passenger carried past his destination because he fell asleep is not at fault in relying on the conductor's assurance that he would be awakened at his destination.[23] On the other hand, a passenger who takes the wrong train by mistake has no recourse against the company for an ejection, if his mistake was not induced by the latter;[24] and a husband has been held negligent so as to preclude his recovery of damages for his wife's ejection where he permitted her to take passage on a train without a ticket or money for fare.[25]

Alighting from moving train or car A passenger ordered to leave a moving train under such circumstances as to justify him in the belief that he will be ejected if he does not go without force cannot be charged with contributory negligence, as a matter of law, for jumping from the train;[26] nor is a passenger negligent for leaving a car going at a rate of speed which does not reasonably appear to be dangerous, when commanded to do so by the conductor.[27] On the other hand, for a person to leave a train or car while it is moving at a dangerous rate of speed, on the mere order of the carrier's employee,[28] not accompanied by threats or personal violence sufficient to cause him to lose self-control,[29] is negligence on his part.

Negligence after ejection completed. A carrier is not liable for injuries resulting from an ejected passenger's attempt to reboard a moving train;[30] nor may an ejected passenger recover for injuries received as a result of his reboarding the train and riding as a "blind passenger."[31]

14. Mo.—Randell v Chicago, etc., R. Co., 76 S.W. 493, 102 Mo.App. 342.
10 C.J. p 766 note 5.

15. Ala.—Johnson v. Louisville, etc., R. Co. 16 So. 75, 104 Ala. 241, 53 Am.S.R. 39.
10 C.J. p 766 note 6.

16. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Bunnell, 36 So. 380, 138 Ala. 247.
Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Kilpatrick, 54 S.W. 971, 67 Ark. 47.
10 C.J. p 766 note 7.

17. N.Y.—Hart v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 69 N.Y.S. 906, 34 Misc. 521.

18. U.S.—Scofield v. Pennsylvania Co., Ohio, 50 C.C.A. 553, 112 F. 855, 56 L.R.A. 224.

19. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Fish, 127 S.W. 519, 43 L.R.A.,N.S., 584.

Need of last part of ticket

However, a passenger has been held chargeable with notice that it is necessary for him to have the last of two parts of a ticket in order to complete his journey.—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Short, Tex.Civ.App., 163 S.W. 601.

20. N.Y.—Jacobs v. Third Ave. R. Co., 75 N.Y.S. 679, 71 App.Div. 199, 10 N.Y.Ann.Cas. 462, reversing 69 N.Y.S. 981, 34 Misc. 512.

21. Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co v. Parker, 139 S.E. 581, 37 Ga.App. 218.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Sandlin, 272 S.W. 912, 209 Ky. 442.
10 C.J. p 766 note 12

"Where a person applies to a railroad ticket agent for a ticket to a certain point by way of a certain route, and the agent, in response to that request, issues him a ticket, the person to whom the ticket is issued has the right to assume that the agent has issued him the ticket applied for, entitling him to transportation to the point named, over the route designated; and his failure to examine the ticket for the purpose of ascertaining whether it entitles him to the transportation applied for would not be negligence."—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Parker, 139 S.E. 581, 582, 37 Ga.App. 218.

22. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Sandlin, 272 S.W. 912, 209 Ky. 442.

23. Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Summerall, 139 S.E. 923, 37 Ga. App. 294.

24. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Smith, 123 N.E. 4, 70 Ind.App. 40.

25. Tex.—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Scott, 79 S.W. 642, 34 Tex.Civ.App. 501.

26. Cal.—Kline v. Central Pac. R. Co., 37 Cal. 400, 99 Am.D. 282.
Tex.—International, etc., R. Co. v. Hassell, 62 Tex. 256.
W.Va.—Boggess v. Chesapeake, etc., R. Co., 16 S.E. 525, 37 W.Va. 297, 23 L.R.A. 777.
10 C.J. p 766 note 13

In the case of an infant, not as much show of force on the part of the conductor is required as in the case of a mature person.—Kline v. Central Pac. R. Co., 37 Cal. 400, 99 Am.D. 282.

27. Ala.—Highland Ave., etc., R. Co. v. Winn, 9 So. 509, 93 Ala. 306.

28. U.S.—Bosworth v. Walker, Ill., 83 F. 58, 27 C.C.A. 402.
Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Moran, 129 Ill.App. 38.

29. Utah.—Bergman v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 178 P. 68, 53 Utah 213.

Trespasser [illegible] with freight car

Utah.—Bergman v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 178 P. 68, 53 Utah 213.

30. Ky.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Saulsberry, 66 S.W. 1051, 112 Ky. 915, 23 Ky.L. 2341, 56 L.R.A. 580.

31. Wis.—Herschman v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 186 N.W. 613, 176 Wis. 209.

Where an ejected passenger walks along the tracks and, at a point some distance from the place of ejection, is injured by another train, the injury is the result of his own want of care;[32] but, in particular circumstances, a wrongfully ejected passenger has been held not negligent in walking a few hundred feet on the tracks to get back to the depot.[33]

Willful, wanton, or reckless ejection. The doctrine of contributory negligence does not apply where the carrier's acts in ejecting a person are willful, wanton, or reckless, and the injury complained of ensues as a result thereof;[34] so a passenger's voluntary intoxication will not prevent a recovery for personal injuries where undue violence is used in ejecting him.[35]

Unnecessary resistance to ejection on the part of a passenger has been held contributory negligence, even where the passenger is right and the conductor wrong.[36]

§ 833. Actions for Wrongful Ejection

In general, actions against a carrier for the wrongful ejection of a passenger are controlled by the rules of usual application to civil actions, as is shown by the matters specifically considered in the following sections.

§ 834. Nature and Form

Of the common law forms of actions in tort, trespass will lie for a forcible and unlawful ejection, while case is the proper remedy for a lawful ejection in an unlawful manner or for a detention after an ejection.

Trespass will lie against a carrier for forcibly ejecting a passenger, where the ejection is unlawful in itself,[37] but it will not lie for damages sustained by reason of detention after a forcible ejection. In the latter situation, case is the proper remedy,[38] as it is where the ejection is lawful, but is performed in an unlawful manner.[39]

The question of when an action for ejection should be in tort and when on the contract is considered in C.J.S. title Actions § 49 e (5).

§ 835. Jurisdiction and Venue

Ordinarily, an action in contract for ejection should be brought in the place where the contract was to be performed, and an action in tort in the place where the ejection occurred.

An action for a wrongful ejection which is based on the carrier's breach of its contract should be brought in the county where the contract was to be performed;[40] but where it is based on the tort, it should be brought in the county where the ejection took place.[41]

§ 836. Time to Sue and Limitations

In the absence of specific statutory provisions, an action against a carrier for wrongful ejection is controlled by the limitations applicable to other civil actions discussed in the title Limitations of Actions.

Examine pocket parts for later cases.

32. Md.—State v. Washington, B. & A. Electric R. Co, 101 A. 546, 130 Md 603.

33. Tex.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Devainy, 63 Tex. 172.

Falling through trestle on dark night

One wrongfully ejected on a dark night a few hundred feet in the station was not negligent in walking back on the tracks, so as to prevent a recovery for injuries received from falling through a trestle which he did not know was there.—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Devainy, 63 Tex 172.

34. Mo.—Randell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 76 S.W. 493, 102 Mo App. 342
10 C.J. p 767 note 15.

35. Md.—Maryland, etc, R. Co. v. Tucker, 80 A. 688, 115 Md. 43.
Tex.—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Johnson, 68 S.W. 58, 29 Tex.Civ. App. 184.
10 C J. p 767 note 16.

36. U.S.—Hall v. Memphis & Charleston R. Co., C.C.Tenn., 15 F. 57.

37. R.I.—Adams v. Union R. Co., 42 A. 515, 21 R.I. 134, 44 L.R.A. 273.
10 C J. p 780 note 2.

38. W.Va.—Barnum v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 5 W.Va. 10.
10 C J. p 780 note 4.

39. Ill.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Dalby, 19 Ill. 353.

40. Ga.—Sutton v. Southern R. Co, 29 S.E 53, 101 Ga. 776.

41. S.C.—Cornelius v. Atlantic Grey Hound Lines, 180 S E. 791, 177 S. C. 93.
10 C J. p 780 note 7.

Nonresident

Where nonresident, who had used going portion of round-trip ticket on bus from point in another state to point within state and from whom driver of bus on going trip had taken part of return ticket, was allegedly ejected "in a rude manner" by bus driver within the state where she had boarded bus for return trip, cause of action against bus company, a foreign corporation, arose at place where nonresident was ejected, and circuit court of county where ejection took place had jurisdiction. —Cornelius v. Atlantic Grey Hound Lines, 180 S E. 791, 177 S.C. 93.

Connecting carriers

(1) Where a passenger purchases a ticket over several connecting lines, and after using the same over the initial road is ejected from the train on a connecting road because of the failure of the agent of the company from which he purchased the ticket properly to stamp the same, his cause of action against the company that sold him the ticket for such wrongful ejection originates in the county where the ejection occurs, and not in the one where the ticket is purchased.—Georgia Southern, etc, R. Co. v. Pearson, 47 S E. 904, 120 Ga. 284.

(2) One with a through ticket over three lines of railroad who is ejected prior to becoming a passenger on the last road cannot bring an action for illegal ejection in the county where such last road is located.—Cooper v. Colorado & S. Ry. Co., Tex Civ.App, 298 S.W. 612.

§ 837. Pleading

a. Declaration, complaint, or petition
b. Plea or answer
c. Replication or reply
d. Issues, proof, and variance

a. Declaration, Complaint, or Petition

(1) Ejection generally
(2) Place, time, or manner of ejection
(3) Damages

(1) Ejection Generally

The declaration, complaint, or petition in an action for wrongful ejection should clearly state all facts necessary to constitute a cause of action.

The declaration, complaint, or petition, in an action for a wrongful ejection, must allege every material fact which constitutes the ground of plaintiff's cause of action, in clear and concise language.[42] Plaintiff should allege facts essential to show the right to transportation,[43] such as facts showing that the relation of passenger and carrier had arisen,[44] or that the train was one on which plaintiff was entitled to be carried,[45] or that it was a train which under the rules of the carrier stopped at the destination to which plaintiff was entitled to be transported.[46]

A count which states merely conclusions, and not the facts from which the conclusions are drawn, is insufficient;[47] and so a mere general allegation that an ejection was wrongful does not state a good cause of action.[48]

Negligence. A general allegation of the facts constituting negligence on the part of defendant's employee in ejecting plaintiff is sufficient without alleging the details wherein the negligence consisted,[49] and without describing the particular employee[50] or the kind of train.[51]

Under a statute it has been held that, if no negligence is alleged in an action against a carrier founded on an alleged wrongful ejection, the wrong complained of is improper conduct and the law relating to diligence and negligence is not involved.[52]

Tender of fare; extra fare. It is not necessary that plaintiff should allege a strict legal tender of his fare, but it is sufficient to allege that he was willing and ready to pay it and that he offered so to do.[53]

Where plaintiff was without a ticket when ejected, he should allege that he tendered the proper

42. Ala.—Louisville, etc, R. Co. v. Perkins, 39 So. 305, 144 Ala. 325.
Ga.—Riley v. Wrightsville, etc., R. Co, 65 S.E. 890, 133 Ga. 413, 24 L.R.A.,N.S., 379, 18 Ann Cas. 208
Idaho.—Lindsay v Oregon Short Line R. Co., 90 P. 984, 13 Idaho 477, 12 L.R.A.,N.S., 184.
10 C.J. p 780 note 11.

Allegations held sufficient
Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v Hamby, 93 So. 698, 208 Ala. 75—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Bagley, 55 So 894, 173 Ala. 611.
Ga.—Macon, etc., R. Co. v. Moore, 54 S.E. 700, 125 Ga. 810—Central of Georgia Ry. Co. v. Andrews, 141 S.E. 430, 37 Ga.App. 626—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Summerall, 139 S.E. 923, 37 Ga.App 294—Mooneyham v. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry Co., 126 S.E. 736, 33 Ga. App. 406
Wash.—Casey v. Oakes, 50 P. 53, 17 Wash. 409.
10 C.J. p 781 note 27.

Name of carrier's agent
Petition in passenger's action for ejection disclosing an unnamed agent as carrier's agent at certain designated office was not subject to general demurrer calling for name of agent, as company is presumed to know names of its employees, while public is not.—Miller v Southern Ry Co., 94 S.E. 619, 21 Ga.App. 367.

Necessity of walking back to station
(1) Allegation that plaintiff was forced to walk back to station, was not demurrable on ground that it did not appear why he was forced to walk back, especially where petition showed that he was without money —Miller v. Southern Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 619, 21 Ga.App. 367.

(2) In passenger's action for ejection, allegation that he was forced to walk back to a station was not demurrable on ground that it did not show why he did not stay at certain place, where petition did not show proximity or existence of such place.—Miller v. Southern Ry. Co., supra.

Allegations held insufficient
Ala.—McGhee v. Reynolds, 29 So. 961, 129 Ala. 540.
Ga.—Southern R. Co v. Bailey, 85 S.E. 847, 143 Ga. 610, L.R.A.1915E 1043

43. W.Va.—Barnum v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 5 W.Va. 10.
10 C.J. p 780 note 12.

44. Ga.—Southern R. Co. v. Dyson, 34 S.E. 997, 109 Ga. 103.
10 C.J. p 780 note 12.

45. Ind.—Lake Erie, etc., R. Co. v. Lucas, 47 N.E. 842, 18 Ind.App 239.
10 C.J. p 781 note 17

46. Mo.—Drew v. Wabash R. Co., 107 S.W. 478, 129 Mo.App. 459.
10 C.J. p 781 notes 17, 18.

47. Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Thomas, 82 S.E. 299, 14 Ga.App. 619.
Miss.—Mitchell v Southern R. Co., 27 So. 834, 77 Miss. 917.

48. W.Va.—Barnum v. Baltimore, etc., R. Co., 5 W.Va. 10.
10 C.J. p 781 note 27 [c].

49. Ala.—Birmingham R. Light, etc., Co v. Yielding, 46 So. 747, 155 Ala. 359
10 C.J. p 782 note 30.

50. Ala.—Montgomery Tract. Co v Fitzpatrick, 43 So. 136, 149 Ala. 511, 9 L.R.A.,N.S., 851.
10 C.J. p 782 note 31.

51. Ind.—Wabash R. Co. v. Savage, 9 N.E. 85, 110 Ind. 156.

52. Ga.—Georgia Ry. & Power Co. v. Turner, 125 S.E. 598, 33 Ga.App 101.
"Breach of duty of diligence" toward one entitled thereto is ordinarily termed negligence.—Georgia Ry & Power Co. v. Turner, supra.

53. Cal.—Tarbell v. Central Pac. R. Co., 34 Cal. 616.
W.Va.—White v. Chesapeake, etc., R. Co., 26 W.Va. 800.

Allegation held to show sufficient tender
N.C.—Knowles v Norfolk Southern R. Co., 9 S.E. 7, 102 N.C. 59.

fare at the train rate in lieu of the ticket when the same was demanded of him;[54] and in order to justify his refusal to pay such fare, at a greater rate than the cost of a ticket, he must allege facts which show that he used due diligence in an effort to procure a ticket, and that his failure to have one was attributable to the fault of defendant.[55]

Eviction from station or waiting room. If the complaint is for a wrongful ejection from a station, it must show that plaintiff was there with the intention to be transported as a passenger.[56] Allegations as to statements of an agent or employee that a waiting room would remain open all night for the accommodation of passengers, without a showing of the authority of such employee, are properly stricken on special demurrer.[57]

Matters of defense. Plaintiff need not negative matters of defense;[58] thus, it is not necessary for him to allege that he was free from contributory negligence or fault in connection with the ejection,[59] or that at the time of his ejection he was complying with the reasonable rules of the company, or that he was not about to violate any of such reasonable rules.[60]

If the pleading is insufficient it may be corrected by amendment,[61] or on defendant's motion to make more definite and certain.[62] Defendant may have superfluous and immaterial allegations stricken out on motion.[63]

(2) Place, Time, or Manner of Ejection

Where the ejection is rightful but the place or manner wrongful, the facts showing such wrongfulness must be alleged.

If plaintiff has been rightfully ejected for refusal to pay fare, he must allege that he was ejected at an improper place or with unnecessary or excessive force.[64]

Where a complaint proceeds on the theory that unnecessary force was used in expelling a person, the facts alleged must show not merely that force was used but that the force used was unnecessary[65] or excessive.[66] If the act of an employee is alleged to be malicious, it is necessary also to allege that it was committed in the course of his employment;[67] but it is not necessary to al-

54. Ga.—Wilson v. Southern R. Co., 84 S.E. 445, 143 Ga. 189.

55. Kan.—Avey v. Atchison, etc. R Co., 11 Kan. 448.
10 C.J. p 781 note 22.

56. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Kay, 62 So. 1014, 8 Ala.App. 562.
Vt.—Harris v. Stevens, 31 Vt. 79, 73 Am.D. 337.

Complaint held sufficient
Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Kay, 62 So. 1014, 8 Ala.App. 562.

57. Ga.—Mooneyham v. Nashville, C & St. L. Ry. Co., 126 S.E. 736, 33 Ga.App. 406.

58. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Herring, 127 S.W. 1155, 130 S.W. 1039, 61 Tex.Civ.App. 543.
10 C.J. p 783 note 37.

59. Fla.—South Florida R. Co. v. Rhodes, 5 So. 633, 25 Fla. 40, 23 Am.S.R. 506, 3 L.R.A. 733.
Ind.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Goben, 42 N.E. 1116, 15 Ind.App. 123—Lake Erie, etc., R. Co. v. Matthews, 41 N.E. 842, 13 Ind.App. 355

60. Fla.—South Florida R. Co. v. Rhodes, 5 So. 633, 25 Fla. 40, 23 Am.S.R. 506, 3 L.R.A. 733.

61. Ga.—Georgia R., etc., Co. v. Murden, 10 S.E. 235, 83 Ga. 753.
10 C.J. p 780 note 14.

62. Mo.—Ruebsam v. St. Louis Transit Co., 83 S.W. 984, 108 Mo.App. 437
10 C.J. p 781 note 15.

63. Ala.—McGhee v. Reynolds, 29 So. 961, 129 Ala. 540.
Kan.—Chase v. Atchison, etc., R. Co., 79 P. 153, 70 Kan. 546.
10 C.J. p 781 note 25.

Allegation held not irrelevant
Allegation that while walking back to station plaintiff was notified that no colored person could safely traverse the country and was forced to hire a guide, was not wholly irrelevant.—Miller v. Southern Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 619, 21 Ga.App. 367.

64. Ga.—Rossman v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 91 S.E. 90, 146 Ga. 264, L.R.A.1917C 483.
Ind.—Pittsburgh, etc., R. Co. v. Haislup, 79 N.E. 1035, 39 Ind.App. 394.

Allegations held sufficient
(1) To sustain a cause of action, the gravamen of which is the violent and malicious expulsion and not breach of contract.—Terre Haute, etc., R. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 47 Ind. 79.

(2) To state a cause of action, the gravamen of which is the rough and insulting expulsion of plaintiff.—Casey v. Oakes, 50 P. 53, 17 Wash. 409.

(3) To show negligence in ejecting a person at a certain point.—Bragg v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 67 S.E. 593, 110 Va. 867.

(4) Where a petition alleged illegal expulsion from a train in a rough manner, an amendment, stating that in expelling plaintiff defendant's agents used more force than was necessary was proper.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Fleming, 80 S.E. 325, 141 Ga. 69.

Allegations held insufficient
(1) To show that ejection was at an improper place.—Rossman v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., 91 S.E. 90, 146 Ga. 264, L.R.A.1917C 483.

(2) To show negligence in ejecting a person at a certain point.—Bragg v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 67 S.E. 593, 110 Va. 867.

(3) To show unnecessary force.
Ga.—Rossman v. Georgia Ry. & Power Co., supra.
Ill.—Churchill v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 67 Ill. 390.
Ind.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Bills, 3 N.E. 611, 104 Ind. 13.

Allegation must claim willful injury
Ind.—Indianapolis St. R. Co. v. Hockett, App., 64 N.E. 633

65. Ind.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Bills, 3 N.E. 611, 104 Ind. 13.

Resistance
An allegation that one was ejected with force or violence does not show that the force used was excessive or more than was necessary as some force may be necessary if there is resistance.
Ill.—Churchill v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 67 Ill. 390.
Ind.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Bills, 3 N.E. 611, 104 Ind. 13.

66. Ill.—Churchill v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 67 Ill. 390.

67. Ky.—Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Copley, 197 S.W. 648, 177 Ky. 171

lege that plaintiff was a passenger at the time of his ejection, where the action is for an assault in ejecting plaintiff in a willful and unnecessarily forcible manner,[68] unless the ejection was from a freight train, in which case such an allegation is necessary in order to remove the presumption that the freight train was confined exclusively to the transportation of freight.[69]

A complaint which states facts that show only an assault will not support an action for ejection without an averment that plaintiff was actually put off the car.[70]

(3) Damages

Allegations as to damages should show a causal connection between the ejection and the injuries; where punitive damages are sought, the injury should be shown to have been willful or wanton.

The allegation of damages in an action for a wrongful ejection is governed by the rules relative to allegations of damages in other civil actions.[71] The allegation should show a causal connection between the wrongful or improper ejection and the injuries sustained;[72] it having been held sufficient to allege that as a proximate consequence of the ejection plaintiff was injured, specifying the injury,[73] or that the injury complained of was caused by the negligence of an employee of the carrier.[74]

In a count for wrongful ejection, an allegation claiming punitive damages should be stricken on motion where there is no averment of willful or wanton injury.[75]

b. Plea or Answer

The plea or answer is governed by the rules applicable to such a pleading in civil actions generally.

A plea or answer, in an action for a wrongful ejection, is governed by the rules regulating pleas or answers in civil cases generally.[76] A plea is bad if it neither confesses nor traverses the complaint.[77] A defense that plaintiff was riding on a free pass which the conductor withdrew, can be availed of only by special plea confessing the pass and setting up the withdrawal to avoid it,[78] and a plea relying on the fact that plaintiff was not a person to whom a pass could be issued within the limitations of a statute, is insufficient, where it does not specifically allege that plaintiff was not an employee, officer, or other person designated in the statute as a person entitled to transportation under the pass.[79] Where defendant intends to rely on a defense that no more force than necessary was used in ejecting plaintiff, it should be pleaded in avoidance;[80] and a plea which attempts to justify an ejection is insufficient if it does not have such an allegation as to the force used.[81] A violation of the carrier's rules,[82] and, in some jurisdictions, contributory negligence,[83] when relied on as a defense, must be specially pleaded. An allegation that plaintiff's ticket was defaced has been held to be insufficient without a further showing that it was defaced through some fault of plaintiff.[84]

A plea need not anticipate and avoid matters which are properly matters for a replication.[85]

68. Mo.—Adams v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 130 S.W. 48, 149 Mo.App. 278
Where conductor's willful misconduct is the gist of an action, a petition is not deficient for failing to plead that plaintiff had a pass entitling him to transportation.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 181 S.E. 421, 51 Ga.App. 699.

69. Ind.—Smith v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 24 N.E. 753, 124 Ind. 394
Mo.—Snyder v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co. 60 Mo. 413—Whitehead v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 22 Mo.App. 60, affirmed 11 S.W. 751, 99 Mo. 263, 6 L.R.A. 409.

70. Ray v. United Tract. Co., 89 N.Y.S. 49, 96 App.Div. 48

71. Ga.—Miller v. Southern Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 619, 21 Ga.App. 367.
10 C.J. p. 782 note 33

Duty to anticipate injury
Allegations, in petition in suit for ejection of passenger, that he was forced to hire a guide back to station, if containing any element of recovery would be demurrable without allegations showing defendant's duty to anticipate and prevent such particular injury.—Miller v. Southern Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 619, 21 Ga.App. 367.

72. Ill.—Keeshan v. Elgin, etc., Tract Co., 82 N.E. 360, 229 Ill. 533, affirming 132 Ill.App. 416.

73. Ala.—Birmingham R. Light, etc., Co. v. Yielding, 46 So. 747, 155 Ala. 359.

74. Idaho.—Lindsay v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 90 P. 984, 13 Idaho 477, 12 L.R.A.,N.S., 184

75. Ala.—Louisville, etc. R. Co. v. Dawson, 66 So. 905, 11 Ala.App. 621.

76. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Smith, 69 So. 910, 14 Ala.App. 264.
Tex.—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Short, Civ.App., 163 S.W. 601—International, etc., R. Co. v. Kentle, 2 Tex.App.Civ.Cas. § 303.
10 C.J. p. 783 note 40.

77. Ala.—Bates v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 82 So. 14, 203 Ala. 54
10 C.J. p. 783 notes 41, 42

78. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson, 66 So. 905, 11 Ala.App. 621.

79. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson, supra.

80. Mass.—Jackson v. Old Colony St. R. Co., 92 N.E. 725, 206 Mass. 477, 30 L.R.A.,N.S., 1046, 19 Ann.Cas. 615.

81. Ala.—Moore v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 34 So. 617, 137 Ala. 495.
Ejection for disorderly conduct
Ala.—Moore v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 34 So. 617, 137 Ala. 495.

82. 10 C.J. p. 783 note 46.

83. N.C.—Sawyer v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 86 S.E. 166, 171 N.C. 13.

84. Tex.—Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Barrow, Civ.App., 56 S.W.2d 260, error refused.

85. Ala.—Birmingham R. Light, etc., Co. v. McDonough, 49 So. 960 153

c. Replication or Reply

General rules of pleading control as to the replication or reply

Plaintiff's replication or reply is governed by the rules applying to such pleadings in civil cases generally,[86] thus, it should plead matters germane to the allegations of the plea or answer.[87]

A waiver of a defense, if relied on, must be pleaded.[88]

d. Issues, Proof, and Variance

The proof must conform to the issues and a material variance is fatal.

In an action for a wrongful or improper ejection, only such matters as are material and are properly put in issue by the pleadings and the proof need be considered;[89] and plaintiff or defendant is entitled to rely only on such cause of action,[90] or matter of defense,[91] as is properly alleged.

If an action is brought on the theory that plaintiff was ejected with unnecessary force, it proceeds on the ground that an unlawful act was committed, and facts showing that unnecessary force was used must be shown;[92] and, further, in an action brought for the commission of wrongful acts by defendant in accomplishing an ejection, there can be no recovery on the theory that defendant was at fault in omitting to do certain things.[93] When a complaint, however, proceeds on the theory that plaintiff was rightfully on the train and wrongfully ejected therefrom, it is incumbent on him to show that he was rightfully on the train,[94] and, in such a case,[95] or, in case of an action for ejection brought on the theory that the ejection was under such circumstances as showed willful and wanton misconduct,[96] it is unnecessary to show the degree of force used. In an action for a wrongful ejection there can be no recovery for a breach of contract in carrying plaintiff beyond his station.[97]

A plea of the general issue puts in issue all material averments of the complaint;[98] and a special denial of allegations in a complaint raises the issue of the truth of the allegations denied.[99] A defense that the ticket presented by a passenger was invalid is not inconsistent with a claim that the ticket was out of date.[1]

The fact that a special plea of contributory negligence is filed in addition to a plea of the general issue does not waive the necessity for proof which the plea of the general issue casts on plaintiff.[2] It is not necessary, however, to prove immaterial allegations.[3]

Evidence admissible under pleadings. Only such evidence is admissible on behalf of plaintiff[4] or

Ala. 122, 127 Am.S.R. 18, 13 L.R.A., N.S., 445.
10 C.J. p 783 note 48.

86. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Mason, 58 So. 963, 4 Ala.App. 353.
Pa.—McElroy v. The Railroad Co., 7 Phila. 206.
10 C.J. p 784 note 49.

87. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson, 66 So. 905, 11 Ala.App. 621.
10 C.J. p 784 note 50.

88. Iowa.—Trezona v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 77 N.W. 486, 107 Iowa 22, 43 L.R.A. 136.

89. Tex.—International, etc., R. Co. v. Ing, 68 S.W. 722, 29 Tex.Civ.App. 398.
10 C.J. p 784 note 53.

90. Ala.—Moore v. Nashville, etc., R. Co., 34 So. 617, 137 Ala. 495.
10 C.J. p 784 note 54.

91. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Lynn, 29 So. 573, 128 Ala. 297.
Ill.—Malmgren v. Aurora, etc., R. Co., 193 Ill.App. 241.

92. Ind.—White v. Evansville, etc., R. Co., 33 N.E. 273, 133 Ind. 480—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Bills, 3 N.E. 611, 104 Ind. 13.

93. Utah.—Bergman v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 178 P. 68, 53 Utah 213

Failure to stop moving train

Where a trespasser brings an action for injuries resulting from threats and intimidations which forced him to leave a train while going at a dangerous rate of speed, there can be no recovery on the theory that the company was at fault in not stopping the train when an employee saw plaintiff start to go under it—Bergman v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 178 P. 68, 53 Utah 213.

94. Ind.—White v. Evansville, etc., R. Co., 33 N.E. 273, 133 Ind. 480—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Bills, 3 N.E. 611, 104 Ind. 13.

95. Ind.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Bills, supra.

96. Ga.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 181 S.E. 421, 51 Ga.App. 699.

Circumstances held to show willful and wanton misconduct

The ejection of a young woman, who was traveling alone, on a dark night while a heavy rain was falling, and at a small station after the depot was closed, and where there was no shelter, constituted willful and wanton misconduct on the part of the conductor ejecting her, without regard to the degree of force used.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 181 S.E. 421, 51 Ga.App. 699.

97. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Lewis, 21 S.W. 341, 14 Ky.Law 770.

98. Ala.—McGhee v. Cashin, 30 So. 367, 130 Ala. 561.

99. Ark.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Smith, 244 S.W. 741, 155 Ark. 519.

Particular allegations denied

A complaint, alleging that the auditor of a train forcibly evicted plaintiff, and that it was unlawfully and willfully done, and an answer denying such allegations raised the issue of whether he was forcibly, unlawfully, and willfully evicted.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Smith, 244 S.W. 741, 155 Ark. 519

1. Tenn.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Klyman, 67 S.W. 472, 108 Tenn. 304, 91 Am.S.R. 755, 56 L.R.A. 769.

2. Ala.—McGhee v. Cashin, 30 So. 367, 130 Ala. 561.
10 C.J. p 784 note 60 [a].

3. Mo.—Adams v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 130 S.W. 48, 149 Mo.App. 278.
Ohio—Allen v. Lake Shore, etc., R. Co., 47 N.E. 1037, 57 Ohio St. 79.
10 C.J. p 785 note 61.

4. Iowa.—Everett v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 28 N.W. 410, 69 Iowa 15, 58 Am.S.R. 207.
10 C.J. p 785 note 62.

defendant[5] as tends to support the matters put in issue by the pleadings. Thus, if plaintiff, in his pleading, seeks to recover for an unlawful ejection, and not for a removal with unnecessary force, it has been held that unnecessary force cannot be shown if the removal itself was justifiable,[6] and, if the recovery sought is for an expulsion in an improper manner and the allegations are only as to the use of abusive language, plaintiff is confined in his proof to the language used.[7] Plaintiff cannot prove declarations made by a ticket agent in the absence of any averment of such declarations;[8] but proof of a reasonable and necessary rule or regulation is admissible under a general denial.[9]

Variance. If there is a material variance between plaintiff's pleadings and proof it is fatal to a recovery.[10] An immaterial variance, however, which in no wise prejudices defendant's case will not affect plaintiff's recovery.[11] Thus, where the essence of a complaint is the excessive force and violence used in accomplishing an ejection, a variance between an allegation that plaintiff was a passenger, and proof that she was only an intruder, is immaterial.[12]

§ 838. Presumptions and Burden of Proof

a. Presumptions
b. Burden of proof

a. Presumptions

General rules control as to the existence and effect of presumptions in actions for the wrongful ejection of passengers.

The act of the conductor in requiring an increased fare may be presumed lawful.[13] In the absence of a passenger's explanation of the reason for failing to provide himself with a ticket, there is a presumption that tickets were on sale at the office where he should have purchased one.[14] If there is no evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that a transfer given to a passenger in due course was a proper token of transfer and that it entitled the passenger to passage on the car to which he transferred,[15] and further, that the conduct of the conductor in refusing to receive the transfer was unwarranted.[16] Where the weight of testimony is to the effect that a ticket offered to a conductor was still in force and had not expired, the act of the conductor in destroying the ticket, contrary to his duty, raises a presumption that, if preserved, it would have supported plaintiff's claim.[17] Although a count for the wrongful ejection of a passenger riding on a pass does not allege that he was a person to whom a pass could be issued, it will not be presumed that he was a person not entitled to such a pass, even though it will be presumed that it was a "free pass" within the meaning of a statute restricting its issuance to certain classes of persons.[18]

If a person accompanied by a child presumptively becomes a passenger on entering a car, that presumption is not conclusive and is rebutted on such person's failure to pay the child's fare on demand.[19]

Evidence held admissible

Mo.—Quirk v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 210 S.W. 106, 200 Mo.App. 593, certiorari quashed State ex rel. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. v. Ellison, Sup., 224 S.W. 820.
10 C.J. p 785 note 62 [a].

Evidence held inadmissible

Wis.—Lehan v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 172 N.W. 787, 169 Wis. 327
10 C.J. p 785 note 62 [b].

5. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Lynn, 29 So. 573, 128 Ala. 297.
10 C.J. p 785 note 63.

6. Ind.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Field, 34 N.E. 406, 7 Ind.App. 172, 52 Am.S.R. 444.
N.H.—Johnson v. Concord R. Corp., 46 N.H. 213, 88 Am.D. 199

7. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539.

8. Miss.—Wells v. Alabama, etc., R. Co., 6 So. 737, 67 Miss. 24.

9. Mo.—Logan v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 77 Mo. 663.—Perey v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 53 Mo.App. 75

10. Ky.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Collinsworth, 153 S.W. 241, 152 Ky. 197.
10 C.J. p 786 note 65.

11. Cal.—Clare v. Northwestern Pac. R. Co., 131 P. 323, 21 Cal.App. 214
10 C.J. p 786 note 66

12. Mo.—Randell v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 76 S.W. 493, 102 Mo.App. 342.

13. Ind.—Smith v. Indianapolis St. R. Co., 63 N.E. 849, 158 Ind. 425.
10 C.J. p 786 note 73.

14. Ga.—Adams v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 109 S.E. 703, 27 Ga.App. 720

Passenger must pay train rate of fare where he is without a ticket and gives no reason for not procuring one, there being a presumption that tickets were on sale at the ticket office.—Adams v. Louisville & N. R. Co., 109 S.E. 703, 27 Ga.App. 720

15. Ala.—Birmingham R., etc., Co. v. Smith, 69 So. 910, 14 Ala.App. 624.
Mo.—Sommerfield v. St. Louis Transit Co., 84 S.W. 172, 108 Mo.App. 718.

16. Mo.—Sommerfield v. St. Louis Transit Co., supra.

17. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Donaldson, 43 S.W. 439
It is conductor's duty, in any event, to turn the ticket into the auditor of the road.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Donaldson, Ky., 43 S.W. 439.

18. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson, 66 So. 905, 11 Ala.App. 621.

Reason for the rule

As the statute makes the issuance of a "free pass" to persons outside the classes named therein a criminal offense, it would require a presumption that both plaintiff and defendant were guilty of a crime if the rule were otherwise.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson, 66 So. 905, 11 Ala.App. 621.

19. Ala.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539

The authority of a brakeman to eject a passenger will not be presumed;[20] but where a person on a train or car represents himself to be the conductor, and he is dressed in the uniform of such an officer and actually collects fares from passengers, he will be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be such officer in the employ of the carrier, so as to render the latter liable for his act of wrongfully ejecting a passenger.[21]

Malice may be presumed from the wrongful act of a conductor in ejecting, without explanation or excuse, a passenger who presents a proper transfer and refuses to pay cash fare.[22]

Mental suffering, as a factor in the recovery of damages, may be inferred from the nature of the wrongful act of ejecting a passenger from a train or street car unlawfully, and with unnecessary force.[23]

b. Burden of Proof

Unless otherwise provided by statute, the burden of proof is on plaintiff in the first instance to prove the facts necessary to establish his cause of action and on defendant to prove matters of defense alleged by him.

As in other civil actions the burden of proof in an action for a wrongful or improper ejection is on plaintiff in the first instance to prove all facts necessary to establish his cause of action.[24] Thus, the burden of proof is on plaintiff, seeking to recover damages for his wrongful ejection as a passenger, to show that he was rightfully on the vehicle in which he was being transported;[25] and until this is shown the burden does not devolve on defendant to show that the ejection was lawful.[26] If defendant has denied plaintiff's allegations of an unlawful eviction, the burden is on the latter to prove his allegations.[27]

Plaintiff has the burden of proving that the negligence complained of was the proximate cause of the injuries received,[28] as well as the fact that defendant was negligent in ejecting the injured party,[29] or causing him to leave the train on which he was riding,[30] and where plaintiff used violence in resisting an ejection, the burden is on him to prove that his acts did not contribute to the injury.[31]

It is incumbent on defendant, when the burden is cast on it by the pleading and evidence, to prove matters of defense alleged by it,[32] such as that the ejection was properly made, or that it was made on statutory grounds.[33] Where a passenger who had previously given up his ticket is ejected, the presumption is against the carrier, and it devolves on it to show that the conductor acted rightly and under authority of the law.[34] A carrier has the burden of showing that it afforded prospective passengers a reasonable opportunity to purchase tickets, in order to justify its exaction of an extra charge from a passenger without a ticket.[35]

Under a statutory provision that the burden of proof in the whole action lies on the party who would be defeated if no evidence were given on either side, the burden of proof is on defendant, when it admits in its answer that plaintiff is entitled to actual damages.[36]

§ 839. Admissibility of Evidence

Subject to the general rules of evidence in civil actions, any evidence which is otherwise competent, which 20. Ill.—Illinois Cent. R. Co. v. Black, 122 Ill.App. 439.

Ind.—Lake Shore, etc. R. Co. v. Peterson, 42 N.E. 480, 43 N.E. 1, 144 Ind. 214.

21. La.—Lampkins v. Vicksburg, etc., R. Co., 8 So. 530, 42 La.Ann. 997.
10 C.J. p 786 note 74

22. Mo.—Sommerfield v. St Louis Transit Co., 84 S.W. 172, 108 Mo App. 718.

23. Cal.—Cosey v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 219 P. 978, 192 Cal. 265.

24. Ala.—Birmingham R. Light, etc., Co. v. Turner, 45 So. 671, 154 Ala. 542.
10 C.J. p 786 note 76.

25. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Mason, 58 So. 963, 4 Ala.App. 353.
10 C.J. p 786 note 77.

26. Ga.—Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Cannon 32 S.E. 874, 106 Ga. 828.

27. Ark.—St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. v. Smith, 244 S.W. 741, 155 Ark. 519

28. Pa.—Kradel v. Pittsburgh, H., B. & N. C. Ry. Co., 100 A. 128, 255 Pa. 427.
Utah.—Bergman v. Denver & R. G. R. Co., 178 P. 68, 53 Utah 213.

29. Pa.—Kradel v Pittsburgh, H., B. & N C Ry. Co., 100 A. 128, 255 Pa. 427.

30. Utah.—Bergman v. Denver & R G. R. Co., 178 P. 68, 53 Utah 213.

31. Mass.—Jackson v. Old Colony St. R. Co., 92 N.E. 725, 206 Mass 477, 30 L.R.A.,N.S., 1046, 19 Ann. Cas. 615

32. Ky.—Choate v. Louisville Ry. Co., 49 S.W.2d 342, 243 Ky. 562.
10 C.J. p 787 note 82.

Prima facie case established by plaintiff

Where plaintiff makes out a prima facie case of injury resulting either from the negligence of the carrier's employee committed within the scope of his employment, or from wrongful acts committed by him as agent for the carrier and as a part of the transaction of the carrier's business the burden is then on the carrier to show that the act was not committed "in the transaction of the business of the agency," within the meaning of a statute making provision with respect thereto.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 51 Cal.App. 575.

33. Mo.—Ferguson v. Missouri Pac. R. Co, 128 S.W. 799, 144 Mo.App. 262.
10 C.J. p 787 note 84.

34. Ga.—Georgia R. Co. v. Homer, 73 Ga. 251.

35. Ala.—Southern Ry. Co v. Blackwell, 100 So. 215, 211 Ala. 216

36. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Champion, 68 S.W. 143, 24 Ky.Law 87.

is relevant and material to the establishment of the facts in issue, may be admitted in actions for the wrongful ejection of a passenger.

Any evidence which is otherwise competent is, subject to the general rules of evidence, admissible where it tends to prove or disprove material facts in issue,[37] and evidence is not admissible where it is not so competent, material, and relevant.[38] Where plaintiff refused to pay fare, he may show that he was without means to do so on rejection of his ticket,[39] although it has been held that he cannot show that he attempted to borrow money from the conductor.[40] Where plaintiff refused to pay fare, he cannot testify that he was only joking and that he really intended to pay.[41]

Right to transportation. As bearing on the passenger's right to transportation, it has been held proper for him to show that his ticket was a proper one;[42] that "going" part of round-trip ticket had been accepted by defendant,[43] that he showed ticket to defendant's agent before boarding train;[44] that he had a receipt for a ticket given by defendant's agent at the time of purchase;[45] and that he made an attempt to procure a proper ticket before entering the car, as bearing on his good faith in entering the car.[46]

On behalf of defendant, evidence has been held admissible to show whether or not a person was acting in good faith and with the intention of becoming a passenger,[47] or as bearing on plaintiff's good faith in presenting an overdue transfer;[48] and on the question of whether or not plaintiff had paid his fare, defendant may introduce testimony to the effect that no one in the car in which plaintiff was traveling had offered to pay fare.[49]

37. N.C.—Lee v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 97 S.E. 158, 176 N.C. 95.
10 C.J. p 787 note 88.

Matters held relevant

(1) Warning to conductor of danger of ejecting intoxicated plaintiff.—Veenstra v. United Rys & Electric Co of Baltimore, 129 A. 678, 148 Md. 512

(2) That no one fell at station where plaintiff was ejected.—Carney v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 63 Pa.Super 138

(3) Statements by agents of other railroads to show absence of negligence in choosing train.—Missouri Pac. R. Co v. Heard, 50 S.W.2d 971, 185 Ark. 1055.

Particular evidence held admissible to show

(1) The identity of a ticket offered.—McGhee v. Cashin, Ala. 40 So. 63

(2) Street car operator's state of mind.—Alter v Arkansas Power & Light Co., 67 S.W.2d 177, 188 Ark 681

(3) Reasonableness of time for keeping open waiting room.—Widener v. Alabama Great Southern R. Co., 69 So 558, 194 Ala. 115

(4) Whether representations were made to plaintiff as to tickets purchased.—Lexington, etc., R. Co. v Lyons, 46 S.W. 209, 104 Ky. 23, 20 Ky.Law 516.

(5) Conductor's knowledge of helplessness of ejected passenger.—Lee v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 97 S.E. 158, 176 N.C. 95.

38. Ala.—McGhee v. Cashin, 40 So 63.
Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v Watson, 255 S.W. 1056 201 Ky 108
N.J.—Tallman v. Triangle Bus Co., 132 A. 514, 4 N.J.Misc 330.
W.Va.—Clark v. Norfolk & W Ry Co., 100 S.E. 480, 84 W.Va. 526, 7 A.L.R 117
10 C.J. p 788 notes 89, 90

Particular evidence held inadmissible

(1) Loss of time from, and ill effects of, walking to and from place of work after ejection.—Tallman v. Triangle Bus Co., 132 A. 514, 4 N.J.Misc 330.

(2) Reason why passenger, after boarding train after ejection, paid cash fare to a point beyond which his ticket read.—McGhee v. Cashin, Ala., 40 So. 63

(3) Void warrant of justice of peace for search of passenger train for intoxicating liquor.—Clark v. Norfolk & W. Ry Co., 100 S.E. 480, 84 W.Va. 526, 7 A.L.R. 117.

(4) On refusal to pay fare, an attempt to procure a ticket before entering the train.—Perkins v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 55 Mo. 201

(5) On refusal to pay fare, an offer by a third person to pay, after ejection began.—Perkins v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., supra

(6) Where plaintiff was ejected for not paying fare for infant in her charge, reason why she did not purchase ticket, whether she had previously carried it without paying fare, whether she had the means to pay its fare, or whether she offered to do so when she arrived at her destination.—Louisville & N.R. Co v Watson, 255 S.W. 1056, 201 Ky. 108.

Statute providing that on the trial of any person for an assault, etc., he may give in evidence any opprobrious words or abusive language used by the person assaulted at or near the time of the assault in extenuation or justification has no application to an action for ejection of a passenger because of his alleged misconduct.—Nashville, etc., R. Co v. Moore, 41 So 984, 148 Ala. 63.

39. Tex.—Atchison, etc., R. Co. v. Cunniffe, Civ.App., 57 S.W. 692.

40. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Bunnell, 36 So 380, 138 Ala. 247.

41. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v Cottengim, 104 S.W 280, 31 Ky. Law 871, 13 L.R.A.,N.S., 624

42. Ala.—McGhee v. Cashin, 40 So. 63.

43. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v Crick, 117 So 167, 217 Ala. 547.

44. Ala.—Louisville & N R Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala 556.—Louisville & N R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547

45. Iowa.—Coine v Chicago, etc, R. Co., 99 N.W 134, 123 Iowa 458.

46. Mo.—Perkins v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 55 Mo 201.
10 C.J. p 788 note 94.

47. Mo.—Powell v St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 129 S.W. 963, 229 Mo. 246

Plaintiff's conduct in failing to pay fare on a train immediately before entering the train from which he was ejected, is admissible.—Powell v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co, 129 S.W. 963, 229 Mo. 246.

48. D.C.—Capital Traction Co. v Brinley, 43 App.D.C. 430.

Regularly kept transportation records of the carrier are admissible to show the number of cars that passed a certain transfer point between the time plaintiff's transfer was issued and the time he boarded the car from which he was ejected, as such facts have a bearing on the latter's good faith in presenting an overdue transfer.—Capital Traction Co. v Brinley, 43 App.D.C. 430.

49. Pa.—Carney v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 63 Pa.Super 138.

Habit or custom; previous acts or conduct. Evidence of a custom among the conductors of defendant's road to issue to passengers on payment of cash fares credit slips of a certain kind,[50] or of a custom of a conductor in regard to taking up tickets and checking passengers,[51] or evidence that a train usually stopped at a particular place,[52] or that it was customary for defendant's brakeman to inspect passengers' tickets at a particular station,[53] has been held to be admissible. Testimony may be introduced to establish a custom of permitting passengers of both the white and colored races to occupy the back platform of defendant's cars;[54] but testimony by a witness that he had changed cars only at a certain point is inadmissible to prove a custom that cars stopped there as a transfer point.[55] Evidence that some employees, as a matter of practice, broke a certain rule of the company is inadmissible, without an offer to show that this practice was known to, and sanctioned by, the carrier;[56] and a carrier cannot show a custom of issuing tickets, such as that held by plaintiff, for certain days only, in the absence of any proof of knowledge on the part of the purchaser of the ticket that such a limitation existed.[57] Evidence offered to show the commission, on former occasions, of a passenger's acts indicating an attempt to avoid payment of fare,[58] or of mistakes by carrier's agent, which were similar to the mistake complained of,[59] or of a conductor's acts in knocking passengers down,[60] or testimony of a custom among the defendant's conductors of permitting old trackmen to ride free,[61] has been held inadmissible; but, in explanation of its conduct in wrongfully ejecting a passenger, defendant may prove plaintiff's misconduct on a prior trip, although such misconduct does not excuse the ejection.[62]

Evidence as to character. Evidence as to the character of a passenger,[63] or a conductor,[64] may not be given where it is not attacked.

Evidence as to damages. For the purpose of enhancing the damages, evidence of an employee's contemptuous manner and insulting conduct in unlawfully ejecting a passenger is admissible;[65] thus, a passenger's testimony regarding a conductor's alleged rudeness in the presence of other passengers and the audibility of their comments with respect to same is competent on the question of punitive damages.[66] Evidence, on the behalf of plain-

After fact of noncollection of fares is in evidence

Evidence that one conductor had told a succeeding conductor that he had collected no fares, while not admissible to prove the noncollection of fares, is, after the introduction of evidence to show that fact, admissible to show the communication of such fact from the one conductor to the other.—Purvis v. Atlanta Northern Ry. Co., 89 S.E. 571, 145 Ga. 517.

50. Mo.—Holt v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 74 S.W. 631, 174 Mo. 524, affirming 87 Mo.App. 203.

51. N.C.—Parrott v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 53 S.E. 432, 140 N.C. 546.

52. Tenn.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Ray, 46 S.W. 554, 101 Tenn. 1.

For purpose of showing where a train stopped on a particular occasion, such evidence is admissible.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Ray, 46 S.W. 554, 101 Tenn. 1.

53. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Humphries, Civ.App., 157 S.W. 1174.

Ejection of passenger on wrong train

Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Humphries, Civ.App., 157 S.W. 1174.

54. Miss.—Waldauer v. Vicksburg, R., etc., Co., 40 So. 751, 88 Miss. 200.

Violation of statute requiring separation of races

Miss.—Waldauer v. Vicksburg R., etc., Co., 40 So. 751, 88 Miss. 200.

55. D.C.—Shortsleeves v. Capital Tract. Co., 28 App.D.C. 365, 8 L.R.A.,N.S., 287.

Boarding car at wrong transfer station

D.C.—Shortsleeves v. Capital Tract. Co., 28 App.D.C. 365, 8 L.R.A.,N.S., 287.

56. Pa.—Anderson v. Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist. 41

10 C.J. p 790 note 16.

Evidence held inadmissible

(1) To show that some conductors had violated company regulations in stopping at a certain transfer point.—Shortsleeves v. Capital Tract. Co., 28 App.D.C. 365, 8 L.R.A.,N.S., 287.

(2) To show that some conductors ignored the terms of a transfer ticket, in violation of the company rules.—Anderson v. Union Traction Co., 7 Pa.Dist. 41.

Unauthorized ejection on previous occasions

Evidence that employees who had no authority to eject persons had, on former occasions, ejected plaintiff, is not admissible to show that an ejection on the occasion in question by such an employee was authorized, without a showing that the previous acts were within the knowledge of the carrier or the conductor.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Moran, 129 Ill.App. 38.

57. Mich.—Carvey v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 95 N.W. 716, 133 Mich. 659.

58. N.Y.—English v. Delaware, etc., Canal Co., 4 Hun 683, affirmed 66 N.Y. 454, 23 Am.R. 69.

Ejection of passenger who had paid his fare at the time of the ejection in question.—English v. Delaware, etc., Canal Co., 4 Hun 683, affirmed 66 N.Y. 454, 23 Am.R. 69.

59. Ala.—Southern R. Co. v. Bunnell, 36 So. 380, 138 Ala. 247.

60. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Cottengim, 104 S.W. 280, 31 Ky. Law 871, 13 L.R.A.,N.S., 624.

61. Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Tarwater, 75 S.W. 937, 33 Tex.Civ.App. 116.

62. Ky.—Reasor v. Paducah, etc., Ferry Co., 153 S.W. 222, 152 Ky. 220, 43 L.R.A.,N.S., 820

63. Ga.—Savannah Electric Co. v. Badenhoop, 65 S.E. 50, 6 Ga.App. 371.

Mo.—Breen v. St. Louis Transit Co., 77 S.W. 78, 102 Mo.App. 479.

10 C.J. p 788 note 91.

64. Mo.—Berger v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 71 S.W. 102, 97 Mo.App. 127.

10 C.J. p 789 note 13 [a] (1).

65. Cal.—Sloane v. Southern California R. Co., 44 P. 320, 111 Cal. 668, 32 L.R.A. 193.

10 C.J. p 789 note 5.

Statement that conductor talked "angry" was not erroneously admitted, where no objection was made at the time it was introduced in evidence.—Truel v. Missouri, etc., R. Co., 128 S.W. 223, 143 Mo.App. 380

66. Ark.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v.

tiff, of an aggravating circumstance,[67] such as evidence tending to show that an ejection was made in bad faith,[68] or at a dangerous place,[69] has been held admissible on the question of punitive or exemplary damages; but evidence not tending to show that an ejection was maliciously, wantonly, or recklessly committed has been held inadmissible to show such damages.[70]

On behalf of defendant, evidence of an employee's honest belief and intent in making an ejection is admissible in disproving a passenger's claim to exemplary damages,[71] but is not proper or material where the passenger's claim is limited to compensatory damages.[72] In an action brought on the theory that excessive force was used in accomplishing an ejection, evidence bearing a relation to the question of malice has been held admissible on punitory issues.[73]

Evidence of loss of profits, when not shown to be the natural and proximate result of injuries received from an ejection, has been held inadmissible to show special damages.[74]

A conductor's statement of his reason for ejecting plaintiff has been held admissible on the question of damages.[75]

§ 840. Weight and Sufficiency of the Evidence

General rules as to the weight and sufficiency of evidence in civil actions are applicable.

The evidence to justify a recovery on plaintiff's behalf must preponderate and be of such weight and sufficiency as will reasonably justify the jury in finding the existence of all facts necessary to constitute his cause of action.[76] This rule has been applied with reference to a determination of the sufficiency of evidence as to such issues as the fact of the wrongful ejection of plaintiff,[77] the fact of ejection in an improper manner or at an improper time or place,[78] the negligence of defendant in Heard, 50 S.W.2d 971, 185 Ark. 1055.

67. Ga.—Georgia R., etc., Co v. Davis, 65 S.E. 785, 6 Ga App 645—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Forrest, 65 S.E. 808, 6 Ga.App. 766.

68. Ga.—Georgia R., etc., Co. v. Davis, 65 S.E. 785, 6 Ga.App 645

Refusal to allow passenger to re-enter a car after he had been illegally ejected and had offered to pay his fare a second time.—Georgia R., etc., Co. v. Davis, 65 S.E. 785 6 Ga App. 645.

69. Ga.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Forrest, 65 S.E. 808, 6 Ga.App 766.

70. Vt.—Wells v. Boston, etc., R Co, 71 A. 1103, 82 Vt. 108, 137 Am. S.R. 987.

Statement of third person to a conductor that he had seen a former conductor take up plaintiff's ticket is inadmissible, because the fact that the conductor disregarded this statement does not show that he acted maliciously, wantonly, or recklessly in ejecting plaintiff.—Wells v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 71 A. 1103, 82 Vt. 108, 137 Am.S.R. 987.

71. Ga.—Georgia R., etc., Co. v. Homer, 73 Ga. 251.
N.Y.—Yates v New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 67 N.Y. 100—Hamilton v. Third Ave. R. Co., 53 N.Y. 25.

72. Ky—Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Cundiff, 179 S.W. 615, 166 Ky. 594, Ann.Cas.1916C 513.
N.Y.—Yates v New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 67 N.Y. 100.

Motive of carrier's special police officer in arresting plaintiff is inadmissible where the evidence justifies compensatory damages only.—Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Cundiff, 179 S.W. 615, 166 Ky. 594, Ann.Cas.1916C 513.

73. Mo.—Hermann v. St. Joseph R., etc, Co., 129 S.W. 414, 144 Mo.App 147

Evidence held admissible
Evidence to the effect that plaintiff had had trouble on previous occasions with the men in charge of defendant's cars.—Hermann v. St Joseph R, etc., Co., 129 S.W. 414, 144 Mo.App 147.

74. Vt.—Wells v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 71 A. 1103, 82 Vt. 108, 137 Am. S.R. 987

Abandonment of contract to cut timber was held to be a voluntary abandonment.—Wells v. Boston, etc., R. Co., 71 A. 1103, 82 Vt. 108, 137 Am. S.R. 987.

75. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co v Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556—Louisville & N R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547.

76. Iowa.—Hawthorne v. Delano, 154 N.W. 590.
Tex.—International, etc., R. Co. v. Bohannon, Civ.App., 71 S.W. 776.
10 C J p 790 note 19.

Evidence held sufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff.
Ill.—Lips v. Chicago City Ry. Co., 209 Ill.App 332
Tex.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson, Civ.App., 198 S.W. 795.
10 C J. p 790 notes 19 [a] (1), 21 [a] (2).

Evidence held insufficient to sustain a verdict for plaintiff
N.J.—Balsavage v. Pennsylvania R Co., 136 A. 190, 5 N J Misc. 249.
Okl.—Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry Co v Montague, 186 P. 216, 77 Okl. 44.
10 C.J. p 790 note 19 h.

77. Evidence held sufficient
(1) To show the fact of the wrongful ejection.—Short v. St. Louis, etc., R Co, 130 S.W. 488, 150 Mo App. 359—10 C.J. p 790 note 21.

(2) To justify finding that plaintiff passenger was wrongfully expelled by defendant electric railway from its car when he desired to ride thereon, was able and willing to pay his fare, and was not intoxicated or disorderly.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co, 180 N.W. 733, 190 Iowa 693.

(3) To show other matters see 10 C.J. p 790 note 19 [a] (2), (3).

Evidence held insufficient
(1) To establish the fact that plaintiff was wrongfully ejected.—Ingerson v. Grand Trunk Ry., 106 A. 488, 79 N.H. 154.

(2) To show other matters relating to a wrongful ejection see 10 C.J. p 790 note 19 [b].

78. Evidence held sufficient
(1) To show ejection in a rude manner and at a place other than passenger's destination.—Missouri Pac. R. Co v. Heard, 50 S.W.2d 971, 185 Ark. 1055.

(2) To sustain finding that defendant railroad ejected plaintiff passenger from moving train.—Leonczak v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. Ry. Co., 201 N.W. 551, 161 Minn. 304.

(3) To show that plaintiff was ejected from a moving street car ruthlessly and without justification.—Horsthemke v. New Orleans Ry. & Light Co., 84 So. 210, 146 La. 931.

(4) To show that plaintiff was ejected at a place forbidden by statute, and after the conductor had accepted and retained his ticket.—

ejecting plaintiff,[79] the absence of contributory negligence,[80] the fact that defendant's servant was acting within the scope of his authority,[81] plaintiff's right to transportation,[82] plaintiff's opportun-

Mott v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 79 S.E. 867, 164 N.C. 367.

(5) To show that an intoxicated passenger was not put off at a reasonably safe place and that he came to his death by drowning.—Bennett v. Seattle Electric Co., 105 P. 825, 56 Wash. 407.

(6) To sustain a finding, in an action for injuries to a passenger who was ejected from a car while it was in motion, that the car was moving at the rate of three or four miles an hour.—Hirte v. Eastern Wisconsin R., etc., Co., 106 N.W. 1068, 127 Wis. 230.

(7) To show the use of unnecessary force see 10 C.J. p 790 note 22 [a].

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To warrant a finding that a conductor used more force than was necessary.—McGarry v. Holyoke St. R. Co., 65 N.E. 45, 182 Mass. 123.

(2) To raise the issue of the use of any unnecessary force.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dice, Tex.Civ.App., 168 S.W. 478—10 C.J. p 790 note 22 b.

(3) To show that plaintiff's injury happened by being pushed from the train.—Riggs v. New Orleans, T. & M. Ry. Co., 87 So. 723, 148 La. 717.

(4) To show that conductor had pushed deceased off rapidly moving train.—Herschman v. Chicago, M. & St. P. Ry. Co., 186 N.W. 613, 176 Wis. 209—Lehan v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co., 172 N.W. 787, 169 Wis. 327.

(5) To show that plaintiff was ejected while he was intoxicated and while the train was in motion.—Knapp v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 106 P. 190, 56 Wash. 662.

(6) To establish the fact that plaintiff was kicked from the train by one of defendant's brakemen.—Murphy v. New York Cent., etc., R. Co., 92 N.Y.S. 192, 101 App.Div. 610.

(7) To show inhuman conduct of conductor in putting fourteen year old plaintiff off train boarded by mistake.—Bennett v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co., 7 S.W.2d 1028, 223 Mo.App. 28.

79. Evidence held sufficient

(1) To show gross negligence in ejecting plaintiff.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hadley, 11 Tenn.App. 642.

(2) To justify finding that defendant's conduct in ejecting intoxicated person was negligent.—Fagan v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 115 N.E. 704, 220 N.Y. 301, L.R.A.1917E 663, reversing 155 N.Y.S. 609, 170 App.Div. 47.

(3) To justify finding that plaintiff's failure to comply with a rule prohibiting a stop-over was due to defendant's negligence.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Smith, 123 N.E. 4, 70 Ind.App. 40.

(4) To show that a motorman of a street car knew that plaintiff, a boy, was on the front step of the moving car and in a position of peril and thus was negligent in not preventing his injury.—Quirk v. Metropolitan St. R. Co., 210 S.W. 103, 200 Mo.App. 585.

(5) To warrant a finding in an action for injuries to a boy while alighting from a street car on which he had been invited by the motorman, that he was injured as the result of the conductor's negligence in compelling him to alight while the car was in motion.—South Covington, etc., R. Co. v. Burns, 150 S.W. 343, 150 Ky. 348.

(6) To support a verdict for plaintiff in an action for injuries to a passenger by being run over by another train after he was ejected from defendant's train.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Dallas, 124 S.W. 247, 93 Ark. 209.

80. Evidence held sufficient

Tex.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson, Civ.App., 198 S.W. 795.

10 C.J. p 791 note 25 [a] (2).

81. Evidence held sufficient

(1) To show that carrier's agent was acting within the scope of his authority.

Ill.—George v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 197 Ill.App. 152

Mo.—Griffin v. Kansas City Rys. Co., 204 S.W. 826, 199 Mo.App. 682.

10 C.J. p 790 note 19 [a] (4).

(2) To warrant finding as to authority of carrier's special officer to eject those riding without tickets or beyond their destination, and that the officer ejecting plaintiff was claiming to exercise such authority.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Burns, Tenn., 242 F. 411, 155 C.C.A. 187.

(3) To show that the company had ratified the acts of the agent in ejecting the passenger.—Forrester v. Southern Pac. Co., 134 P. 753, 136 P. 705, 36 Nev. 247, 48 L.R.A.,N.S., 1.

Evidence held insufficient

To show that it was within the apparent scope of a railway conductor's authority to collect in cash a return fare with the going fare so as to render the railway liable, when, after such collection, plaintiff attempted to return on his train, and was ejected for nonpayment of fare.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Pickle, 197 S.W. 675, 138 Tenn. 238.

82. Evidence held sufficient

(1) To show that ticket called for immediate and continuous passage on the next train.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Mooneyham, 139 S.E. 589, 37 Ga.App. 236

(2) To warrant passenger's recovery for ejection from defendant's railway train for nonpayment of additional fare demanded where no ticket was purchased.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Boggs, 74 So. 337, 199 Ala. 225.

(3) To warrant a finding that the passenger paid his fare and believed in good faith that a permit issued to him was the evidence of his right to transportation, and that he was not at fault in failing to discover the agent's mistake in not giving him a ticket.—Olson v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 96 P. 150, 49 Wash. 626, 18 L.R.A.,N.S., 209.

(4) To show that a railroad ticket was from one to another specified station.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Stratton, 111 Ill.App. 142.

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To establish custom of transporting grandchild without payment of fare, in an action by the accompanying grandmother for an ejection because of her refusal to pay grandchild's fare.—Birmingham Electric Co. v. Maze, 166 So. 50, 231 Ala. 539.

(2) To establish the fact that plaintiff had ever been a passenger.—Ingerson v. Grand Trunk Ry., 106 A. 488, 79 N.H. 154

(3) To warrant a finding that the conductor received plaintiff's ticket so as to entitle plaintiff to travel on it, or that he failed to notify plaintiff that it was of no value, or a finding that plaintiff intimated in any way that he would pay his fare or present a valid ticket if the other ticket should be returned.—Elliott v. Southern Pac. Co., 79 P. 420, 145 Cal. 441, 68 L.R.A. 393.

Connecting carrier

A verdict for plaintiff against an initial carrier for an ejection by a connecting carrier, was supported by evidence which indicated a contractual duty on the part of the initial carrier to provide plaintiff with transportation to his destination.—Guy v. Interstate Transit, 51 S.W.2d 455, 244 Ky. 479.

Identity of passenger

Where a passenger was ejected from a railroad train by reason of a defect in her return ticket in failing properly to describe her personal characteristics, evidence that the conductor who ejected her was the conductor who punched the ticket on the going trip, and that he was acquainted with her, was insufficient to establish that he had knowledge that plaintiff was the same person who presented the going part of the ticket, where he and the brakeman on the ity to purchase a ticket before entering the train,[83] the proximate cause of death of an intoxicated passenger,[84] and the right to punitive or exemplary damages.[85]

On behalf of the defendant, the evidence must be reasonably definite and positive and of such sufficiency as will show a justification for the removal of plaintiff; mere general statements will not suffice.[86] Thus, evidence showing that plaintiff's ticket was refused because it was defaced does not prove a defense, in the absence of a showing that it was defaced through some fault of plaintiff.[87]

§ 841. Trial

The general rules applicable to trials of civil actions, which are discussed in the title Trial, are applicable to the trial of actions for the wrongful ejection of passengers. However, such matters as questions of law and fact, instructions, and the verdict and findings in such actions are discussed, so far as specifically applicable, in the following sections. Consult Pocket Parts for later cases.

§ 842. Questions of Law and Fact

As in other civil actions, questions of law are for the determination of the court and questions of fact are, in the case of a conflict of the evidence, to be determined by the jury where the trial is to a jury.

Questions of law are to be determined by the court,[88] and it is error to submit them to the jury;[89] issues of fact are ordinarily to be determined by the jury under proper instructions from the court.[90] If there is any evidence from which the jury may justifiably find the existence or the nonexistence of a fact in issue and the evidence is conflicting or is such that reasonable minds might arrive at different conclusions therefrom, the issue going train both testified that they did not see plaintiff on such train, but that they remembered seeing plaintiff's daughter thereon.—Western Maryland R. Co. v. Schaun, 55 A. 701, 97 Md. 563.

83. Evidence held insufficient

Evidence that the ticket office was closed at a time thirty-five minutes before the train actually departed is not sufficient, without evidence that it remained closed from that time until the time of the train's departure, to warrant a finding that plaintiff did not have a reasonable opportunity to purchase a ticket.—Read v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 91 S E. 378, 106 S C. 441.

84. Evidence held insufficient

Pa.—Kradel v. Pittsburgh, H., B. & N. C. Ry. Co., 100 A. 128, 255 Pa. 427

85. Evidence held sufficient

(1) To authorize an award of punitive or exemplary damages.

Ark.—Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Heard, 50 S W 2d 971, 185 Ark. 1055.

Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Register, 139 S.E. 735, 37 Ga.App 219.

(2) To sustain a finding that the act of the conductor in ejecting the passenger was wanton, willful, and malicious, so as to justify the imposition of exemplary damages.

Ark.—Little Rock R., etc., Co. v. Dobbins, 95 S.W. 783, 78 Ark. 553.

Mo.—Gardner v. St. Louis, etc, R. Co, 93 S W. 917, 117 Mo.App. 138—Berger v. Chicago, etc, R. Co., 71 S.W. 102, 97 Mo.App. 127.

(3) To warrant the submission of the question of punitive damages to the jury—Hillebrand v. Wells, Mo. App., 270 S.W. 402.

Evidence of willful eviction of passenger from waiting room of railroad station authorized punitive damages.—Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v Mooneyham, 139 S.E. 589, 37 Ga. App. 236.

Evidence held insufficient

To sustain a verdict for plaintiff for a passenger's death alleged to have resulted from the company's wantonness in ejecting him from a train when he was drunk to insensibility, under conditions necessarily resulting in his drowning or freezing.—Mobile, etc, R. Co. v. Jackson, 46 So. 142, 92 Miss 517.

86. W.Va—Phillips v. Ohio Valley Electric Co., 90 S E. 342, 78 W.Va. 776

10 C J. p 791 note 24.

Evidence held sufficient

(1) To justify an ejection for intoxication and disorderly conduct.—Phillips v. Ohio Valley Electric Co., 90 S E. 342, 78 W.Va. 776.

(2) To show that a passenger who boarded a train without procuring a ticket did not exercise proper diligence to procure a ticket before the train started, and that he was not entitled to recover damages caused by his ejection from the train after it had left the depot.—Indianapolis, etc., R. Co. v. Kennedy, 77 Ind. 507.

(3) To show that no unnecessary force was used by the servants of the carrier in ejecting plaintiff.

Ill.—Malmgren v Aurora, etc., R. Co., 193 Ill.App 241.

Minn.—Carpenter v. Minneapolis, etc., Tract Co, 157 N.W. 902.

(4) To show that ejection was not wrongful by reason of the manner, time, or place.—Foskey v. Wrightsville & T. R. Co., 92 S.E. 34, 19 Ga. App 670.

(5) To show, as a matter of law, that plaintiff was given a sufficient time to pay his fare—Huba v. Schenectady R. Co., 83 N.Y S. 157, 85 App.Div. 199.

(6) To sustain a verdict for defendant.—Watson v Southern R Co., 64 S E 549, 132 Ga. 552

Evidence held insufficient

(1) To show that plaintiff had reasonable opportunity to purchase ticket.—Southern Ry. Co. v. Blackwell, 100 So 215, 211 Ala. 216.

(2) To show that plaintiff was a trespasser riding through collusion with a brakeman.—Texas, etc., R. Co. v. Black, 57 S.W. 330, 23 Tex.Civ. App 119.

(3) To show affirmatively that fare demanded was that fixed by schedule in force.—Adams v Central of Georgia Ry. Co., 73 So. 650, 198 Ala. 433.

87. Tex—Texas & N. O R. Co. v. Barrow, Civ.App., 56 S W 2d 260, error refused.

88. Ind—Lake Shore, etc., R Co. v. Peterson, 42 N.E. 480, 43 N.E 1, 144 Ind. 214.

10 C.J. p 791 note 27

89. Ark.—Little Rock R., etc., Co v. Goerner, 95 S.W. 1007, 80 Ark. 158, 7 L.R.A.,N.S., 97, 10 Ann.Cas. 273.

10 C J. p 791 note 28.

90. Ill.—Harris v. Atlantic-Pacific Stages, Inc., 260 Ill.App. 308

Iowa.—Vanderbeck v. Chicago, M., St. P. & P. Ry. Co., 230 N.W. 390, 210 Iowa 230.

Ky.—Louisville & N R. Co. v Baker's Adm'r, 210 S W. 674, 183 Ky. 795

Okl.—Dickinson v. Bryant, 172 P 432, 69 Okl 297, L.R.A.1918E 978.

S.C.—Douglas v Southern R. Co, 82 S.E. 439, 98 S C. 346—McKeown v Southern R. Co, 82 S E. 437, 98 S C. 338.

10 C J. p 791 notes 29, 33.

should be submitted to the jury for determination;[91] and in such a case the court should not take the issue from the jury by nonsuit, dismissal, direction of a verdict, or peremptory instruction.[92] If, however, there is no legally sufficient evidence on an issue of fact or the evidence thereon is clear and undisputed and such that but one conclusion can reasonably be drawn therefrom, the question becomes one for the court and should not be submitted to the jury,[93] but should be disposed of by the court alone, as by a dismissal or nonsuit, by sustaining a demurrer to the evidence,[94] or by directing a verdict.[95]

In the application of these rules, the following, among others, have been held to be questions of law: The reasonableness of a provision in a ticket,[96] and the legal effect of a ticket[97] and of the rules of a carrier relating to it;[98] and under the evidence in particular cases it has been held improper to submit questions as to whether a passenger was given a reasonable time in which to produce his ticket,[99] whether plaintiff suffered humiliation from an ejection;[1] or whether defendant's servants rendered plaintiff and her children such assistance as was required by defendant's rules and the circumstances of the case.[2]

Among other questions which have been held under the evidence and circumstances questions of fact for the jury are: Whether the person ejected was a passenger or a trespasser;[3] whether plaintiff's intestate was in fact ejected;[4] whether a prospective passenger was given a reasonable opportunity to procure a ticket[5] or to procure a permit to ride on a freight train;[6] whether a passenger was given a reasonable opportunity to produce a ticket or to pay his fare in lieu thereof;[7] whether a passenger paid the correct fare;[8] whether a passenger took a wrong train without fault on the part of the carrier;[9] whether a train not stopping at plaintiff's destination was boarded on invitation of trainman;[10] whether a reasonable opportunity to alight at his destination was given a passenger;[11] whether passenger asleep at destination was wrongfully ejected after passing it;[12] whether a transfer ticket was presented too late;[13] whether passenger's explanation as to right to ride on ticket was reasonable;[14] whether plaintiff, by reason of infirmity, was entitled to personal service or attention;[15] whether carrier was under duty to wake passenger asleep at destination;[16] whether an employee in effecting the ejection complained of was

91. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Baker's Adm'r, 210 S.W. 674, 183 Ky. 795.
10 C.J. p 791 note 33.

Failure to inform carrier of condition
Passenger, suing for ejection resulting in relapse into tubercular condition, is not without cause of action as matter of law because of failure to inform conductor that she had been affected with tuberculosis or of absence of irresistible force by him.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Ulmer, Tex.Civ.App., 232 S.W. 305, affirmed, Com.App., 236 S.W. 193.

92. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hamby, 93 So. 698, 208 Ala. 75.
10 C.J. p 792 note 34.

93. Ark.—Brenner v. Jonesboro, etc., R. Co., 100 S.W. 893, 82 Ark. 128, 118 Am.S.R. 56, 9 L.R.A.,N.S., 1060, 12 Ann.Cas. 489.
10 C.J. p 792 note 35.

94. Mo.—Shular v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 2 S.W. 310, 92 Mo. 339.
10 C.J. p 792 note 35.

95. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Dawson, 66 So. 905, 11 Ala.App. 621.
Ariz.—Roberts v. Smith, 52 P. 1120, 5 Ariz. 368.

Directed verdict held required
Mich.—Willett v. King, 168 N.W. 986, 203 Mich. 295.
Tex.—Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Edwards, Civ.App., 232 S.W. 356.

Directed verdict held proper
In an action for injuries sustained through being shot by a deputy sheriff on being ejected from a train for nonpayment of fare, where the evidence did not raise the issue of the carrier's liability, a directed verdict for defendant was proper.—Samaritano v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., Tex.Civ.App., 230 S.W. 1049, dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

96. N.Y.—Hanley v. Brooklyn Heights R. Co., 96 N.Y.S. 249, 110 App.Div. 429.
10 C.J. p 791 note 30.

97. Mo.—Ligon v. St. Louis, etc., R. Co., 168 S.W. 647, 184 Mo.App. 187.
Tex.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Carroll, Civ.App., 151 S.W. 1116.

98. Tex.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Carroll, supra.

99. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hamby, 93 So. 698, 208 Ala. 75.

1. Ark.—Brenner v. Jonesboro, etc., R. Co., 100 S.W. 893, 82 Ark. 128, 118 Am.S.R. 56, 9 L.R.A.,N.S., 1060, 12 Ann.Cas. 489.

2. Tex.—Fleck v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, Civ.App., 191 S.W. 386.

3. Idaho.—Ramm v. Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co., 62 N.W. 751, 94 Idaho 296.
10 C.J. p 792 note 38.

4. Ky.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Baker's Adm'r, 210 S.W. 674, 183 Ky. 795.

5. Miss.—Rivers v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 38 So. 508, 86 Miss. 571.
10 C.J. p 792 note 39.

6. Minn.—Reed v. Great Northern R. Co., 78 N.W. 971, 76 Minn. 163

7. Fla.—Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Scarborough, 42 So. 706, 52 Fla. 425.
10 C.J. p 792 note 40.

8. N.J.—Tallman v. Triangle Bus Co., 132 A. 514, 4 N.J.Misc. 330

9. Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Smith, 123 N.E. 4, 70 Ind. App. 40.

10. Ill.—Davis v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 233 Ill.App. 539.

11. N.Y.—Markowitz v. New York Rys. Co., 176 N.Y.S. 778, 188 App. Div. 482.

12. Iowa.—Vanderbeck v. Chicago, M., St. P. & P. Ry. Co., 230 N.W. 390, 210 Iowa 230.

13. N.Y.—Caffrey v. United Traction Co., 192 N.Y.S. 95, 199 App.Div. 208—Samanowitz v. New York Rys. Co., 163 N.Y.S. 550.

14. S.C.—Douglas v. Southern R. Co., 82 S.E. 439, 98 S.C. 346—McKeown v. Southern R. Co., 82 S.E. 437, 98 S.C. 338.

15. Okl.—Dickinson v. Bryant, 172 P. 432, 69 Okl. 297, L.R.A.1918E 978.

16. Iowa.—Vanderbeck v. Chicago, M., St. P. & P. Ry. Co., 230 N.W. 390, 210 Iowa 230.

acting within the scope of his employment;[17] whether owner of restaurant used as bus waiting room was agent of the carrier;[18] whether an ejected passenger was guilty of contributory negligence or failure to use reasonable care to prevent injury,[19] or whether the wrongful ejection was the proximate cause of the passenger's injuries.[20]

Manner, time, or place of ejection. On conflicting evidence it is for the jury to determine whether or not the carrier or his servant was guilty of negligence,[21] or of malicious,[22] or willful or wanton,[23] conduct, or of the use of unnecessary force,[24] in effecting an ejection.

Whether an ejection was at an improper time,[25] or place,[26] has also been held to be questions for the jury.

Damages. The assessment of damages is for the jury,[27] which may determine the question of actual damages,[28] or whether an employee's acts or conduct was such as to entitle plaintiff to punitive or exemplary damages,[29] or whether there were mitigating circumstances of such a nature as would justify the assessment of nominal damages only.[30]

§ 843. Instructions

The instructions in an action for the ejection of a passenger should clearly and accurately state the law applicable to the case in conformity to the issues made by the pleading and evidence and without invasion of the province of the jury.

Under the general rules governing instructions in civil cases, the court should correctly state the law applicable to the facts of the case,[31] in defi-

17. Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P 663, 51 Cal App 575.
10 C.J p 792 note 41.

When question of law

"Where the inference that he was not acting for the master within the general scope of his authority is not justified, it becomes a question of law, and so, likewise, when there is no room for an inference that he was pursuing an independent purpose of his own, the master would be liable as matter of law."—Barry v. Union R. Co., 94 N.Y.S. 449, 105 App.Div. 520, 525

18. Ill.—Harris v. Atlantic-Pacific Stages, Inc., 260 Ill.App. 308.

19. N.Y.—Cohen v Erie R. Co., 160 N.Y.S. 1091, 97 Misc. 1.
10 C.J p 793 note 49.

Avoidance of injury from exposure

Pa.—Weathers v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 94 Pa Super 50.
Tex.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Ulmer, Civ App., 296 S.W. 647

20. Md.—Veenstra v. United Rys. & Electric Co. of Baltimore, 129 A. 678, 148 Md. 512
10 C.J. p 793 note 48.

Order to alight from moving car

In boy's action for injuries, when ejected from defendant street railway's car as it was moving, question whether or not proximate cause of his getting off was the order of the conductor or of the motorman was held for the jury.—Quirk v. Metropolitan St. Ry Co., 210 S.W. 103, 200 Mo.App. 585.

21. Md.—Veenstra v. United Rys & Electric Co of Baltimore, 129 A. 678, 148 Md. 512.
N.Y.—Tumulty v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 229 N.Y.S. 700, 224 App Div. 131.
S.C.—Paul v. Southern Ry Co., 155 S.E. 884, 158 S.C. 550.
Tex.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Ulmer, Civ.App., 282 S.W 305, affirmed, Com.App., 286 S.W. 193.
10 C.J. p 793 note 42

Failure to anticipate action

Where passenger, misled by carrier's agent, did what was natural and reasonable, and injury resulted, it cannot be held as matter of law that carrier could not have anticipated such action.—Weathers v Pennsylvania R. Co., 94 Pa Super. 50

Failure to notify crew of another train to stop for an ejected passenger—Southern Pac Co. v. Ulmer, Tex.Civ.App., 282 S.W 305, affirmed, Com.App., 286 S.W. 193.

Ejection from moving train or car

Mo.—Quirk v Metropolitan St. Ry. Co., 210 S.W. 106, 200 Mo.App. 593, certiorari quashed State ex rel. Metropolitan St. Ry Co v. Ellison, Sup., 224 S.W. 820.
10 C.J. p 793 note 46

Ejection of intoxicated person

N.Y.—Tumulty v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co., 229 N.Y.S. 700, 224 App Div. 131.
10 C.J. p 793 note 42 [a].

22. Ariz.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Boyce, 223 P. 116, 26 Ariz. 162.
Mo.—Hartridge v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 196 S.W 59
10 C.J. p 791 note 29 [a], p 793 note 47.

23. Ariz.—Southern Pac. Co. v. Boyce, 223 P. 116, 26 Ariz. 162.
Ga.—Devero v Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 181 S.E. 421, 51 Ga.App. 699.
S.C.—Paul v Southern Ry Co., 155 S.E. 884, 158 S.C. 550.
10 C.J. p 793 note 47.

Particular acts

(1) Ejecting passenger at closed depot during rain.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 181 S.E. 421, 51 Ga.App. 699.

(2) Ejecting a passenger and two small children at a time when it was almost night and at a place where there was a deep cut and when a storm was threatening—Paul v. Southern Ry. Co., 155 S.E 884, 158 S.C. 550.

Whether carrier ratified the willful acts of a conductor, is a question for the jury.—Paul v. Southern Ry. Co., 155 S.E 884, 158 S.C. 550

24. Mo.—Green v. United Rys Co. of St Louis, 206 S.W. 237, 200 Mo. App. 303.
N.Y.—Samanowitz v. New York Rys. Co., 163 N.Y.S. 550.
N.C.—McNairy v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 S.E. 497, 172 N.C 505.
10 C.J. p 793 note 43.

25. Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v Summerall, 139 S.E. 923, 37 Ga. App. 294

26. Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v Summerall, supra.
10 C.J. p.793 note 44.

Where statute required an ejection to be at a station or near a dwelling house, it is a question for the jury to determine whether or not an ejection took place near a dwelling house.—Loomis v. Jewett, 35 Hun, N.Y., 313

27. Ala.—Bates v. Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 82 So. 14, 203 Ala. 54.

28. S.C.—Paul v Southern Ry Co., 155 S.E 884, 158 S.C. 550.

29. Ariz.—Southern Pac. Co v. Boyce, 223 P. 116, 26 Ariz. 162.
10 C.J. p 793 note 47.

30. Ala.—Bates v Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co., 82 So. 14, 203 Ala. 54.

31. Mo.—Hartridge v. United Rys. Co of St. Louis, App., 196 S.W. 59.
10 C.J. p 794 note 51.
Instructions in civil cases see C.J.S. title Trial §§ 266–426, also 64 C.J. p 510 note 2–p 1008 note 15

Instructions held proper

Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads

nite and explicit terms.[32] Instructions should not be abstract,[33] or conflicting, inconsistent, or contradictory;[34] misleading instructions, even though correctly stating an abstract proposition of law, are erroneous.[35] A portion[36] or excerpt[37] of a charge is to be read in connection with its context, and is to be considered with the whole of the charge;[38] accordingly, the fact that one portion considered separately might be open to objection does not constitute error, if the charge is correct in its entirety.[39] Mere errors of form or phraseology in instructions, such as are not calculated to mislead the jury or prejudice the rights of other parties, are immaterial.[40]

An instruction which covers the case generally is ordinarily sufficient in the absence of a request for further instructions in detail.[41] While a request for a proper instruction on matters not sufficiently covered by the charges as given should not be refused,[42] it is not error to refuse a requested instruction on matters already sufficiently covered by the charge as given,[43] or to refuse an instruction which incorrectly states the law,[44] or which charges as to immaterial or unessential matters,[45] or matters not in issue.[46]

A requested instruction may be modified by the court when to do so makes a clearer[47] or more correct[48] statement of the law, or when the instruction as modified is not harmful to the party making the request.[49]

Invading province of jury. As issues of fact must be submitted to the jury by instructions which clearly and fully state and define them,[50] an instruction is erroneous which invades the province of the jury by withdrawing or excluding an issue of fact from it;[51] thus, an instruction which assumes as a matter of law the existence or nonexistence of facts in issue, is erroneous,[52] and, under of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 51 Cal.App. 575.

10 C.J. p 794 note 51 [a].

Instructions held erroneous
Ark.—Hines v. Smith, 224 S.W. 612, 145 Ark. 218.
Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 51 Cal.App. 575.
10 C.J. p 794 note 51 [b].

Instructions held properly refused
Ga.—Smith v. Savannah Electric Co., 102 S.E. 548, 25 Ga.App. 59.
Ill.—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 88.

Instructions held improperly refused
Ga.—Miller v. Southern Ry. Co., 94 S.E. 619, 21 Ga.App. 367.

Instruction as to degree of intoxication necessary to justify an ejection is erroneous, in view of a statute making it a criminal offense to be intoxicated on a train, or even to drink intoxicating liquor thereon.—George v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 197 Ill.App. 152.

Humiliation, chagrin, and mortification
In a passenger's action against a carrier for ejection from its train, it was held that the instructions should cover the question whether the acts of the conductor were reasonable and necessary in ejecting the passenger, and whether in fact the passenger suffered humiliation, chagrin, and mortification.—Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wallace, Tex.Com.App., 206 S.W. 505, reversing, Civ.App., 152 S.W. 373.

32. Ga.—Purvis v. Atlanta Northern R. Co., 72 S.E. 343, 136 Ga. 852.
10 C.J. p 795 note 53.

33. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Hamby, 93 So. 698, 208 Ala. 75.
10 C.J. p 796 note 55.

34. Mo.—Hartridge v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 196 S.W. 59
10 C.J. p 796 note 56

35. Ark.—Hines v. Smith, 224 S.W. 612, 145 Ark. 218.
10 C.J. p 795 note 54.

36. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547.

37. N.J.—Shoeffler v. Phillipsburg Horse Car R. Co., 100 A. 199, 90 N.J.Law 235.

Charge as to amount of force to be used in ejecting one improperly on defendant's car, which stated by illustration that if a passenger refused to leave and he was pushed off, that is all that would be necessary, is not an instruction that defendant might push such person off car regardless of consequences.—Shoeffler v. Phillipsburg Horse Car R. Co., 100 A. 199, 90 N.J.Law 235.

38. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Copeland, 117 So. 176, 217 Ala. 556—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Crick, 117 So. 167, 217 Ala. 547.
10 C.J. p 796 note 57.

39. Fla.—Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Scarborough, 42 So. 706, 52 Fla. 425.

40. Tenn.—Choctaw, etc., R. Co. v. Hill, 75 S.W. 963, 110 Tenn. 396.
10 C.J. p 797 note 65.

41. Tenn.—Warfield v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 55 S.W. 304, 104 Tenn. 74, 78 Am.S.R. 911.
10 C.J. p 796 note 58.

42. Md.—Maryland, etc., R. Co. v. Tucker, 80 A. 688, 115 Md. 43.
10 C.J. p 796 note 59.

43. Fla.—Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Scarborough, 42 So. 706, 52 Fla. 425.

44. Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Thomas, 82 S.E. 299, 14 Ga.App. 619
Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Dice, Civ.App., 168 S.W. 478—El Paso Electric R. Co. v. Alderete, 81 S.W. 1246, 36 Tex.Civ.App. 142.

45. Tex.—Quigley v. Gulf, etc., R. Co., Civ.App., 142 S.W. 633.

46. Miss.—Gallegly v. Kansas City, etc., R. Co., 35 So. 420, 83 Miss. 171.
Tex.—International, etc., R. Co. v. Hood, 122 S.W. 569, 57 Tex.Civ.App. 497.

47. Ark.—Little Rock R., etc., Electric Co. v. Dobbins, 95 S.W. 788, 78 Ark. 553.

48. Ill.—Chicago Cons. Tract. Co. v. Mahoney, 82 N.E. 868, 230 Ill. 562.
10 C.J. p 796 note 60.

Modification held not erroneous
Cal.—Galloway v. United Railroads of San Francisco, 197 P. 663, 51 Cal.App. 575
10 C.J. p 796 note 60 [a].

49. Mo.—Carmody v. St. Louis Transit Co., 99 S.W. 495, 122 Mo.App. 338.

50. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Day, 110 S.W. 220, 86 Ark. 104.
Md.—Rosenkovitz v. United R., etc., Co., 70 A. 103, 108 Md. 306.
Issues of fact as question for the jury see supra § 842 a.

51. Mich.—Butler v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 101 N.W. 232, 138 Mich. 206.
10 C.J. p 797 note 68.

52. Ala.—Nashville, etc., R. Co. v. Moore, 41 So. 984, 148 Ala. 63.
10 C.J. p 797 note 69.

a statute, it has been held that an instruction containing an expression of opinion by the court on a controverted issue, requires the granting of a new trial [53]

Conformity to pleadings and issues The instructions must conform and be applicable to the issues as made by the pleadings[54] and the evidence.[55] Thus, an instruction which is not pertinent to the issues,[56] or which authorizes a recovery on a ground not relied on in the petition,[57] or which is based partly on facts of which there is insufficient evidence or no evidence in the record on which it can rest,[58] is erroneous, or, if a requested charge, is properly refused. However, it is not error to omit to charge on a matter not in issue.[59]

Damages. An instruction which leaves the amount of damages recoverable for injuries received from an ejection to the judgment and discretion of the jury, as based on the proof in the case, is not erroneous.[60] Where there is evidence to warrant it, an instruction authorizing a recovery for pain, humiliation, and disgrace as an element of compensatory damages is proper,[61] but it should require a finding that the humiliation suffered was the proximate result of the wrongful ejection.[62]

Instructions on the measure of damages should confine recovery to compensatory damages where there is no evidence to support an award of punitive damages.[63] An instruction authorizing the recovery of punitive or exemplary damages if the acts complained of were willfully, wantonly, or maliciously committed, is proper;[64] but an instruc-

53. Ga—Louisville, etc., R Co v. Ogles, 83 S E 681, 142 Ga. 720, 722

54. N Y—Huba v Schenectady R Co, 83 N.Y S 157, 85 App Div. 199
10 C J p 797 note 71

Instructions held proper

Ky—Choate v Louisville Ry. Co., 49 S W 2d 342 243 Ky 562

Mo—Quirk v Metropolitan St Ry. Co, 210 S W 103, 200 Mo App 585

55. Ga—Purvis v Atlanta Northern R Co, 72 S E 343, 136 Ga 852.
10 C J p 795 note 53 p 797 note 71.

Instructions held proper

(1) As authorized by, or applicable to, the evidence

Ga—Georgia Ry & Power Co v Turner, 125 S E. 598, 33 Ga App 101.

Utah—Bergman v Denver & R. G R Co, 178 P 68, 53 Utah 213.
10 C J p 795 note 53 [a].

(2) After a verdict where there was evidence to support such verdict—Carpenter v Washington, etc, R Co, D C, 7 S Ct. 1002, 121 U S 474, 30 L Ed. 1015

56. Mo—Sommerfield v St Louis Transit Co, 84 S W 172, 108 Mo App. 718

N Y—Ray v United Tract Co, 89 N. Y S 49, 96 App Div. 48

Instructions held erroneous

(1) For charging on a theory not in issue.

Ill—Wabash R Co v. Kingsley, 52 N.E 931, 177 Ill. 558, reversing 78 Ill App 236

Mo—Osteryoung v. St. Louis Transit Co, 84 S W 179, 108 Mo App 703—Ruebsam v St Louis Transit Co, 83 S W. 984 103 Mo App 437.

(2) For failure to charge on the decisive question on which a case, under the pleadings and proof turned—Louisville & N R Co v Hooker, 98 S W.2d 922, 266 Ky. 257

(3) Other instructions failing to charge on material matter in issue see 10 C J. p 797 note 74.

Charge held properly refused where it would not permit recovery on certain grounds of negligence which were in issue—Southern Pac Co v Ulmer, Tex Civ App., 282 S W. 305, affirmed, Com App., 286 S W 193

57. Ky—Mobile & O R Co v. Dill, 191 S W 80, 173 Ky 412

58. Ala—Louisville & N R Co. v Copeland, 117 So 176, 217 Ala 556—Louisville & N R Co v Crick, 117 So 167 217 Ala. 547—Louisville & N R Co v Hamby, 93 So 698, 208 Ala. 75

Instructions held erroneous

Ark—Hines v. Smith, 224 S W. 612, 145 Ark. 218

Ga—Louisville & N R Co v Ogles, 90 S E 476, 146 Ga 20—Nashville, C & St L Ry v Mooneyham, 139 S E 589, 37 Ga App 236.
10 C J p 795 note 53 [b]

59. Ill—Illinois Cent R Co. v Davenport, 52 N E. 266, 177 Ill. 110, affirming 75 Ill App 579
10 C J p 798 note 75

60. Ariz—Southern Pac. Co. v Boyce, 223 P 116, 26 Ariz 162.

Instruction held proper

Ariz—Southern Pac. Co v Boyce, 223 P 116, 26 Ariz 162

61. Mo—Hartridge v. United Rys. Co of St Louis, App., 196 S W. 59.

Instruction held erroneous

Instruction allowing a recovery of only nominal damages if plaintiff "suffered no injury" by virtue of his wrongful ejection is erroneous because not permitting damages for pain, humiliation and disgrace and it is erroneous in limiting recovery to nominal damages—Hartridge v United Rys Co of St. Louis, Mo App., 196 S W 59

Compensation for mental and physical pain

It was error to instruct that, if the jury found for plaintiff, an injured passenger, they should find for him any sum which the jury believed he was entitled to, not exceeding two thousand dollars, but in such case the jury should have been told that he was entitled to such damages as would reasonably compensate him for the mental and physical pain and suffering that he endured, if any, by reason of the negligent and wrongful acts of defendant's agents and servants—Chesapeake, etc, R Co v Crank, 108 S W. 276, 128 Ky 329, 32 Ky L. 1202, 16 L R A.,N S, 197

Shame and humiliation not pleaded

It is not necessary that there be a specific allegation of shame and humiliation in the petition, nor that there be specific proof thereof, in order that it may be included as an element of damages in an instruction, as it may be inferred by the jury from the nature and extent of the injuries—Berger v Chicago, etc., R Co 71 S W 102, 97 Mo App 127

62 Ky—Louisville & N R. Co v. Watson, 255 S W 1056, 201 Ky. 108

63. Ky—Louisville & N R Co v. Hooker, 98 S W 2d 922, 266 Ky. 257

Instruction interpreted as authorizing compensatory damages only

Mo—Griffin v Kansas City Rys Co., 204 S.W 826, 199 Mo App 682

64. Mo—Hillebrand v Wells, App., 270 S W 402.

Instructions held proper

Mo—Hillebrand v Wells, App, 270 S W 402
10 C J p 797 note 71 [a] (1), [b].

Instruction held too favorable to defendant

In an action against a street railroad company for ejection from a car with unnecessary force, an instruction that, if defendant's agent was inspired to use excessive force by actual malice or ill will, the jury might allow punitive damages is too tion is erroneous if it charges that there may be a recovery of such damages if certain hypothetical facts are true when there is no evidence, tending to prove those facts.[65]

§ 844. Verdict and Findings

The verdict or findings should conform to the issues and the evidence.

The verdict or findings should be in accord with the issues and the evidence.[66] Where a verdict is contrary to the weight of the evidence, the court may grant a motion for a new trial.[67] A judgment cannot be entered on findings which conflict with each other or with the general verdict.[68] Where there is a verdict for defendant on one count, there can be no recovery by plaintiff on another count which has the same theory of recovery as was found adversely to him on the first count;[69] but, under instructions that if the jury found that the act of ejection was wantonly and maliciously committed it would "justify" exemplary damages, the failure of the jury to award exemplary damages does not warrant the conclusion that it did not find the act to be willful and malicious.[70]

§ 845. Appeal and Error

General rules as to the review of civil actions by appeal or writ of error as discussed in the title Appeal and Error apply to actions for the ejection of passengers. Consult Pocket Parts for later cases.

§ 846. Damages

In general, where a carrier unlawfully ejects a passenger, it is liable for whatever damages he sustains.

While, where a carrier unlawfully ejecting a passenger is in general liable for whatever damages he sustains,[71] his recovery, in the absence of malice or other aggravating circumstances justifying an award of punitive damages as considered in § 853 infra, is limited to compensatory damages.[72]

§ 847. Nominal or Substantial Damages

An unlawful ejection ordinarily authorizes a recovery at least of nominal damages, and according to some authorities, but not all, of substantial damages even in the absence of actual damages and although an award of exemplary damages is not justified.

A passenger who is wrongfully ejected by a carrier may recover at least nominal damages,[73] and, according to some authorities, his recovery is not limited thereto although he has suffered no physical injury for which he may recover,[74] nor pecuniary loss,[75] since the wrongful ejection is regarded as constituting more than a mere technical invasion of the passenger's rights.[76] Under this view, substantial damages have been allowed for the wrongful ejection of one either producing a favorable to defendant, as plaintiff is also entitled to punitive damages if he was recklessly or wantonly thrown from the car—Lexington R. Co. v. O'Brien, 84 S.W. 1170, 27 Ky. L. 336.

65. Va.—Norfolk, etc., R. Co. v. Neely, 22 S.E. 367, 91 Va. 539.

Instructions held improper

Ill.—George v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 197 Ill.App. 152.

Va.—Norfolk, etc., R. Co. v. Neely, 22 S.E. 367, 91 Va. 539.

66. Cal.—Eylenfeldt v. United R. Co., 151 P. 293, 28 Cal.App. 56.

Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Thomas, 82 S.E. 299, 14 Ga.App. 619.

Excessive force

Findings that the conductor pulled plaintiff passenger from his seat to the rear platform, called the motorman to his assistance, and that both with great force pulled, twisted, and jerked plaintiff, do not expressly or by implication indicate that the car crew used more force than was reasonably necessary to remove plaintiff from the car.—Wasserman v. Los Angeles Ry. Corporation, 193 P. 130, 184 Cal. 202.

Verdict held sustained

Ga.—Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Thomas, 82 S.E. 299, 14 Ga.App. 619.

67. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Perkins, 39 So. 305, 144 Ala. 325.

68. Wash.—Loy v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 122 P. 372, 68 Wash. 33.

Wis.—Di Benedetto v. Milwaukee Electric R., etc., Co., 136 N.W. 282, 149 Wis. 566.

69. Ala.—Kimbrell v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., 67 So. 586.

Verdict held to preclude recovery on either of two counts

Where the gravamen of each of two counts is the wrongful ejection of plaintiff because of his refusal to pay, on demand, more than the proper fare and the verdict of the jury indicated that there had never been a demand for such fare, there can be no recovery on a second count which, in addition to the foregoing cause of action alleges the "willful" and "wanton" ejection of plaintiff, as under the theory of either count, it was necessary that there be a wrongful ejection before there could be any recovery.—Kimbrell v. Louisville, etc., R. Co., Ala., 67 So. 586.

70. Mo.—Harless v. Southwest Missouri Electric R. Co., 99 S.W. 793, 123 Mo.App. 22.

71. Okl.—Dickinson v. Bryant, 172 P. 432, 69 Okl. 297, L.R.A. 1918E 978.

72. Ky.—Reasor v. Paducah, etc., Ferry Co., 153 S.W. 222, 152 Ky. 220, 43 L.R.A.,N.S., 820.

10 C.J. p. 767 note 17.

73. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Laney, 69 So. 993.

Ky.—Reasor v. Paducah, etc., Ferry Co., 153 S.W. 222, 152 Ky. 220, 43 L.R.A.,N.S., 820.

Mo.—Holt v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 74 S.W. 631, 174 Mo. 524, reversing 87 Mo.App. 203.

Ejection in violation of statute

Mo.—Holt v. Hannibal, etc., R. Co., 74 S.W. 631, 174 Mo. 524, reversing 87 Mo.App. 203.

74. Ill.—Wilson v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 245 Ill.App. 72.

Iowa.—Vanderbeck v. Chicago, M. St. P. & P. Ry. Co., 230 N.W. 390, 210 Iowa 230.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co., 180 N.W. 733, 190 Iowa 693.

75. Ill.—Wilson v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 245 Ill.App. 72.

76. Iowa.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co., 180 N.W. 733, 190 Iowa 693.

ticket or standing ready to pay his fare,[77] or who is ejected under circumstances occasioning personal indignity and unnecessary humiliation[78] or discomfort or disgrace,[79] or for an ejection or threat to eject which amounts to an inexcusable trespass[80]

On the other hand, according to some authorities, nominal damages only may be recovered in the absence of actual damages.[81] Nominal damages only have been awarded in cases where the passenger could have averted expulsion by paying his fare,[82] or where his object in attempting to ride on the ticket presented was for the purpose of recovering damages,[83] or where he was under a duty to leave the train peaceably and brought on his ejection by refusing to do so.[84] A passenger who was threatened with ejection unless he paid his fare with a coin other than the one presented is not entitled to compensatory damages, where he was not actually ejected and suffered no delay or inconvenience.[85]

§ 848. Expense; Loss of Time; Inconvenience

The delay, inconvenience, or expense proximately resulting from a wrongful ejection is a proper element of damages

A passenger who is wrongfully ejected may recover compensation for any loss or additional expense due to a delay[86] or for an inconvenience suffered[87] There may be no recovery for such inconvenience and discomfort[88] or expense[89] which does not proximately result from the ejection

Recovery has been allowed for a delay, irrespective of the good faith accompanying the ejection and regardless of the fact that no actual damage was suffered;[90] but, on the other hand, damages for loss of time have been denied where there was no showing of a financial loss occasioned thereby[91]

It has been held that there may be a recovery for money expended for medical attendance,[92] for

77. Mich.—Zagelmeyer v. Cincinnati, etc, R. Co, 60 N.W. 436, 102 Mich. 214, 47 Am S R. 514.

78. Iowa.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co., 180 N.W. 733, 190 Iowa 693

Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W Ry Co, 99 S.E. 686, 125 Va. 244, 5 A. L.R. 346.

Damages for humiliation and mental suffering generally see infra § 850

79. Va.—Mangum v. Norfolk & W Ry Co, 99 S E. 686, 125 Va. 244 5 A.L R. 346

80. Ga.—Georgia R., etc, Co. v Baker, 54 S E. 639, 125 Ga. 562, 114 Am.S.R. 246, 7 L.R.A.,N.S, 103, 5 Ann Cas 484.
10 C J p 767 note 20.

81. Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Lunam, 60 S W. 951, 68 Ark. 621—St. Louis, etc., R Co. v Branch, 45 Ark. 524.
Ill.—Chicago, etc, R Co v Roberts 40 Ill. 503—Terre Haute, etc, R Co. v. Vanatta, 21 Ill. 188, 74 Am D 96
Wash.—Leek v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 118 P 345, 65 Wash 453
10 C J p 776 note 87.

Ejection rightful but at improper place

Ark.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. Lunam, 60 S W 951, 68 Ark. 621—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v Branch, 45 Ark. 524
Ill.—Chicago, etc, R. Co v. Roberts, 40 Ill. 503—Terre Haute, etc, R Co v. Vanatta, 21 Ill. 188, 74 Am. D. 96.

82. Ill.—Burn v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 153 Ill.App. 319.

83. Ga.—Southern R. Co v. Barlow, 30 S E 732, 104 Ga. 213, 69 Am.S R. 166

Effect of good faith

Even though a passenger's ticket is legally sufficient, if he knows it will not be accepted for the transportation for which it is offered, and he is not in good faith in presenting it, he may recover only nominal damages On the other hand, if he is in good faith, he is entitled to recover whatever damages he may sustain, even though he may have had reason to believe that the ticket would not be accepted—Southern R. Co v Barlow, 30 S.E. 732, 104 Ga 213, 69 Am S R. 166.

84. Conn.—Norton v Consolidated R. Co., 63 A. 1087, 79 Conn 109, 118 Am.S.R. 132, 6 Ann.Cas. 943

85. R I.—Campopiano v Rhode Island Co., 97 A 597, 39 R.I. 105, L R.A 1916E 911

Conductor's refusal to accept Columbian half dollar

R I.—Campopiano v Rhode Island Co., 97 A 597, 39 R.I. 105, L.R.A. 1916E 911

86. Ill.—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry Co, 197 Ill App 88
10 C.J p 767 notes 19, 21.

Mistake of ticket agent

The rule has been applied in the case of an ejection of a passenger for his refusal to pay fare after presenting an improper ticket which was issued to him through a mistake of the ticket agent—Cohen v Cleveland, C & St. L Ry. Co, 197 Ill.App 88—10 C J p 768 note 23.

87. Ala.—Louisville & N R. Co v. Harper, 83 So. 142, 203 Ala 398
N C.—McNairy v Norfolk & W. R. Co, 90 S E. 497, 172 N C 505.
10 C J p 767 note 21.

88. Ky.—Mobile & O. R Co. v Dill, 191 S.W 80, 173 Ky. 412.

89. Cal.—Procter v. Southern California R. Co, 62 P. 306, 509, 130 Cal 20.
10 C J. p 768 note 24

90. Ill.—Wilson v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry Co, 245 Ill App 72—Cohen v Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry Co, 197 Ill.App. 88

91. N.J.—Justesen v Pennsylvania R. Co, 106 A. 137, 92 N J.Law 257

Recovery not allowed for loss of time

(1) Where there was no evidence of the value of a passenger s time, no recovery for loss of time could be allowed—Chicago, etc., R. Co v. Newburn, 110 P. 1065, 27 Okl. 9, 30 L.R.A.,N S, 432.

(2) It has been held, in a suit by a married woman for her wrongful ejection from a train, that while she could not recover for her loss of time, the jury might consider the length of time she was delayed in her journey and the length of time she suffered inconveniences and discomforts incident to and following her ejection.—Ferguson v Missouri Pac Ry Co, Mo.App., 186 S W. 1134.

92. Del.—Whittington v. Philadelphia, etc., R. Co., 93 A. 563.

money spent as a result of inaccurate information given by an agent of the carrier,[93] or for an additional fare paid because of a mistake of a ticket agent in issuing a ticket.[94] However, recovery by a wife for ticket and hotel expenses paid by her husband has been denied.[95]

Recovery for the value of the ticket or the unused portion thereof has been both allowed[96] and denied.[97]

In case the passenger has expended money for a ticket which, by reason of a mistake of the carrier's agent, is defective, in those jurisdictions which hold that the proper remedy in such case is an action for breach of contract rather than for a wrongful ejection, there may be a recovery of no more than the extra cost required for transportation to the place of destination,[98] in the absence of proof of any special damages.[99]

If an ejection is rightful but at an unsuitable place, recovery is limited to such sum as will fairly compensate the ejected passenger for the inconvenience and discomfort suffered by reason of the ejection at such place, if no additional expense was incurred, no time was lost, or no illness or personal injury was suffered.[1]

§ 849. Physical Injuries

Physical injuries, including resulting impairment of earning capacity or loss of time, are a proper element of damages.

Where physical injuries are suffered by a wrongful or negligent ejection or as a proximate result of such ejection or from the use of unnecessary force in connection with a rightful ejection, recovery may be had therefor,[2] including any impairment of earning capacity and loss of time resulting from the injury.[3]

§ 850. Humiliation and Mental Suffering

Humiliation and mental suffering resulting from the wrongful ejection are a proper element of damages, although there is a divergence of authority as to whether there must be an attendant physical injury or accompanying circumstances of violence, malice, or insult.

Subject to the qualification recognized in some jurisdictions that other elements of damage, such as physical injury or circumstances of violence, malice, or insult, must be present, and where they are the natural and proximate result of the wrongful act,[4] a passenger may recover by way of actual or compensatory damages for any humiliation, mental suffering or distress, indignity, shame, or disgrace which he may suffer by reason of his wrongful ejection by a carrier,[5] or by reason of his ejection in an improper manner[6] or at an im-

93. N.J.—Justesen v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 106 A. 137, 92 N.J.Law 257

Existence of quarantine

Where the information bureau of a railroad company informed plaintiff that the quarantine against infantile paralysis in another state had been lifted, thereby inducing plaintiff to take passage over its lines, and plaintiff was required to leave train because refused admission into the other state, defendant's liability is limited to restoration to plaintiff of the money which its wrong caused her to expend.—Justesen v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 106 A. 137, 92 N.J. Law 257.

94. Ill.—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 88

95. Mo.—Ferguson v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., App., 186 S.W. 1134.

96. Ky.—Chesapeake, etc., R. Co. v. Gatewood, 159 S.W. 660, 155 Ky. 102.

Tex.—St. Louis, etc., R. Co. v. McAnellia, Civ.App., 110 S.W. 936—Houston, etc., R. Co. v. Crone, Civ. App., 37 S.W. 1074.

97. Ark.—Dickinson v. Muse, 204 S.W. 609, 135 Ark. 76.

Mich.—Pierson v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 123 N.W. 576, 159 Mich. 110

98. U.S.—Hall v. Memphis, etc., R. Co., C.C.Tenn., 15 F. 57.

Mich.—Brown v. Rapid R. Co., 96 N.W. 925, 134 Mich. 591—Brown v. Rapid R. Co., 90 N.W. 290, 130 Mich. 483.

99. U.S.—Hall v. Memphis, etc., R. Co., Tenn., 15 F. 57.

1. Ky.—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Dill, 191 S.W. 80, 173 Ky. 412.

2. N.C.—McNairy v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 S.E. 497, 172 N.C. 505
10 C.J. p. 768 note 26

3. Ky.—Louisville, etc., R. Co. v. Cottengim, 104 S.W. 280, 31 Ky. L. 871, 13 L.R.A.,N.S., 624

Mich.—Light v. Detroit, etc., R. Co., 130 N.W. 1124, 165 Mich. 433, 34 L.R.A.,N.S., 282

4. Idaho.—Lindsay v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 90 P. 984, 13 Idaho 477, 12 L.R.A.,N.S., 184
10 C.J. p. 769 note 31

5. Ala.—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Harper, 83 So. 142, 203 Ala. 398.

Ill.—Wilson v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 245 Ill.App. 72—Cohen v. Cleveland, C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 197 Ill.App. 88

Ind.—Union Traction Co. of Indiana v. Smith, 123 N.E. 4, 70 Ind.App. 40

Mo.—Hartridge v. United Rys. Co. of St. Louis, App., 196 S.W. 59—Davis v. Lusk, App., 190 S.W. 362—Ferguson v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co., App., 186 S.W. 1134.

Okl.—Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vosburg, 270 P. 58, 132 Okl. 196—Dickinson v. Bryant, 172 P. 432, 69 Okl. 297, L.R.A.1918E 978.
10 C.J. p. 767 note 19, p. 768 note 30.

Annoyance, vexation, delay, and risk to which a passenger was subjected may be considered in the assessment of damages.—Wilson v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 245 Ill.App. 72.

Reasonable amount may be recovered, by an ejected passenger, for injured feelings and humiliation.—Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vosburg, 270 P. 58, 132 Okl. 196.

Party must have cause of action by reason of the wrong done, in order to recover for mental suffering or nervous shock.—Lindsay v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 90 P. 984, 13 Idaho 477, 12 L.R.A.,N.S. 184.

6. N.C.—McNairy v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 S.E. 497, 172 N.C. 505.
10 C.J. p. 768 note 30.

Unnecessary force

N.C.—McNairy v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 S.E. 497, 172 N.C. 505.

proper place.[7] The fear involved in the apprehension attending, or which may follow, the ejection may be taken into account.[8]

However, there can be no recovery for humiliation or disgrace by an ejected passenger who boarded the car of a carrier with the expectation and for the purpose of being ejected.[9]

As independent grounds of recovery. Under rules of general application in the law of damages as to mental pain and suffering as independent grounds of recovery, which are discussed in C.J.S. title Damages § 64, also 17 C J. p 831 note 54–p 832 note 66, it is the rule in some jurisdictions that there can be no recovery for mental suffering unless a physical injury was sustained[10] or the wrongful act was attended by circumstances of violence, malice, or insult.[11] Under this rule, there can be no recovery for mental suffering or humiliation where the ejection, although wrongful, was made in good faith and under a mistaken belief that the passenger was not entitled to transportation.[12] On the other hand, if the wrongful ejection of the passenger is accompanied by acts which are insulting and abusive,[13] or wanton and malicious,[14] or willful and inhuman,[15] there can be a recovery for humiliation or mental suffering although they are not accompanied by a physical injury.

In other jurisdictions it is held that there may be a recovery for humiliation or mental suffering by virtue of the mere fact of the wrongful ejection[16] and in the absence of physical injury,[17] and irrespective of the manner in which the expulsion was performed.[18] Under this rule, it has been

Use of abusive or insulting language or conduct

Ky—Louisville & N R Co v. Gibson, 64 S W 2d 163, 250 Ky 814
Mo—Hartridge v. United Rys. Co of St Louis, App., 196 S W 59
Tex—Woodward v Texas & P Ry Co., 86 S W 2d 38, 126 Tex. 30, reversing Texas & P. Ry. Co v Woodward, Civ App., 53 S W.2d 82
10 C J. p 769 note 34

Unnecessary publicity

(1) If a wrongful ejection is accomplished with unnecessary publicity, the ejected party may recover damages for the humiliation suffered —Chicago, etc., R. Co. v Chisholm, 79 Ill 584—10 C J p 769 note 33

(2) The fact that only the conductor and a brakeman were present when a passenger was ejected does not prevent recovery for humiliation and disgrace—Kansas City, etc, R Co. v Little, 71 P 820, 66 Kan. 378, 97 Am S R. 376, 61 L R A 122

Use of abusive and insulting language in the presence of other passengers is a proper ground for the recovery of damages for mortification and humiliation—Louisville & N. R Co v Gibson, 64 S W 2d 163, 250 Ky 814.

7. N C—McNairy v Norfolk & W. R. Co, 90 S E 497, 172 N C 505
10 C.J p 768 note 30

8. Ohio—Cincinnati Northern Tract. Co. v Rosnagle, 95 N E 884, 84 Ohio St 310, 35 L R A,N S, 1030, Ann.Cas.1912C 639.
10 C J p 769 note 35

But mere anticipation of miscarriage, when no fact looking to it was testified to by anyone and the child was subsequently normally born, is not properly an element of damages—Louisville & N R Co v Watson, 255 S W 1056, 201 Ky 108

9. Mo—Green v United Rys. Co of St Louis, 206 S W. 237, 239, 200 Mo App 303
10 C J p 770 note 36
"According to plaintiff's own evidence, he invited ejection from defendant's car He went thereupon, armed with the law,' to demand what he conceived to be his rights, for the purpose of either obtaining the desired transfer or compelling defendant to put him off the car His testimony shows clearly that it was his purpose to make the conductor lay hands upon him and eject him from the car in order to lay the foundation for this action Under such circumstances, no recovery may be had for humiliation or disgrace by reason of being ejected in the presence of passengers or others"—Green v United Rys. Co. of St. Louis supra.

10. Ky—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Dill, 191 S W 80, 173 Ky 412
10 C J p 770 notes 38, 40.

Illness

Ky—Mobile & O R Co. v. Dill, 191 S W 80, 173 Ky. 412.

Mental suffering growing out of physical pain

There may be a recovery for such mental pain and suffering as grows immediately out of, or results directly from, the physical pain endured by reason of a wrongful ejection—Atchison, etc, R. Co v Lamoreaux, 49 P. 152, 5 Kan App 813.

11. Ky—Louisville, etc, R Co v Wilsey, 12 S W 375, 11 Ky.L 419, 5 L R.A 855
Mo—Morris v. St. Louis, etc, R Co, 168 S W. 325 184 Mo App 65.
10 C.J p 770 note 39.

Malice and evil intent are implied from the act of ejecting a person from a moving train.—Harkless v Chicago, etc., R. Co, 132 S W 29, 151 Mo App 463

12. Mo—Glover v. Atchison, etc, R. Co, 108 S W 105, 129 Mo.App 563

13. Mo—Davis v. Lusk, App, 190 S W 362—Morris v St Louis, etc., R. Co, 168 S W 325, 184 Mo App. 65

Threats of expulsion and arrest

If, in threatening a passenger with ejection and arrest, he is wrongfully subjected to insults, abuse, or ill treatment by the agents of the carrier, and he is thereby caused to suffer humiliation and mental distress, he is entitled to damages, notwithstanding he may not have suffered any physical or property damage—Woodard v Texas & P Ry Co, 86 S W 2d 38, 126 Tex. 30, reversing Texas & P Ry Co v. Woodard, Civ. App, 53 S W.2d 82.

14. Mo.—Harkless v Chicago, etc., R Co., 132 S W. 29, 151 Mo App. 463

15. Mo—Harless v Southwest Missouri Electric R Co, 99 S W 793, 123 Mo App 22

16. Ala.—Louisville & N R Co v. Harper, 83 So. 142, 203 Ala 398
Ark.—St Louis, etc, R Co. v Trimble, 15 S W. 899, 54 Ark 354.
Ill—Chicago, etc, R. Co v Flagg, 43 Ill. 364, 92 Am D. 133—Wilson v. Cleveland, C, C. & St. L Ry Co, 245 Ill App 72

17. Ind—Union Traction Co of Indiana v Smith, 123 N E. 4, 70 Ind App 40
Wash.—Willson v Northern Pac R. Co, 32 P 468, 34 P. 146, 5 Wash. 621
10 C J. p 770 note 41

18. Ala—Louisville & N R. Co. v. Harper, 83 So 142, 144, 203 Ala. 398
"Such damages as humiliation and indignity, if suffered by him from his ejection from the car, are said to be elements of actual damages held to be immaterial that the trainman was without fault,[19] or that he acted in good faith[20] or without the use of force or violence or insult,[21] or that his act was not wanton, malicious, or willful, but was the result of mistake or negligence[22]

Where fare is illegally exacted. Humiliation suffered and indignity done a passenger is also an element of damages where fare is illegally exacted from him, and he pays it in order to avoid an ejection.[23]

§ 851. Proximate and Remote Damages

Damages must be the natural and proximate consequences of the wrongful ejection.

A passenger may recover such damages as proximately,[24] or such as might reasonably be expected to,[25] flow from a wrongful ejection, or from an ejection in an improper manner[26] or at an improper place;[27] but there may be no recovery of damages which are not the natural and probable consequences of the wrongful act,[28] or of damages which are too remote,[29] even though they may be in some measure traceable to the expulsion.[30] Further, a passenger may not recover damages which he could have avoided by the use of ordinary care.[31] Thus, it has been held that there may be a recovery of damages resulting from peril or exposure, or from efforts to reach some place of security,[32] after an illegal ejection; but there may be no recovery of damages resulting from unnecessary exposure or effort.[33] A recovery of damages has been denied an ejected passenger for the humiliation resulting from subsequent comments of persons not present at the time of the ejection,[34] for injury to his good name[35] or to his business or professional reputation,[36] or for having been compelled to borrow money to pay an illegally exacted fare.[37] arising 'from a sense of injury and outraged rights engendered by the ejection alone, without regard to the manner in which it was effected, and though done only through mistake' "—Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Harper, supra.

19. Okl.—Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry Co. v. Vosburg, 270 P 58 132 Okl 196—St. Louis, etc., R Co. v. Yount, 120 P. 627, 30 Okl 371.

20. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. Flagg, 43 Ill. 364, 92 Am.D. 133—Wilson v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co., 245 Ill.App. 72. Contra Mallott v Woods, 109 Ill App. 512
Wash.—Willson v. Northern Pac. R Co., 32 P 468, 34 P. 146, 5 Wash. 621.

21. Ill.—Chicago, etc., R. Co. v Flagg, 43 Ill. 364, 92 Am.D. 133—Wilson v. Cleveland, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co, 245 Ill.App. 72.
Okl.—Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Vosburg, 270 P. 58, 132 Okl. 196—St. Louis, etc., R Co. v. Yount, 120 P. 627, 30 Okl 371.
Wash.—Willson v. Northern Pac. R Co., 32 P. 468, 34 P. 146, 5 Wash. 621

22. Ill.—Lake Erie, etc, R Co. v Christison, 39 Ill.App. 495.
Iowa.—Coine v. Chicago, etc., R. Co., 99 N.W. 134, 123 Iowa 458

23. Ga.—Louisville, etc., R Co. v. Chivers, 75 S.E. 13, 11 Ga.App 236.
10 C.J. p 770 note 43.

24. Ala.—Louisville & N R. Co. v Harper, 83 So. 142, 203 Ala 398.
Ga.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R Co., 181 S E. 421, 51 Ga.App 699
10 C.J. p 770 note 45.

Cold contracted by a passenger who was wrongfully ejected from a train on a rainy night is a consequential damage flowing naturally and directly from the wrongful act.—Davis v. Lusk, Mo.App., 190 S W 362.

Arrest and imprisonment

Where a conductor wrongfully ejects a passenger and causes his arrest for a supposed assault, the imprisonment and detention are the proximate results of the act, and are properly considered by the jury in assessing the damages.—Gulf, etc., R. Co. v. Conder, 58 S.W. 58, 23 Tex. Civ.App. 488.

25. Mo.—Davis v. Lusk, App., 190 S W. 362.

26. Utah—Morgan v. Oregon Short Line R. Co., 83 P. 576, 30 Utah 82.
10 C J. p 770 note 45.

27. Ky—Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Dill, 191 S W. 80, 173 Ky. 412.

28. Ga.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 181 S E. 421, 51 Ga. App. 699.
Iowa.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co, 180 N.W. 733, 190 Iowa 693.
Proximate cause of injury see supra § 830

If injuries sustained by freezing are not proximately due to the act of wrongful ejection, no damages may be recovered on that account.—Meyers v Keokuk Electric Co., 180 N W. 733, 190 Iowa 693.

Damages for loss of contract

In an action by a passenger for wrongful ejection, wherein it appeared that plaintiff was on his way to a distant town to employ and gather together men for a lumber company with which he had a contract, and that by failure to fulfill his engagement with the men he lost his contract, damages for loss of such contract could not be recovered, as they did not ordinarily or naturally flow from the wrongful act of the carrier, nor were they within the reasonable contemplation of the parties.—Johnson v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co, 113 S.E. 606, 184 N.C. 101, 25 A.L.R. 910.

Damages for ejection at unsuitable place are limited to those which proximately result from the ejection at such a place.—Mobile & O R Co v. Dill, 191 S.W. 80, 173 Ky. 412.

29. Mass.—Spade v. Lynn, etc, R. Co., 52 N.E. 747, 172 Mass. 488, 70 Am.S.R. 298, 43 L.R.A. 832.
Minn.—Hoffman v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 47 N.W. 312, 45 Minn 53.

30. Ga.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 181 S.E. 421, 51 Ga. App 699.

31. Tex.—Galveston, etc., R. Co. v. Scott, 79 S.W. 642, 34 Tex.Civ App. 501.

32. Ga.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 181 S.E. 421, 51 Ga. App. 699.
10 C.J. p 771 note 48.

33. Ga.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., supra.
10 C.J. p 771 note 49.

34. Ala.—Louisville, etc., R Co. v. Hine, 25 So. 857, 121 Ala. 234.

35. Cal.—Procter v. Southern California R. Co., 62 P. 306, 130 Cal. 20.
Minn.—Carsten v. Northern Pac. R. Co, 47 N W. 49, 44 Minn 454, 20 Am S R. 589, 9 L.R.A, 688.

36. Wis.—Schmitt v. Milwaukee St. R. Co., 61 N W. 834, 89 Wis. 195.

37. Minn.—Hoffman v. Northern Pac. R. Co, 47 N W. 312, 45 Minn. 53
Tex.—Missouri, etc., R. Co. v. Welch,

In determining what physical injuries are proximate, it is competent to show the physical and mental condition of plaintiff which aggravated the injury, although such peculiar condition was not known to the carrier[38]

§ 852. Aggravation, Mitigation, and Reduction of Loss

It is the duty of the ejected passenger to use reasonable care to minimize his damage and avoid its aggravation. His own provocative conduct may tend to mitigate his damages, as may the element of good farth on the part of the carrier.

The passenger must lighten any consequential damages as far as he may do so by the exercise of ordinary care.[39] He should exercise reasonable care to extricate himself from his predicament and cannot recklessly or foolishly aggravate his inconvenience or suffering, although he is not bound at his peril to use the highest care.[40] Even though the ejection is wrongful, the passenger should not offer unnecessary resistance, thereby bringing on himself the exercise of force resulting in personal injury, and if he does so he may not recover for such injuries unless they were unnecessarily or maliciously inflicted.[41] A passenger will not be permitted to aggravate his injury or to enhance his damages by voluntary abandonment of the trip where he has been invited to board the train and resume his journey after he has been wrongfully ejected.[42]

Payment of fare It has been held that a passenger whose ticket or fare has been wrongfully rejected need not minimize his damages by paying an additional fare demanded,[43] more particularly where his financial circumstances would render his completion of his trip impossible after such a payment.[44] There is authority, however, holding that where a passenger is unable to produce a ticket which has been wrongfully retained by a previous conductor,[45] or where his right to be transported on the ticket presented by him is reasonably in dispute,[46] he should pay the fare requested, if possible, and not seek to increase his damages by refusing to pay.

Aggravating conduct of plaintiff. Improper conduct on the part of the ejected person may be shown in mitigation of damages.[47] Thus, it has been held that his use of abusive or provocative language may be shown in mitigation of compensatory as well as of exemplary damages,[48] although there is also authority to the effect that such language may be considered only in mitigation of punitive damages and not in mitigation of compensatory damages.[49] The fact that an ejected person employs unnecessary resistance may be considered in mitigation of damages.[50]

Good faith. While the good faith of a carrier's servants in ejecting a passenger, may not prevent a recovery of compensatory damages, it may be shown for the purpose of affecting the allowance or amount of exemplary damages.[51]

§ 853. Exemplary Damages

Under rules of general application, exemplary or punitive damages may be awarded.

Where the act of wrongful ejection is accompanied by circumstances which, under the rules discussed in C.J.S. title Damages §§ 117–127, also 17 C.J. p 968 note 68–p 997 note 33, give rise to a right to exemplary or punitive damages, such as malice, wantonness, violence, or gross negligence, exemplary damages may, as a general rule, be awarded[52] when the act of the carrier's servant in ejecting the passenger is within the general

94 S.W. 333, 100 Tex. 118, reversing, Civ.App., 91 S.W. 621—St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Crane, Civ.App., 102 S.W. 738

38. U.S.—Mann Boudoir Car Co v. Dupre, Miss., 54 F. 646, 4 C.C.A. 540, 21 L.R.A. 239.
10 C.J. p 771 note 50

39. Ga.—Devero v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 181 S.E. 421, 51 Ga. App. 699
Tenn.—Howell v. Nashville Interurban Ry., 4 Tenn.App. 304
10 C.J. p 772 note 63

40. Iowa.—Meyers v. Keokuk Electric Co., 180 N.W. 733, 190 Iowa 693
Ejection on a cold night
